SUNITA DWIVEDI, a keen photographer, Silk Road traveller, researcher, author and a free lance journalist by profession, has worked for several newspapers including Times of India and Hindustan Times for over 15 years.

Her present work involves tracing the Buddhist Sites on the Silk Road's Asian Circuit. A post-graduate in English Literature from Lucknow University and a post-graduate in Education from Allahabad University Ms. Dwivedi has travelled widely along the ancient routes through Pakistan, Afghanistan, Central Asian Republics and China and produced three volumes of Buddha on the Silk Road viz. Buddhist Heritage Sites of India (2005); In Quest of the Buddha-A Journey on the Silk Road (2009); Buddha in Central Asia- a Travelogue; (2014).

Her journey along the ancient routes through India, China and Central Asia in essence has been a journey with the Buddha. A long, long time ago, she had left Kushinagar, her home in a remote town of eastern Uttar Pradesh, to follow the fragrance of the Buddha.
