ESSENTIAL UNITY OF ALL RELIGIONS
THERE IS NO COPYRIGHT IN THIS BOOK

Anyone may reprint, or reproduce in translation, whole or any part of it, but with mention of it. Dr. Bhagavān Ṛṣi, Author. K. S. Krishṇamūrti, Manager, for T. P. H., Publishers.
ESSENTIAL UNITY OF ALL RELIGIONS

COMPILED BY
"BHĀRAṬA RAṬNA"
DR. BHAGAVĀN ĎĀŚ

(M.A., CALCUTTA UNIVERSITY; D.LITT., Hon. causa, Banaras and Allāhābād Universities)

THE THEOSOPHICAL PUBLISHING HOUSE
ADYAR, MADRAS 20, INDIA
1955
First Edition, 1500 copies, 1932
Second Edition, greatly enlarged, 4000 copies, 1939
U. S. A. Reprint, 1500 copies, 1946
Fourth Edition, revised and further enlarged, 2000 copies, 1947
Fifth Edition, 3000 copies, 1955
PREFACE (TO PRESENT FIFTH EDITION)

In the winter of 1917-1918, this writer went to South India with some members of his family on pilgrimage. He halted at Adyar, Madras, for a few days, and was kindly put up there by "Mother A. B.", as all Theosophists in India had begun affectionately to call Mrs. (later Dr.) Annie Besant, President of Theosophical Society. He went on with his party to Rāmeshvaram, visiting on way thereto, all the great Temples whose cyclopean stone-work almost rivals that of Ancient Egypt, as travellers who have seen both say.

Thirty-five years later, in March 1954, I had to go to Madras again, for some personal reasons. There, in evenings, I went out with friends for drives on the Marina, said to be one of the finest. Along one side of the broad road, I saw, at intervals, life-size bronze statues, which, I was told, were, some, of former British Governors, others, of famous Indians, two or three living. One was of Dr. Annie Besant. We stopped the car, I got down and had a close look at the fine statue. I was told that in 1936, three years after she passed away (on 20th September 1933), public-spirited citizens of Madras, who knew, and were grateful for, what she had done for India generally and Madras specially, subscribed needed money, had statue made, and requested the Mayor and Corporation of the City to take charge of it and set it up in some appropriate place. They gladly did so, on the Marina, and, in addition, named that quarter of the city as Besant Nagar, i.e., Besant Town. Statue is flood-lighted at night by Corporation.

Work that A.B. did, from 1893 to 1933, is an important part of history of India. Mme. H. P. Blavatsky and Col. H. S. Olcott started the work, especially Col. Olcott, by his annual tours and lectures in most of the larger towns, but it was she who first successfully induced materialism-ridden Indians, graduated in colleges established by British-Indian Government and regarding 'Hinduism' as a huge conglomerate of meaningless superstitious beliefs and practices, to think seriously whether these was any substance in their Ancestral Religion. It certainly was, and continues to be, a mass of such absurdities among those not educated in the new way and also among vast masses of uneducated. She induced the others, by explaining essentials of Sanātana Dharma, Eternal Religion', (miscalled 'Hinduism'), in the light of Theosophy, 'God-Wisdom', as identical with Brahma-Vidyā, Āṭma-Vidya, A-dvaita-Vedānta, to feel respect for their Manus, Rśhis, Rāmas, and Kṛshnas. Thus she gave back to them their lost Self-Knowledge and self-respect, first indispensable step to Self-Government. And she won respect for Sanātana Dharma, not only among Indians, but also from all nations speaking English. For, during months that were hot in India, she toured about incessantly in other countries, addressing large audiences on Theosophy. Thus, knowledge of main ideas of Vedānta, 'Final Knowledge', 'End and Culmination of Knowledge', 'Knowledge of Eternal and Universal Supreme Self', which was formerly confined to a handful of Orientalist scholars, was spread broadcast among masses. Her work was helped greatly by the fact that local dailies everywhere reported her lectures fully, which were, thus, read by tens of thousands who could not hear them in person. All this work indirectly helped the Indian People in their political struggle, by winning sympathy for them in those countries.

Having thus prepared way, she joined Indian National Congress formally, and wrought nobly for India's Freedom from subjection to Britain; not for utter separation from it. She did not live to see that Freedom achieved. It was achieved, on 15th August, 1947, through self-sacrificing efforts of many patriots, of all vocations, in all sections of the People, under leadership of Mahātmā Gāṅdhir. These efforts were helped very greatly by World-conditions resulting from second World-War. A.B.’s aim always was an Indo-British or British-Indian Commonwealth; and it will surely be a very great satisfaction to her soul in Heaven to know that, though India has become a sovereign Independent Republic, the most friendly relations exist between the two countries. This happy state is very largely the result of the life and work of Dr. Annie Besant and Mahātmā Gāṅdhir.¹

It has been said above that A.B. conveyed only main ideas of Vēdānṭa to English speaking peoples. She could not well do more. She derived her knowledge of them from English translations of a few main Scriptures. She had to do, and did, so very much other work that she could not spare time to master Sanskrit, a difficult language, and study its many and voluminous Scriptures in original; also, to gather original texts from Scriptures, except Bible, of other religions, and arrange them side by side.

¹ An excellent and comprehensive account of A.B.’s life and work in and for India is given in Shri S’rī Prakāṣa’s book, Annie Besant, as Woman and as Leader, (pub. 1941, by T.P.H., Adyar; new edition, pub. 1954, by Bhāraṭīya Viṣṇuṇā Bhavan, Bombay). Other aspects of her life which did not come within Shri S’rī Prakāṣa’s experience are dealt with in present writer’s Annie Besant and the Changing World (pub. 1934, by T.P.H., Adyar).
side with Vedaanta Texts. This work has been done in E.U.A.R., because its compiler had much more leisure. By thus proving the Essential Unity of All Religions, this work eliminates one Prime Cause of Discord between Peoples, viz., Religious Dissensions, which have caused great wars and massacres throughout the ages; and it thereby serves the immediate and exceedingly important practical purpose of helping to create Good-Will among Men, whence that Peace on Earth, indispensable to Prosperity, for which every sane heart and head is hungering and thirsting all the world over.

While in Madras, I had opportunity to settle details for new edition of this book, with Shri K. S. Krishnamurti, public-spirited Manager of T.P.H. He had already arranged to bring out an edition of 2000 copies. I wanted greatly at least another thousand. But T.P.H. could not afford the further sum required, Rs. 7000, because cost of everything, wages, paper, all printing material, especially lead, copper etc., and machinery, had increased enormously during and after second World War. I was fortunately able to secure the further sum from donors who choose to remain anonymous.

I was able to stay in Madras for two months, and another two in beautiful Ootacamund, deservedly called "Queen of Indian Hill-Stations". Twelve formes had been printed off when I started back for Banaras on 10th July, 1954.

After this, work became much slower. Galley-proofs, first page-proofs, final page-proofs, had to travel to and fro, some 1200 miles each way, between Banaras and Madras. I had requested Manager, T.P.H., to print new edition, page-for-page, of previous. If he could have done that, it would have saved me immense labor. He could not. Types of Vasanta Press were different, length of lines and number of them on each page smaller. Previous edition comprised lx, 626 pages. Present one has ciii + 904. I have had to change all page headings, and all page-numbers in Indices. This last was especially troublesome to 87-years old worn-out eyes. Due to peculiar conditions, I have had to do all material-collecting and writing work single-handed, and have received no help from others, for this as well as for all my other books, except that mentioned in prefaces. Many mistakes, of all sorts, have therefore been left behind inevitably in this edition. Need I apologise for them? Page of Agenda et Corrigenda has been placed immediately after Contents, to enable readers to correct their copies before beginning to read. Only such errors as seemed likely to cause misapprehension have been noted. Minor ones, many, have not been.
Author's and Publishers' thanks are due, first and foremost, to readers whose appreciation has caused so many editions to be printed; next, to late Shri Jinarājaḍāsa, President of T.S., scholar and linguist, and to the present President, Shri N. S'ri Rām, for giving needed permission to T.P.H.. Author's thanks are due to Shri K. S. Krishṇamūrṭi for undertaking, in difficult times of great financial stringency and soaring prices of all things, a reprint of this large work. His thanks are due also to staff of Vasanta Press for excellent work.

It is a profound satisfaction to me that this book goes forth, with Foreword by the President of India, and Appreciations by the first and last Indian Governor-General of India, the Vice-President of India, and a Justice of the Hague International Court of Justice, High Symbol of Peace between Nations—goes forth to all countries on its Mission of Service of Man and therefore of God.

"Shānti Saḍan", Sigrā, Banaras, India.

Bhagavān Ğās

Dīpavali,
(Festival of Lights)
14-11-1955
FOREWORD TO FIRST EDITION

(ABRIDGED FOR THIS)

"The first World Conference on Education was held in San Francisco in July, 1923. Out of this Conference, the World Federation of Educational Associations was born. The Constitution of the Federation provided the following article regarding Conferences: 'The World Conference shall meet in full session at such place and time as may be determined by the Directors; but a meeting of sections, one in Europe, one in America, and one in Asia, may be held in the intervening years.'"

First All-Asia Education Conference was held at Banaras, from 26th to 30th December, 1930, in Central Hindu College.

Its Conveners desired the undersigned to write a paper on "Unity of Asiatic Thought". Subject took shape in his mind as "The Essential Unity of All Religions". Asiatic thought is deeply tinged with Religion. Asia has given birth to all the great living religions. He read his paper to the Conference on December 30, 1930.

1 Foreword to Report of The First All-Asia Education Conference.

It has been revised and enlarged greatly by addition of many more parallel passages.

If this book is so fortunate as to succeed in giving a taste to readers for discovering identities of thought in the great records of deepest human experience, in different languages, they will be able to see such identities at almost every step, in their further readings in such records, to their great joy, and to perpetual expansion of their sympathetic appreciation of others.

Some learned scholars essay to prove that religions of later birth have copied from earlier. The question, whether it is so, may have an intellectual historical interest for a learned few. A far deeper, more vital, more human interest is possessed, and for all mankind, by the question, why they have done so, if they have copied from one another at all. Is it not because there is only One Eternal Truth for all to copy? New generations are born from old, new nations grow out of colonies from old, new lamps are lighted from old, but the Life, the Light, the Might, which is only embodied in and expressed by ever changing forms, is beyond them all, is common to them all, is originated by none of them, but originates them all. It is an honor and a duty to copy—if what is copied is Truth; it were a disgrace to be original—if what is originated be False. And there can be 'originality' in only the 'fleeting', therefore the False. There can be no originality in Truth; for only the Eternal can be True; That only which never changes is really and strictly True; and minor truths, laws, and facts, which issue from It and constitute Its Nature, can only be, and ought to be, copied, in the large sense, diligently; hence, there can be no 'copy-right' in Truth. But there is no need to 'copy', in the small sense. The River of Life is ever flowing; whoever feels thirsty can dip his bucket directly into it. The same Truth wells up independently in the heart of Seer after Seer, Seeker after Seeker.

While compiling this book and revising it again and again, the compiler has prayed constantly to the Great Masters of all the living Religions, Manu, Kṛṣṇa, Vyāsa, Zoroaster, Moses, Isaiah, Laotse, Confucius, Buḍḍha, Jina, Christ, Muhammad, Nānak, and the Spiritual Hierarchy to which they all belong, for guidance of his fingers in this effort to serve his fellow men and women of all countries.

He should inform his readers that he has no knowledge of Arabic and but a smattering of Persian. But he has a profound conviction that Truth is One and the same, and that all the Great Lovers of Mankind cannot but have said the same true things. He has, therefore, from time to time, asked Maulavi friends to give him texts from Qurān and Hadīs (sayings of Muhammaḍ), parallel to Samskrit texts whose purport he placed before them. As Qurān is a comparatively small-sized book, and many good Maulavis know it by heart, they were able to supply the needed texts without much difficulty; in some cases readily. Persian and Urdu texts are, most of them, quoted from famous and venerated Sūfī-s, like Maulānā Rūm, Ḥāfiz, Jāmī, Sā'īḍī, Omar Khayyām, Ghāzālī, Mansūr, Chishti, Wesālī, Shabistārī, Khusrau, Sarmaḍ, Fāriḍuddīn Āṭtār. Much helpful information about Sūfism, and many valuable Arabic and Persian texts, have been found in the excellent, very learned and very thoughtful, books of Khān Sāhib Khāja Khān (of Madras), viz., Studies in Tasawwuf, The Secret of An-āl-Haqq, Philosophy of Islam, and The Wisdom of the Prophets. Because of the present writer's ignorance of Arabic and slight acquaintance with Persian, there are probably many mistakes in roman transcript and English translations. Of course, he has based English renderings of Arabic texts on explanations kindly supplied by Maulavi friends, and on published translations regarded as standard. Still he may have failed to be accurate. Readers learned in Arabic and Persian will kindly correct. Original texts also have been reproduced here, in roman transcript; translations by themselves do not command complete confidence; and correction by learned readers will be made easier.

This compiler shall be very happy if friends learned in their respective Scriptures will approve this kind of work and will take it up themselves. Indeed, what is very much needed is that representatives of all the great living religions, large-hearted, broad-minded, copiously-informed, philanthropically-motived, may come together in a small and active Committee, and prepare a series of graded text-books of Universal Religion, expounding main points systematically, and illustrating them amply, for ready reference and obviation of doubts, with parallel passages, in original, from their several Scriptures. Such text-books would be authentic and authoritative, carry great weight with all communities, open their eyes to the utterly Common Essentials of all Religions, and be introduced and studied with pleasure and profit, in private homes as well as public educational institutions, by students and readers of various ages and capacities—to the sure and certain promotion of Peace on Earth and Good-Will among Men.

It will make him rejoice, and will repay him a thousandfold for such labor as he has been privileged to bestow upon this compilation, if Universities and other educational institutions make it their own; and issue their own editions of it at cost-price, for use of their students, after making improvements in it, by omissions or alterations, and, particularly, additions of many more parallel passages, (on the broad principles, as well as on details, of observances, rites and ceremonies, customs and practices), through learned scholars on their staff, who may be specially conversant with the subject, and who may form, in each University, a Committee of Representatives of the several Faiths, such as has been desiderated above—for where else should large hearts, broad minds, and richly stored intellects be found, if not in Universities? If a single such Committee could be formed, of members contributed by different Universities—that were best of all; its work would carry greatest weight and be most convincing.

AUM! ĀMĪN! AMEN!

Banāras,
17-11-1932.  BHAGAVĀN Ďās.
A LETTER TO READER

(Revised)

AS

PREFACE TO SECOND EDITION

Dear Reader,

This book has been compiled by a would-be servant of his kind, and, withal, one who, all his life, has been drawn from within, by inclination, towards study and thinking, and dragged from without, by circumstances, towards executive and miscellaneous work of various kinds. It is likely, therefore, to have such defects as are natural to work done in such conditions.

To many readers, many paragraphs, which link up texts quoted from scriptures, will probably give the feeling of a car running over a road paved with worn cobble-stones; unfamiliar Samskṛt and Arabic-Persian words have been put in lavishly, side by side with English equivalents. Compiler can only plead, in exculpation, that the very purpose of the book is, by means of such juxtapositions of technical words of the three most widespread living religions, Christianity, Islām, Vēdism (or 'Hinduism'), including Buḍdhism and Jainism, which use many Samskṛt words in common), to throw into relief, identities and similarities of their thoughts, aspirations, practices. To those who are acquainted with all three languages, the collocations will, it is hoped, bring the pleasure of gatherings of friends from distant lands, nations, races, meeting and greeting each other with beaming smiles.

And there is much repetition. But that is the way of Scriptures also! And this book is just a compilation of their utterances. Even the thread, on which those precious pearls are strung, is spun out of material supplied by those Scriptures themselves. There is nothing new in the book, except interpretation of the Great Sayings. Which interpretation also is mostly only recalling of what has been forgotten. It may be said, then, that when the spiritual food is good and wholesome, it is, indeed, worth while to repeat it, day after day, even like healthy and pleasant material food. Not too often, of course; nor in very large quantities; for then it palls; nor taken too quickly, without leisurely 'mastication', rumination, reflection, turning over and over in mind, as food in mouth; for then it does not yield its full sweet taste, and is not duly assimilated.
There are, possibly, a few errors in translation of passages quoted from numerous Scriptures. Original texts, given in roman, will enable reader to rectify errors; himself, or with help from friendly scholars. Versions are seldom literal. Such, word for word, done with help of a lexicon, often ruin the real sense. Principle followed here is that translator should absorb the 'spirit' of the original 'letter', and reproduce that 'spirit' faithfully in the 'letter' of the new language.

Renderings have all been done in blank verse; rare exceptions in rhyme. 'Emotional' constituent of religion, now devoutness, then solemnity, again earnestness, or injunctional impressiveness, and, throughout, 'holiness', of scriptural utterances, most of which are themselves in verse or rhythmic prose—this can be more truly reflected in verse than in prose. This too has necessitated some deviation from literality. It is trusted, nevertheless, that intention of the original has always been correctly expressed. At times, version has been expanded a little, in light of original context of text actually quoted; very rarely, it has been abridged.

This whole attempt, to bring together parallel texts of several Scriptures, to prove identities and similarities, may, perhaps, fail to satisfy some critics, who would insist that minute differences should be at least as clearly brought out and emphasised as, if not more than, resemblances. They would, no doubt, be quite right, from their own standpoint, and for purposes of accurate intellectual scholarship. This compiler's plea is that 'intellectual' interest is not the only interest of the book; that 'emotional' and 'practical' interests are of at least as great concern in it; that minute differences are already far too much stressed and acted on, to great harm of mankind; that resemblances are far too much ignored, to their great loss; that even intellectually, what varies with each, deserves to be regarded as superficial, Non-Essential, and what runs through and is common to all, to be regarded as Core and Essence; and that, therefore, essential points, on which all religions agree, should be given far more prominence than they have been hitherto, and be regarded as very Heart of all Religions, as very Core of Truth; on the 'democratic principle' of 'majority vote'; and for the very important and truly practical purpose of promoting mutual Good Understanding and Peace all over Earth.

There may be critics of another class; persons of strong belief, of sincere and intense faith. They naturally feel, each, his own particular creed to be unique, 'the one and only', the best. Wish to be thought 'original', 'the first', 'unprecedented', 'unrivalled', is a Nature-ordained and unavoidable preliminary; in all aspects of human life, instinctual, nutritive, acquisitive, conjugal, military, financial, even literary and scientific. It is so, in every course of action, where ambitious competition is involved. And where is it not? All embodied life seems incessant love-and-war, both concentrated in ‘jealousy’, of great and small degree. This is patent in the worldly ‘life of pursuit’ of things of the senses; it is also present, though ever diminishingly, in the ‘life of renunciation’, until the very end. We may therefore say that wish to be individually ‘unique’ is first of the two main aspects, Egoist-Altruist, of that Duality which runs through all Life and Nature; as Wish to be Universally ‘Unique’, All-One, identified with All, is second. Preliminary Egoist wish, therefore, invades the regions of Religion also, and very powerfully! ‘My creed is best; and wholly original; different from all others; utterly new; nothing like it ever before; has borrowed nothing from any previous one; and is the final one too; there can never be another equally good, much less better’; even as ‘My race, color, caste, sex, is best; I belong to a Chosen people, a divinely privileged caste, a fundamentally superior race, a solar or lunar dynasty; my nation rules the waves; my nation is ubermensch; my country has tallest sky-scrappers, finest biggest costliest buildings, largest purse, vastest hoard of gold, is superlative in everything; on my empire Sun never sets; I am sprung directly from mouth of Brahma; I am son of Sun'; and so on. It requires much sad experience, before such egoism comes under control; before it is recognised that, while a certain amount of competitive egoism is necessary for growth of young animal or young nation, more than that amount is a hindrance, is even positively destructive; before soul turns to genuine Altruism, patient tolerance, understanding sympathy, the Truth of All in All; before it realises that, though, no doubt, distinctions of superior and inferior, senior and junior, stronger and weaker, are facts in nature, yet that they are relative and must not be over-emphasised, that strength must not be boasted too much, nor weakness too much despised.

No one can say that his physical body is made of matter created out of nothing, originally, for the first time, for him alone; has borrowed nothing from anyone; differs from all other matter. It is fairly obvious that each atom of every 'body' has passed through countless bodies in the past, and will pass through countless bodies in future; though it is also true that each body is somewhat different in make-up from all others. So too, every thought, emotion, volition, of every 'mind' or 'soul', (whichever word is preferred), has passed, and will pass, through countless other minds or souls; though also with some difference in grouping and manifesting; whereby each 'mind' or soul becomes as 'distinctive' or 'individual' as each body. Let us recognise such differences, 'realities', which constitute the 'personal' element or 'personality', by all means; but let us regard them as of less importance, as changing, passing, therefore Non-Essential; and let us recognise more fully, 'idealities', the 'impartial' or 'all-personal' element, and regard them as of greater importance, persisting through changes, permanent, and therefore Essential. In other words, we should value, but not over-value, the 'individual', the 'personal'. We should value at least a little more, the 'Universal', 'the Common Consciousness' belonging to all individuals; whereby alone can be 'each for all, and all for each'; whereby alone social life, collective existence, feel and fact of unitive 'We', as distinguished from, and at same time inclusive of, feel and fact of separative and exclusive 'I's', is made possible.

Unhappily, most of us are at that stage of 'youth' (of mind) in evolution, in which we take greater delight in feeling 'peculiar', 'uniquely individual', 'original', than in feeling 'Common', 'Universal', 'Eternal'. Yet craving for latter is there, always, in every heart. It is there sub-consciously, not understandingly. No one wants to feel 'uniquely individual' in solitude, away from all fellow-creatures, 'away from the haunts of men', 'far from the madding crowd'; but wants to do so amidst other individuals; otherwise his 'peculiarity', which is wholly dependent on contra-distinction from others, would disappear. Thus does he tie himself to others unavoidably. The craving is present in every heart supra-consciously also: for the reason that every individual self is Universal Self, and yearns in the depths of his heart, to recover consciously his forgotten and lost high status.

Of course, we must not futilely try to abolish wholly, this preliminary wish to feel separate and peculiar, in respect of religions, any more than in respect of individuals. It too has an obvious and necessary place in the evolutionary Scheme of God's Nature, Universal Self's Nature. But we have to moderate it, reconcile it with, slowly transmute it into, its opposite; more and more. This is not impossible; rather, it too is equally ordained by that same Nature.

In the work of reconciling religions, it is very easy to avoid hurting sensitiveness on the subject of originality; by studiously eschewing all attempt to derive any one religion out of any other. It is not necessary at all to make such attempt, so far as the general public is concerned. Scholars who wish to study religions comparatively and historically, may of course do so for themselves, i.e., for their own refined recreation; and also for enrichment of scientific knowledge regarding human psychical evolution, even as biologists trace physical evolution. But controversial propaganda should be avoided, in interests of peace.

Also, if task of tracing ancestry of religions is pursued stringently and diligently, with open mind, it must obviously prove to be one without possibility of completion and termination. It will be like endeavouring to answer the question: ‘Is tree first, or seed first?’ ‘Veil after veil will lift, but there must be veil upon veil behind’. Who can trace the atoms-amentations of any individual body-mind through ancestor before ancestor, up to a really first beginning? Metaphysic tells us that there can be no such absolute beginning, in strict sense. Even if we could go right up to beginning of our solar system, in primal nebula or invisible ‘ether’ or ‘radiant matter’, that would require to be derived from the corpus of a yet earlier system; and so on, ad infinitum. Why not then promote religious brotherhood and peace among the general public, by saying at once, what is utterly true also——that all atoms and all mentations and all religions, of all countless generations of living beings, past, present, future, not only of this earth, but of all orbs of heaven, (each of which has, presumably, its own types of living beings), and all visible and invisible planes of matter, are all equally derived from the Universal, Eternal, Body-Mind, Matter-Spirit, God-Nature, the One Omnipotent, Omnipresent, Omniscient Self, in whose Consciousness "all things live and move and have their being," which pervades them all?

It is better to understand, appraise, appreciate, than to ridicule, belittle, depreciate; better to see the good points more than the bad; better to see agreements more than differences; better to make peace than war.

Some students of comparative religion, of a tendency opposite to that which claims unique originality for the creed it favors, may say: "Since there is so much similarity, even identity in some respects, between all, therefore, each later must have borrowed from an earlier; and, therefore, the 'democratic' test of validity, majority of votes, consensus of opinion, proffered in the book, in respect of 'religion', which test is not a test in 'science' at all, does not hold good. Consensus is not independent. We have only one vote, repeated over and over again, flowing down the river of time; and it may have been given to a falsehood in the beginning."

Reply to this would be: "Even in Science, method of concomitant variations, used for testing truth of hypotheses and conclusions, is only a way of proving 'unanimity', through 'uniformity', or, at least overwhelming 'majority', of votes. Secondly, we have right to ask, What is cause of the initial falsehood, if any? And why has mankind given its vote to, and put faith in, such a falsehood; a falsehood of this particular kind; and generation after generation?" No sufficient answer has ever been offered to this query.

Yet again, some thinkers endeavour to explain away a religion or a philosophy by peculiar psychological constitution of individual who started that religion or formulated that philosophy; or by 'environment', or 'historical accident', or 'economic', or 'geographic', or 'physiographic' circumstances. Such explanations may, no doubt, be justified in respect of variable 'peculiarities'; which, however, ought to be regarded as 'non-essential', for reasons mentioned before. They cannot explain invariable fundamental 'generalities'. Also, question arises again, and always: Why and how those peculiar individual constitutions, historical accidents, economic and other circumstances, mutations and variations?

Every law and fact requires further laws and facts to explain it; these, yet others! ad infinitum; until we come to Infinite Self, Total Consciousness (including Sub-, Supra-, and Un-Conscious; waking, dreaming, slumbering), Universal Mind, Anima Mundi, and Its Will-and-Imagination; which works by Eonic Plan of Integration and Disintegration of Forms; according to its own Meta-physical (including physical) Laws of Nature. In this All-pervading All-including Mind and Its infinite Ideation, all Religion, Philosophy, Science, Law, Art, meet and merge; and from It they all emerge; in endless repetition. When we come to That, all questions are answered; all doubts are set at rest; Final Synthesis is achieved; Final Peace of Mind is gained.

Without achieving such synthesis, Human World cannot attain Happiness, here or hereafter. Religious and other wars of the past, communal riots and pogroms of the present, between Christians and Muslims, and Hindus and Muslims, between different castes of Hindus, between Shi'a Muslims and Sunni Muslims, in India, Jews and Arabs in Palestine, Jews and Germans in Germany, the vast politico-economic riots\textit{i.e.}, wars of the recent past, and of the present (in Korea, in Palestine, Burma, Indonesia, etc.)—all these are due, ultimately, to lack of such Synthesis.

After such maniacal accumulation of murderous explosives, a war of titans is inevitable. Bursting energies forcibly imprisoned in those explosives must find release. They cannot be kept locked-up thus for ever. Worst, most powerful, most destructive, most elemental, primary, terrible explosives are \textit{psychical} explosives, crassly egoistic evil human passions, lust, hate, greed, pride, mutual fear, jealousy. It is these which manufacture all secondary material explosives. After the monstrous amassing of both has exhausted itself; after it has left the human world in ruins; after that, need for reconstruction will arise, and be felt acutely by the broken nations.

May the Mystery which has fashioned and maintains the Universe ordain that the nations may be cured soon of this war mania! Thus we must pray, though, from Its standpoint of Infinity, birth and death of whole human races and civilisations can be of no greater import than growth and destruction of ant-hills. But even if war ceases, new adjustments of human relations on a world-wide scale, will be necessary. Otherwise, if conditions and causes, armaments and social structures, are left as they have been so far, corresponding effects must follow again; in shape of unappeasable discords, jealousies, hatreds; out of which, worse and worse wars must recur, inevitably, again and again; until armaments have all perished, in one way or another, and war-madness has been all purged and bled out of the Human Race, for some centuries, if not for ever, which is impossible, because of the Law of Duality.

For such re-adjustment, after complete dispersal and exhaustion, either by mutual sincere and far-sighted agreement, or by mutual slaughter, of this vast mass of psychical and physical explosives; a Great Synthesis, a Comprehensive Integration, of all aspects, Spiritual and Material, Individual and Collective, of the Life of the Human Race, is indispensable.

If the Russian experiment be successful, in all respects, it will naturally be imitated everywhere. If it fail, as is likely, in important respects, because of lack of Spiritual, 'anti-toxic', trust-breeding, sincerity-and-sympathy-producing, integrative and constructive nourishment and because of disregard of indefeasible essential psychological and philosophical principles; then the alternative will be, (1) a Universal Religion, which will be the Head-and-Heart of all religions; which will unite them all; will provide and promote that Spiritual nourishment, in shape of ever-growing accumulation, and ever wider spread, of those most powerful co-hesives, anti-explosives, anti-disruptives, viz., domestic and social affections and strong trusts; and will also

---

1 Indeed, is failing, has failed, vide U. S. A. Senator Bulitt's book, and, more recent, 'A World Apart', by Gerling, with Introduction by Bernand Russell, pub: 1949. But yet again, in July-August, 1955. a sincere and strenuous effort for World Peace has been made by President of U. S. A. and Premiers of France, Britain, and Russia, and terms have been agreed upon, at a conference in Geneva (Switzerland). The spirit and methods of government do seem to have changed for the better since the death of Stalin in March, 1953.
provide, as part of that Universal Religion, (2) a rational Scheme of Individuo-Social Organisation which would be in accord with all sciences, and especially with the Science of Human Nature, i.e., Psychology.

Such Universal Religion has been provided for us, by the Scriptures of the Nations; and such a Scheme of Socio-Individual Organisation, by Védic Scriptures in particular, as fundamental part of Religion; because Religion, to justify itself, must be of help and service everywhere, must secure for human being, the maximum possible, of Happiness Here as well as Hereafter.

Everywhere, today, 'rulers' of nations which are regarded as 'Great Powers', (rulers in shape of presidents, dictators, kings, premiers, cabinets, influential capitalist and militarist cliques and coteries), are striving to capture yet more 'power' of all kinds than they have already got; and 'leaders' of weaker or subjugated peoples, which are struggling to win back political freedom, are striving to recover the 'power' which their predecessors have lost. But neither those 'rulers' nor these 'leaders' anywhere, (except, perhaps, in Russia, in a lopsided, 'half-truth', fashion), are willing to think about how 'power' can and should be used, so as to Organise for Peace, systematically, each nation, each people, and thereby the whole Human Race.
They are all intensely and immensely busy with Organising for War or for political struggle. 'Let us snatch power, and more power, and yet more power, first; we shall do afterwards, at our sweet will, all the thinking that it may suit us to think, as to how to use that power.' Result of this attitude is—wars, in the one case; internal dissensions, jealousies, mutual thwartings, and failures, in the other.

The 'Great Powers' possess 'Self-government'; at least each one says it does. 'Leaders', of the peoples who are struggling for freedom from subjection and servitude, proclaim that they want 'Self-government.' But apparently, nowhere is any real effort being made by anyone to think out and expound what exactly Freedom and Self-government mean, and how Self-government can be made Good-government also, at the same time: to consider and explain whether Self-government means, and should mean, 'government of the people, for the people (a) by all the people, (which is obviously impossible), or (b) by a few of the worst of the people (who may manage, as happens not rarely, to 'Every one of the forty odd 'sovereign' states that were directly or indirectly involved in the World Wars, was and is 'self-governing', and uses profusely the blessed word 'Freedom'. But they have all been exercising their 'self-determining' in frantic endeavours to mangle and strangle one another. Freedom has come to mean, in practice, 'freedom to rob and rape and murder'.

get themselves elected by the now well-known devices of electioneering, racketeering, propagandising, intimidating, deceiving, gerrymandering, disciplining, gagging, grafting, boodling, bribing, etc.,) or (v) by a few of mixed and doubtful quality, (which is the most frequent fact), or (d) by a few of the best and wisest of the people, (which is very, very, rarely the case in known history). In other words, no one who counts in the world's affairs, today, is (a) actively realising and proclaiming to the world, the fact that Self-government and Good-government can Coincide only when the governing 'Self' is, not the lower and baser 'self' of the People, but their Higher, nobler, genuinely philanthropic 'Self.' Nor is any such person explaining (b) how such government by the Higher Self, 'the Kingdom of Heaven on Earth', may be achieved, i.e., how it may be managed that only the best and the wisest are elected.¹ It is plainer and more self-evident than any axioms of geometry, that only good and wise laws can promote happiness of mankind; that good and wise laws can be made and administered by only good and wise men and women, who constitute the Higher Self of the People; and that only such persons should be entrusted with powers of legislation and administration. Yet these so self-evident truths are so very difficult for mankind to learn, that it has not learnt them yet, after many thousands, probably tens of thousands, of years of most bitter experience of consequences of not acting in accord with them.

¹ Answer to this 'how' is attempted in this work in several places; see page-references, in Index of Subjects, at 'Self-Government' and 'Social Organisation'.

Result is that all these warring 'rulers', as much as struggling 'leaders', actuated, not by far-sighted humanism, but by narrow and very short-sighted nationalism, or even by mean and sordid personal ambitions and motives, are wandering in the dark, 'blind leaders of the blind', causing only very grievous harm and hurt to those whom they profess to wish to help.

They cannot say that the Right Way is hidden from them. They are themselves turning their eyes away from it. The Sun of Scriptural Wisdom is flaming, and radiating Light upon it from the heavens, all the time. Rulers and leaders have only to remove from their own eyes, the thick bandages of egoism and nationalism, and put on the glasses of Humanism. They would all, then, see at once, clearly laid out for them, the Path to Peace and Prosperity for all. Scriptures are telling us, all the time, how Society can and should be Organised for Peace; how the best and wisest of the people can be recognised; how they and they alone should be elected to the places of legislative power.
Problems of 'Organising for War', and for political struggle, may seem more urgent; but, surely, in any case, they are not more important than the problem of 'Organising for Peace'. Former are passing; they are concerned with temporary means and aims. Latter is Permanent Problem, concerned with Permanent End. To farsighted view, it is much more urgent also, as well as more important. For, if it is solved satisfactorily, former will abate and disappear automatically.

Let us all, then, engage in the work of promoting, firstly, by helping to spread right knowledge on the subject, and, secondly, in every other way possible, the Organisation of the Human Race for Peace and thence Prosperity.

Dear Reader, I pray you, unless you have found, and made sure of, a better way, to read about the Ancient Way, leisurely, in this book. Endeavour is made here to expound, no new way, but the Way of the Ancients, a Way which is time-tested. If you feel satisfied that that Way is worth experimenting with, then I pray you to do all you can to spread, as widely as may be possible for you, this Essential Message of all Scriptures, as preparation for the great Re-adjustment and Synthesis.

Banaras,
19-9-1939

(Revised, 19-9-1955)

Your respectful and sincere
Well-wisher,

BHAGAVĀN Dās
PREFACE TO THIRD EDITION

(REvised)

Some special features of this edition are as follows:

(a) It has been observed by E. A. Poe, in one of his tales, that, in English, of all words, 'the' occurs most often.

I have eliminated on an average, some twenty-five 'the-s' out of those that appeared on every page of second edition; so there are about eighteen thousand less in this.

Readers may feel gaps and jolts, now and then, (as I myself do), reading those 'expurgated' sentences; but I believe that they will shortly become accustomed to do without them (as I myself have become), and may even feel a more rhythmic poetic earnestness appear, now, in such sentences. If I am not mistaken, 'the' appears less frequently in English poetry than in prose. There is no word corresponding to 'the' in Sanskrit, nor in Persian, nor Hindi. In Arabic, its correspondent al is tacked on ad nauseam before every noun. Its correspondent in French and other Latin languages has been further elaborated into separate masculine and feminine forms. A friend who knows German tells me that it has a neuter form also in that language. Consider what special significance attaches to 'the'; what portion of its meaning is lost by a sentence, if its 'the-s' are omitted. Where 'the' has a limiting and specifying effect, as a 'definite', i.e., defining, article, there it should certainly be used; otherwise it need not be.

Reader may try this method on any sentences taken at random, in any English book, by removing 'the-s'.

A fuller statement of reasons for reducing use of 'the' will be found in Preface to fourth edition of Science of Emotions (pub. 1953, T. P. H., Adyar).

(b) Text, scripture quotations, translations, and footnotes, of previous edition, have all been reproduced in this; with only verbal alterations, here and there, to clear up obscurity, or read better. New matter has been added to all four.

(c) In transliteration of Skt. words, in latter portion of this book, s a n d h i, 'coalescence', of sounds, has been replaced more and more by un-coalesced forms. Thus, on p. 1, first words of first Skt. verse are Æk o D è v a h; un-coalesced, they would be k a h D ē v a h. P. 1 reads: A t r a ā v a s v a r g a h, a t r a ā v a n a r a k a h, ('Heaven is here, in us; and so is Hell'). Coalesced, the words would read, \( \text{A} \text{t} \text{r} \text{a} \text{i} \text{v} \text{a} \text{s} \text{v} \text{a} \text{r} \text{g} \text{o} \text{t} \text{r} \text{a} \text{i} \text{v} \text{a} \text{n} \text{a} \text{r} \text{a} \text{k} \text{a} \text{h} \). One main cause of difficulty of Skt. is this running together of letter-sounds and mixing up of words. This is perfectly natural in speaking; and 'rules of coalescence' of vowels and vowels, consonants and consonants, vowels and consonants, and of aspirates and nasals with these—all such rules are only explication and multiplication of one simple rule: Pronounce two words quickly, and sound which results from merging together of last letter of one and first of other, is embodied in a formal rule, \text{viz.}, 'If this letter is followed by this other letter, the two will be replaced by this third.'

Such coalescences and transformations occur inevitably in all languages. In English, if to 'intelligible' we add 'ty' the new word becomes 'intelligibility'; not 'intelligiblety'. For more complicated examples, readers may consult books on 'Phonetics'; or, for amusing ones, Bernard Shaw's play Pygmalion. In Skt., the facts that name and sound of every letter are identical, and that alphabet is scientifically arranged in accord with vocal apparatus, make phonetic coalescence and showing of it in writing, much easier. Also, there is no difference of capital and small letters, in printing types, and again in manuscript, in Skt.

(d) Words of a dozen languages, Skt., Arabic, Persian, Zend, Pālī, Prākṛt, Gurmukhī, Latin, Greek,
Chinese, Hindī, Urdu, and we may well include English also in list, have been transliterated in roman script in this book. That script may, therefore, be rightly regarded as a World-Script in present epoch of human history. As such, use of it deserves to be promoted far and wide; of course, without attempting to abolish any particular script which any communities or nations may cling to. A World-Script will powerfully help World-Religion and World-Order, i.e., World-Organisation, which would be a World-Order based on and arising out of a World-Religion.

(e) Readers will notice that, in foot-notes, events of current history are referred to, from time to time, to illustrate principles and generalisations stated in text. Literature, even scientific literature, is affected by current events, and, in turn, reacts upon and affects current history. Thus, invention of atom-bomb has stopped World-War II in Asia; but atom-bomb, in turn, has created such insecurity and terror in all nations and countries, that world is again being divided into two armed camps, one headed by U.S.A., and another by Soviet Russia; and a third and far more devastating World-War is hovering in air and spreading a pall of black gloom over whole human world.¹ That even particular physical sciences are better understood if studied in light of history of their development, and should be so studied—this is now a commonplace of Educational Method. Indeed, is not History of our Solar System, from its beginnings in primeval nebula down to this day, scientific description of its evolution in all its countless aspects?

¹Invention of hydrogen-bomb, many times more powerful than atom-bomb, and possibility, envisaged by

Whole and sole purpose of this book is to endeavour to show way to establish Concord in place of horrible Discord, which pervades world generally and India specially, by means of a rational World-Order based on and issuing out of a World-Religion. Therefore references, in foot-notes, to scientists, of invention of bombs a hundred times more powerful, explosion of one of which would annihilate all life on a whole continent, is intensifying mutual terror and gloom. But that very excess of terror has bred a natural reaction, and serious and sincere efforts are being made to establish Peace throughout World. Prime Minister of India, Jawāharlāl Nehru, has been taking a leading part in this movement and has toured in Russia and almost all other States of Europe in July, 1955. Before this, there was a conference, held in Bandung, (Java), of Prime Ministers of all Asian and Indonesian countries, also Egypt, in which India's Prime Minister took a leading part. It is matter for great thankfulness that a compact of Peace was agreed upon. More recently, President of U.S.A. and Prime Ministers of Russia and France and Britain have been discussing terms of Peace in Geneva, and have arrived at an agreement. Russian policy, internal as well as external, has changed very greatly since death of Stalin in March, 1953.
specific instances of awful Discord are obviously relevant.

One amazing event of tremendous significance and importance, viz., withdrawal of British Government from India, and handing over of all power to purely Indian Administration, took place during first minute after midnight between 15th and 16th August, 1947. Success of this step has, however been marred greatly by Division of India into a Muslim Pákistán and a (predominantly) Hindu Hindu-sthān. It is undisputed historical fact that certain Muslim leaders insisted on such vivisection of India, while Hindu leaders protested against it. Despite this protest, British Government, just before its departure, carried out Division in accord with wishes of those Muslim leaders. It was preceded by ferocious Communal Riots, engineered, to show that the two communities could not dwell together in peace; though it was glaringly patent that all seventy-five or eighty millions of Muslims, scattered all over India, and living amidst three hundred and more millions of Hindus and another ten millions of Christians, Pārsīs, Jews, etc., could not possibly be separated out, and brought away, from those others, and settled on one large piece of India, from which all others would be driven away. Therefore, two parts, where Muslim population was already predominant in number, were selected by those Muslim leaders, viz., Sind, West Punjab, and North-West Frontier as one block, and East Bengal as another. The 'communal riots' constituted a 'civil war', than which, as has been well observed, no other war is inspired by more intense hatred. Politico-economic motives also have been combined with religious fanaticism in this war, in India, and have exacerbated mutual hatred. It is not quite ended even now (at close of 1955), though not very active. Problem of Kashmir, in which battles raged fiercely for some two years, between invading regular army of Pakistan and defending army of India (Hindu-sthān), has not been solved yet. Only a sort of truce prevails. Since communal riots commenced, some years before Division, more than a million men, women, children, Hindus and Muslims, have been slaughtered, and many hundred crores of rupees worth of property, mostly that of Hindus, has been destroyed, besides. And the double trek continues still, from each part to the other, mostly that of Hindus from Pakistan into India, but also of Bengali-speaking Muslims of East Pakistan into Indian West Bengal, who are maltreated by Pakistani Government because they cannot and will not learn to speak Urdu.

1 Present exchange rate is thirteen rupees and a half for one pound sterling, and a crore is ten millions.
Those forty millions of Muslims who continue to live in Hindusthan, find that their religious observances are in no way interfered with by their Hindu neighbours, and Indian Government protects their rights with even greater care than those of Hindus. Thousands of Muslims, who had crossed over to Western Pakistan, have returned to India, sadder and wiser, having realised that life was easier for them in India, (as it is now known to world, in distinction from Pakistan).

Removal of the great drawback mentioned above, and re-union of sundered parts into one whole, as before, and prosperity for both communities as well as all others dwelling in India, depends on both administrations, of Pakistan and Hindusthan, realising (as, unhappily, neither does at present) that best, indeed, only, way of establishing peace and promoting general welfare throughout their respective dominions, and therefore India as a whole, is to teach and preach persistently, in every corner of the land, the Common Essentials of All Religions, and to establish, on basis of scientific psychological principles, included in that Universal World Religion, a Rational Socio-Individual Organisation, which will fulfil all just needs of all persons of all creeds, castes, colours, races, and both sexes, i.e., fill all stomachs, cover all backs, provide roofs over all heads, ensure decent family life, and bring livelihood-giving suitable work and appropriately qualified worker together.¹

It may be noted incidentally that name of this country in far back times, was Aja-nābha (vide Bhāgavata, V. vii. 3). Then, because of two great sovereigns, both named Bharaṭa, one of Solar, one of Lunar, Dynasty, it began to be called Bharaṭa. This name it continues to retain, even now, in all Samskṛt literature and all religious ritual. Irān-iants (Āryānians, Āryans, also called Persians, who are only a branch of Āryan Race, as are inhabitants, Celts, of Eire or Irė-land, and indeed all Indo-Āryans or Indo-Europeans)—these Irān-iants called the great river Sinḏhu as Hinḏhu, and inhabitants on both sides of it as Hainḏhavas, because of peculiar formation of their vocal apparatus. Earlier Greeks (Ionians, Yavanas in Skt.) called this river Indus, country round about it and beyond as India, and inhabitants an Indians. By these names they are known to all world today.

India, on 26th November 1949, declared itself a Democratic Republic, but decided to remain an independent member of the British Commonwealth of Nations; and chose Dr. Rājēndra Prasād as its first President.

Another fact, even more amazing than withdrawal of British Government, may be recorded here.

¹ See pp. 643-701 infra, for an outline of such.
Cheiro, in his World Predictions, (published in 1927, by The London Publishing Co., 62, Oxford St., London, W. 1), foretold: "England . . . will give India her freedom, but religious warfare will rend that country from end to end until it becomes equally divided between the Mohamedan and the followers of Buddha and Brahma"); (p. 160). No one in India had even dreamt of such a division, in 1927. He foretold a number of other events also, some of which have come true, such as abdication of Edward VIII and accession of George VI, in England.

(f) No country is east, no country is west, of any other. All are, by turns, now east and now west, of one another. None the less, Ex Oriente Lux, 'Light comes from the East' always, to every country, at Sun-dawn. And Civilisation travels with Sun. It is therefore in nature of things that, having reached its culmination in U.S.A., for the present, Civilisation should seek a new life with a new form in Japan, China, India, Russia, and Asia generally. And no other country than India, not even venerable China, provides fundamental principles, applicable everywhere and always, with suitable modifications of detail in accord with local and national conditions, of a complete Socio-Individual Organisation based on World-Religion.

Bhagavān Dās
NOTE
(Revised)

ON TEXTS GATHERED IN THIS BOOK, AND CERTAIN OTHER MATTERS

Eleven religions are usually regarded as great and living and current at present. These, proceeding from east to west, are: (1) Shin'ōism born in Japan, (2) Tāoism (or Lao'̄sism), and (3) Confucianism, in China; (4) Vēdism (or Vaiḍika Dharma, Sanāțana Dharma, Ārya Dharma, Mānava Dharma, now commonly called 'Hinduism'), (5) Buḍdhism, (6) Jainism, and (7) Sikhism, in India; (8) Zoroastrianism (or Pārsism), in Irān (or Persia); (9) Judaisms (or Hebraism, or Israelitism, or Jewish religion), and (10) Christianity, in Palestine; (11) Islām (or Mohammedanism), in Arabia. Parallel passages have been gathered in this work from universally recognised Scriptures, and also from some other generally and highly honored writings by revered Elders, of these eleven.
Well-known scriptures of Vedism are four Vedas with their Upanishats, Manu-Smrty, Gitâ, Mahabharata, Ramayana, Bhagavata, several Puranas, and some less well-known Smritis. Texts have been taken from these, principally. They are regarded as sacred and authoritative in the order mentioned. But first four are practically of equal authority, and Manu, because of its compact conciseness, comprehensive completeness, high and austere tone, and terse clear language, is the most frequently referred to, in discussions over matters of religious practice. Vedism is not connected with any one name as founder's; but Vedic socio-religious polity of India has been based, from time immemorial, on 'The Institutes, or Laws, of Manu'. Manu is regarded as Primal Patriarch and Law-giver of Indian Aryan; and as having embodied, in his Laws, all that substance and quintessence of Vedas which bears upon orderly planning and conducting of individual and and collective human life. Latest rescension of these Laws, in some 2700 couplets, is current under the name of Manu-Smrty. It is said by critical Orientalist scholars, to be between 2000 and 2500 years old now. But all are agreed that it is based on, and includes, large portions of much earlier texts, Manava-Dharma-Sutra, Vrddha-Manu, and others. These are not now extant, and are known only through quotations and references in available later works. The four Védas, Scriptures proper of Védism, on which Manu and all subsequent expounders base themselves, are said, by unanimous Indian tradition, to have been collected, edited, and given their present shape, by Kṛshṇa Dvaipāyana Vyāsa, famous as Véda-Vyāsa, some 5000 years ago, i.e., about 3100 B.C.; just before beginning of Kali-Yuga era. But some western Orientalists say that the oldest hymns belong to about 1500 B.C. New researches and fresh findings are, however, steadily pushing the period further and further back. Véda-Vyāsa is also author of Mahā-bhāraṭa, in which Manu is often referred to and quoted from. Where excerpts are taken from works other than these above-mentioned, their names are given.

Christian Texts have been drawn from English Bible, New as well as Old Testament mostly. Those of Jewish religion, from English Old Testament, chiefly.

Texts of Zoroastrianism, have been taken from J. M. Chatterji and A. N. Bilimoria’s edition of Gāthā.

Scriptures of Islām, from which passages have been taken, are, principally, Qurān and Hadīs in Arabic, and, next, writings of great Sūfis, mostly in Persian. These have been already referred to in Foreword. Founder of Islām, Muhammaḍ, was born in 570 A. C., and died in 632 A. C.
Texts of Shin'ōism, Tāoism, and Confucianism, this compiler had no access to, in the original. But there is one exception. All others have been taken from various published English translations of that primary scripture of Tāoism, Tao Teh King, ascribed to Lao-tse; and of Shu King, Shi King, Analects, and other works of Confucius; many from that marvel of learned industry, Treasure-House of Living Religions, by Robert Ernest Hume, (pub: 1933, by Charles Scribner's Sons, New York and London). Like Vēdism, Shin'ō is not connected with the name of any one person as founder. Lao-tse and Kung-fu-tse, i.e., Confucius, (as also Pythagoras, of Magna Graecia), were older and younger contemporaries of Buḍḍha. 6th century B.C. is remarkable for a great influx of religious thought and aspiration, in many countries, far apart from each other, but, as historical and archeological research is establishing more and more clearly year by year, not without communication with each other.

Buḍḍhist texts have been drawn, in original Pāli, (a 'dialect' or popular form of Samskṛt), current among the people in Buḍḍha's time, mostly from two small books, Khuddaka Pātha and Dhammapāda. They are collections, in Buḍḍha's own words, of his most important teachings. Dhamma-pada is to Buḍḍhists what Gītā is to Vēdists (Hindū-s). A few texts in Samskr̩t have been derived from other works, authoritative in next degree, like those of Nāgārjuna and Asanga. Of such works, full names are given. Years of Buḍḍha's birth and death are given variously, as 624 and 544 B.C. or 568 and 488 B.C.

1 See f.n. to p. 399.

Jaina texts have been derived, in original Samskr̩t or Prākṛt, (a variant of, and contemporaneous with, Pālī), from works regarded as authoritative, whose names have been given in full, after texts quoted. No teachings of founder, viz., Mahāvīra Jīna, also known as Varḍhamāna Svāmī, (b. 599 B.C., d. 527 B.C.; or, b. 549 B.C., d. 477 B.C.), definitely known to be in his own words, are extant. Earliest collections are by Bhaḍra-bāhu, of 4th century B.C. But in 1942, a small book has been published, titled Mahāvīra Vānī, 'The Words of Mahāvīra'. It was compiled by Shāntilāl Vanamālī Shēth, edited by Prof. Bēchar Dās Jīvarāj Dōshi of Ahmaḍābād College, and published by Sasṭā-Sāhiṭya Mandal, New Delhi. It contains 345 verses, which are believed to have been spoken by Mahāvīra himself, on different occasions. These have been arranged in 25 chapters on the lines of Dhamma-pada. The verses are all very significant. Work has been very well done; and may well become a manual and text-book for Jaina community, such as Dhammapada is for the Buddhist. At insistent wish of Prof. Béchar Dás, present writer contributed an introduction to it. Two more editions have been brought out since; and also a bigger and better arranged work, entitled Tirthankara Vardhamana, pub. 1953 (See f.n. on p. 691).

Texts of Sikhism, whose tenets are practically same as those of Gītā, have been taken mostly from its chief scripture, Guru Grantha Sāhab, in which are collected hymns and teachings of eight of the ten Sikh Gurus. Two did not leave any writings. Guru Nānak, founder and first Guru, was born in 1469, fourteen years before Martin Luther. Guru Govind Singh, tenth and last, passed away in 1708. He was great teacher, great warrior, great traveller, and great poet. Nānak was also all these, except warrior. Most of the hymns and teachings are in a language which may be described as Panjābi form of Hindi or Hindustāni. Many verses of other renowned saints, like Kabīr, have also been included in Grantha; which shows the broad-mindedness of the Gurus. Nānak was a scholar of Persian and Arabic, is said to have visited Kā'ba in Mecca, and to have always kept a copy of Qurān with him; this copy is said to be still preserved in Guru-dvārā built by Guru Har-sahāya, in Ferozpur, Punjāb.
Prof. R. E. Hume's remarkable book has been referred to. He tells us, in his Preface, that he has gathered in it, "3074 passages . . . selected . . . with the utmost care . . . (from) various alternative translations, . . . the total number of pages actually handled in the preparation of the volume amounting to 106,423." He has classified them into 4 Parts, sub-divided into 51 sections, without any comment of his own. Elaborate Reference Notes, Bibliography, Table of Citations, and Topical Index have been appended, which greatly facilitate use of volume.

Another very noteworthy book is Dr. Frank L. Riley's The Bible of Bibles, (pub: 1929, by J. F. Rowny Press, Los Angeles). Author says in his Foreword: "It is the concentrated essence of the Bibles of the world, extracted during nineteen years of study from sixty Sacred Books, dating back, according to some authorities, 13000 years". Dr. Riley has included, in his researches, Taoism, Vedism, Judaism, Zoroastrianism, Buddhism, Christianity, and Islam, of the living, and Babylonian-Chaldean, Egyptian, and Mithraist religions, of the past. He does not seem to have dealt with Shintoism, Confucianism, and Sikhism. He does not tell us the total number of passages he has extracted. They cover 343 pages of fine large print. A rough calculation gives 1400. These are divided into 12 chapters, which cover 387 topics, listed in a Table of Contents, (which is named Index), at beginning. Chapters are: (1) God, (2) Beneficence of God, (3) Creation, (4) Origin and Constitution of Man, (5) Problem of Evil, (6) World, Matter, the Unreal, (7) Works of the Flesh, (8) Kingdom of Heaven, (9) Fruits of the Spirit, (10) The Straight and Narrow Way, (11) Prayer and Healing, (12) Peace-Brotherhood-Heaven on Earth. An Introduction gives brief accounts of the sixty Bibles of the several religions studied. "A digest, or terse account, of excerpts from the Sacred Books which appear in" each chapter, averaging about a page and a half in length, is prefixed to it.

Present writer could not make such use of Dr. Riley's book as it deserved. He came across it rather late. Absence of an alphabetical Index, and of page-references in table of contents, hampered utilisation. Preparation of copy, new edition of present work, from notes previously gathered, on margins and pasted-in slips of a copy of first edition, was begun in January, 1939, after resigning membership of Central Legislative Assembly of India. First batch of 'copy' was sent to press in March, 1939. Thereafter, compiler had not leisure and vitality to spare nor peace of mind enough, for hunting up originals of a score or more of translated passages, quoted in Dr. Riley's book, which appeared very relevant. Throughout that whole month, and first week of April, very serious communal riots, a small 'civil war', raged in Banāras; between bands of Hindūs and Muslims, misguided and incited by evil-minded self-seeking politico-religious misleaders; despite all endeavours of a joint Hindū-Muslim Peace Committee, of which this writer had been elected Chairman, to his great unhappiness and helpless worry; the riots resulted in some 50 to 60 deaths, about 400 cases of serious and light hurt, very many cases of arson, loot, wanton destruction of property. Much worse riots had occurred in Banaras and Kanpur in February-March, 1931; and six persons, three Hindūs and three Musalmans, were appointed as a Committee with present writer as Chairman, by the Indian National Congress, then sitting in Annual Session in Karāchi, to investigate causes and report. The Spirit of Hatred, which has been stalking more and more proudly all over the human world, since beginning of 20th century, made its horrible presence felt acutely, thus, in Banāras; and showed that the 'Forces of Good, of Light, of Truth', have to struggle longer and harder against opposite forces, of the Enemy of Mankind, 'Forces of Evil, of Darkness, of Falsehood', before latter will be checked effectively. It is very necessary, for many workers, in all countries, to take up the task of establishing religious peace and good-will; for, from it, and not without it, will come economic and political peace and good-will.

Works of Dr. Riley and Prof. Hume possess not only outstanding merit in respect of scholarly industry, but are very praiseworthy for the philanthropic spirit of all-conciliating all-embracing Human Brotherhood and Solidarity which breathes throughout, in them. Because of lack of knowledge of any European language other than English, and of very limited reading in even that, this writer has not come across any other works using a similar method; except those which will be mentioned presently. It is to be hoped there are others; for such, and many such, in every language, are greatly needed to promote Human Brotherhood, true Spiritual Liberty and Fraternity, and Material Equitability. No doubt, a number of books have been written and published, whose purpose also is liberal-minded reconciliation of creeds. A fine recent work of this kind is World-Fellowship, edited by C. F. Weller (pub: 1935, by Liveright Publishing Corporation, New York). But its nature and method are very different. And even such works are too few.
Dr. Riley and Prof. Hume do not give any texts in original; only translations; though these are mostly from works of recognised scholars. Present work, in its first edition, had only about 450 parallel passages from Scriptures of the several religions; and practically none from the three indigenous religions of China and Japan, nor from Zoroastrian Zend-Avesta. Second edition brought together 1150 passages, which were increased to 1400 in third, in round figures.

Dr. Riley and Prof. Hume do not make it their purpose to trace out and supply any scientific and organic Scheme of Universal Religion, Religion in General, running through all religions. All topics dealt with by them, are dealt with here too; also many others; but they are arranged in a different way; not as a collection of comparatively un-jointed parts, but as forming a system, a single organism, with all its members livingly articulated together, in accordance with the Science of Psychology. Whether the arrangement is successful or not, reader will decide for himself. Great majority of topics dealt with by Dr. Riley and Prof. Hume, would be assigned to chapter on 'Way of Devotion, or Emotional (or Ethical) Constituent of Religion', in this work; and they do not touch many topics treated here in chapters on 'Way of Knowledge, or Intellectual Constituent of Religion' and 'Way of Works or Volitional (or Actional) Constituent of Religion'; (see pp. 113 on 'The Three Aspects of Religion').

Present work endeavours to provide, for the parallel passages, a setting of elucidative and connective comment, in the way of interpretation and illustration, so as to interlink them and make of them, all together, a continuous organic entity, without which the work would be only a collection of disjointed texts (or 'sacred bones', as a friend humorously said); a Universal Religion with a definite frame-work; not artificially eclectic, but a natural living growth; which may be readily discerned as present within outer garments of every religion; even as main features, general outlines, of human form, can be discerned in every human individual, behind his clothing. This Scheme is based on the psychological triad of knowing, desiring, acting, (see pp. 113-114).

Another work, somewhat similar to Dr. Riley's, was published in 1940, by Kegan Paul, Trench, Trubner and Co., London. It is entitled The Bible of the World, and is a compilation by Robert O. Ballow, Friedrich Spiegelberg, and Horace L. Friess. It is a very large volume of 1400 pp. royal 8vo, and of fine large print. Each religion is treated separately, in translated extracts. There is no attempt at scientific comparison, classification, systematisation. But it is a very painstaking collection. Present writer has not found it necessary to take any extracts from it.
E V O L U T I O N  O F  P R E S E N T  W O R K

This tripartite Scheme of Religion, based on Philosophy or Metaphysic and Psychology, is fundamental part of Indian tradition from time immemorial; (see pp. 357, 569-573). It was first utilised in the new way, required by the times, in 1904, for preparation of a series of Text-Books of Hinduism, for use in the Central Hindu College and School of Banaras.

First idea was to start a Theosophical College in which students would be taught the principles of Universal Religion, and be brought up in the atmosphere of a nucleus of Universal Brotherhood. But active workers in sufficient numbers were not forthcoming from folds of other denominations. So it was decided to begin with a ‘Hindu’ College, which would endeavour to liberalise and rationalise at least ‘Hinduism’, and re-convert it into ancient Upanishadic (‘philosophical’) and Manava (‘human’) Vedism (‘scientific religion’); would restore to it the main characteristics of ‘Universal Religion’; whereby rapprochement with other religions inhabiting this country would be facilitated; and solidarise the mutually repellant and fissiparous 2000 and odd castes and sub-castes and numerous sects and sub-sects, into a real living organic body-politic of interdependent parts.
Very shortly after founding of the College, need for systematic compendious Text-Books of Hinduism was felt, inevitably, for teaching purposes. Dr. Annie Besant, "that high-souled woman," ¹ "the mother of Mother India,"
² "whose radiant spirit rekindled India's faith in her own ideals and destiny," ² "the memory of the magnificent services rendered by whom to India will live as long as India lives"; ² was President of the Board of Trustees and the Managing Committee of the Institution; and the present writer had the privilege and good fortune of working with her as honorary Secretary of the two bodies. "If Annie Besant had not been, Mahātma Gāndhī could not be" ²; "if any three or four of the other great people in India were named, the sum of their achievements, the aggregate of the benefit that they had rendered to this country, would not exceed what stood unquestionably to her credit." ² Board of Trustees appointed a Committee, with Dr. A. Besant and myself as Chairman and Secretary, to prepare Text-Books. They gave us general directions to the effect that the religious and ethical training, given to students, should be of "a wide, liberal, and unsectarian character,... inclusive enough to unite the most divergent forms of Hindū thought;... must be directed to the building up of a character, pious, dutiful, strong, upright, righteous, gentle, and well-balanced—a character which will be that of a good man and a good citizen; such as can be formed only by the fundamental principles of religion, governing the general view of life and of life's obligations. That which unites Hindū-s in a common faith, must be clearly and simply taught; all that divides them must be ignored. Lastly, care must be taken to cultivate a wide spirit of tolerance, which not only respects differences of thought and practice among Hindū-s, but also respects differences of religion among non-Hindū-s, regarding all faiths with tolerance, as roads whereby men reach the Supreme."

¹ This is how Prof. William James, renowned philosopher of U.S.A., speaks of her in his Varieties of Religious Experience.

² These words were respectively said, in paying tribute to her, after her passing away, in September, 1933, by Dr. Mohammad Alam (a Muslim), by the famous orator and poetess, Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, (afterwards Governor of U.P., 1947-1949), by Mahātma Gāndhī, again by Mrs. S. Naidu, and by the Rt. Hon'ble Shri V. S. Shrīnivāsa Shāstrī, P.C.

As Secretary, the undersigned, placed before the Chairman, a Syllabus based on ancient tradition as to the three parts or Constituents of Religion. She agreed. That Syllabus, with some slight later modifications, appears as Table of Contents of the Text-Book.

With this Syllabus we set to work on ‘An Advanced Text-Book of Hindu Religion and Ethics’, in Shrinagar (Kashmir), in summer of 1901. Some other members and I supplied Dr. Annie Besant with Sanskrit texts; my book, The Science of Emotions, first edition of which was published in 1900, supplied bulk of material for third part of the work. She herself gathered some texts from English translations in Sacred Books of the East Series, and, great worker that she was, drafted, in English; within two months, whole of the Text-book, amounting, as subsequently printed with some additions and alterations, to over 400 pp., cr. 8vo.

After approval by the Committee, a hundred copies of the draft were printed and sent to leaders of the Hindu community, to Pandits famous for Sanskrit learning, and to heads of principal sects, in all parts of the country; and suggestions for additions and alterations were requested. Those that were received were carefully considered by the Committee and duly incorporated. Then Advanced Text-book was printed off, and introduced in College classes, in 1904. Shortly after, an Elementary Text-Book was prepared by the Chairman and the Secretary, for use in upper School classes. This was a simplified abridgment of the Advanced; but a large number of illustrative stories from Mahabharata and Puranas were added in its 3rd Part. Then a very small Catechism was drawn up by the Chairman for use in small children's classes. All these were in use in C. H. College and School until 1914, after which the Institution was converted into Banaras University and passed into the hands of a new and elaborately constituted management, consisting of Council, Senate, Syndicate, Faculties, etc. That new management dropped the use of the text-books and catechism. The graded series of Text-books had been welcomed all over India, after publication; translations of the Catechism were published in eleven provincial tongues; and of the Elementary also in two or three.

In October, 1924, a Hindu-Muslim Unity Conference was held in Delhi, in consequence of violent communal riots, engineered by political and politico-religious mis-leaders, which had been breaking out, for some time, in scores of places, all over the country. At that Conference, present writer proposed that a Committee should be appointed, of learned and at same time large-hearted, broad-minded, and philanthropic, not narrow, bigoted, fanatic, representatives of all main religions of India, i.e., eight out of the eleven mentioned at outset of this Note, to draw up a graded series of Text-Books of Universal Religion, with parallel passages from all Scriptures, which would be taught in all educational institutions of India, and thus brought to every home in the land in every way possible. The proposal was not considered feasible. The Conference contented itself with 'appeals' for the undefined, unexplained, word 'Unity', without any mention of the 'contents' of the word, its denotation and connotation and significance in concrete terms; as is the case with the words 'Sva-rāj' and 'Self-government' and 'Freedom.' Communal riots continued to grow worse and worse in India, as politico-economic hatreds and war-'riots' in Europe, and indeed all over the world, in this 'Age of Discord', Kali-Yuga.

Next effort, of present writer, on these lines, apart from articles in Hindī and English newspapers, was made at the All-Asia Educational Conference, at close of 1930. Foreword to first edition gives rest of the story of genesis and development of this work.

Two other books ought to be mentioned here, which have helped this compiler greatly in understanding something of the obscure, mysterious, puzzling legends in Samskr̥t Īṭihāsa-Puṛāṇa regarding nature of other worlds and planes of matter, and their denizens, and eonian course of cyclical, cosmic, inorganic, organic, human and other involutions, evolutions, dissolutions. These matters are just touched in present work; because compiler's knowledge of them is very far from sufficient; general public is probably not deeply or scientifically interested in them; extant scriptures do not supply clearly intelligible and parallel passages about them; and finally, because, though precise and correct knowledge of their details is highly important for specialist and advanced student of what has been called 'occult science', Yoga, Sulūk, yet those features of Religion which are most vitally important for an average human being, are those which are dealt with plainly by all Scriptures, and therefore here, in Chs : II and III.

These two books, above referred to, are Madame Helena Petrovna Blavatsky's monumental works, Isis Unveiled (2 vols., 1500 pages), and The Secret Doctrine (latest Adyar edition, 5 vols., 2200 pages, plus a sixth volume of Indices, 500 pages). The two volumes of the former are respectively entitled 'The Veil of Isis' and 'Isis Unveiled'. The two parts of the latter are appropriately entitled 'Cosmo-genesis' and 'Anthropo-genesis' respectively. They supply an immense amount of out-of-the-way information about so-called 'dead' religions; about the 'occult', 'super-physical', side of Religion, connected with other worlds and planes, and 'subtle' body and 'finer' faculties latent in normal man, but capable of being developed and made patent by 'mystic' disciplines and special 'education'; and about details of cosmic and human evolution, through vast eons and cycles. Two passages from these two works are reproduced below.

"Kapila, Orpheus, Pythagoras, Plato, Basilides, Marcian, Ammonius, and Plotinus, founded schools and sowed the germs of many a noble thought, and disappearing, left behind them the refulgence of demi-gods. But the three personalities of Krṣṇa, Gautama (Buḍḍha), and Jesus appeared like true gods, each in his epoch, and bequeathed to humanity, three religions built on the imperishable rock of ages. That all three . . . have in time become adulterated, is no fault of . . . the noble Reformers. It is priestly self-styled husbandmen of the 'vine of the Lord' who must be held to account by future generations. Purify the three systems of the dross of human dogmas, the pure essence remaining will be found to be identical"; Isis Unveiled, II, 536).

"Esoteric Philosophy reconciles all religions, strips every one of its outward human garments, and shows the root of each to be identical with that of every other great religion:"

(The Secret Doctrine, I. 45.)

This Note on Texts may be closed with a few other striking quotations.

"Every Scripture inspired of God is profitable, for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for instruction which in in righteousness, that the man of God may be complete, furnished completely unto every good work."

(B., 2 Timothy, 3. 16-17, THR. p. v.)

"We believe in what hath been revealed to us and revealed to you. Our God and your God is One, and to Him are we Self-surrendered."

(Q., 29., 45.)

"Alcott was the third most conspicuous member of the Concord Orientalists (Emerson and Thoreau* being the other two)... As Dean of the Concord Summer School of Philosophy, Alcott worked to promulgate mystic lore... He described, in his Tablets, the project which was near his heart all his life: 'Very desirable it were, since the gates of the East are now opening wide, giving free commerce of mind with mind, to collect and compare the Bibles of the races for general circulation and careful reading... Of the Bhāgavata Purāṇa, Emerson said, 'Ah, this is a book to read on one's knees!'... He used to keep a copy of an English translation of the Bhagavad-Gītā under his pillow at night... Thoreau wrote: 'The reading I love best is the Scriptures of the several nations, though it happens I am better acquainted with those of the Hindus, the Chinese, and the Persians, than of the Hebrews, which I have come to, last..." Art. 'From Vedic India to Concord, U. S. A.', by Dr. Christy and Dr. Canby, reprinted in Hindustān Times (New Delhi, of 20-6-1944.)

The Heart of Humanity is intensely a-search for the Gospel which embraces all gospels. This book endeavours to present it in the very words of the Speakers of all the Gospels. May They give it their blessing and speed it on its mission of service to Humanity.
SYSTEM OF PRONUNCIATION

System of pronunciation followed in the Roman transcript confines itself to simple differences. More nice and subtle ones have not been taken account of. Thus, there are three shades of 's' in Arabic-Persian; they are all transcribed by 's' here. So four kinds of 'z', two of 'h', two of soft 't', are rendered by one 'z', one 'h', one 't'. So two kinds of 'sh' in Samskrit are both transcribed as 'sh'. Arabic gutturals of e, i, o, u, have also not been marked; that of 'a' has been as 'a'.

Samskrit letters are rendered as below:

a, as in similar, solar; i.e., ṛ, somewhat as in iron.
the sound of u in fur, e as in get, jet, fetch.
cut, shut.
ā, far, car.
i, fit, sit.
ī, elīte; sound of ee in meet, feet, sheet.
ui, put; sound of oo in foot.
ū, flute; sound of oo in shoot, hoot.

o, go.
d, daughter, dame.
dh, madhouse,
ṇ, (n and d combined in a click-sound).
ṭ, petit, (soft t).
th, think (without sibilance).
ð, there, that (minus sibilance).
au, somewhat as in how, cow.
am, like um in jump, hump, bumper.
k, king, ken.
kh, buckhorn, inkhorn.
g, get, gain.
gh, big-horn, fog-horn, Birmingham.
ng, bring, sing.
ch, churn, chaste.
chh, rich-house, fetch-him.
j, joy, jam.

jh, bridge-head
ñ, cañyon.
t, tit, talk.
th, get-home.
ph, lip-homage.
b, bless, beam.
bb, hobhouse, abhor.
m, musk.
y, yes, you.
r, run.
l, lamb.
v or w, win.
sh, shine.
ðh, bid-him (soft ð).
n, nephew, niece.
p, pan, pass.
s, sun, son.
h, hand, heaven.

Special sounds of Arabic-Persian are:
kh, aspirate of k, like the German ach, or Scottish loch.
a', guttural of a.
gh, guttural of g.
f, fun.
q, guttural of k.
z, zephyr.
LIST OF ABBREVIATIONS

(BB.), Dr. F. L. Riley’s The Bible of Bibles, published in 1929, by J. F. Rowny Press, Los Angeles.
(See pp. lvi-lx)

(Bh.), Bhāgavata, one of 18 Purāṇa-s, sacred books of legends and traditional histories of Cosmos and of Human Race, which form part of the Scriptures of Vaiṣṇika Dharma, or Vēdïsm (‘Hinduism’).

(Bu.), Buḍḍhist Sacred Books.

(C.), Confucian Works.

(_DH.), Dhamma-paḍa, a Buḍḍhist Scripture.

(G.), Gītā, i.e., Bhagavad-Gītā, the most widely known of Vēdïst Scriptures.

(Gr.), Guru-Grantha-Sāhab, Scripture of Sikhism.

(H.), Haḍīs, Sayings of Muḥammad.
(J.), Jaina Sacred Books.

M. Vāñi, Mahāvīra-Vāñi, Collections of verses uttered by Mahāvīra Jina.

Tirthankara Vardhamāna (also called Mahāvīra), biography as well as sayings of Jina.

(Ju.), Sacred writings of Judaism, Hebraism, or Jewish Religion, like Talmud or Commentaries on O. T., and Qabbālāh or Kabbala, a compilation of writings of Jewish Mystics.

(K.), Kabbala, i.e., Qabbālāh.

(M.), Manu-Smyiti, oldest living law-book of the world, revered by Hindū-s like Veda-s.

(Mbh.), Mahā-bhāraṭa, 'Great Epic' of the 'Great War' between Pándava-s and Kaurava-s, which ranks with Manu-Smyiti in Hindū estimation.

(Q.), Qurān, often written in English as Koran; chief Scripture or Islām of Mohammedianism.

(R.), Rāmāyana, 'Epic' of the War of Rāma and Rāvana, which is ranked, by Hindū-s, with Mahābhārata and Purāṇa-s. These three make up 'Itihāsa-Purāṇa,' i.e., Ancient History of Cosmos and Man.

(S.), Sūfī writings.
(SBE.), Sacred Books of the East Series, edited by Max Muller.

(Sh.), Shintoism.

(Si.), Sikh writings, among which Guru-Grantha-Sahib is chief Scripture.

(T.), Scriptures of Taoism, among which Tao-Teh-King of Lao-tse is chief.

(U.), Upanishat-s, philosophical and psychological parts of Veda-s.

(V.), Veda-s; four, Rg-Veda, Yajur-Veda, Sama-Veda, Atharva Veda; chief Scriptures of Hindu-s.

(Z.), Zoroastrian Scriptures; Zend-Avesta in particular, of which the chapters known as Gatha, are regarded as direct utterance of Zarathustra. Zend is regarded as main text, and Avesta, as commentary, but inseparable. 'Zend' has also become name of the language in which that main text is written. Skt. equivalent is chhanda, 'metre', 'rhyme'.

Languages of Scriptures

Vedic, archaic or modern Sanskrit (Skt.); Zoroastrian, Zend; Jewish (O.T.), Hebrew; Buddhist, Pali and Skt.; Jaina, Prakrit and Skt.; Christian (N.T.), Aramaic; Islamic, Arabic (Ar.) and Persian (Per.); Sikh, Gurmukhi and one or another dialect of Hindi; Lao t'sism and Confucianism, Chinese; Shintoism, Japanese.
VERIFICATION OF REFERENCES

After first edition was published, some friends wrote that textual references should have been given more precisely, by chapter and verse. The difficult conditions, unfavorable to scholarly detail and exactitude, under which this compilation has been made, have been mentioned before. But the reader, who has inclination and leisure, will be able to verify most of the texts quoted, with the help of the following:

Jacob’s Concordance to the Upanishads and the Bhagavad-Gītā.
Vishvēshvar-ānanda and Niṭy-ānanda’s Alphabetic Index of the Four Vēdas.
Any good Concordance to the Bible.
Concordance to the Qūrān (Mifta-ul-Qurān), by Rev. Ahmaḍ Shāh; or any other good Kilīd-i-Qurān.
Manu-pād-ānu-kramaṇī, Concordance to the verse-quarters of Manu-Smrṭi, (published by Gyān-mandal, Banaras).
J. M. Chatterjee’s and A. N. Bilimoria’s edition of Gāthā.
Treasure-House of Living Religions by R. E. Hume.
APPLICATION OF REPRILIZING

After the compilation and study of data, certain general conclusions were drawn from the analysis of the data. It was found that the reprimand process, when properly used, can be a valuable tool in the prevention of misbehavior. The results of the study indicated that reprimands are most effective when they are administered promptly, consistently, and fairly. However, it was also noted that reprimands should be used sparingly and only as a last resort, as overuse can lead to resistance and counterproductive behavior.

The study also highlighted the importance of communication between the supervisor and the employee. Effective communication can facilitate understanding and acceptance of reprimands, leading to a more positive outcome. The study concluded with several recommendations for improving the reprimand process, including:

1. Establish clear standards for employee behavior.
2. Provide training for supervisors on the use of reprimands.
3. Ensure consistent and fair administration of reprimands.
4. Encourage open communication between supervisors and employees.
5. Follow up with employees after a reprimand has been administered to monitor any changes in behavior.

In conclusion, the reprimand process, when used appropriately, can be an effective management tool. However, it is crucial to balance the need for discipline with the importance of maintaining a positive and productive work environment.
ADDENDA ET CORRIGENDA

Some mistakes likely to perplex the reader, and their corrections, also a few additions, are noted below.

Page  Line  For  Read
20    last  5-6  7-8
60    20  niḍḍi  ziḍḍi
64    Page- Ineradicale  Ineradicable

heading
94    24  he  ke
126   9  (Q.)  (S.)
143   after

1.22 add

"He that hath seen Me (the I) hath seen the Father": John, xiv. 9.
"(The) I am (is) the Way, the Truth, and the Life"; John, xiv. 6.
"Your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you": I Corinthians, vi. 19.
"Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you?": I Corinthians, iii. 16.
"Ye are the temple of the living God": II Corinthians, vi. 16.

Parvulum

thousand and five hundred

31-32

Bāqarā

Hastings' Ency.

My-Self

 Matters

Him space

Mahāvīra's

—āṭ

—āṭ

éva

dhāṭrī
dhāṭrī

savitā

savitā

yahmāį yahmāį chīt

cyasmāį chīt daḍāmanāį
daḍāmanāį

Ā-varāṇa

406, 438

41-49

tyajya

souls must lxxxiii

528 1 jīva, has jīva has 563 24 enwarapṭ enwallapṭ
610 last but āvāra dvāra
one 616 Page- Page- and Babe heading Babe
617 7 gurba-i- gurbah
642 last but Bishop Abbé Huc
one Heber
663 20 form from
678 24 infections infectious 688 last but braāmaṇa brahumana two 704 18 all all Rights and 748 last 455-'56 455-'56. Television is doing this now.
771 last fourth edition
828 col. 2, Miserables, la, by Victor after Hugo, 196 line 20, Ausonias, 189
add 829 col. 2, after after line 20, add
CONTENTS

(If reader will glance through page-headings, he will find much supplementation to this table of Contents in them).

PAGE

Preface to present Fifth Edition ... v
Foreword to First Edition (Abridged for this) ... xiii
Letter to Reader (Revised) as Preface to Second Edition ... xix
Preface to Third Edition (Revised) ... xxxix
Note on Texts gathered in this book, and certain other matters ... xlix
System of Pronunciation ... lxxiii
List of Abbreviations ... lxxv
Languages of Scriptures ... lxxviii
Verification of References ... lxxix
Addenda et Corrigenda ... lxxx
Table of Contents ... lxxxv Appreciations by
(1) Shri C. Rājagopālāchārī ... xci
(2) Sir S. Rādhākrishṇan ... xciii
(3) Sir Zafrulla Khān ... xciv
(4) Foreword by H. E. Dr. Rājendrā Prasād ... xcvi

The Unseen Power .............................................. cii
The One Family of God ....................................... cii

INVOCATION OF THE ONE SUPREME SPIRIT OF
UNITY ........................................................................ 1

CHAPTER I

RELIGIOUS SCIENCE AND SCIENTIFIC RELIGION. 9

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Topic</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Asiatic Thought and European Thought</td>
<td>9</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Unity Underlying Both</td>
<td>15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The One Way to Peace on Earth</td>
<td>16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Scientific Religion</td>
<td>19</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Duty of Educationists</td>
<td>33</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Golden Mean Between Two Extremes</td>
<td>41</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Duality of God's Nature</td>
<td>49</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Insuperable Need for Scientific-Religion</td>
<td>64</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Universal Religion-Science—That in which there may be Universal Agreement</td>
<td>69</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Imperative Duty to Teach such Universal Religion</td>
<td>69</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Agreement of Religions</td>
<td>75</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Joy of Agreement</td>
<td>88</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Essential and the Non-Essential</td>
<td>97</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nature of Religion</td>
<td>103</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>How Ascertain Divine Will</td>
<td>108</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Three Aspects of Religion</td>
<td>113</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Their Relation to Education</td>
<td>119</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
CHAPTER II

WAY OF KNOWLEDGE, I.E., INTELLECTUAL CONSTITUENT OF RELIGION

1. God and the Nature of God
   Conscience
   Great Danger of a Great Misunderstanding
   Many Names of the All-Pervading God, the One Self of All

2. Evolution, Recapitulation, Phylogenesis, Palingenesis, Rebirth

3. Karma—Reward and Punishment
   Note on Karma, Rebirths, and Evolution

4. Other Worlds and Planes of Being

5. Law of Analogy or Correspondences

6. Long Line of Spiritual Hierarchy

7. Goal of Life—To Feel Self in All

CHAPTER III

WAY OF DEVOTION, OR EMOTIONAL CONSTITUENT OF RELIGION

1. Five Principal Virtues and Disciplines
   Additional and Farther-reaching Virtues
   Control of Tongue, the Secret of All Control

2. Reverence for Parents, Teachers, Elders

3. Golden Rule of Christ
   Source of 'constituent' and 'ministrant' functions of State
Egoism not abolished, but made measure of Altruism, by the Rule 407
Corollaries of Golden Rule 408
Reason for Golden Rule 411
Difficulties ré Golden Rule 413
4. Immortal Virtues and Deadly Sins 426
Two Main Sins 427
5. Single Seed of Two Root-Sins 428
6. One Seed of All Virtues 438
7. God in Man 449
Great Danger of Great Misconception 468
The One Safeguard 472
Crowning Virtue of Humility 477
A Reminder: 'Duty Varies with Circumstance' 495
Mutual Balancing of Pleasure and Pain 498
Devotion to Duty 503
A Reminder: 'How Ascertain Duty' 519
Personal and Impersonal Devotion 522
Who is Final Judge 543

CHAPTER IV

WAY OF WORKS, OR VOLITIONAL CONSTITUENT
OF RELIGION 569

Resumé: The Triple Path 569
1. Prayer 573
2. Repentance, Confession, Expiation 596
3. Discriminate Charity 602
4. Revelation...... 602
5. Shrines of God; Forms of Worship; Pilgrimage...... 604
6. Pageants, Processions, Festivals, Lamentations, Holy-days...... 627
7. Sacraments...... 629
8. Aids to Meditation...... 630
9. Litanies, Liturgies, Fasts and Vigils...... 631
10. Pure Food and Pure Sacrifice; Self-sacrifice vs. Other-sacrifice...... 631
11. Outer Distinctive Marks of Faiths...... 638
12. Houses of God...... 639
13. Calls to Prayer...... 640
14. Prayers for the Dead...... 640
15. Spiritual Relationships; Saint and Disciple; Priest and Parishioner...... 640
16. Rites and Ceremonies...... 640
17. Priests of Many Grades...... 641
18. Hermits, Monks, and Monasteries...... 641
19. Sects...... 643
20. Social Structures...... 643
   Védic Scheme of Social Organisation...... 649
   Fourteen Main Tetrads...... 650
(See also Appendix, pp. 817-822)...... 650
21. Similarity in Perversity, Corruption, Degeneracy, Evil Practices, also; like Black Magic, Fanaticism, Intolerance, Pride of Superiority, etc....... 701
   Great Truth Masked by Great Error...... 703
CHAPTER V

THE ONE WAY TO PEACE ON EARTH AND GOOD-WILL AMONG MEN

CHAPTER VI

EDUCATION AND EDUCATIONIST

Note on Practicality, False and True

CHAPTER VII

CONCLUSION

Appendix

Index of Books

" Samskrit Words

" Arabic-Persian Words

" Subjects
APPRECIATION

I

BY

BHARAT-RATNA SHRI C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

(First and last Indian Governor-General of India)

It is easy to perceive in a vague way the essential unity of all the great religions of the world and to hold that differences in forms of worship or in names do not matter.

'Bhāraṭ-Ratna' is the highest of a series of four titles and distinctions created by the Government of India for bestowal on civilians for outstandingly distinguished work of some kind. Another series has been created for military men. So far, 'Bhāraṭ-Ratna' has been conferred on six persons, Shri C. Rajagopālāchārī (75 years old), Dr. Sir Rādhākrishnan, (67), Sir C. V. Raman (Noble Laureate; 67), Sir M. Vishvēshvarayya (94), Dr. Bhagavān Dās (86), and Pandit Jawāharlāl Nehru (Prime Minister of India; 66).

MANAGER,

Theosophical Publishing House
But to arrive at this truth through actual research and analytical study requires the scholarship and untiring application of a man like Dr. Bhagavān Ṭās, the venerable philosopher of Banāras.

Newton simplified the complexities of the physical universe by formulating the law of gravitation. So did Darwin explain the existence of the myriad varieties of life on this planet by his principle of natural selection. But Newton and Darwin did not achieve this splendid simplification by a mere guess. Behind the enunciation of their very simple looking discoveries lay laborious observation, deep thought, and accurate examination. Dr. Bhagavān Ṭās’s book on the Essential Unity of all Religions is similarly the product of very laborious study and analysis and is not merely the formulation of a good and likely idea. It is a great book that the doctor has given to philosophers and pious men for reverent study.

C. Rājagopālāchārī
If the world is to be brought together it is only on the basis of mutual understanding, especially in matters of fundamental belief. Any book which points out that there is a transcendent unity of religions in spite of empirical diversity helps towards inter-religious understanding. Pursuit of wisdom i.e., philosophical understanding of the nature of ultimate reality and the practice of love irrespective of distinctions of caste, creed and community, these are the basic assumptions of all living faiths. Dr. Bhagavân Ďăs with his encyclopaedic knowledge of the origin and growth of different religions has in his The Essential Unity of All Religions made a notable contribution towards the bringing of peoples together on the plane of mind and spirit. It is my earnest hope that his book will be read by young and old in all parts of the world.

S. Rādhākrishṇan,
(New Delhi, 3-4-1955)
III

By Hon'ble Justice Sir Zafrulla Khan

(International Court of Justice, the Hague, Holland)

I value The Essential Unity of All Religions highly, as I believe that the appreciation of the beauties of the great Faiths is one of the most potent means of promoting International understanding upon which the structure of enduring peace can be built. I trust means will be found to give the widest circulation to the fifth edition which you say is under preparation. I shall look forward to reading it again in the latest edition.

Zafrulla Khan

(Letter to author D/. 25-3-1955)
III

The Horizon Jesuits at Vienna

(Compiled and contributed by various Jesuits and

I assume the Forsyth family to be the property of the present compiler. The progress of the property, as the present state of the property, and the numerous changes in the property,

both in the present and in the future,

may be ascertained by a comparison of the property with the present state of the property, as the present state of the property, and the

numerous changes in the property,

both in the present and in the future,

may be ascertained by a comparison of

the property with the present state of the property, as the present state of

the property, and the

numerous changes in the property,

both in the present and in the future,

may be ascertained by a comparison of

the property with the present state of the property, as the present state of

the property, and the numerous changes in the property,

FOREWORD

By His Excellency Dr. Rājendrā Prasād

President of India

Religion, instead of binding mankind together in ties of love and brotherliness, has been a fruitful cause of discord and strife between different groups of men. Time there was when there were not only crusades and jehāds fought in the name of religion between countries and nations but also persecution of individuals who had the courage to adopt and follow other religions or not to conform to the tenets and practices of the orthodox within the fold of the same religion. The reason was that people had not cared to study and understand the fundamentals of different religions, and, instead of appreciating their essential unity, laid emphasis on differences of form. In modern times, religion may have lost some of its hold on the mind of millions of men and women, but its potentiality for mischief has not altogether disappeared.

While religion as a cause of war between nations and countries has receded to some extent in the background, nationality based on race and territory has taken its place. The desire for material well-being and prosperity of a nation added another important and significant factor—the economic factor—as an incentive and justification for one nation fighting against another. The world has not yet outgrown this phase in human history.

In the world of today another equally important, equally significant, and equally strong motive is supplied by different ideologies regarding the ideal to be pursued and the method by which it can be achieved for the well-being and prosperity of man. This has gripped mankind at the present moment.

These three dominant elements are not exclusive, and run into one another in determining man’s actions, but also, in point of time and space, have been operating together with more or less force at all times and in all countries. The world today is not immune against them and in fact is witnessing their action, reaction, and interaction in many countries simultaneously.

Every rational and thoughtful human being—particularly after the experience of two devastating world-wars and on account of the apprehension of a third, even more devastating, war—believes that peace is indispensable and necessary for individual as well as social and collective prosperity and progress and general well-being. The causes, therefore, which lie at the root of conflicts which disturb peace between nations should be eliminated as far as possible. Religion being one such potent cause, which has led to bitter conflicts, wars, and massacres throughout history, and from which all countries, including India, have suffered and continue to suffer more or less even today, deserves to be studied so that the element in it which brings about conflict is eliminated. The animosities engendered should be allayed; and nothing would help this cause more or better than the study of the essentials of all religions. This book, The Essential Unity of All Religions, clearly proves, by more than a thousand quotations of texts from the most honoured Scriptures of all the eleven living religions of the world, that all these religions are really identical in their essential teachings and injunctions. All these texts are arranged systematically in three parts: I. The Way of Knowledge, II., The Way of Devotion, III., The Way of Works, which also are shown to be common to all religions. It, therefore, behoves all well-wishers of humanity to study it and, if satisfied of its worth, to spread the Scriptural teachings embodied in it. I have no doubt that an authoritative exposition of the Essentials of all Religions, based on the most authoritative texts, can surely be counted upon as an effective means for eliminating conflicts, based very largely, as they are, on misunderstanding and ignorance. I strongly recommend a dispassionate study of this book as a solvent for many of the difficulties which confront man today.

20th June 1955.  Ājñāṇḍra Prasād
Children of men! The Unseen Power whose eye
For ever doth accompany Mankind,
(Hath sent Man each Religion tenderly)
    That he did ever find.
Which has not taught weak wills how much they can?
Which has not fall’n on the dry heart like rain?
Which has not cried to sunk self-weary man—
    Thou must be born again!

(Matthew Arnold).

God sends His Teachers unto every age,
To every clime and every race of men,
With revelations fitted to their growth
And shape of mind, nor gives the realm of truth
Into the selfish rule of one sole race.
Therefore each form of worship that hath swayed
The life of Man, and given it to grasp
The Master-key of knowledge, Reverence,
Enfolds some germs of goodness and of right;
Else, never had the eager soul, which loathes
The slothful down of pampered ignorance,
Found it it even a moment’s fitful rest.

(J. Russell Lowell, Rhacus).
Human beings, all, are as head, arms, trunk, and legs unto one another. (Vēda).

No man liveth unto himself. We are all parts of one another. God hath made of one blood all nations that dwell upon the face of the earth. (Bible).

All creatures are members of the one family of God. (Qurān).
INVOCATION OF THE ONE SUPREME SPIRIT OF UNITY

AUM-ĀMĪN-AMEN

Éko Dévah sarva-bhūtēshu gūdhah
Sākshi chētā sarva-bhūt-āḍhi-vāsah,
Ṭam Āṭma-stham yē-(a)nu-pashyanti dhīrāh,
Ṭēshām sukham shāshvātam, na-itārēshām.

Sarva-vyāpi sarva-bhūt-ānṭar-Āṭmā,
Ékam rūpam bahu-ḍhā yah karoṭi,
Ṭam Āṭma-stham-yē-(a)nu-pashyanti dhīrāh,
Ṭēshām sukham shāshvātam, na-itārēshām.

Niṭyo nityānām, Chēṭanash chēṭanānām,
Éko bahūnām yo vi-ḍaṭhāti kāmān,
Ṭam Āṭma-stham yē-(a)nu-pashyanti dhīrāh,
Ṭēshām shānṭih shāshvāṭi, na-itārēshām.

Éko A-varṇo, bahu-ḍhā Shakti-yogāḍ
Varṇān, an-ēkān niḥit-ārtho yo ḍaṭhāṭi,
Vi-chaitī ch-āntē vishvam āḍau, sa Dévah,
Sa no buḍḍhyā śubhāyā śam-yunakṭu. (U.)

1 Please see, supra 'List of Abbreviations' and note on 'System of Pronunciation', as regards use of diacritical marks and accented types.
(The One God hidden in all living beings,
The Living Witness biding in all hearts—
The Wise who seek and find Him in them-Self,
To them, and None Else, is Eternal Joy.

The all-pervading Inner Self of all,
Who from His Formlessness creates all Forms—
The Wise who see that One within them-Self,
To them alone belongs Eternal Joy.

Eternity of aeons, Life of lives,
The One who all the Many's wishes sates—
The Wise who Him within them-Self behold
Their's, and None Other's is Eternal Peace.

The Colourless, who from His secret store
Exhaustless, countless colours draws, to paint,
Efface, repaint, the worlds upon the face
Of Empty Space with Mystic Potency—
May He endow us with the lucid mind !)

\[\text{Trufa Bé-rangi ke ḍāraḍ}
\text{rang-hā-e saq hazār !}
\text{Trufa Bé-shaklī ke ḍāraḍ}
\text{shakl-hā-e bé-shumār !}

Ba nāmē Ān ke Ū nāmē na ḍāraḍ,
Ba bar nāmē ke khwānī sar bar āraḍ,
Ba nāmē Ān ke Wāḥīd ḏar Kasīr āṣt,
Ke andār Wahdāṭ-Ash Kasrāṭ asīr āṣt ! (S.)
(What marvel! that a Being Colourless
Displays a hundred thousand hues, tints, shades!
What wonder! that a Being Void of Form
Enrobes in forms beyond all numbering!—
May we behold Him in all hues and forms!

Thus, in the name of Him who hath no name,
Yet lifts to every name an answering head,
The name of Him who is the Changeless One Amidst the changing Many, and within Whose Oneness all this Many is confined,
May we begin our loving work of Peace.)

Aum! Taṭ Saviṭur-varēṇiyam bhargo DeVasya dhīmahi, dhiyo yo nah prachoḍayāt. (V). Agne!, naya su-pathā rāyē asmān, vishvāni, DeVā!, vayunāni vidvān. Yuyoḍhi-asmaj-juhurāṇam ēnah. Bhūyishthām Tē nama-uktim viḍhēma. (Īsha Upanishaṭ.)

(Father of all!, may Thy supernal Light
Inspire, illuminate, and guide our minds!
We open them to let Thy Glory in.
Supreme Director! Lord of Warmth and Light,
Of Life and Consciousness, that knowest all!
Guide us by the Right Path to happiness,
And give us strength and will to war against
The sins that rage in us and lead astray!
We bow in adoration unto Thee!)
Bismillah-ir-Rahman-ir-Rahim. Al-hamdu lillahi Rabb-il-álîmîn! Ar-Rahman-ir-Rahim! Mâlik-iyaum-îdînî! Iyyâka na’budû, wa iyyâka naṣta’în. Ihdî-nas-sirâtul-mustaqîm. Sirât-allazzîna ana’mîta a’laihim, ghâir-il-maghzûb-i-a’laihim wa lâ-azzâlîn. Âmîn (Q.)

(Lord of Compassion! All praise unto Thee! Creator and Protector of the worlds! Lord God! Beneficent and Merciful! Master Supreme of the great Judgment Day! Thee do we serve and Thee beseech for help; Show us the Path on which Thy blessings rest; The Straight Path; not of those who go astray, On whom descend Thy wrath and punishment.)

Apâna ḍarēgo jyāīṭîm, ā kshathrêm vanghéush manangho, ashâṭ ā éréjush patho, yaéshû Mazadâo Ahuro shaēṭî. (Gāthā.)

(Grant us long life, Great Lord!, and fortitude, And the right mind, and show us the Straight Path, O’er which Thou broodest, and which leads to Thee!)

Hear, O Lord!, my cry, give ear unto my prayer, that goeth not out of feigned lips. Hold up my goings in Thy Paths, that my footsteps slip not. Show me Thy Ways, O Lord!, teach me Thy Paths; and lead me in Thy Truth. Thou art the God of my salvation. Open Thou mine eyes that I may behold wondrous things out of Thy Law. Quicken Thou me according to Thy word. Remove from me the way of lying. (B., O.T.)

Our Father which art in heaven!, hallowed be Thy name. Thy Kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil; for Thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever. Amen. (B., N.T.)

O far great Heaven! We call Thee,
Our Father and our Mother! (C., THR., 19.)

(Ocean of Mercy! Ever, in our hearts,
Dwell Thou, and so illuminate our minds
That we may love, serve, worship Thee, Our God!,
Ever Thy Presence may we feel near us!
Thou art our Father, Mother, Teacher, all!)
(Si., Grantha, THR., 31).

DEAR FRIENDS, SISTERS, BROTHERS!

In accord with the time-old traditions of the East, let us begin our work of love thus, in the words of the venerable Scriptures of the several religions; of Vedas and Upanishats, the most ancient available records of passionately yearning and deeply searching human thought; of Qur'an, and of Sufis, the most poetical and beautiful exponents of that thought; and Zend-Avesta, Bible, the Guru Grantha Sahab; begin with ardent invocation of, and fervent prayer to, the One Supreme Spirit of Life. That Supreme Spirit, out of its Unity, creates the infinite Many-ness of Nature; and, at the same time, It imposes Its all-pervading, all-embracing, Unity upon that countless Multitude. By that Unity, It binds atoms and cells into tissues, organs, bodies; bodies into species, genera, kingdoms; ties these to planets; planets to suns, in solar systems; these to larger systems; chains these into vast star-galaxies; and makes of all the infinite World-process, a Universe. It enters into these dead dolls of bone and blood and flesh that we otherwise are, and endows us with the mind that can encompass all these countless systems. That Spirit, indeed, dwelling hidden in the hearts of all, makes it possible for these dolls to understand, and sympathize with, and help each other, in the difficulties of life. It is the One sole source of whatever Unity there is in all human thought. The realization of It alone, as eternally present, in one-Self and in all-selves, brings deathless happiness and peace, as nothing else can do. May that Universal Life and Light vivify and illuminate our hearts and minds! May It show to us the Right Path, and give to us the firm and Righteous Will to walk on it unwavering! Only after opening our hearts to it, may we commence all work with hope of full success!

Next, let us reverently salute the Rshis, Prophets, Budhhas, Messiahs, Nabîs, Rasûls, Messengers, Avatâras, Tirthan-karas, Arhaṭs, Gurus, the Spiritual Hierarchs of all times. They have given Scriptures, age after age, to race after race, in order to keep alive the light of the consciousness of that Unity in the heart of Humanity. They brood over the Human Race and guide its progress, as benevolent parent-teachers watch over children in an educational home, leading the minds and bodies of their pupils onwards, from class to upper class, along the path of ever upward evolution.

Let us also offer tribute of deep gratitude to all Societies, Associations, Leagues, Parliaments of Religions, World-Fellowships of Faiths, which have been endeavouring to hold up before the world, the need and the possibility of reviving the sincere worship of that Spirit of Unity, (1) by educating more and more clearly, through sympathetic, deep, large-hearted and open-minded, comparative study of the Sacred Books of all religions, the Essential Unity running through all these religions, past and present,
(2) by directing attention to the need for the study of the inner nature, as much as the outer, of the human being as such, and (3) by reuniting the peoples of all countries, without distinction of creed, caste, colour, race, or sex, in a Universal Brotherhood, which alone can give sincerity and real life and fulfilment to the work of the League of Nations. Such Universal Brotherhood alone can do so, by supplying the Spiritual half of that Whole, of which the League of Nations represents only the Material (hence almost useless) half; by creating a League of Religions, and linking it with the League of Nations.
CHAPTER I

RELIGIOUS SCIENCE AND SCIENTIFIC RELIGION.

It is common knowledge that Asiatic thought is eminently coloured by religion; as modern European thought is by science. All the great living religions are of Asiatic origin; also almost all the historical great dead religions. The personal, domestic, and social life of the Hindū is largely governed by the rules of what he regards as his religion. So is that of the Musalmān. So of the Jew. So of the Confucian. So was, and to a considerable extent still is, that of the Christian belonging to the Roman Catholic form of Christianity. Such also is the case with the followers of the other forms and reforms of the Vedic religion, known as the Zoroastrian, the Budhhist, the Jaina, the Sikh; though perhaps the element of ritual is less prominent, and that of ethics more, in the later of these, in accordance with the very principle of reform.¹ Laotsism is mostly a profound philosophy, the same in essence as Védānta-Yoga and Tassawwuf; its practical side is Confucianism. Shin’ōism, nobly regarding man as it prescribes a rule of conduct, it inevitably loses its hold. The Catholic System scarce leaves an hour without its stated duties; such and such forms to be gone through; such and such prayers to be repeated. Night and day, morning and evening, at meals and in the intervals between meals, the Catholic is reminded of his creed by a set form. Calvinism superseded these formal observances by yet more noble practical observances. It was ever present with its behests in fixing the scale of permitted expenditure, in regulating the dress, the enjoyments, the hours of sleep and labor, sternly cutting short all idle pleasure and luxury; sternly insisting on the right performance of all practical work, the trade, the handicraft, or whatever it might be, as something for every thread and fibre of which a man would one day be called to account.... Religion is the wholesome ordering of human life; the guide to furnish us with our daily duties in the round of common occupation; the lamp to light us along our road and to show us where to place our steps:” Froude, Short Studies in Great Subjects, III, pp. 154, 198.

¹ "A religion which holds possession of our lives, which directs us at each step which we take, becomes part of our own souls. Unless, in some shape or other,

All religions endeavour, suitably to the conditions amidst which they take their birth and grow, to fulfil this ideal duty; but unfortunately, bye and bye, the custodians of each and every religion begin to do the ‘ordering’ too much, become over-conservative, rigid, narrow, domineering, greedy, immoral, despotic, lose elastic touch with changing times, forget the essentials, insist over-much on non-essentials, and thus corrupt the religion by their own excesses. Then ‘politics’ and ‘science’ begin to do the ‘ordering’, and go to perhaps even worse excesses and extremes.
naturally virtuous, teaches ritual mostly.\textsuperscript{1} In all these, the feeling is prominent, that the human being is under the ever-present influence of Something, is always in relation with Something, which is other than what is perceptible to the outer senses; that the life of the physical body is subordinate to the life of a Mysterious Something, Soul, Spirit, which has a life beyond this life. Indeed, the tendency to what has been called other-worldliness has, in some communities, grown over-pronounced, even to the extent of becoming a disease.\textsuperscript{2}

\begin{itemize}
\item \textsuperscript{1} "There is a teaching which, if not confined to Shinto, is at least most emphasised in it, and that is the innate goodness of man... Shintoists... consistently uphold the theanthropic doctrine of Kan-nagara, of man being essentially divine:" Inazo Nitobe, \textit{Japan}, (pub: 1931; The Modern World Series), p. 321.
\item \textsuperscript{2} Incidentally, it may be noted that this excessive other-world-li-ness, (in the sense of neglect of this world), with which India is debited, (and not wholly wrongly either, by foreign as well as indigenous writers), has been prominent, mostly only during those periods in which political and economic oppression and exploitation have been rampant. Subjected to cruel misery and heart-break in this world, people sought hope of relief from the next, as they have done in every country of east and west, China, Eur-Asia, Europe, in convents and monasteries. Otherwise, India has always been sufficiently 'this-world-ly' to have won the reputation of the land \textit{par excellence} of silver and gold and jewels, wealth and plenty and luxury of all kinds, flowing with milk and honey, filled with corn and cotton and cattle, fruits and silk and wool, tanks and temples and palaces of stone
\end{itemize}
Contrary to this, in the West, advanced thought was, until very recently, cutting itself off, more and more, from all concern with the possibility of things beyond the reach of our physical senses; excepting, of course, some very meta-physical ‘abstract concepts’, which, somehow, indispensably constitute the very roots of the various most positive sciences, and are a perpetual reminder, to the thoughtful, of inseparable connection between physical and meta-physical; concepts like arithmetical ‘one, two, three, etc., and zero’; geometrical ‘point, line, surface’; dynamical ‘force, energy, attraction, repulsion’; physical ‘atom, electron’; chemical ‘affinity’; biological ‘life’; psychological ‘ego, I, we, will, and of marble inlaid with gems—the country whose enterprising merchants supplied, by sea as well as land, the requirements of Persia, Palestine, Egypt, and Rome, in the west, and exchanged things of art with China, Siam, Burma and Japan, in the east. Indeed, it was this wealth and luxury, and this reputation, which led to her degradation, brought invasions, oppression, exploitation, and, worse than all else, despiritualisation and demoralisation. In happier times, India’s other-worldliness only illumined and softened, as with moonlight, her this-worldliness, transfigured it, filled it with reverence for God’s Nature in all Its manifestations, and made her People see, not the things of the Spirit with the eyes of the flesh, but the things of the flesh with the eyes of the Spirit. To recover those days of peaceful and prosperous happiness, she must first recover her soul by realising anew the Essence of Religion and the Essential Unity of all Religions.
memory, expectation, space, time'; and so on. That western thought, going to the other extreme, from excess of other-worldliness to excess of this-worldliness, brought about the greater disease of mind which resulted in the most murderous of historical wars, viz., World-War I (1914-1918) and II (1939-1945), and continues to threaten a still worse.

To find out, then, whether there is or is not any substantial unity in Asiatic thought, we have mostly to concern ourselves with religious thought; as, if we had to investigate whether there is or is not unity in European thought, we would chiefly compare the views of those who have devoted their lives to the various branches of science, mathematical, physico-chemical, astronomical, biological, sociological.

To the cursory view, of the person of one kind of temperament, it might seem that the unity of Western scientific thought is patent; that the whole of what is known as science is a consistent body of theory and practice; that the unity of Eastern religious thought is an equally obvious myth; and that religions are born only to try to annihilate one another, and to induce their respective followers to plague and murder each other.

* See, f.i., works like Outline of Science, and Modern Book of Knowledge, quite a number of which have been published within the last two or three decades.
On the other hand, to the hasty sight of another, it would appear that, e.g., in such a vitally important science as that of medicine, doctors disagree very much; that the more expert and scientific they are, the more intensely they differ; and that radically conflicting systems of treatment kill and cure, with much the same average of results, on the whole. In the system which regards itself as most scientific and up-to-date, theories as to the nature and cause of disease, methods of treatment, and drugs in favour and fashion, change from year to year. In almost all other sciences, pure and applied, old views and appliances are being daily scrapped in favour of new; the greater and more rapid the scrapping, the louder the vaunt of progressiveness; even in a rock-bottom science like mathematics, self-evident axioms are now in peril of their lives from the attacks of new theories; and in sociological sciences especially, the war of ideas, of words, of 'isms', is maddeningly internecine.

Indeed, Science has its ritual, its etiquette, its sacrosanct formalities, its mysterious technicalities, its sanctums, its oracular pomposity and superior standoffishness, its popish infallibility, its expertcraft, its jingoism and fanaticism, as much as Religion; its controversial animus as bitter as the odium theologicum; and, becoming religionless and Godless, it has, as debased servant of imperialism, statecraft, ruthless diplomacy, caused far more slaughter than Religion, becoming scienceless and reasonless, and degenerating into priestcraft, has done. But all such things are the fruit, neither of true science, nor of true religion, but of the evil in human nature. That evil falsifies and misuses them both, for its own selfish purposes.

Here as elsewhere, the wish is father to the thought. Those, who, for temperamental reasons, wish to see Unity, will see Unity. Those, who wish to see Discord, will see Discord only. Those, who wish impartially to examine both sides of the question, will see both justly. They will discern the Truth, which always stands in the Mean between opposite Extremes; viz., the Truth of essential Unity in superficial Diversity, in religious as well as in scientific thought. Such Unity is established by the mediation of Philosophy; and the use of Philosophy, as such mediator, has begun to be recognized, more and more, latterly, by the more thoughtful and widely cultured scientists themselves, as well as by the more thoughtful religionists.

1 G. B. Shaw's Prefaces (Collected Works, 3 vols., 1938) are full of powerful attacks against the tyranny of modern science, as being much more pervasive and irresistible than the tyranny of religion ever was. See, e.g., Prefaces to The Doctor's Dilemma and The Simpleton of the Unexpected Isles.
The One Way to Peace on Earth, Mankind of East and West alike, to do their best to maximise and glorify the Spirit of Unity, and subordinate multiplicity to it. Such Spirit of Unity, in Europe, Asia, by the fact that our brothers and sisters come from Tibet, Siam, Burma, and distant China and far-off Japan, to worship the holy memory of Buddha Gautama at the Deer-Park in Banaras, (which ancient-most of living towns is the most holy place of Pilgrimage for all Hindus), and at

Those who thus discern the Truth, will always make it their duty, as lovers of the

Essentials of all Religions, to promote the cause

Also, no two faces, no two bodies, no two voices, manners, gaits, tree-leaves, grass-blades, are exactly similar. Even so, no two minds coincide completely. The Principle of Multiplicity in Nature sees to that. But, all the same, there is a broad general similarity. This alone, between all human faces, figures, voices, feelings, thoughts, actions, leaves, and graces. This alone makes it possible for human beings to understand one another, and to live together as a civilised society. The Principle of Unity, which governs Nature, is the source of such civilised association and sympathy. To recognise that Unity in the the Temple in Buḍḍha-Gayā; while pilgrims from all countries of Asia, and from many parts of Africa, gather at Macca annually, in obedience to the command of the Prophet Muhammad. Truth-loving lovers of humanity will always work with all their might, to minimise the spirit of disunion and discord. This spirit of discord, in Europe, has caused the two World Wars, and continues to intensify political, national, and racial jealousies and hatreds there, in worse and worse form, even after the awful bloodshed and agony of those Wars. In Asia, especially in India, it is evidenced by the too well-known caste and creed dissensions, which have kept it under all sorts of subjection, domination, and exploitation; whence arises, surely, great material as well as spiritual harm to the exploited, now, and to the exploiter, in the end. Best means of 1 Jerusalem, Rome, Lourdes, Kiev, Canterbury, and other towns are similar Centres of Pilgrimage for European Christians also, still.

2 In India, fierce 'political' dissensions have also grown up between large 'parties', and riots and strikes, engineered by 'leaders' of many sorts, have multiplied, within last four decades. The armed war of Japan and China (1931-1945), though their religion is, largely, the same, is matter of current history. Civil War also went on between the Communists and the established Government, in China, for several years, until latter was overthrown and former came into power with Mao-tze as chairman of the Chinese Republic, formally established on 1st Oct. 1949.
promoting this so desirable peace, harmony, and unity between all countries, and between all sections of their populations, is to prove, and bring home to all, Unity between Science and Religion, and between religion and religion; and, secondly, to place, before the world, a Religio-Scientific Scheme of Social Organisation and Planned Individual Life, which will secure, for different temperaments, and different ages in each lifetime, appropriate occupations, and means of livelihood, and necessities of life at least, for all. Thus only can indispensable Spiritual Bread, as well as Material Bread, be provided to all.

Some persons, disgusted with religious conflict, speak hastily of abolishing religion to allay that conflict. As well kill the body to cure disease. To uproot religion successfully, they must first exterminate Pain and Death. So long as human beings experience and fear these, they will not cease to crave the consolations of religion. Also, so long as men and women are left, are encouraged, are even positively taught, to believe that religions differ, even in essentials, so long will they, as followers of such different religions, also necessarily continue to differ, to fight, to shed each other's blood. If, per contra, they are led to see that all religions are one in essentials, they will also surely become one in heart, and realise their common humanity in a loving Brotherhood.
The establishing of such union, between religion and religion, and between science and religion, in place of the conflict which has been raging between them so far, will make the beginning of a new and beneficent era, an era guided and governed by Scientific Religion and Religious Science.

Some signs are hopeful. Slowly, with many setbacks, artificial barriers are breaking down between science and science, between science and religion, between religion and religion. It is beginning to be recognized and said more and more, that sciences are not many, but that Science is one. It is to be hoped that before very long, with the help of that same completely unified science, it will soon come to be recognized that religions, too, are not many, but that Religion is one; and, finally, that Science and Religion are but different aspects of, or even only different names for, the same great body of Truth and its application which may be called the Science or Code of Life. If, formerly, every act was done in the name and under the guidance of religion, and, latterly, has tended to be done in the name of science, there is reason to hope that, in future, it may be done in the name of Spiritual or Religious Science.

History shows that new religions and their characteristic civilizations have taken birth, grown, and decayed, side by side. We may well regard the two as cause and effect. But what is regarded as the birth of a new religion, is really only a re-proclamation, and re-vivification even more, by the extraordinary personality, the intense favour, 'divine fire', en-thusi-(Theos)-asm, 'God-filled-ness', tapas, jazbah, self-sacrifice, high heart-compelling example, of the re-proclaimer. It is a fresh declaration, in new words, and a fresh en-live-ning thereby, of the Essential Eternal Universal Religion; and it is made necessary by the fact that the earlier proclamation had become covered up, beyond recognition, with non-essential, lifeless, misleading, harmful formalisms.

The fresh proclamation, needed for the present time, seems likely to take the form of Scientific Religion in a pre-eminent degree. And it apparently has to be made on somewhat 'socialist and democratic', rather than 'individualist,' lines; such lines as the Oversoul of the Human Race is taking in other departments of its vast life; that is to say, it has to be made, and, indeed, is being slowly, gradually, almost imperceptibly, made, by the large body of scientific and religious thinkers in co-operation as a whole, rather than by a single individual; though leaders are needed even by the most democratic movements.¹

¹ Associations form, now and then, with such religi-scientific objects as those indicated on pp. 5-6 supra.
Thus, some scientists have been working at ‘psychical research’ since 1882, when the Society for Unfortunately, owing to inherent human weaknesses, they repeatedly stray away from principles to personalities, from humanitarianism to sectarianism, and to all the dangers and mischiefs of ‘priestcraft’ which that implies. They do not keep the main objects steadily in view, as beacon-light to guide all their efforts; do not work single-mindedly and whole-heartedly for the unification of the world’s thought and practice in a Universal Scientific Religion, and a sincere League of all Religions as well as of all Nations. Varying the proverb, “Man proposes and God disposes”, we may say, ‘God proposes, and Satan opposes, and, but too often, successfully disposes.’

But there is no cause for excessive regret, much less despair. Instead, there is cause for greater effort in behalf of the Impersonal, and therefore All-personal, Truth. For the Principle of Good always re-composes and re-disposes. Schisms, due to ‘personalities’, due to over-emphasis, with much animus, on the personal element, on meum and tuum, and consequent violent disputes between followers, as well as violent opposition by persons outside the special fold, have been the experience, in their own life-times, of Krśna, Moses, Zoroaster, Confucius, Buḍḍha, Christ, Muhammad, Nānak—all; as also of ‘leaders’ in all other fields of human life. This is but another proof to the peaceful and discerning eye, of ‘the Unity of all Religions’, instead of the opposite, in respect of such unhappy experience too! We also see plainly, that such schisms do not at once destroy all the good work of the main religion. When, bye and bye, they do succeed in undermining it wholly, then the Principle of Good brings about a re-proclamation and re-viv-al of the Fundamental Truth in new ways. Believers in and servants of Unity must therefore always keep their hearts high.
Psychical Research was founded.¹ Sir Oliver Lodge, venerable veteran of world-wide fame in the realm of science, has said:

"The time will assuredly come when these avenues into unknown regions will be explored by science; and there are some who think that the time is drawing nigh when that may be expected to happen. The universe is a more spiritual entity than we thought. The real fact is that we are in the midst of a spiritual world which dominates the material. It constitutes the great and ever-present reality whose powers we are only beginning to realize. They might indeed be terrifying had we not been assured for our consolation that their tremendous energies are all controlled by a Beneficent Fatherly Power whose name is Love."

Some other older, as also more recent, declarations of faith by eminent front-rank scientists of the time may be cited.

Sir James Jeans, mathematician and astronomer, Cambridge and Princeton, secretary for many years to the Royal Society of Great Britain, says: "The Universe begins to look more like a great Thought ¹Enc. Brit., 14th edn., art. 'Psychical Research' gives a fair and comprehensive account, up to 1928. G. N. M. Tyrrel's Science and Psychical Phenomena was published in 1938.

²At Bristol, on 7 Sep., 1930. He passed away in 1940, at the age of 89.
than a great Machine." And again, "The apparent objectivity of things is due to their subsisting in the Mind. . . . We reach . . . the concept of the universe as a world of pure Thought. . . . Mind no longer appears as an accidental intruder in the realm of Matter. We are beginning to suspect that we ought rather to hail it as the creator and governor of the realm of Matter. Not, of course, our individual minds, but the Mind in which the atoms, out of which our individual minds have grown, exist as Thought." The same scientist, in The New Background of Science (1933), dealing with "the new knowledge", and surveying "the whole ground, from relativity, continuum, least interval, curved space, to quanta, wave-mechanics, waves of probability, indeterminacy and events—all concepts which we can neither picture, imagine, nor describe", says: "The law and order which we find in the universe are most easily described and . . . explained in the language of idealism. . . . At the farthest point Science has so far reached, much, and possibly all, that was not mental has disappeared, and nothing new has come in that is not mental. The final direction of change will probably be away from the materialism and strict determinism which characterised . . . nineteenth century physics."\(^1\) Again, in the last paragraphs of his book, The Mysterious Universe, (1937), he says: "The new knowledge compels us to revise our first hasty impressions... The old dualism of Mind and Matter... seems likely to disappear... through substantial Matter resolving itself into a creation and manifestation of Mind."

\(^1\) See Sullivan's Limitations of Science (pub. 1938; Penguins), especially ch. vi.

Prof. Eve, at p. 65 of The Great Design, a symposium edited by F. Mason (1936), says: "Most men today are engrossed in some one particular profession or occupation... It is doubtful if any group of men, except perhaps a few philosophers, is engaged in fitting together the jigsaw or patchwork puzzle of the mutitudinous discoveries and theories of all our diverse branches of knowledge; thought is thus divided into water-tight compartments, between which the communications are blocked."

Another scientist of note, Prof. Sir A. S. Eddington, has very recently confessed: "Something Unknown is doing we don't know what—that is what our

1 The philosophical, religious, and at the same time scientific principles, by means of which all possible, even contradictory-seeming, views and things were reconciled by ancient Indian Seers, and 'scientific determinist causation' as well as 'free-will' explained and combined in 'auto-matism'—these principles, of ancient Indian thought, are attempted to be set forth in the present writer's The Science of the Self (1938) and The Science of Peace (3rd edn. 1948).
theory amounts to." Elsewhere he says, "Modern physics has eliminated the notion of substance . . . Mind is the first and most direct thing in our experience . . . I regard Consciousness as fundamental. I regard Matter as derivative from Consciousness." And again: "The stuff of the world is mind-stuff . . . Consciousness is not sharply defined, but fades into sub-consciousness; and beyond that we must postulate something indefinite, but yet continuous with our mental nature. This I take to be the world-stuff;" The Nature of the Physical World, pp. 276-280.

The venerable Herbert Spencer said, in the closing §§ 190-194 of the last revised edition of his First Principles (pub. 1900, when he was eighty years of age), that his 'Unknowable' in no way conflicts with, but rather supports, religion. The Teacher-founders of the great religions have all taught, and many philosophers, ancient and modern, Western and Eastern, have perceived that this Unknown and Unknowable, is our very Self, the all-pervading, Universal, Supreme Principle of Consciousness or Life.

The equally venerable Alfred Russell Wallace, co-discoverer with H. Spencer and Charles Darwin, of the Law of Evolution, has, in his book, Social Environment and Moral Progress, written when he was nearly ninety years of age, expressly declared his faith in Spirit as governing Matter, and in the fact that the greatest discoveries have been due to special influxes of Spirit, (ävēṣha-s or a vātārās).

In The Great Design (1934), edited by F. Mason, an Introduction and a concluding chapter by Sir J. A. Thomson, great biologist, fourteen renowned scientists have written short articles summing up their life's researches. All agree that the world is not a soulless mechanism, and is not the work of blind chance; that there is a Mind behind the veil of Matter, give it what name we will. The scientists are: R. G. Allen, Director of Lick Observatory, astronomer; J. A. Crowther, professor of physics, University of Cambridge; A. S. Eve, professor of physics, McGill University; Baillie Willis, professor of geology, Johns Hopkins University and University of Chicago; C. Lloyd Morgan, professor of psychology, University of Bristol; E. W. McBride, professor of geology, Imperial College of Science, London; C. S. Gayer, Director, Brooklyn Botanical Gardens; H. E. Armstrong, emeritus professor of chemistry, City College, London; M. M. Metcalf, emeritus professor of zoology, Oberlin College, and research associate, Johns Hopkins University; Sir Oliver Lodge (born 1851) emeritus professor of physics, Oxford and Cambridge; Sir Francis Younghusband, retired army-General, traveller, humanist; D. S. Fraser-Harris, emeritus professor of physiology, Dalhousie University, Nova Scotia: Hans Driesch, Professor of Philosophy, Leipzig; and Sir J. A. Thomson, emeritus Professor of Natural History, Aberdeen.

Albert Einstein, Mathematician, world-famous originator of the Theory of Relativity: "I believe in God... who reveals Himself in the orderly harmony of the universe. I believe that Intelligence is manifested throughout all Nature. The basis of scientific work is the conviction that the world is an ordered and comprehensible entity and not a thing of Chance." Again (in U.S.A., in 1930) he said: "The religious geniuses of all times have been distinguished by this cosmic religious sense... It seems to me that the most important function of Art and Science is to arouse and keep alive this feeling in those who are receptive," quoted by Dean Inge, in an art. on 'The Philosophy of Mysticism', in Philosophy for October, 1938.

J. B. S. Haldane, physicist, Oxford and Birmingham Universities: "The Material world, which has been taken for a world of blind Mechanism, is in reality a Spiritual world seen very partially and imperfectly. The one real world is the Spiritual world. ... The truth is that, not Matter, not Force, not any physical thing, but Mind, personality, is the central fact of the Universe."

Sir Arthur S. Eddington, astronomer, Cambridge: "The old atheism is gone. . . . Religion belongs to the realm of Spirit and Mind, and cannot be shaken."

Kirtley F. Mather, geologist, Harvard: "The nearest approach we have thus far made to the Ultimate, in our analysis of Matter and of Energy, indicates that the Universal Reality is Mind."

Arthur H. Compton, physicist, Chicago University: "An examination of the evidence seems to support the view that there is no very close correspondence between brain-activity and consciousness. It seems that our thinking is partially divorced from our brain, a conclusion which suggests, though it does not prove, the possibility of consciousness after death." (As said in The Mahatma Letters, p. 267: "The flame is distinct from the log of wood which serves it temporarily as fuel." Yet solar heat is already present in the log also.)

Robert A. Millikan, physicist Institute of Technology, Pasadena: "God is the Unifying Principle of the universe. No more sublime conception has been presented to the mind of man, than that which is presented by Evolution, when it re-presents Him as revealing Himself, through countless ages, in the age-long inbreathing of life into constituent Matter, culminating in man with his Spiritual nature and all his God-like powers.”

The sentences with which Sir J. A. Thomson closes the book above referred to, viz. The Great Design, may be quoted here: “Throughout the World of Animal Life there are expressions of something akin to the Mind in ourselves. There is, from the Amœba upwards, a stream of inner, of subjective, life; it may be only a slender rill, but sometimes it is a strong current. It includes feeling, imagining, purposing, as well as occasionally thinking. It includes the Unconscious. Whether in the plant it dreams, or is soundly asleep, or has never awakened, who can tell us? . . . The omnipresence of mind in animals gives us a fellow-feeling with them. With Emerson we see ‘the worm, stirring to be a man, mount through all the spires of form.’ We see the growing emancipation of mind, and this gives Evolution its purpose . . . In a continuous process, there can be nothing in the end which was not also present in kind in the beginning; we are led from our own mind, and the story of its enfranchisement, back and back to the Supreme Mind ‘without Whom there was nothing made that was made.’ Facing, every day, things in the World of Life, around which our scientific fingers will not meet, what can we do but repeat what is carved on the lintel of the Biology Buildings of one of the youngest and strongest of American Universities: 'Open Thou mine eyes that I may behold wondrous things out of Thy Law.' The greatest scientists are the most reverent towards the Ultimate Mystery, the Self in All.

Leader (Allahabad) reported in April, 1937: "The Court of the London University, after much discussion, has recently accepted a very valuable library, of Psychical and Magical books, collected by Mr. Harry Price, from all over the world, which is almost unique, and is one of the most comprehensive of its kind. In giving it to the University, Mr. Price, long keenly interested in the subject, said he hoped to stimulate a desire on the part of University authorities for a fully equipped department of Psychical Research to be installed in the new London University Buildings. . . . It is a fact that a number of individual scientists, in many parts of the western world, have been for years past making serious investigations of psychic phenomena, and that the Universities of Bonn, Leyden, Leipzig—to name only a few on the Continent—are taking a serious interest in the subject. It is stated that in Leyden, a recognised department dealing with psychical research is already established. If the phenomena are proved to be facts—and only the ignorant will deny their occurrence—then as facts they must be studied. . . . The new series of evening University Extension Lectures . . . comprise a course of ten lectures on 'The Literature of the Occult'. They start with the main principles involved in occult study, and roam over the subject from the Egyptian "Book of the Dead", and medieval Chinese occult lore, to Yoga and modern spiritualism."

Thus is modern Science, fathered in its infancy, and persecuted in its youth, by Religion, in Europe, now endeavouring to repay the kindness, after having retributed the injury, by renovating Religion in what, let us hope, will be a finer, scientific, non-superstitious form.

A short and effective way of settling the whole dispute over 'Spirit' (or 'Mind') and 'Matter', seems to be this: You say, 'Matter-Chance' creates 'Spirit-Mind-Purpose'; not the latter, the former. Very good. Let it be that way. But what does that mean? Does it not mean only this—that the attributes, properties, faculties, powers, which have been so long associated, by mankind, with (the words) Spirit—Mind—Intelligence—Life—Consciousness—Will—Purpose—Design (—all undeniable facts, remember—), should now be attached to (the words) Matter — Unconsciousness — Inanimacy — Deadness — Chance — Blind Force — Inertia, etc.; that instead of the (word) Subject ideating, imagining, cognising, desiring, conating, moving the (word)
Object, (—all these functionings are facts, remember—) the (word) Object, chance-ates, determines, knows, wishes, acts on the (word) Subject? Very well. By all means have your wish. The old way of speaking has become hackneyed; let us change it, by the simple process of reversing or exchanging the meanings of the words, the facts remaining unchanged and unchangeable. The powers and functions we now ascribe to (the word) Spirit, we shall, in future, ascribe to (the word) Matter! God did not create Matter; Matter created God! Very well. But the duality and opposition of the two Things will not be abolished that way. The transcendence, reconciliation, of that difference and polarity is the subject of Metaphysic.¹

With the breaking of fences between science and religion, and by fuller scientific thought, will come demolition of hedges between religion and religion; then it will be possible for the artificial political boundaries, only which now separate country from country, to be obliterated, (for natural physical boundaries have been nullified by radio and aeroplane), and the barriers to be cast aside which divide nation from nation in head and in heart. Then may the new civilization dawn, dreamt of by the poet and the socialist, and idealised and also practicalized by ¹See the present writer's The Science of Peace or The Science of the Self.

Manu; then may be realized the Parliament of Man and the Federation of the World, the Organization of the whole Human Race in one vast Joint Family and Brotherhood, of which the League of Nations (now converted into the U. N. O. or United Nations Organisation, in 1946) has been the first small step and very feeble, because not quite sincere, not endowed with a soul in the shape of a League of all Religions integrated with it.

Educational institutions ought to take a leading part in the ushering in of this new proclamation of Scientific Religion and of the consequent new era of human history.

Many, if not all, of even the statesmen and the generals who were busiest in promoting and conducting the World Wars have been saying that war is not a glorious business at all, but, besides being horrible, is also something very useless, senseless, mean, sordid, shabby, and shameful, altogether due to the most evil motives. A Field-Marshal of England, one of the prominent figures in the First World War, said in a public speech:

"War as a means of settling international disputes is now more universally condemned as a failure than ever before, and every day it becomes more evident that there are really no foreign nations, but that the interests of all are so closely interwoven that if one nation suffers all will suffer to some extent. Undoubtedly, the maintenance of great and costly armaments is not the first essential measure required to prevent war. By far the most important requirement is less Jealousy and less Selfishness in the conduct of international affairs. That spirit is, we may hope, now gradually appearing, and when it is adequately forthcoming, and not till then, disarmament will follow rapidly and easily enough, and the nations will be at last on the road to peace and goodwill."

---

1 Sir William Robertson, at Leeds, on 10th Dec., 1930.

1 Such hopes were shattered by the second World War. Another soldier, Brig-General F. P. Crozier, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., trying to inaugurate a movement called The Imperial Peace Crusade, in 1929, wrote: "The World is slowly moving towards the desired goal of substitution of methods of Peace for methods of War. . . . The future prosperity of the World depends on the formation of a World-opinion which will enable people to form a habit of always thinking in terms of Peace instead of in terms of War. Having studied the matter very closely, it is my desire to encourage and stimulate this mode of thought. Having spent most of my life in War, or preparing for war, I desire to devote the remainder of my life to the service of Peace." General Eisenhower, Supreme Commander of all Allied forces (except Russia's) and Marshal Montgomery, Commander-in-Chief of all British forces, were honored, after the fall of Germany, in May, 1945, by the Soviet, with an Order of Victory. Marshal Zhukov pinned the stars to their coats, on behalf of Stalin. In their reply
These are the words of a modern war-worn veteran. Jealousy and Selfishness are the important words in his speech. Kṛṣṇa, who had probably more personal experience of war than even a modern Field-Marshal, said long ago that: "Lust, Hate, and Greed form the triple gateway into hell:" (Gītā).

to Marshal Zhukov’s address, they both said that they would have been much happier if the war had not occurred, and they had not been recipients of war-honors. General Douglas MacArthur of the U.S. Army and Supreme Commander of all Allied Operations in the Pacific, after the fall of Japan in August, 1945, addressing the Allied Council for Japan, in Tokyo, on 5-4-1946, said: "The Nations’ Organisation can survive to achieve its purpose and aims, only if its members abolish war as a sovereign right. Such renunciation must be simultaneous and universal. It must be all or none. It must be effected by action, not words alone. With development of modern science another war might blast mankind to perdition, but still we hesitate, and in spite of the yawning abyss at our feet, cannot unshackle ourselves from the past". This shows how 'war-hardened' soldiers are no longer 'hardened' but 'softened'. They no longer gloat in war medals and titles, but are thoroughly sick of it all, especially of the diplomats who persist in keeping the shackles on. Miss Muriel Lester, philanthropist worker, of London, visiting India in January, 1939, spoke to press interviewers, in Calcutta, to the effect that "the present calamitous state of the world, when all the Powers are running a mad race in armament, preparing feverishly for a far worse World-War, is due to its ignoring the fact of God; that fact of God is the foundation which kept the world together. When it was knocked away, the peoples floundered. They recognised nothing; no power greater than themselves; there was There can be no worse hell than war, and these three open the triple gateway into it. In accord with the realization of this fact, which is indeed obvious to eyes not blinded by those same evil motives, youth movements were started in many western countries. They were intended to bring up the new generation in a purer moral and spiritual atmosphere of internationalist and humanist feeling, in place of nationalism. This 'nationalism,' useful while simply defensive and self-helping, and while duly subordinated to 'humanism,' has degenerated into something very offensive, aggressive, other-harming. Indeed it is now nothing else than vulgar bullyism on a huge scale, inherently barbarous and unregenerate, and provocative of more and more murderous conflicts. It means lust-hate-greed on the nation-wide scale, instead of the small individual scale. Because nothing left by which to regulate their lives. They had only themselves to please. They became bored with themselves; afraid of solitude and quietness. Many became obsessed with sex; and self-indulgence made them sick. They turned to any sort of dictatorship, the stricter the better, as a relief from self. There is also the evil of the present economic system." As some western writer has said: "If God did not exist, we should have to invent Him, for our own safety." God, or belief, sincere belief, in God, i.e., a Spiritual Power, is man's only saviour from mutual destruction. Fortunately Science and Philosophy are combining to show anew to man that God does exist, within him even more than without.
this fact has come home to them, it is being suggested, very rightly, very wisely, by influential persons in that same West, that the tone and the nature of the teaching given in schools and colleges should be changed; that war-glorification and national boasting, self-conceit, contempt and decrival of other nations, and expression of triumph over them should all be eliminated from that teaching; that, instead, there should be diligently inculcated the more truly refined and civilized spirit of 'humanism,' which began to manifest itself in the higher thought and feeling of the best and wisest persons of all nations, as a reaction against the horror of the senseless butchery of the first World War. Moral disarmament must precede physical disarmament. War can be abolished or reduced only in direct ratio to the abolition or reduction of War-Mentality. This is possible only by systematic cultivation of Peace-Mentality and 'Organising for Peace.'

As regards 'Organising for Peace,' see the present writer's pamphlet, Psychological Principles of Social Re-Construction, The Science of Social Organisation, and Ancient vs. Modern Scientific Socialism, (Theos: Pubg: House, Adyar, Madras). For a fuller exposition of the inseparable connection between Religion and Social Organisation, see the present writer's World War and Its Only Cure—World Order and World Religion, which may be regarded as a supplement to this work.
as the general public. Right Education is the foundation of all well-being, all good.

Educational institutions should not be subservient to political jingoism. Instead, they should aspire to direct politics into the path of righteousness. The scientist-priest, custodian of Spiritual Power, ought to guide, nay, command, and compel, the ruler-soldier, repository of Temporal Power, into the right use of all civil, military, political power. All such institutions, therefore, should regard it as a sacred duty to help forward, to the best of their ability, this most desirable change of tone and teaching. Here comes the use of well-planned Religious Instruction as the most potent instrument for the Moral Regeneration of mankind. Humanism, internationalism, inter-religionism, go together, are only aspects of each other.

Men, according to their temperaments, may, with their head, their intellect, either admire great military heroes and conquerors of history, or condemn them as predaceous marauders and butchers; probably none will offer the reverence of their heart to them. But there are few who will not offer reverent homage, with their heart, to those truest and greatest educators of mankind, by precept and by example, whom we know as Founders of the great Religions; who have ever reproclaimed the One Eternal Truth of the Unity of all; who have illustrated by their lives, the Beauty and the Goodness of the concomitant Love and Sympathetic Self-sacrifice of human beings for one another.

Genuine Educators, who realize that it is their high spiritual duty to be Missionaries of the Supreme Spirit on this earth; who spend themselves in constant endeavour to uplift their fellowmen to the plane of Righteousness, and help to usher in anew, and maintain, the era of Peace on earth and Goodwill among men; such cannot do better than give to the teaching of the Essentials of Universal Religion, by example as well as by precept, a foremost place in their courses of instruction to the younger generation, and inculcate, in their hearts, the habit of seeking and practising 'In Essentials, in Principles, in great things—Unity; in non-essentials, details, small and superficial things—Liberty; in all things—charity'.

Viscount H. Samuel, President of the British Institute of Philosophy, in his lectures, in the Senate House, Calcutta, on 9.1-1938, and in the University Buildings, Allahabad, on 15.1-1938, said; "Bernard Shaw has declared that Civilisation needs Religion, as a matter of life and death. . . We all recognise that the mind of man, in our times, is confused. The present generation is beset by anxieties and perils. Our escape, our rescue, from these, depends upon our finding a new Synthesis between Philosophy and Science and Religion. . . Philosophy, coming out of its phase of classicism, Science coming out of its phase of materialism, Religion freeing itself from its servitude to dogmas that are outworn, may
The dining-hall of the great Feeder supplies edibles suited to all tastes: sweets for those who love sweets, salts for those who like salts, acids for those who want acids. Let all satisfy their tastes, each his own. Why quarrel with another for not join in constructing a spiritual and intellectual framework for the future.... Hegel said that ideas had hands and feet. There should be some Philosophy which would guide the nations.... Conflict of religions could be solved by appeal to Philosophy.... The philosopher could go to the different creeds, one by one, and ask them to Emphasise the Common points and not the differences. Philosophy would help to bring the religions together. The World Fellowship of Faiths is working in this direction. Its first Conference was held (in Chicago, in 1933, its second) in London, in 1936, then in Oxford in 1937.... We must Emphasise the Points of Agreement between the Religions, rather than the points of difference.... What the world needs today, above all, is a Synthesis of Philosophy, Science, and Religion."

Vēd-āṇṭa, 'Final Knowledge', Brahma-vidyā, 'God-Science', Āṭma-vidyā, 'Self-knowledge', the traditional Ancient Wisdom of India and of all countries, is just such a Synthesis. For a very brief but comprehensive presentation of it in modern terms, the reader may, if he is interested, see the present writer's Science of the Self. The present work may also be regarded as such a Synthesis, though indirectly. Its main and direct purpose is to "Emphasise the Points of Agreement between the Religions". Some persons say that 'Morals' should be taught but not Religion; they are blind to the fact that Morals have no stable foundation without belief in a Power which inevitably, soon or late, rewards merit and virtue and punishes vice and sin and crime, in some future life if not in this.
having the same taste as mine, when his taste does not interfere with my enjoyment of mine? But we all have to drink water and breathe air in order to dissolve and assimilate our respective special foods. Even so are the Common Essentials necessary for even the due enjoyment of the Separate Non-Essentials.

In the minds of some individuals, among some communities, or even perhaps in a large portion of a whole nation, there may be revolt against religion for special reasons. The Soviet Government of Russia is said to have set itself to abolish religion from the face of that country. But this policy was changed some years ago. It was found that great masses of the people were clinging to their ikons and their churches, and refused to part with them despite grievous persecution. The Soviet Government has decided to 'let alone' and 'let be'.

1 M. Maisky, Soviet Ambassador, speaking in London, in September, 1941, said: "The Soviet Union considers that religion is a private matter for each citizen. Despite what is thought by many, religion in my country is not persecuted, every citizen having the right to believe or not, according to his conscience. Article 124 of the Stalin Constitution (of 1936-7) reads: 'In order to ensure the citizen's freedom of conscience, the Church in Soviet Russia is separated from the State, and the School from the Church. Freedom of religious working (? worship) and freedom of anti-religious propaganda is recognised
All this only means that revolt against religion, as commonly understood and practised, may be local and temporary, due to special causes, as reaction against priestcraft and abuse, but that permanent eschewal of Religion is impossible for the vast bulk of humanity.

The poet complained that "the world is too much with us night and day." Thoughtful Asiatics have good reason to complain that so-called religion has been interfering with our lives, private and public, far too much. But we also see that law, and science often misapplied by law, are now trespassing excessively upon our daily life and into our very homes, from birth to death; and that almost greater horrors are being perpetrated in names of science, art, and law, than ever were in that of religion.

Especially is so-called 'law' much too much with us, in private as well as public life. There are far too many laws already, and more are being manufactured every day by legislators who feel they must justify their existence thus. Every human being in for all citizens.' In 1940, in Soviet Russia, there were 30,000 (? 300 or 30) independent religious communities of every kind, over 8000 churches, and about 60,000 priests and ministers." Two non-official and one official Good-Will Missions went from India to China in 1951-1952. They have reported that there is complete freedom réligion, but few go to public places of worship, being too busy with economic reconstruction under the new communist regime.
a 'civilized' country to-day (and the more 'civilized' it is, the more is this the case) goes about in constant fear for his pocket and his liberty, through fines and jails, if not also for his life through gallows, as a consequence of a chance infringement of any one of a thousand local, special, general, municipal, sumptuary, social, fiscal, executive, procedural, substantive, civil, criminal, etc., laws, which envelope his life as tentacles of an octopus its victim. And 'public servants', ('servants' forsooth!, 'public masters' and 'monarchs of all they survey'; rather!), of a hundred departments of the 'benevolent' state are ever on the watch to grab a victim, with, and quite as often without, even merest technical cause. Behaviour of 'myrmidons of law' is now much more arrogant and troublesome than that of 'myrmidons of religion'. A western statistician has calculated that one out of every ten, another that one out of every seven, human beings in a country like England, passes through the clutches of one penal law or another, and pays a fine or serves a term in jail. Surely this cannot be a mark of health in a civilization. Too much religion kills God, the God in Man; enslaves him to fear-pervaded trembling superstition, instead of bringing him Freedom from all fear. Too much law kills peace of mind and body; enslaves man to bureaucraft and expertcraft, instead of giving him ordered liberty.
All this only: means that excess of even a good thing is bad. Indeed, Excess is the one Sin of sins; and Moderation, following of the Middle Course, the one Virtue of virtues; in all concerns of life. The way that Buḍḍha taught is expressly known as Majjhima Pati-pādā, (Skt. maḍhyama pari-pāṭi) the Middle Path. One of the schools of philosophy that arose later, among his followers, is known as Māḍhyamika, the 'Middle Way School'. One of the treatises of his contemporary, Confucius, is entitled, The Doctrine of the Mean, (actual compilation of which is ascribed by tradition to his grandson, Kung Kei).¹ A Samskṛt proverb says:

Āshrayeṇ maḍhyamām vṛttim, aṭi sarvaṭra varjayet,

(Follow the middle course; avoid extremes.)

Kṛiṣhṇa expounds it thus:

N-āṭy-ashnaṭas ṭu yog-oṣṭi, na cha-ekāntam an-asnaṭah,
Na cha-ṭi-svapna-shīlasya, jāgraṭo n-ṭi cha,
Arjuna!;
Yukṭ-āhāra-vihārasya, yukṭa-chéshtasya sarvaḍā,
Yukṭa-svapn-āva-bodhasya, yogo bhavaṭi duḥkha-hā. (G.)²

² Charaka and Sushruta, best known and most studied works of Skt. Āyur-Vēda (Medicine) devote special
(He who avoids extremes, in feed and fast,
In sleep and waking, and in work and play,
He winneth yoga, balance, peace, and joy.)

Tasmād vidvān bhavaṭi n-āṭi-vāḍī. (U.)
Aṭi-vāḍāns-ṭīṭikshēta. (M.)

(The wise man ever studiously avoids Extremes in speech and act, himself; and when Others press to extremes in heated speech,
He passes by, in quiet, answering not.)

Lao-tze says:

"Continuing to fill a pail after it is full, the water will be wasted. Continuing to grind an axe after it is sharp, will wear it away. Excess of light blinds the eye. Excess of sound deafens the ear.
Excess of condiments deadens the taste. He who possesses moderation is lasting and enduring. Too much is always a curse, most of all in wealth."
(T., Tao Teh King.)

Confucius says:

"Commit no excess; do nothing injurious; there are few who will not then take you for their pattern.
... The will should not be gratified to the full; pleasures should not be carried to excess." (C., Shi King; Li-ki.)

chapters to the injunction: 'Eat measured quantities', mātrā-ashīṭṭyam, 'eat within strict limits'. The Persian phrase is tahaffuz-i-hudūd, 'observance, maintenance, of limits'.

Muhammad has said:

Kha'ir-ul-umur e ausatoha. (H.)

(Only those acts are good and safe to do,
The golden mean which studiously pursue).

Bible says:

"Be not righteous over much; neither make thyself over wise. . . . Be not over much wicked; neither be thou foolish." (B., Eccles.)

"Give me neither poverty nor riches; feed me with food sufficient for my wants; lest I be full and deny Thee, and say, who is Jahveh?; or be poor, and steal, and profane the name of my God." (B., Proverbs.)

A Latin proverb says: Summum jus, summa injuria, 'excessive justice is excessive injury'. Other proverbs like 'Extremes meet,' 'Pride goeth before a fall', 'Too much wit outwits itself,' illustrate the same fact. Another Latin maxim is: In medio veritas, 'Truth is in the middle'.

Shintoism embodies the same principles:

"It has ever insisted on ma-gokoro, by which it means freedom from inordinate passions. . . . All appetites are natural hence divine gifts; and the temperate enjoyment of them is a divine power. If man oversteps the limits of moderation, he pollutes his body and mind. To be godlike is to be natural; to be natural is to follow Nature . . .
(i.e., to keep) within the limits set by instinct and reason. . . . This is the fundamental conception of Due Measure." (Sh., Inazo Nitobe, Japan, 321, 322).

As the teaching of Buddha is known as Majjhima Patīpaḍā, so the Jain way, taught by Mahāvīra Jina, is known as An-ek-ānṭa-vāḍa, the Doctrine and the Way of Non-Extremism.

Ékén-ākarshanṭi, shlaṭhayanṭi vāṣṭu-ṭāṭtvam itarēṇa Anṭēna, jayaṭi Jainī nīṭir, maṇṭhāna-nēṭram iva gopi (AMRṬA CHANDRA SURI), (E'en as the dairy-maid, pulling and slacking

The two ends of the churning-string by turns,
Churns out the golden butter from the milk,
E'en so the sage, working alternately
At both the two inevitable sides
Of every question, finds the perfect Truth.)

Muhammad enjoins the same:

Lā taṭādu inn-Allāhā lā yohibbul maṭaḍin. (Q.
(God loves not those who go beyond due bounds.)

"Courage is the mean between cowardice and rashness; discriminate liberality, bet. stinginess and extravagance; ambition, bet. sloth and greed; modesty, bet. humility and pride; honest speech, bet. secrecy and loquacity; good humour, bet. moroseness and buffoonery; friendship, bet. quarrelsomeness and flattery; self-control, bet. indecision and impulsiveness:" these thoughts are ascribed to Aristotle by Will Durant in his The Story of Philosophy, p. 86 (pub. 1938). Durant adds, on pp. 87-88: "... This doctrine of the mean... appears in almost every system of Greek philosophy. Plato (speaks of it as) harmonious action. ... The Seven Wise Men had the motto, meden agen, 'nothing in excess', engraved on the temple of Apollo at Delphi."

A Greek philosopher has said: "Strive to acquire proper balance—courage without rashness; caution without timidity; mercy without weakness; justice without vindictiveness; silence without deceit; shrewdness without cunning; courtesy without fawning; firmness without obstinacy; deliberation without dilatoriness; patience without carelessness; friendship without favoritism; ambition without selfishness."

Mahā-bhārata, Shānti-parva, ch. 70, says: "Be religious, not bigoted; virtuous, not self-righteous; devout, not fanatical; gather wealth, not cruelly; enjoy, without elation; speak gently, not insincerely; be brave, without boasting; be generous, not wasteful; give, not indiscriminately; speak boldly, not harshly; make friends, not with the ignoble; fight, not with friends; seek information, not from the unreliable; serve your interest, without hurting others; ask advice, not from the unwise; praise virtues, not your own; trust, but not the evil; punish, not thoughtlessly; love and guard the spouse, without jealousy; be refined, but not supercilious; feed delicately, not unwholesomely; enjoy conjugal pleasure, not over-much; honor the worthy, not proudly; serve, without deceit; propitiate, without fawning; be clever, not out of season; be angry, not without strong cause; be gentle, not to the mischievous; worship Deity, without display."

Every question has two inevitable sides. Wisdom consists in reconciling the two, by just compromise between them, in accord with the requirements of time-place-circumstance.

_Duality of God's Nature._ There are these two sides to every question, because:

Sarvam ḍvam-ḍva-mayam jagat.
S'arvāṇi cha ḍvam-ḍvāni. (U.)

Ḍvam-ḍvair-ayojayaṭ ch-ēmāḥ
Sukha-ḍuhkh-āḍibbih prajāḥ. (M.)

(The world is made of pairs of opposites;
All things occur in pairs of two and two;
The Maker fused Duality in all;
Sorrow and Joy foremost of all these pairs.)

Khalaqna min kulle shayin zaujain. (Q.)

(I, the Supreme and Universal Self,
Have made all things in pairs of spouse and spouse).
Male and female created He them. (B.)
Ishq-bāzī mī kunaḍ bā khwésh-ṭan;
Shuḍ bahānāh ḍar-miyānē mard o zan. (S.)
(To play at Love the better with Him-Self
He put on separate masks of man and wife.)
Sa Ėkākī n-āramaṭa; Sa Āṭmānam ḍvēḍhā apāṭayaṭ;
Paṭish cha Paṭni ch-ābhavaṭ; āpayato vai ṭāvanyo-nyasya kāmān sarvān. (U.)
(Lonely He felt, and all unsatisfied;
So into Two He did divide Him-Self,
To have a Play-mate; Man and Wife He was;
All wishes of each other they fulfil.)

Chiṭṭa-naḍī nāma ubhayaṭo vāhinī; vahaṭi kalyā-ṇāya, vahaṭi cha pāpāya. (Yoga-Sūtra-Bhāshya,
i-12).
(The mind-stream in two rival currents flows, Heading to virtue and to vice it goes).
Bahr-e-ṭalkh o bahr-e-shīrīn ham-enān,
Ḍarmiyān 'shān barzakh-ē lā-yubghīyān, (S.)
Qāyaman bil qisṭ. (H.)
(Oceans of Sweet and Bitter surge abreast;
Between them rests the razor-line of Rest.
The Being of Godhead rests a-midst the Pairs, Maintaining balance betwixt Joys and Cares.)
Yathā shītasvēṣṭāya mādhya n-aiv-aushnāyam na cha śītatā, Tathā sthītam paḍam shāṅtām,
maḍhye vai sukha-duhkhyah. (Mbh.)

There is a middle point, nor hot nor cold,
On the two sides of which spread cold and heat;
So, of the Middle point, where there is Peace,
On the two sides, surge seas of Pain and Joy.)

Dvau eva chinṭayā mukṭau, param-ānande āpluṭau,
Yo vi-mudho jado bālo, yo guṇēbhyaḥ param gaṭah.

(Two are the 'free from care' and steeped in bliss—
The child with mind ungrown, and also he
Who goes beyond the threefold attributes
Of Nature and beholds the God of Nature,
While in between the two, the staging Soul,
Struggles with joys and sorrows, pleasures-pains.)

Ichchhā-dvēsha-samuṭṭhēna dvam-dva-mohēna, Bhāraṭa!
Sarva-bhūtāni sam-moham
sargē yānti, paran-tapa!
Yēshām tu anta-gaṭam pāpam,
janānām puṇya-karmanām,
Tē dvam-dva-moha-nir-mukṭāh bhajanṭe Mām ārdha-vratāh.

15386
Nir-māna-mohāh, jiśa-sanga-ādhossāh,
aḍhy-āṭma-niśyāh, vini-vṛṭṭa-kāmāh,
Dvam-dvair-vimuktāh sukha-dukhha-saṅjñaih
Gachchhanūtī amūdhāh padām Avyayam Taṭ. (G.)

(They only who love Me with steadfast mind
Can cross this glamour of Duality;
And they who rise above this Dualness
They only know Me as the One Sole Truth.
Crossing beyond this ever-battling Pair
Of Joy and Sorrow, mind now Proud now Low,
Elation and Depression, they attain
The state of Peace that knows not any change.)

Nir-dvam-dvah niśya-saṭṭva-sthāhab nir-yoga-kshēmah Āṭma-vān;
Jñeyah sa niśya-sannyāsī
yah na dvēshti na kānkṣati;
Nir-dvam-dvah hi, mahā-bāho!
sukham bandhāt pra-muchyaṭe.
Samah siddhau a-siddhau cha,
dvam-dvā-tītah vi-māṭsarah,
Yad-rchchhā-lābha-san-tushtah,
krītv-āpi na ni-baḍhyaṭe. (G.)

(Who is content with what lot brings to him,
Who is not envious, who has passed the Pairs,
Who in success and failure stands the same,
His acts, being only duties, bind him not.)
Renunciation endless is his, who Neither desireth aught nor hateth aught.
He who flings off the ever-wrestling Twins,
With ease he breaketh all his bonds of soul.
The Duads that take birth with Love-and-Hate—
Intoxicate with these, all beings rush
Into the whirlings of this wheeling world.
They who with Virtues balance up their Vice,
They leave them Both behind, and pass beyond
Into the restful realm of deathless Peace.
They who have cast aside all Pride and Fear,
Conquered lusts of the flesh, its Loves and Hates,
And tied their hearts to Me, the Self of All,
They thrust aside the glamorous warring Pairs,
Whose primal name and form is Pleasure-Pain;
They come to Me, the Universal-Self,
And enter into My eternal Peace.)

To realise in mind, that the very nature of World-Process, of all life, of separate individuality, is necessarily, inevitably, a mixture of joy and sorrow, good and evil, that we cannot have gains without pains, nor pains without gains, so long as we feel identified with separate bodies; thus realising, to experience and bear both joys and sorrows with 'equable' mind, with 'peace' at heart; and to go on discharging duties without craving for selfish recompense; this is to transcend Duality, 'to fling off all Twins,' and the threefold guṇa-s, functions of mind, cognition, desire, action, in which primal Duality is inherent, and which, in turn, are inherent in Duality.

Yasmin vi-ruddha-gaṭayo hi-anisham paṭantī Vidyā-(ā)dayo vi-vidha-shaktayah ānu-pūrvyā,
. . . Tasmāi sam-un-naddha-vi-ruddha-shaktaye Namah Parasmai Purushāya Vēḍhasē. (Bḥ.)
(In whom opposed Forces ever swirl Against each other, whirling the whole world Unceasingly, Him we adore in heart.)

Prakṛtīh ubhaya-koti-sparshīnī;
Purushah maḍhyasthah. (Bhāva-Prakāsha).
(Nature doth ever swing between Extremes, Holding the Balance, stands midway, Her God.)

An English poet has caught the idea well:
Joy and woe are woven fine,
A clothing for the soul divine;
Under every grief and pine
Runs a joy with silken twine,
It is right it should be so;
Man was made for joy and woe;
And when this we rightly know,
Safely through the world we go.

(WILLIAM BLAKE)¹

¹"The two inscriptions on the Delphic Temple, (in Greece) viz.—'Nothing too much' and 'Know thyself'—were complementary. If you have too much of Zarathustra says:

At tā maïnyū po-uruyē Yā yēmā khafenā asravātēm manahi chā vachahi chā shya-oṭhano-i. Hi vahyo-akēm cha, āos chā huḍā-onghaho. Ėrēsh vishyātā no it ḍuzhaḍā-ongho.

At chā hyāt tā hēm maïnyū jasa-etēm paurvīm ḍazdé ga-ēm chaajyā-īṭīm chā. Yaṭha chā anghat apēmēm anghush achishtō drēgvaṭām at ashā-ūnē vahishtēm mano.

Hamēm ṭat vahishtā-chiṭ yē ūshurayē syas-chiṭ dah-mahyā, kshayāns, Mazhaḍā Ahurā !, yēhyā mā ā-ithīsh chiṭ ṭva-ēṭhā; hyātā a-ēnanghe drēgvaṭo ē-ē-anū ēshyēng anghahyā. (Z., Gāthā, 30. 3, 4; 32. 16).

anything, you cannot know yourself.... The moral equipoise—the Golden Mean—is the attainment of godhead. Freedom and restraint, the ‘Do-s’ and the ‘Don’t-s’ in the moral world, act like the centripetal and centrifugal forces in the physical, to keep a balance:” Inazo Nitobe, Ibid.

1 Sanskrit form of these, in prose order is:

Aṭha cha yaḍā āu manyū paurvīm samajaseṭām (samasaṭām or sam-ajasatām, taḍā) gayam cha ajyāṭim cha (? cf. rayim cha prāṇam cha, vāk cha prāṇah cha) ḍaḍhē (ḍaḍhaṭē). Yaṭhā (yaḍā) cha asoh apamam
(These two Primordial Principles in One,
Of Light and Darkness, Good and Ill, that seem Apart from one another, yet are bound Inseparably together, each to each—
In Thought, in Word, in Action, everywhere
Are they in operation; and the wise
Walk on the side of Light, while the unwise
Follow the other until they grow wise.
These ancient Two, in mutual wrestle-play
Give birth to Twin-Desires, high and low,
That shape as Hate-Mentality in some,
In others as the Better Mind of Love.
O Mighty Lord of Wisdom, Mazda!
Supreme, Infinite, Universal Mind!
Ahura!, thou that givest Life to all!
Grant me the power to control this mind,
This Lower Mind of mine, this egoism,
And put an end to all Duality,

(? asu-bhṛtu, jivēshu, upaitām, tādā tau) drug-vatām.
dhrug-vatām, droha-vatām) achiṣṭam (anishtam), ashā-vaṭī (ashā-vatām, ? shubhāshā-vatām, usha-vatām, jyoṭish-maṭām) vahīṣṭam (vaishtham, varishṭhām) manah āsaṭ (āṣṭām).

Hē Kshayan Ahura Mazda!, (? A-kshaya, asūn prāṇān rāti ātātī iṭī Asurah; Mahat, Buḍḍhi-ṭaṭṭvam, Brhaṭ, ṭam Mahānṭam dadhāṭi, ṭī Mahā-dhāḥ) samam ṭaṭ chit (syāṭ) Vahīṣṭam, yat svasya ḍambhasya (aham-kāraśya) Ishvarah chit (syam), yatṛ-a mé dvaiṭasya aṭiḥ (iṭiḥ, antaḥ, syāṭ); yat ēnasā drug-vantaḥ (api) asūnā (prāṇēṇa, hṛdayēṇa) evam ēva ishyanti (ichchhanṭī).
And gain the reign of One—as is desired
Unconsciously, by e'en the graceless ones,
The evil sinners, in their heart of hearts.)¹

The fact of this all-permeating Duality is signified pre-eminently by the very Names, in opposed Pairs, given to God in Islām as well as Vaiḍīka Dharma.
He is Al-Awwal and Al-Ākhir, Āḍī and Anṭa, First and Last, Alpha and Omega; Al-Bāṭīn and Az-Zāhir, Avyakṣa and Vyakṣa, Inner and Outer, Un-manifest and Manifest, the Universal Un-Conscious, Sub-Conscious, Supra-Conscious, and the Individual and Particular Conscious, seed of tree and tree of seed; Al-Bāḍī and Al-Jāmī, Srasṭā and Samhartā, Spreader-out and Gatherer-in; Al-Muḥiyy and Al-Mumīṭ, Bhava and Hara, Giver of Life and Giver of Death; Al-Samaḍ and Al-Muḥaimin, A-Kāma and Sarva-kāma, the Ever-Perfect and Desireless and

¹ All Gāthā texts have been taken from the very painstaking and illuminative edition of Gāthās, with Samskṛt, English, Gujrāṭi translations and notes, by J. M. Chatter-jee and A. N. Bilimoriya; (Cherāg Office, Navasari; pub. 1932).

Words within square brackets, in the Samskṛt version above, have been added by the present writer, as suggestions; the English translation is a free version of that by J. M. Chatterji, but care has been taken to preserve the sense correctly.
Creator and Satisfier of all Desires: Al-Muzil and Al-Hāḍī, Māyī and Ṭāraka, Mis-Leader, Mis-Director, Tempter, Degrader, Tester, and also Guide, Leader, Teacher, Rector, True-Director, Corrector; Al-Qahhār and Ar-Razzāq, Rudra and Shiva, Angry Overwhelmer and Auspicious Nourisher; Al-Ghazzāb and Al-Ghaffār, Yama and Kshamā-vān, Punisher and Forgiver; Al-Jabbar and Al-Karīm, Ghora and Dayālu, Severe or Dire and Compassionate; Al-Jalīl and Al-Jamīl, Shāstā, Prabhu, Ishvara, and Maḍhu, Maḍhura, Sunḍara, Kānta, the Lord, Ordainer, Sovereign, Awesome, Terrible, and the Beautiful, the Beloved, the Friend of All.

The vibhūtis, glories, gunās, attributes, sifāt, of the Supreme are all in pairs of opposites, classifiable under the two main categories of aishvarya and maḍhurya, jalāli and jamāli, lordliness and sweetness, awesomeness and beauty, majesty and mercy, sovereignty and parentality; Saura-ṭējah and Saumya-ḍīptī, Chandramasa-jyōtīh, Sun-like blaze and splendour and Moon-like softness and — The late Sir Ahmad Husain, Amin Jung, M.A., LL.D., K.C.S.I., (of Hyderabad Dn.) suggested the following renderings: Al-Mubiyy, the Supreme Maker (Brahma); Al-Muhammad, the Supreme Mender (Vishnu); Al-Mumīt, the Supreme Ender (Rudra); Al-Samaď, the One Eternal Becoming (Sanātana or Shāshvāta).

radiance; kalyāna-guṇa-s and bhīma-guṇa-s, beneficial and terrific (punitive) attributes.¹

¹ In the Jewish Kabala (Qabbālah), the attributes of the Supreme Being, which correspond to types or aspects or kinds of creation, are called the ten Sephiroth, emanations of Adam Kadmon (Adam-i-Qadim), the Ancient Man, the Eternal and Infinite Macrocöm. The ten are: The Crown, Wisdom, Prudence, Magnificence, Severity, Beauty, Victory, Glory, Foundation, Empire. Wisdom is called Jeh or Jäh; Prudence, Jehovah; Severity, Elohim; Magnificence, El; Victory and Glory, Sabaoth; Empire or Dominion, Adonai. Other names and aspects are mentioned, as, Sephira, the Androgyne (Ardhānāri-Īshvara, in Skt.); Hakama, Wisdom; Binah, Intelligence; Hesed, Mercy; Geburah or Eloha, Justice; Ṭiphereth, Beauty; Nețzah, Firmness; Hođ, Splendor; Jesoḏ, Foundation. Hakama, Hesed, Nețzah are the three male Sephiroth, known as the Pillar of Mercy; Binah, Geburah, Hođ, are feminine, and named the Pillar of Judgment; the four Sephiroth of the Centre, Kether, Ṭiphereth, Jesoḏ, and Malkuth, are called the Middle Pillar. (H. P. Blavatsky, Isis Unveiled, II, 205, 213, 215).

From Zoroastrian scriptures, especially Ahura Mazda-Yasht the learned have made up lists of twenty, fifty-three, eighty-one, and one hundred and one, names of Ahūra Mazda, which is the most famous name; as Allah is the most famous of the hundred names of God given in Qurān. Some of the more eminent names are: Frakshtya, the Sustainer (cf. Vedic S-u-prkṣa); Avițanya, All-pervading, (V. Abhi-țanya); Vispa-vohu (Vishva), All-Good; Asha-vahishta, Supreme Truth; Khraṭu, Supreme Knowledge, (V. Kraṭu, Persian Khirad; Chishti, Supreme Wisdom or Consciousness, (V. Chit); Spāna, Supreme Holiness; Sévishta, Almighty; Ava-nēma, Invincible; Vispa-hishas, All-seeing; Ḟāṭa, Creator, (Skt., Ḟ āta); Thrāṭa, Preserver, (Ṭrāṭa);
Confucius says:

"Yang and Yin, male and female, strong and weak, rigid and tender, heaven and earth, sun and moon, thunder and lightning, wind and rain, cold and warmth, good and evil, high and low, righteousness and humaneness, ... the interplay of Opposite 媒体报道（Darshā, (Dūra-drashā), Far-seeing; Spashtā, Watcher; Pātā, Saviour; Znātā, (Jñātā), All-knowing; Isē-Kshatḥroyoṣṭema, Omnipotent Ruler; Vispo-van, Conqueror of All; Vispa-ṭash, Architect of the Universe; Ahurā, Lord of Life, (V. Asu-rah); Mazaḏā, Lord of the Great Creation, Lord of Ideation and Wisdom (V. Mahaṭ-dhā); and so on. These Zoroastrian names, corresponding Skt. words and Eng. explanations, have been kindly supplied by Dr. I. J. S. Taraporevala, Principal of the M. F. Cama Aṭhorvan Institute, Angheri (near Bombay); now retired and living in Bombay.

Other epithets for the Mystery, that are to be found in the old books are; Lā-Sharīki-lah, A-Dvitiyā, Without-Another; Lā-nidī-lah, A-Samah, the Without-Equal; Lā-Misli-lah, A-Saḍrshah, the Incomparable; Lā-Ziddi-lah, A-Praṭi-dvam-dvah, A-Sapāṭnāh, An-Anyah, A-Praṭi-pakshah, Without-Oponent; Al-Ghanī, Aṭma-Trpṭah, A-Sahāyāh, Self-sufficing, Self-complete, Unsupported, Non-dependent; Al-Hayy, Chin-mayah, All-Consciousness; Al-Qayyūm, Nītyah, Shāshvāṭah, Ever-lasting; Al-Kul, Sarvah, All; Chaitanyam, Pure Awareness; Praṇah, Life in and of All; Shuḍḍhah, Kḥālis, Pure; Al-Aḥḍ, Ėkah, the One.

All these names, that have been given to the Supreme Spirit, the Mystery which runs the Universe, by the various scriptures, are mentioned here to draw attention to the identity of thought of all religions, as to the attributes of that Mystery, the Eternal, Infinite, Universal Principle of all Life and Consciousness, give it what Principles constitutes the universe.”¹ “The final principle of an undivided One is Tai Chi, the great ridge-beam; out of it develop Yang and Yin”².

“Ri is reason, or law, Ki is matter; the two give rise to all phenomena, physical and spiritual... There are two phases of Ki—Yin and Yo (Chinese Yang). The latter light, is positive, active, male; the former dark, negative, passive, female. All phenomena owe their origin to the action, reaction, interaction, and counter-action of these forces... Sometimes Yin is spoken of as water, Yo as fire;”³ in Skt., agni-shomiyam jagati, “the world is made of fire and water, heat and moisture.”

name we may. Indeed, all names, in every language and every religion are His.

Yār-e mārā har Zamān nām o nishānē digar ast.
Kulle yaumin hūfī-ēshān
yak nishānē digar ast. (S.)

(In new and splendid state
He shines forth every day,
Bearing new names and forms Seeming opposed, yet One),

Navo navo bhavaṭi jāyamānah
ahnām kēṭub. (V.)
(Ever a-New doth rise the Flag of day.)

³ Inazo Nitobe, Ibid., 345.
Laotze says:

"Tao is divided into a principal Pair of Opposites, Yang and Yin. Yang is warmth, light, masculinity; also heaven. Yin is cold, darkness, femininity; also earth. From the Yang force arises Schen, the celestial portion of the human soul; from the Yin force arises Kwei or Poh, the earthly part. As a micro-cosm, man is in some degree a reconciler of the Pairs of Opposites. Heaven, Earth, Man" (God-Nature-Man, Ḫšvārə-Ja da-Jīva) "form the three chief elements of the world, the Sā-tsai" ¹ (Samsāra, World-Process).

The Greek philosopher Empedocles (circa 440 B.C.), "extolled by antiquity as also orator, statesman, physicist, physician and poet, even as prophet and worker of miracles", expressly enounces Love

¹ C. G. Jung, Psychological Types, 267, quotes this from Lao-tse’s Tao-teh-king. He also quotes Goethe’s Faust, to illustrate the familiar idea of man’s dual nature, his two selves, higher and lower, altruist and egoist:

Two souls, alas! within my bosom dwell;
The one doth hanker after love’s delights,
And clings with clutching organs to the world;
The other, mightily, from earthly dust
Would mount on high to the ancestral fields.

Many other Eastern and Western poets have expressed the idea more powerfully. Upanishads speak of ḍvās upa rṇā..., ‘two birds dwelling in this tree of life,’ the human body.
and Hate as the two ultimate dynamic uniting and separating principles.\(^1\)

Another, earlier, Heraclitus (circa 500 B.C.) says:
"God is Day-Night, Winter-Summer, Love-Hate, War-Peace, Repletion-Want, Heat-Cold, Death-Life, Youth-Age, Waking-Sleep, Creation-Destruction."

Har kamālē rā zawālē, har zawālē rā kamālē.
(Persian proverb).

(Every virtue has its vice;
Every vice its virtue, too).

Subūt-i-shay ba zidd-i-shay. (Persian philosophical maxim).
(Each thing is proven by its opposite.)

Omnis determinatio est negatio.
(All determination is negation of the opposite.)

Sarv-ārambhā hi āshōṇa ḍhūmēna-agnir-iv-āvṛtāh. (G.)
N-āty-anṭam guṇa-vāt kin-chiṭ,
n-āty-anṭam ṭosha-vāt ṭaṭhā. (Mbh.)
(As fire doth carry smoke within itself,
So every action carries a defect;
Naught is there wholly good or wholly bad.)

\(^1\) Schwegler, History of Philosophy, (translated by J. H. Stirling), art. 'Empedocles'.
Life is a perpetual choice between endless pairs of ‘rival ills.’ Right choice, which will, in any given time, place, and circumstance, bring most happiness and least pain, which will reconcile antagonisms, is the choice inspired by the Spirit which stands permanently in the Middle between the two extremes of Nature; which impartially ‘tastes and tests all things, and holds fast that which is good,’ most good, viz., It-Self; which always avoids excess, excessive attachments, by loves or by hates, to the objects of the senses, things other than Universal Self. Such seems to be the teaching of all religions and all sciences.

Religion is as necessary as Science. As said before, so long as human beings suffer from, and fear, pain and death, and look before and after, and think about such things, so long will human heart and head demand, and will not be denied, the solace that only religion can give. When anguish wrings the heart, then we overwhelmedly realize that it

If the reader cares to pursue the question—Why and How Duality, Trinity, etc., arise within the One; Multiplicity in Unity; Change within the Changeless; he may took into the present writer’s The Science of Peace, or, for briefer statement, into the second and third chapters of The Science of the Self. Endeavour is made there to expound ancient teachings, on the subject, in terms of modern western philosophy and psychology, as far as possible.
shall not profit a man anything if he gain the whole world but lose his own soul. If they are not given true and scientific religion by the philanthropic and the wise, then men will inevitably swallow false and superstitious religion given to them by priestcraft.

Only those who cannot 'look before and after', who cannot think at all about such things, as animals, such have no craving for religion. Also those who have thought very deeply and very far; examined all the before and all the after; seen all there is to see; found the Eternal Now and the Infinite Here, the Ever-present and the Omnipresent, between the Before and the After; found the secret in their own Infinite Self—they also no longer crave religion. They have achieved the purpose of Religion. Perfection of Religion alone can abolish need for it. At the present stage of human evolution, such perfected souls are not many. The vast mass of mankind feel that need acutely, intensely, perpetually. That is why Religion survives. If it decays and dies in one form, it forthwith takes a new birth in another.

Yas-ṭu mūdha-ṭamo Ṽokē, yash-cha pūḍṭheḥ param gaṭah,
Ḍvau imau sukham ēḍhēṭe, klishyaṭi-anṭariṭo janah.
(He who is wholly dull, without a mind; He who has gone beyond the reach of mind, And found that which gives being to the mind, And is established in the Mid 'twixt Pairs; These two are well; those restless, 'tween, are ill.)

As a western writer has observed, "mankind has one innate, irrepressible, craving, that must be satisfied . . . yearning after proof of immortality."

The end of Religion is to transcend Religion. When the end has been found, means are dropped:

Nis-trai-gunya pathi vicharaato ko vidhiih ko nishedhah. (SHANKAR-ACHARYA).

(The soul which finds the path that goes beyond The 'three' that bind, knowledge-desire-and-act, It hath no further need for 'Do-s' and 'Don't-s'.)

Rab ras Rab shud, tamam Rab ra Rab nist;
Har ja Khurshed ast, ain-jaa shab nist.
Sufi shud nist, nist ra mazhab nist;
Baa Yar rasidah digar matlab nist. (S.)

(Who findeth God becometh wholly God; And unto God there is no other God. Where the Sun shines, can there be any night? The ' knower ' is non-est; his lower self, Of low desires, has been effaced now; To such 'non-est', Religion is 'non-est'.)
He who hath found the Loved One, hath no more Craving or need for any Object left.

If it be true, as it obviously is true, that the human heart has an ineradicable conviction that there is Something beyond this life, and yearns to know about It and Its relation with this life; if it be true, as it evidently is true, that science is for life, and not life for science; then surely man cannot and will not accept as final, the view that any possible conflict between Science and Religion is incurable. Such a view means that Truth is self-contradictory, that Science is not consistent in all its parts. But this cannot be. It must not be. Truth, Science, Veda, Haqiqat, Mā'rifat, Gnosis, Jñāna, (all meaning the same thing), must be all-inclusive, all-explaining, all-reconciling. Otherwise, it is not Truth. This common conviction shows forth from behind the most hostile-seeming words.

The man of modern style piques himself on eating, drinking, bathing, sleeping, dressing, housing, travelling, doing all things, in short, in the name of Science and Law. The man of older style has been trying to do all these same things in the name of God and Religion. Yet the two modes are not antagonistic, not even really different. 'In the name of God' means, among other things, 'In the name of God's Nature'; and, therefore, of the Laws of that Nature in all its departments, physical as well as superphysical or psychical; whereas 'in the name of science and law' means, at present, 'in the name of the laws of only the physical department of Nature as recognised and utilised in man-made laws'. Science, in the limited sense of physical science, is imperfect religion, is one part of religion. Religion, in the full sense, is larger science, is the Whole of Science. We owe debts and duties not only to our own and our fellow-creatures' physical bodies, but also to the 'souls', the 'superphysical bodies'. The rules of Religion, i.e., of the Larger Science, enable us, at least ought to enable us, to discharge all these wider debts and duties. They should also secure to us, all sinless joys which are rightly due to us.

_Yaṭo Abhy-udāya-Nis-shrēyasa-sīḍḥhiḥ, saḥ Dharma._

(Vaishēshika Sūtra).

(Religion, Dharma, is that which brings Joy, In the Life Here, and the Hereafter, too.)

Religion has been described as 'the Command or Revelation of God'. This only means, in other words, 'the Laws of God's Nature,' as revealed to us by the labours, intellectual, intuitional, inspirational, of the seers and scientists of all religions and all nations. The obeying of these should obviously bring happiness in this life as well as the life beyond this life.

We have heard of the three R's long enough. This fourth R', of genuine Universal Religion, is more important than them all, and ought to be added to them everywhere, in every school and college. But it has to be carefully discovered and ascertained first. It behoves all sincere educators to help in this work, by applying the scientific method of ascertaining 'agreements amidst differences.' What are the elements common to the great living religions? What are the agreements between them?

We may also call that method, in terms of the democracy in vogue at present, the method of majority-rule. Those truths which all the great living religions vote for—they should be prominently taught to the younger generation.

Some people, bewildered by the rival bigotries, fanatic cries, and bitter hostilities, indulged in by misguided persons, in the name of religion, ask: What right have we to impose upon our children, such evil things, such religions as create enmity between man and man, darken and make foolish the minds, and blind the eyes, of all? If religion were dispensable, the question might be answered readily in the negative: We have no right. But it is not dispensable, as indicated before. We have therefore to answer the question by saying that we have as much right, nay, as much imperative duty, to teach religion, as we have to teach arithmetic, geography, history, science. Nay, more right and duty; for these other things, however desirable, however useful, are not so indispensable for comfort of soul. We teach these other things to our children for their good, out of our love for them. And we try to teach what we have ascertained, by our best lights, to be good and true and useful for them. If we make mistakes, it is because we are human and liable to err. Because food now and then disagrees, we cannot stop all eating. We must make only greater efforts to ensure its healthiness of quality and quantity. So in Religion we must make the greatest efforts to ascertain what is most indubitable, most in accord with the best science, and, more than all else, is most approved and agreed in by all concerned, and most likely to promote good-will and active sympathy between all human beings. This is the very and only way to allay those dazing and amazing cries and bigotries and hostilities.

Let us examine the matter in another fashion. It is indisputable that the vast majority of human beings are born into their religions, inherit them, and cling to them exactly in the same way and for the same reasons as they do to inherited property. If a new-born Muslim child and a new-born Hindu child were exchanged and brought up, the one in Hindu, the other in Muslim, surroundings, they would grow up and feel and think and behave as Hindu and as Muslim respectively, and not as Muslim and Hindu. The same would be the case if the landholder's baby were exchanged with a banker's or a peasant's. At the same time, it is equally indisputable that anyone and everyone can withdraw his faith from any religion and put it in any other, whenever he likes; can put off one and put on another at will. Yet also, the vast majority of human beings crave, indeed everyone in the secret depths of his heart somewhere yearns, for religion in its deepest sense—of contact with, assurance of, support by, refuge and rest in, the Immortal. All this clearly signifies that Religion is necessary to man; that no particular form of religion is indispensable; that there are two alternatives open to us, either to reject all religions or to accept all religions; that both are impracticable; and that, therefore, the only practical, as also best, most satisfying, and wise course, is the third alternative, to sift out the elements of Essential Religion from the non-essential (though, for their time, place, and circumstances, useful) forms, of all the great religions extant, and feed the younger generation with those vital grains, instructing them that the husks are useful only for preserving and storing the grains in, and not for eating and assimilating.

Some others hold that the work that Religion did, or was supposed to do, in the past, and did badly, if at all, has been taken up and is now being done by Philosophy, Science, Law, and also Art, in three or four separate departments of life; and, therefore, no Religion, old, reformed, or new, is needed any longer. The reply to this is that man is not a trinity only, in three separate parts, but is essentially a Unity; something is needed to co-ordinate, to unify, to organise, to articulate with each other, Philosophy, Science, Law. That is Religion 're' and 'legere', to bind together anew, again, the hearts of all, to each other, and back again to God, from Whom the temptations of earth cause those hearts to stray away. Vējāṅṭa-Ṭasawwuf-Gnosis is all three; it is a Religion which includes the essentials of Philosophy, Science, Art; or, if we prefer it so, it is a Philosophy which synthesises Religion, Science, Art. We should call to mind again, here, that the latest speculation of the most renowned scientists tends to reduce all matter to atoms and super-atoms, parcāmāṇus, electrons, protons, neutrons, plutons, positrons, etc.; these to electrical energy; that, finally, to Mind-force; (pp. 22-30 supra). 1

The most passionate advocate of the utmost possible 'liberty' for the younger generation, who urges that it should be allowed to grow up according to its own 'free-will', its own inner promptings, inclinations, likes and dislikes, still unavoidably, helplessly, actively teaches something to the young; and that something is necessarily what he thinks best and most useful for them to learn! Bolshevik Communists of Russia are teaching 'Communism' to their young, most intensively; Fascists of Italy, 'Fascism'; Democrats of Britain, U.S.A. France, 'Democracy'. Each, in words, professes 'liberty' for youth; but largely relies for its success, on imbuing youth with its own ideas! The element of truth, in the plea that 'the younger generation

1 Aristotle defines meta-physic, meta-ta-physica, 'that which is after physics, which transcends, is beyond, the physical or material, as prote-philosophia, 'the first and fundamental philosophy'—the same thing as 'the foundation of all sciences'. Obviously the Science of the Infinite ranks before, and is the basis of, all Sciences of the Finite. Compare,

Sa Brahma-Vidyām sarva-vidyā-praṭīshthām
Ātharvāya jyēṣṭha-puṭrāya prāha. (Up.)
(Brahmā declared unto his son Ātharva,
The Science of the Self, the Infinite—
Foundation, source, and synthesiser too,
Of all the sciences of finite things.)
should be allowed to grow up, in liberty, freely, according to its own inner promptings, inclinations, likes and dislikes—the truth in this, and a very important truth it is, is that, each individual of the new generation, should be not only allowed, but carefully educated and trained, for the vocation which is most in accord with his particular temperament, his likes and dislikes, his tastes and interests. But over and above this special education, there should always be, for all individuals of the new generation, general essential cultural education in the four R's. Of course, after the new generation has attained its majority, and stands on its mental as well as physical feet, it will be at liberty to change, modify, discard, forget, replace with something else, any or every part, essential or non-essential, general or special, which it has been taught during its minority. As a fact, we see hundreds of persons changing their religions everyday; as they change their 'minds' and 'parties' and 'schools of thought', in politics, history, science, philosophy, art, etc. Indeed, changes have become so numerous and so frequent that we have a maddening welter of 'isms' today. The reason is that, in all these departments of thought and life, clear and definite, deliberate, knowledge of essentials, of psychological and philosophical basic principles, fundamental facts, laws, needs of human nature, has been largely lost sight of. To revive memory of Essentials is the only cure everywhere.

¹ Fuller exposition of this subject is attempted in The Science of Social Organisation, by the present writer.

It has been said before that the new proclamation, of Universal Religion, has to be made on 'democratic' lines, i.e., the lines of 'majority-rule', speaking broadly and generally, (not quite fully and with scientific exactitude, which will be attempted latter). On these lines, those truths and practices which receive, not only the greatest number of, but unanimous, votes from the living religions, those beliefs and observances on which all are agreed, should obviously be regarded as constituting Universal Religion. That there is agreement between the great religions, that all teach the same essential truths, their promulgators themselves are all agreed. We have their clear assurances on this point.

Upanishats say:

Gavām anēka-varṇānām
kshīrasya aṣṭi ēka-varṇatā;
Kshīra-vaṭ pashyaṭe Jñānam,
linginas ṯu gavām yaṭhā. (U.)

(Cows are of many different colours, but
The milk of all is of one color, white;
So the proclaimers who proclaim the Truth
Use many varying forms to put it in,
But yet the Truth enclosed in all is one.)

Jāma-é saḍ-rang z-ān khumm-ē safā
Sāda-o yak-rang gashtah chūn ziya. (S.)
(Jesus put many cloths of many hues
Into one jar, and out of it they came
With all their hues washed off, all clean and white,
As seven-colored rays merge in white light.)

Krṣhṇa says, and not once but twice:
Mama varṭma anu-varṭantē
manushyāh, Pārṭha!, sarvashah. (G.)
(To but One Goal are marching everywhere,
All human beings, though they may seem to walk
On paths divergent; and that Goal is I,
The Universal Self, Self-Consciousness.)

At āturqu il-Allāhi kan nufusi banī Ādama. (H.)
(As many souls, so many ways to God.)

Ṭrayī, Sāṅkhyam, Yogah,
Pashuṭi-maṭam, Vaishṇavam, itī,
Prabhinnē prasṭhānē, param
idam, adah paṭhyam iti cha,
Ruchinām vai-chiṭryād,
ṛju-kutila-nānā-paṭha-jushām
Nṛṇām Eko gamyas-Ṭvam asi, payasām arṇava iva. (Shiva-Mahima Stūṭi,) (Vedâ, and Sânkhya, Yoga, Shaiva-view,
And Vaishnava, and many others such,
Men follow as they variously incline;
Some thinking this is best; some others, that;
Yet thou art the One Goal of all those ways,
Some straight and easy, others crooked, rough,
As of the countless streams, the one vast sea.)

Yaṭh-éndriyaiḥ pṛṭhag-ḍvāraiḥ, artho bahu-guṇ-āśrayah
Éko, nānā īyaṭē, taṭ-vaṭ
Bhagavān, śāstra-varṭmabhīh.

(Bhāg., III, xxxii, 33.)

(E’en as the several senses apprehend
The different qualities of the same thing,
So, many lines of searching sciences
Show aspects, numerous, of the One Lord.)

Yaṭhā nāḍyah, syanḍamānāḥ, samuḍrē
Aṣṭam gachhanṭi, nāma-rūpē vihāya,
Taṭhā vidvān, nāma-rupād vimuktah,
Parāṭ param paḍam upaiṭi divyam. (Uph.)

(As streaming rivers pass into the sea,
Abandoning all separate name and form,
So, he who sees the One casts off all name
And form, and merges in the State Beyond.)
Buddha said, on one occasion:
(Just as, O monks!, the rivers Yamuna
And Gangā, Achiravaṭi, Sharabhū,
And Mahī, when they fall into the Sea,
Lose distinct names and forms, and are, thence-forward,
Known as One Ocean only; even so,
All men of all four classes, when they come
Into the Doctrine and the Discipline
Of the Taṭhā-gaṭa ‘who knows the Truth,’
And pass from many homes to Homelessness,
They lose distinctive names, clans, nāma-gotra,
And are, thenceforward, known as Bhikshu only.)

Udāna, V. 5.

This is “the one far-off,” yet also always very near, “divine event to which the whole creation moves” perpetually.

Zoroaster teaches:

“And we worship the former religions of the world devoted to righteousness.” (Z., Yasna, XVI. 3; S.B.E., xxi, 225-6.)

Aṭ toī anghéṅ Saoshyanṭo ḍasyūnām. (Gāthā, 48, 12)

1 One of the Sūfi names of Allāh is Lā-Makān, the Homeless, i.e., not limited, by any house or walls. Bhikshu, ‘beggar’, ‘ascetic’, stands for the Bhikshu-Sangha, ‘community of ascetics,’ Buddha’s followers.
(Even the ḍasyus, tribes uncivilised,
Will have Saoshyanṭas, apostles, sent
To give them teaching and look after them.)

Kung-fu-tse (Confucius) was a younger contemporary of Lao-tse. Buḍḍha lived and taught in India, the younger sister of China, in those same days. China has adopted Buḍḍha together with Lao-tse and Confucius as her trinity of great Teachers. Confucius says:

"I only hand on; I cannot create new things."

Buḍḍha and Jina speak of past and future Buḍḍhas (i.e., the Enlightened Ones) and Tirthan-karas (i.e., 'makers of the fords or bridges' by which men may cross safely to salvation) who reveal the same fundamental truths, again and again, for the benefit of humanity, only revivifying, confirming, enforcing them by the fire and fervour of their lives. Bible, O.T., says:

"Is there anything whereof it may be said, See, this is new? It hath been already of old time, which was before us ... There is no new thing under the sun." (B., Eccles.)

Christ (i.e., 'the anointed with Divine Wisdom') says:

"I come not to destroy the law or the prophets, but to fulfil them." (B.)
"Every Scripture inspired of God is also profitable, for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for instruction, which is in righteousness, that the man of God may be complete, furnished completely unto every good work." (B., 2 Timothy.)

Great Teachers confirm, at most supplement, not supplant, one another.

Kṛṣṇa says that the teaching he is giving to Arjuna was given by Vivasvān to Manu, by Manu to Ikṣvāku, and then by many Ṛshis, age after age. All is always present in the Memory of God, the Omni-scient, Omni-potent, Omni-present Universal Self, the One Principle of all Life and Consciousness.

Évam param-para-prāptam imam rājarshayo viḍuh: Sa év-āyam Mayā, tē-(a)dya, yogah proktah, paratapā!

(The royal saints, the king-philosophers, Of ancient days, from one unto another Did pass this Wisdom on, from age to age; That same eternal Yoga, Ancient Wisdom, Have I declared to thee, this day, to strengthen Thy mind and heart for Life’s perpetual Strife.)

Muhammad (the ‘praise-worthy’, Paigham-bar, ‘message-bearer’, Rasūl, ‘sent’ by the Spirit) says;

Innabū la-fī zubūr il-awwalīn;
Le kullé qaumin hād;
In min ummaṭin illā khalā fi hā nazīr.
Lā nosarrīqo baînā ahaḍīm min rusuleh.
Wa mā arsalnā min qablikā mir-rāsūlin Illā nūhi ilaihē annahū, lā ilāhā illā Anā, fa'buḍūn. (Q.)

(This that I am now uttering unto you,
The Holy Qurān—it is to be found Within the ancient Seers' writings too:
For Teachers have been sent to every race,
Of human beings no community
Is left without a warner and a guide.
And aught of difference we do not make—
For disagreement there is none 'twixt them—
Between these Prophets. All that have been sent,
Have been so sent but One Truth to proclaim—
"I, verily the I Al(l)-One, am God.
There is no other God than I, [the Self,
The Universal all-pervading Self],
And I alone should be adored by all ".)

Qurān makes this further quite unmistakeable:
Wa mā arsalnā mir-jasūlin bi-lessānī quamehī.

Wa kazālīka auhainā ilaika Qurānān A'rabi-yal leṭunzera umm-al-qorā wa man haulahā...... Wa lau ja-a'llnaho Qurānān a'jamiyal la qālū lau la fussilat āyātohu. (Q).

(Teachers are sent to each race that they may Teach it in its own tongue, so there may be
No doubt as to the meaning in its mind.
An Arabic Qurān is thus revealed,
That Macca and the cities round may learn
With ease the Truth put in the words they know.
For had we made them in a foreign tongue
They surely would have made objection thus—
"Why have not these revealings been made clear?"

The obvious significance of this remarkable text is that the essentials are common to all religions: that Truth is universal and not the monopoly of any race or teacher; that non-essentials vary with time, place, and circumstance; that the same fundamental truths have been revealed by God in different scriptures, in different languages, through different persons born in different nations.¹

¹ Muhammad calls previous revelations, through earlier prophets, also by the name Qurān (from qira, to speak, to cry; Skt. kr, to do, cre-ate, express by word-sound).
He is said to have declared, kḥāṭim-un-nabūaṭ, ‘I am the last of the prophets.’ Others read the word as kḥāṭam ‘seal’. Some over-zealous fanatical persons, with their usual tendency to excess and extremism, interpret the expression as ‘the closing seal’, signifying that the line of prophet is closed, that there is to be no other prophet at all in future. The true meaning, in view of the other declarations of Muhammad (Q. and H.), above quoted, whether we read the word as kḥāṭim or kḥāṭam, is obviously this, viz., ‘I am only the last, \textit{at the present time}, of a long line of prophets and I only put the seal of confirmation upon what my predecessors in prophetship have declared and taught; I do not say anything new’. As Jesus the Christ said, ‘I come only to fulfil the law and the prophets.’
And the Prophet adds the positive counsel:
Kul ūlā'ā elā kalemaṭīn sawā'im ba'īn-anā wa ba'īnā-kum. (Q.)

(Let all of us ascend towards, and meet Together on, the common ground of those High truths and principles which we all hold.)

Inn-allazīnā ʾāmanu, w-allazīnā hādū, wan-nasārā, was-sabīnā, man ʾāmana b-Illahe, wal-yaum-il-ākhīra, wa āʾmela sālehan fāla-hum ajruhum inḍa
Rabbehim, walā kḥaufun alaihim wa lāhim yahzalūn
(Q. ii 62).

(Verily, all who faithfully believe
In God, and Day of Judgment, and do good,
Be they Jews, Christians, Sabians, or Muslims,
They shall have their reward from the Lord God.
There is no fear for them, nor shall they grieve.)

(We do believe that which has been revealed
To us, and also what has been revealed
To you. Your God and our God is One,
For sure; and unto Him we both submit.)
(Q. xxix, 49),

Wa ṭasēmu ba hubba Ilāhī jamīyan, wa la ṭafarraqu. (Q).

(Cling, all, to the strong rope of Love Divine —Love for each other, and of the One God—
And do not think of separation ever.)
So too does Vēda enjoin on all;
Samāṇī va ākūṭih, samāṇā hṛḍayāṇi vah,
Samāṇam-astu vo mano, yaṭhā vah su-saha-saṭi.
Samāṇī prapā, saha vo anna-bhāgah,
Samāṇe yokṭré saha vo yunajmi,
Samyacho Agnim saparyata,
Arā nābhim iva abhiṣah.
San-gachchhaḍhvam, sam-vaḍḍhvam,
Sam vo manāmsi jānaṭām. (V.).

(Your heart, mind, object—may all these be One.
So shall you prosper, all, and live in peace;
In common be your food and drink and work;
God harnesses you all to the same yoke;
The sacrificial Fire of Spirit tend
Ye all with one intent, as spokes the nave,
Walk ye together on the Path of Life,
And speak ye all with voice unanimous,
And may your minds all know the Self-Same Truth.)

"Be ye all of one mind." (B., Peter, First Epistle.)
"We, being many, are one bread and one body, for we are all partakers of that One Bread." (Eucharist Ritual).

"Seek to be in harmony with all your neighbours;
live in amity with your brethren." (C., Shu King.)
"Be ye all like-minded, compassionate, loving as brethren, tender-hearted, humble-minded, not rendering evil for evil, or reviling for reviling, but contrariwise blessing . . . Be of one mind, live in peace. (B., Corinthians.) God is no respecter of persons. But in every nation he that feareth Him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him. (B., Acts.) There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female; for ye are all one in Christ Jesus.” (B., Galatians).

"He that doeth the will of God, the same is my brother and my sister and my mother " (to whatever creed or race he may belong). (B.)

Christianity, through the mouth of Justin the Martyr, declares:

"Whatever things have been rightly said, among all men, are the property of us Christians.”

Sufis say,

Faqaṭ Ɂafāwạt hai nāmã hi kā
Daṟ asl sab ēka hī hain, yāro!
Jo ā-bi-sāfī ke mauj mēn hai
Usī kā Ɂalwā Ɂabāb mēn hai.

(But the names differ, beloved!
All in Truth are only one!
In the sea-wave and the bubble Shines the lustre of one Sun!)

1 Quoted by J. E. Carpenter, The Place of Christianity in the Religions of the World.
Rūh bā a’ql o i’lm dānād zīst,
Rūh rā Ṭāzī wa Ṭūrkī n-īst. (S., ʿAttār).
Rūh bā a’ql-āst o bā i’lmast yār,
Rūh rā bā (Ḥindū o Muslim) chekār. (S., Rūmī)
(By loving wisdom doth the soul know life.
What has it got to do with senseless strife
Of Ḥindū, Muslim, Christian, Arab, Turk ?)

Vēdic Scripture repeatedly declares that the soul has no creed, caste, color, race, or sex.

Indeed only the names, the words, differ. The thing meant is the same. Allāh means God, Akbar means greatest; Ishvara or Ḫēva means God, Parama or Mahā means greatest; Allāh-Akbar literally means Param-Eshvara or Mahā-Ḥēva. Zoroastrian Ahura-Mazdāo (equivalent to Samskrṭ Asura-Mahaḍ-dhā), also means the ‘wisest’ and the ‘greatest’ God. Rahīm and Shiva both mean the (passively) Benvvolent and Merciful; Rahmān and Shankara both mean the (actively) Beneficent. Ḫāsa and Abd both mean servant; Qādir and Bhagavān both mean Him who is possessed of Qudrat, Bhaga, Aishvarya, Might, Lordliness; Bhagavān Dās is absolutely the same as Abdu-ul-Qādir, Servant of God the Almighty.

Such is a very simple but very clear illustration of the fact that differences between religions are differences only of words, names, languages; or of non-essential superficial forms; and sometimes of emphasis, on this aspect of the Truth, or of Virtue, or of Duty, rather than another; never, of Essential Ideas. Founders of Religions, i.e., Re-proclaimers, in new forms, of the One Universal Religion, have laid greater stress, now on this, now on that other, aspect of the One Religion, as needed by the special times, places, circumstances, in which they lived. The Essential Religion, Viṣṇya, Irfān, Wisdom, is eternal, universal, im-personal, all-personal, un-changing, in substance—like the facts and laws of mathematics; the ṭa papas, 'fire and fervour', 'blazing heart-energy', 'passionate compassion', 'ascetic glow and inspiration', of the 'magnetic personality' of each Re-proclaimer, is new, is his fresh 'personal' contribution, and gives a new form to the eternal substance.

In other words, the Founders, so-called, of new religions, are really only Re-proclaimers of the same Essential Truths, in new languages, new forms, amidst new settings, new conditions of life. Hence they may be said to be Re-form-ers only. There is never any really new Religion (in the singular); but always only the One Eternal Universal Religion, which is the Common Core and Essence of all particular religions. These are new religions (in the plural) in this sense, that, after each Re-proclaiming Re-former, his followers have gradually built up new rites, ceremonies, forms, around that core-teaching, in consequence of new conditions of new times. Thus each particular religion has put on the appearance of newness; and the more so because the new ritual gradually overpowers, covers up, hides away completely, the Ancient Core; so that the Means swallow the End, and begin themselves to pose as the end. The case of new civilisations, which grow up and decay side by side with new religions, is the same. The language, dress, food, housing, social conventions, manners-and-morals, marriage forms, domestic ways, art-forms, recreations, etc., of each, are more or less different from those of others; yet the essential urges, needs, appetites, mental and bodily faculties, which are exercised in, and satisfied by, each, are the same. The God in Man, and in all Living Beings, fulfils Him-Self in ever-varying ways; in every way is He Him-Self fulfilled.

To some minds, the work of pursuing, discovering, clasping to their heart, such agreements, is a great joy; and the opposite process of dwelling upon differences alone, a sheer pain.

Khush-τar ān bāshaḍ ke sirrē ḏil-barān
Gufta āyaḍ ḏar haḏise dīgarān. (S.)
(It is a great delight to find One's own thought in another mind—
The secret of the Lovely One,
Disclosed in others’ narration,
Giving Him meed of highest praise
In delicately worded ways).

Iṣṭi nāṇā pra-sankhyānam
ṭāṭtvānām kavibhih kṛtam;
Sarvam nyāyyam yuktī-maṭ-ṭvāṭ, viḍushām kim asāmpraṭam? (Bh.)

(In varying ways the sages have described
The same unvarying and essential truths;
There is no real conflict ‘twixt them all;
The knowers know the way to reconcile.
Many the words and ways in which the wise
Have tried to teach One Truth to all Mankind.
Each way, each word, is right in its own place.
There is no conflict ‘twixt them all at all.
The sages see and say the Same in each.)

The most beautiful face cannot see and appreciate its own beauty until it looks into a mirror. As Sūfis say, God had to look into the mirror of Non-Being, Aḍam, A-saṭ, Shūnya, in order to behold and realise the infinitely varied beauties that lay hidden in Him-Self. A’niyut-i-haqiqi, Ātm-ādvaita-śaṭṭā, the Truth of the Self’s Oneness, Ownness, is realised only by means of Ghairiyat-i-dābārī, Iṭar-ābhsā, Dvaita-mithyāṭva, the Falsehood, the Illusion, of hypothetical, suppositional,
Otherness, which has no real existence.
Dar āyīna gar-che khud-numāī bāshaḍ,
Paiwaṣṭa ze khwēsh-ṭan judāi bāshaḍ,
Khud ṭā ba lihās-i-ghair diḍan a’jāb asṭ,
K-iū b-ul a’jābī kār-i-Khudāi bāshaḍ. (S.)
(The vacant looking-glass doth show the Self,
Yet in that Self there is an Otherness!
Marvel! In mask of Other to see Self;
This shining miracle of miracles.
Than God's Own Self None-Other can achieve!)

The Play, Krīdā, Laib and Lahw, of God is an Inter-play of love, Ishq-bāzī, Rāsa-līlā, between God's Self and His reflected image, an-Other; the same yet not the same; indeed reversed. We cannot realise the full significance of our own thoughts until we see them reflected in another mind. That is why speakers wish to be heard, authors wish to be read, artists wish to be appreciated, by others. To cognise an idea through the veil of one language only, is to see it with one eye only, as it were, from one standpoint, in one perspective only. To see it through another language also, is to see it with both eyes from many angles of vision, through a stereoscope. A new fullness of meaning breaks out from the two sets of words, and stands forth in clear relief, almost independent of all words. Communion between two friends brought up in two different cultures, but able to realise the underlying identity of the spirit of refinement and enrichment of life, is more interesting than that between friends brought up in the same culture. It has the charm of a more diverse-sided novelty, of travel in a new country, full of friendly hospitality, with scenes, foods, drinks, dresses, manners, flowers, fragrances, as beautiful, as tasteful, as delicious, as gracious, as those of one's own, yet also different. That is why God's One-ly Self, to vary the mono-tony, broke forth into infinite multi-tony.¹

\[
\text{\textquoteleft Tad eva rupam raman}i\text{\textquoteleft}ya\text{'\textquoteleft}ya\text{\textquoteright} }
\]
\[
\text{\textquoteleft Ksha\text{\textquoteleft}n\text{\textquoteright}e ksha\text{\textquoteleft}n\text{\textquoteright}e yan nava}\text{\textquoteleft}t\text{\textquoteleft}m vi}\text{\textquoteleft}dha}\text{\textquoteleft}tte.}
\]

(Shri-harsha, Naisha\text{\textquoteright}dham.)

(Beauty, True Beauty, doth appear, new, fresh, E'er different, ever splendid, every day,)

To be able to recognise the Dearest of Friends only if He is clothed in one dress and no other, is not to know the Friend at all, but only the Dress. Beloved! I will dress you in many dresses; in the kimono of Japan, the mandarin coat of China, in the ava-siya and uttariya, upper and lower wrap, the golden shata-pata, sari, of India, in the shals of Kashmir, in the abâ and chogha of Persia, in the burnous of Arabia, in the multiform hats, blouses, jackets, coats, petticoats, gowns, shirts, shorts, trousers, kilts, of the several countries of

¹ See f.n. (p. 61 supra), Yär-i-mārā . . .
Europe, in the plumes of the Amer-indian, the toga of the departed Roman, the mail of the medieval knight of Asia and Europe! Beloved! will you not be able to recognise your own True Self, your own Beautiful Face, your own Gracious Goodness, in all these disguises, when a mirror is placed before you, each time your garments are changed? Beloved! you must recognise your own voice and your own meaning, surely, whether you speak in Samskr̥t, or Arabic, or Hebrew or Greek, or Latin, or Chinese, or Japanese or Zend or Pāli, or Prākṛt, or Gurmukhi, or any of the thousands of languages you yourself are always inventing, and forgetting from time to time, in order to fashion new others for your Infinite Play and Pas-time!

Underneath, soaked through and through, permeating, pervading, holding fast together, all Multitude, remains ever the Unity. This is the One Fact to be remembered always.

Pots, pans, jugs, jars, tumblers, decanters, kettles are many and of many shapes; the water in them all is one. Lamps and lanterns and electric bulbs are many and of many shapes; the light is one. Wood, coal, oil, fuels are many and of many shapes; the fire is one. Living organisms are many and of many shapes; the life in all is one. Religions are many and of many forms and formalities; the Universal Religion is One.
In China, when strangers meet, it is the custom for each to ask his neighbour, 'To what sublime religion do you belong?' The first is perhaps a Confucian, the second a Taoist, the third a disciple of Buddha. Each then begins a panegyric on the religion not his own; after which they repeat in chorus, 'Religions are many, reason is one, we are all brothers.' The critic of one temperament will exclaim, "Hypocrites!"; of another, may burst out, "Old fogeys, marionettes, idiots!"; of a third, unfortunately rare perhaps, to-day, would say, "Just, wise, and courteous!". Experts of different sciences, of different arts, wedded, loyal, faithful each to his own favorite, can yet admire, nay, reverence, if they are real and thoughtful experts and not bumptious quacks, the same common factor of genius, skill, unremitting application, manifesting in all.

Those who see good in others, others see good in them. Those who see evil in others, others see evil in them. Those who see both the good and the evil in others justly, others judge them justly also. 'The Science of Emotions' tells us that if we give credit to another for a virtue, even if it be not manifest in him, his mind, his waking mind, is filled with the idea of it, and thereby we stimulate the seed of that

1 J. Estlin Carpenter, The Place of Christianity in the Religions of the World, p. 60.

2 See the book, bearing this title, by the present writer.
virtue, which is also necessarily present in the sub-and-supra-conscious deeps of his (sleeping) mind, to sprout and come to the surface and manifest. If one religion appreciates another, that other will further develop the aspect appreciated, and will also reciprocate, and appreciate the one and help it to develop similarly also.¹

The saintly statesman, Prince Regent Shotoku of Japan, "one of the best known figures in Japanese history, for whom, when he died in 621 A.D., the old wept as if they had lost a child, and the young as if they had lost a parent," reconciled the indigenous religion Shintoism, and the newly come Buddhism and Confucianism, when conflict between the priests threatened to fill the land with dissensions, in this wise: "Shinto is the source and root of the Way, and, shot up with the sky and the earth, teaches man the primal Way; Classicism (Confucianism) is the branch and foliage

¹ Compare the English adage, 'Give a dog a bad name and hang it.' This may be supplemented with, 'Give a dog a good name, and tame it.'

² A beautiful little Persian verse says:
   Yād ḍārī he waqt-e zādan-i-ṭo,
   Hamān khandān budand o ūgīriyān:
   Chun Zī ke waqt-i-murdan-i-ṭo,
   Hamān girīyān buwanda ūught khandān.
   (When thou wast born, all laughed and thou didst cry:
    Live so, that, when thou passest, all shall cry,
    And thou alone shalt laugh, rising on High!)
of the Way, and, bursting forth with man, it teaches him the Middle Way; Buḍḍhism is the flower and fruit of the Way, and appearing after man’s mental powers matured, teaches him the final Way. Hence, to love one in preference to another, only shows man’s selfish passion. . . . The introduction of another foreign system of faith will add a new cubit to the stature of the Nation’s mind, without depriving its predecessors of their authority; indeed each new creed enlightens the old.”

The poet has well said:

Mockery is the fume of little hearts,
And noble manners come from noble minds.

And again,

Let knowledge grow from more to more
But more of reverence in us dwell,
For fear divine philosophy
Should shoot beyond her mark and be Procureess to the lords of hell. (TENNYSON)

"The teaching of sects," said Lu Shun Yan, a distinguished Buḍḍhist scholar, 'is not different. The large-hearted man regards them as embodying the same truths. The narrow-minded man observes only their differences' . . . The wisdom in all ages, entering into holy souls, maketh them friends of God, and prophets.”

Tafraqā dar nafs-i-haiviāni buwaḍ; Rūh-i-wāhiḍ rūh-i-insāni buwaḍ. (S.)

(Separatism, difference, exclusiveness, Characterise at once the animal mind: The soul of oneness is the soul of man, The soul of all-inclusive Sympathy, Of Unity and of non-separateness.)

The Arabic-Persian word for man, insān, (from ins, uns, sympathy), means etymologically ‘the friend of all,’ ‘the lover of his kind,’ the ‘gentleman’. So the Samskrāt word ārya (from ā, to go) means ‘the person to whom others, when trouble befalls them, go for relief,’ ‘he who is approached for help’.

1 J. E. Carpenter, ibid, 66, 67.
Nivāraṇ-ārthaṃ arṣīnam arṣum yogyo bhavet tu yah,
Aryāte saṣaṭṭam ch-ārthaḥ, sa Ārya iti kaṭhyatē.

(Through all forms whatsoever runs One Life,
Immortal, making indivisible
All those that seem divided endlessly—
The higher, sāttvik', wisdom seeth thus.
But that which takes the separate-seeming many
As many only, separate for ever—
That sight is of the lower rājas' mind.)
(He who is worthy to go to, for help,
For persons in distress, and unto whom Such ever do resort—true Ārya, he.)

That all the creeds and practices, all the parts, of any religion, are not equally important, not essential, is patent. All religions themselves make distinctions between the obligatory and the optional, mohkamāt and mushābihāt, niṣṭya and kāmya, āvashyaka and aichchhika. That duty varies with time, place, and circumstance, is also obvious, and is plainly stated too in all religions.

Desha-kāla-nimittānām
bhēḏair-ḍharma vibhidyaṭē;
Anyah ḍharmaḥ sama-ṣṭhasya,
vishama-ṣṭhasya cha aparah.
Na hi ēva aikāntiko ḍharmaḥ;
ḍharmaḥ hi āvasthikah smṛtah.
Nahi sarva-hiṭah kash-chid āchārah sam-pra-varṭaṭē Tasmād anyah pra-bhavaṭi;
sah aparam bāḍhaṭē punah;
Āchārāṇām an-aikāgryam
tasmāt sarvatra lakshayē.

(Mbh., Shānti-parva.)

(Changes of time and place and circumstance. Always cause changes in the duties too. The law for men is one in time of peace, And quite another in calamity.)

(There is no single custom that holds good Always. Therefore doth dharma e'er depend On circumstance. No special law and manner Hath e'er been found which giveth only help To all and everyone, and hurt to none; Therefore 'tis changed for one that does seem better, More suited to the different conditions. Hence do we see the great variety In laws and customs of humanity.)

Anyē Kṛṣa-yugē ḍharmāh, Trēṭāyām, Dvāparē, apare,
Anyē Kali-yugē nṛīnām, yuga-hrās-ānu-rūpaṭah.

(M.)
(As men change character and ways of life,
So change the laws their elders make for them;
Both vary, side by side, from age to age.
One law is for the Golden Age of Truth,
And ready 'doing' of loved Elders' words
Another for the Age of infant Sin;
Yet other for the Age of equal Strife
Twixt well-grown Vice and Virtue; and a fourth
Is needed for the Time when Discord reigns).

"To everything there is a season, and a time for every purpose under heaven; . . . a time to be born and a time to die; to plant, and to pluck up; to kill, and to heal; to break down, and to build up; to weep, and to laugh; to keep silence, and to speak; to love, and to hate; a time of war, and a time of peace."

(B., Eccles.)

Inna-kum fi zamānin man ṭaraka min-kum, a'şhra mā omera behi halaka; summā yāṭi zamānun min-hum be-a'şhra mā omera behi naja. (H., Tirmizi.)

(Ye now are in an age in which if ye
Shirk even one-tenth of what is ordained Ye will be ruined. After this will come
A time when he who will do e'en one tenth
Of what is ordered now will be redeemed.)

The greatest of all Sūfī writers, Maulānā Jalāl-udḍīn Rūmī, has used strong language in distinguishing between the essentials and the non-essentials, praḍhāna and gaṇaḥ amśa, usūl and furū', of religion. Describing the purpose of his work, the famous Masnawī, which is accepted by the Muslim world generally as next to Qurān itself in holiness, he says:

Man ze Qur-aṅ magḥz rā bar-ḍāshṭam,
Usṭukhāṅ pėshē sagān anḍākhṭam. (S.)
(The marrow from the Qur-an have I drawn
And the dry bones unto the dogs have cast.)
As regards the profound respect in which the Masnawī is held among learned divines of Islām, a verse is current among them:

Man che goyam wasf-i-aṅ ā'li janāb,
N-ist paig-ham-bar walē ḍāraḍ kiṭāb.
(How may we well describe this great soul’s greatness!)

He is not called a Messenger from God,
Yet in his hands he holds a Holy Script.)
Jesus has a blunt saying similar to Rūmi’s, about “casting pearls before swine”, i.e., those as yet unable to appreciate them. Krśhṇa condemns in very plain terms those who are always harping upon outer ritual and neglecting inner wisdom.

Yām imām pushpiṭām vācham
pra-vaḍanṭi a-vipash-chiṭah, Vēḍa-vāḍa-raṭāh, Pāṛṭḥa,
n-ānyad-asṭ-īṭi vāḍinah. (G.)
(They who are always praising Vedic rites
And ceremonies, saying there's naught else
Worth thinking of, are very foolish men.)

Even the benevolent Masters have, now and then, to use strong, even harsh, language, when it is necessary to shake very heavy inertia!

From another standpoint, for the purpose of gradually leading on the child-soul from the inessential to the Essential, from the symbol to the Meaning, we are advised to "Give milk to babes and meat to the strong", (B.). Even Moses and Muhammad are scarcely able at first to look on the Nūr-i-Qāhīr, 'the blinding effulgence of the Face of God wholly unveiled.' Even Arjuna trembles when his eyes are first opened for briefest instant to 'That Glory greater than a thousand suns', 'Light of lights', jyoṭīshām jyoṭīh, (Gītā and Upan.), the Glory of the Universal Self; on beholding which, all small individual self-hood and self-ishness shrivel into nothingness. Therefore,

Apsu devā manushyaṇām,
divī devāh maniśiṇām,
Bālānām kāśtha-lōśṭēshu,
buḍhasya Āṭmani Ṛevaṭā. (Agni Purāṇa.)

(Child-souls may find their gods in wood and stone;
More grown-up souls in sacred lakes and streams;
The older-minded in the orbs of space;
The wise see Him in all-pervading Self.)

"We speak wisdom among the perfect or initiated, not the wisdom of this world, nor of the archons of this world, but divine wisdom in a mystery, secret—which none of the archons of this world know." (B., Paul.)

Jesus says:

"To you it is given to know the mysteries of the Kingdom of Heaven, but to them it is not given. For whosoever hath (the key) to him shall be given, and he shall have more abundance, but whosoever hath not, (or is likely to misuse the key to the sacred secret knowledge), from him shall be taken away even that (which) he hath. (B.)" 1

1 In the minor Eleusinian Mysteries of Greece, a sow was washed to typify the purification of the neophyte, as her return to the mire indicated the superficial nature of the work that had been accomplished: H. P. Blavatsky, Isis Unveiled, II, 493. For many quotations from others, see H.P.B., The Secret Doctrine, vol. v, section iv (Adyar edition). See also the articles 'Mystery' and 'Eleusis' in Enc. Brit. The rites and ceremonies of Vedic yajña may be regarded as an earlier form of such 'mystery-initiations'.

These minor and major Eleusinian Mysteries, into which only the select were initiated, are constantly referred to in Greek literature. All the great dead religions had their 'mysteries' and their ceremonial initiations of the worthy into them. They were dramatic ceremonies symbolising the psychical, moral, and also physical trials and tests of the progress of the soul from stage to stage
But in order to make our investigation, very brief and merely suggestive as it must be here, somewhat systematic, we should try first to ascertain, even though only rapidly, the nature of what is called Religion.

The word 'religion', which is in use in the Christian world, is derived from Latin words (re and legere or ligare) which mean 'to bind back'. Therefore it means that which binds human beings to each other in the bonds of love and sympathy and mutual rights and duties; binds them all also to God; endeavours to lead them back to that World-Soul, from Whom their lower nature makes them stray away again and yet again, in too eager following of the objects of the senses; and binds to, and keeps their minds fixed on, that Supreme Principle of Unity, amidst the press of all their daily work, in order to enable them to do that work with proper balance, righteously. The power to bind together the hearts of men to one another, by the common bond of God, the All-pervading Self, is the power to give birth to and to nourish and maintain, a in real evolution, through which the person undergoing initiation was passed. The intention seems to have been to prepare for real life's trials and tests. Sometimes, this preparation was so severe that nothing in real life could be more so; as, today, in the case of the physical 'endurance' and other trainings, tests, and rehearsals of athletes, racers, aviators, swimmers, film-thrillers, and soldiers.
high civilization. It is noteworthy that every historic civilisation has had, and has today, its specific religion, its worshipped ideal. Indeed, the birth of a new religion, \textit{i.e.}, a fresh re-viv-al of the \textit{Spirit} of religion, whence united co-operation, has invariably preceded, and given birth to, a new civilisation.

The corresponding Vedic word is \textit{Dharma}, from \textit{dhṛ}, to hold and bind together, which has exactly the same significance.

A Jaina sage defines Dharma thus:

\begin{align*}
\text{Samsāra-} & \text{duhhkhaṭah saṭṭvān} \\
& \text{Yo dharaṭi utṭamē sukhē.}
\end{align*}

\textit{(Samaṇṭa-bhaḍra).}

(That which leads beings out of the world's woes,
And 'holds them fast' in highest bliss, is Dharma.)

We have seen (p. 68) that the Vaishēshika philosopher's definition is, 'That which helps to achieve \textit{abhyu-ḍaya}, prosperity, here, and also \textit{nīs-ḥṛṛyaś}, highest happiness, hereafter, that is \textit{Dharma}', the joys of earth and heaven, and the bliss of realised Infinitude and Immortality, during the life on earth and thereafter too. Manu says,

\begin{quote}
Dandam Dharmam viḍur-buddhāh.
\end{quote}
(The Rod, restless, of Compulsion, held
By Royalty, which meteth good for good
And ill for ill, and ordereth all things—That Rod is Ḍharm' embodied. Thus, the wise.)

And here we see the etymological definition, given in Mahābhārata,

Ḍharaṇāḍ Ḍharna iṣṭ āhuh,
Ḍharmo Ḍhārayaṭi praṭaiḥ. (Shānti-parva.)

(That which binds fast all beings, each to each,
With bonds of rights-and-duties; binding these
Also together, in unfailing law
Of Action and Reaction, whence arise
Reward for good and Punishment for ill,
And thus preserves mankind—Ḍharma is That.)

The Unity of the Universal Self is the Ultimate Ḍharma, characteristic property, quality, attribute, which is the obvious cause and source of all these aspects and meanings of Ḍharma.

The 'holding together' of human beings in a 'society' is not possible without perpetual 'give-and-take', 'right-and-duty', incessant little or great acts of self-sacrifice, yajña, qurbāni. The 'self-affirmation' of any one individual is not possible without corresponding 'self-denial' on the part of some other or others. And vice versa. More; each individual, to secure selfish self-expression, must impose upon himself some unselfish self-repression, self-restraint, self-denial, also. Egoism and altruism make each other possible. Each disappears without the other. Such is the Law of Duality, which pervades the Multiplicity of the World-Process, in subordination to the supreme Law of Sacrifice, yajña, qurbānī, of one's own smaller self's lower desires, in ever-growing degree, from birth to death of body.

Saha-yajñāh prajāḥ sṛṣṭvā purā uvācha Prajā-paṭih—Anāṇa pra-savishyaḍhvam,
ēśa vo astu ishta-kāma-ḍhuk. (G.)

(By sacrifice of His own Perfect Being,
His Else-denying 'Singleness of Self,'
The Lord created countless Progeny
Of 'Many selves', together with the Law
Of Sacrifice; and gave them this command:
'By Mutual Sacrifice, by Mutual Help,
Shall ye all grow, prosper, and multiply;
This is the cow will milk you all rich things.')

The self-sacrifice of each smaller self for the sake of the larger Self, which larger self is felt to be embodied in Society as a whole; and the corresponding self-sacrifice of that larger Self or Society for the sake of each smaller self, which smaller self is felt to be integral part of the whole—this mutual self-sacrifice, though internally motivated by all-wise Philanthropic Love, has yet to be externally regulated by all-loving Wisdom; through Laws which lay down rights-and-duties, which bind rights with duties, and all human beings with the bonds of both. The feeling, and the implicit and explicit recognition, of the omni-presence of the larger Self; and of one’s particular smaller self being a part of, and subordinate to, It, as a cell or a tissue in an organism; this feeling, this recognition, may be said to be the quintessence of ‘religion’ or ‘religiousness’. Conscious conviction that every ‘finite’ is created, ideated, maintained, ‘held together’, and periodically manifested and in-drawn, by the Infinite; this, and corresponding philanthropic desire and action, may be said to make up the whole of Religion.¹

The word Islām has a profound and noble meaning which is, indeed, by itself, the very essence of religion. Derived from salm, peace, śhānṭi, it means ‘peaceful acceptance’ of God; calm resignation, submission, surrender, praṇīṭhāna, praṇapaṭṭī, of the small self to the Great Self; letting out of egoism and letting in of Universalism; namaskāra, namama kiniṭu tava īhā, ¹ The idea is more fully expounded in other works of this writer, especially The Science of Religion or Sanātana Vaiḍīka Ďharma.

"Thy will be done, Lord!, not mine"; whence only the mind, the heart, at peace with itself and with all the world.

The significance of 'Dharma' is the same; for what else can 'hold together' living beings than mutual 'rightful-ness' and 'du(e)-ti-fulness', mutual righteousness and duteousness, mutual rights-and-duties, through common 'submission' to the Will of the Divine Self? The very important question arises here at once; How may human beings ascertain what the Will of the Divine Self is, generally; and, even more, in particular cases. The answer, in brief, is: (a) Universal Essential Religion, Scientific Religion, Spiritual Science, tells us what that Will is, generally; (b) particularly, good-and-wise laws, defining rights-and-duties, made by good-and-wise legislators, who know, love, fear God, i.e., the Supreme, Universal Self of All; who therefore disinterestedly wish well to all just interests of all sections, classes, vocations; who, as far as is humanly possible, are 'near God', are 'Sons of God', are embodiments of the Higher, Better, Nobler, Wiser, Philanthropic Self of the People, and who are sincerely trusted, honored, and duly selected and elected by the People to make laws;—such laws will represent the Divine Will, as nearly as possible for human beings. It is obvious that only good-and-wise laws can promote the general welfare; and that such laws can be made by only good-and-wise persons. Legislation and administration by such only can establish 'the kingdom of heaven on earth'.

The essence of Christianity is, thus, same as that of Dharma. 'Christos' means 'anointed', 'bathed in Divine Wisdom', whence only replacement of the small self by the Great Self.

So 'Vaidika-Dharma' etymologically means the Religion of Knowledge; 'Sanatana-Dharma' means the Religion, the Way, of the Eternal Self; 'Mānava-Dharma', Religion of Humanity and Humanism; 'Bauddha-Dharma', Religion of Budihi, Wisdom; 'Ārya-Dharma', Religion of the Good, the Noble-minded. The other Islāmic name for religion is Mazhab, which means the 'Way', i.e., the Way of Righteousness, the Path to God and Happiness.

'Dharma' is also a triple Way, sub-divided into three intertwining Mārgas or Paths, of Knowledge, of Devotion, of Works. Buḍḍhism, as we have already seen, also describes itself as the Middle Path, and, again, in greater detail, as the Ashtāṅga Ārya Mārga, 'the Noble Eightfold Path'. But always the One and only Path is the Path of Non-Egoism, of Unselfishness.

*For fuller exposition, see portion numbered 20, on 'Social Organisation', of ch. iv infra, and Appendix.

The eight are: "Samyak drṣṭi, ... sankalpa ... vāk, ... karmāṇṭa, ... ājiva, ... vyāyāma, ... smṛti, ... samādhi; right view, right resolve, ... speech, ...
Tark-i-khudi, Asmiṣā-tyāga, whence True Knowledge, Right Love, Righteous Action; and the only Light on the Path is the Light within, "the Light that lighteth every one," the Light of the One Self.

Jyotir-Ātmani, na anyatra; sarva-janṭushu tath samam. (Bhāg.)

Christ has said: "I am (i.e., is) the Way, the Truth, and the Life." To know that (the) I (is) am all selves is to know the Truth. To love all selves as my-Self is the right Life. To do unto all selves as to my-Self is the righteous Way.

Shinto, (the word is said to be Chinese), the ancient religion of Japan, now practically merged into Budhism, is Kāmi-no-michi, (in the Japanese language), 'the Way of the Spirits,' 'the Divine Way,' 'the Way of God.' Kāmi are the indwelling spirits—all sparks of the One Spirit.¹

¹ In Shintoism, Con-tou is Chaos; Yo is Heaven, male ethereal principle; In is Earth, female material principle; Jin is man; Amē no āni nākā nushi no Kāmi
The name of the religion given by Lao-tse to China is Tāo, which, again, means the 'Way'.

is Divine Monarch of the Central Heaven; Ōkāmi onosubi no Kami is Exalted Imperial Divine Offspring of Heaven and Earth; Kami mi nusubi no Kami is Offspring of the gods; Isu no gai no Kami is male dark muscular being; Eku gai no Kami is female fair weaker more delicate being.

"The idea of the middle path, that lies between the opposites, is found in China, in the form of Tao... The meanings of Tao are (1) Way, (2) Method, (3) Principle, (4) Nature-force or Life-force, (5) the Regulated processes of Nature, (6) the Idea of the World, (7) the Primal Cause of all phenomena, (8) the Right, (9) the Good, (10) the Eternal Moral Law. Some even translate Tao as God... Lao-tse, (born 604 B.C.), in Tao-te-king, says: Tao seems to have existed before God... It is indefinable, perfected... formless, al-one, unchanging, inexhaustible, beyond reasoning, unseizable, nameless, existing and non-existing also... Dwelling without desire, one perceiveth its essence; clinging to desire, one seeth only its outer form... The kinship with the basic Brahmanic ideas is unmistakable—which does not necessarily imply direct contact... The primordial image underlying both the Rta-Brahma-Atma and Tao conceptions is as universal as man, appearing in every age, among all peoples, whether as Energy-concept, or Soul-force, or however else it may be designated... The knowledge of Tao has therefore the same redeeming... ['freedom'-giving, 'salvation'-bringing, 'moksha'-bestowing] "and uplifting effect as the 'knowing' of Brahman... The complete one" [the perfected 'son of God', kāmil, muktā] "is beyond intimacy or estrangement, profit or injury, honor or disgrace... Being one with Tao resembles the spiritual condition of a child," [compare verses of Gītā, to same effect]: C. G. Jung, Psychological Types, 264-266. What else can
In every case what is meant is the Way which leads to happiness, to peace; to freedom from bondage to Egoism and thence to doubts; freedom from fear of pain and death; by leading to the God within, i.e., to the realisation of the identity of the individual with the Universal Self; whence illumination, and assurance of Immortality. We have seen before that so long as men fear pain and death, so long will they necessarily crave religion. It is the climax of religion itself which, by proving that all our pain is self-inflicted, (since it comes only as consequence of our own selfish desire), and by the Essential Concept be than 'as universal as man', when it is the Essence of Man him-Self, is his very Self! What, in Veda-mantras, is named Satya and Rta, is mostly called Brahma and Dharma in Upanishads and Smritis, or Purusha and Prakriti or Sva-bhava in some of the Darshanases. The words Brahma and Dharma include all the meanings, ascribed above to Tao; it will be readily noticed that they are all closely allied aspects of the same thing, and shade off into one another.

Dr. Michiji Ishikawa, in his paper on 'Shinto Theology', (The Religions of the World, I, 371-377; pub: by the Ramakrishna Mission Institute of Culture, Calcutta, 1938), says: "Shinto is the All-pervading Universal Way... According to Shinto mythology Ame-no-mi-naka-nushi (Heaven-centre-ruling Deity) is the Absolute Universal Self, from which both Kankai (visible) and Yukai (invisible) worlds have come into existence through the activities of the three deities of Musubi, the Principles of Creation, of Completion, and of the Controlling Bond between;" cf., Brahma-Shiva-Vishnu." annihilating fear of annihilation, can abolish need for religion. When man has found God, his own Eternal and Infinite Self, and has thrown away his smaller self, he has himself become the Truth, the Life, the Way, and no longer needs any other way to God.

Whichever track we try, we always come round to the one and only way—of merging the small self in the Eternal Self, the dew-drop in the Sea.

We may distinguish three main parts or aspects in all the great religions. In Vaiḍika Dharma, they are expressly mentioned: Jāna-Mārga, Bhākti-mārga, Karma-mārga. Generally corresponding to these are, Ḥaqīqaṭ or Aqāyaḏ, Ṭariqaṭ or Ibāḍāt, and Shariyāṭ or Māmilāt, of Islām. Gnosis, Pietas, and Energeia; (a) Way of Knowledge, Illumination, Gnosticism, (b) Way of Devotion, Pietism, Mysticism, (c) Way of Rites and Ceremonies and Works of self-denying Charity, Activism, Energism, Practicalism—these seem to be similarly distinguished in Christian theology, and to have the same significance. Via contemplativa, via unitiva, via purgativa, are Latin names for the same, in the writings of the Fathers of the Christian Church. In the Budhhist Eightfold Path, (see p. 109 supra), the three most important, under which the other five may be classified, are Right Knowledge,
Right Desire, and Right Action—Samyak-ṛśhti, Samyak-sankalpa, and Samyakvṛyāyāma; which are same as the three Vaiḍīka Mārgas. Jaina teaching is same:
Samyag-ṛshana-jñāna-chāriṭryāṇi Moksha-Mārgah.
(Umā-swāmi, Ṭaṭṭo-arṣha Sūtra)
(The way to Liberty is Right Desire, Right Knowledge, and Right Conduct—three in one).

These are known as the ‘three jewels’, raṭnaṛaya, in Jainism.
Darśana here stands for ichchhā or bhakti, and chāriṭrya for kriyā or karma.

I am (a) the Truth, (b) the Life, (c) the Way. (B.)
Shaṛiṣt rā shaār-e-khwēsh sāzaḏ,
Ṭariqaṭ rā wisār-e-khwēsh sāzaḏ,
Haqīqaṭ kẖud maqām-ē-zāż-i-Ū Ḥān,
Buwaḍ dāyām miyān-ē-kufr-o-īmān.

(S., Gulshan-i-Rāz.)

(His outer garment woven is of Works;
His inner, of Devotion’s ecstasy;
Him-Self, Knowledge of Truth, that wears the two Standing between belief and unbelief.)

Yogās-ṛayo mayā proktāh,
Jñānam, Bhaktīsh-cha, Karma cha. (Bh.)
(Three Yoga-ways have I declared to men.—
Of Knowledge, of Devotion, of right Deed).

Kāma-mayah ēva ayam purushah; sa yaṭhā-kāmo bhavaṭi, ṭaṭ-kraṭur bhavaṭi; yaṭ-kraṭur bhavaṭi ṭaṭ karma kuruṭe; yaṭ karma kuruṭe, taḍ abhi-sampaḍ-yaṭe... Taḍ ēva sakṭah saha karmṇā ēṭi lingam, mano yaṭra nishakṭam asya; (Br. Up., 4. 4. 4-5-6.)

Aṭha khalu kraṭu-mayah purushah; yaṭhā kraṭur asmin lokē purusho bhavaṭi, ṭaṭhā itah prētya bhavaṭi; (Chh. Up., 3. 14. 1.).

(Desire is core of individual man;
As is the strongest wish, such is the will;
As is the real will, such is the act;
As is the act, such doth becomes the man.
As is the craving which absorbs the mind
At the last moment, such the shape also
Which is assumēd by the subtle form,
In which the soul goes on to other worlds.)
Ṭaṭhā asya Shaktīr viviḍhā ēva shrūyaṭé Svābhāvikī jñāna-bala-kriyā cha. (Shvēṭa. Up.)

(Threefold His Energy is said to be—Power of knowledge, of desire, of deed.)

As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he.

(B., Prov., 23-27).

Shraḍḍhā-mayo ayam purushah
Yo yach-chhraḍḍhah sa ēva sah. (Gītā.)

(Man is made up of faith; faith is the man.)
Chiṣṭam ēva hi Sam-sārah;
Tam prayaṭnēna shoḍhayēt;
Yach-chiṣṭas-ṭan-mayo bhavaṭi;
Guhyam etat Sanāṭanam.

(Maitrāyani Up., iv. 4. 3.)

(The mind in all the world; then make it pure;
As is his mind, such is the man always;
Mind well this truth that comes from time of old;
)

Vāg-ḍando-(a)ṭha mano-ḍandah kāya-ḍandas-ṭaṭha-iva cha,
Yasya-śe nihīṭā buḍḍhau,
tri-ḍandi-ti sa uchyaṭē. (M.)

Kāyēna samvaro sāḍhu, sāḍhu vāchāya samvaro,
Manasā samvaro sāḍhu, sāḍhu sabbāṭṭha samvaro,
Sabbāṭṭha sambuṭo bhikkhū sabba-dukkhā pamuchchati. (Dh.)

(Good is it to control the thought, the speech,
The act; the wise man who will thus restrain
All these, he will, for sure, cast off all pain;
He is true 'thrice-ruled' bhikkhu-san-nyāsī.)

In these three words, knowledge—desire—action, jñāna—ichchhā—kriyā (corresponding with saṭṭva—tamas—rajas), ilm—khwāhish—faʾl, urf —irādah—aʾmal, we find indicated, in terms of psychological science, the reason why all religions have this threefold nature. The human mind has three aspects. Human life is one incessant round of conscious or sub-conscious knowings, wishings, and doings. Only if we know rightly, wish rightly, and act rightly, can we secure happiness here and hereafter, for ourselves and our fellow-creatures. Religions teach us what are the most important items under each of these three heads, and how we may secure them.¹

A triad almost more frequently met with, is that of right thoughts-words-deeds; mano-vāk-karma; khyāl-qaul-fāl; humaṭa-hukhta-huvarštā; (Z.)²

Here, 'words' stands for 'desire'.

¹"In his pronouncement, initiating the New Life Movement in China, (Feb. 1934), Marshal Chiang Kai Shek referred to the four traditional foundations of Good Character: Li, I, Lyang, and Chih. These seem to be equivalents of (1) Righteousness in Action, (2) Non-separatism or Unionism in Desire, (3) Free Knowledge, or clear, plain, discriminate right course; (4) Self-consciousness, conscience which makes one feel ashamed to go against I and Lyang. In other words, briefly, (1) karma, (2) bhakti, (3 and 4) jñāna."

(Prof. Tan Yun Shan, Modern Chinese History, p. 97).

²Humaṭa is, in Skt., su-maṭam, right-thought, well-thought; hu-khaṭa is su-uktam, right-words, well-spoken; hu-varṣhṭa is su-vṛsham, su-varhitam, su-vṛdhham, su-vṛtam, su-varjiṭam, su-kṛṭam, well-done, well-worked, well-rained, right-deeds).
Manasi ékam, vachasi ékam, karmaṇi ékam mah-āṭmanām.
Manasi anyaḍ, vachasi anyaḍ,
karmaṇi anyaḍ ṇūr-āṭmanām. (Mbh.)
(In the great soul, thought, word, and deed are one;
In th' evil, all are different, each from each.)

Civilizations are also, correspondingly, made up of (a) bodies of knowledge, science, learning, (b) of special tastes, aspirations, ideals, arts, ruling passions, and (3) of characteristic ways of living, behaviour, forms of enterprise. The larger, the more varied, the more carefully ascertained the knowledge; the nobler, the more aesthetic, artistic, philanthropic, the ideals, tastes, aspirations, emotions; the more refined the ways of living and the more humanitarian and wide-reaching the enterprises and activities—the greater and higher the civilization.

(To those who think good, speak good, and do good,
And not to those who think ill, speak ill, and do ill,
Do I belong—saith Ahurā Mazaḏā.)

(Z., Yasnæ, 10-16; T.H.R., p. 98.)

Compare the Upanishad verse:
Eshā ḍaivī vāg anu-vaḍatī sthanayiṭnar, ḍa-ḍa-ḍāṭi, ḍāmyatā-ṭaṭṭa-ḍaṭaḍhram. (U.)

(Heaven, with voice of thunder, counsels us
‘Ḍa-ḍā-ḍā’—Do deny your lower self,
Do deeds of charity, and do take ruth
On all the weak and frail and innocent.)
Thus does the quality of every civilization depend upon its working out of the threefold principles of its religion.¹

Educationists in particular should always bear in mind the fact that the pupil is a unity of intellect, emotion, and physical body, and that that education only is good which informs the intellect with true and useful, cultural as well as vocational, knowledge, disciplines the emotions and the will into a strong, fine, righteous character, and trains the body into hardy health, active strength, handsome shape and occupational skill.

¹ Various religions and sects, philosophies and schools, civilisations and epochs, emphasise various aspects, facets, parts of the same One Universal Way and Life and Truth; though all necessarily expound, implicitly, if not explicitly, all the aspects; for these are all inseparable. Thus, one emphasises knowledge more; another, devotion; another, action; one stresses (comparatively changeless) Rest; another changeful effort, Evolution, progress; another, cyclicity and periodical balancing; one, the Shiva-aspect of the Absolute, Peace, repose, abstention from restlessness; another, the Šakti-aspect of the same, Power, Libido, Élan Vital; another the inclusion of the latter within the former; one more prominently embodies and expresses Law and Order; another, Beauty, Music, Fine Arts generally; another Trade, Enterprise, Colonial activity; another, Martial ardour. Which religion or civilisation expresses and embodies which aspect most—opinion as to this will, again, at least partly depend upon the personality of each observer. Thus, one person may think Budhhism mainly philosophical, rationalist, Intellectual; another as compassionate, benevolent, philanthropic, hence Emotional; another as renunciant of comforts for the bhikshus themselves, but ministrant towards the general public, hence Actional.

This trinity is good, nay, very necessary, for educationists to bear in mind for another vital purpose also, if the indications in the old books be right. In modern educational theory and practice, while, no doubt, some valuable additions have been made, in the way of tests of degrees and kinds of intelligence, attention does not seem to have been equally given to the testing of kinds of temperaments; i.e., whether the element of knowledge predominates in the pupil, or of action, or of desire. Yet without such testing, the secret of the discovery of the vocational aptitude of the student, and of appropriate education and subsequent proper fitting into a society, is not likely to be found.\[^1\] Expert details too often swamp vital principles, in science as well as in religion. So, the wise priest, minister of soul and keeper of conscience will discriminately guide each parishioner along the way of either works, or devotion, or knowledge, according to his inner requirement. So, the wise physician, minister of body, will prescribe only after ascertaining the patient's temperament, constitutional peculiarity, personal idiosyncracy, diathesis.

\[^1\] For fuller exposition of this point, the reader may see The Science of Social Organisation, vol. II, pp. 682-744 and III, pp. 745-766.
CHAPTER II

WAY OF KNOWLEDGE; I.E.,
THE INTELLECTUAL CONSTITUENT
OF RELIGION

Haqāyaq, basic ‘truths’, Ḫaqāyaq, ‘deep’ things,
Mārifāt, ‘knowledges’, A'qāyad,
Way of Knowledge, ‘beliefs’, which form the object of the Jānākānda of Religion, are but few. Nay, there is but one ultimate Truth.
Errors are numberless. There is but one straight line, the shortest distance between two points.
Curved lines between them are beyond count. All that is true and right in knowledge, in feeling, in conduct, is but corollary of the one Truth. The whole of geometry is pre-contained in the definitions, postulates, axioms. A Samskr̥ta verse says that ‘the whole of arithmetic is contained in the Rule of Three.’

Sarvam ṭraī-rāśhikam pāti.

And the whole of religion, philosophy, science, is contained in the ‘Rule of Three’ also, the Trinity-in-Unity, God-Nature-Man. God includes Nature and Man.
1. God

The one basic Truth of truths is that Man is in essence one with God; that Nature is God's Nature, the unchanging Self's ever-changing garment; that the meaning and purpose of life is that God has forgotten himself into man, and man should remember himself into God again; that Spirit has entered into, put on body of, more and more dense Matter, along the Path of Pra-vṛtti, (Pursuit of sense-objects, Avāroha, Qaus-i-Nāzāl, Arc of Descent), and has to rise again to It-Self along the Path of Ni-vṛtti, (Renunciation, Ā-roha, Qaus-i-Urūj, Arc of Ascent); that Allāh, Param-Ātmā, Universal Self, has individualised It-Self, has superimposed upon Its true Pure Selfness (or Ownness-One-ness, Pure Being, That-ness, Tatvam, Thing-in-Itself, Self-in-Itself, Pure Identity, A'niyat-i, haqīqi, Shuddha-advaitam), an illusive Supposititious Other-ness, (False Heteroity, Pure Nothing, Asatvam, Ghairiyat-i-étabāri, Mithyā-ītaraṭā); that Brahma, (Param-Ātmā, Khudāi-murakkab, 'All-including God') has imagined Itself by Māyāvic Will-and-Imagination, (Kāma-Sankalpa, Shuyānāt), into Jīva, (Jīvātmā, Khudāi-µuayyan, 'particularised god'), and has to realise Itself as Universal Self again. All religions state this Truth, in different ways. They also say that it is very simple, yet very difficult, too, to realize—because we are too strongly interested yet in selfish 'errors', and do not wish to turn to the un-selfish Truth of the All-One-Self.

Jainism knows the descent and re-ascent of the Spirit as samīti and gupti, sancara and prati-sancara, ava-sarpini and ut-sarpini; Christianity, as Fall and Redemption, Sin and Salvation, Death and Resurrection; Sufism, as safar-ul-Haq and safar-ul-a'bd, qaus-i-nuzul and qaus-i-uruj, fisal and wisal; Vedist systems of philosophy, as bana and mo ksha, ihā and uparama, avidyā and vidyā, vyutthāna and ni-roḍha, abhyudaya and nis-shreyasa, sarga and apavarga, klēsha and svārūpa-pratiṣthā, pra-sava and prati- pra-sava, lilā and kaivalya; Buddhism uses many terms in common with Vedism; western ethics and psychology might call the pair, 'pursuit and renunciation' or 'retirement'; and science, 'involution and evolution (of Spirit into and out of Matter)', or 'integration and disintegration or dissolution (of material form)'. A Chinese proverb says: "Heaven's way always goes round"; (Lin Yutang, My Country and my People, p. 189).

As Sufis say:

Chīṣṭ ḍunyā? Az Khuḍā ghāfil shudan;
Nai ke mā'š o nuqrāh o farzanḍ o zan.
Na gum shud ke ruy-ash ze dunya be-taft,
Ke gum-gashta Khwesh ra baz yaf.
Na koi pardah hai Us-ke dar par,
Na Ruye Raushan naqab men hai,
Tu ap apni khud se, ai dil!
Hijab men hai, hijab men hai! (S.)

(The 'world' is but forgetfulness of God;
It is not spouse and child, silver and gold.
Who from this world did turn his face away,
He was not lost; indeed, instead, he found
His long-forgotten and lost Self again.
No bar guards His palace-gateway,
No veil screens His Face of Light—
Thou, my heart!, by thine own self-ness,
Art enwrapped in darkest night.)

Lao-tse says:

"Knowing the Eternal means enlightenment; not knowing the Eternal causes passions to arise, and that is evil." (Tao-te-king.)

Krishna says the same:

Manushyam sahasrechu
kashchid yatat siiddhayey,
Yatatam cha sahasrani kashchin mam vetti tatvatah.
Shraddhah-mayo-ayam purushah, yo yat-shraddhah sa eva sah. (G.)
(One here, one there, from among myriads, setteth Forth on the quest of Me, hidden in all
And, of the few that seek, fewer find Me;
For many do not seek Me steadfastly.
But he who seeketh Me with heart resolved,
He surely findeth Me, his inmost Self!)

Ye cannot serve God and Mammon both...
Strait is the gate that leadeth unto Life,
And few there be that find it...
Few are chosen though many come. (B.)

Ham Khádā khwāhī was ham ḍunyā-i-ḍūn;
In khāyāl-āst o muhāl-āst o junūn! (S.)

(That thou shouldst seek for God and this world too, Vain is the wish, futile insanity!)

Samsāra-vāsanā-yuktam mano bāḍḍham viḍur-buḍḍhāḥ;
Taḍ-ēva vāsanā-tyakṭam
mukṭam iti abhi-dhi-yaté. (U.)

(Bound by mundane desire, the mind is bound; Freed from that same desire, Spirit is free.)

But,

"If ye attain to God and His kingdom of righteousess, all things else shall be added unto you." (B.)
Eṣa ṭeva viḍītvā tu yo yaḍ ichchhati ṭasya taṭ. (U.)
(Knowing the Truth, whate'er ye wish ye find.)
Khuḍā ko pāyā ṭo kyā na pāyā,
Sabhi milā jo milā Khuḍā hai!
Zarā ṭū soch-ai, kabhi bhi Khāliq
Se Us-ki kḥilqāṭ huf juḍā hai?
Sabhi ṭo Main hūn, sabhi ṭo Mērā,
Ṭuḥi hai Khāliq, ṭujhi meṅ kḥilqāṭ,
Kḥayāl-i-Kḥayal, ṭuḥi Khuḍā hai! (Q.)
(If ye find God, then ye have found all things!
Just think! if the Creator thou dost find,
Can His creation still remain behind?
Is the One ever separate from the Other?
‘Indeed I am this All, All This is Mine’—
This Word resoundeth ever from within!
Thou art Thy-Self the Thinker, and this world
But Thine own Thought, and God but thou thy-Self!)

The greatness of learning which constitutes expert medical science is very imposing and commands great respect. The simple counsel to use pure air, pure drink, pure food, does not. Yet, at the best,
the former can only cure disease; and, at the worst, creates new diseases. The latter will promote health and prevent disease always. But pure air, pure drink, pure food, simple though they be, are not easy to obtain under artificial conditions of life.
So, as religions say, man having emerged from God, wanders round and round for long before he thinks of going back again to "God who is our home," nay, who is our very Self. And knowledge, of many kinds, is needed before we can 'recognise' God, the God 'within'. Muhammad said: "He dieth not who giveth his life to learning. (H.) Ali said: "Philosophy is the lost sheep of the faithful: take it up again; even if from the infidel": (ERE. IX, 878).

Bé-ilm na āwān Khuḍā rā shinākẖt. (S., Sāḏī.)
(Without right learning God may not be known.)

That Vēḍān ṭa, crown of Vēḍa, 'final knowledge.' teaches this, is well known. But Christian Scriptures also say to men:

"Behold, the man has become as one of us." (B., Genesis.) "I have said, ye are gods; and all of you are children of the most High." (B., Psalms.)

"Is it not written in your laws, 'I said, ye are gods'?... I am the son of God. (B., John.) Behold, the Kingdom of God is within you... Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and the Spirit of God dwelleth in you?.... He is not far from every one of us. For in him we live and move and have our being. ... We are the offspring of God. ... The Spirit of God dwelleth in you. ... God is One. ... His Spirit in the inner man...
One God and Father of all, who is above all and through all and in you all.” (B.)

Brahmanah kosho-asî. (Taiṭ. Up.)
(Thou art the sheath, the tenement, of God. Abiding-place and treasure-house of Brahm’.)
Maṭ-ṭah para-ṭaram Na Anyaṭ, kin-chiḍ asti, Dhanan-jaya! (G.)
(There is No-Other-thing-than-I, in truth!)

The word ‘Upaniṣhaṭ’, which designates the last portion of Vēda, wherein final knowledge is imparted to the earnest seeker only, etymologically means, “sitting very close to the teacher,” who solemnly whispers sacred secret knowledge into the ear of ardent, earnest, intense listener; for unless listened to with reverent and rapt mind, the ‘psychic miracle’ of spiritual conversion will not occur, the words will fail to convey their profound significance, even if trumpeted forth from tower-tops.*

*For metaphysical significance of ‘I-Not-Another’, reader may look into present writer’s Science of Peace, or Science of the Self, if he wishes to pursue subject further.

*Speaking in, and listening to, a whisper, necessitates strong concentration of intellectual attention and emotional earnestness; trumpeting cheapens the most valuable. Buddha, shortly before leaving the body of flesh, said to his beloved and most faithful disciple, Ananda: ‘I have preached the truth without making distinction of esoteric and esoteric. The Ṭathā-gaṭa has no such thing as the closed fist, bāḍ ḍ ḍha-muṣḥti, of teachers who keep somethings back.' How is this to be reconciled with the widespread belief between sacred and profane, occult and unhidden, arcane and open secret, mystery and public knowledge? Buḍḍha himself is also reported to have said, on another occasion, to his gathered disciples: 'As is one leaf to the rest of the total foliage of a tree, such is the little that I have told you to that which I have not told.' Reconciliation seems to be this: So far as Meta-physical Truth, Vēdānta, is concerned, (and it is the deepest and highest Truth), the secrecy, mystery, esotericism, lies only in the student's own inability to face and grasp it. But there are facts and laws of super-physical science and art, as there are of physical (and super-physical and physical shade off into each other), which are sought, by their knowers, to be kept secret, in order to avoid frightful misuse; witness, the two world-wars, and international excitement over closely guarded secrets of atom-bomb and hydrogen-bomb, now in the possession of U.S.A., British, and Russian scientists.
Purport of the Arabic-Persian phrase, ilm-i-sinah, 'knowledge which is passed from heart to heart,' 'doctrine of the heart,' is the same.

1 In all times and climes, within the fold of every religion, "a group here, a group there, has gathered together with no other motive than that of gaining a greater hold on the spiritual life than was prevalent in the ordinary circles of the people. ... They seem to have lived on the borderland of an unusual ecstasy, experiencing extraordinary invasions of the Divine, hearing mystic sounds and seeing mystic visions." Among the Jews the 'Essenes' were such. They "were in possession of certain esoteric teachings, of which, those outside their ranks were uninformed." They laid "great stress on fellowship, amounting to a kind of communism"; were Qurān also says:

Wa hā anfusakum a-fa-lā-ṭubserūn. (Q.)

(I am in your own souls! Why see ye not? In every breath of yours am I, but ye Are blind without true eye, and see Me not.)

apart "from the general people by reason of their sanctity"; were devoted "to the knowledge of the existence of God and the beginning of all things"; loved "allegorical interpretation." ... "Silence or secrecy was frequently employed by the early Rabbis in their mystical exegesis of Scripture. A typical illustration is the following, from Midrash Rabba (a Hebrew commentary) on Genesis, iii (B.): ... The sage said this in a whisper ... The other asked, Why dost thou tell this in a whisper, seeing that it is clearly taught in a scriptural verse? The sage replied, Just as I have myself had it whispered unto me, even so have I whispered it unto thee'...": J. Abelson, Jewish Mysticism, (1913), 18-23. The meek, the pure in heart, the earnestly and intensely seeking, alone can see God; not the flippant, the noisy, the disputatious. The laws of God's Nature are written on Nature's face; but it takes whole lifetimes of intense research by the ablest scientists to decipher one now, one again. Only the receptive open mind can receive. Even the Sun's light cannot come in through closed windows. Pre-occupied, pre-judiced, minds, closed by vibrant resistant active 'other' -ward, 'matter' -ward, thoughts, cannot perceive things of the Spirit.

Incidentally, it may be noted that derivation and meaning of the word 'Essenes' are in doubt; see Enc. Brit., art. 'Essenes'. 'Buddhist influence' is mentioned; also 'gymno-sophists'; but no western scholar seems to have thought of 's a n n y ā s l s' in this connection. 'Gymno-sophists' were met with, and some taken away
Sūfis have sung:

Bā wujūḏe ke muzhdā-e ūrā 'nahno aqrab',
Safahe Masahaf pai likhā ūhā, mujhe mā'lūm na ūhā.

(Although the great glad news of Thee is writ
Plainly upon the Qurān's holy page:
‘Nearer am I to thee than thy throat-vein’—
Mine eyes, blinded with selfishness, saw not!)

The well known Kalemā of faith, Māhā-vākya, ‘great word’, Logos-word, of Islām, is in terms of the third person, vis.,

Lā ilāh il-Allāh, (Q.)

(There is no god but God.)

also, by Alexander; one named Kalanos, (Kalyāna) is specifically mentioned by Greek writers. The word seems compounded of ‘gymnast’, and ‘sophist’, meaning hathā-yogī plus rājā-yogī, ‘holy men’ versed in various bodily as well as mental disciplines. Jesus is said to have lived and studied among the Essenes. Gr.
gymnos means ‘naked’; gymnastics are practised everywhere with a minimum of clothing. Hatha-yogi-s perform their special ‘exercises’ (which exercise every muscle of the body, and many of which have now been taken over by enterprising U. S. Americans to their country), with only a tight loin-cloth. There are also dīgambara-s and parama-hamsa-s who discard even that.
Sūfis declare that it is meant only for younger souls who are not yet ready for the inner teaching; and that the real kalemā is in terms of the first person:

Wa mā arsalnā min qablikā mir rasūlin illā nūhi ilaihē annahu—
‘Inni An-Allāhu lā īlāhā illā Anā.’ (Q.)
(The prophets, all, that ever have been sent, Have been so sent by Me, the Supreme Self, For but one purpose, namely, that they teach, That ‘Men should serve the Supreme Self Al-one’. That ‘Verily the I, the Self, am God; None Other than the Supreme Self is God .)¹
Lā zidd-i-lah; lā sharīk-i lah. (Arab, sayings.)
(There is no opposite to Him; there is no sharer With Him; there is, indeed, None Else than He.)

¹ As commonly recited by the ordinary Muslim, the full kalemā is: Lā ilāh il-Allāh, wa Muhammaḍin ar-Rasūl-Allāh. Some maulavis say that the first half is the essential half, and whoever believes in it is a Muslim; while he who believes in the second half of it also, viz., ‘Muhammad is the prophet of God’, he is a momin (bā-imān, ‘believer in the prophet’, ‘one of the faithful to the prophet.’) Also, the second part emphasises the fact that Muhammad is only a messenger of God, and is not God himself; so that no person may make the great mistake of substituting him for God, or raising him above God; as followers of b hā k ʿ i-cults are so apt to do. i.e., raise the immediate object of devotion above even the Almighty. See pp. 80-81 supra.
Aham' éva, Na Maṭ-ṭo- (A) nyaḍ—
Iṭi buḍḍhyaḍḍhvam anjasā. (Bh.)

('I, only I, Naught-Else-than-I at all'—
This is the whole truth, understand it well.)

Iṭi té jñānam ākhyātām guhyāḍ guhya-ṭaram Mayā;
Sarva-guhya-ṭamam bhūyah
shrṇu Mé paramam vachah;
'Man-manā bhava, Maḍ-bhakto,
Maḍ-yājī, Mām nāmas-kuru;
Mām-éva éshyasi, saṭyam té
praṭi-jāné, priy-osī Mé;
Sarva-ḍharmān pari-ṭyajya
Mām Ėkam śaṭraṇam vraja;
Aham ṭvām sarva-pāpēbhyo mokṣhayishyāmi; mā shuchah! (G.)

(The Ancient Wisdom have I taught to thee,
Highest, most secret, sacred; yet again,
Hear thou the secret-most of mysteries,
The Final Word of all that 'I' can speak:
Place thy whole mind in Me, the Supreme Self,
And place Me, in thy mind, (and Nothing-Else);
Love Me, the Universal I, al-one;
Perform all acts as sacrifice to Me,
As Duty done for All-pervading Self;
Make salutation and submission, full,
Unqualified, of all thy heart and will,
To Me, the Self in Whom all selves unite.
Give up all other ways. Come unto Me.
'I' is the one sole Refuge of all beings.
The 'I' will save and salve thee from all sins,
All sorrows, prisonments of finitude,
By giving thee Its own Infinity.)

This is the one teaching of all prophets, rṣhīs, nabīs, rasūls, a vaṭāras, messiahs. It is given to earnest and seeking souls, ahl-i-dil, 'the men of heart,' genuine hermits, anchorites, bhikṣhus, faqīrs, s a n n yā s i s, d u r vēshas, dīkshītas, initiates, miskīns; to souls that are ready to receive. It is īlm-i-sīnā, 'doctrine of the heart,' 'of the spirit,' daqāyaq, esoteric doctrine of the Mysteries, P a rā-V i ḍyā, 'Highest Knowledge,' rahasya, g u h y a, g u p t a, 'Secret,' aḍh yāṭmika aṛṭha, 'spiritual meaning,' as it is variously named in Vēdic Scriptures. Distinguished from this is īlm-i-saṣīnā, 'doctrine of the page,' 'doctrine of the eye,' 'the letter', a-pa rā-vi ḍyā, 'lower knowledge.' This latter only, as yet, younger souls, ahl-i-daul, 'men that seek worldly wealth,' s h r ā v a k a s, 'lay disciples,' u pāsakas, gṛha-sthās, householders, ordinary family-men-and-women, can apprehend and utilise.1

1 In Christian writings, sometimes, 'prophets' are contrasted with 'priests'; as in Islam, 'sufī auliyaśs' with 'shara'i mullās'; and in Vaiḍīka Dharma, jānī-bhakṭas with karmacāndīs. Jesus rebuked
"We speak wisdom among them that are perfect... To you is given to know the mysteries of the kingdom of God, but to them (the polla, the worldly-minded mass) it is not given... Therefore speak I and cursed the latter, whom he called 'lawyers', i.e., priests of the 'ritualistic law': "Woe unto you, lawyers!, for ye have taken away the key of knowledge; ye entered not in yourselves, and them that were entering in, ye hindered": (B., Luke, xi, 52). Buḍḍha distinguished between true brāhmaṇas and false self-styled brāhmaṇas, (as indeed does Manu-Smrṭi); gave out, to the public, some of the ancient secret wisdom; and thus aroused their hostility. Among Christians it is believed that "the Apocalypse gives the key to the divine Gnosis, which is the same in all ages, and superior to all faiths and philosophies—that secret science which is in reality secret only because it is hidden and locked in the inner nature of every man... and none but himself can turn the key:" J. M. Pryse, The Apocalypse Unsealed, p. 5. Muhammad said: "I am the city (of occult knowledge), and Ali is the gate into it." Among Muslim Sūfis, the tradition is that Ali first declared to the 'select', who were qualified and ready for it, this Ancient Wisdom, Ilm-i-Rūḥānt, Ṭasawwuf, Divya-jñāna, 'Theosophy' proper, 'God-Wisdom', 'Soul-Science', 'Divine Knowledge', 'Spiritual Science'. H. P. Blavatsky's Isis Unveiled and The Secret Doctrine contain a vast amount of astonishing information and profound instruction on the whole subject; but they are not easy reading. This Occult Science, Guptā-Vidyā, Ilm-i-Sinā, Ancient Wisdom, had to be kept secret, for long, (and the danger is not over yet), because, as Jesus said: "Give not that which is holy unto the dogs, neither cast ye your pearls before swine, lest they trample them under their feet, and turn again and rend you"; (B., Matthew, vii. 6). Such is the Law of Duality. God proposes, Satan opposes, and often disposes.
to them in parables and allegories; because, they, seeing, see not, and hearing, they hear not, neither do they understand." (B., Mat. xiii. 11, 13) (see pp. 102, 128 et seq., supra.)

"Hear ye indeed, but understand not, and see indeed, but perceive not.": (B., Isaiah, vi. 9.)

Āshcharya-vaṭ pasaḥyaṭi kashchiḍ Ėnam,
Āshcharya-vaṭ cha Ėnam anyah śrṇoṭi,
Āshcharya-vaḍ vaḍaṭi taṭhā ēva cha anyah,
Shrṇtvā api Ėnam véḍa na cha ēva kashchiḍ. (G)

(Men see, and hear, and speak of It also,
But seeing, hearing, speaking, they see not;
They simply wonder, and not understand.)

Shrṇvanṭo api na shrṇvanṭi, jānanto api na jānate,
Pashyanṭo api na pashyanṭi;
Pashyanṭi jñāna-chakshushah. (U.)

(Hearing, they hear not; knowing, they know not,
Seeing, they see not; the enlightened ones Alone do see with wisdom-lumin-ed eyes.)

Truly the Self is sun-clear, ever near, nay nearest of all, is our very Self, yet we see It not!

As Sūfis say:

Gḥāyab jo ho Kḥudā sē, ālam hai us ko hū kā,
Anāniyat hai jis méṅ, mauqā nahīn hai ṭū kā.
Zähidé gum-rāh ké main kissarah ham-rāh hūn;
Woh kahé Allāh hai, au main kahūn Allāh hūn! (S.)

(He who is absent far away from God—
His heart can only say: ‘God is’, somewhere;
He who has found the Loved One in him-Self—
For him God is not He, nor Thou, but I.
How may I take for guide upon the Way
One who himself away from it doth stray?
He is content to say “God is”, while I Am desolate till I ‘God am’ can say!)

This is only an expanded and more poetical version of the Samskṛt verse:

Asī Brahma iti chéd vēḍa, paroksham jñānam éva tāt;
Asmi Brahma iti chéd vēḍa, aparoksham tāt tu kāṭh yatē.  (U.)

(Who says only ‘God is’—he sees a screen;
He who can say ‘God am’—he, sure, hath seen.)

A gāthā of Zarathustra enjoins, in words which are equivalent to the Qurānic Kālemā:
Mazādāo sakhāre mairisto.1 (Z., Gāthā, 29. 4.)
(The Great God only is to be adored.)

1 Skt: Mahā-dhāh, Mahā-devah, ekalāh, Kēvalaḥ, Sakṛṛ, sādā, smarṭavyah, ‘the Great All-Wise Creator, the Great God, One and only, once for all, always, should be remembered, borne in mind’.
As Upaniṣaṣṭs say:
Ātma ēva arē shroṭavyo, maṇṭavyo, niḍīḍhyāṣītavyah.
... Na-Anyah āto aṣṭi vijñātā. (U.)
(The Self Alone is to be pondered on;
None Else is there who knows or should be known.)
With reference to the distinction between paroksha and a-paroksha, indirect knowledge and direct knowledge, Arabian philosophers have said:
Al ilmo ilmān, maṭbū‘un wa masmū‘; lā yan-fa al-masmū‘ ezā lam yakum il maṭbū‘. (Phil:
maxim.)
(Knowledge is of two kinds, that which is heard,
And that which is felt direct in the heart;
The heard yields not full fruit until it comes Home to the soul in own experience.)
Har ke rā ḍar jān Kḥudā bi-niḥaḍ mahak
Har yaqiṇ rā bāz ḍānāḍ ū ze shak. (S.)
(A touchstone God hath placed in every heart;
It separates, with surety, False from True.)
Al ilmu ilmān, ilm-ul-abḍān, wa ilm-ul-adāyān. (H.)
(Science is dual—science physical,
And science spiritual, where alone
Are firm faiths, based on knowledge, to be found.)
"The Great God has conferred a normal sense even on the lowliest people." (C., Shu-king)
The Christian world knows this touchstone as Conscience, Intuition, Inner Monitor, the still small Voice of God, etc. Vaiḍika (now called Hindū, or, better, Sanāṭana or Ārya) Dharma refers to it as Anāṭ降水-yāṃśi, ‘Inner Monitor, Watcher, Ruler, Endo-censor’; and in such expressions as:

Hṛdayēna abhy-anu-jñātah; Manah-pūtam samā-cha-rēṣṭ; Svasya cha priyam Ātmanah; Pariṣosho anāṭrā-Ātmanah; Svasya ēva anāṭra-Pūrushah; Ātmanah ṭushtir-ēva cha; Kṣēṭra-jño na abhi-shankaṭe; Yamo . . . ṛévo . . . hṛdi śthītah; Taṭ sarvam ācharēḥ, yokto, yatra vā asya ramēṭ manah. (M.)

Saṭām hi sandēha-padeshu vasṭuṣhu
Pramāṇam anāṭah-karaṇa-pra-vṛttayah.

(KĀLI-DĀSA, Shakunṭalā.)

(That which the ‘Heart’ permits; which the ‘Soul’ likes;
The ‘God within’ approves; the ‘Mind’ holds pure;
Th’ ‘Eternal Witness’ sees as free from doubt,
Without misgiving, as straight-forward course;
Which brings pure satisfaction to the ‘Self’;
Which the good mind rejoices in, while doing;
That is the course to follow, for good men.
In matters wrapped in doubt, ‘to do or not’—
The ‘Inner Organ’ of the good is guide.)
Sākshīnām baṭa kalyāṇam Ātmānam ava-maṇ-yasē!
Na hrīt-shayam vēṭsi Munim Purāṇam!
Hṛdi sṭhiṭah karma-sākshī Kshēṭra-jño na asya tushyaṭi, Ṭam Yamah pāpa-karmāṇam nir-bharṭsayaṭi pūru-sham.

(Mbh., Ādi-parva, ch. 98.)
(Why know’st thou not the witness in thy heart?
Why slightest thou that Blessed Guide Within?
He who ignores and does not satisfy,
But disobeys, the One, auspicious, pure,
Perpetual ‘Inner Witness’, the ‘Own-Self’,
The ‘Ancient Sage’, all-knowing, who abides
In every heart, recording every act,
Him Yama doth award dire punishment.)

Iṣṭafṭeh qalab-ak. (H.)
(Question your heart.)

Na Yamam Yama iṭi-āhuh, Ātmā vai Yama uchyaṭē.
Ātmā sam-yamito yēna, Yamah āsya karoṭi kim.
Yamo Vaivasvaṭo ġevo, yah tava-ēsha hṛdi sṭhiṭah Ṭena chēḍ a-vivādas-ṭe, mā Gangām, mā Kurūn gamah. (Mbh.; M., viii. 92).
(Yama, the outer god, is but a name;
The One Self, Inner ‘Ruler’, is true Yama;
He who hath satisfied that Inner God,
That Higher Self, by ruling his small self,
No outer Yama can touch him at all.
Consult thine own heart, if thou art in doubt.)

"In every heart, there dwelleth a Sajin (Sage); only man will not steadfastly believe it—therefore hath the whole remained buried."  (WANG-YANG-MING) (Nowhere can any cover up his sin.

Thy Self in thee, man!, knows what's true, what’s false.
Indeed, my friend!, thou scorn'st the nobler Self,
Thinking to hide the evil self in thee
From Self who witnessed it. Thus he who has
The Self as Master, let him walk with heed.)
(Bud.)

Our knowledge is obviously of two sorts, (1) that derived from personal first-hand experience, a very small portion, but the most certain, and (2) that based on the testimony of others, far the larger portion. In Samskrit philosophy, the two are called pratyaksha 'immediately before the senses', 'directly cognised,' and shabda or agama, that which has been described in 'words' by, has 'come' from, others; in Arabic-Persian, maṭbūʿ (ṭaba', inner nature) and masmūʿ (ṣama', hearing); also, with a slight difference, mā'qulāt (aql, intelligence, intuition), and manqūlāt (naql, copy, passing on from one to another); in European, direct and traditional, first-hand and second-hand.

1 Quoted from Confucian Laotsian writings of Wang-Yang-Ming, " the Chinese father of Japanese philosophy ", by Jung, Psychological Types, 269.

L'İllāhé al-annāsî hujiṭṭain, zāhiraṭun wa bāṭinah; hujiṭ-t-uz-zāhira he-al-ambiyā w-ar-rasūl; hujiṭ-t-ul-bāṭina he-al-u'qūl. (Arab. philosophical maxims.)

(Two proofs are there of Deity, for men;
The outer is the prophets' witnessing,
The inner is our own rational mind.)

In the case of one's own intelligence and prāṭy-akṣha or direct observation, again, two kinds (or rather degrees) are recognised by all. Christians speak of intellection and instinctive perception or intuition; Vaiḍikas, of sāḍhāraṇa-jñāna, (ordinary knowledge) and yogajñāna, samādhija-jñāna, prāṭibha-jñāna (knowledge born of yoga, or samādhi, or prāṭi-bhā); Musalmāns, of ilm-i-ladūnum or ilm-i-wahbī or -wajdānī or-ilhāmī or -kashfā or -ishrāqī or -dīnī or -makāshfā, i.e., sudden, inspirational, illuminational, (risen like the Sun, by faith, by clear vision), and ilm-i-kasābī or
-ikṭiṣābī or -nazārī or -istīdlāli or mashhāi, (i.e., labored, argumentative, inferential, pedestrian).

All kinds of cognition, as also of desire and of action meet and merge in the Self. It is Self-luminous and Illuminator of all others. It senses It-Self, perceives It-Self, infers It-Self, intui tes It-Self, desires and loves and lives It-Self, 'acts,' wills, maintains, asserts It-Self, and also all things-other-than-Self—eternally.

The well-known Sūfī exclamations, An-al-Haq, Haq-ṭu-i, Qalab-ul-insān bait-ur-Rahmān, are exact equivalents of the Upanishat utterances, Aḥam Brahma, Ṭaṭtvam asi, Ėsha me Ātmā antar-hṛdayē, Hṛdi ayam tasmād hṛdayam; 'I am the True, the Real, Brahma; That thou art, too; the heart of man is the abode of God'; and of the Biblical declaration: "Ye are the temple of God." Kḥalīfā Ali declared:

Qalab-il-momin a'rsh-Illāhī.

(The heart of him who knows, and so believes
With full assurance, is the throne of God.)

Ye are the living temple of God... Ye are Gods. (B.)

Christ said: 'I and my Father are one.' The Old Testament of the Jewish faith, especially the Book of Isaiah, also utters this same great kālemā, this maḥā-vākya, logion, ten times and more, vis.,
"I am (i.e., the Self is) God and there is None-Else".

This is the Hebrew form of the Arabic Kalemā-s, 'Lā-ilāh il-Allāh' and 'Inni an-Allāhu, lā ilāhā illā Anā, 'There is no god other than Allāh', and 'Verily I am (i.e., is) God; there is no God but (the) I'; and also the Zoroastrian logion, 'Mazadāo sakhāre mairisṭo', 'Mazadāo alone is to be always ever contemplated and adored.' For an attempt at a philosophical exposition of the full significance of this Mahā-vākya, 'Aham-Eṭaṭ-Na', see present writer's Science of Peace and Prāṇava-Vāda, or Science of the Sacred Word, or the briefer Science of the Self.

Gangā Prasāda, The Fountain-Head of Religion, p. 12, says that Zoroastrianism has a formula, "N-ēṣṭ Ezeq magar Yazdān", which means exactly the same as "Lā ilāh il-Allāh".

A superphysical supplement to the metaphysical fact, that the Supreme Judge is within us as our Inmost Universal Self, is to be found in an old Purāṇa-verse, quoted in a commentary (unpublished) entitled Parāmārtha-Prapā on Gītā by Daivajña Suri, which was mentioned to me by a Pandit, now no more:

Yamasya dūṭāsh cha, gaṇāh Shivasya,
Nārāyaṇasya api taṭhā eva pārshaḍāh,
Sūryasya rashmīn avalambya sarvē,
Lokān nīyachchhan (ṭah) vīcharaṇṭi sarvāḍā.

(The myrmidous of Yama, Shiva’s guards,
And messengers of Vishṇu, ever flash
Along the solar rays, to-fro, beholding,
Adjusting, regulating, all that happens,
Within the Realm of Our Lord the Sun.)

A mānṭra of Rg-Vēda also says:
Ā krṣṇēna rajasa vartamānah,
Niyojayan Amṛtam marṭ(i)yam cha,
Zoroastrian scriptural utterances, with the same significance, are:

Ajém toī āish pouruyo fravōividē; vīspēng anyēng manyēush spasyā āvaēshanghā.
Na ēchīm tēm anyēm Yūshmaḥ vaēdā.
Tēm nē yasnāiš ārmaιtoish mimaghjo,
Yē ānmēnī Mazađāo srāvī Ahuro.
Parē vāo vīspāiš parē vaokhēmā,

(Z., Gāthās, 44. 11; 45. 10; 34. 5)

(Thee only do I know to be Supreme!
All others I dismiss from this my mind!
I know Him to be none except Thy-Self!
He who is known as Ahurā-Mazađā—
With duteous deeds we worship Him alone,
We know Thee as Supreme above all lives.)

That the teachings of Budhism and Jainism, on this essential point, are identical with those of

Hiraṇmayēna Savītā raṭhēna
Dēvo yāti bhuvanānī pashyan,

(Along the dark-blue skies Our God the Sun
Goes circling ever on His Car of Gold,
Ordaining and compelling into Order
All beings, mortal and immortal in His Realm.)

Consider here the wonders of the photographic pictures which are being radiated away along light-rays every moment to infinite distances, and the Law of Action and Reaction, on physical as well as moral plane. More on the subject will be found in The Science of Peace.
Védānta, goes almost without saying, for those who do not revel in discovering minute differences. In one of his uḍānas (ṣuṭṭahiyāt, as Sūhás call them, or, in Vedic literature, yog-ārūdh-oktiṣ), ecstatic utterances of ever-flowing joy, joy of realization of identity with the Supreme Self of all—Buddha, arising from sāmādhī-trance, uses words which are the words of Upanishats, but in their Pāli form:

( Védānta-gū, vushita-brahma-chariya, ḍharmēṇa sa Brāhmaṇo Brahma-vāḍam vaḍēyya. (Uḍāna.)
(He who successfully fulfils his vow
Of continence in body and in mind,
And has achieved the final knowledge, he Acquires the right, high Brahma to declare
To others who would walk the Path; he may Give to himself the name of Brāhmaṇa.)

On another occasion, he exclaims: 'I, O priests!, am Brahma, Great Brahma, the Supreme Being, Unsurpassed, Perceiver of all things, Controller, Lord of All, Maker, Fashioner, Chief, Victor, Ruler, Father, of all beings who have been and are to be.'
(Këvatta Sutta of Diggha Nikāya, Buddhism in Translations, p. 311, B.B., p. 115.)

In a similar mood of exaltation, Ashtāvakra, long before Buddha, cried out: Aho Aham! namo Mahāyam!, and, long afterward, Bāyazīd Būstānī re-echoed him, Subhāni ma-āzama shānī, 'How wonderful am I!, Salutation unto Me!, How great is My glory!’ Upaniṣaṭs reiterate, over and over again, Aham Brahma asmi, Yas-ṭvam-asi So-(A)ham-asmī, I ōdam sarvam asī, Aham āvā I ōdam Sarvam, I am the Infinite; What thou art that same am I; Thou art all This; I am all This’. I, the ‘I’, the Self, ‘Principle of Consciousness’, of Self-Existence, of ‘I am’, is the basis, cause, of all ‘This’ too, of all this Not-Self, Other-than-I, of all the Object-World, the whole World-Process.

Ormazd Yāṣṭ, scripture of Zoroastrianism, declares; “My first name is Ahmi, (Samskrī, Aṣmi, ‘I am’); the last is Ahmi yād Ahmi, I am that I am”. Vedic Šaṭapaṭha Brāhmaṇa has the same significant words, Yo-ham asmi so-smi, ‘I am what I am’, i.e., ‘I am’ ever the Changeless One, ever the same Self, at the end as at the beginning, for ‘I have’, i.e., the ‘I’ has, no beginning and no end. Bible too says: “I am that I am... I am hath sent me unto you”: (Exodus). The words “I am hath sent me” are very note-worthy.* The sayings of Védānta and Tasawwuf are so similar as

1 Kaushtālaki Up., i. 6.

* “Then spoke Zarathushtra: Tell me, O pure Ahuramazda, the name which is thy greatest, best, fairest, most efficacious for prayer. Answered Ahuramazda: My 1st name is Ahmi, ... My twentieth name is Ahmi Yād Ahmi”; Haug’s Essays on the Pārsis, 195. “In the Hūrmuzd-Yāṣṭ of the Zenā-avestā, Ahuramazdāo to be almost indistinguishable when translated into a third language. Thus:

(O pilgrims for the Shrine! Where go ye, where?
Come back! come back! The Beloved is here!
His presence all your neighbourhood doth bless!
Why will ye wander in the wilderness?
Ye who are seeking God! Yourselves are He!
Ye need not search! He is Ye, verily!
Why will ye seek for what was never lost?
There is Naught-Else-than-Ye! Be not doubt-tost!)

(The wise see in their heart the face of God,
And not in images of stone and clod!
Who in themselves, alas!, can see Him not,
They seek to find Him in some outer spot.)

enumerates twenty of his names. The first is Ahmi (Skt., Asmi, 'I am.' The last is Ahmi Yad Ahmi (Skt., Asmi Ya'd Asmi, Yo-smi so-smi, Yo-ham
So-ham, 'I am what I am'). Both of these phrases are also names of Jehovah in the Bible: And God said unto Moses, 'I am that I am', Ehyeh ashar yehyeh.
And he said, 'Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel: I am hath sent me unto you'.” (Gangā Prasād,
The Fountain-Head of Religion, p. 47.) "In the Egyptian Book of the Dead, 'I am he who I am' is applied to a god”; (M. Yearsley, The Story of the Bible, p. 79). Jesus says: "Before Abraham was, I am”, (B.); which can mean only that 'I am', the Self, the Principle of Consciousness, was 'before Abraham' and everything Else.
The originals of this translation are:

Ai Qaum! ba hajj raftah! kujā ēḍ, kujā ēḍ!
Mā’shūq hamīn jā-st, bi-āyēḍ, bi-āyēḍ!
Mā’shūqe-to, hamsāya-to, ḍīwār ba ḍīwār;
Dar bādiyāh sar-gashṭah cherā ēḍ, cherā ēḍ!
Ānān ke ṭalab-gār-i-Khuddā ēḍ, Khuddā ēḍ!
Hājaṭ ba ṭalab n-īst, shumā ēḍ, shumā-ēḍ!
Chīzē ke na gardīḍ gum az bahre che joyēḍ?
Kas ghair-i-shumā n-īst, kujā ēḍ, kujā ēḍ!

(Shams Ṭabrēz)

Shivam Āṭmanī pashtyanī, pratimāsu na yoginah;
Āṭma-sṭham yē na pashtyanī, ṭīrtḥē mārganī tē Shivam!

(Shiva Purāna.)

Sarvasya-iva janasy-āsya
Vishnuh abhi-anṭarē sthitah;
Ṭam pari-tyajya tē yānti
bahir-Vishnum nar-āḍhamāh.

(Yoga Vāsishtha, 5. 34. 26)

(The ‘All-pervading’ Self, ‘Who bindeth all’,
‘Knits them together’, bides in every heart—
Who turn from Him, the Inmost Deity,
Seeking outside, their eyes are yet thick-veiled.)

Sarva-bhūtēshu yah pashtyēḍ
Bhagavaḍ-bhāvam Āṭmanah,
150 TO DOUBT THEE IS TO DOUBT MY-SELF! [CH. II

Bhūtānī Bhagavatī Āṭmani, asau Bhāgavat-ottamah. (Bh.)
(Whoso 'in sees' Divinity everywhere,
Godhead in every living thing, and all
In God—he only is true devotee.
And servant of the Omni-present Lord.)

A'in Hasī ḱhūḍ ṭu ī, pas az ṭo chūn munkir shawam?
Hujjaṭe hasī-ē-Tu-st īn hujjaṭ-o-inkār-i-Mā!
(Niyāz)
(When Thou, the whole of Being art Thy-Self,
How can I be so dull as to deny Thee?
To doubt thee is to doubt my-Self, indeed!)

The Upanishat-expression, Ėkam ēva A-ḍviṭīyam, ''One—not a Second,'' is to be found in Bible (Ecelesiasates) also and is echoed in Tasawwuf exactly:

Har giyāhē ke bar zamīn royad,
Waḥḍahū lā sharīk-i-lah goyaḍ. (S.)
(Each single blade of grass that sprouts from earth, Proclaims His word that 'I Al-One am He,
There is No-Other anywhere than I,'
That he, you, I are all One I, One Life.)
The words of Zoroastrian Scriptures are:
Na échīm ōm anyém Yūshmaṭ vaēdā.
(Z. Gāṭhā, xxxiv. 7.)
(None Other do I know than Thee.)
Mazađāo sakhāré mairisto. (Z., Gātha.)
(Mazađā, the One Alone, we bear in mind.)

That only is True, Real, Haq, Sat, Sure, Certain, which holds true and abides the same in all three times, past, present, future, and in all three spaces, behind, here, before, unchangingly. That which is not, but is imagined or said to be, as if it is, that is Unreal. That which at one time is and at another is not, or was not and now is, or is and will not be—is half-true and half-false. That which always is—such alone is True, Real, wholly. Naught-Else than I is such. I is I, in all times, all spaces, all conditions.

"I am (is) the Lord, I change(s) not."

(B., Malachi 3. 6.)

"Tao is unchanging, hath no name."
(Tao-te-king; BB., The Texts of Tao-ism, pt. I, p.74.)

Māsa-abḍa-yuga-kalpēshu
gat(a)-āgāmishu an-ēkaḍhā,
Na udeṭi, na aṣṭam ēti ēsbā
Samvid ēkā Svayam-prabhā.

(Pancha-dashī, 1. 7.)

Samvidō vyabhichāras-ṭu na eva ċṛṣṭto (a)ṣṭi karhi-chiṭ ;
Yadi ċṛṣṭah taḍā ċṛashtā shishtah Samvid-vaṇṇuḥ svayam.

(Devi-Bhāg. III. xxxii.)
(In all the months, years, ages, eons, cycles,
Past and to come, countless, infinitely.
What doth not ever rise nor ever set
Is this Self-lit Self-Consciousness al-one.
Break of this Consciousness was never seen.
If it was ever seen, then he who saw,
The witness, he him-Self remains behind Embodied as that Self-same Consciousness.)

"I find my boy still hardly able to grasp the fact that there was a time when he did not exist; if I talk to him about the building of the Pyramids or some such topic, he always wants to know what he was doing then, and is merely puzzled when he is told that he did not exist." This is what Mr. Bertrand Russell writes of his son and himself in his book, On Education, p. 171. He is reputed to be a brilliant philosopher and also a great mathematician; yet he told the dear boy that he (the boy) "did not exist" a few years earlier!
The child's soul, his Self, knew better, as did Wordsworth, in his Ode to Immortality. Consciousness, Self-consciousness, the Self simply cannot be conscious of a time when it, the Self, it-Self, Consciousness, is not,
was not, will not be. It is a contradiction in terms.
Immortality is indelibly stamped on the face of Consciousness, the face of God. When 'I' say that the solar system was born so many hundreds or thousands of millions of years ago and will last so many more—the whole system with all its thousands of millions of years of life-time and all its thousands of millions of millions of miles of body-space is in ' My 'Consciousness, ' now
'and 'here'; otherwise, my statement were wholly meaningless. As Sufi Sarmad well says:

Mulla goya'd ki bar falak shud Ahmad;
Sarmad goya'd ki falak ba Ahmad dar shud.
N-Ātmā jajāna na marishyaṭi na ēḍḥaté (a)sau. (Bh.)
(The Self is never born nor dies nor grows.)
Lam yaliḏ wa lam yulaḏ...
Kullu shayīn hālikun illā Wajh. Q.) (Neither begetter nor begotten He...
All things are mortal but the Face of God,
His Self, the primal moveless Cause of all.)
Yaḏ-apariṇāmi ṭaḏ-akāraṇam. (Nyāya maxim).
(What changes never, never has a cause.)
"What is incorruptible must also be ungenerable."
(Western Scholastic philosophical maxim.)
(The mullā—learned in the Scripture-word
But not its sense—says Ahmad went to Heaven;
But Sarmād says that Heaven came into Ahmad!)
Compare the following:
"We sit as in a boundless phantasmagoria and dreamgrotto; boundless, for the faintest star, the remotest century, lies not even nearer the verge thereof... Him,
the Unslumbering, whose work both Dream and Dreamer are, we see not, ...and sleep deepest while fancying ourselves most awake... The Where and When,"[dēsha and kāla], "so mysteriously inseparable from all our thoughts, are but superficial adhesions. The Seer may discern them where they mount up out of the celestial Everywhere and Forever. Have not all nations con-deived their God as Omnipresent and Eternal; as existing in a Universal Here and Everlasting Now? Space is but a mode of our human sense; so likewise Time.
There is no Space and no Time. We are... like sparkles floating in the Ether of Deity... This so solid-seeming world is but an air-image, our Me the only reality, and Nature... the phantasy of our Dream": Carlyle, Sartor Resartus, Bk. I, ch. viii.
This Self is Self-luminous because, clearly, nothing else can illumine It. It illumines all else. Eyes see sights and ears hear sounds; but who sees the eyes and who hears the ears? They obviously do not see and hear themselves. I am conscious of the eyes and of their objects, of the ears and their objects. Indeed I see and hear, rather than eyes see and ears hear. They are only the instruments I use. The 'I' is Haq-ul Yaqin, the Truth in and of Truths, the Certainty in and of all certainties.

Lā tuḍrikul-absār, wa Huā yuḍrikul-absār. (Q.)

(Eyes do not see Him, but He sees the eyes.)

Shroṭrasya shroṭram, manaso mano yaḍ,
Vācho ha vācham, Sa u prāṇasya prāṇah,
chakshushah chakshuh. (U.)

(Hearer of ear and Speaker of all speech,
Seer of eye and Mentor of the mind,
The Self is verily the Life of life.)

Kuntu sama'-ul-lazī yasma'n bihi,
Wa bisāraṭ-ul-lazī yubsiρu bihi. (Q.)

(I do become the ear by which he hears;
And I become the eye by which he sees.)

Yo vēḍ-ēḍam shṛṇavān-itti sa Ātma shravaṇāya shṛōtram; ḍarshanāya chakshuh; gandrāṇa ghrā-ṁ... (U.)
The Self, wishing the wish to hear, became
The ear; to see, the eye; to smell, the nose...

Na ṭaṭra vāg-gachchhati, as chakshuh, no mano,
na viñmo, na vijnīmo, yathā Īṣṭaḥ anu-shishyād;
anyā-eva Taḥ viḍitaḥ aṭha aviditaḥ aṭhi. (U.)

(Speech reaches not the Self, nor eye, nor mind;
We know not how we may describe our-Self;
It is not known, nor is it yet unknown,
The Knower, nor unknown nor known can be.)

Na Aham manye su veda iti,
No na veda iti veda cha;
Yo nah Taḥ veda Taḥ veda,
No na veda iti veda cha.
Yasya amatam āsya matam,
Maṭam yasya na veda sah;
Avijñātam vijñānātām,
Vijñātam avijñānātām. (U.)

(Who thinks he knows: It, he does know It not;
While he who thinks he knows It not, knows It.
We do not know whether we know or not;
We know the Self; and yet what do we know!
Then do we know it not?. But, sure, we know!
How can we say we do not know our-Self!
Indeed It is the only Thing we know
Most positive, most doubtless, here and now!)

Iyam vi-śrśhtir yaṭa-ā-babhūva,
Yaḍi vā daḍhē, yaḍi vā na,
Yo asya Aḍhyakshah paramē Vyoman,
So, anga !, vēda, yaḍi vā na vēda ! (Ṛg- Vēda).
(This vast-spread emanation, measureless,
Filling the infinite expanse of Heaven,
From Whom has it come into being? Who Maintains it going? Or doth none maintain it?
Who is its Ruler? Doth it rule it-Self?
He only knows ! Perchance He too knows not Quite wakefully, and only dreams it all !)
Cognoscendo ignorari, ignorando cognosci.

(ST. AUGUSTINE)

Ai bar-ṭar az khayāl o qayās o gumān o waḥm
W-az har che gufts-em o shaniḍ-em o khwānda-em. (S.)
(Thou art beyond all thought, conception, guess, Imagination, yea, and far beyond
All we have spoken, heard, or read in books;
These deal with Objects—Thou Subject of all !)
Āshrayaṭva-vishayaṭva-bhāginī
Nir-vibhāga-Chiṭir-eva kevalā.

(Sankṣēpa-Shāriraka).
(This marvellous Unique Self-consciousness
Al-one is Subject-Object both at once.
It knows It-Self and knows all-Else also.)

The Universal I, the Supreme Self, God, is indeed Unique, Al(1)-one. One-without-a-second, A-ḍvitiya, Ṭā-sāni. There is No-Thing Else like It, or beside It, or except It, nothing mā-siwā-Allāh, ghair-as-Khudā, Ātmanah ītaraṭ, Brahmaṇah anyaṭ, 'other than God,' 'else than Self.' It is Majmua'-i-zidāain, Sarva-viruddhahā-dharmāshrayah, 'locus, focus, reservoir, of all contradictions, all opposites'.

Ékam éva Advitiyam. (U.)

(One only, always secondless, am I.)

Lā ilāh il-Allāh. (Q.)

(There is no god in truth other than God.)

Lā ilāhā illā Anā. (Q.)

(There is no God other than I my-Self.)

Aham éva, na maṭ-to-(a)nyad, iti buddhyadvadhvam anjasā. (Bhāg.)

(Know well—There is No-Other-than-My-Self.)

"I am the Lord, and there is none Else; There is no God beside me ... I am the first and I am the last: and beside me there is no God." (B., Isaiah.)

"To Ahura Mazda, the Secondless ... I sing the song of Glory." (Z., Ahunavaṭ Gāthā, xxxvii. 3.)

"There is One alone and there is not a second; yea, He hath neither child nor brother; yet is there no end of all His labor": (i.e., the World-Process is unending). (B., Eccles., iv.)
Tasmai sam-un-naḍḍha-viruddha-shakṭayé
Namah parasmai Purushāya Veḍhasé. (Bhāg.)

(To Him who wieldeth, in th' eternal Play
Of the World-Drama, mighty, turbulent,
Opposed, and ever-battling wondrous powers
—We offer salutation to that Self.)

Aham Āṭmā, Gudā-kēsha!
sarva-bhūt-āshaya-sthitah,
Aham Ādiṣh-cha, Madhyam cha, bhūtānām Anṭa évā cha. (G.)

(I am the Self abiding in all hearts,
I am Beginning, Middle, End of all.)

Hu-wal-Awwal, Hu-wal-Ākhīr, Hu-waz-Zāhir, Hu-wal-Bāṭin, wa Hu-wā be kulle shayīn Alīm. (Q.)

(He is the First, He is the Last also,
He is the Outer, He the Inner too,
The Manifest and yet Unmanifest,
The Lord, Ordainer, Knower of all things.)

"I am (is) the first and the last ... I am the alpha and the omega." (B.)

"I am (is) the Light which lighteth every man.
... without Me" (the Supreme Self in all) "thou canst do nothing." (B.)

"The Lord, before and beyond whom there is No
Other." (Z., Yasna, xxviii. 3.)
“My name is He who hath shaped everything.”

(Z., Ahura-Mazda Yasht, 14.)

At hoi dāmām, ḥvahmi ādām, Ahūra!

(Z., Gāthā, 48.7.)

(Ahura! the Beginning Thou, and End!)

All these great words describe, befittingly, the I, the Self, the Principle of Consciousness Al(l)-One, and Nothing Else.

‘I’ is the Ahad, of which nothing can be pre-dicated, not even existence or non-existence, Zāt-i-sādiq, Zāt-i-muṭlaq, Munqāṭa’-ul-isharat, Lā-bashart-i-shay, Shuddha, Nir-guna, Nir-vishēsha, Nir-ava-chchhinna, the Ab-solute, Pure Being (same as Pure No-Thing), Attribute-less, Un-particularised, Un-conditioned.

N-Āsad-āsin-no-Saṭ-āsit. (Rg Vēda).

(Neither Non-being was, nor Being then.)

Na San, na ch-Āsan, na ṭathā, na ch-ānyathā, Na jāyāṭe, vyēti, na cha avahīyatē, Na vardhatē, n-āpi vishuddhyatē punah, Vīshuddhyatē Tat Param-ārtha-lakṣaṇam.

(Bu., ASANGA.)

A-nirodham, an-uptādam, an-uchchhēdām, a-shāshvatam,
An-ēk-ārtham, a-nān-ārtham,
an-āgāmam, a-nirgāmam,
Na san, n-åsan, na saä-asan,
Na ch-äpy-anubhay-ätmakam,
Chaåush-koti-vi-nir-muktam
Taåttvam Måådyamikåh vidåuh.
(Bu., Nåågrjuna, Mååhyamika-Kårikå.)

(It is not non-existent, nor existent,
It is not thus, nor is it otherwise,
It takes not birth, nor grows, decays, or dies,
It has no stain to purify away,
It is the ever Pure—such is the mark
Of that which hath no mark, the One Supreme.
It cannot be suppressed, nor yet expressed,
It cannot die, nor yet be brought to birth,
Nor is it slayable, nor everlasting,
It means not any one thing, nor yet many,
It cometh not, nor ever doth It go.
Not being, nor non-being, nor yet both,
Nor free from both! This wondrous Mystery,
Void of these four conditions, is the Truth
Which those that tread the Middle Path declare.)

Syååd åsti, syåån n-åsti, syååd åsti cha n-åsti cha, syååd a-vakåtàvyah, syååd åsti ch-åvakåtàvyah, syåån n-åsti ch-åvakåtàvyah, syååd-åsti cha n-åsti ch-åvakåtà-yah.  (J., Syååd-Vååda.)

(Perhaps It is; or may be It is not;
Or it may be that It both is and not;
Or It is only Indescribable;
Or though unspeakable It perhaps is;
Or It both is not and unspeakable;
Or, seventhly, it may be that It is:
And is not and unspeakable also!)

A-pra-hiṇam, A-sam-prāptam,
An-uch-chhinnam, A-shāśvātam.
A-ni-ruddham, An-uṭ-pādam,
Ētān Nir-vāṇam uchyaṭe.
Aṣṭi, n-āṣṭi, aṣṭi-n-āṣṭi-iṭi,
N-aṣṭi-n-āṣṭi-iṭi wā punah,
Chala-aṣṭhir-obhay-ā-bhāvaih
Ā-vṛṇoṭi ēva bālīshah.
Kotyash-chaṭasrah ētāh tu,
Grahaṇi yāsām sādā-vṛtāh,
Bhagavān ābhīr-a-sprāshto
Dṛśhito yēna sa sarva-dṛk.

(Bu., Nāgārjuna, Mādh. Kā.)

('Tis never lost; nor is it ever found;
It never ends; nor is it ever-lasting;
'Tis ne'er suppressed; nor is it ever born;
Such is the state that is Nir-vāṇa called.
Is; is not; is and is not both at once;
Is not, is not at all; these are the four
Alternatives that wrap all for child-minds.
He who has seen the Lord beyond them all,
He has seen All; he has touched Omniscience.)
Tad-ejati, Tan-na ejati,
Tad-dure, Tad u antike,
Tad antar-asya sarvasya,
Tad u sarvasy-asya bahyaṭah. (Isha-U.)

(It moveth and It moveth not at all,
It is the farthest of the far, It is
The nearest of the near, It is within,
And yet it is without all that we know.)

"Alone It standeth and It changeth not;
Around it moveth, and It suffereth not;
The Mother of the World It may be called."

(T., Tao-teh-king, THR., 6.)

"I am the Lord, I change not." (B., Malachi.)

An-Eka mainhi Ėka rājai, Ėka mainhi an-Ēka-no,
Ēk-Ānēka kī nahiṁ sankhyā!, namo Siḍḍha
Niranjano! (J., Bhū-phara.)

(That which is One in many, Many in One, Yet Neither One nor Many—I bow to That !)

"The Tao hath no beginning and no end." (BB., 88.)

Ai! ke ḍar héch ja na ḍārī ja!
Bu-l-a'jab māṇḍah am ke har-jā-i!
Ba-jahāṅ ḍar hamēśha paīḍā-i!
Lék ḍar chashm-i-man na mī āyi!

(S., Wesāli, Mā-muqīmān.)

(O Thou that hast no place in any place,
And yet, O wonder I, art in every place!)
That art appearing perpetually,
In every place within this wheeling world,
Yet cannot be encompassed by my eyes!)

"The Tao cannot be heard; what can be heard
Is not the Tao; the Tao cannot be seen;
What can be seen is not the Tao at all.
By words the Tao may not be well expressed;
What can be thus expressed is not the Tao.
The Formless gives to every form that form;
Can we know It as else than Void of Form?
The Nameless gives to every name that name;
It-Self may not be named but by all names."

(BB., 87; SBE., vol. 40, p. 69.)

"The Tao is not exhausted by the greatest,
Nor is It ever absent from the least,
In all things is It found, complete, diffused.
How wide Its universal comprehension!
How utter Its unfathomableness!
Embodiment of Its great attributes,
In Righteousness and in Beneficence,
Is but a small result of Its pervasion,
Its subtle working in the heart of man,
Only the perfect man knows this for sure,
And only such can hold charge of the world.

(BB. p. 93, 'The Texts of Taoism'; Kwang Tse, S.B.E. vol. 39, p. 342.)
Chakra, chihna, aru varṇa jāṭi, āru pāṭi nahina jihu,
Rūpa, ranga, aru rékha, bhékha,
koī kahi na sakaṭa jihu,
A-chala-mūraṭi, Anu-bhava-prakāsa,
Amit-oja kahijai!
Koti Indra-Indrān Shāha-
shāhāna ganijai!
Tri-bhuvana Mahī-pa; sura nara asura,
N-ēti, N-ēti. vana ṭerna kahat,
Tava sarva nāma kathai kavana,
karma nāma varnaṭa sumāṭ!
Èka mūraṭi an-ēka dārshana,
kīna rūpa an-ēka,
Khēla khēla a-khēla khēlana
anṭa ko phira Èka!

(Si., Guru Govinda Sinha, Jāp.)

(O Thou! that hath no mark, sign, caste, or creed,
No clan, tribe, form, or color, or outline,
No special shape or dress; Thou Movelessness!
Self-luminosity eternally!,
Measureless, fathomless, All-Potency!
Lord of the three worlds—Waking, Dreaming,
Sleep—
Angels, men, titans, forests grasses, all,
Only 'Not-This', 'Not-This', of Thee declare!
Who may recite Thy Names and Works in full,
Since every name and every work is Thine:
One art Thou, countless yet Thy Multitude!
All forms are Thine through which Thou makest Play;
All merge back into Thee at End of Day!

A-nir-vachanīyam. (Vedānta.)
(This Self indeed is indescribable
In words, though indefeasibly Self-known.)

Yan na duḥkhēna sam-bhinnam,
Na cha graśṭam an-anṭarā,
Abhi-lāsh-opaniṭam cha,
Tat paḍam Svah-paḍ-āspaḍam.

(Kumārila, Mīmāṃsā-Shloka-Vārtikā.)

(That which is not alloyed ever with pain,
Nor liable to come to sudden end,
And has been brought to us by our desire,
That is the state known by the name of Svah,
True Heav’n where reigns the Supreme Self alone.)

Whom else can all these ‘descriptions’ which are ‘non-descriptions’, proclamations of inability to describe, fit, except the Self? This so indescribable
‘I’ cannot be proved by anything else. The ‘I’ proves whatever else is provable. Nobody saw the I’ being born or dying. Bodies are seen being born and dying; never an ‘I,’ the ‘I’. ‘I’ only can see ‘I’ being born or dying; Consciousness only can be conscious of consciousness originating or ceasing; which is a self-contradiction. 'Another's consciousness,' 'another-consciousness,' cannot be conscious of 'My consciousness, of 'I-consciousness,' beginning or ending; that again is a self-contradiction. The fact is that the Principle of Consciousness, the Self, is One, Universal, all-pervading, a Plenum without parts, without break. The appearance of separate individual selves, of separateness, tāfraqā, bhēḍa, is an illusion, is the great Jā'īl of the Jā'et Māyā of the Māyī; as the appearance of countless bubbles, ripples, waves, billows, in the ocean, separate-seeming yet inseparable from the ocean and from each other. There is no 'Another-consciousness.' 'Consciousness' is always only 'I-consciousness,' 'My-consciousness'; never 'an-other-consciousness.' One Consciousness only animates all material forms. The methods, degrees, kinds, of manifestation are infinitely different in the pseudo-infinite forms. That One Consciousness appears as now sleeping, now waking, in this form; or as giving up that form; or as taking up another. It never can conceive itself as beginning or ceasing. Whatever the point of time, in the past, or in the future, a few seconds away, or trillions and quadrillions of years distant, at which it may try to conceive itself as ceasing or beginning—it is already present before and beyond that point of time; it includes that point of time, with all the intervening period, within its vast embrace, and reaches infinitely farther still, beyond, on both sides. Truly is this Self-consciousness Unique, vaster than the vastest, smaller than the smallest.

Universal Being, Hasṭi-i-mutlaq, Saṭṭa-sāmanya, is the logician's sumnum genus, jins-i-a'la, parā-jāti. At the other end are the smallest particles, atoms, electrons, protons, ions, super-atoms, paramānus, or whatever else they may be called, (—and neither the largest nor the smallest can ever be reached in any given time and space, the infinitesimal is also infinite—), aṇu, zarrā, the sumnum individuum or parvum or parulum or minutum individuum, (infima species), ṭashakhlus-i-adnā, para-vishēsha. This I is both Universal Being and, ultimately, finally, particular indivisible In-divid-ual Being. It is Infinite as well as Infinitesimal. What is the proof of Universal Being, of "Is," est, hast, aṣṭi? Is it not I, My Consciousness, 'Am'? Am I not present everywhere and everywhen? Whatever significance, smallest or vastest, can be assigned to these two words, is already within My Consciousness. 'Am' is the proof of 'Is'; not 'Is' of 'Am'. The only Being that we know, for certain, without a possibility of doubt, is My Being, 'Am'; all other beings, all other existences, have only such and so much existence as my Consciousness of them gives to them. What is the proof of the most utterly 'particularised' being? Again, nothing else than 'Am', 'I am'. For, obviously, nothing is more 'a-tom-ic', in-divis-ible, more immediately, positively, definitely other-repudiating, nothing more completely distinguishes itself off from all 'other', than 'I', my feel of 'personality,' here and now. Yet this so extremely compressed and limited 'here and now and thus' is infinitely expansible to 'anywhere and any-when and also anyhow'. Whatever stretch of space or time or wealth of experiences I bring into my con-sciousness, my imagination, I envelop it all.

Wasa' Rabbonā kulle shayīn ilmā...
Huā alā kulle shayīn muhīṭ
Huā mākum yanama kuntoń. (Q.)
(God's Consciousness envelopeth all things...
He doth pervade, include, all things and beings...
Wherever you may be, He is with you).
"Saith the Lord: Do not I fill heaven and earth?" (B.)
Añor-añiyān, mahañò mahiyān. (U.)
(Greater than greatest, than smallest more small).
So-yam Ātmā... ēsha mē Ātmā... sarva-karmā, sarva-kāmah, sarva-gaṇḍhah, sarva-rasah, sarva-gaṭah, sarva-prāṇ-āspaḍah, sarvaṭo-mukhah, sarva-jñāh, sarvaṭah-pāni-pāḍah, sarv-ānāna-shiro-grīvah,
(This Self, My-Self, does all acts that are done; Feels all desires that are felt anywhere; Smells, tastes, sees, hears, and touches everything; All heads, eyes, ears, arms, legs, mouths, hands, and feet, Are Mine, My Self's, the Self's; It dwells in all; Creates pervades, preserves, and wipes out all; All life of every living thing is drawn From Its infinite life; all death—Its sleep; Whoever knows, and whatsoever he knows, Is known by It, by Me, by the One Self; It is the Lord of All; Its Final Name Is 'I', the Universal Name of All, That every living 'one' gives to 'one-Self.')

I say, 'I am a human being', I become identified in interest and sympathy with the whole of the human race, some two thousand million individuals.

'I am an Indian'—my consciousness at once contracts to three hundred and eighty million. 'I am Bhagavan Dās _alias_ Abūl Ṭādir'—it shrinks immensely with amazing rapidity to a single lump of a few score pounds of bone and flesh and blood. 'I am a living being'—it suddenly expands infinitely to embrace all the universe, for there is not an atom of matter that is not alive, not pervaded by the Spirit, by Consciousness, by Life.

'How it expands consciousness, broadens mind, enlarges heart, and promotes science and philosophy, if we look for similarity amidst diversity, and unity amidst similarity; and how it contracts outlook, narrows intelligence, warps sympathy, hinders appreciation of rational knowledge, if we look for differences rather than agreements, dividing features instead of unifying ones, may be illustrated thus. A greatly esteemed Maulavi friend wrote to me that the 'essentials' of Islam are: (a) Belief in (1) Allah, (2) Muhammad as His Chief Prophet, and other prophets, (3) Qurān as God's word, (4) Day of Judgment, (5) God's omniscience; and (b) Practice of (6) _salāt_ or _namāz_, prayer, (7) _saum_ or _rosā_, fasts, (8) _zakāt_, charity, (9) _hājj_, pilgrimage, (10) _jehād_, war in defence of Islām, (11) three festivals, _Īd-_ _ul-_ _fiṭr_, _Īd-_ _ul-_ _uz-_ _zohā_, Muharram. An equally worthy Pandit said, the 'essentials' of Hinduism are: (a) Belief in (1) Paramēśvara, (2) Kṛṣṇa as His Chief _Avatāra_, and other _avatāras_, (3) _Vēḍa_ as God's word, (4) Judgment of Yama, in accordance with the Laws of Karma and Re-incarnation, (5) omniscience and accuracy of Yama's recorder, Chiṭra-Gupta; and (b) Practice of (6) _saṃdhya_, prayer, (7) _vraṭa-ūpā-vāsa_, fasting, especially on ekādaśī, eleventh day of the lunar fortnight, (8) _dāna_, charity, (9) _tīrtha-_ _yāṭrā_, pilgrimage, (10) _dharma-_ _rakṣā_, defence of Dharma, (11) a number of seasonal
The sense of the 'separateness' of each personality, 'Ego-ism', the sense that 'I am I' and 'you are you', is so strong; this bhēda-buḍḍhi, ghairiyat, created by separateness of bodies, is so overpoweringly ascendant; that the concept, feeling, and historical festivals, e.g., Holi (spring), Nir-jalā (summer), Śēva-shāyanī (beginning of rains), Shrāvaṇī (middle of rains), Śēv-oṭṭhāna (end of rains), Dīpāvalī (autumn), Makara-snāna (winter), etc., and Rāma-nawami (birthday of Rāma), Kṛṣṇ-āśtami (birthday of Kṛṣṇa), etc., and (12) Varn-āśrama-dharma (the system of four 'class-castes and four stages of life'). Here are two sets of 'essentials'. And there are two ways of interpreting them. If we see them with the eye of difference, which sees particulars only—the stage is set for a mutual breaking of heads and feuds descending from century to century. But if we see them with the eye of agreement, which discerns the common features, the genera, behind the particulars, clearly—then we have irresistible inducement for hand-shakings and embraces and rejoicing of hearts.

Sarvaḍā sarva-bhāvānām
sāmāṇyam vrddhi-kāraṇam;
Hrāsa-hēṭur-vishēśhas tu;
pravṛttir-ubhayasya cha. (Charaka.)

(If we look at the common elements, Which make the genus, then all entities Expand from more to more; but if we look Exclusively upon the differences, Then all things shrink to ever narrower limits. Both tendencies are ever at their work. The wise man sides with the inclusive one.)

Muhammad has been quoted before (p. 83) as appealing to all to meet on high common ground. We have sense, of a common I, a single I, running through all bodies, and vitalising, energising, moving, controlling them all—is very puzzling and difficult to apprehend at first. Yet it is the very heart, the foundation, of all Religion. Like lesser but also difficult concepts, in all sciences, it becomes more only to translate the two sets of 'essentials' into general terms to see the essential unity of them. Thus: (a) Belief in (1) the Supreme Being, (2) highly advanced philanthropic souls, appearing from time to time in various races, as great teachers and lovers of mankind, (3) sacred scriptures, embodying knowledge which is of most help to mankind, (4) the law of cause and effect, of action and reaction, whereby sin unfailingly meets punishment, and virtue reward, in its own proper time, here or hereafter, (5) the omniscience and impartial justice of the Supreme Being; and (b) Practice of (6) prayer, (7) self-denying restraint of the senses, especially of the tongue, (8) discriminate charity, (9) pilgrimage and travel, in the spirit of reverence for all manifestations of God's Nature, (10) defence of the right against the wrong, (11) disciplines, festivals, public rejoicings and mournings for expression and promotion of fellow-feeling, (12) a rational Social Organisation, with a just division of the social labor, of the means of living, and of the necessaries, the comforts, and the luxuries or prizes of life, in accordance with the vocational temperaments of the different types of men, as indicated by the principles of psychology. Incidentally, Yama is the same as Al Qābiz, the Regulator, Judge, Punisher; and Chiṭra-gupta is Al-Muhsiy, the Recorder, Counter, Accountant, the 'Hidden Picture,' Lauh-i-Mahfūz, 'Preserved Tablet' of Hāfizā, Memory, Universal Mind, in which all is ever recorded and preserved, past, present, and future; Skṛt, Chīt or Chīti, 'gatherer.'

and more clear, by dwelling upon, reflection, meditation. Analogies, as always, are very useful. My toes and fingers, my limbs, my sensor and motor organs, the billions of living cells, which make up the 'I' or 'me' that is my living body, are all separate from each other, and have independent lives. Yet, are they wholly separate? Have they completely independent lives? My 'I' runs through them all, holds them all together. The word 'we'; the feel 'sympathy'; the fact 'common interest'; the thing 'common property', 'public property'—all these would be impossible, if there were no unity, running latent, through the patent diversity and multiplicity of the world.

To make this latent Unity less latent, to make human beings more conscious of it, is the main purpose of Religion. To make it fully patent, vai-rāgya, mujānibat, vi-shāda, bēzārī, māhā-karunā, rahm, change of heart, altruism, disgust with our own egoism in general, dis-illusion-ment, world-weariness, world-sadness, satiety, surfeit, nir-vēḍa, sēri-ad-dunyā, dil-bardāshītāgī, and great compassion for the world, a craving, yearning, that all these other helpless souls as well as our own, wandering in the dark, may see light, may find the way out of this terrible labyrinth—all these are needed. They create the state of mind, the condition of soul, in which the finite dissolves into the Infinite, emotional and intellectual egoism is broken by emotional and intellectual altruism, and leaves behind Universalism. Some prefer to call this mood as Spiritual Consciousness, Super-mind, yoga-ja-jñāna, a state transcending ordinary Intellect, a peculiar state of exaltation and realisation, like the rising of the sun upon a world of darkness; though, bye and bye, the exalted glories of the many-hued splendours of the dawn settle down into the steady light of day, and are utilised for the world’s work, are made ‘integral for life’, are ‘integrated into the daily life’, as some would say.

In a sense, it is perfectly true that there is a special descent of the ‘supra-mental’ Divine, in such a condition; that God comes in, because egoism has gone out and made room; and the whole life is transformed. But it is also true that in the case of the ‘lower knowledge’ of any special science, the same process of ‘yoga’, though on a lower level, always takes place. Every discovery and invention is followed by an elation and exaltation in the inventor’s and discoverer’s being. ‘Yoga is performed in all states and stages, on all planes of mind’: thus declares Yoga-Sūtra-Bhāshya (i.1.). 'Change of Heart’, from hard to soft, from sārāgya to vai-rāgya from kūra-tā to karuṇā, from takabbur to hilm, from gharrah to inkisār, from ‘pride’ to ‘humility’, from maḍa to vinaya, nāmṛa-tā, is absolutely necessary, before God can come into it. Sympathy, Fellow-feeling, is of, from, by, Love Spiritual; and such Love is God.

God is very near the simple, innocent, guileless, unselfish, loving child—unconsciously; or better, supra-consciously. He is very near, the wise man in his second childhood—who has become as children, 'simple of heart'; but deliberately so, because he has realised the evils consequent on crookedness; 'natural' again, because he has experienced and put aside artificial ways; 'unsophisticated', by voluntary de-sophistication.

"Except ye be converted, except ye be born again, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven." (B.)

Brāhmaṇah pāṇḍityam nir-viḍya bāłyena tishtha-śet; bālyam cha pāṇḍityam cha nir-viḍya atha munih; a-maunam cha maunam cha nir-viḍya atha brāhmaṇah. (U.)

(The learned priest—let him feel sick of all
That load of arid learning, argument
Endless, and bitter odious debate;
Let him become again as simple child;
Next let him take to ways of silent thought,
Prolonged communing with him-Self, within;
And, finally, let him pass from that too,
And be the natural duteous Man of God.)
Such are the stages on the 'return-journey' of the soul 'back to God', on Qaus-i-Urūj, or Safar-i-Abd, as also, Sūfis call it; i.e., 'the journey of the servant' back to 'God-hood'. The opposite journey, of Qaus-i-Nazūl, is correspondingly called Safar-i-Haq, 'the journey of God' towards 'servant-hood'. Briefly, the hard in heart cannot see God because they cannot feel that Love which is an integral and essential aspect of God. Ego-ism hardens the heart; Altru-ism softens it. This mood of altruism, bé-khudi, nis-svārtha-ṭā, nir-aham-kāra, comes to every soul, in its own good time, in the course of evolution.¹

¹ "Heraclitus says that the road up and the road down are the same... But the road down, from the Creator to the creatures, is no business of ours, and, frankly, we know nothing about it. It is wisest to admit that we know neither how nor why there is a universe... The upward path, the return to God may be traced" : Dean Inge, (see p. 27 supra). Some Sūfis have also expressed a similar view. To those who do not feel the craving to know 'the road down', 'the how and why of the universe', there is nothing more to be said, of course. But to others, who do, Scriptures give the answer, in broad outline. Modern science tries to see the 'how', in terms of Evolution, Integration-and-Dis-integration. Kṛṣṇa says in Gīṭā : 'Self-realisation is completed only when the many is seen rooting back into the One, and also the One sprouting and branching into the Many.'

² Other ways of expressing the truth are these: Man must neither any longer feel separate from fellow-creatures, nor feel any separateness between different component parts of his being; he must become a whole,
There is a danger, a great danger, lurking here, man, in trying to find identity with God, the inner Spirit of all, may deliberately identify himself with the Satan of the outer flesh of our body. This is illustrated by the story of Indra and Virochana in a unity, consistent in all parts; there must be no inconsistency between his thought, his word, his deed, between his intellectual, emotional, and active being-s; his religion must not be kept in a water-tight compartment, carefully preserved from contact with his daily life in the world; his religion must pervade his whole being, guide his thoughts, as well as words, as well as actions; his weekdays must be as his Sundays; he must be conscious in feeling as well as in intellect, i.e., he must not allow himself to be run away with, swept off his feet, by his feelings; he must deliberately choose, and feel, only the right and appropriate emotions; his personal life, as a separate-seeming individual, must become subordinate to his impersonal life as really one with the Universal; the centre of egoism, the hardness of heart, must be dissolved, by nir-véda, vi-shāda, vair-āgya, deep dispassion, plus maha-karunā, passionate compassion for all suffering. Truly, 'the hard in heart cannot see God'; and 'the meek', the soft in heart, 'shall see God', shall become sovereign ruler and king over their earthly bodies, and, some day, over the whole earth, literally, also, when the majority of human beings have learnt the great lesson of Evolution, have subordinated ego-ism to altru-ism and universal-ism, and have thereby brought the longed-for millennium, Golden Age, Satya-yuga, again, to Earth. "Seek in the heart the source of evil, and expunge it... It is a plant that lives and increases throughout the ages... He who would enter upon the Path... must tear this thing out of his heart. Then the heart will bleed and the whole life of the man seem Upanishats, and of the fall of the archangel Azaziel into the state of Satan in Christian and Muslim legend. The consequences of such subtle error are utterly dissolved. This ordeal must be endured. Each man is to himself absolutely the Way, the Truth, and the Life. But he is so only when he grasps his whole individuality firmly, and, by the force of his awakened spiritual will, recognises this individuality as not himself, but that thing which he has with pain created for his own use, and by means of which he purposes, as his growth slowly develops, to reach to the life beyond individuality: " (Light on the Path, Theosophical Publishing House, Adyar, Madras.) This opening out of the individual soul to and into the Universal Spirit, takes place, in each case, in its own good time. It cannot be forced. It begins from within. The soul grows as the flower grows, by its own vital force, and in accord with the cyclic laws of life. But the gardener can make the conditions which are most favourable to the growth. The old generation teaches the outlines of general geography to the younger generation. The actual visiting of any of the places of the earth has to be done by the grown-up. So has the message of Essential Religion to be given by the father to the child, and to remain in his mind as seed, to put forth root and shoot, branch, leaf, bud, blossom, and fruit, in its own good time. Then the ' heard ' will become the ' seen '.

' Ai'zāz-i-El seems to mean 'the Supreme Greatness of God'. Majesty of Benevolence, inverted, becomes Pride of Malevolence. Demon est Deus inversus. There is another, and fine, conception of Satan in Hebrew theology. God commands his highest angel to 'act' as his reverse and adverse, as Satan, deliberately to test and strengthen and advance souls to salvation, through sin and suffering. When they fail to stand his tests and temptations, Satan rejoices—outwardly; inwards he endlessly disastrous; as when the public servant commits the grievous mistake of regarding himself as public master; or the trustee makes himself proprietor; or the basis of social organization is shifted from vocational temperament and aptitude to hereditary caste; then all duties are forgotten, and all rights are grabbed, as by divine birth-right, without need of any worth. The most supernal blessing then becomes the most infernal curse. In earlier times, this sacred truth, of the identity, in essence, of Man and God, was not always preached publicly, weeps. Ultimately, when they spurn him, he gnashes his teeth—outwardly; inwardly he rejoices greatly. Marie Corelli’s fine novel, The Sorrows of Satan, is based on this idea. Nārāyaṇa (nārāma, mokṣhaṁ, ṇaḍāṭi, ‘he who brings release, salvation’) is a very different yet similar figure in Purānic mythology. He is a well-known devotee and favourite of Viṣṇu, and his chief ‘sport and pastime’ is to cause wars between kings, by subtle praises of one to another, to arouse their jealous pride. Khwājā Khızir is yet another, different yet similar, figure in Islamic legend. In Purānic mythology Indra, king of devas, gods or angels, also discharges the duty of tempting and trying ṛṣhis, yogis, aspirants for psychological and spiritual perfection and moksha, through the agency of apsarās, nymphs. In Buddhism, Mara is the great tempter. Etymologically, the word means ‘slayer’, but actually it is used as synonymous with Kāma, Eros, Love-Lust; because carnal love-lust ‘mars,’ leads to death. Birth of physical body necessarily means death of it, later. Also, Lust precedes and generates all the other evil passions, which ‘mar’, ‘slay’, good spiritual emotions and affections. This will be expounded, later on, more fully.
lest it be not understood, but turned away from, and so put to shame, by those not interested in and not ready for it; or, becoming cheap, be treated with levity and ridicule by the light-minded, in whom familiarity breeds contempt; or, worst of all, being disastrously misunderstood, breed arrogance instead of humility, hateful scorn instead of love. But conditions are different to-day. General level of intelligence is much higher. The opposite error, of sensual and proud egoism, is rampant. Corrective counsel is greatly needed and is perhaps more easily applicable. Argument has perhaps greater chance. Finally, there seems no other resource, no better alternative, for fighting the forces of 'darkness', whose chief weapon is viciously false propaganda, than to spread 'light', right knowledge, by true propaganda. The very purpose of genuine religion is to guard man against such perversion, to lead him from small self to Great Self, from sinner to saint, from selfishness to selflessness, from Darkness to Light, from Untruth to Truth, from Evil to Good, from Satan to God, from Khudi to Khudä, from Angra Mainyu to Spenta Mainyu, from Matter to Spirit, from the Third person to the First, from Jivâtmâ to Parama-âtmâ, from Egoism to Altruistic Universalism.¹

¹See f.n., pp. 59-60 supra. Buddhist Sutras distinguish between mahâ-âtmâ and alp-âtmâ, kalyân-âtmâ and Mazaḏā Ahurā! ... Ma-ibyo ḍāvoi ahvāo aṣṭavaṭ-chā hyaṭ chā manangho āyaptā.

Hyaṭ ṭā ūrvāṭā sashaṭhā yā Mazaḏāo ḍaḍāṭā ... khīṭī chā aniṭī chā ... at aipī ṭaish anghahaṭī āushṭā.

Yayāo spanyāo ōiṭi mravaṭa yeōa angrēma no-iṭ nā manāo, no-iṭ sēnghā no-iṭ khraṭavo, na ēḍā varanā, no-iṭ ukh-dhā, no-iṭ shyaoṭhā, no-iṭ dae-nāo, no-iṭ ūrvāno sachanṭē. (Z., Gāṯhā, 28. 2; 30. 11; 45. 2.)

(Lord Mazaḏā Ahurā!, grant unto us
To realise the difference between
Our two selves, the physical lower one,
And th' other, higher, of the better mind.
Of these two selves that Mazaḏā gave to us,
The higher Self points ever to the Right,
The lower one misleads towards the Wrong;
Determined by these two are all our acts.
The Brighter Self unto the Darker says:
Neither our minds, nor well-cognised beliefs,
Nor duties, manners, words, nor our deeds,
Nor our religions, nor our souls agree.)

Dvā suparṇā sayujā sakhāyā
Ēkam vṛkṣam pari-shasvajāṭe;
pāp-āṭmā, 'great soul' and 'small soul', 'good soul' and 'evil soul'. Confucius distinguishes between 'the princely soul', chun-ţzu, and 'the petty man', hsiao-jen.
Tayor-ékah pippalam svādu aṭṭi,
An-ashnan Anyo-abhi-chākashīti. (U.)
(Two birds do nest upon the self-same tree;
One tastes the fruits—now bitter, and now sweet;
The other looketh on eternally.)

Manas ṭu ḍvī-vidham proktam
Shuddham ch-āshuddham ēva cha;
Ashuddham kāma-sakalpam,
Shuddham kāma-vivarjitam. (U.)
(The mind is of two kinds, one good, one bad;
Motived by selfish egoist desire,
Is the bad mind; inspired by altruism,
Free from all foul desires, is the good mind.)

Asha and Druj (Love and Hate, Ichchhā or Rāga and Droha or Dvēsha); Armaïti and Tarmaïti (righteous activity and wrongful activity);
Spenta-Mainyu and Angra-Mainyu, good or bright Spirit or Mind and bad or dark one; Vohu or Vahishṭo Mano and Achishṭo Mano, pure mind and impure mind; such are other words, in Zoroastrian Books, for the same pair of opposites, the two ārvāṭā, given to us by Ahurā Mazda, the One.

1 Qurān mentions two angels, Hārūt and Mārūt. Shri J. M. Chatterji, The Ethical Conceptions of the Gāthā, suggests that these are the same as those known to Jews and pre-Christian Armenians as Horot and Morot; to Zoroastrians as Haurvāṭa and Amereṭa; to Vaiḍikas as Rṭam and Amṛtam. But the functions of the two are changed in the theology of each religion.
'Great Wise all-ideating all-creating' Principle of Consciousness.'

' See 'Duality' and 'Opposites' in the subject-Index infra. It is a well-known maxim of Védānta that manifestation is impossible without 'opposites': Avyaktàm vyajya té dvam-dvaih, 'by pairs of opposites is the Un-manifest manifested'. Gitā makes repeated reference to dvam-dva-s, and says that the seeker of Peace must transcend these pairs (in mind). Maulānā Rūmī has some good verses on the point. Indeed, all thinkers, of east and west alike, have recognised the axiomatic nature of the maxim, with their heads, though the hearts of many have continued to wish, as do the hearts of all non-thinkers, that pain and evil were abolished, and only pleasure and good remained.

Pas, baḍ-é muṭlaq na bāshaḍ ḍar jahān;
Baḍ, ba-nisbaṭ bāshaḍ ; in rā ham bi-dān.
Bas nihānī-ḥā ba ziḍ paiddā shawāḍ;
Chūn ke Haq rā n-īṣṭ ziḍ, pinhānī shawāḍ;
Pas binā-ē-kḥalq bar azḍād būd;
Lā-jiram mā jangiy-am az zarr-o süd. (RUMI).
(No evil, absolute, is in the world;
Know well, all evils are but relative.
That which is hidden, comes out into light,
'Gainst a relieving darkness opposite;
Because there is no Opposite of God—
For all such opposites are lost in Him—
His Supreme Status ever hid remains.
Very foundation of this varied world
Is the Duality of Opposites;
Inevitably therefore must we strive
And struggle for the gain, against the loss.)

N-ātyanṭam guṇa-vaṭ kin-chiṭ,
N-ātyanṭam ḍosha-vaṭ ṭathāḥ;
Ubhābhyyām guṇa-ḍoshābhyyām
Vyāptoṁ hi sakalam jagat. (MBH.)
Very great is the need to be ever alertly and sleeplessly on guard against the awful danger of deliberately identifying ourselves with the lower, selfish, Evil mind, the baser nature, instead of with the higher, un-self-ish Good mind, the nobler nature, and the Universal Self. This asmi-tā, aham-kāra, khudī, ego-ism, the lower self, is indeed the element of Satan in man. It is the root of all lust and hate, all greed and pride of 'martial glory' and 'land-hunger', all adultery and robbery, all rape and murder, all sadism and masochism, all aggression, all self-assertion and other-suppression, all the most monstrous tyranny and oppression, all political and religious bigotry, fanaticism, persecution and cruelest torturing of dissentients and innocents.

"Thy will, O Lord!, Thou Universal Self of All!, not mine!"—says the servant of God and Humanity, the servant of God in Man. "My will, O fool!, thou slave of mine!, not thine!" says the unwitting,

(There is not anything that's wholly good,
Nor anything that purely evil is;
No course of action, no experience,
No happening that is wholly good or evil;
The two, twins, both, pervadetheworldthroughout.)

As illustration of the relativity of good and evil,
Maulānā Rūmī says:
Āb čar kashṭi, halāk-ē kashṭi āst;
Āb lékin zėr-e kastīf, pushṭi āst.
(Water beneath the boat is life for it:
Water within the boat would be its death.)
or, far worse, the witting, slave of the Satan in Man. Be ever on guard, vigilantly, against that Satan! God and Satan are both within us!'

Science no longer denies this first and most important truth, of the Universal Self, the all-pervading Principle of Consciousness; as we have seen (pp. 22 et seq.). Scientific materialism is dead. It is generally recognized that Consciousness is indefeasible. It proves the existence of matter and of the senses which perceive matter. It cannot be proved by the senses or by matter. It illuminates itself as well as all other things.

Brahma sarvam āvṛtya ṭīṣhthāti.
Ṭasya bhāsā sarvam idam vibhātī. (U.)
(Brahma abides, enveloping all things;
All things appear, illumined by Its light.)

Allāho be kulle shayīn muhit.
Allāho nūr us-samāvāti wal ard. (Q.)
(Allah surroundeth and encloseth all;
His light illumineth all heaven and earth.)

'When Self is erroneously identified with the small self, the body, then the indefeasible assurance of Consciousness about ‘it–Self is converted into aggressive self-assertiveness, egoistic individualism, separatism, sectionalism, b h ē d a b u d d h i, extreme specialism and expertism, ‘art for arts' sake', ‘science for science's sake', ‘business is business', etc.
"In Him all things live and move and have their being... Do not I fill heaven and earth? saith the Lord... The Spirit of God filleth all the earth, and that" (space or heaven) "which contains all things." (B.)

"He is the light that lighteth every man and everything." (B.)

"Great Heaven is intelligent, clear-seeing, and is with you in all your doings." (C., Shi King.)

Obviously, Consciousness, God's Consciousness, Man's Consciousness, the Self's Consciousness, includes, encompasses, illumines all things. 'To be' is 'to be known'; to know is to recognize and thereby impart existence. Esse est percipii. Vidyaṭé (is known) is vidyaṭé (exists).

This Consciousness, this I, is behind every name and form and act.

Indram, Mittram, Varunam, Agnim, ähuh,
Aśho dividhah sah Suparno Garuṭmān;
Ekam Saḍ viprāh bahu-ṭha vaḍanti,
Agnim, Yamam, Māṭarishvānām, ähuh. (Ṛg-Vyāda.)
Kē-chiṭ Karma vaḍanti Ėnam,
Sva-bhāvam aparé janāh,
Ēka Kālam, paré Ḍaīvam,
Pumsah Kāmam uṭ-āparé. (Bhāg.)

Ēṭam ēké vaḍanti Agnim,
Manum anyé, Prajā-paṭim,
Indram éké, paré Prāṇam,
   Aparé Brahma Shāshvatam. (M.)
Brahma éva sarvāṇi nāmāṇi, sarvāṇi rūpāṇi, sarvāṇi karmāṇi bibharti.
Kālah, Sva-bhāvo, Niyatīh, Yaḍṛchchhā,
   Bhūṭāṇi, Yonih, Purushah, ṛti chintyam,
   (Bṛhaṭ and Shvēṭa. Up.)

(Some call It Karma, some Self-Nature name It,
Some call It Time, and others call It Fate,
Some say It is th' eternal Urge and Surge
Of Prime Desire, some name It Agni too,
The Luminous Fire which leadeth all to Self.
And some Yaḍṛchchhā, Chance or Wilful Will Ungovernable of Purusha Supreme.
Some name it Manu, Universal Mind,
Some Prajā-paṭi, Lord of Progeny,
Some Indra, Chief of all great Nature-Forces,
Some Miṭṭra name It, others Varuṇa,
Su-paṇḍa of the glorious wings some call It,
Some Māṭarishvā and some Yama too,
Some Brahma, Vast, Eternal, Infinite,
Which, as the 'I', the Universal Self,
Hidden, yet Manifest too, everywhere,
Wears, bears, and does, all forms and names and acts.)

Following Skt. quotations give many more names, used by different schools of thinkers or devotees, and, at the same time prove widespread recognition of the fact
In Zoroastrian scriptures it is called Vahma, the same as Brahma of Vēda-Upanishats, in its all-comprehensive transcendent aspect; and Ahurā that the Same Mystery is meant by all the different names:

Yam Shaivāh sam-up-äsaté Shiva iti,
Brahma iti Vēdāntinah,
Bauḍdhāh Buḍḍha iti, pramāna-patavah
Karṭā iti Naivyāyikāh,
Arhan-it-ātha Jaina-shāsana-ṛatāh,
Karm(a)-itī Mīmāmsakāh.
So (A)yam vo viḍadhātu vāṇchhiṭa-phalam
Trailokya-nāṭho Harih.
Kē-chīṭ Ītam Ṭapa iti-āhuh,
Ītamah kē-chīṭ, Īdam parē,
Jāṇanam, Maṅyām, Praṅhānam cha,
Prakṛṭim, Shaktim api Ajām,
Vimarshah iti vā Shaivāh,
Avidyām ītare janāh. (Dēvi Bhāgavata.)

Ṛtam, Āṭmā, Param Brahma,
Saṅyam, iti-ādikāh, bruḍhaih
Kalpiṭah, vy-ava-hār-āṛtham,
Sanjñāḥ Īasya Mah-Āṭmanah.
Sanāṭanah, Purāṇanām;
Brahma, Vēdānta-vāḍinām;
Vijñāna-māḍram, Vijñāna-Vidām, Ekānta-nirmalam;
Āṭmā-(Ā)ṭmanah, taḍ-vidubhām;
Nair-āṭmyam, taḍṛśh-āṭmanām;
Maḍhyaṃ, Maḍhyamikānām cha;
Sarvam, su-sama-chēṭasām;
Yah Shūnya-vāḍinām Shūnyo,
Bhāsako Yo-(a)rka-ṭējasām,
Vakṭā, Manta, Piṭā, Bhokṭā,
Drashtā, Karṭā, saḍa-iva Sah;
Purushah, Sāṅkhya-ḍṛśtinām;
Mazādā in its active and immanent aspect, as Universal Mind, Brahma. Another name for Vahma, in Zoroastrian scriptures seems to be Zerouane

Iṣṭvaro, Yoga-vādinām;
Shivah, Shashi-kalā-(a)ṅkānām;
Kālah, Kāla-ika-vādinām.

Yoga-Vāsishtha, III. i. and v; V. viii and Ixxxvii.
Eṣa ēva Vimarshash, Chitih, Chaṭanyam, Ātmā,
Sva-rasā, Udiṭā, Parā-varā, Svātantrīyam,
Param-Ātmā, Aun-mukhyam, Aishvaryam,
Sat, Taṭtvam, Saṭṭā, Sphuraṭā, Sārah, Mātrikā, Mālinī, Hṛdayā, Mūrtiḥ, Sva-samvit, Spandhā, ity-ādi-shabdaih Āgamaih ud-ghushyatē.

(Guṇṭā-vatī Tīkā on Durgā-Saṭṭa-shaṭṭi,
'Up-odghāṭa' or Introduction.)

(Shiva, Brahma, Buḍḍha, Karṭā, Arhaṭ, Karma, Thought, All-holding Consciousness, Universal Memory, Self, Self-taster, Ever-Awake, Before-and-After, Highand-Low, Self-dependence, Supreme Self, Eagerness, Urge, Lordliness, Being, Essence, Thatness, Existence,
Vibration, Core, Measuring Mother, Matter, Cycling
Wreath, Heart-Image, Self-awareness, Motion, Breath, Ṭapas, Tāmas, Unconsciousness, Objectivity, Knowledge, Māyā (Illusion), Pradhāna (Root, Source), Prakṛti (Nature), Shakṛi (Energy), Avidyā (Error), Saṭṭyam-ṛṭam (the True), Para-Brahma, Sanāṭana, (the Ancient Ever-lasting), Vijñāna (Sensation); Maḍhyam (the Middle), the
All, Vacuum, Plenum, Illuminator of all Suns, Speaker, Thinker, Father-Protector, Enjoyer, Seer, Doer, Īṣhvara, the Lord, Mahā-Kāla (Great Time)—all these are only Its names.)

The following is an attempt by an ancient Roman poet along the same lines:

"Ogugia calls Me Bachchus; Egypt thinks Me Osiris;
Musians name Me Ph'ananx; Indi consider Me Dionysus
(Devānisham, Day-Night); Roman Mysteries call me
Akerane, (Skt. Sarvam or Sāram Akāraṇaṃ ?) ' Uncaused Cause of all causes', or 'Causeless Essence of all'. Some Sūfis make a similar distinction between Ahaḍ and Allāh-ar-Rahmān-ar-Rahīm. The distinction between Impersonal Absolute Brahма, Motionless Spectator, and personalised ideating Brahма, Active Creator; between Chīṭ, Universal Principles of Consciousness, and chīṭṭa, individual mind; is the same.

Spenṭā Mainyūsaṛaṭū Mazaḍāo Ahuro yēhyā Vahmē vohū frashī mananghā ahyā khraṭu fro mā sāṣṭū vahishtā . . . Aṭ hoī Vahmēni demānēgaro niḍāma. (Z., Gāṭhā, 45, 6, 8).

(Lord of beneficent Spirit, Mazaḍā !, Listen to this my prayer, and teach me well What he should do who would with a pure mind Seek earnestly to find the Peace of Brahma! . . . May we find Brahma in the House of Songs.)

Liber; the Arabian Race, Adonis (same as Dionysus)!” (Ausonias, quoted by H. P. Blavatsky, Isis Unveiled, ii. 302.)

"In Zrwanism . . . the dualistic view of the world was superseded by setting up endless Time, (Zrwan, Arabic dahr) as the paramount principle, and identifying it with Fate, the outermost heavenly sphere, or the movement of the heavens . . . Zrwanism came to be recognised under the Sassanid Yezdegerd II, 438-459 A.C.;" Dr. T. J. de Boer, The History of Philosophy in Islam, p. 8.
Ye jī aḍāīsh ashā ḍrujēm venghaīṭī, hyat asamshuṭā, yā ḍaibīṭānā fraokhṭā, amerēṭāiṭ ḍaevāīsh chā mashyaīsh chā,
at ṭōi savāīsh Vahmēm vakshaṭ Ahura.

(Z., Gāṭhā, 48. 1.)

(May Ahurā gives us the truth of Brahm',
May He unite us with that Absolute,
When we have undergone successfully
The disciplines whereby the Vice in us
Is overthrown by Virtue, which make man
Divinely meritorious, and which bring Salvation unto men and gods alike.)

... Vēṣṭā Vahmeng Sēraoshā rāḍhangho...

(Z., Gāṭhā, 46, 17.)

(By worship and devotion know ye Brahm'.)
Tād vīḍḍhi pra-ṇi-pāṭēna, pari-prashnēna, sevayā. (G.)

(Know it by earnest quest, and questioning,
With due submission and with humble heart
And service, of the old and wise who know).

In Buddhist scriptures too the name Brahma is given to the Supreme;

"Brahma am I, Great Brahma, the Supreme,
The Unsurpassed, Perceiver of All Things,
Controller, Maker, Fashioner, Lord of All,
Chief, Victor, Ruler, Father of All Beings
That ever have been, are, and are to be."

(Kēvatta-Sutta, Dīgha-Nikāya; BB., 115.)

Yehovah (Jehovah, Yahveh) is the Hebrew word; Hayy and Yahyā are Arabic for the same; O-hau, O-hau-hau, are Sāma-Vēda's names for it; J(I)āo is Phoenician. All these names are formed of vowel sounds aspirated; breathings of man, each of which 'names' and invokes God. 'So-(a)ham,' '(a)ham-Sah', 'That am I', 'I am That', is ā-jā-pā Gāyaṭrī, 'unspoken perpetual prayer', of and by each and every living being. It is un-uttered, yet is uttered in and by every ingoing and outgoing breath; for none can live at all without continual support from Him, Anima Mundi, Soul of the World, Life-Breath of the Universe.¹

¹ It is noteworthy that there are some 'natural' sound-names of the Supreme. First, there is the inner sound of AUM (pronounced Om), like the humming of bees, or the sound heard when the ears are tightly closed. With a little practice, this sound can be heard, within the head, between the ears as it were, even without closing the ears. It is the a-nā-ha-ta-nā-da, 'un-struck or un-uttered sound', mentioned in connection with yoga-ways. Gradations of it are mentioned in Upanishats and Yoga books. "The Word was with God and the word was God," says the English Bible. Probably the original Hebrew word means 'sound', rather than 'word'. Akāsha, (which means Space, as well as the primal 'element' filling Space), whose 'attribute' or 'quality' is 'sound' (as 'touch' is of 'air', 'taste' of In the Chinese religions it is called Yi (Changeless Principle of Change), T’ien (Heaven, Heavenly Destiny, Divine Ordainment, Fate), T’ai Chi (Great Ultimate or Origin), Ch’i (Universal Energy), Tao (Unnameable and Indescribable Principle of All Activity; Way, Reason, of the Universe), Hun Tun or Hun Lun (Chaos), Ming (Destiny), Shen (Spirit), "water"), is the first manifestation; therefore it may well be said that "the word", i.e., sound, was with God, and was God.

Next after this natural primal name, which seems to be the Hidden, Inner, Name, sometimes spoken of in mystical works as "the lost (i.e., hidden) word or name", there comes the first uttered name. This is some form or other, in the older languages, of a collocation of the primary vowels, combined with the aspirate, and some times the nasal also; e.g., O-hau-hau in Sāma-Vēda-also Huvā-hāyi, Huvā-hoyi, Háyi-Háyi, (cf. "A-hāi! A-hāi", of Vikings’ and other boatmen’s songs); Iao, among Phoenicians and Egyptians; Y (od)-H (ē)-V (au)-H(ē), in Hebrew; Hayy in Arabic, also Yahyā; T(Ch)nao, in Chinese; Heu-Heu, among some African Negro tribes. And so on. The sound of "breathing", wherein and whereby the (non-yogi) living human being realises his Self-existence, continuously, incessantly, "I am", "a smi", is imitated in its various shades by these names. A person in great pain, groaning, utters but a form of this primal sound, and thereby calls upon the Supreme for help, unconsciously. All sorts of "moods of mind", "states of being", of grief, wonder, fear, anger, enquiring curiosity, sorrow, joy, may be, and are, expressed by such exclamations, interjections, interrogations, as Āh!, Hā!, Oho!, Oh!, Hūn!, Hūn!, Aiñ!, Aiñ?, Hay!, Ahā!, Wah!, Ün?, Ai-hāi!, Umm-umph!, Åhuh!, Åh-åh!; and so forth.
Hsuen (the Mysterious). Jainism, like Buddhism, gives ultimately the same name, Param-Āṭmā, i.e., 'the Supreme Self', to the Ultimate Mystery, as Vaiḍika Dharma does. Thus, in a fine prayer-hymn, which is in common use among Jainas, we read:

Yah ūdarśhana-jñāna-sukha-sva-bhāvah,
Samastā-samśāra-vikāra-bāhyah,
Samādhi-gamyah Param-Āṭma-sanjñah,
Sa Deva-devo hṛdaye mam-āśtam,
Sarvam nirā-kṛtya vi-kalpa-jālam,
Samsāra-kāṇṭāra-nipāta-hētum,
Vivikṭam Āṭmānam av-eksha-māno,
Nilīyase ūtvam Param-Āṭma-ṭatīvē.
Yaih Param-Āṭmā-(A)mita-gaṭi-vand̄yah,
Sarva-vi-vikto, bhr̄sham an-avadyah,
Shashvad-dhyāto manasi, labhanṭo
Mukti-nikētam vibhava-varam ūte.

(J., AMIṬA-GAṬI, Sāmāyika-pātha.)

(May He abide always within my heart,
'The Supreme Self', the One God of all gods,
Transcending all 'this'-world's ephemera,
By deepest meditation reachable!
They who have passed beyond all arguments
And doubts and false attachments of this world,
They only can behold in purity
'The Supreme Self', and in It merge themselves.
Who take their refuge in that 'Supreme-Self',
Stainless, beyond particularities,
And fix their minds on It devotedly, Unfailingly they gain Its Blessedness.)

Says Kwan-yin-tse:

"Find the Tao in Your-Self and you know every thing else. . . The holy man recognises Unity in Multiplicity and Multiplicity in Unity. . . The One is eternally unchangeable."¹

A western poet has written:

Some call It Will, and some call It God;
Some call It Fate, and some call It God;
Some call It Evolution, and some call It God;
Some call It Chance, and some call It God;

The name Aham, given to the I, Self, (Universal as well as Individual), in Samskr̥t, (the word etymologically means deliberately 'well-constructed and refined language') embodies all the above significance and more. In Samskr̥t alphabet, A is the first and H is the last letter-sound. Self, A-h(am), is First and Last and comprehends all; the first and last letters of the alphabet include between them all the other letters and all knowledge of all things, which can be expressed by means of letters and collocations of them, i.e., words. The special natural significance of each letter of the alphabet is mentioned in Tantra-books. (See Isis Unveiled, ré Hewa, Eva, Iao, etc., with the help of the Index).
Some call It Force, and some call it God.
Some call It th' Unknowable, some call it God.¹

Whatever the name each person, who has attained to the stage of 'thinking', may give to it, the Ultimate Mystery has to be recognised. But its nearest, dearest, fullest, greatest, and withal most intelligible and intimately familiar name is 'I', the Self in Me and in All alike.

So-(A)ham asm-īty-agrē vyāharaṭi; ṭaṭo
(A)ham-namā abhavaṭ; ṭasmād-api ēṭarhi āmanṭriṇo (A)ham ayam iti éva agrē ukṛtvā
ṭaḍā anyan-nāma brūte, yaḍ asya bhavaṭi. (U.)

('I am' is what He uttered first of all, Therefore his principal, best, and most true Name is the 'I'; and so we see that when A person is thus questioned: 'Who are you?', He first of all says: 'I am', then he adds Whate'er his special name is—'So-and-so'.)

¹"O You who are!, Ecclesiastes calls you Omnipotence; the Maccabees call you Creator; the Epistle to the Ephesians calls you Liberty; Baruch calls you Immensity; the Psalms call you Wisdom and Truth; St. John calls you Light; the Book of Kings, calls you Lord; Exodus calls you Providence; Leviticus, Holiness; Esdras, Justice; Creation calls you God; Man calls you Father; but Solomon calls you Mercy; and that is the Fairest of all Your Names": Victor Hugo, Les Miserables, Bk. I, ch. v. Incidentally, 'God' seems to be the same word as Persian 'Khuḍā, and, possibly, the latter is related to Skt. 'Sva-ḍhā', 'Self-maintainer'.
Ātmanas-ṣu kāmāya sarvam vai priyam bhavaṭī. (U.)

(All things that may be dear to us are dear
For the sweet sake of our-own-Self alone.)

Aṭāchā ahmāi vīspānām vaḥiṣṭēm,
Khaṭhroyā nā Khaṭhṛēm dāidiṭā. (Z., Gāthā, 43, 2).

(Give me the gift that is the best of all,
Give me the Inmost Self of all the selves.)

Yoi Moi Ahmāi sēraoshēm dāna chayas cā, ūpājimēn hāūrvāṭā amērēṭā. (Z., Gāthā, 45, 5).

(Who fix their love and choice on Me alone,
Me who reside in them, they do attain
Self-knowledge and Eternal Deathlessness
The Higher Self and Immortality.)

Yam labhāvā ch-āparam lābhām manyatē n-ādhihikam ṭaṭāh,
Yasmin sthiṭo na duhhkhēna gurunā api vi-chālyatē. (G.)

(Than gain of Whom there is no greater gain;
When fixed in Whom, sorrows shake one no more.)

"God is the Universal Self; the individual self is 'heaven in us'. The immaterial divine essence, Ryochi, is 'God in us', and dwells in each individual. It is the true Self. The false self is an acquired personality arising from perverted beliefs;
it is 'persona', i.e., that general idea of our nature which we have built up from experiencing our effect upon the world around and its effect upon us. Ryochi is 'al-one being' or 'al-one knowing', as sumnum bonum, 'bliss'; it is the light which pervades the world; it is immortal all-knowing Good. It is the mediator and reconciler of 'the pair of opposites', namely, Ri and Ki, world-soul and world-matter respectively, attributes, both, of God, who is their union. Similarly the human soul embraces both Ri and Ki. As the essence of the world, God enfoldeth the world, but at the same time, He is also in our midst and even in our own bodies.' (NAKAЕ ṬAJU).

Sūfis say:

Kufr o ḍīn har ḍo ḏar raha-t poyān,
Wahḍahū lā sharīk-īlah goyān. (S.)

'Nakae Ṭaju, the 'Sage of Omi' is a "distinguished Japanese philosopher of the seventeenth century. He belonged to the Chu-Hi school of philosophy which had migrated from China." The above account of his view is abridged from C. G. Jung, Psychological Types, pp. 268-269, whose description is based upon Tetsujiro Inouye, Japanese Philosophy, (1913). The 'bliss' of Ryochi is the same as the ānanda of Brahma, lazzat-ul-ilāhiyah, beatitude; 'persona', 'personality', is the same as individualised purusha, jīvātmā, shakhs. Yoga-sūtra, II-3, explains how this 'persona' is concreted, conglomerated, densified, hardened, upon the basis of asmītā, egoism, by the growths of rāga, dvēsha, abhīnvēsha, likes, dislikes, and stubborn complexes.
(Belief and disbelief are galloping. Both, on the road to Thee, both calling loud For what is the One Only Ultimate !)
Momin o Ṭarsā, Yahūd o nēk o baḍ,
Jumlagān rā hast rū sūyē Abaḍ. (S.)
(Muslim, Christian, or Jew, or good or bad,
All turn their eyes to the Eternal One.)

Muhammad said:
Aṭ-ṭurqu il-Allāhi kan nufūsu banī Āḍama.¹ (H.)
(There are as many ways to God as souls;
As many as the breaths of Adam’s sons.)

Yē yatḥā Mām pra-paḍyanṭē, ṭān yatḥā ēva bhajāmi Aham;
Mama varṭma anu-varṭanṭē manushyāḥ, Pāṛtha !, sarvashah. (Gīṭā).
(Whichever way men seek to come to Me,
On that same way I meet, and care for, them.
Mine is each way men follow anywhere.)

A profound truth. Each individualised soul manifests an infinitesimally different aspect of the One Infinite. Therefore its involution, its return-journey to God, must also be, in the same degree, infinitesimally different from that of all others. Christian theology has a saying to the same effect: "As many ¹ Another reading is—Aṭ ṭurqu il-Allāhi ba hasab-ul-Anfūs. Sense is same.

as are the breaths in the nostrils, so many are the ways to God ". But the Goal is ever the Self-same.

Ruchinām vai-chiṭryāḍ
ṛju-kutila-nāṇā-paṭha-jūshām
Nṛṇāṃ Ēko gamyah
Tvam asi payasām arṇava iva.

(Shiva-Mahima-śtuṭi.)

(Thou the One Goal of all the many paths
Some easy, straight, some winding, difficult,
Men follow as they variously incline—
As of the countless streams the one vast sea!)

Yē api anya-ḍēvaṭā-bhakṭāḥ yajanṭe shraddḥayā anvitāh,
Tē-(a)pi Mām ēva, Kaunṭēya !,
yajanṭi a-viḍhi-pūrvakam. (G.)

(Who worship other gods with heart of faith,
They too adore but Me behind those forms,
Unknowing yet of the one direct way.)¹

¹ Quot homines tot dei is a Latin saying, 'so many men, so many gods'. One meaning of the Indian popular saying, that there are thirty-three crore (three hundred and thirty million) gods is the same; one god for each person. Interpret such sayings as you like, flippantly, sceptically, sarcastically, uncharitably, or seriously, reverently, philosophically, charitably; either way it comes to this, ultimately—that, since Man and God are one in Essence, (by any and every philosophical or scientific view, Materialist or Spiritual), therefore 'God makes Man in His own image', and, also, 'Man makes God in His own image', i.e., every man's 'ideal, Indeed all names belong to It alone.

_Qurān_ says:

Lillāhul āsmā ul huṣnā. \(Q\)

(All beauteous names are His—the book declares.)

It tenderly adds the adjective 'beautiful', lest younger souls be disturbed. Elsewhere Muhammad has explained:

To kallimun annāso alā qaḍre uqūlehum. \(H\)

(Speak unto men according as may be Capacity of their intelligence.)

So Krṣṇa has said the same:

Yaḏ yaḏ vibhuṭi-maṭ saṭṭvam

Shri-maḍ ūṛjiṭam ēva vā,

Ṭaḍ Ṭaḍ ēv-a ava-gachchha ṭvam

Mama téjo-(a)msha-sambhavam.\(^1\) \(G\)

savage's, barbarian's, sophisticate's, un-sophisticate's, scientist's, philosopher's, saint's, seer's, sage's, is equally an aspect of God (or Matter or Nature or however else you choose to call the Ultimate Fact), and, therefore, every way that any one follows in life, (whether good or even ill), is, _ultimately_, a way of God, and to God, for God fulfils Himself in countless ways.

\(^1\) Souls not yet sufficiently experienced and advanced, are apt to be repelled, even greatly angered, on hearing such statements as are quoted on preceding pages, of identity, in essence, of man, nay, of all living things with God. Such scriptural declarations must not be pressed upon them. For them, the Third Person, 'He', is enough; later on, they will turn to the First Person, 'I'. Meanwhile, for purposes of creedal and communal peace, (Whatever shows forth glory, splendour, might—Know, from My téṣas-aspect is it born.)

Tān akṛṣṇa-viḍo mandān
kṛṣṇa-viṭ na vīchālayē	na buḍḍhi-bhēḍam janayēd
ajñānāṁ karma-sanginām. (G.)

(Let not the man, who knoweth all, disturb
The slower minds of those who know not all;
Do not confuse child-minds with abstract
thoughts;
They must continue for some more time yet
To learn from pious rituals and good works.)

they should be entreated to ponder the question: "Has the same God created all the races of men, past and present, or have different Gods done so? If the same, then must not the same truths about Himself, and the same commands for mutual goodwill and peace among men, be embodied in all religions, past and present; with only as much surface-difference as there is between complexions and clothings and languages of these different races, and climatic and other natural conditions of different countries?

It is true, there are some sects, in all religions, which are firmly convinced that God deliberately creates some souls (belonging to those sects) to enjoy heaven eternally, and other souls (belonging to all other sects) to suffer hell perpetually. Unhappily this stage of extreme self-righteousness has to be passed through, it seems, by every soul, at some time or other, in the course of its eonic evolution. One can only very gently and humbly invite such to reflect whether God, whom they believe to be All-Merciful, can possibly be so cruel.
Speaking out too much and too freely about things which they cannot yet comprehend will only perplex child-minds. As the English proverb wisely advises, 'give milk to babes and meat to the strong.' But elders should diligently coax babes on towards stronger food in due time, and not try to keep them on milk all their life, as priestcraft does but too extensively.

A Sufi supplies the needed comment on the Qur'anic adjective "beautiful".

Ba náméân ké Ü námé na dāraḍ,
Ba har námé ke kḥwānī sar bar āraḍ.
(He hath no name, and yet whatever name Ye may call out, He lifts an answering head.)

Another says plainly:
 karşısında a'shiqāne Yak-rang,
Iblis o Isrāfil ham-sang. (S.)
(In the religion of the souls that love
The Changeless One, Satan weighs just the same,
And is hewn out from the same block of stone,
As Purity's Archangel Isrāfil.)

Yet another says,
Chūn něk o baḍ az Khuḍā-e dīḍand,
Rū az hama khalq ār kashīdand. (S.)
(The wise saw Good and Evil both as God's;
And so they drew their hearts away from both,
And fixed them on the Master of the Two.)

Finally, Qurān itself emphatically declares the whole truth:

Al kẖairo wa-s-sharro min Allāhi-ṭā'lā. (Q.)
(Both Good and Evil come from the High God.)

One of the Qurānic names of God is Al-Muzil, the Misleader and Tempter and Tester; so Māyī, the 'Illusion-maker,' in Vēda-Upanishats. The implication of the Lords' Prayer, "Lead us not into temptation", is the same, i.e., God does lead into temptation, those who do not pray thus. Other texts of Bible make it clear that God tempts, or allows to be tempted, in order to try and test.

And the full significance of the Gitā-verse, quoted above, is that while radiant and magnificent forms of life and existence manifest the Tējas or Jalāt aspect of the Supreme Self, other forms express others of His infinite aspects.

Vishtabhya Aham Īdam krśnam
Ēk-āmśéna sṭhiṭo jagaṭ. (G.)
(The whole of all this restless moving world
Is but a little part of Me; the rest
Of Me is ever in eternal rest.)
For, indeed, He, the I, is the One in Which all the Many is ever included; the One, of Which all the Many are but as attributes.

Ésha évá Āṭmā ānando ajaro amṛto, na saḍhunā karmaṇā bhūyān, no évá a-sāḍhunā karmaṇā kanī-yan; ésha hi évá ēnam saḍhu karma kārayaṭi ṭam yam (anu-ninīshaṭe); ésha évá ēnam a-sāḍhu karma kārayaṭi ṭam yam lokēbhyo nunuṭsaṭe. . .; Kaushitaki Up., iii. 9.)

(Tis He Himself who makes him do good deed, Whom He doth wish, upward and high to lead; And He Himself who, when He wants to taste The fruit of evil in Life’s burning waste, Impels the human form, which he assumes, To do ill deed, whose sin that form comsumes. No Other doth He, thus, to good or ill Impel; Himself of both He tastes His fill. Good deeds, in countless numbers, add no more To Him; nor ill make Him less than before.)

Wahḍaṭ ċar Zāṭ, Kasraṭ ċar Sifāṭ. (S.)
(In Essence, Unity; Attributes, Multitude.)

Guṇānāṁ Āshrayah ṛu Ékah, Nirguṇāḥ Kévalah saḍā;
Guṇ-opa-guṇakānāṁ ṛu
Samkhyā na évā iha viḍyaṭe.
Ékah Ḏharmi ḍharma-śūnyah,
Ḍharmah ṛu sakalam jagaṭ;
Pratyaksham Khé Mahá-Shūnyé
(A)sankhy-(a-)ändāni bhramaṇṭi hi.
(Yoga Vāsishtha.)

(Substratum of all Attributes is One,
Al-one, Eternal, Void of Attributes;
Of these, major and minor, count is not.
The One Possessor of all Attributes
Is yet devoid of all these Attributes;
This may we see e'en with the eyes of flesh.
Does not this Infinite expanse of Heaven,
Vast Emptiness of Space, (Plenum of Self),
Hold all these countless ever-whirling orbs,
'Eggs of the Infinite', untouched by them?

While warning the wise man not to disturb the simple mind, to the advanced and thoughtful soul capable of hearing and holding wisdom, Krśṇa says clearly:

Maṭ-tah para-ṭaram n-ānyat kin-chiḍ asṭi, Dhanan-jaya!
Mayi sarvam idam pr-ọtam
sūṭre maṇi-gaṇā iva.
Yé cha-iva sāṭṭvikāh bhāvāh,
rājasāh, tāmasāś-cha yé,
Maṭ-ṭah ēv-ēti tān viḍḍhi;
nā tū Aham īshū, ū Mayi.
Sukham, duhkham, bhavah, bhāvah,
Bhayam, ch-ābhayam ēva cha,
Yashah, ayashah, ṭapah, dānam,
Maṭ-ṭah sarvam pra-varṭaṭe.
Amṛtam cha ēva, Mṛtyuh cha,
Sat, A-sat cha, Aham, Arjuna ī;
Ṭapāmi Aham, Aham varshah,
Nigṛhṇāmi, uṣṭṛjāmi cha;
Prabhavah, Pralayah, Sṭhānam,
Niḍānam, Bijam, A vyayam.
Maṭ-ṭah smṛṭih, jñānam, ap-ohanam cha. (G.)

(Nought is outside of Me; all This is strung
On Me, as beads upon a thread; all moods,
All acts, good, bad, mixed, all are Mine alone;
Yet am I not in them; they are in Me.
Joy, sorrow, life, death, fear, and fearlessness,
Fame, infamy, gifts, acts of sacrifice,
All these arise from Me and Me Al-one;
Death, Deathlessness, Truth, Falsehood, all am I;
Drought, Rain abundant, Seed, Vitality,
And Birth and Death—all these are made by Me.
From Me, in Me, Forgetfulness of Self
And Folly's utmost limit; from and in Me Wisdom too of Remembrance of the Self.)

Punyam cha papam cha pāpē.

(SHANKAR-ĀCHĀRYA, Shāriraka Bāṣḥya.)

(Sin, merit, both are sin, for both do bind
The Soul—_with chain of iron, or of gold.)
From the transcendental standpoint, each term of every pair of opposites is necessary to throw the other into relief, to bring it into manifest existence, by contrast, and also to neutralise it, ultimately. Good cannot possibly ex-ist without contrasting evil, and vice versa. Hence to abolish evil, we must abolish good also; neither love nor hate is to be assigned to the Absolute Self, which includes both equally.

Pari-ṇaṭi saba jīvana kī
ṭīna bhāṇṭi baranī;
Éka pāpa, éka puṇya,
éka rāga-harani.
Jā mēn shubha ashubha anḍha,
dōu kara karma-bandha,
Viṭa-rāga-pari-ṇaṭi hī
bhava-samuḍra ṭaranī.
Tyāgu shubha-kriyā-kalāpa,
karu maṭa kaḍā cha pāpa,
Shubha mēn na magna hoi
Shuddha-ṭā bisaranī.
Yāvaṭa shuddh-opa-yoga
pāvaṭa nāhiṇī mano-ga,
Ṭāvaṭa hī karana yoga
kahī puṇya-karanī
Ūṇcha nīcha ḍashā ḍhār,
chīṭa-pramāḍa ko bīḍār.
Uñchali ḍashā ṭe giro
maṭa aḍho ḍharanī.
Bhāga Chandra !, yā prakāra
Jīvana hai sukha apāra,
Yāhī ke aḍhāra Syād—
Vāda ki ucharanī. (J., BHĀGA CHANDRA.)

(Three-staged the Path of souls inherently;
Each soul must pass through all successively;
First is the stage of vicious selfishness;
To it succeeds the time of virtuousness;
Last comes the stage free from all loves and hates,
All personal desires. This last, the path
Lighted by Duty only, helps the soul
To break the bonds of sin and merit, too,
Forged by the passions which imprison it;
And takes it safe across life’s stormy sea.
Give up the wish to earn merit for heaven;
But do not therefore cease from purity,
Nor dream of ever doing deed of sin.
Observe the rules prescribed for piety,
Till the mind merges in the fount and source
Of Purity. Bear patiently the states,
Now high, now low, which fortune brings to thee;
Guard watchfully ‘gainst errings of the mind;
See it falls not from noble to base mood.
Such is the only way to fill with Peace
Of mind and heart our life upon this earth;
Such is the essence of what Jina taught.)
The Bible of Judaism and Christianity also clearly indicates that all pairs of opposites, including the pair of Good and Evil, are in the One:

"Shall evil befall a city, and the Lord hath not done it?" (B., Amos.) "I form the light and create darkness; I make peace and create evil; I am the Lord that doeth all these things... I have created the smith that bloweth the fire of coals, and bringeth forth a weapon for his work; and I have created the waster to destroy." (B., Isaiah.)

We have seen before, that in Vaiḍika Dharma (now, in its corrupted form, in current practice, known as 'Hinduism'—and which living religion today is free from unfortunate degenerations, caused by the evil ingrained in human nature together with the good?); God is Destroyer as Ruṭra, Tempter and Tester as Māyā-vī, Punisher and Corrector as Yama, and so on; that Islam recognises Him as Al-Qāhhār, Al-Jabbār, Al-Muzil, Al-Mumīt, i.e. Wrathful, Oppressor, Misleader and Tester, Death-Causer of virtuous and sinful alike; and so forth.

Mystery, perplexity, anguish of heart torn between faith and doubt, faith in the ultimate Beneficence of the Supreme, doubt created by the glaring fact of endless misery of all degrees, within each self and all around—this conflict vanishes as soon as we realise that 'I' is the 'I'; that 'I am' means 'the
I is'; that God, Lord, Allah, Ishvara, all ultimately mean the Universal all-pervading Self; that all Good and all Evil, the seeds of all the noblest virtues and all the basest vices, are all in Me, in every 'individual self', because they all are in the Universal Self; that all life, all this World-Process, is incessantly, and inevitably, the Interplay of Opposites of endless pains, sorrows, miseries, and corresponding endless pleasures, joys, delights; all which balance and neutralise each other in the Ab-solu-te Self, the Self ab-solv-ed from all relative 'opposites', saujain, viddain, d v a m - d v a m, two-and-two. But 'child-mind' cannot, and must not be expected to, see the whole Truth. It has to evolve and grow to the stage of 'parent-mind', become able to stand on its own feet, and develop power of self-conscious intro-spection, antar-drshti, pratyak-chetana, sair-i-nafasi, chashmi-basira, 'mental eye', 'inner eye', before it will be able to reduce Third Person into First Person, 'He' into 'I'. Then it will recognise it-self, and every self, as a piece of the Self, and as maker of its own destiny; which destiny, in the 'infinite' view, is the same for all; endless Play, Pastime, Drama, of equal Tragedy and Comedy. Till then, i.e, so long as it remains 'child-mind', it must rest in the arms, or be helped along by the hands, of a 'parent', an 'elder'.
Without Self, without the Principle of Consciousness, the Universe disappears, and science vanishes. All things else may be doubted, Self cannot be. Worst doubter cannot doubt himself. Scientists have therefore grown wise, and have receded from the gush and rush of materialistic turbulence, natural to the first flush of the growth of science. The faith of great scientists of the day has been already mentioned, that this world is a world governed by Spirit and not by Matter; unless, indeed, we endow Matter with all the qualities of Spirit; and then it means only that we have exchanged the connotations of the two words; (see pp. 22 et seq.). And this Supreme Spirit is in Me, is I.

As Christ says:

"Believe Me that I am in the Father and the Father is in Me... He that has seen Me has seen the Father... If ye had known Me ye should have known my Father also."  (B.)

And as Muhammad says also:

Anā Ahmaḏ bilā mīm.  (H.)

Man rā anī, rā al Haqqā.  (H.)

Man a'rafa nafsahū faqāḏ a'rafa Rabbahū.  (H.)

Nas-ullāhā fa'ansāhum anfūsahum.  (Q.)

(Ahmaḏ am I, minus the letter 'm', Which means, 'I am Ahaḏ, the One alone.' He who hath seen Me surely hath seen God.
He who hath known him-Self hath known his God.
He who forgetteth God forgets him-self.

Confucius says:

"What the undeveloped man seeks is others; what the advanced man seeks is him-Self." (Quoted in Ency. Brit., 14th edn., Art. 'Confucius'.)

Hayashi-Razan, an eminent Japanese scholar of Chinese classics, of the seventeenth century, says:

"The human mind, partaking of Divinity, is an abode of the Deity, which is the Spiritual Essence.
There exists no highest Deity outside the human mind." (Shinto-Dinju, quoted in Ency. Brit., Ibid.)

"The heavens are still; no sound.
Where then shall God be found?
Search not in distant skies;
In man's own heart He lies."

(Shao Yung, translated and quoted by H. D. Gibbs,
The Religions of Ancient China, 1011-1077.)

"Shintoists ... consistently upheld the theanthropic doctrine of Kan-nagara, of man being essentially divine; Kan-nagara, kan from kanu, and nagara, ... 'man himself divine'. ... The divine and the human are one in quality; only, the latter is temporary, the former enduring. The everlasting divinity is called human during the time it resides on this planet." (Inazo Nitobe, Japan, pp. 309-321.)
This, in Védānta, is the distinction between Param-Ātmā and Jīv-Ātmā; in Sufism, between Rūh-ul-arwāh and Rūh; in Gnostic Mysticism, between God and Son of God. As Christ says:

"I and my Father are one... Yet is my Father greater than I... I am in my Father, and ye in me, and I in you." (B.)

In the words of Shankar-āchārya,

Saṭi api bhéḍ-āpa-gamē,
Nātha!, Tav-āham, na māma-kīnāh Tvam!
Sāmuḍro hi ṭarangah,
Kva-chana samuḍro na ṭarangah! (Shat-padi.)

(Though all false sense of separateness be past,
Yet am I thine, My Lord!, and not Thou mine!
The wave unto the ocean doth belong;
Never the ocean to the tiny wave!)

"I have said, ye are gods; and all of you are children of the Most High." (B., Psalms, 82. 6.)

1 In the earlier centuries A.C., the word was written in two ways, Chrestos, and Chrestos or Christos, in Greek. Chrestos (Skt. s h r é s h t h a) meant 'good, best, excellent, gracious'; the other meant 'anointed', 'baptised with the waters of the Sacred Wisdom; (Skt. K r ̄ s h t a, Kṛṣṇa, meant 'the dragged, harrowed, ploughed, tried and tested and initiated; cultivated and watered; also, the attractor; also, the attracted).
It is with reference to this that Jesus says,
"Is it not written in your laws, 'I said, ye are gods?'... Say ye (to me)... 'Thou blasphemest', because I said, 'I am the son of God'?") (B., John.)
The Truth of the Infinite is indeed not easy to put into words which are finite, and are so easily and so frequently misunderstood. What wonder that Buḍḍha and other great Teachers became silent, when questioned on ultimate mysteries, by persons not ready and not able to understand the thought behind the veil of words.

Man a'rafa Rabba-hū kal-lā lesānuhū. (H.)
(The man who findeth God loseth his speech.)
Guroh ū tu maunam vyākhyānam,
Shishyāḥ ū tu uchchhinna-samshayāh. (Guru-Gītā.)
(The speaker doth discourse quite speechlessly, Yet are the pupils' doubts wholly re-solved.)
Mahramē īn hosh juz bé-hosh n-īṣṭ;
Mar zabān rā musḥtarī juz gosh nīṣṭ, (Rūmī.)
(Only th' Unconscious know this Consciousness;
The tongue's sense but the speechless ear can guess.)
Girā a-naina, naina binu bānī,
Kehi biḍhi an-upama jāi bakhānī!
Sūna bhiṭi para bibidiha ranga kē
ṭanu bin likhē Chiṭērē!
(ṬULASI ĎASA, Rāmāyana and Vinaya Pāṭrikā.)
(Sightless the tongue is, voiceless are the eyes;
How then describe that Vision, all unique!
Wall—Emptiness; the Painter—Bodiless;
Yet pictures infinite in forms and hues!)

"I am in the Father, and the Father in me...
I am in my Father and ye in me, and I in you...
Abide in Me, and I in you . . . without Me you cannot do anything."  (B., John, xiv.)

Yē bhajanṭi ṭu Mām bhaktyā,
Mayi ṭē, ōśhu ch-āpi Aham.  (G.)

(They—who love Me with love sincere, they are In Me, and I also am e'er in them.)

Ū ḍar ḍile man astṭ, wa ḍile man ba-ḍasṭe Ī;
Chūn āyınah ba-ḍasṭe man, wa man ḍar āyınah.  (S.)
(He's in my heart, my heart is in His hands;
As mirror in my hand, and I in it.)

Sarva-bhūṭasṭham Āṭmānām,
Sarva-bhūṭāni cha Āṭmāni,
Īkṣaṭe yoga-yukṭ-Āṭmā,
Sarvaṭra sama-ḍarshanah.
Yah Mām pashyaṭi sarvaṭra,
Sarvam cha Mayi pashyaṭi,
Ṭasya Aham na pra-ṇashyāmi,
Sa cha Mē na praṇashyaṭi.  (Gītā.)

(The soul established in the final yoga,
Seeing all as Equal, nay, as same and One,
Beholds all things in Me and Me in all.
He who thus sees Me in all things, and all
In Me, unto him can I ne'er be lost,
Nor can he ever be lost unto Me.)

"All things are Himself, and Himself is concealed on every side;" (Idrā Rabba, X. 117); "Adam Kadmon, (Aḍam-i-Qaḍīm) the Eternal Man or Self of the Kabalists, contains in Him-Self all the souls of the Israelites, and He is Him-Self in every soul." (Sohar, or Zohar, Introduction, pp. 305, 312.)

Yah ṭu sarvāṇi bhūṭāṇi Āṭmani ēva anu-panṣhayati, Sarva-bhūṭeshu ch-Āṭmānam, ṭaṭo na vi-jugupsatē, ṭaṭo na vi-chikīṭsatē. (Isha U.)

(Who seeth all in Self and Self in all, Doubteth no more, nor hateth any more.)

We have noted elsewhere that the ability of a person to put off any one particular religion, and put on any other, proves that the soul of the human being is superior to all particular religions, and can judge between them all at will.

The case for the supremacy of the I has been still more conclusively put, in some Sūfī verses:

Zān ki usṭā rā Shināsā ham ṭu ī,
Jumla usṭā rā kḥud Uṣṭā ham ṭu ī.

1 Quoted by H.P.B., Isis Unveiled, II, 342.
Chūn Haqīqaṭ rā Muhaqqiq khud ṭu ī,
Ain haq īn-asṭ Ain-ul-Haq ṭu ī.
Haṣṭiyé Rab rā Mujawwiz chūn ṭu ī,
Bil-yaqīn Allāh-e-Akbar khud ṭu ī. (S.)

(Since thou decidest who is fit to take
Or not to take for Teacher, thou thy-Self Must surely than all teachers greater be.
Since thou dost judge that this is True, this Not,
Maker of Truth, most True, thy-Self must be.
Since thou determinest whether God is
Or is not, surely thine own Self must be
The inmost being of Godhead, Greatest God.)

2. Evolution, Recapitulation, Phylogenesis, Palingenesis, Rebirth.

So far, we have endeavoured to expound the fundamental Truth of truths, viz.: There is an Ultimate Mystery behind all Life, behind all World-Procession, behind the whole ‘Uni-verse,’ (from Lat. unus, one, and vertere, to turn; ‘that which revolves round the One’); It is the Creator, Preserver, Destroyer, of all objects; It can be best and most nearly understood and recognised in terms of Spirit and Mind; It is all-pervading Spirit and Universal Mind; It is the Principle of all Life and Consciousness; It is the Spirit, Soul, Life, Mind of the whole World; It's nearest, dearest, best, most common, indeed universal, name is 'I'; It, as 'I', bears every name, wears every form, knows, desires, does, everything that is known, every desire that is felt, every act that is done—'I am so-and-so; I know, wish, do, this and that'; thus, every living thing, which regards itself as 'I', especially Man, who self-consciously regards and speaks of him-self as 'I', is in essence, one with It; It, that Ultimate Mystery, is our very Self—so all religions declare. Though _all_ names belong to It, still, every religion, every language, has given It one or two names which are most frequently used in it, _e.g._, Param-Ātmā, Ātmā, Brahma, in Vaidika Dharma (or Hinduism) and Sanskrit; Allāh, Rab, Mālik, Maulā, Khuḍā, in Islām (or Mohammedanism) and Arabic-Persian; God, (another form of 'Khuḍā') in Christianity and English; Ahurā-Mazādā, in Zoroastrianism; Jehovah, in Judaism (Hebraism, Jewish religion); Saṭ Sri Akāl, (the Timeless), in Sikhism; Ātmā, Brahma, Shūnya, Amitābha, in Budhdhism; Ātmā, Param-ātmā, Nir-anjana, in Jainism; Tāo in Taoism; Shāngtī (the One Supreme Being), Tien (Heaven), Tai-Chi (the Great Ultimate) in Confucianism; Ame-no-mi-naka-nushi (Heaven-centre-ruling Deity, the Absolute Universal Self) in Shinitsuism. We have also seen that the World-Process is one unending Drama of infinite inextricably mingled Tragedy-and-Comedy, 'Pairs of Opposites', wherein God is perpetually forgetting himself into Man, and Man is perpetually remembering himself back into God again.

Out of this arises the next important truth, viz., that of Samsāra-Chakra, Charkh-i-Gardūn, 'Cyclical Wheeling', 'Revolution', i.e., Involution (of Spirit in Matter) and re-Evolution (of Spirit out of Matter); descent and ascent, regress and progress, av-āroha and ā-roha, īzāl and irtiqā, nazāl and urūj. This corresponds to, and links up with, the scientific view of Evolution and Phylogeneses, (Ontogenesis, Palingenesis, etc.). Some religions speak of Re-births of the same soul in several physical bodies, one after another. Others interpret 'progress' differently. Other English words for 're-birth' are 're-incarnation' and 'metempsychosis'; Skt., pūnar-janma; Arab.-Per., ṭanāsukh. The Vaidika doctrine is well known, that the soul comes to the stage of man after passing through many lower forms, and takes numerous rebirths in the human form. In fact, Hinduism Buddhism, Jainism, Sikhism, are so full of it that it is not needed to quote texts in proof. It does not appear that Bible and Qurān contain any explicit affirmation of rebirth. But they nowhere deny it either. And Christ said that the prophet Elijah had come again as John the Baptist.
“Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord.” (B., Malachi.)

“Jesus began to say unto the multitudes concerning John the Baptist... For all the prophets and the law prophesied until John. And if ye will receive it, this is Elias (Elijah) which was for to come.” (B., Matthew.)

“And he shall go before... in the spirit and power of Elias.” (Ibid.)

“King Herod the tetrarch... beheaded John in the prison.” (Ibid.)

“And his disciples asked him... and Jesus answered... that Elias is come already, and they knew him not, but have done unto him whatsoever they listed... Then the disciples understood that he spake unto them of John the Baptist.” (Ibid.)

“As Jesus passed by, he saw a man, blind from birth. His disciples asked him: Master, who did sin, this man, or his parents, that he was born blind?” (B., John, ix, 1-2.)

“For I was alive, without the law, once; but when the commandment came, sin revived, and I died.” (B. Rom., vii. 9.)

Muhammad also has said:

Yā ayyohal insāno innakā kādīhun elā Rab-bekā kādīhan fa mulāqihe... laṭarkabun-na ṭabaqan an ṭabaq. (Q.)
(O Man! thou hast to go back unto God,
Thy God, thy Self, with labour and with pain, Ascending stage by stage, plane after plane.)

Krṣṇa says:
Anéka-janma-samsidq̄hah
ṭaṭo yāṭi parām gaṭim,
Bahūnām janmanām antē
jñāna-vān Mām prapaṭyaṭē.  (G.)

(Many the births that man has to pass through,
Before the Supreme Knowledge comes to him,
And he accomplishes his destiny,
Reaches the Final Goal, and findeth Me.)

"Heaven's way always goes round". (Chinese proverb.)¹

And there are texts in Qurān which may be interpreted as meaning that man lives and dies repeatedly, even as worlds are created and destroyed repeatedly.²

Manvanṭarāṇi a-sankhyāni, sargah, samhārah éva cha,
Krīdan iva éṭaṭ kuruṭē
 Paraméṣthi punah punah.  (M.)

¹ Quoted by Lin Yutang, My Country and My People. "History repeats itself" is the western version.
² Some Sūfi sects believe that Muhammad was Abraham reborn, and Abraham's two sons were reborn as Ali and Ali's son Husain.
(Cycles and cycling worlds, all numberless, Creations and destructions, doth He make Over and over, as in playful sport— The Lord of All, standing beyond them all.)

"How will the resurrection of the dead take place? To this answered Ahura Mazda:—When I have created each and all of these things, would it be harder for me to bring about the resurrection?"

(Z., Bundehesh, ch. 31).¹

Innahū yadda-ul-khalqa summa yoīdoh; le yajze-yallazīna-āmanu wa a'melus saulehāte b-il qisṭe... Kama baḍa-anā awwala khalqīn noīdah... Yakhloqo-kum fi buṭünī-ummuhāṭi-kum khalqam-minā bā'īde khalqīn zulumāṭin salas... (Q.)

(He makes a world-creation; then again He reproduces it, so that He may With justice recompense those who believe In God's Word and do good to fellow-beings. God sayeth—As We did originate The first creation, so we re-produce... He in your mother's wombs createth you, Creation on creation, yet again.)

Minḥā khalqānā kum, wa fi hā noīdo-kum, wa minḥā nukhruju-kum elā ṭa'araṭīn-ukhrā. (Q.)

¹ Quoted by Gangā Prasāda, The Fountain-Head of Religion, pp. 70-71.
(From out the earth have I now given birth
To you, and I will send you into it.
Again, and bring you forth from it again,
Again, repeatedly, until the End.)
Summā ba’asmā-kum min bā’de mauṭe-kum’la’-alla-kum ṭushkurūn. (Q.)
(I gave you birth again after you died,
That you may think of Me with gratitude.)
Ahyānā ba’de amātanā . . . Kul yohyi hallazi anshāha awwalamarra. (Q)
Yukhrijul hayya minal mayyati, wa yukhrijul maiyyaṭa minal hayyi. (Q.)
(He made us live again after our death.
He made you live before, and can again.
He makes the living dead, the dead alive.)
Kaifā ṭakīrūnā billāhē wa kunṭum amvāṭan fā ahyakum summā yumiṭokum summā yohyikum summā ilaihe ṭarpa’ūn. (Q.)
(How can you make denial of your God
Who made you live again when you had died,
Will make you dead again, again alive,
Until you go back finally to Him?)

'A somewhat similar verse occurs in Vēda:
Kasya ṭvā, kaṭamasya, amṛtanām,
Manāmahē, chāru, Devasya, nāma,
'Ko no mahyā adīṭayō punar-ṛat,
Piṭaram cha ḍṛṣṭhēyam, māṭaram cha. (V.).
The well-known lines of Maulānā Rūmī may be regarded as explicit comment on these texts, fixing the right interpretation.

Ham cho sabzā bārahā royđah am,
Haft sañ haftād qālib diđah am;
Az jamādı murđam o nāmi shuđam;
Waz numā murđam ba haiwān sar zađam;
Murđam az haiwāni o ādam shuđam;
Pas che ṭarsam kai ze murđan gum shuđam?
Hamlae ḏigar bi-mīram az bashar,
Ṭā bar āram az malāyak bāl o par;
Az malak ham bāyādām justān ze jū,
Kulle shayīn hālikun illā Wujh-Ū.
Pas a’dam gardām a’dam chūn argḥanūn
Goyaḍ am ‘ Innā ilaiḥā rāje’un ’ .
Bāre ḏigar az malak parrān shawam,
Ān che andar wahm n-āyaḍ ān shawam.  (S.)

(Like grass have I grown o'er and o'er again;
Seven hundred seventy bodies have I seen.
From out the form of mineral I passed
And as a vegetable lived again;
From out the vegetable form I died
And lifted up a head as animal;

(Who is the God of gods, Chief of Immortals,
By which most holy name may we think of Him,
Who has sent us again to this earth's surface,
So that we see again father and mother ?)

1 Masnawi, Book III, p. 334, (Kānpur edition.)
The form of animal I put away
And took the human shape of Adam-Eve;
Why shall I fear that if I die once more
I shall be lost? Nay, I shall surely gain,
At the next onset, dying out of man,
The flowing locks and shining wings of angels.
And finally, when next I take my flight,
'From e'en that world, I surely shall become
That Which, beyond all comprehension rests;
For all things pass, except the Primal Cause,
The Cause of Causes, the Face of the Self,
Which is 'Non-being of Aught-Else than Self,'
—For Self is the Negation of Not-Self.
And when I am in such Non-Being, then
My Being in Non-Being shall resound
In organ-tones, 'Thou hast returned to Me'."

Elsewhere, in the same Masnavi, Rumi repeats:
Ämaḏah awwal ba iqlimé jamāḏ;
Az jamāḏī ḍar nabāţī ofṭāḏ;
Sālahā andar nabāţī umr kard;
Waz jamāḏī yāḏ n-āward az na burd;
Waz nabāţī chuń ba haiwāni fuṭāḏ,
N-āmaḏ-ash hāl-é nabāţī héch yāḏ;
Ham-chun-īn iqlim ŏ īqlim raft,
Ťa shuḏ aknüń āqil o ḍānā wa zaft;
Aqlahāe awwalīn-ash yāḏ n-īst,
Ham azīn aʿqi-l-ash ṭahawwal karḍānī-st.
Tā riyaḍ z-īn aʿql pur-hirs-o-ṭalab,
Saḍ hazārān aʿql bīnaḍ bu-l-ʿajab,
Gar-che kusuṭah gashṭ o shuḍ nāsī ze pēsh
Kai guzārānd-ash ċar-aṅ nisīyān-e-khwēsh.
Bāz az āṅ khwāb ash ba bēḍārī Kashānṭ,
Tā kunḍar bar hālaṭe khuḍ rīsh-khand. (S.)

(First into state of mineral he came;
And then, as vegetable, ages spent,
Forgetting all he felt as mineral;
Then into state of animal he passed,
Oblivious of the vegetable state;
Ascending thus, stage after stage, he now
Is man, intelligent, knowing and strong,
Yet all forgetful of his previous states.
From this stage of intelligence also
He has to rise, since it is full of greed
dAnd clingings to small things and jealousies.
When he has done so, then a myriad paths
Of knowledge, wonder, and great mysteries,
Will open out before him endlessly.
He will not be allowed to lose him-Self;
He will be dragged out of his Night of Sleep,
Into the Day of Wakefulness again,
Till he laughs at him-Self in ecstasy.)

The same succession of mineral, vegetable, animal, human, and higher kingdoms of nature is to be found in ancient Samskr̥ta books, and also in modern science.

Asya brahm-āndasya saman̥ta-tah ś̄hītiṇi anantakoti-brahmāndānī . . . mahā-jal-augha-maṭsyabuḍbuḍ-ānanta-sanghavaḍ-bhramanṭi. (Tri-} vibhūti-Maḥā-Nārāyaṇa-Upaniṣaṭ, ch. 6.)

Sankhya chēḍ rajasām aṣṭi vishvānam na kāḍa-chana.

(Dēvi-Bhāgavata, IX. iii. 7. 8.)

(Worloes beyond count, 'eggs of the Infinite',
'Of boundless Space', orbs like this earth of ours,
Each with its own peculiar forms of life,
Revolve and wander endlessly in space,
On all sides of this earth, above, below,
Like bubbles or like fishes in the sea;
Dust-atoms may be counted, not these orbs.)

Oshaḍhi-vanas-पatayah yach-cha kin-cha praṇa-bhṛṣṭ, sah Ātmānām āvis-ṛām vēḍa . . . ; Chiṣṭam praṇa-bhṛṣṭsu, . . . (tēshu) āvis-ṛām Ātmā. . .
Purushē tu āvis-ṛām Ātmā. Sa hi pra-jñāṇena sampanna-ṛaṃbah ; . . . vijñātam vaḍati, vijñātam pashyaṭi; vēḍa lokālokau; . . . Martvyēna Amṛṭam īpsaṭil. (Aitareya Āranyaka, II. iii. 2.)

(Herbs, trees, beasts, men—all are garbs of the Self;
And each successive form displays It more.)
Man, who has mind, shows It forth most of all;
He has the introspective consciousness;
He knows, and also knows that he so knows;
He speaks, and also knows that he so speaks;
He thinks of yesterday and of tomorrow;
He reaches out from Death to the Immortal.)

"God sleeps in the mineral, dreams in the vegetable, wakes in the animal, becomes self-conscious in man." (Qabbalah or Kabala).

Tañ yaethã peshas-kari peshasah matram upadaya anyat nava-taram kalyana-taram rupam tanute, evam eva ayam Atma idam shariram ni-hatya, avidyam gamayitva, anyat nava-taram kalyana-taram rupam kurute. (Brhad-Aranyaka-Upanishat, IV. iv. 4.)

(Ev'n as a goldsmith takes a piece of gold,
And makes an ornament; and then breaks it,
And makes a finer one with it; e'en thus
The Spirit makes a body for It-Self,
Then breaks it, and shapes out a finer one.)

Vasamsi jirnani yawtha vihaya,
Navani grihniti narah aparani,
Taitha sharirani vihaya jirnani,
Anyani samyathi navani dhehi. (G.)

(As a man puts away his worn-out clothes,
And takes up new ones; even so the soul,
Puts off old bodies and puts on new ones.)¹
Uḍbhijjāh, svēda-jāh cha ēva, anda-jāh cha jarāyu-jāh;
Iti évam varṇiṭāh shāstré
bhūta-grāmāh chaṭur-viḍhāh.  (Purāṇas.)

(Four are the orders of the living things
That dwell on this our earth—the mineral,
The vegetable, animal, and man;
First fissiparous, then gemmation-born,
Then oviparous, viviparous last.)

Srṣhtvā purāṇi viviḍhāni Ajayā Aṭma-Shaktyā,
Vṛkshān, sarīśṛpa-pashūn, khaga-ḍamsha-matṣyān,
Tāih tāih aṭushta-hṛdayah, manujam viḍhāya
Brahm-āva-bodha-ṭhishaṇam, muḍam āpa Devah.

(Bhāg.)

(House after house did God make for Himself—
Mineral and plant, insect, fish, reptile, bird,
And mammal too. But yet was He not pleased.
At last He made Himself the shape of Man,
Wherein He knew Him-Self, the Vast Immense,
The final greatest Greatness limitless,
The all-including Universal Self,

¹"Like the doctrine of evolution itself, that of transmigration has its roots in the world of reality; and it may claim such support as the great argument from analogy is capable of supplying": Prof. Huxley, Evolution and Ethics, p. 16.
Pervading all, Eternal, Infinite—
And then the Lord of All was satisfied.)

"In the first period heaven was created; in the second, the waters; in the third, the earth; in the fourth, the trees; in the fifth, the animals; and in the sixth, man." (Z.)

Kḥalaq al-insāna alā sūraḥ-ir-Rahmān. (H.)

"God created man in His own image... And God saw everything that He had made, and behold it was very good." (B.)

Jewish (Hebrew) Qabbālā has an axiom:
"A stone becomes a plant; a plant, a beast; a beast, a man; a man, a spirit; and the spirit, a god."

Embryologists tell us that the human fætus recapitulates all this succession, passes through all these stages, in the first few months of gestation.

Hebrew (Jewish) Zohar says:
"All souls are subject to the trials of transmigration; and men... do not know how many mysterious trials and transformations they must undergo... The souls must re-enter the Absolute Substance whence they have emerged. But to accomplish this they must develop all the perfections, the germ of which is planted in them; and if they have not fulfilled this condition during one life, they must commence another, a third, and so forth, until they have acquired the condition which fits them for re-union with God." ¹

"Behold, I create new heavens and a new earth; and the former shall not be remembered, nor come into mind." (B. Isaiah, 65, 16-17.)

Purānic legend is that living forms may be dichotomised (i.e., dually classified) into the unmoving and the moving, which are sub-divided into four main kingdoms of nature, which include eight million four hundred thousand species. The last figure may or may not be of the same sort as many modern 'scientific speculations' regarding age of earth, distances and number of visible and invisible stars, size of the universe (or rather our sidereal system, an infinitesimal atom of the Infinite Universe), numbers of radiations from metals, velocities of electrons, time it would take for one element to 'break down' into another because of radiations,

¹ Quoted in The Universal Text Book of Religion and Morals, by Annie Besant. In Bible, (Gen. i) order of creation is: Heaven and earth; waters; light and darkness, day and night; firmament; dry land, separated from ocean; grass, herbs, fruit-trees; sun, moon, stars; fish, fowl, whales; cattle, creeping things; beasts of the earth; Man in the image of God. For many Purānic details of creation, see The Science of Social Organisation, ch. ii.; Vāyu Purāṇa is specially full.
number of millions of eggs laid by one cod-fish at one laying, number of atoms contained in Earth, number of miles from Sun or our Earth to nearest star, etc.—‘speculations’ based on mathematical calculations, which, in turn, are based on other ‘speculations’, ‘hypotheses’. But succession of various orders of life is very much the same as that sponsored by modern science. Thus:

S̄thāvaram vimśaṭēḥ laksham,
jala-jam nava-lakshakam,
Kūrmāḥ cha nava-laksham syuh,
dasha-laksham cha pakshiṇah,
Trimshal-laksham pashūnām cha,
caṭur-laksham tu vānarāḥ,
Tātah manushyaṭām pṛāpya
ṭañāt karmāṇi sādhayēṭ.

(Byhaḍ-Vishṇu-Purāṇa.)

(Mineral and vegetable worlds,
Unmoving, count ’tween them two million forms;
Nine hundred thousand are aquatics then;
Reptiles, as many; birds, a million;
Then comes the mammal world, three millions;
Four hundred thousand kinds of anthropoids;
Two hundred thousand human species, last.)

It is explained that all these are not to be supposed as co-existing to-day or at any other given time in past or future. Majority of them ‘have had their day and disappeared, like monstersaurians, twelve-legged horse, aurochs, sabre-tooth tiger, pterodactyl, auk, dinornis, many amphibia, and innumerable forms representing critical junction-points between kingdoms; and many will appear and disappear in future.\(^1\)

Bhūṭēshu vīruḍbhyyah uḍ-uṭṭamāh yē
Sarī-sṛpāh; tēshu sa-boḍha-nīṣṭhāh;
Taṭah manushyāḥ; pramāṭhāḥ taṭah api,
Ganḍharva-siḍḍhāḥ vibuḍhā-nu-gāh yē;
Dev-āṣurēbhyyah Maghavat-praḍhāṇāh
Ḍakṣ-āḍayah Brahma-suṭāḥ ū; tēshām
Bhavah parah; saḥ aṭha Virinchi-vīryah;
Sah Maṭ-parah; Aham ṛvīja-ṛvēva-Dēvah. (Bhāg.)

('Mongst living growing things, than minerals
Are vegetables higher; and than these
The forms that freely move about; than these
The animals that have intelligence;
Then human beings; and then the several grades
Of spirits, angels, and perfected men;
Then the high gods born from the Primal Mind,
First Ideator, First Intelligence;
And finally My Self in which all Rests.)

\(^1\) See The Science of Life, by H. G. Wells, Julian Huxley, and G. P. Wells, for a comprehensive and also detailed survey.
Zoroaster says:

Yē vahyo vanghéus ḍazaḍé yas cha hoi vārāi rāḍaṭ
Ahuro kshaṭhirā Mazādāo aṭ ahmāi akāṭ ashyoyēhoi, no it viḍāīṭe apēmé anghéus ārvavēsē.

(Z., Gāthā, 51-6.)

(In each succeeding birth the Great God gives
To him who seeks His favour by good deeds,
Greater Self-knowledge, greater self-control;
But unto him who acts not well but ill,
He gives a worse fate in each following life.)

Ṭān Aham ḍvishaṭah krūrān samsāréshu nar-āḍhamān
Kshipāmi ajasram ashubhān
āsurīshu ēva yonishu. (G)

(Those evil ones, the hateful, cruel, mean,
Fall into evil wombs, birth after birth,
Till by reaction consequent, in pain,
They learn to turn into the ways of good.)

Man is the 'crown of creation', ashraf-ulmakhlūqāt.
Sanāṭhanam guhyam iḍam bravīmi,
Na mānushyāṭ shrēshtha-ṭaram hi kin-chiṭ. (Mbh.)

(This ancient secret I disclose to thee:
There is naught nobler than 'humanity'.)

This is so only because, in the human form, God becomes able to recognise Him-Self, and to realise that He is All and Every-thing, again, after millions of years of forgetfulness of his Self's Glory.

Sūfis generally believe in rebirth, rija’t, and irtiqā, ascent; and have more technical distinctions than even Vaiḍikas on this point. Thus, reincarnation as man is naskh; as animal is maskh; as vegetable is faskh; as mineral is raskh.¹ Such degradation, as in schools, from higher to lower class, stage, is very rare, though detention is not so infrequent. Because Self runs through and wears all forms, therefore the thread of evolution runs through them all continuously, and man has in him the seeds and poten-cies of all kingdoms of Nature. All is indeed everywhere and always, because God is everywhere and always; and all is in God, the Self.

¹ "Ahmad ibn Sābit, Ahmad ibni Yabūs, Abū Muslim of Khūrāsān, Shaikh-ul-Ishrāq, and the famous Omar Khayyām, were exponents of the doctrine of transmigration and re-incarnation, basing their arguments on Qurān, Sūrat-ul-Bāqara, verses 61-92, Sūrat-ul-Maidah,
v. 55, etc." : Khāja Khaṇ, Studies in Tasawwuf, p. 132.
Translations of some of these verses, as made by Maulvi
Muhammad Ali, M.A., LL.B., President, Ahmadiya
Anjuman-i-ishāqi-Islām, Lahore, are reproduced below:

"And certainly you have known those among you who exceeded the limits of the Sabbath; so We said to them: Be (as) apes, despised and hated"; (65).
"... What then is the reward of such among you as to this, but disgrace in the life of this world, and on the day of resurrection they shall be sent back to the most grievous chastisement; and Allah is not at all heedless of what you do"; (85). "And most certainly
3. Karma

Third important truth is that of reward and punishment. Virtue and merit are rewarded; vice and sin punished; some day, somewhere, sooner or later, here or hereafter. All religions equally proclaim this great truth. As we sow, so must we reap. This Law of Karma is only the scientific law of Cause and Effect, or, better, of Action and Reaction, working on the psychical and spiritual plane. Karma works from within. Because the Self is in all, therefore pain given, means, later, pain suffered; and pleasure given, becomes pleasure received. Sins as well as merits come home to roost, without fail.

We gave Moses the book, and We sent apostles after him, one after another; and We gave Jesus, the son of Mary, clear arguments, and strengthened him with the holy revelation. What!, whenever, then, an apostle came to you with that which your souls did not desire, you were insolent, so you called some liars, and some you slay": (87). "Evil is that for which they have sold their souls;... so they have made themselves deserving of wrath upon wrath, and there is a disgraceful chastisement for the unbelievers"': (90), Al Bâparâ.

"... (Worse is he) whom Allah has cursed and brought His wrath upon, and of whom He made apes and swine, and he who served the devil; these are worse in place and more erring from the straight path"': Al-Mâïdah. Maulâna Muhammað Ali, in his comments, says that the words 'apes' and 'swine' are not to be taken literally. The learned Sûfis, whom Khâja Khân mentions, as above, seem to have thought otherwise. More on this point will be said in a later foot-note.
Failure would be possible if souls were really wholly separate. They are not. The One Self, Rū-ul-arwāh, Rūh-i-ā'zam, Rūh-i-ālam, Param-Āṭmā, Jagad-Āṭmā, Sūtr-Āṭmā, Vishv-Āṭmā, Oversoul, Anima Mundi, the Collective Unconscious, the Supra-conscious, Universal Spirit, binds them all together. Therefore escape from consequence is impossible. If my hand hurt my foot, shall not the hand also feel the pain? Vaiṣṭika Dharma and its off-shoots and reforms, Buddhism, Jainism, Sikhism, current 'Hinduism', are so permeated with the idea of Karma, and this fact is so well-known, that no texts need be quoted; yet, a few may be. The very word Karma has now become part of many languages.

Banī Ādam ā'zāi yak ḍīgar anḍ,
Ke ḍar āfrīnīsh ze yak jauhar anḍ.
Chu uzwē ba-ḍarḍ āwaraḍ rozgār,
Ḍīgar uzwa-hā rā na mānaḍ qarār. (S., Sā'ṇī.)

(The progeny of Adam, all are parts
And limbs of one and the same organism,
Risen from the Same Essence, every one;
Then can it be, while one limb is in pain,
That other limbs should feel at restful ease?)

Sahasra-shīrshā Purushah sahasr-ākshah sahasra-pāṭ. (V.)
(The countless heads, eyes, ears, and hands and feet Of living beings are all parts of One Man.)

"When one member" (of the body) "suffers, all the members suffer with it; or one member be honored, all the members rejoice with it." (B., Paul.)

Wa mā kān annāso illā ummaṭin wahīdatan. (Q.)
(Not other than but one community,
All human beings whatsoever are, indeed.)
Sukhasya duhkhasya na kō-pi ḍāṭā,
Parah ḍadāṭi-ḍi ku-buddhiḥ ēśāḥ;
Sva-karmaṇā ēva graṭhitah hi lokah,
Karṭā aham asmi īti vr̥ṭhā abhimānāḥ,
Svayam kr̥tam svēna phalēna yujyate;
Sharīra, hé l, nisṭāra yat ṭvayā kr̥tam.

(Garuda Purāṇa.)

(Sorrow or joy none other gives to us;
False is the thought that others give us these;
Our own acts bind us humans to each other;
Our own deeds bring to us their own just fruit—
Body of mine! repay by suffering;
Give up false feel 'I do', and then be 'free'.)

"Woe unto them that call evil good, and good evil
... Be not deceived; God is not mocked; whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. ... They that sow iniquity and sow wickedness, reap the same. ...
To him that soweth righteousness shall be a sure reward. ... Men do not gather grapes of thorns or figs of thistles... The wages of sin is death... He shall reward every man according to his works... Give and it shall be given unto you... With the same measure that ye mete withal, it shall be measured to you again... God will render to everyone according to his deeds... Unto Thee, O Lord!, belongeth mercy; for thou renderest to every man according to his work.” (B., Job; Psalms; Proverbs; Matthew; Luke; Romans; etc.)

Wa mā asaubakum min-mosībaṭin fa bemā kasabaṭ aydíkum...wa mañya’mal misqāla zarraṭin khairuñ-yarah; wa mañya’mal misqāla zarraṭin šharrañ-yarah...F-al yauma lā tuzlamo nafsun shai-añwa lā tuzzauna illā mā kunṭum ta’malūn. (Q.)

(Whatever of misfortune falls on one,
Of one’s own doings it is the result.
The atom’s weight of good that you have done,
That you shall see come back to you again;
The atom’s weight of evil you have wrought,
That also must you meet unfailingly.
Be sure, no soul shall be dealt with, this day,
Unjustly, in the least; and you shall not Requited be with aught but what you did.)

Jazā-un be mā kānu yā’malūn. (Q.)
(Thou shalt receive requital and reward
In just return for whatsoever thou dost.)
N-ist bātīl har che Yazdān āfīd,
Az ghazab, w-az hilm, w-az nūsh o makīd,
Pas bi-dān, ranj-āt naṭīja-i zilla-āt;
Āfāt-ē in zarba-āt az shahva-āt. (Rūmī)
(Nothing that God has made is meaningless,
In wrath, in mercy, or in graciousness;
Therefore, be sure, thy sorrow and thy hurt
Are consequence of thine own lust and sins, Sent for thy chastening unto thee, by God.)

Hṛdi śṭhitah Karma-Sākshī . svasya ēva Āṇṭara-Pūrushah . .
Yamah Vaivasvatah Ṛvah
yah āśva ēśha hṛdi śṭhitah,
Tēna chēt avivādah té
mā Gangām mā Kurūn gamah.1 (M.; Mbh.)
(This Ruler-Yama who dwells in thy heart,
Watchful, awake, as thine own Ātmā-Self,
Unfailing Witness of thy smallest deeds—
If He no quarrel has with thee, then thou
Needst not make pilgrimage to holy shrines,
To Kuru-kshētra or to Gangā’s stream.)

1 A western poet has put the truth of the Law of Karma more softly and soothingly:
All Nature is His Art unknown to thee;
All Chance, His Order which thou canst not see;
All Discord, His Concord not understood;
All Partial Evil, His all-reaching Good.
Take heart, beloved!, in erring reason’s spite;
Whatever wrong there is, will be set right.
Har che bar mā-st, az mā-st. (S.)
(Whate'er befalleth us, cometh from us.)
(These deeds of yours shall verily be brought Back unto you, as if you were yourself The author of your own just punishment.) (H.)

Yāo iṣhuḍyo ḍaḍentē ḍāthrānām ha chā ashā-ūno Yāoschā, Mazaḍā!, ḍrēgvoḍëvyo; Yā frashā āvishyā, yā vā, Mazaḍā!, yērēsaîṭe ṭayā, . . . ṭa chashmēnēng ṭhvisrā hāro aībi ashā aībi vaēnāhī vispā. (Z., Gāthā, 31. 13, 14.)

(Great Mazaḍā!, Thou dost requite all deeds Unto the pious and the impious; For thou dost see with Thy All-seeing eyes The secret and the openly expressed Desires of human beings, or good, or bad.)

Yaṭhā āish īṭhā vārēshaîṭe
. . . Raṭūṣh shyaoṭhanā rajishtā ḍrēgvaṭa-ēchā hyat chā ashāûnē . . .
. . . Ḥyat Ṭhvā anghēush jāṅthoī darēsēm pao-ūrvīm, hyat dāo shyaoṭhanā mīzhāvān yā chā ūkhghā, akēm akāī vaṅghūhīm ashish vanghaovë Ṭhvā hunarā ḍāmoīsh Ĥrva-ēsē apēmē. (Z., Gāthā, 33. 1; 43. 5.)

(Great Raṭūṣh!, Thou doest give unto each one Just retribution, even as he is, Vicious or virtuous, or false or true.)
Thou, Mazda, that art both First and Last,
At the beginning and the end of life,
According to Thy fixed eternal Laws,
Thou dost award to each his just desert,
Reward or punishment, in word and deed,
Ill unto ill and good unto the good.)

"O men! learn ye these laws of happiness and misery which Ahura Mazda has ordained. They are, suffering of pain for a long time for the wicked, and blessings for the righteous, by which they attain happiness." (Z. Ahūnavad Gāthā, xxx. 11.)

"Good and evil do not wrongly befall men; but Heaven sends down misery or happiness according to their conduct. From the loving example of one family a whole state may become loving; and from its courtesies, courteous. From the ambition and perverseness of one man, the whole state may be thrown into rebellious disorder. Such is the nature of the influence." (C., Liki, 39. 18.)

"Those who do evil in the open light of day—men will punish them. Those who do evil in secret—God will punish them. Who fears both man and God—he is fit to walk alone." (T., Kwang Tze, 23. 8.)

"Whoso casteth a stone on high, casteth it on his own head; and a deceitful stroke shall make wounds. Whoso diggeth a pit shall fall therein; and he that setteth a trap shall be taken therein. He that worketh mischief, it shall fall upon him, and he shall not know whence it cometh." (Bible Apocrypha, Ecclesiasticus).

"The Way of Heaven is to bless the good and to punish the bad; the end of punishment is to promote virtue and make an end of punishing." (C., Shu King.)

"The recompense of good and evil follows as the shadow follows the figure." (T., Tai-Shang Kan Ying Pien.)

(If a man speak or act with evil thought, Pain surely follows him, e'en as the wheel Follows the ox that drags the cart along. (Bu., Māha-vagga, 6. 31. 7.)

Yo apy-aḍutthasya narasya āsusti, Suṣṭhassa posassa an-anganassa, Ťam ēva bālam pachchēti pāpam, Sukhmo rājo pati-vāṭam va khiṭṭo. (Dh.)

(The man who hurts the sinless innocent, Unto that thoughtless man returns that hurt,

1 In Chinese, Ťien or Heaven stands for God manifest; Tsi-Tsai is the Motionless Self-existent (Skt., Kūta-śha); Wuliang-Shen is Boundless Age or Time (Skt., An-ādi-an-ananta-pra-vāha, semp-ternal flow or motion, beginning-and-end-less.)
Unfailing, as fine dust flung 'gainst the wind)\(^1\).
Aṭṭā hi Aṭṭanō nātho,
ko hi nātho paro siyā;
Aṭṭanā 'va su-ḍanṭēna,
nāṭham labhaṭi dullabham.

\(^1\) For vivid concrete illustration, in terms of practical politics and economics and current history; illustration of the spiritual-metaphysical truth that all selves are One Self, and therefore right or wrong done, pleasure or pain given, comes back; see the following excerpt from G. B. Shaw, Collected Works, 1938, paper on 'Family Life in Germany under the Blockade' (written in 1919):

"The Peace Treaty of Versailles has imposed on the vanquished Germans a colossal tribute. How is it to be paid if German industry is ruined and German labor is starving? It can be paid only if Germany buys things from us (the British) at more than cost price, and sells things to us at less than cost price, until her ransom is paid. There is no other way. That means that German production must continue side by side with British production. If we are to have the spoils of victory, German industry must be restored. And if German industry is to be restored, German labor must be fed. That is why, in starving the Germans, we are biting our noses to spite our faces. If our vengeance-mongers cannot divine by spiritual intuition, that we are members of one another, they will have it rubbed into them most unsympathetically and uncomfortably by the hard fact that there will be no business doing in many of their trades until German industry revives, that is, until Germany is producing enough to pay more than enough for British goods." The history of the world since 1919 and the Second World War, all only proves the unshakeable nature of the metaphysical laws and facts.
Aṭṭā hi Aṭṭano nātho,
Aṭṭā hi Aṭṭano gaṭi;
Tasmā saññamay-Aṭṭānam, assam bhadram 'va vāṇijo.
Aṭṭanā 'va kaṭam pāpam
aṭṭa-jam aṭṭa-sambhavam
Abhi-manṭhāti duṃ-médham
vajiram 'va 'sma-mayam maṇim. ¹ (Dh.)

(Self is the Self’s protector, master, lord.
Who other can be such? If ye control
And discipline your-self, ye gain a Friend
Such as ye cannot have outside your-Self.
Self only is self’s final refuge, goal;
Then train it well; so it will swiftly take Ye to whatever righteous goal ye seek.
The sin arising from within one-self,

¹ Samskṛt form of these Pāli verses, uttered by Buḍḍha, would be:

Aṭmā hi Aṭmanah nāthah;
kō hi nāṭhat parah syāt?
Aṭmanā évā su-dāntēna
nāṭham labhaṭi dur-labham.
Aṭmā hi Aṭmanah nāṭhah,
Aṭmā hi Aṭmanah gatiḥ;
Tasmāt samyamaya Aṭmānam,
ashvam bhadrām iva vāṇijah.
Aṭmanā évā kṛṭam pāpam,
Aṭma-jam, Aṭma-sambhavam,
Abhi-maṭhāti duṃ-médhasam,
vajrām iva ashma-mayo maṇih.
Churns up that evil mind within itself,
E’en as the diamond-grinder’s grinding stone
Grinds down the jewel-stone till it shape true.)

Sam-uḍ-dharaṇī hi ātmānām
Ātmānā ēva vi-chakshahṇāh.
Ātmano guruḥ Ātmā ēva, purushasya vipashchiṭah.

(Bhag. XI. vii. 19-20.)

Uḍḍharaṇī Ātmānā Ātmānām,
na Ātmānām ava-sādayēt;
Ātmā ēva hi Ātmānāh bandhuh
Ātmā ēva ripuh Ātmānāh:
Bandhuh Ātmā Ātmānāh ṭasya,
Yēna Ātmā ēva Ātmānā jīṭah;
An-Ātmānāh tu shaṭrūtṛvē
varṣeṭā Ātmā ēva shaṭrū-vat. (G.)

Paraspara-bhayāt kēchit pāpāḥ pāpam na kurvaṭe;
Rāja-danda-bhayāt kēchit, Yama-danda-bhayāt parē;
Sarvēṣhām api cha ēṭēṣhām Ātmā yamayāṭām Yamah;
Ātmā samyamitah yēna Yamah ṭasya karōṭi kim?
Na Yamam Yama ity-āhuh, Ātmā vai Yamah uchyaṭe.

(Mbh., M.)

(The wise man’s special Teacher is his Self.
Save and uplift your-self by your own Self;
Degrade it not; your-Self is your best Friend,
If your High Self but masters your low self;
But if your low self rears rebellious head,
Then is your High Self kindest Enemy.
For fear of one another, some refrain
From sin; others for fear of the king's rod;
Some, fearing Yama's judgment after death;
But Judge of Judges is the Inner Self;
In whom this Inner Judge is satisfied,
He hath no fear of any other Judge.)

"I, the Lord thy God, am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children and the children's children, unto the third and to the fourth generation"; (B., Exodus, chs. 20 and 34.)
"Righteousness exalteth a nation," (B.), as well as an individual; and "The wages of Sin is Death", for a nation as much as for an individual. 'If you turn away from God and the principles of True Faith, then, verily shall We bring forward in your stead another nation who shall not be traitors to Our Cause', says God: (Q., Sūrā Muhammad, last verse.)

Yaḍi na āṭmani, puṭrēshu;
Na chēṭ puṭrēshu, napat̄shu;
Na ṭu ēva hi kṛṭah aḍharmah
karṭuh bhavaṭi nish-phalah;
Shanaih ā-varṭamānāḥ ṭu
Karṭuh mūlāṇī krṇṭaṭi. (M.)
Aty-ugra-puṇya-pāpānām
iha éva phalam ashnuṭe.
Hṛḍayé sarva-bhūtānāṁ
Antār-yāmi Yamah śṭhiṭah. (Mbh.)

(Sin doth not always bear its painful fruit
Unto the sinner, here on earth, at once;
But, circling, it reacts unfailingly,
And cuts the sinner’s very roots of being;
And often it inflicts the consequence
Upon the children and grandchildren too,
[As patently the sins of venery];
Never goes sin without its due return;
And deeds of noble goodness, or dire sin,
Bear their just fruit, here, in this very life.
Never is there escape from consequence,
Because the Great Judge dwells within each heart.)

In the last line is the secret of the perpetual ‘Day of infallible Judgment’. No one can escape him-Self, his own heart and memory and conscience, and avoid reward or expiation.

Doubts, disputes, problems, have arisen, in this connection, regarding Free-Will and Destiny (dīshṭa), Liberty and Necessity, Vitalism and Mechanism, puruṣa-kāra and ḍaiva, uḍyoga and nīyaṭi, qadr and jabr, mukhtār and majbūr, sva-ṭaṅṭra and para-ṭaṅṭra, Self-Choice and Determinism; the same thing meant by many names. Also, problems have arisen regarding conflict between God’s Mercifulness and Forgiveness of sins, on the one hand, and His Justice and Restraining of Wickedness on the other.

All such doubts are reduced, controversies allayed, problems solved, views reconciled, if we bear in mind duly that the Great, Infallible, Subtle, all-seeing Judge is ever within us; we are compelled, ultimately, by our own heart, our own conscience, our own Self, to expiate our sinful kārma and to receive reward of our meritorious kārma. What we do from pure sense of Duty, is neither sin nor merit, and has no such ‘binding’ consequence. If any feel that he is helpless to avoid committing sin, he should also feel that he is, and ought to be, equally helpless to avoid the enduring of punishment. If the most innocent child drink poisonous liquid by sheerest mistake, it will, by that same mistake, suffer painful resultant illness, even death. If anyone deliberately commits sin, he will equally knowingly suffer the penalty. The Justice which arises within our-Self, and compels us to make voluntary restitution, is also the greatest Mercy, since it purifies the soul. To feel ‘compelled’ to commit sin, and ‘free’ to avoid punishment, is not reasonable.

Mā-ēm ba lutf-e-Haq ūvallā kurdah,
V-az ūve ṭīšiā tōū baṛā kurdah,
Har-jā ke ināyātē ṯo bāshaḍ,
Nā-kardah cho kärdah, kärdah chūn nā-kardah!
Ai! nēk na kärdah, va baḍī-hā kärdah!
W-angāh ba luṭfe-Haq ẓavallā kärdah!
Bar u'fwu ma-kun ẓakiyah, ke hargiz na buwaḍ
Nā-kardah cho kärdah, kärdah chūn nā-kardah!

(Omar Khayyām)

(Some say: In God's great Mercy we have faith,
And take no thought of good or evil deed;
On whomsoe'er His eye of Favour rests,
His 'not-done' deeds of good become all 'done',
And his 'done' deeds of evil all 'un-done'!
O thou! that didst not do one deed of good,
But hast been doing many deeds of ill!
Do not deceive thyself, that if thou throw
Thyself upon the Mercy of High God,
Thy sins will be forgiven in such wise
That the 'done' deed shall be as if 'not-done',
And the 'not-done' become as if 'twere-done'.)
[All the great sages with one voice declare—
Whom the Lord loveth, him He chasteneth,
With trials sore and penalties severe,
Which cleanse him of his sins and make him pure,
And worthy of His love and love of all.]

It is an outstanding characteristic of the egoistic inexperienced young soul, young mind, of our baser, lower, nature, that it always tries to fasten on others, all the blame for its own faults, vices, sins, crimes. 'God made me do this; He created me like this; He must forgive me; I am not to blame'; 'Fate, Chance, Nature, compelled me'; 'If there is a God at all, he must be a horrible monster to cause all this suffering to me'; 'Nature is brutal, satanic'; 'The other fellow started the quarrel'; 'The other nation began the war; we are completely innocent'; and so on, and so forth. A glaring, ludicrous, conclusive everyday illustration is—a child runs carelessly, stumbles, falls, hurts itself, begins to cry; the mother runs up, picks up the child, beats the floor, and the child is completely satisfied, ceases to cry: 'The floor was to blame, not I.' In the earlier 'child-mind' stages, a personal God outside is to praise or to blame; in the later 'sage-mind' stage, the Impersonal All-personal All-pervading God within more than without, is to praise or to blame: 'I am to blame, I have committed faults, sins, crimes'.

_Qurān_ puts it more strongly:

Mā asābekā min hasanaṭin fa min Allāhī, wa mā asābekā fa min sayāṭin fa min nafasak. (Q.)

(Whatever good ye have, is all from God; Whatever evil, all is from your-self.)

What is meant is, that all that is good comes from the element of the Higher Self in us, essence of which is God; while all that is evil, comes from the lower self-ish self in us, (which also is in and from God).

Sūfis have made it clear:
Har che az zain o shain-i shumā-št,
Sar ba sar muqțazā-i aˈin-i shumā-št.
Har che aˈin- shumā ˈtaqāzā karḍ,
Jauḍ-i-faiz-i-Man huwaˈidā karḍ.

(Good, evil, both are all your own demand; Whateˈer your heart desired, My bounty gave.)

Nature is a Continuity. Life, The Ever-living Self, Whose Nature it is, is not only a Continuity but also a Unity. Because Life is a Unity, therefore is Nature a Continuity; therefore are all constituents of the universe interdependent, smallest or largest. One Life runs through all forms¹, an unbreakable thread, Sūṭr-Āṭmā, Thread-Soul, strings, threads,

¹ Western scientists are coming to see this Continuum of Life and Consciousness more and more: Thus, “When we view ourselves in space and time, we are obviously distinct individuals; when we pass beyond space and time, we may, perhaps, form ingredients of a continuous stream of Life.”: Sir James Jeans, Address at annual meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, quoted in The Modern Review (of Calcutta) for February, 1935, p. 227. It may be added that it is not necessary to pass beyond space and time to feel this continuity. Indeed, continuity necessarily involves space and time, and is possible only in them. Beyond them there is Eternity, Motionlessness, Unity (or indeed the Absence of both Unity and Multiplicity) instead of Continuity; for Continuity means Unity running through nets, and weaves them all together inseparably; and makes of them a Continuity. Every atom is constantly sending out, and receiving, infinite vibrations to and from all other atoms. The same particles of gaseous, liquid, solid substances are circulating through all sorts of living bodies and things; the same thoughts, feelings, desires, volitions, through all minds. All living things are influencing each other, sharing in each other's pains and pleasures, willy-nilly. Any change, any disturbance, in any department of Nature, has reverberations and repercussions in all other departments. "The fool

Multiplicity, Self through not selves. Mr. Whately Carington, in his books, Three Essays in Consciousness, and The Quantitative Study of Trance Personalities, reviewed in Theosophist for February, 1935, argues to the effect that: "Physiologists and biologists, chemists and physicists, are showing with increasing success that there is no kind of discontinuity to be observed between conscious and non-conscious matter; hence the universality of Consciousness is fundamentally one ... Apparently distinct consciousnesses are united by a common Sub-Consciousness ... (There is) a Universal substratum of Consciousness animating all structural forms. ... (It is possible) to envisage, (national panics, enthusiasms, etc., are proof) ... a process of expansion or enlargement of consciousness without loss of individuality, until in the limit each will be co-extensive with Universal Consciousness". This is all good sound Yoga-Védânta, Tasawwuf. Gnostic-Mysticism. Only the word 'comparatively' has to be added before 'Universal', for the 'non-comparative' Universal is—'non-comparative'; there is no expansion or gradation in, for, to, It.
hath said in his heart, there is no God," and thinks he will evade the consequences of his evil ways; but God is hiding all the time in that same heart, as much as in the wise heart; and He will impel him, from within, to put himself in a position where he will have to eat the bitter fruit of the tree of evil that he has planted; thus will the erring one learn wisdom by sad experience. As nothing can pass out of the Whole, sin and are always being balanced up by their respective consequences. The Whole as such is ever in a state of perfect sameness, equilibrium, samaṭā, ṭuliṭaṭa, wahdaṭ, mawahzinah.

Sukhasya ananṭaram ḍuhkham, ḍuhkhasya ananṭaram sukham;
Chakra-vat pari-vartete
Sukha-Ḍuhkhē divā-nisham. (Mbh.)

(After joy, sorrow; after sorrow, joy;
After day, night; and after night, the day;
Ceaseless rotate they on the Wheel of Life;
O'er and between the two, broods Peace alway.)
Inna ma'l usra yusrin fa inna ma'l usre yusra.

(Q., 'Sūrai Sharah'.)

(After pain, pleasure cometh, verily;
So too comes sorrow surely after joy.)

The scientific laws of causation, of action and reaction, of conservation of energy and indestructibility of matter amidst perpetual transformations of form, all arise out of this same fact, viz., that the Self is ever-complete and contains all, once for all; and all actions, vibrations, movements, arise within It, and end within It; issue from It, and return to It.

Pūrṇam aḍah, pūrṇam iva, pūrṇāḥ pūrṇam uḍachyaṭē
Pūrṇasya pūrṇam āḍāya pūrṇam éva ava-shishyaṭē.

(That Spirit-world is Full. This Matter-world Is Full also. If from the Full the Whole Is taken out, the Whole remains the Full.)

As Sūfis say:

Huwal āna kamā kāna.

(He is as He was.)

I am that I am. (B.)

"There is nothing new under the sun; That which is, is That which was." (B., Eccles.)

Jīrṇāṇi vāsāmsi yaṭhā vihāya,
Navāni grīḥnāti narah aparāṇi,
Taṭhā sharirāṇi vihāya jīrṇāni,
Anyāni samyāṭi navāni dehī. (G.)

Praṭi-kshaṇa-pari-ṇaminī Prakṛṭih;
Chiṭi-shakṭiḥ a-pari-ṇāminī. (Sāṅkhya-Yoga.)

(E'en as a man puts off his worn-out clothes And puts on new ones, even so the Self Casts off old bodies and takes up new ones.
God's Garment, Nature, changes hues and forms,
Moment to moment, tireless, ceaselessly;
His Consciousness continues e'er the same.)
Kullu yaumin huā fishān. (Q.)

Ḍam-ba-daṁ gar shawaḍ libās baḍal
Marḍ-i-Sāhib-i-libās rā che khalal? (S.)
Ta’iyun būḍ kaz havštī juḍā shud,
Na Haq bandā, na bandā bā Khudā shud.
(Shahābuḍḍin Mohammad Shabistārī, Gulshan-i-Rāz.)

(Each moment is He in a different state.
But how may it affect the One who wears
These Many garbs, if these change ceaselessly?
A Limitation, Definition, seems
To shape out in the sea of Boundless Being;
Nor God grows Servant, nor the Servant God.)

Dream-worlds, world-dreams, world-dramas, arise and disappear endlessly; the 'substance-quality-quantity' of Infinite Consciousness in, for, from,
by, out of, which they are made and come and go, remains the same. Multiply the endless infinite circle of the zero by any finite number; it remains zero.¹

¹ Note: On Karma, Rebirths, and Evolution.
Following is abridged from the art. 'Metempsychosis', Enc. Brit., 14th. edn.
4. Other Worlds and Planes of Being.

The fourth great truth, common to all religions, is that as there is the physical world corresponding to man's five outer senses and waking state, so there

"The theory of transmigration of souls is usually associated with ancient Egyptians; with the teaching of Pythagoras and Buddha; and was also held by a sect of early Christian heretics. The idea is much older than these creeds, and exists throughout the world. It is often bound up with the idea of a plurality of souls, in a single individual, one of which is separable. Thus the Poso-Altufes of Celebes believe in three souls: (a) idoso or vital principle, (b) angga, or intellectual, and (c) tanoana or divine element which leaves during sleep. The Orphic religion of Greece, and the Eleusinian Mysteries, included faith in metempsychosis. Pythagoras was its first famous exponent in Greece. Plato accepted it and enhanced its importance. In Jewish literature, there are traces of it in Philo Judeus, and it is definitely adopted in Kabbala. Within the Christian Church, it was held in the first centuries by Gnostic sects; by Manicheans in the 4th and 5th centuries; in Middle Ages, by numerous sects collectively known as Cathari. Giordano Bruno, van Helmont, Swedenborg, Goethe, Lessing, Charles Bonnet, Herder, Hume, Schopenhauer, and other notable thinkers held it or respected it. Modern Theosophy, which draws its inspiration from India, has taken it as a cardinal tenet; it is, says a recent theosophical writer, 'the master-key to modern problems, among them the problem of heredity."

Schopenhauer, World as Will and Idea, III, 300-306, has a great collection of texts showing prevalence of this belief in all times and climes.

"As regards Jews and early Christians, Origen, one of the most learned Fathers of the Christian Church, taught, are other worlds corresponding to subtler senses and other states of his consciousness; that through these the soul of man passes between death and rebirth in the 2nd century, A.C., that "forth from God come all spirits that exist, all being dowered with free-will. Some refused to turn aside from the path of righteousness... and took the place of angels. Others, in the exercise of their free-will, turned aside from the path of duty, and passed into the human race, to recover, by righteous and noble living, the angel condition... Others, still in the exercise of their free-will, descend yet deeper into evil and become devils... All were originally good—by innocence, not knowledge... Angels may become men, men angels; and even evil ones may climb upwards once more, and become men and angels again": (De Principiis, passim; quoted in the The Universal Text Book of Religion and Morals, by Annie Besant). But Origen's form of the doctrine was condemned at a Church Council, A.D. 533.

Josephus, De Bello Judaico, says: "They say that all souls are incorruptible; but that the souls of good men are only removed into other bodies, and that the souls of bad men are subject to eternal punishment"; and again: "... all pure spirits live on, in heavenly places, and in course of time they are again sent down to inhabit sinless bodies; but the souls of those who have committed self-destruction are doomed to a region in the darkness of the under-world." This last sentence is an almost exact equivalent of a verse of Isha Upanishat, Andhami ṭamah pra-vishanṭi yē ke cha Āṭma-haṅah janāḥ.

(Into deep darkness do they fall who turn Away from their true Self and slay It thus.)

"Origen, Clemens Alexandrinus, Synesius, Chalcidius, all believed in metem-psychosis; so did the Gnostics, in this world, even as he passes through dreams in the night between day and day; that there are sub-human, super-human, and co-human kingdoms who are unhesitatingly proclaimed by history as a body of the most refined, learned, and enlightened men"; Isis Unveiled, I, 12.

Gibbon, (Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, ch. 47, text and notes), says: "The disciples of Jesus were persuaded that a man might have sinned before he was born (John, ix, 2), and the Pharisees held the transmigration of virtuous souls, (Josephus, de Bello Judaico). Since the introduction of the Greek or Chaldean philosophy, the Jews were persuaded of the pre-existence, transmigration, and immortality of souls." The Hebrew word for metempsychosis is gilgulim.

Enc., Brit., 14th edn., art. 'Kabbalah', says, "The doctrine was adopted by the Kabbalists in defiance of the Jewish philosophers." Main doctrines of Kabbala, outlined there, are the very same as those of Védānta and Ṭasawwuf. "The Zohar states that 'all souls must undergo transmigration';... the Jewish literature of this subject of transmigration is an exceedingly rich one": J. Abelson, Jewish Mysticism, 164, 165.

Following is an abstract of a very remarkable article, 'The Ancient Wisdom in Africa', by Patrick Bowen, published in Theosophist (Adyar, Madras) for August, 1927: "As a boy, ten or twelve years of age, following my father's wagon through the wild Bushlands of the Northern Transvaal, I gained the friendship of many Isanusi (Wise Men) of the Zulus. One of these, Mankanyezi ('the Starry One') said to me, 'Within the body is a soul; within the soul is a spark of the Itongo, the Universal Spirit. After the death of the body, Idhlosi (the soul) hovers for a while near the body, and then departs to Esil-weni, the Place of Beasts. This is very different from entering the body of a beast. In Esilweni of beings which inhabit them; and that man, by special efforts and processes of training, can develop inner senses and latent powers which can open these worlds to him.

the soul assumes a shape, part beast and part human. This is its true shape, for man’s nature is very like that of the beast, save for that spark of something higher. After a period, long or short, according to the strength of the animal nature, the soul throws aside its beast-like shape, and moves onward to—a place of rest.” [This African belief corresponds to that in Prêtā-loka, and thereafter Pitṛ-loka plus Svarga-loka, of Vēd-ism. See Manu-smṛti, ch. xii, especially verses 52-82; these verses indicate that by ‘births’ into low, gross, animal and other forms, are meant post mortem states of the erring and sinning soul, imprisoned painfully in such forms, made of tenuous invisible matter, shaped by its own mentality. Some Sūfī sects also interpret the Qurānic verses, ré ‘apes’ and ‘swine’, (see pp. 236-’7, supra), in a similar sense.] “In that place of rest it sleeps, till a time comes when it dreams that something to do and learn awaits it on earth; then it awakes, and returns, through the Place of Beasts, to the earth, and is born again as a child. Again and again does the soul travel thus, till at last the man becomes true-Man, and his soul, when the body dies, becomes one with the Itongo, whence it came. The common man cannot understand more than that the Itongo is the Spirit of his Tribe; but the Wise Ones know that It is the Spirit within and above all men, even all things; and that at the end, all men being one in Spirit, are brothers in the flesh.” Mankanyezi, a year or two later, predicted to me that I would meet one of his ‘Elder brothers’, an Elder in the Family (Society), to which he belonged, whose members are the guardians of the Wisdom which comes from of old; they are of many ranks, Modern science indicates this possibility by the expression, 'extension of faculty'; and clairvoyance and telepathy have been proved by psychical from learner to Master, and Higher Ones whose names may not be spoken; and there is one member at least in every tribe and nation throughout this great land' (Africa). This prediction came true, and I did meet other members of the Fraternity, and also saw proofs of clairvoyance and telepathy and will-force, and received teachings. Mandhlalanga ('Strength of the Sun'), chief of a very small community of Berbers, or rather Khabyles, Kha-beel-ya, [? Arab. Qablā-s] who, for reasons unexplained, had come away, five thousand miles, from their home in North Africa, and had identified themselves with the Zulus, taught me in the secret Bantu tongue: 'Itongo is all Substance, all Power, all Wisdom; but it is also above and beyond them, eternally Unmanifest. There are but two manifestations, Universal Mind and Universal Matter. Force is simply that portion of Mind which endows Matter with Form. At first both Mind and Matter were un-individualised; a vast amorphous mass; growing denser and denser; ether, gas, liquid, solid. When, how, why, individuality began —only the Itongo can know. It was like the starting of myriads of whirlpools on the surface of the ocean. In matter the Soul has reached the aphelion of its cycle; now it begins its long slow return journey. It climbs slowly from mineral to plant, animal, man; up through the lower mind to the higher, till, at last, its cycle complete, it merges into its source, Itongo ceases to be Individual, becomes one with the All. On his journey, from and back to the Itongo, man is born again and again. His physical body dies, as do also his lower mental principles; only his higher mental principles survive from age to age, retaining, throughout the Cosmic Cycle, the individuality bestowed upon them at its opening. The Principles are: (1) the physical body research, conducted by recognised scientists. *Yoga-siddhis, divya-shaktis, vibhootis, (umzimba); (2) the etheric body (isitunzi); (3) the lower mind (amanthla); (4) the animal mind (utivesilo); (5) the human mind (utivomuntu); (6) the spiritual mind (utivetongo); (7) Itongo.'"

In terms of Yoga and Vedanta, these are (1) annamaya-kosha, (2) prana-maya-kosha, (3), (4), and part of (5) mano-maya-kosha, rest of (5) and (6) vijnana-maya-kosha, (7) ananda-maya-kosha, and Atma. In terms of Theosophical literature, they are the 'seven principles' which make up 'man': (1) physical body, or sthula-sharira, (2) prana, or etheric double, (3) linga-sharira, (4) kama-rupa, (5) manas, (6) buddhi, (7) Atma. In another Vedic and Raja-yoga scheme, the main 'bodies' or shariras are (1) sthula, gross, dense, physical, which includes the first three, (2) sukshma, subtle, astral, which includes the next two, (3) karaana, causal, equivalent to the sixth; Atma being the wearer of the three bodies.

Mr. Bowen continues: "The Brotherhood is called, in the ancient Bantu speech, Bonabakulu abase Khemu, i.e., The Brotherhood of the Higher Ones of Egypt. (Khem, whence 'Chem-istry', was an ancient name of Egypt). It was founded by a Priest of Isis in the reign of the Pharaoh Cheops, to spread The Wisdom which comes from of Old, among all races and tribes of Africa, and the study and practice, among its members, of Ukwazi-kwasi-thabango, which means, The Science which depends on the Power of Thought (Yoga). The grades of the Brotherhood are: (1) the Pupil, (2) the Disciple, (3) the Brother, (4) the Elder, (5) the Master, (6) Those who Know (Isangoma), (7) Abakulu-bantu; i.e., Perfect Men, for whom rebirth has ceased, who dwell on earth in physical form by their own will; and can retain or relinquish that form as they choose;
kamāl, mo'jizah, karāmāt, raushan-zamārī, 'divine powers', 'the luminous heart', 'perfections', 'miraculous powers', 'magical powers', have been believed

By getting full control of the vibrations of his higher planes, a developed Man may despatch, through the Cosmic Ocean of which he is a part, ripples of various kinds and intensities, which will produce effects, according to their nature and strength, on all strata, most of course on the most sensitive highest strata, of the other 'whirlpools' or 'individualities' . . . .

The above long, and yet all too condensed and short, account of the belief of Africa, has been incorporated here, in pursuance of the method of this compilation; to show how numerous, how widespread in space, persistently continuous in time, are the votes cast by Demos in favor of the immortality, evolution, or revolution, and rebirths, of souls. The article, 'Transmigration', in Ency. of Religion and Ethics, occupies sixteen double-column large quarto pages of minute print, equal to a hundred pages of this book. It shows that the belief has been, and is, spread all over the world, in all known history and anthropology, in one form and another, among primitive peoples of all continents, and has also been held by Indian, Persian (Iranian, Zoroastrian), Egyptian, Jewish, Greek, Roman, Celtic, and Teutonic nations. In the Christian world, the belief, suppressed for a time, seems to be reviving among the educated and thoughtful, as a necessary complement and corollary of the fact of evolution.

The Encyclopedia of Islam, art. 'Tanāsukh', says, in effect, that 'the belief in metempsychosis is widespread in India and among several sects of the Muslim world. Shahristānī takes the word tanāsukh in a wide sense, vis., the successive lives and rebirths of the world, in cycles of revolution, of varying durations, 30000, 70000, 360000 years, and so on.' [Cf. Vedic yugas, in, everywhere, always. They are only extensions of such powers as we daily exercise, and not, in the least, kālpa, maha-yugas, etc. "In another sense, it means the diffusion and distribution of the Divine Spirit among the beings of our world. Extreme Shīās believe in the descent or incarnation (hulūl) of all or part of the Divine Principle in certain men." [Cf., Vedic avatāras, amsāva-tāras, etc.] "In the popular sense, of passing from one body to another, the belief is held by several Shīa sects. Among the Mo’tazilas, the disciples of Ahmad bin Ha’īṭ taught that God first created beings in a kind of paradise" [Sātya-Yuga, Golden Age, Arcadia, Eden]; "then those who were guilty of disobedience were sent by him into our world in the form of men or animals, according to the gravity of their sins; they then migrate from form to form until the effects of their sins have ceased. The Ismā’īlīs did not admit the passage of the soul into the bodies of animals; but they did admit successive (human) lives until it recognised the lmām; then it rose to the world of Light. The Nusairīs believe that sinners of their religion will be reborn into other religions; outright infidels will become camels, mules, asses, dogs, etc.; there are seven degrees of metempsychosis according to them. The Druses believe that the souls of the enemies of their religion will enter the bodies of dogs, monkeys, and swine. The Kurds and the Yazidis believe in transmigration into the bodies of men and also animals, and in successive existences separated by an interval of 72 years. According to Saiyad Sharīf Djurdjārī, ṣanāsukh is the passing of the soul to a new body without intervals, on account of the inclination of the spirit for the body ".

All sorts of beliefs, as to kinds of transmigration, similar to those of these Muslim sects are to be found among different sects of other religions also. Belief in more surprising than these.\textsuperscript{1} Svargas, narakas, lokas, bhuvanas; jannats and jahannums, bahishts and dozakhs, arsh-es and arд-s, lauhas and tabaqas; paradises and purgatories, heavens and hells of higher and lower levels, and subtler and grosser planes of matter; are affirmed by all religions.\textsuperscript{2} They are subjective as well as objective; continuous existence of the soul, and its births and rebirths into physical bodies, is common to almost all. Of course, there are also sects, in all religions, which deny such transmigration; very few in Hinduism; many in Islam; many in Christianity. Also, there are some texts of Qur\=\text{"an}, and writings of venerated Muslim writers, which some commentators interpret as favouring belief in re-incarnation, while others interpret them otherwise.

\textsuperscript{1} Many s\textit{и}д\textit{и}s, 'accomplishments' extra-ordinary powers, bodily and mental, ability to create what would be commonly regarded as 'miracles', are mentioned in \textit{Yoga-Sutra-and-Bh\=\text{"ashya}; also, the particular kinds of virtues and 'meditations', 'absorptions', 'rapt contemplations', which develop those powers, respectively.

\textsuperscript{2} T.H.R. (‘Rewards and Punishments’ and ‘Future Life and Immortality’) has no quotations from \textit{Sh.,C.,T.}, mentioning heaven and hell in the specific sense commonly understood. But p. 66 quotes: ‘All the living must die . . . but the spirit issues forth and is displayed on high, in a condition of glorious brightness’. Comment on this will be found in Wilhelm and Jung’s \textit{The Secret of the Golden Flower} (Eng. transln. of a Chinese classic), where the extraction of the subtle body from the dense is described. Rebirth does not seem to have been expressly denied anywhere by these three religions. T.H.R., ch. 16, (‘Man and His Perfecting’), has three extracts mentioning 'heaven'; but in the sense of God in us, and also outside; as mental scenes of joy and woe in us, parks and jails outside us.

Devas and upadevas, ganas and parsha-das, sidhas and vidya-dharas, apsaras and ganharvas, yaksha-s and raksha-s; farishtas and malayak, paris and jinnat; fravarshis, farshars, amesha-spentas, yazds; deva and darvands; iblis-es and shaitans; daityas and asuras; angels and devils, good and evil spirits of earth, water, fire, air, woods, hills, etc., fairies, gnomes, sylphs, nymphs, undines, dryads, salamanders, brownies, banshees, elves, imps, fiends, demons, devils, spooks, etc., are common to all religions and all peoples. As human bodies are made of certain forms of matter, so the bodies of these are said to be composed of other forms of matter, which are not ordinarily perceptible to our senses (as human bodies are not, to theirs); except in special conditions; as air becomes 'visible', when, as whirl-wind, it 'puts on' a column of dust, sand, or water. To think that no other forms of life are possible than or the Supreme Mystery and Power for Good. Lin Yutang, My Country and My People, p. 189, quotes Chinese sayings: 'Heaven's way also goes round,' 'Keep your own status and resign yourself to heaven's will', 'Let heaven and fate have their way', 'At 50 years of age, Confucius knew heaven's will'. Through Buddhism, however, belief in rebirth seems to have become common throughout China.

such as are cognisable by human senses, is surely to depart very greatly from due modesty. Scores of species of these, high and low, gentle and fierce, as of herbivorous and carnivorous animals, and of savage and civilised human beings, are named in scriptural books.1

1 Jewish and Christian theology distinguishes nine kinds of angels grouped in three great classes: (1) Seraphim, Cherubim, Thrones, (2) Dominions, Virtues, Powers, (3) Principalities, Archangels, Angels. Jewish Kabbala adds Eons, Sephiroth, Dignities. Izeds (Yazds) Shâdîm, Sephiroths, Malakim, Teraphim, Elohim, are also spoken of. In Islam, five kinds of Jinns, related to the five elements, are recognised; and it gives special prominence to four great archangels, Jibra-il, Mikâ-il, Azrâ-il, Isrâ-il; (The Might of God, Gabrî-el; the Spear of God, Micha-el; the Punishing Mood of God, Azrâ-el, the angel of Death; Dawning, Unveiling, of the Grace, Sharaf, of God, Serafi-el, the sweet trumpeter and announcer of Morning); somewhat like the four Lokâ-pâlas and eight Dik-pâlas of Vaidîka Purânas. In Judaism, "Rahm-iel is the angel of Mercy; Tahr-iel, of Purity; Peđâ-iel, of Deliverance, feďâ (z); Tsâd-k-iel, of Justice; Râz-iel, of Divine Secrets": J. Abelson, Jewish Mysticism, 127. In Arabic language also, which is a cousin of Hebrew, (since Arabs and Jews are descendants of the two sons of Abraham respectively, by tradition), Rahm means mercy; Tahar, Purity; Feďâ, Deliverance, submission; Sidq, Justice, Honesty; Râz, secret; and so on. These words indicate great outstanding attributes of the Universal Self or Consciousness; and also embodiments of them, as 'characteristic ruling passions', in personalities.

H. P. Blavatsky, The Secret Doctrine, III. 402, says, "Sephir is Aḍîṭi, Mystic Space. The Sephiroth are Different from these are certain disembodied human spirits, floating midway, so to say, between 'this-world' and the 'other-world' proper, midway also of heaven-and-hell, in an abnormal way, like lunatics and maniacs in a community. They are kept tied to the earth, by various strong unfulfilled desires, for varying periods, before passing on to the 'other-world.' Some of these spirits are good but feeble and foolish, others powerful and malignant, according to the quality and strength of their manias. They are known as pṛēṭas, pishāchaś etc., of many kinds, in Vaiḍika Dharmā; ghools, āsēbs, etc., in Islām; ghouls, ghosts, vampires, incubi, succubbi, etc., in Christianity.

There is no sufficient cause to deny these non-human 'spirits', 'sprites', 'nature-spirits'; nor to worship them. But the better sort, friendly to man, and willing to help, as inferiors, or as superiors, may be utilized by special processes, as domestic animals, or as superior human friends possessed of power and authority. If the evil sort are evoked, (particularly disembodied human spirits), by ān-tōrika processes of black magic, jāḍū, (Skt., yāṭu, identical with the Hindu Prajā-paṭīs(Ādīṭyas), the Ṇhyān-Chohāns of Esoteric Buddhism, the Zoroastrian Amsha-spents, and the Elohim, the 'seven angels of the presence', of the Roman Catholic Church." They have some correspondence with the seven best known planets of the solar system.
whence the name yāṭu-ṭhāṇa for the Atlantean race, called also Rākshasas)¹, physical and moral ruin ensue without fail. Prayer for release of such earth-bound souls, and for upward progress of spirits of all kinds, and, indeed, of all living things and beings, is the duty of men, prescribed by all religions. Various rituals and ceremonies, (essential elements in all of which are benevolent sympathetic all-loving will-force of the officiant, and his mental and moral purity), are also prescribed and practised in all religions; for purifying the mental, moral, psychical, superphysical, spiritual atmosphere, as fragrant incense purifies the physical; for attracting and facilitating the operations of good spirits, and driving off, and hindering or sterilising and countering the work of, evil ‘nature-forces’ or evil disembodied human ghosts; as perfumes vivify healthy, and disinfectants and antiseptics kill unhealthy, microbes.

In connection with the science and art of Yoga or Sulūk, and its stages, maqāmāf, bhumī-s, the inner side of all religions recognizes three principal layers, bodies, vehicles, sheaths, ‘principles,’ in the make-up of man, which are in touch, respectively, with corresponding worlds or planes as well as with one another. Védānta names them śhūla, sūkhma, and kāraṇa, i.e., physical, subtle, and causal; Jainas know them as auḍārika, taṭijasa, and kārmāṇa sharīras; Buḍdhists nīrmāṇa-kāya, sambhoga-kāya, dharmakāya correspond. Christian mysticism calls them body, soul, and spirit.

¹ Apparently so-called because, in the composition of their bodies, (as the result of their peculiar foods, which the purer Aryan races avoid) rākṣah (pl. rākṣhāmsī, germs or microbes or viruses inimical to Āryan bodies) predominated.

Jewish mystics designate them as nefesh, ruach, and neshāmāh (nūsmāḥ). Ṭasawwuf uses the Ar. words nafs, rūḥ, and nafs-i-nātīqā, or nafs, dul, rūḥ. These three, in the individual, the microcosm, pīndānḍa or kṣudra-vīrāt, ālam-i-saghir, have their correspondents in the Universal, the Macrocosm, Brahmana or Mahā-Vīrāt, Ālam-i-kabir. These latter are called in Samskṛt, Vaishvā-nara (or simply Vīrāt), Sūṭrātmā (or Hiraṇyagārbha or Prāṇa), and Sarvajña (or Isha, Anṭar-yāmi); in Sūfī terms, Jism-i-kul or Shāki-i-kul, Rūḥ-i-kul or Ţabīyat-i-kul or Nafs-i-kul, and Aql-i-kul; Carne or Corpus Mundi, Anima Mundi,

"Your whole Spirit and Soul and Body": (B., Thessalonians). In Egyptian Book of the Dead, these same three seem to be indicated by Khā, body, Kā or Rā, soul, Bā, higher soul or Spirit. In Graeco-Roman religion we have, carnis, umbra (or manes), anima. Some early Christian Fathers, like Ireneus, speak of "carne, anima, spiritu". Zulu terms for these have been mentioned before, at p. 262-3, supra.
Intellectus or Spiritu Mundi; collective total material World-Body, collective total World-Vitality, collective total World-Intelligence. Correspondence to Action, Desire, Knowledge, is obvious.

Many kinds of nafs and rūh are also distinguished, corresponding to kinds of sharīras, koshas, etc. Corresponding states, planes, worlds, are jāgraṇa, svapna, sushūpti, (i.e. waking, dreaming, and slumbering), or bhūḥ, bhuvaḥ, and svāh lokaḥ; ālam-i-shahāda (or -mulk or -nāṣuḥ), ālam-i-misāl (or -malakūṭ), ālam-i-jabrūṭ, etc. Subdivisions are

1 Mention has been made (p. 266 supra), of the seven ard-s ('earths') and seven arsh-es ('heavens') recognised in Islam. They are the same as the fourteen bhuvana-s or loka-s, seven below, aṭala, viṭala, suṭala, ṭalāṭala, mahāṭala, rassāṭala, pāṭala, and seven above, bhūḥ, bhuvaḥ, svāh, mahāḥ, janah, ṭapah, saṭyam. Ālam-i-mānti, (world or place of 'ideas'), ālam-i-lāḥūṭ, ālam-i-hāḥūṭ, etc., are mentioned in Sūfī books as beyond jabrūṭ, though they are probably only higher and higher subdivisions of jabrūṭ; as the four higher loka-s, of the third; so turiya, turvyāṭīta, etc. in Vēdaṇṭa, may be regarded as degrees or kinds of sushūpti and nirvāṇa. For purposes of metaphysical theory, as well as yoga-practice, three planes, correspondeing to the three familiar states of waking-dreaming-slumbering, (1) world of physical senses, (2) mental world, and (3) world of the unconscious, with a fourth as only summation of the three, are enough. All other states which it may be possible to distinguish, will be only sub-divisions of one or other of these; or, will be inventions by the minds of sensationalist sectarians, who wish to show, to a too credulous and wonder-hungry following, that they are possessed of higher and higher also distinguished. Sūfīs speak of nafs-i-ammārā, nafs-i-lawwāmā, nafs-i-muṭmainna, nafs-i-mulhīma, nafs-i-Rahmānī, etc.¹ These are lower and higher states of the soul, from one standpoint; from another, they may be said broadly to correspond with the five koshas of Vēḍāṇṭa and skandhas of Buddhism. Another distinction is between nafs-i-jāri and nafs-i-muqīm, 'wandering body' and 'stationary body'. Jism-i-latīf and jism-i-kasif mean the same, i.e., fine or subtle body and dense or gross body. This is the same pair as āti-vāhika and ādhi-bhautika sharīras of Vēḍāṇṭa, or khé-chara chīṭṭa or sūkṣhma-sharīra and sthūla-ḍeha of Yoga. Sūfī Jāmī has hinted this living separation of subtle from gross body thus:

Ḍāḍ ū ḍil bā har kasē,
Man ze ghairat be-murḍam basē!
Yak bār bi-mirāḍ har kasē,
Bēchāra Jāmī bāraḥa! (S.)

(The Loved One gave him-Self to every one,
And of that shame of Other-ness I die!
All other human beings die but once,
This helpless Jāmī dies repeatedly!)

mysteries and powers which are utterly inaccessible to others. See R. A. Nicholson, Studies in Islamic Mysticism, pp. 122-126.

¹ For explanations, see infra, Ch. III, section '7. God in Man,' sub-section 'A great Danger'.
Elsewhere he tells,

Ān Yahūd-o Mōmin-o Ṭarsā magar
Ham-raḥī kardand bāham dar safar.
Pas Yahūd āward un-che ḍīda būḍ,
Ṭā kujā shab rūh-e ū garḍīda būḍ;
"Ḍar pay-ē Mūsā shuḍam tā Kōh-i-Ṭūr,
Har ḏo gum gašhtēm w-az Ishrāq-i-Nūr".
Bāḍ-az-ān Ṭarsā ḍar-āmaḍ ḍar kalām,
K'-"Ai, Masīh-am rū namūḍ andar maqāmī."
Pas Musalmān guft, "Ai yārān-i-man,
Pēsh-am āmaḍ Mustāfā Sulṭān-i-man." (S.)

(A Jew, a Muslim, and a Christian too, Happened to come together on the road Walking and talking, first the Jew described Whereto his soul had wandered in the night; "I followed Moses to the Mount of Tūr, Where both of us were lost in Blaze of Light.

The Christian said, "My Christ appeared to me."
Lastly the Muslim said, "Beloved friends, To me my King and Prophet showed himself."

In these lines, Jāmī not only speaks of the soul wandering away from the body during sleep, but also shows that there are many mediators, helpers, guides; and that each earnest soul is helped, in dreams, visions, and superphysical states, by the great personage in whom it may have placed its whole-hearted faith and trust. Incidentally, he provides a beautiful instance of the brotherliness of the wise and pious of all religions.

Muhammad gave, to the select, the counsel:

Muṣo qabl un ṭamūṭo. (H.)
(Die before you die.)

The Ṛṣhi of Upanishats gives the same advice, to the promising disciple worthy of receiving it:

Ṭam svāṭ sharīrāṭ pra-bṛhēṭ, munjāṭ ishīkām iva ḍhairyēṇa. (U.)
(As from the thatching-grass the core is drawn,
So from the body should be drawn the soul
With patience, perseverance, fortitude.)

"I knew a certain man—whether in body or outside of body, I know not, God knoweth—who was rapt into Paradise and heard things ineffable, which it is not lawful for a man to repeat ... I knew a man ... caught up to the third heaven." (B., Paul, 2 Corinthians.)

"The children of this world marry and are given in marriage; but they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry nor are given in marriage. Neither can they die any more; for they are equal unto the angels, and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection." (B., Luke.)
Jaina prays:
Sharīratah kartum ananta-shakṭim,
Vibhinnam Āṭmānam apaśta-ḍosham,
Jinendra l, koshāt iva khadga-yashtim,
Tava prasādēna mama astu shakṭih.

(J., AMITAGATI, SĀMĀYIKA PĀTHA.)
(E'en as a sword is drawn out from its sheath,
So to draw out my pure ethereal soul
From this gross body, do thou teach me, Lord!)
Bahir-akalpiṭā vr̥ttiḥ mahā-vidēhā.

(YOGA-SŪTRA, iii. 43.)
(The pow'r to pass out from this case of flesh,
In subtle sheath, and roam about at will—Mahā-vidēhā is this power named.)

Soul, āti-vāhika déha, sūkṣma-sharīra, jñāna-déha, nirmaṇa-kāya, nafs-i-jāri,
jism-i-latīf, jism-i-mīsāl, subtle body, 'astral'
body, has to be loosened from physical body, sthūla-sharīra, ādhi-bhauṭika déha, jada-déha, jism-i-kaṣīf, jism-i-shahāda, nafs-i-muqīm, gross or dense body, body of flesh, by regulated fasts and vigils, physical and psychical disciplines, and various subtle introspective processes, of yogasulūk, under the guidance of a wise teacher, gurumurshid, pīr-i-mughān, yogī, rṣhi, who has himself passed through the experience and achieved
'freedom' of subtle body from gross-body. After successful achievement of this great experience, the 'subtle' wears the 'dense', as a person wears a suit of clothes, and can pass into and out of it at will. Then only may the person be said to be 'free' of the bonds of Karma on the earth-plane, bonds which cause his unconscious and involuntary births and deaths here; then he is mūkṭa, has gained najāṭ, 'release', freedom, so far as this plane is concerned. This, in technical 'superphysical' sense; in 'metaphysical' sense, unshakeable and permanent conviction of Self-dependence and Immortality and Universality is 'freedom' from all fear and doubt.

5. LAW OF ANALOGY OR CORRESPONDENCES.

Another important truth is that of sāma-ḍarshīṭa, 'same-sightedness', Law of Correspondences, Law of Analogy. This Law of Analogy, indeed, is the basis of that method of induction which is the foundation of all science. As

'Art of Dying', 'Craft of Dying', 'Science of Death', is dealt with in various books of many dead and living religions. See The Tibetan Book of the Dead, by Evans-Wentz (with Foreword by Sir John Woodroffe); The Secret of the Golden Flower, a Chinese Book of Life, by R. Wilhelm and C. G. Jung; and, of course, Yoga-Sūtra, and literature of Yoga generally. Eu-thanasia is the Greek word for 'good dying'.

Eu-thanasia is the Greek word for 'good dying'.

Eu-thanasia is the Greek word for 'good dying'.

Eu-thanasia is the Greek word for 'good dying'.

Eu-thanasia is the Greek word for 'good dying'.
microcosm', ālam-i-saghir, kṣhuḍra-virāṭ, so
'macrocosm', ālam-i-kabir, maha-virāṭ; as terrene man so heavenly man—this is how Hebrew, Christian, Islāmic, and Vēdic mystics put it. As one, so all, in short; because individual and universal are the same.' As atom, so solar system—as scientists put it.

Yāvān ayam vai purushah,
Yāvātyā samsthayā mītah,
Tāvān aśau api Mahā-
Purushāḥ lōka-samsṭhayā. (Bh.)

Viḍyā-vinaya-sampanne
Brāhmaṇe, gavi, haṣṭini,
Shuni cha ēva, shva-pākē cha,
Pandiṭāḥ sama-ḍarshinah. (G.)

(As are the components, organs, and parts,
Of single human be-ings—such are those
Of the Vast Macro-Cosmic Man also.
The learned cultured brāhmaṇa, endowed
With the humility which is the crown
Of virtues, as also the elephant,
The cow, the dog, and eater of the dog —Spirit of the same Spirit are all these,
And Matter of the same Root-Matter too,
Only arranged in ever-varying forms;
And the same Laws of Nature work in all—
Thus the same-sighted Wise do understand.)

1 See The Science of the Self, pp. 110-115.
Sharīra-sthāni ṭīrṭhāni proktāni etāni, Bhāraṭa. I.
Sharīrasya yathā uddēshāh
sharīr-opāna nir-miṭāh, Taṭhā prthivyāh bhāgāh cha, punyāni salilāni cha.

(Mbh., Anu-shāsana, ch. 170.)

(As in the body different organs serve
Differring functions, even so on Earth,
Do various tracts of land, and lakes, and streams,
And oceans own differing properties,
Some holy, beneficial unto man,
Others not such, but the reverse, malign.)

It is common experience that some places inspire cheerfulness; others, gloom.

A Sūfī almost translates the above Giṭā verse,
Muhaqqiq hamīn bīnaḍ andar ebil
Ke ḍar khūb-rūyān-e Chīn o Chagil. (S.)
(The wise see in the camel’s frame,
The same laws manifest
As in the beauteous Chinese dame
Or Chagil’s belle, the best.)¹

¹ Khājā Khān, at p. 89 of his excellent work, The Philosophy of Islam, says: “Referring to Sūraṭul Ḥā Mīm, 41, 53, (of Qurān) it may be gathered that God has referred to certain signs in the heavens and in the individualities of men. From this, Sūfis have constructed a theory of micro-cosm and macro-cosm, e.g., the
"The mystery of the earthly man is after the mystery of the heavenly man... The wise can read the mysteries in the human face." (Ju., Zohar, II, 76 a.)

Twelve zodiacs are the twelve holes in the human body; the seven planets are the five senses plus the senses (organs) of talking and understanding. The body is the earth; the bones, the mountains; space, the sea;... This, as well as the theory of the five elements and twenty-five guṇas, qualities, possess a distinctive Hindu stamp. The Muslim philosophy in Southern India is so much mixed up with that of the Hindus, that it is difficult to distinguish it." But the difficulty should be welcomed very heartily. Is there any need to distinguish, to see difference, instead of agreement? Is not 'mixing up', assimilation, very desirable, very helpful? The correspondences between the 'large' and the 'small', Infinite and Infinitesimal, have been described, in various ways, in Purāṇas, Upanishats, Smṛtis, Vēḍa itself, repeatedly. And now, as said in text above, western Science is discerning them. Some scientists have even put forth the view that orbs of heaven are living beings. For a brief statement of reason 'why' of Law of Analogy, working in all departments of Nature, reader may see the present writer's The Science of Peace, 3rd edn., ch. xv. Detailed and astonishing illustrations of it are to be found in those marvellous mines of 'occult' knowledge, H. P. Blavatsky's Isis Unveiled and The Secret Doctrine. The ancient Sanskrit work, Nirukta, explains how and why certain Vēḍa-texts have to be explained in three ways, metaphysical or ādhyātmika, scientific or yājñika (or ādhi-daivika), and historical or aṣṭi-hāsika (or ādhi-bhaṣṭi); each interpretation being true. Madame Blavatsky's works explain how these and other interpretations, in terms of other sciences, are all correct. She speaks of the 'seven-fold' key to the Scriptures.
"As above, so below," (Ju., Kabbalist axiom.)

"Just as the soul fills the body, so God fills the world; as the soul bears the body, so God endures the world; as the soul sees but is not seen, so God

Khājā Khān, at p. 13 of his book above mentioned, gives a diagram showing twenty-eight 'potencies', inherent attributes or principles, Asmā-i-Ilāhi, and twenty-eight corresponding 'manifestations' Asmā-i-Kiyāni, in the Universe at large. If he had only pursued the same 'principles' in their manifestations in the human being in particular, he would have seen that the view was not peculiarly 'Hindu', as he says, but natural and universal. In Purāṇa-Mythos, Brahmā, Creative Cosmic Mind (of our Solar Cosmos or System) first creates seven (or ten) mānas-puṭras, 'mental sons'. These are called primal, primeval, prajā-pāṭis, patriarchs, progenitors, of all types of living beings. They correspond to, or are same as, Sephiroth, Angels, Elohim, etc., of other religions; see f.n., pp. 268-9, supra. They are also 'presiding deities', 'vitalising souls', of the seven (or ten) planets of our solar system. Each planet has its own types of life; they all exchange their jīvas, also, in accord with 'occult' laws; as countries and continents of this earth exchange 'colonists', 'immigrants' and 'emigrants'; which is only another illustration of the working of the Law of Analogy, on minutest as well as vastest scales. Reader who may be interested in this line of thought, or 'science', or 'speculation', may consult H. P. Blavatsky’s great books, and some of the later 'theosophical' literature. Famous American philosopher, William James, in his book, A Pluralistic Universe, descants magnificently on the idea entertained by a German thinker, Fechner, that Earth is a living being, a great cosmic Individual. In Indian mythos, of course, she is Pṛthvī-Đevī, great 'goddess' Earth.
sees but is not seen:" (Ju., Talmud, quoted by J. Abelson, Jewish Mysticism, pp. 155-56).

Yaṭhā pindē ṭaṭhā Brahm-āndē. (Vedānta axiom.)
(As is the small man, such the Cosmic Man;
As the ‘small egg’, such the vast ‘orbs of space’.)

“All that is Yonder, is also here,” (Plotinus.)

Yaḍ ēva ihā, taḍ amuṭra; yaḍ amuṭra taḍ anu
ihā. Mrtyoh sah mṛtyum āpnōtī yah ihā nānā iva pashyaṭī. (Katha Up., 2-4-10).
(That which is ‘here’, is ‘there’; that which is ‘there’
Is here also. Who sees but Many only,
And not the One too, death on death is his.)

This sa mā-ṭā, this uniformity, in the working of Laws of Nature, can be due to nothing else than the Unity of Nature’s God; as one so all; as once so always; as here so everywhere; because the Same One Self is in all, is ever present, is everywhere present. It is also basis of that Equality which democratic heart craves after, and rightly, when within due limits. Vedānta states the 1 But to know that same laws of matter and mind are working in every living being, does not abolish difference between right and wrong, good and evil, gentle and fierce; it does not mean that we should behave in same way towards wolf and human child. Nature’s laws include ample provision for differential behaviour.

See infra, Ch. III, Section 3, on Golden Rule.
metaphysical fact on which Law of Analogy, samaṭā, is based, as Sarvam Sarvaṭra Sarvādā, ‘All is everywhere and always’. Tāsawwuf describes it as Indīrāj-i-Kul-f-il-Kul, ‘Immanence of All in all, in each and everything’. Bible speaks of it as “the fulness of Him that filleth all in all.” Jewish sacred book, Talmūd, honored next after Old Testament of Bible, says: “No atom of matter, in the whole vastness of the universe is lost; how then can man’s soul, which comprises the whole world in one idea, be lost?”

Whole of Sun is imaged in every the most microscopic dew-drop reflection, and every such reflection comes from, is present and included in, the vast light-sphere of the sun.

Vidyātē sa cha sarvasmin, sarvam tāsmin cha vidyātē,
Tasmāt Sam-viṭ iṭi proktāh
Param-Āṭmā mah-āṭmabhiih.

(Vāyu-Purāṇa.)

(Since Everything exists in Consciousness,
And Consciousness exists in Everything,
Hence Sam-viṭ, ‘Principle of Consciousness’,
Is one of the great names by which they know,
The great-souled ones, the Supreme Self of All.)

1 Riley, Bible of Bibles, p. 148.
Science speaks of the potency of infinite multiplication present in each seed, germ, microbe; of infinite vibrations of each atom perpetually affecting all other infinite atoms; of infinite photographs being conveyed to each point of space eternally by infinite rays of light from all directions from the most distant stars and planets; of infinite sights, sounds, etc., filling all space constantly, and needing only appropriate apparatus to be caught; and so forth.\(^1\) Obviously, to know all about the least little atom, is to know all about the Universe, for each part of a Whole is inseparably connected with all the other parts of the Whole.

Another thought, which all religions hold unitedly, is that, as chain of evolution extends below man, so it extends above him also; and that advanced souls, forming a Spiritual Hierarchy, take care of the Human Race, and guard and guide it on its upward path, as parents and teachers do their children and pupils. Famous western scientists also have openly expressed their belief that this must be

\(^1\) "There is no material point that does not act on every other material point. When we observe that a thing really is where it acts, we shall be led to say, as Faraday was, that each of them fills the world"; Bergson, Creative Evolution, p. 214.
so. All religions mention these hierarchs. Vaidika Dharma calls them Avatāras, Amshas, Kalās, Vibhūtis, Kumāras, Manus, Rṣhis, Munis, of many degrees. Buḍḍhism names them as Buḍḍhas, Praṇyēka-buḍḍhas, Bodhi-sāttvas. Jainism knows them as Tīrṇhan-karas, Siḍḍhas, Munis, and Arhaṭs. Islām knows them as Qūṭubs, Ghauses, Waṭaḍs, Abrār, Baḍals, Akhyār, Walis, Nabīs, Raśūls. Christianity calls them Sons of God, Messiahs, Thrones, Principalities, Powers, Prophets, Saints. Judaism calls them Patriarchs, Prophets, Sages. Zoroastrianism knows them as Soshyantās, 'Renovators, whose task is to re-interpret the Eternal Truth from time to time', 'Lovers of mankind', also Naroish-naro, i.e., 'Men of men', Supermen.'

Tao-ism says:

"The High Emperor of the Sombre Heavens descends to earth ... hundreds ... (upon) hundreds (of) times, to become the companion of the common people and teach them the truth ... to heal the sick ... to endure suffering patiently and

'The word Soshyantā, it seems, etymologically means 'lovers' of mankind, also 'renovators' of Humanity as well as of Truth, 'givers of a new, a second, birth to mankind', by giving birth afresh to the Eternal Truths, for their instruction, purification, and advancement; Skt. sū, to pro-create. Zoroastrians believe in "three prophets ... Oshedar-Cami, Oshedarmah, and Sosiosh, preceded by Zarathustra": H. P. Blavatsky, Isis Unveiled, II, 467."
give his life again and again, that his pain may be a spring of joy and righteousness to many hearts.”

Krśňa and Dévi-Shakťi say;

Yaśā yaśā hi dharmasya
glánih bhavaťi, Bháraťa!
Abhy-ut-ţhānam a-dharmasya,
thaţ Aţmānam srjāmi Aham.
Pari-ţrāṇāya sādhūnām,
vinaśhāya cha āuṣ-kṛtām,
Dharmasam-ţhāpan-ārthāya,
sam-bhavāmi yugē yugē. (G.)

Iṭṭham yaśā yaśā bādha
dānav-ōtţha bhavishyaţi,
Taţa taţa ava-ţīrya Aham karishyāmi ari-sān-kshayam.

(Durgā-sūţa-shatī.)

(To guard the good and slay the wicked men,
And re-establish on firm base My Law,
I manifest My-Self age after age,
When law and righteousness decline and fade,
And vicious sin uplifts a fearless head,
Then I incarnate to redress the world.)

1 Quoted by J. Estlin Carpenter, The Place of Christianity in the Religions of the World, p. 60.

2 Faizî, Court-poet of Emperor Akbar, has translated this famous verse into Persian thus,
Chu bunyād-i-Dīn sust gardaď base,
Numāyēm Khuď rā ba shaklé Kasē.
Whene'er the evil ones oppress the good,
I will take birth, and slay them without fail.)

Bahiṣaṁ saṁsara-mañah Aham
Yoṁaḥ varṇāmi, Saṁ-ṭamaṁ,
Dharm-śaṁ-rakṣaṇ-ārthāya,
Dharm-śaṁ-sthāpanāya cha.
Dharmasya Sētum baḍhāṇāmi,
chalīte chalīte yugē;
Tāḥ tāḥ yonīḥ pra-viṣhya Aham,
praṇānāṁ hiṭa-kamyaṇā.

(Mbh., Anu-Gīţā, ch. 54).

(Many the types of wombs through which I pass,
Moving for ever through the Universe,
To guard from harm or re-establish Dharmā.
Time and again I strengthen Dharmā’s Bridge
Whene'er Forces of Darkness weaken it.
For helping on of all, e'en animals,
Who also are my progeny and My-Self,
I take on form of even bird and beast.)¹

Eṣaṁ nānā-Avataṁrānām
nidhānāṁ bijaṁ Avyayam,

Another reading of the first line is,
Cho ahwāl-i-dunya bi-gardād khāse.

¹ Rudyard Kipling, H. Melville, E. Thompson Seton, E. Bullen, C. D. Roberts, and others, have written very interesting stories of 'leaders' of flocks of mountain sheep, shoals of seals, schools of whales, herds of deer, flights of pigeons, etc.
Yasya amsh-āmshēṇa jāyanṭe
deva-ṭīryaṅg-nar-ādayah. (Bh.)

(My Universal Mind is the One Fount,
Exhaustless, the One ever-fruitful Seed,
Of all the Sparks infinitesimal,
Atomic, countless, that ensoul all forms
High, low, of gods, men, animals;
While rarer Sparks of greater Light and Might Appear as Avaṭār's to guide them right.)

Muhammaḍ says:

Le kullō qaumin hād. . . In min ummaṭin illā khalā fiḥā nazir. . . Wa la qaḍ ba asnā ʿi kulli ummaṭin Rasūlan. (Q., 35. 25; 16. 37.)

(To every race great Teachers have been sent.
God hath not left any community
Without a prophet, Warner, and true guide.
He sendeth Prophets to the ignorant
And those misguided into evil ways,
Raising these prophets up from 'mongst themselves
To purify them, and to teach to them
His signs and wisdom and philosophy.)

Inn-Allahā yaba'so lihāzeh-il ummaṭō a'lā rasē kullō möyaṭō sanaṭīn man-yujaḍḍād laḥā dīna-hā.

(H., recorded by Abū Ḍāūd.)
(At the beginning of each 'hundred years',
God sends, for every race, a teacher who Revives Religion freshly for the world.)

Kāna fi Hindē nabī-yun aswaḍ-ul-laune isma-hū Kahinan. (H., recorded by Ğailamī, in Ťarīkh-i-Hamdan, Bâb-ul-Kāf.)

(A Nabi-Prophet lived and taught in Hind, Dark of complexion, Kahin was his name.)

Zālekā fazl-Ullāhē yoṭihē mañ-yashāo, w-Allāho zul-fazl-il. Allāho yā’lamo haiso yaja’lorasālaṭahu. (Q.)

(Such prophetship is a great gift from God.
And God is very generous. He also knows
Who worthy is to be His messenger.)

Zoroastrian Ĝaṭhā says:

Anghēush ḍareṭhrāya fro ashahyā ḍrārentē
vērejaḍāish senghāish Saoshyantām khaṭavō...

At ṭōi anghēm Saoshyaṇṭo ḍakhynūm yōi kshanūm vohu mananghā hachāonṭe...

1 There is a very similar doctrine stated in theosophical books. Another verse of Qurān, 23. 45, says, in view of the fact that most prophets are not honored in their day or country,

(To people after people have we sent Apostle on Apostle; mostly, though,
The people have denied, or even killed, them.)

There is a similar statement in the Bible.

2 I.e., Kṛṣṇa, which means 'the Dark One'.
Ye dāṭhaēbyo ērēsh Raṭum kṣhyāmsa āshivāo chistā. Gāthā, 46. 3; 48. 12; 51. 5.)

(Take up the disciplines enjoined by them, The Saoshyanṭas, Lovers of Mankind, Masters of Yoga, for thy soul’s welfare; In thought, in word, in deed, yea, take them up! In every land, of e’en barbarians, Are there Saoshyanṭas who have attained The Great Peace of the Universal Self. This Sovereign of the World, the Self of All, Hath sent down righteous Prophets unto us, Saoshyanṭas, to show us the Right Path.)

(In every age, a religious Guide appears Who ministers to the people and protects them, Obeying, in such work, the Will of Yazdān.)

(A Zoroastrian text.)

Theurgists and Platonists of the earlier centuries of the Christian era seem to have distinguished between Theo-pneusty (inspiration or the mysterious power to hear the oral teachings of a god), Theophathy (assimilation of divine nature), and Theophany (actual appearance of a god in man), as grades of spiritual progress.

Buddha says:

"In due time another Buddha will arise. He will be known as Maiṭrēya" (which means 'he whose nature is kindness'). . . "After the death of each Buddha, his religion flourishes for a time, then decays, and is at last completely forgotten, until a new Buddha appears, who again preaches the lost truth of Dharma.” (Seven Baskets.)

Jesus says:

“I will come again and receive you unto myself, that where I am, ye may be also.” (B.)

“Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord.” (B., Malachi.)

And elsewhere we read in the Bible:

“Out of thee (Bethlehem) shall He come forth unto Me that is to be ruler in Israel; whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting.” (B., Micah.)

The last words are especially significant.

“God hath not left himself without witness in any land.” (B.)

Isaiah says:

“The Spirit of the Lord God is upon me.” (B.)

“The Spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him (i.e., Jesus).” (B.)

And Jeremiah:

“And the Lord said unto me—Behold, I have put My words in thy mouth.” (B.)

In Qurān, the fact is emphasised over and over again that it is Allāh who is speaking through the lips of Muḥammad.
Even simply to bear these great souls in mind, as loving helpers, as examples, as standards, as proofs of the possibility for all of high achievement; and much more, to get into touch with them, by developing spiritual and moral merit, and opening up the subtler senses, 'extending' the faculties into the superphysical, the finer and more ethereal, planes; this helps our own progress as members of the vast Fraternity of Man, nay, of all living beings.

Fundamental Truths and Teachings remain ever the same, but frame-works in which they manifest, decay and lose vitality, over and over again, in race after race, age after age, clime after clime, tongue after tongue. Words, names, forms, become hackneyed, with lapse of centuries; and human hearts respond to them no longer, vividly and actively. The new spiritual impulse, new descent of the divine fire of life, that is needed to vivify afresh those Truths and Teachings, and give them a new birth in the living frame of a new language and new forms, in a new generation, or a new race, new place, new epoch—such divine afflatus can be given only by such Supermen. They incarnate as Founders of Religions; and, by the fire and fervour of their ishq-i-haqiqi, karam-bā-khalq, dunya-dostī,¹

¹ Bā khalq karam kun ke Khuḍā bā ṭo karam kard: (Sā'udi): 'Since God loves thee, thou too shouldst love all beings.'
Love divine and universal, Brāhma-nishthā, Vishva-prēma, Loka-hīṭēhā; ardent flame of their compassion for man-kind; fed constantly by the fuel of their deeds of self-sacrifice—by such ṭaṭa-paś-fire in their own hearts, they set aflame hearts of other human beings, all around, with similar love of God and of mankind. Thus they give a New Life-time, of a whole Great Era, to the Eternal Truths, and so give birth to a New Civilisation. This is their supreme work—of bringing into the world afresh, a great influx of spiritual, moral, emotional force. Intellectual work, also indispensable, of re-proclaiming basic eternal truths, is also done by them; but that of expounding and reconciling their teachings, is done afterwards by studious followers, lesser persons. While these latter remain true servants of the Spirit, and well-wishers of mankind, the religion flourishes. When they become false, selfish, aggressive, proud, malevolent, then they begin to misinterpret and to divide instead of reconciling and uniting; sects arise and multiply; decay begins.¹

¹ Creators of a movement, who give it its origin, its life, its energy, its emotional impulse, and its actional impetus, are, usually, other than those who give it its detailed philosophy, and do its teaching, and guiding, its right direction; even as parents of a child are usually other than its teachers. This does not mean that teacher and teaching begin to exist, are born, after
It should also be noted that the Evolutionary Chain or Spiral of living beings, high and low, stretches infinitely, above as well as below, according to the Scriptures of nations; and modern science also vouches for it. Thus:

"Looking at the matter from the most rigidly scientific point of view, the assumption that amidst the myriads of worlds scattered through endless space, there can be no intelligence as much greater than man's, as his is greater than a black beetle's; no Being endowed with powers of influencing the course of Nature as much greater than his, as his is greater than a snail's; parents and child; but only that the work of education, clear exposition of the philosophy, begins after the child, the movement, has been born. As history has gone, so far, usually philosophy and movement have acted and re-acted on, and helped to define, each other. If parents and teachers have been in consultation with each other before the child is conceived and gestated and born, or if parents are also teachers—then conditions for successful growth are most favorable. Only in rare cases, of some pūrṇa-a-vaṭāras, insān-ul-kāmil, mazhar-i-ātamm, have aspects of Al-Bāďf and Al-Alim, Brahmā and Vishnu, Creator and Teacher, been combined; and then too, all aspects have scarcely been equally manifested. Either the aspect of Knowledge as Teacher, or of Action as History-maker and Warrior, or of Desire as Inspirer of Love and Devotion and Purifier of soul, prevails, and manifests more than the other two; but, of course, never exclusively; for all three aspects are inseparable, though distinguishable.
seems to me not merely baseless but impertinent. Without stepping beyond the analogy of what is known, it is easy to people the cosmos with entities in the ascending scale until we reach something practically indistinguishable from omnipotence, omnipresence, and omniscience."

7. Goal of Life—To Feel Self in All.

The great truth which may be mentioned last here, is only another aspect of the first. Self comes Reader who cares to pursue the subject further, may look into the present writer’s Krśna, A Study in the Theory of Avatāras.

1 Prof. T. H. Huxley, Essays on Some Controversed Questions, p. 36 (edn. of 1892). Prof. Huxley was one of the most renowned scientists of Britain, in the last quarter of the last century. Later, the more famous A. R. Wallace, and also Sir Oliver Lodge, publicly professed adherence to the same belief. The latter has written: "Two things I am impressed with—the first, the reality and activity of powerful, but not almighty, helpers, to whom, in some direct and proximate sense, we owe guidance and management and reasonable control; and next, with the fearful majesty of still higher aspects of the universe, culminating in an Immanent Unity which transcends our utmost possibility of thought." Julian Huxley, a grandson of the Professor, writes (Essays in Popular Science, p. 119-120): "The truth is, of course, that Huxley was essentially and deeply religious, but that this really obvious fact was completely masked for the average man of his day by his on-slaughters on what that average man imagined an integral part of his religion, but Huxley regarded as a dead weight, an obstruction to any true religion." And he supports his statement by many quotations from Huxley.
back to It-Self, remembers its forgotten Infinitude. The Wanderer returns Home. In symbol, the Serpent of Wisdom and of world-cycles swallows its own tail. A circling of the soul is completed. Extremes meet. Infinitesimal is seen to be Infinite. Individual and Universal become One.

'End', 'aim', 'purpose', 'goal', 'object', 'fundamental value' of life, Purush-ārtha, maqṣsad-i-zindagi, is dual. There are two Summa Boni. First purpose of life is Ābhūy-udayā, na'māt-i-dunyavi, prosperity, success, in the life of this world, enjoyment of the good things of Earth, through sensor and motor organs; it is three-fold, (1) dharma, (2) artha, (3) kama; (1) dayanat, (2) daulat, (3) lazzat-ud-dunya; or (3) Sense-joy, refined by (2) Wealth, regulated by (1) Law; in other words, happy (3) Family-life, beautified by (2) Property and artistic possessions, restrained, controlled, regulated by (1) Religion-inspired Law of Right-and-Duty. This first triple end of life is to be pursued in first half of life. Second half of life is to be devoted to achievement of the final goal, moksha, najat, 'salvation', freedom from all sorrow, the second Sumnum Bonum, Nis-shreyas, Param-Ānanda, Hazz-i-ā'la, Khair-i-mahas, Lazzat-ul-Ilahiya, Greatest Good, joy than which there is no greater joy, 'to be like God', 'to become merged into God', 'to become God', Supreme Beatitude and Bliss."

The final purpose of life, inherently cherished by every human heart, is Return to the Original State from which we have erred away; is Assurance, Realisation, that the whole World-Process is Play of One-Self, My-Selfs without restraint by an-Other; is Liberty from all compulsion by another, Recollection of Our-Self as Supreme Maker, Mender, and Ender of all, Freedom of Spirit from bonds of fear, doubt, sorrow, Salvation from sin, Deliverance from error, Emancipation from superstition, Ab-solution, absolved-ness, Ab-solute-ness, from all limitation and its consequences. Some time, sooner or later, this Freedom comes to each and every soul, after experience of all kinds of joys and sorrows, sins and merits, deeps and heights of life, because all souls are parts of the One Supreme Self; and it comes by realisation that there is no Other than Self, which can restrain or compel. Vaiḍika Dharma, Buḍḍhism, and Jainism know this state as M u k t ī; also as N i r-vāṇa, "annihilation or extinction of sense of 1 Reader who cares to pursue the subject of 'Goal of Life' further, may look into the present writer's The Science of the Self and The Science of Social Organisation.

1 Buḍḍha's 'denial' 'of any self', has been commonly mis-understood to imply that n i r-vāṇa is annihilation, complete extinction, and that the sole aim of the wise separateness and egoism, and blossoming of sense, and tasting of Bliss, of Oneness with the Universal Self, which constitutes 'return' of the soul to its Source. Islam knows it by words which are exact equivalents of Mukti and Nir-vāṇa, viz., Najāt and Fanā-f-Ilāh. The last words means extinction or annihilation into God, with its accompanying ecstasy of joy, Lazzat-ul-Ilāhiyā, Brahmananda, Spiritual Blessedness, dissolving into 'Bliss of God', opposite of vishaya-ānanda, or lazzat-ud-dunya, worldly 'joy of sense-objects'. Obverse of Fanā-f-Ilāh is Baqā-f-Ilāh, 'remaining' or 'abiding' eternally in God. Corresponding Skt. words would be Brahmalīnata, 'disappearance in Brahma', and Brahma-bhāva or Brahma-sṭhaṭā, 'state or Brahma' or 'establishment in Brahma'. Jewish man should be such extinction. This 'denial of self' by Buddha is only the 'self-denial' of English language, but with a far greater and deeper significance. Śaṅkhya Kārikā's 'na asmi, na mé', and Charaka's 'Na Āham' and 'Na Ātān Mama', have the same significance.

'The late Sir Ahmed Hussain (of Hyderabad, Dn.) wrote to me that Baqā-f-Ilāh is the result of 'idealisation of the real and realisation of the ideal'—an excellent way of putting the thought in words. In theosophical terms 'attaching the upper half of the fifth principle to the sixth and seventh principles, or higher Manas to Buddha and Ātmā, (see f.n., p. 263, supra), means the same: thereby, the nobler thoughts and emotions which make up higher Manas, and constitute what may be called Kabbalists call it 'the Palace of Love'; Gnostics, 'the Pleroma of Eternal Light'; Christians, the Kingdom of Heaven'. Christianity calls it also Beatitude of Salvation accomplished, Supreme Blessedness and Divine Bliss; the soul feels 'salved', 'saved', from 'death', i.e., that death of 'soul', which is 'the wages of sin'; break-up of 'subtle body', sūkṣma-śāriṇa, which results from persistent gross sin; death of physical body is, of course, inevitable. St. Paul speaks of 'the Glorious Liberty of the Sons of God'. And again, he says:

"Stand fast therefore in the Liberty [mukti] where-with Christ hath made us Free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of Bondage [bandha]." (B., Paul.) The Truth "(of the identity of the Individual with the Universal) "will set you free." (B.)

There is no 'other-ness,' ghair-iyat, itara-ta, left in this state of Bliss. All is I. "The Universe grows I". Purusha becomes Brahma; Jīvātmā becomes Param-Ātmā; Aṃśha becomes Pūrṇa; the Part, the Whole; Anāniyat-i-adnā, 'real', are 'ideal-ised', 'spiritualised'; and the supra-conscious unspecialised, un-'real'-ised, 'ideal' Budhdhi and Ārāmā are 'real-ised'.

Epicurean Indolentia, Perfect Repose, is one aspect of Nirvāṇa; as in Gitā:

Yaṭhā dīpah ni-vāṭa-sthah na ṣaṅgaṭe sā upamā smṛṭā.

(Steady as lamp-flame in a wind-less place.)
Shakhṣiyat-i-aḏna, the Individual, becomes Anānīyat-i-ālā. Shakhṣiyat-i-ālā, the Universal; Chīṭṭā becomes Chīṭ; Viṣhiṣṭa-Chaiṭanya, limited, particularised, individualised consciousness, Viṣhiṣṭa-Saṭṭā, specific existence, becomes Chaiṭanya-sāmāṇya, Universal Consciousness, Saṭṭasāmāṇya, general, Universal Being; Kḥud of Kḥudī becomes Kḥudā; the Drop becomes the Ocean; the Infinitesimal, the Infinite; Man becomes God. Becomes, by recognising the identity of the two, which were never two.

As-Sidqo yunji, w-al-kizbo yohlik. (Q.)

(Truth giveth freedom; Untruth giveth death.)

As described by those who have experienced the realisation, there is, in it, the 'intellectual conviction' of identity of one-self with the Universal Self; there is also the 'affective' or 'emotional feeling' of that union, a very great exaltation, a sense of utter security and certainty; as the first romance of perfectly reciprocated human love raised to a very high degree, even to infinite, degree, for here we have love of all, instead of only two; and there is also the 'actional' or 'volitional' aspect of the 'will', the 'resolve', to become, or, indeed, the sense of having become, or, of being, a 'missionary of God', a 'son of God'; the sense of one's (triple) body being now an 'instrument', an 'organ' of the Universal Will-Life-Intelligence.
Bhakṣiḥ, Par-ēsh-ānu-bhavah, vi-rakṣiḥ
Anyātra cha, ēsha ṭrikah ēka-kālah. (Bhāg.)
(Love Universal, sense of Deity, Surcease of selfish act—all three in one.)
"All are but parts of One stupendous Whole, Whose body Nature is and God the Soul." (Pope.)
Yaḍ, Agnī l, syāṃ Aham Ṭvam,
Ṭvam vā ḍhā syā Aham. (Ṛg-Vēda, 8, 44, 23.)
(Lord Agni! Fire and Light and Guide Within!
Ordain that I be Thou, and Thou be I!)
Aham bhavān, na cha anyah ṭvam,
Ṭvam ēva Aham, vi-chakshva, bhoḥ !,
Na nau pashyanṭi kavayah
Chhiḍram jāṭu manāg-āpi. (Bhāg.)
(Thou art I, verily; None Else art Thou;
And I am thou, know well, deep in thy heart,
There is no difference 'twixt Thee and Me.
The Seers, who can see, have seen this Truth.)
Man tū shūḍam, tū man shuḍī,
Man ūn shuḍam, tū jān shuḍī,
Tākas na goyaḍ bāḍ az īn,
Man ḍigaram, tū ḍigarī. (S.)
(I am none else than Thou, and Thou than I;
I am thy body and Thou art My Soul)

1 'Agré nayaṭi,' 'That which leads forward', is 'Agni', the Divine Fire within.
Let no one say hereafter that I am
Other than Thee, or Thou other than I.)
Yaṭhā saṭah purushāṭ kēsha-lomāni,
Taṭhā Aksharāṭ sambhaṭati iha Vishvam. (U.)
(As from the human being grow hairs and nails,
So grows this Cosmos from th' Eternal Self.)
Haq jān-i-jahān ast, wa jahān jumla baḍan;
Taḥhid hamīn ast; digar shēwa o fan. (S.)
(One single Body—this Whole Universe;
God—Its One Soul; spirits, souls, angels all—
Its organs and its senses; th' elements,
And all the Natural kingdoms are its limbs—
Such the significance of Unity.)
Taṭ srṣṭyā taṭ ēva anu-prā-vishat . . .
Esha vai Vishva-rūpāh Ātmā Vaishvā-narah . . .
Taṭra ko mohah, kah shokah, Ekatvam anu-pashyatāḥ. (U.)
(The Self creates this world and enters in,
As soul in body, to the very nails.
The Total of All Bodies and All Souls
Is His One Single Body and One Soul.
For him who sees him-Self in every self,
In everything, there is no longer left
Any perplexity, doubt, sorrow, fear.)
Other names for this Bliss are surūr-i-jāwēdānī, ‘permanent intoxication’, istighrāq, ‘mergence’ into the One, Brahma-līnāṭā, ‘disappearance in Brahma', Āṭma-lābha, 'finding of the Self', wisāl, 'union', sāyujya, 'identification', with God, wahdāt, ēki-bhāva, kaivalya, 'on(е)li-ness' solitude, solitari-ness, Āṭmānanda, Āṭma-raṭi, Āṭma-tṛpati, 'Self-bliss', 'joy-in-Self', 'Self-content', bhakti-rasa, 'bliss-bath of love', māhā-bhāva, the 'great emotion', bhūmā, the state of being 'the greatest', 'the most', Infinitude.

Willy-nilly, consciously or supra-consciously, all living beings, all things, are all the time trying to reach this Eternal Fount of Peace which is within themselves, this Self of all, this Universal Love. All genuine earnest Philosophical and Religious Questing is but Home-sickness; yearning for that Heaven from which we have erred and fallen away; pining for the Garden of Eden from which we have been exiled, through the serpent-wiles of false Māyā-Desire, Ṭṛṣṇā, Hirs, Ğama'; longing to regain our own forgotten and lost Self.

Mama varṣma anu-varṣantē manushyāh, Pārthā!, sarvashah.
Ye yaṭhā mām pra-pādyantē
tān taṭhā ēva bhajāmi Aham.
TeX api Mām ēva, Kaunṭēya!
yajanṭi a-viḍhi-pūrvaṁ. (G.)
(Mankind are everywhere marching to Me.
Whatever road they take, I meet them on it.
In every form each soul seeks Me, the Self.)
Self-consciousness, All-Self-consciousness, is the one purpose and goal of all evolution, the one ever very near and yet seemingly "far-off divine event to which the whole creation moves," as western modern poet and philosopher also see and say, more or less gropingly; while the scriptures of the nations say and show the Great Truth in full blaze of light.

Manyé-ush hachá ḍhvā ē-ē-āonghā
Ya-ishā anghéush po-uruyo khavaṭa.

(Z., Gāthā, 28, 11.)

(By force of knowledge and expanding thought
Shall we return to Thee, unto that state
Which was at the beginning of our life.)

Kaṭ vē kshaṭhrēm, Mazaḍā !, yaṭhā vāo hakhmī
... parē vaskhēmā ... yaṭhā ... ūrvaïd-yās
... ayēnē paiṭī.

(Z., Gāthā, 34. 5. 6.)

(Thou art beyond all this we see, Supreme!
Teach us what resignation, fortitude,
And what detached aloofness from the world,
May join us unto Thee, Lord Mazaḍā!
And make us thus to realise our-Self.)

Ṭaṭ shruṭam, ṭaṭ cha vijñanam,
Ṭaṭ ḍhyānam, ṭaṭ param ṭapah,
Ayam Aṭmā yat āsāḍya
Sva-svarūpê layam vrajēṭ.

(J., Shubha Chandra, Jñān-ārṇava.)
(The deepest learning and the highest science
And meditation and asceticism
Are that the Self should re-cognise It-Self
And lose Itself in Self eternally.)

The Jewish Mystic Books say:
"All things of which this world consists, spirits as well as bodies, will return to their principal, the root from which they proceeded."  (Ju., Zohar, II.
218b.)

Bahūnām janmanām anté
jñāna-vān mām pra-paḍyaṭe.  (G.)

(After the soul has passed through many births,
It knows, and comes back to Me, in the end.)

"Life is a going forth, death is a returning home."
(T., Tao Teh King.)

Gar che ḍīwār afganaḍ sāyah ḍarāz
Bāz gardaḍ sūye ū ān sāyah bāz.  (S.)

(Long is the shadow that the wall casts forth,
When the Sun falls upon the earth at dawn;
Yet it turns back again, as the Sun climbs,
Till it is lost in the wall’s base at noon.)

Innā l-Ilāhī wa innā Ilaihi rāje'-ūn.  (Q.)

(From Allah do we come, for Him we are,
And to Him verily is our return.)

1 Quoted in H. P. Blavatsky’s Isis Unveiled, II, 271.
(O, join not other gods with me; 'tis sin;
For unto Me shall ye return at last.) (Q., 31. 13.)

The beautiful poem of Wesālī, Mā-muqīmān, is an extended comment on this verse of the Qurān. Only the first and last verses are given below.

Mā muqīmān-e-kū-e-Dīlār ēm;
Rukhī ba dūnyā wa qīn na mī ārēm;
Bulbulān-ēm, ke az qazā wa qaḍar,
Oṣṭāḍah judā ze gulzār ēm.

... Man na dānam ke andar in hairat,
Ba Wesālī ke daḏ paighāmē,
Ke ba chashmān-i-dīl ma-bīn juz Dost,
Har che bīnī be-dān ke mazhari-i-U-št.

(S., Wesālī.)

(In the Beloved's Garden did we dwell!
Of His rose-garden are we nightingales;
His Will, as Destiny, did cast us out,
To wander, seeking, in this labyrinth.
But now we've done with this world and its creeds.
After long yearnings and far wanderings
The wonder comes! He filleth all our being,
With His own Self—Yea, 'tis the Belovéd!—
And a vast music in our Soul resounds,
"Ye are united with Me once again,
With the heart's eye see now naught but the Friend;
For whatsoever ye behold, ye know
Is but the glory of the Belovéd!")
Miṭṭrasya chakshushā ṗashyéma. (V.)

(See we the whole world with the One Friend’s eye.)

Gauharé juz Kḥūḍ-shināsī
n-īṣṭ ḍar bahr-ē wujūḍ ;
Mā ba girdé Khwēsh mī
gardēm chūṅ girḍāb-hā. (S.)

(Self-knowledge is the only pearl
In this sea of life;
Like whirlpools round our-Self we whirl
In incessant strife.)

Wisālé Yār āṯamhīd-ē firāq-ē har ḍo ḍuniyā hai,
Ke Us kā ho ke phir koī
kisī kā ho nahiṅ sakṭā. (S.)

(The Finding of the One All-Belovēd
Is Losing of All-Else, of both the worlds,
Within, without, of heaven and of earth.
He who belongs to Me, can never more Belong to Any-Other—saith the Lord.)

"Iam (is) a jealous God, I brook(s) No-Second." (B.)

Na vā ... paṭyuh, jāyāyāh, puṭrasya, viṭṭasya, ḍēvānām vā ...—Aṭmanas-ṭu kāmāya sarvam vai priyam bhavaṭī. (U.)
(Not for its own sake is aught dear to us; Whatever thing or being, high or low, Parents, spouse, child, friend, house, or gold, or god, Is dear to us—is so for sake of Self.)

Kufr o din har do dar raha-t poyaani, Wadhahu la sharik-ilah goyaani.

Har kas talib-i-Yar and, che hushyar o che mast; Hama ja khanaai ishq ast, che masjid che kanisht.

Tu-hi Maqsud hai, Ka’ba wa But-khana bahana hai. (S.)

(Sceptic or faithful, both run after thee, Seeking the One Great Ultimate of all. Sober, inebriate, sane or insane, Each one for the Beloved One doth seek; Musalmân’s mosque or Magian’s fire-place, Each is the sacred shrine of Love Divine. Thou art the Goal for which all are asearch; Temple and Ka’ba, both, but roads to Thee !)

Kafir-e Ishq-am; Musalm-mani mara dar-kar n-ist; Har rag-e man tar gashtah, haja-e zunnar n-ist.

Az sar-e baling-e man bar khaz, ai nadan tabib!; Dard-mande Ishq ra daru ba-juz Didar n-ist.
Khalq mi goyaq ke Khusrau but-parasq mi kunq—
Are are, mi-kunq,
bakhalq o alam karr ist. (S., Khusrau.)

(I am an infidel, idolater
That idolises Love with all his heart.
I have no use for the Islāmic faith;
Nor for the sacred string of Zaraqushṭ,
Nor holy thread of priest of India;
For every nerve of mine has now become
A tuned wire of the harpsichord of Love!
Physician—of the soul, or of its frame!,
Thou sittest near my pillow now in vain;
Arise, and go away; come not again.
Those that are sick and faint for Love Divine,
For them the only cure is the Loved Face.
The Vision of It is sole remedy
For all their inner, outer, aches and pains.
They say—'Khusrau has turned idolator';
Surely I have; I have now naught to do
With all the thoughtless 'they' of this mad world.)

A comparatively recent Indian Sūfī poet bursts into song, as below, with the first joy of the Great Discovery:

Jis simṭ nazār kar dékhē hai,
us Dil-bar kī phulwarī hai,
Kahiñ sabzi kī hariyāli hai
Kahiñ phulōn kī gulkāri hai;
Dīn rāṭ magan khush baithē haiṅ,
aur āś Usī kī bhāri hai;
Bas āp hi Wah dāṭārī hai,
aur āp hi Wah bhandārī hai.
Har ān haṅsī, har ān khushī,
har waqt amīrī hai, bābā!
Jab āshiq maṣṭ faqīr huē,
phir kyā ḍil-girī hai, bābā! (S., NAZIR.)

(Whichever way the eye is turned, it sees,
The Garden of the Loved One burgeoning,
Blooming and blossoming with life upwelling
From the One Fount, which gives and takes back too;
He is the Giver, He the Gatherer;
He is the one main stay of all our hopes;
All days are one long laugh, all nights one joy,
All life one opulence and affluence—
When once the heart all worldly things disowns,
And owns again its Own-Self's ecstasy.)

And again:
Āshiqē zār huṅ main, tālīb-e-ārām nahīṅ,
Nang-o-nāmūs-e-ḍuniyā sē mujhē kām nahīṅ.
Bē-sar-o-pāyī kā usshāq ko khatṛā kyā hai,
Asar-e-Ishq hai yah, gardish-e-ayyām nahīṅ.
Ālam-e-Ishq kī ḍuniyā hī nirāli ḍēkhī,
Sahr-o-shâm wâhân yé sahr-o-shâm nahîn.
Bê nihâyat, jis kâ pâyâ hai nahîn, pâyân,
Jis jagah ham pahuńchê haiîn, âghâz hai,
anjâm nahîn.
Fikr dûniyâ kî malâmaṭ kî ūjhe kyon ho rahei!
Âshiqon mën ò akélâ òhî bañ-nâm nahîn.

(S., Nîyâz).

(I am a Lover dire, no seeker of delights!
What have I got to do with this world’s praise or blame?
What care the reckless Lovers that their words lack sense?
This is th’ effect of Love, and not of Fortune’s wrath.
The world of Love is very different from
this world;
Sun-dawn and eve-light there are not this morn and eve.
Love’s Ocean, boundless, fathomless—where’er ye are
Ever only beginning in it, ne’er an end!
What fear hast thou, my heart!, of the world’s idle talk?
Thou art not th’ only slandered Lover in the world!)
Bâr-e-ðigar pîr-e mä khirqa bâ zunnār ðâd,
Ganj-e navañ-sâla râ, raft o bâ kuffâr ðâd,

(Rûmî).
(A second time my reverend Ancient went
And changed his gaberdine for 'sacred thread';
His store of wisdom, gathered ninety years,
He gave away unto the infidels,
And in exchange took up their faithless faith.)

Rūmī sings the same great lesson in another mood:
Bar Shāh-e khub-rūyān
wājib wafā na bāshaḏ,
Ai zarḏ-rūye āshiq!
ṭū sabr kun, wafā kun! (S.)

(The King of Beauty owes no duty,
Of fidelity to a single one!
Thou pale-faced lover! do thou cover
Thy love with resignati-on!
Be faithful ever, and forget never,
His constancy is to every one;
As to every dew-drop, of the Sun!
He loveth all; do thou love all;
So thy smallness shall be all undone!
His Greatness shall by thee be won,
And thou shalt gain All of the One!)

"Make the Great Discovery for yourself, freshly, each of you, all of you, brothers and sisters! sons and daughters!"—this is the one desire, the one teaching, of all the Great Teachers, of all the Great Scriptures, of all the Great Religions.
Spēntēm at Īhevā, Mazaḏā i, mēnenghī, Ahurā!, hyaṭ mā vohū pairē jasaṭ mananghā pērēsaṭ chā mā chish ahī, kahyā ahī, kaṭhā ayārē ḍakṣhārā fērasayā āišā aibī ṭhvāhū gaēṭhāhū ṭanushī cha. (Z., Gāṭhā, 13. 7.)

(Conscience, the higher mind, awoke in me,
Shook me and questioned me: "Think! careless one!
Who art thou? Whose art thou? I ask thee, say!
Why art thou here? What for? And doing what?
When wilt thou learn the purpose of thy life?
When understand thy body and thy mind?"
And in that moment did I realise,
Thou art the only Holy One, the Whole,—
Mazā ḳ, Mahā-Ḍēva ḳ, Mahā-Ḍhāṭā,
Creator Great, Most wise, the Soul of All,
From Whom, for Whom, and unto Whom alone
Are all souls, 'asu-s', Great Lord 'Ahu 'ra ḳ.)
Āṭmānām vijāniyāṭ ... Āṭmā vi-jñéyāh ...
Āṭmānām anu-ichchāmah, yam Āṭmānām anu-ishlyā śarvān cha lokān av-āpnoṭī ... Āṭmā vā arē ḍrashtāvāh, shroṭāvāh, manṭāvāh, niḍīḍhyāsīṭāvāh ... (U.)

(Deep hid in the heart-cave, seek thine own Self...
The Self is the one thing to seek and find....
Yea, let us seek the Self, for finding It
We find within It all these countless worlds...
There is Naught-Else than the One Self Alone,
In very truth, to be sought, thought, seen, known.)

"Know thy-Self." (SOLON, the Greek Sage.)

"Hearken unto Me (the Supreme Self), my son; blessed are they who keep My ways . . . Blessed is the man that heareth Me, watching daily at My gates . . . For whoso findeth Me, findeth life, and shall obtain favour of the Lord . . . But he that sinneth against Me wrongeth his own soul . . . and loves death." (B., Proverbs, vii.)

Nas-Ullāhā fa’ansāhūm anfusēhūm. (Q.)
(He who forgetteth God forgets him-Self.)

Kāh āham, kāh ṣvam, kuṭah āyāṭah,
Taṭ-ṭvam chintāya, Taṭ-iḍam, bhrāṭah !

(SHANKAR-ĀCHĀRYA.)

(What is I and what is Thou?
Whence are we, what for, and how?
What the truth of all this show?
Ponder this, my brother !, now !)

Kim ṭe ḍhanēṇa, kim-u bandhubhīh ēva vā ṭe,
Kim ṭe ḍāraṇiḥ, puṭraka !, yo marishyasi;
Aṭmānām anu-ichchha, guḥāṃ pravishtam,
Piṭāmahāḥ ṭe kva gaṭāḥ, piṭā cha. (Mbh.)

(What hast thou, son !, to do with riches; what
With kinsfolk; what with loved and loving spouse?
Of these none shall bestand thee, O my child !,
When the dread Messenger of Death shall come!
Where are thy parents and their parents gone!
Seek then th’ Immortal Self, Master of Death,
Eternal Refuge, hiding in the cave,
The Cave profound of thine own living heart!)

“My father sent me... I go to the Father,” says Jesus, i.e., ‘to My own Universal and Supreme Self’; and every soul has to say it, and thus triumph over Death.

Jā kē ghar sukh kā bhandārā
So kyon bharmai ḍar ḍar mārā!
(In thine own home, the Treasury of all joy!
And thou a-begging thus from door to door!)
Ho ke Sulṭān-i-Haqīqaṭ isī āb-o-gil món
Ḍar ba ḍar misl-i-gaḍā ḍhā, mujhe mā’lūm na ḍhā. (S.)
(Though King of all the Worlds, in mud and mire,
I begged from door to door—I knew Me not!)
Tvam ṭu bhūmi-paṭēh puṭro!
nā jāṅgalika-saṅṭaṭiḥ! (Yoga-Vāsisṭha.)
(Thou art the King’s Son, Sir!, no jungle-child,
Though lost in infancy in this vast wild,
And reared by forest-folk, from Truth beguiled!)
Shrēshtham vāṇijyaṃ ṛṭam amṛṭam mama ēṭaṭ,
Marṭyēna Aham kriṭa-vān asmi A-marṭyam. (U.)
Eshā buḍḍhi-maṭām buḍḍhiḥ,
Manīśhā cha manīshiṇām,
Yaṭ Saṭyam an-ṛśena iha
Martyēna āpnoṭi Mā Amṛṭam.

(Bhāg., xi. 29. 22.)

Iha chēṭ avēḍiṭ, aṭha Saṭyam aṣṭi,
Na chēṭ iha avēḍiṭ maḥāṭi vi-nashtih. (U.)
Iha eva sanṭah aṭha viḍmaha Ṭaṭ vayam;
Na chēṭ avēḍiḥ maḥāṭi vi-nashtih:
Yē Ṭaṭ viḍuḥ amṛṭāḥ tē bhavanti;
Aṭha iṭaṭe ṅukkham eva api-yaniṭi. (Brhaṭ U.)

(Best of all trades is mine—that I have, sold
My mortal things and bought Immortal Soul!
This is true Wisdom; this, best merchantry;
That we should part with Lie and lay in Truth,
And with the mortal buy th’ Immortal Self!
Great is our loss if we fail to buy back
Our ‘birthright’ with this ‘pottage-mess’ and gain
Our Deathless Self while still in mortal sheath.
Let us make sure to see Him while still here;
If we do not, then very great our loss.
And we pass o’er and o’er from pain to pain;
But if we do, then Deathless Bliss our gain!)

Great is the yearning of the Elders of the Race, Sages, Saints, Seers, Prophets, that the youngers should make this Great Discovery and so be freed from all sorrows; even as is the yearning of mother and father that their little ones may attain majority and become able to stand on their own feet.

Samsāriṇām karuṇayā āha Purāṇa-guhyam. (Bhāg.)
(For pity for mankind, Shuka did teach The Ancient Sacred Secret unto all.)

Daṛḍ-e-dil kē wāṣṭē insān ko paiḍā kiyā;
Var-na ṭāaṭ kē liyē kuchh kam na ṭhīṅ Kar-robiyān. (S.)

(God entered into human shape, to feel
Ache of the Heart, commixt of Woe and Bliss.
To hymn His Glory there were Cherubim
In hosts; but He grew tired of hearing them,
And wished to feel the feel of human woe.)

Kufr kāṣīr rā, wa dīn dīn-dār rā,
Qaṭra-ē daṛḍé-dilē Aṭṭār rā. (S.)
(Let sceptics in their disbelief rejoice;
And in their faith the faithful ones take joy;
One drop of the Divine Heartache for Me!)

“My little children, of whom I travail in birth again until Christ be formed in you; (B., Galatians.)
Until we all come in the unity of faith, and of the

Another reading, more in keeping with Vēḍāntic-Sūfīc significance, would be,

Daṛḍ-e dil kē wāṣṭē insān kī sūrat liyā,
Karrobīyōn ki shakl méā jab naghm-hā sē ṭhak gayā,
(He took on human form to taste heartache,
As cherub, when, of harmonies, He tired.)
knowledge of the Son of God, into a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ. (B., Ephesians.) Work out your own Salvation, for it is God which worketh in you. (B., Philippians.) The law of the Spirit of Life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of life and death. (B., Paul.)"

We may legitimately interpret 'the law of life and death' as 'the law of involuntary re-births':

"The things that hath been, it is that which shall be; and that which is done is that which shall be done. . . The wind goeth toward the south, and turneth about unto the north; it whistleth about continually, and the wind returneth again according to his circuits. . . All the rivers run into the sea; yet the sea is not full; unto the place from whence the rivers come, thither they return again." (B., Eccles.)

This Law of Cyclicity is true of things physical as well as things spiritual or psychical.

"For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, are the sons of God." (B., Romans.)

"By the help of the Best Purity, by the help of the Supreme Purity, O Ahura Mazda, may we see Thee, may we draw near Thee, may we become one with Thee for Eternity." (Z., Ysna, ix. 12.)

"We become One with Thee", by realising that the individual is, in essence, identical with the Universal.
"The pure in heart shall see God." (B.)
Such souls no longer need prohibitions and injunctions, negative 'don'ts' and positive 'do's', nishēḍha-s and viḍhi-s, mana's and kun's of Religious Ethics. They have risen from 'don'ts' and 'do's' into 'be perfect'. They are themselves embodiments of Law, Dharmaṭmā, Salim, Salimt-tabā', 'peace-minded'.

Nis-trai-guṇyē paṭhi vicharaṭah
kah viḍhīh kah nishēḍhaḥ.

(SHANKAR-ĀCHĀRYA.)

(Since they have mastered 'the three attributes';
Of knowing, wishing, and performing acts;
Of light, and darkness, and vast restlessness;
Which, manifesting in 'th' opposed pairs',
Create the world and keep it ever going;
And are no longer mastered by those three;
And since the Law of Universal Love
Reigns ever-wakeful now within their hearts,
No other laws of 'do's' and 'don'ts' they need.)

The souls which have achieved this realization of the oneness of all Life, non-separateness from all others, inseparable connection and unbreakable relationship with all other living beings—they are called Purṇa-purushas, Divya-purushas, Jīvan-Mukṭas, Avatāras, Perfect Persons, Divine Persons, the 'Living-Free', 'Deity descended

“Be ye perfect, as your Father in heaven is perfect. And ye shall know the Truth (of the essential identity of the individual with the Universal Self), and the Truth shall make you free (of all fear). . . Ye are gods.” (B.)

(God says: But follow thou My laws, O Man! And thou shalt sure become like unto Me; Then if thou say, ‘Let there be this’ it is I) (H.)

Mayi dhara-yatah chetah upa-tishthan-ti siddhayah. (Bh.)
(If any one will fix his heart on Me,
All secret sacred Powers shall wait on him !)

Such perfected, completed, souls, having achieved ‘at-one-ment’ with the All-Self and therefore with 1 It seems that, in Buddhist books, the equivalent for Jivan-mukti is santi-thalakam nibbanam, (Skt. san-tishth-ka nirvana), ‘the staying-on nirvana,’ nirvana while staying on here.

all selves, can and do try to make 'atonement' for all; to make all realise at-one-ment.

Labhanṭe Brahma-nirvāṇam
ṛṣhayah kṣīṇa-kalmashāh,
Chhinna-ḍvaiḍhāh, yaṭ(a)-Āṭmānāh,
sarva-bhūṭa-hiṭe raṭāh.
San-ni-yamya indriya-grāmam,
sarvaṭra sama-buḍḍhayah,
Tē prāpnuvanṭi Mām ēva,
sarva-bhūṭa-hiṭe raṭāh. (G.)

(The pure souls that have washed away their sins,
And cast off doubt and sense of separateness,
And all duality of 'I' and 'thou',
That see with Love the Same Law everywhere,
And always are intent on good of all—
They have found Me, and found My deathless Peace.)

Kasē marḍe-ṭamām aṣṭ az ṭamāmī kunāḍ bā kḥwājaγī kāre ḍhulāmī. (S.)

(They are the perfect men who, being such,
Out of the greatness of their loving hearts,
Make themselves small, to slave continuously
To make th' imperfect ones perfect also.)

Degrees and kinds of rapport between individual and universal (or, mostly, a higher individual, a personal god, a great angel), between the part and the (mostly comparative) Whole, the small and the Great, are distinguished as sālokya, sāmīpya, sārūpya, sāyujya, āvēsha, kalā-(a)vaṭāra, amshā-(a)vaṭāra, pūrṇā-(a)vaṭāra, etc., in Vēḍāṇṭa and Yoga; and as wajḍ, jazba, wasl, qurb-i-farāyaz, qurb-i-nawāsil, burūz, hulūl, mazhar-i-āṭamm, etc., in Ṭasawwuf; i.e., nearness of several degrees, assimilation of many degrees, and identification of various degrees.

In ascent, urūj, āroḥa, to this perfect realization of identity of individual and Universal, the soul passes through three main inner stages. In terms of knowledge, they constitute three main 'views,' darshana-s: (1) Dualistic Theism or Deism, (2) Pantheism, (3) Non-dualism; (1) Dvaiṭa, (2) Vishisht-ādvaiṭa, (3) A-dvaiṭa; (1) Ijādiyah, (2) Shuhūdiyah, (3) Wujūdiyah; (1) Popular view of

'Ijād, from the root wajḍ, means 'giving existence (to what was non-existent),' 'invention,' 'creation'. Wujūd, from the same root, means 'existence,' 'being'. Shuhūd means 'witnessing,' 'seeing'. Wajḍ is also equated with sāmāḍhi or trance; rapture, rapt-ness, transport, ec-stasis. There is much hair-splitting over 'nice' distinctions, as to what exactly shuhūdiyah is. As usual, there must be an element of truth in each view. Broadly speaking, the doctrine is that God, Spirit-Force, 'witnesses' the 'manifestation' of the infinite Mater-ial attributes that are inherent in Him-Self; and this manifestation-and-witnessing is World-Process plus God, interplay of Spirit, Mind, Energy, and of Matter; of Thought and Extension; Purusha and Prakṛti. For fuller exposition, consult Khāja Khān's Studies in Ṭasawwuf and Philosophy of Islam. If we say that Causation, i.e., an extra-cosmical personal God has created the cosmos, (2) Scientific view of Causation, i.e., that Force and Matter, or Thought and Extension, are inseparable aspects of the same thing, and are undergoing transformations constantly, (3) Metaphysical view of Causation, i.e., that the Force and Matter are different things, and their transformations are by Chance, we do not know why and how, then we are 'positivists-materialists.' If we say they are aspects of the Same Substance and work by Will, then we are 'pantheists'.

Haq Jān-i-Jahān ast, wa Jahān jumla baḍan;
Arwāḥ o Malāyak cho hawāsē-tīn ūn,
Aflāk o Muvālīd wa Anāsir āzā;
Tawhīd hamīn asī; ḍīgar shēva o fun. (S.)
(God is the Life; the Body all this world;
Angels and Souls are Organs of that Frame;
Skies, Elements, all Born things, parts and limbs;
—This is true Monism; other views deceive.)

The Sūfī writer of these verses calls his view Tawhīd, 'One-ness', Mon-ism; Others would call it Pantheism.
Cf. Pope's lines,

The Universe is one stupendous Whole,
Whose Body Nature is, and God the Soul.

Please note well that Vedānta is A-DVAINA, 'Non-Dualist', which is very different from Monist. 'God, Spirit, Cosmic Mind creates and is every thing, animate and inanimate'—this is Monism—'Matter creates and is everything'—this also is Monism. Neither provides for both Spirit and Matter, subject and object, 'I' and 'This'. Non-Dualism, 'I-This-Not' does. (See pp. 31-32 supra and Science of Peace, p. 52, 3rd edn., and Science of Self, p. 38).
cosmos is a Dream-Illusion of the One Spirit or Self or Principle of Consciousness; (1) Ārambha-vāda of Nyāya-Vaisheshika, (2) Parināma-vāda of Sānkhya-Yoga, (3) Vi-varṭa (or Ā-bhāsa or Aḍh-yāsa)-vāda of Mīmāṁsā-Vedānta.

Sūfis put the three stages in three logia, māhāvākya-s, kalemā-s; (1) Hama az ū-st ‘all is (made) by (or is from) Him’, (2) Hama anḍar (or ba) ū-st, ‘all is in (or by) Him’; (3) Hama ū-st, ‘all is He’. Other forms of the logia are (1) Lā ma'būdāh (or maqsūdah) ʿillā Hū, ‘none is to be adored but He’, (2) Lā mashahūdāh ʿillā Hū, ‘none is to be witnessed, sensed, felt, experienced but He’, (or ‘none is Witness but He’), (3) Lā maujūdah ʿillā Hū, ‘naught is but He’. A Skt. verse sums up all these three and their sub-varieties, in terms of the Prepositions which signify Relations between Nouns through Verbs; here, Relations between God and the World through Al-Mightiness, to which three, the grammatical trinity corresponds.

Yasmin, Yasya, Yaṭo, Yasmāt,
Yēna, Yam, Yah Iḍam Svayam,
Yah asmāt parasmāt cha Parah,
Ṭam prapaḍyē Svayam-bhuvam! (Bh., 8. 3. 3.)

(I take my refuge in th’ Eternal Self, Subject of all, Self-born, Self-evident,
In, Of, From, For, and By and Unto Whom
All 'This' innumerable Object-world exists;
Who is This all too; and Who, being This,
Yet shines transcendently beyond This all!

"Out of Him (the Self), through Him (the Self), in Him (the Self), all things are."  (In the original Greek: Ex auton, kai di auton, kai eis auton ta panta).  (B., Paul.)

These three views correspond broadly to the temperaments of (1) Active Energism, (2) Devotional Pietist Mysticism, (3) Enlightened Gnosticism; i.e., Salvation through (1) Works, (2) Faith, (3) Knowledge. They are not inconsistent at all with each other, much less antagonistic; except when each is emphasised to the exclusion of others, in false spirit of extremism. When the final stage is reached, all views are seen to be complementary and supplementary aspects of one another. Perfect evolution requires perfect equipoise of all, (1) Active Service of Mankind, because of (2) Philanthropy, due to (3) Knowledge that all are One-Self; knowledge that (a) the One Self (b) dreams the Interplay of Self (Force) and Not-Self (Matter), of Soul and Body, and (c) manifests also in 'personal i.e., individualised, gods', as Rulers of endlessly graded larger and smaller worlds, orbs, solar and sidereal world-systems.
We have referred before to the three main functions or aspects of mind. They correspond to three Primal Guṇas of the Nir-guṇa, Sifāt of Zāt-i-lā-sifāt, Attributes of the Attributeless, Zāt-i-sādīj, Shuḏḏha-Saṭ, Taṭṭva-māṭra, Pure Being, Pure Essence, Mere Thatness; Munqāṭa’ul-ishārat, Lā-ta’iyun, Lā-ba-shart-i-shay, Ba-shart-i-lā-shay, Majhul-un-nās, Nir-anjana, Nir-vishēsha, Nir-mala, Shuḏḏha, Un-conditioned, Un-defin-able, ‘No’-thing, At-tribute-less, Ab-solu-te, ab-solv-ed from all limitations, De-void of all marks, stains, particularities, specialities; Param(a)-Avyakṭa, Ghaib-ul-ghuyūb, Utterly Hidden; Aṭyānṭ(a)-Āṭīṭa, Ghaib-i-Muṭlaq, absolutely Transcendent; Saṭṭā-māṭra, Wajūḍ-i-bahat, Pure Being; Whose Infinite all-enclosing Generality and Universality can be described only by apa-vāḍa of all adhyā-ropā, tanẓīh of all ṭashbīh, negation of all parti-cular affirmations, rejection of all de-fi-ni-tions, repudiation of all narrowing characterisations, of all names and forms; na-īti, nāma-rūp(a)-āpalāpa, ākāra-nirākaraṇa, vishēshaṇ(a)-apa-vāraṇa, isqāt-ul-ishārat, inqīṭa-ul-ashkāl, tarḍid-ul-hayākal, ‘I am this,—No,’ ‘I am that,—No,’ ‘I am that other,—No,’ ‘I am I al-one,’ ‘I am that I am’.¹ The careful reader will see that these, mostly negative, adjectives and descriptions, can belong to 'No-Thing' but the Universal Self in and of all.

¹ For fuller exposition of the subject, see Science of Peace and Science of Self.

It is well-known that the view of Buddhism and Jainism as to indescribability of the Ultimate Fact otherwise than by negatives, is exactly the same. So too is that of Jewish mystics. Hebrew Zohar says:

"God, En-sof, 'No-End,' Infinite" [Skṭ., Ananta, Arab.-Per. Lā-inṭihā] "is above all creatures and all attributes. When these things have been removed, there is left neither attribute, nor shape, nor form. He can be postulated only negatively.

Arabic scholars usually derive the word Sūfī, whence Ṭasawwuf, from Sūf (spelt with a swād), which means 'woollen cloth', and not from Sūf (spelt with a sin), which means 'wisdom'. They say that, in the earlier days, it was customary for Sūfī-s, ascetic-mystic-gnostic-devotee-philosophers, who had retired from the world, to wear a woollen blanket or gaberdine; as sannyāśī-s of India still wear ochre-colored cloth, and as some sects of Christian monks used to wear sackcloth. Others think that the word is connected with safā (spelt with a swād), which means 'purity'. Yet others connect it with Greek sophia, 'wisdom', whence Arabic fāl-safā, a transformation of 'philo-sophy', and sūfīstāt i.e. 'sophist', man of pseudo-wisdom, specious reasoner.

Hebrew and Arabic scholars might consider whether Hebrew En-Sof can be translated as Arabic A'yn-Sūf (with sin) or A'yn Sāf (with swād), which would mean 'mere pure Intelligence or Consciousness,' i.e., 'no-thing-ness', or 'Sheer Purity', i.e., 'no-thing-ness,' 'no-mixture', again.
We cannot tell what God is; we can tell only 'what He is not.' For the creation of the world, which is an emanation of the Divine, the Infinite became as it were, contracted, Tsimtsum, and took on certain attributes of the finite. To this finite, belongs 'darkness,' evil," [Skt., ṭamās]. "The finite, the world, opposite extreme of the Infinite, is evil. Evil, sin, are Kelifoth, 'coverings', screens, which hide the Truth;" [Skt., klēsha-s, āvaraṇa-s, upādhi-s.] "Whatever in the world is evil, and not of the Divine, cannot be real. Hence evil is that which has no being [a-saṭ]; it is a sort of illusion [māyā]; it is a state of absence, negation; it is a thing which merely appears to be, but is not. It is man's duty to strive after re-union with the Infinite; his pursuit of the finite, the false, constitutes evil. He can attain the real only when he seeks the Real, Who is his fount, his home." 1

1 This quotation is abridged from pp. 128-132 of Dr. J. Abelson, Jewish Mysticism, (The Quest Series), in his own words. Another western writer says: "In Egypt they have a popular rhyme which is thus rendered by Canon Gairdner, Whatever idea your mind comes at,

   I tell you flat, God is not that."

The original is perhaps,

   Kulla má haṭarā bi bālik,
   F-Allāhu siwā zālik.

Thus popular instinct and religio-metaphysical meditation come to the same conclusion. Extremes meet.
We have seen before that compassionate teachers "temper the wind to the shorn lamb". They tell the earnestly seeking soul that evil is 'no-thing.' They add the explanation that this is so because all 'limitation' is mark of 'nothingness'. What passes, vanishes, must be nothing. Sorrow and evil pass; they must be nothing, like dreams. Bye and bye, the earnest seeker after true religious consolation will realise that what he knows as joy and good also passes, is limited in time, space, condition; therefore must be nothing too. Finally, he realises, that Everlasting Peace of Eternal and Infinite Self transcends make-believe illusive drama, of both good and evil, both joy and sorrow; that good is good and joy is joy by contrast with evil and with sorrow; that, in the World-drama, his part is to be consciously on the side of the good; that souls that are as yet unconscious of their identity with All, are indeed intensely conscious of only separateness, and 'know no better,' will be on the side of evil, which is 'error', erring away from the Supreme and into body of flesh with its inherent selfishness; and that

1 Spinoza, a pantheistic philosopher famous in Europe, is a very earnest expounder of this view; but he, like Hegel, leaves behind perplexity and confusion in the mind, instead of lucid convictions, because he speaks of the Ultimate Fact, the Primal Substance, the Absolute, in terms of the third person, as 'It', instead of the first person, 'I', 'Self', Ego. There are also other serious defects in their systems.
as he himself has erred but returned, so all these others also will, each in his own proper time and without fail, come back to the Right Path and reach Home. Soon or late, each 'erring' soul tires of its 'wanderings'; vaîrâgya, 'world-weariness' and 'passionate compassion' for all 'wanderers in the dark', come upon it; and it begins the 'Homeward Journey'. One way of looking upon vaîrâgya is that it is cessation of râga, desire, for 'foreign travel', away from Self, 'from God, who is our Home'.

"There is One Alone" [i.e., the Universal Self], "and there is Not-a-Second: Yea, He hath neither child nor brother; Yet is there no end of all His labor" [i.e., this endless World-Process]; "neither is His eye satisfied with riches" [for all the Universe is His always]; "neither saith He, For whom do I labor, and bereave My soul of good" [i.e., forget My infinity and fall into limitation]. "This is also Vanity" [Māyā-Līlā]. "Yea, it is a sore travail" [klēsha, in Yoga Śūtra, 'misery-breeding original sin or error of Self-forgetting']. "(B., Eccles, 4.) This sore travail hath God given to the sons of man to be exercised there-with... to seek and search out by wisdom concerning all things that are done under heaven... I gave my heart to know wisdom and to know madness and folly... In much wisdom is much grief, and he that increaseth knowledge increaseth sorrow... I have seen all the works that are done under the sun; and behold, all is vanity and vexation of spirit... There I saw that wisdom excelleth folly, as far as light excelleth darkness... This also is vanity. (B., Eccles.) I know that there is no good in them, but for a man to rejoice and to do good in his life. B., Eccles.)"

\[\text{Duḥkham ēva sarvam vivēkinah. (Yoga-bhāṣya).}
\text{Aṇḍham ūtah pravishanti yē Āvīḍyām upāsate;}
\text{Tāto bhūyah iva ūtē ūtah yē u Viḍyāyām}
\text{raṭāh. (U.)}
\]

\[\text{Viḍyām cha A-viḍyām cha,} \text{yah taṛ ṛveda ubhayam saha,}
\text{Avidaṛyā mṛtyum tīrṭvā}
\text{Viḍyāyā Amṛtam ashnutē. (U.)}
\]

\[\text{Na sukham na cha vā duḥkham,}
\text{na moksho na api bandhanam,}
\text{Na puṇyam na cha vā pāpam,} \text{iti ēśā Param-ārthaṭā. (U.)}
\]

(To him who sees the difference between The Staying and the Fleeting, all this Show Of Shadows, pleasant-painful, all is pain. Who worship Error, pass into the Dark; And they who worship Truth-ful Wisdom—they Into a deeper Darkness seem to pass, In which all long-loved finites disappear; But soon the Glory of the Self shines forth,
In which all finites are, eternally.
To know the Truth, we must first Error know;
By Error, we pass through the gates of Death;
And then, by Truth, to Deathlessness we go.)

Good is good, evil is evil, wisdom is wisdom, folly is folly; though both are parts of the one Drama. The soul has to pass from evil to good, from folly to wisdom, to become Son of God, Jīvan-mukṭa, Ḩīsān-ul-kāmil, and win back the lost, i.e., merely forgotten, Immortality.

‘Descent’ along Qaus-i-nazūl, Avāroha-mārga, and its attendant isbāṭ-ul-ishārat, ādhyā-ropa, ‘putting on, assumption, of particularising marks and limitations’, and selfish tashbīh ‘donning of name-and-form’, nāma-rūpa; and then re-ascent along Qaus-i-urūj, Āroha-mārga, and its appertinent isqāṭ-ul-ishāraṭ apa-vāda, ‘putting off, repudiation, of all definition’, and unselfish tanzīh, nirā-karaṇa, ‘negation of limitations’—are both part of lahū, līlā. Yet the latter is better.

Aṭ-Tauhīdu isqāṭ-ul-ishāraṭ. (S.)
(Oneness is shedding of all signs and marks.)

Na-iṭi, na-iṭi. (Ūp.)
(Not this, not this.)

The pair, of good as well as evil, virtue and vice, merit and sin, is also part of the World-Illusion in this wise, together with all other countless pairs.
Since this ever-changing, 'ever-whirled-and-whirling', 'world', jagat, 'ever-going', jahān, 'ever-leaping', is made up of nothing-else than all the paired and opposed particularities which are negated, denied all existence, by each other; which indeed neutralise, nullify; abolish each other; therefore, all religions hold that this world, with all its weal and woe, is indeed, in essence, a-sa tat, ådam, non-being, no-thing; 'vanity of vanities' (B.); Māyā, illusion, Lilā, play, Kṛīḍā, (creati)on, sport, pastime, Śvāpaṇa, dream, Nāshvāra, perishing, Bhrama, 'circling' hallucination, Maṛumārīchīkā, desert-mirage, (U.); Lahwun wa

'It does seem very hard to believe, to 'realise', that all these solid things, our bodies, these houses, trees, towns, mountains, the whole earth—are 'unreal', are 'no-thing.' Yet it is certain that they are always changing, even vanishing. But what changes, is not permanent; and what is not permanent, cannot be real. Only That Which sees that 'all these things' of 'This' Object-World are changing, unreal; and distinguishes the changing from the Changeless; That is and must be It-Self Changeless, Real, Eternal Mind, Infinite Consciousness, Omnipotent Energy of Will-and-Imagination. From It does all 'This' manifestation appear, Dream-like, Illusory, ('Solids, Liquids, Gases, Ethers', Atoms, Electrons, Protons, Neutrons, Plutons, Positrons, all); by That it is maintained for a while (for a Moment, eye-wink or millions and billions of human years); into It does it vanish—again and again, periodically, in minutest to vastest Cycles of alternate Waking and Sleeping, Restlessness and Rest, Outbreathing and Inbreathing, Cosmos and Chaos, Power-display and Peace.
la'ibun, idle sport and play, ֶTasalluf, delusion, Fisāna, story, Sar-āb, mirage, Fitna, deception, Ja'l of Ja'el, Māyā of Māyi, magic-forgery, juggler's deceit, false snare of illusion, Khayāl or Khwāb-i-Khūdā, thought or dream of God (S.); Hādisun, Hālikun, Bātīla, fleeting, perishing, nullity. (Q.)

In this Infinite and Eternal Miracle of Imagination are to be found all possible experiences—of 'sub'-conscious 'under-worlds', and 'supra'-conscious 'upper-worlds'; of hells and heavens; of most horrible nightmares and most beautiful paradises; of most simple and most complex, most childlike and artless and most sagelike and profound, most frivolous and frolicsome and most serious, solemn, earnest, and grand, types and characters; most Empty Show and Fullest Reality.

Haqayaq-ul-ashiyā sābitūn, w-al ālamu ādīsun. (H.)

Kullu shayin hālikun illā Wajh. (Q.)

Kullu shayin mā-siwā-Allāhu bātīla. (H.)

(The Essence bides; the world's a passing dream. The Cause, the Face of God, God's very Self,

1 Some say the name Al-Lah is connected with or derived from lahu, and means the Great Player, Playwright, corresponding with Vēdic Ka-vi, Ancient Poet and Dramatist, Author of World-Drama; others derive it from wālhum, love; still others, from Hebrew El, (Arab. Al, That), God.
Alone persists; effects all pass and die.
All-Else-than-God is wholly null and void.)

Annāsū niyamīn, fa ezā māṭu inṭabahu. (H.)

Innamul kaunu khayālun, wa huā
Haqqun fi-l haqīqatī. (H.)

(Men who are living here, are in a dream;
And when they die then shall they be awake;
For all this world is a mere thought—the thought
Of him who is the True, whose thought is Truth.)

Some others of the many names of this Omnipotence of the Supreme Self, this Magic-Power of Desire, this all-compelling Force of Will-and-Imagination, which is the motive-force behind all this Dreaming, are Ṭṛṣṇā, Vāsanā, Kāma-Sankalpa, Avidyā, Hirs, Tamannā, Havas, Arzū, Khayāl, Êlan Vital, Urge, Surge of Desire.

Jumla in ḍām asṭ o ḍān-ash arzū,
Ḍar gurēz az ḍām-hāyē āz zū. (āz, hirs ;zū, zūḍ) (S.)

(Know all this is the snare spread by Desire; Flee from those snares as soon as e'er thou canst.)

‘After life’s fitful fever sleep ye well’; ‘After tasting all things, hold fast by the Good; which is God Al-one’. After exhausting the world’s experience of joy and sorrow, good and evil, realise that they are all ‘vanity of vanities’, all dreams of your own mind’s creating, that you your-Self are (is) the only True, Good, Beautiful, Free, Infinite, Eternal, Changeless Reality; that God Al-one is; 'I Al-one am'; and all This Else-is-Naught, is Dream, is My Will-and-Imagination, and 'I' can create, maintain, destroy, anything, as 'I' please, by sufficiently intense and strong Will-and-Imagination.

Dhyānikam sarvam ēva ētād yaī 'Ētād'-'abhi-shabdiṁam;
Na hi an-aḍhy-āṭma-viṭ kash-chiṭ
kriyā-phalam up-āśnutē. (M.)

(All this, the Object-world that we call 'This', It is made up of Thought; he who knows not This truth, his actions bear not wholesome fruit.)

Mahramē īṁ hosh juz bé-hosh n-īṣṭ,
Mar zabāṅ rā mushṭari juz gosh n-īṣṭ,
Har ke bédār ast ū ādar khwāb-ṭar;
Hasṭ bédārī-sh az khwāb-ash bāṭar,
Har ke āsar khwāb-ast bédārī-sh beh;
Hasṭ ghaflat a'yn hushyārī-sh beh. (S.)

(None but th' Unconscious knows this consciousness;
The tongue's speech but the speechless ear can guess.
He who seems now awake is in deep dream;
His wakefulness is false and worse than sleep.
And he who seems asleep doth truly wake;
The true sleep's better than false wakefulness.)
Yā nishā sarva-bhūtānām,
ṭasyām jāgarī samyāmī;
Yasyām jagraṭī bhūtānī,
sā nishā pashyātah munēh. (G.)

(That which is night for others, therein wake
The Careful; while that which is day for all
Is night for him who sees the inner world.)

Na ṭaṭra chakshuh gachchhataḥ, na vāg gachchhchhati, no manah... Vijñāṭāram arē kēna vijāniyāt. (U.)

(The eye can reach It not, nor speech, nor mind;
By means of what can ye the Knower know;
It-Self doth know It-Self and All-Else too.)

Ai bar-ṭar az khāyāl o qayās o gumān o wahm
W-az har-che gufta-ём o shanid-ём wa
khwānda-ём! (S.)

A' yān aisā ke har shai mēn nihān hai,
Nihān aisā ke har shai mēn a'yān hai. (S.)

(O Thou! that dost transcend our highest thought,
Imagination, guess, conjecture—all,
And all that has been spoken, heard, or read!
Thou that art hidden so in everything
As to be plainly visible everywhere,
And manifest in all things in such wise
As to be hid in utmost mystery!)

Maghrībī! ān-che ṭu ash mī ālabī ċar khalwat,
Man a'yān bar sar-i-har kūcha wa kū mī bīnam.
(Man of the West I, what thou wouldst fain
Seek in far space's dark retreat,
That I behold spread out full plain
Here, now, in every lane and street.) (S.)

Yasya sarvāni bhūtāni
Ātmā ēva abhūt vijānaṭah
Tatāra kah mohah kah shokah
Ēka-ṭvam anu-pashyaṭah. (U.)

Idānim asmākam patu-ṭara-vivēk-ānjana-jushām
Samī-bhūtā ḍṛśtiḥ ṭribhuvaṇam api Brahma
manuṭē. (BHAṬR-HARI.)

(For whom all things have now become him-Self,
Who knows that I al-One exist in all,
For him there is no more sadness or hate.
With new eye-lotion dropped into our eyes,
Of the same-sighted knowledge, all the worlds
And their contents are seen by us as Brahm'.)

Questioning arises, again and again, in sensitive heart of earnest seeker, whatever formal religion he may profess. It arises even after he has arrived at the stage of thought and feeling which has been described before as Ā-dvaita-vāda or Ādhyāsa-vāda, Wujādiyah view, 'meta-physical or illusionary or will-and-imagination theory of causation'. The questioning can be finally set at rest only by long-continued meditation on that view. Meanwhile, some more citations may be made, of 'poetical' answer, by mystic-gnostics of all religions, to that questioning. These are helpful in preparing for and then clarifying and strengthening the 'metaphysical' answer and Vision.

Jo mazā inţizār mēn dekhā
Woh nāhīn wasl-e-Yār mēn dekhā. (S.)
(The ache of yearning for the Belovéd Is sweeter far than joy of clasping Him.)

The English poet Tennyson wrote:
'Tis better to have loved and lost
Than never to have loved at all.

It would give a deeper, more consoling and comprehensive, if less emotionally poignant meaning, if we say:
'Tis better to have lost and found
Than never to have lost at all.

'Prudens quæstio dimidium scientiæ. (Latin maxim.)
(To know what should be asked—this is to know At least half of the whole answer also.)
Yātah ut-pādyatē prashnah, uṭṭaram jāyatē taṭah;
Prashtā sam-shayitā yah asau,
samādhātā sa ēva hi.
(Answer arises from the same heart whence Question arises, in the last resort;
Who doubts and queries, yea, that self-same Self Provides solution and reply in full.) \(Dārd-e-dīl kē wāṣṭe īnsān ko paīdā kīyā, Warna ṭā'āṭ kē liyē kāfi na ṭhīn karrobiyān? \(S.\)\) \(Kufr kāfir rā, wa dīn dīn-dār rā, Qāṭra-e-dārd-e-dīlē Aṭṭār rā? \(S.\)\)

(To know the joys of Heartache, God made man;
For service He had made angels enough!
From the supernal hymns and harmonies
Of the celestial choirs of cherubim,
Divinity felt urge and surge for change.
It made It-Self the shape of mortal man,
To taste the joyous pain, the sweet heartache,
Of Father, Mother, Brother, Sister, Child,
Friend, Foe also, alas! Misery and Bliss—
Till, tired of these, It pass to Peace again.\(^1\)
Doubters, let doubt; believers, let believe;
Drop of Divine Heartache, let me receive!

If I held Truth in my hand, I should let it go, for the joy of pursuing it is greater than that of finding it.

\((SIR W. HAMILTON, Metaphysics, I. lec. 1.)\)

Love-chase is more exciting, more pleasurable, than love-capture.

\(Na Aham ṭu, sakhyah \(I\), bhajāṭah api janṭūn Bhajāmi amīshām anu-vṛtti-vṛttayē;\)

\(^1\) See p. 317 supra also.
Yaṭhā aḍhanah, labdha-ḍhané vinashté,
Taṭ-chinṭayā anyaṭ nibhrāḥ na vēdā. (Bh.)
(Friends! if I seem to run away from you,
My lovers and My loved ones!, I do so
In order that ye may run after Me,
The more distraught, the more whole-heartedly!
As a man who has found a precious gem,
Then lost it, can now think of nothing else,
So, having glimpsed and lost Me, ye will search
With all your heart and mind until ye find.)

An old Chinese proverb says:
"To journey hopefully is better than to arrive."

Illusion, Dream, Romance, Imagination, is more sweet than Dis-illusioning 'Reality!'—unless the Reality is that of the Infinite Spirit which includes all unrealities, all the most glorious and blissful (as also inevitably the most horrid and woeful) Dreams.

Another western writer says:
"It is the trying to find out that is the real prize;
the race, not the winning; the battle, not the victory."

The soul is always experiencing and enjoying the swing between losing and regaining.

[God gave all gifts to Man, but kept back Rest;]
For "If I should," said He,
"Bestow this Jewel also on my Creature,
He would adore My gifts instead of Me,
And rest in Nature, not the God of Nature;
So both should losers be.
Yet let him keep the rest,
But keep them with repining Restlessness;
Let him be rich and weary, that, at least,
If Goodness lead him not, then Weariness
May toss him to My Breast”!

(George Herbert.)

God forgets Himself in order, first, to feel the Divine Heartache of longing for Him-Self; and then to feel the Divine Bliss of re-collecting, re-remembering, re-cognising, re-covering Him-Self.
This is one way of putting the Truth. But the full way of putting it is,

Purṇam Aḍah, purṇam Iḍam,
Purṇat purṇam uḍachyaṭe,
Pūrṇasya purṇam āḍāya,
Pūrṇam ēva ava-shishyaṭe. (U.)

(This endless universe is all derived
From Spirit Infinite; yet, taking out
The Endless Whole from the Whole Infinite,
The fullness of the pseudo-infinite,
Th’ illusion of this ever-fleeting dream,
From the True Infinite, the One who Dreams
Yet changes never—E’er the Full remains.)

Gar kḥūrī jūra’-ē ze sāghar gham,
Jām-ē-Jamshēd rā zanī bar-ham!
Mulk-e-shādī hamīn ḍīhand ba bād
Mālikān-ē balā wa gham ḍar ḍam.
Ḍārḍ-mandān-e zakhīm-e-tēgh-e-furāq
Mī na khwāhand az kāsē marham.
Ba jahān ḍar hamēsh paiddā i,
Lēk ḍar chashm-i-man na mī āyi!
Ar i ke ḍar héch jā na ḍārī jā,
Būl-a’jab māndah am ke har jā ī!
Andarūn o bērūn, wa az pas o pēsh,
Ḍār chap o rāst, wa zēr o bālā ī!
Ḍār libās-ē duī na mī gunjī
Z-ān ke mashhūr-ṭar ba yak-ṭā ī!
Ḍosh goyīnda-ē aḏā mī kard,
Az qīl-ē-zār sauṭ-e-shāiḏāi,
Ai! ba-chashmān-i-qīl ma bīn juz Ḍoṣṭ!
Har che bīnī bi-ḍān ke mazhar-i-Usṭ!
(S. Wesalī, Mā Muqīmān.)

(If thy lips taste one sip of that Heartache, Thou wouldst dash down Jamshēd’s Bowl of Delights!
They who have been sore wounded by the Sword
Of Separation from the Beloved,
Seek from None-Else for any salve or balm!
The wealth of worldly pleasures, to the winds,
Instant, they cast, who own the wealth Divine
Of yearning for the Vision of His Face,

1 See p. 306 supra, also.
And ever breathe the sad sweet sighs of Love!
O my Beloved!, how wonderful art Thou,
That, being everywhere, nowhere art Thou!
That wearest all the forms that there can be,
Yet canst not be encompassed by mine eyes!
To left, to right, above, and down below,
Within, without, before, also behind,
There is no time, no place, where Thou art Not;
So famously Uni-que, Al-One, art Thou,
Garb of An-Other never can fit Thee!
Last night a devotee in ecstasy
Whispered "Whate'er thou seest, it is He!"

God, tired of sole-ness, Kaivalya, Wahdat,
Al(I)-One-ness, L-One-liness, Solitude, went
'forth', went 'out' of Him-Self, and 'multiplied', burst forth into an infinity of forms, and held high revel of sensations and emotions, most delicate and most coarse, most delicious and most excruciating, most ambrosial and most in-toxicating, most solemn and most cheerful, most heavy-laden and most light-hearted, most terrible tragedy and most frivolous comedy. Tiring of that mad Riot of Shiva-Rudra, Rahman-Qahhar, Double-Faced Janus of Peace and War, Gauri-Kali, Ghaffar-Ghazzab, He decides that it is all Vanity of Vanities, Maya, Fisana, Dream and Imagination, Khwab and Khayal, and withdraws into Him-Self and goes into the Deep Sleep of Chaos; till Desire to Wake up and Play at making a new Cosmos surges up again within him.

"Behold, I create a new heaven and a new earth; and the former shall not be remembered, not come into mind." (B., Isaiah, 65.)

Ze đariyā mauj-e-gūnā-gūn đar-āmad,
Ze Bérangī ba rangē chūn bar-āmad. (S.)

Aparé Brahmaṇi Brahma
Sva-bhāva-vashaṭah Svayam,
Jāṭah Spanda-mayah niṭyam
Ūrmihambu-nidhau iva. (Yoga-Vāsiṣṭha.)

1 Brahma is the Universal Impersonal Self, Param-Āṭmā, Allāh, Ahaḍ; Brahma is a personal creator, ruler, preserver, destroyer, ilāh, el, of a particular world-system. One final question, one last doubt, remains. Why should God feel the need to play and sleep? Pari-pūrṇaṃ sva kā spṛhā; al āna kamā kāna. The Ever-full should not suffer such 'lack', such 'want', such 'need'? Deep meditation on the logia, 'One-without-a-Second', lā mā-siwa-Allāh', 'lā-maujūḏah illā Hū', 'lā ilāhā illā Anā', 'Aham éva Na maṭṭah Anyaṭ', 'I-Not-Another'—will loosen this last knot. The present writer's The Science of Peace and The Science of the Sacred Word, and the more recent work, The Science of the Self, (in English), also the last chapter of Samanvaya (in Hindi), may perhaps help the enquirer in this work of reconciling 'Change' with 'Changelessness,' if he happens to be interested in the great problem, and cares to pursue it.

Briefly: God’s forgetting Him-Self into an Outer World, recognising the No-thing-ness of any such outer,
(The peaceful Ocean heaves with mighty waves,
And, from the Formless, countless forms break forth;
The Colourless sparkles and coruscates
With countless colours, 'this', 'this', 'thus' and 'thus'.)

(The Breath of Heaven passed o'er the still Seas,
And countless bubbling waves rose with the breeze;
The Smile of God flashed on the far-flung Skies,
They flashed back answer in a million dyes.
In the Vast Ocean boundless, fathomless,
A giant billow surges; in th' Immense
Sleep of the Infinite Eternal Space
There is a Stirring, and a Central Point
Of Whirling Vibrant Restlessness doth rise;
From Restful Brahm', restless Brahmā is born.)

Loka-vaṭṭu Lilā-Kaivalyam.

(Brahma-Sūtra)

...
(As man, so God, en-acts gladness and sadness,
In Play and Pastime; then, when tired of this,
He goes again into Sleep’s L-One-liness.)

Ékākī na ramaṭē... Ékākī kāmayaṭē, jāyā Mé syāṭ... Paṭish-cha paṭṇī ch-ābhavaṭ... Sah akā-mayaṭa, bahu syām pra-jāyēya, ... āvīṭiyāḥ Mé āṭmā jāyēta. Āpayāṭah vai ṯau any-onyasya kāmān sarvān
... Āvīṭiyāṭ vai bhayam bhavaṭi ... Āvīṭiyāḥ vai sa-paṭṇah. (U.)

Manu-anṭarani asankhyāni,
Sargah samhārah ēva cha,
Krīdan iva ēṭaṭ kurūṭe,
Paramēśthī punah punah. (M.)

(The Solitary feels un-satisfied!
A nameless restlessness surges within;
He wishes: May I have a Mate who may Play with Me. He becomes Nature and God,
Husband and Wife. And then He wished again:
May I be Many and have second ‘selves’;
And there were Many Progeny to Both.
Countless desires arise between the Two
Of every sort, of most opposéd sorts;
And find expression, first; and then surcease;
For, with a Second, is born rivalry,
Fear of An-Other, souring of the sweet;
And then the One goes back to Soli-tude.
Thus, ceaselessly, the Overlord of All,
Transcending every limit, ‘sits on high’,
And makes, unmakes, remakes worlds, o'er and o'er
In cycles, smallest, largest, as in Play.)

Allāhu jamīlun wa yohibb-uj-jamāl. (H.)
Kunṭu kanzam makḥfiyun fa aḥbabṭu
An ā'rifā fa kḥalaq al khalqa li ā'rīfa. (H.)

(I was a hidden treasure; I desired
To see My-Self; I therefore did create
This World of forms and lives beyond all count,
That I may realise My-Self therein.
Beauty must ever love to be admired
And to be loved, eagerly, passionately;
God is most Beautiful; shall He not love
That Many may behold that Loveliness
In Him, and that He may Him-Self also Behold His own Self's Beauty in them all?)

Yā ayyohal nafs-ul-muṭmainna,
Arjē'āl elā Rabbekā rāziyaṭun marziya,
Fa ṭukhūli fi u(bbādi wa ṭukhūli jannāṭi. (H.)
Al-arwāhum junūdun mujanniḍa, fa mā tā'rafu minha ilṭafa,
wa mā ṭankara minha akḥtalīfu. (H.)

(O Soul! that hath found rest in God! Turn back Unto thy Lord; for He takes joy in Thee,
And thou too dost rejoice in Him. Mix then
With these My servants. Enter Paradise!)
The souls that do not recognise the One
Ensouling all—they differ 'mongst themselves;
The souls that, in each other, Me behold,
They bathe in Love, and Love is Paradise!)

All great religions, living or dead, describe this Ultimate Principle, as Tri-Une, Trinity-in-Unity, Unity-in-Trinity, or as possessing three principal Attributes, g u n a-s, sīfāt. They are the Principles of (1) Be-ing, Ex-ist-ence, 'outer' manifestation, which is possible only by Action, movement, Motion, (2) Joy, Bliss, which is possible only by fulfilment of Desire, and (3) Awareness, Knowledge, Wisdom, through Cognition. These are named in Vēdaṅga as Saṃ, Ānāndā, Chīt, summed up in Chaitānyam, Infinite Principle of Life and Consciousness; in Christianity as the Way, the Life, the Truth; or, as Omni-presence, Omni-potence, Omni-science; in Ţasawwuf they are called Wujūd, Shuhād, Ilm, summed up in Nūr, supernal Light of Consciousness, Nūr-i-Qāhir, primal over-powering Light; Paramājyotih, final Light, (Jewish) Or En-sof, Infinite Light, by which and in which Light all Universe is illumined. In Chinese Taoism or Laotsism, they are called Hsing, Chih, and Ch'i (Form, Substance, Pneuma), three potentialities of Hun Tūn (Primal Chaos).1 Personifications of, or broadly corresponding to, the three Principles are, Brahmā—Shiva—Vishnū; Lakshmī—Gaurī—Sarasvati; Son—Holy-Ghost—Father; Al-Mālik—Ar-Razzāq—Al-A’līm. In the Jewish religion, Kabalistie Judaism or Hebraism, the Three are Chochmāh—Keṭher—Bīnāh, or Hakama—Jāh—Bīnāh, or Hakam—Hasaḏ—Jasaḏ, or Sephira—Keṭher—Adam-Kadmon, as Primary emanations of the Unknowable En-Sof. The scientific triad may be said to be Matter—Force—Mind. In a Craft Lodge of Masonry, they are indicated by Pillars of Strength—Beauty—Wisdom.

Manju-shrī—Amit-ābha—Avalokīt-ēshwara, three aspects of Incorporeal Buddha, in Buddhism; Ahura-Mazda—Spento-mainyush—Ārmaiti, (or Ahura-Mazdā—Vohu-mano—Ashā; or Ahura the Self-existent, Maza the Great, and Ḍā the Knower), three aspects of Zerouane Akerané, the Unmanifest, in

In the dead Egyptian religion, Father-Mother-Son were Osiris-Isis-Horus, i.e., Sun-Moon-Hour; since the measure of time, ‘hour’ (Skt. ho-rā, aho-rātram, ‘day-night’) is born from the motions of Moon and Sun (which here stands for Earth). “The all-comprehending Amun is at once the Father, the Mother, and the Son of God”; J. M. Robertson, A Short History of Christianity, p. 114.

These triads are not all arranged in exactly the same order. The incessant and ‘inconceivably’ rapid ‘lamb-ence’ of psychic phenomena makes it far more difficult to ‘fix’ them in words, than the play of sunset-colors.

See p. 190, supra.
Zoroastrianism; indicate the same Tri-Unity. Ahura Mazda says; “I am Protector, Life-giver and Nourisher, Knower, and the most spiritual Evolver. . . . I am of the name Ahura, Bestower of Life, and the name Maza-da, Greatest and most Wise”; (Z. Yasht, i. 12). In Plato’s mysticism, they are the principles of Goodness (the Object of Action, realised by Power of Action for all as for Self, the Way of realising the Common Self of all in and by Action); of Beauty (Object of all Desire, the One Self being Supremely Beautiful Object of such, Heart’s Desire of all, being the Joy, the Life, of the heart); and of Truth, (or Reality, Object of Cognition, the Self being the One and Only Ever-True, Ever-Real).

Vaiṣṭika theology has many hymns, each singing a ‘thousand names’ of the Supreme as Vishṇu, or as Shiva, or Sūrya, or Shakṭi-Devī. Islām has a ‘hundred holy names’ of Allāh. Hebraism has Sefiroth, Elohim, like Gabri-el, of Might, Rāfi-el, of Healing, Mikāi-el of Strength, Seraphi-el of Harmony, and so on. In Islam, Jibra-il, is the * Truth-Beauty-Goodness, it will be readily seen, correspond to Science-Art-Ethic; Philosophy-Religion may be regarded as summation.

* Khājā Khān, Phil. of Islām, p. 45, says these correspond to Vēdic “Kshiṭi, Varuṇa, Agni, Indra.” See p. 268 supra.
angel of Earth, Knowledge, and Revelation, Mikā-il of Water, Existence, and Protection, Azrā-il of Fire, Power, Death and Destruction, Isrāf-il of Air, Intention, and Resurrection, etc. All these are vyakṭis, kāyanāt, manifestations, of shakṭis, shuyūnāt, powers, potentialities, of the Self; they are personifications of Mādhurya and Aishvarya vi-bhūtis, Jamāli and Jalāli sīfāt; sweetly beautiful and blazingly compelling and awful powers and glories, of the Supreme—which all living things manifest; each in infinitesimal degree; and which shine forth strongly in the higher spirits, cherub-im, seraph-im, angels, dévas, farishtas; in suns, moons, iridiscent dewdrops, and humming-birds; in flowers, butterflies, babies; in cyclones, simooms, blizzards, avalanches, volcanic eruptions, earthquakes, continent-sinking and-upheaving cataclysms.

Infinite, like Him-Self, must be, are, the masques which the Eternal Masquerader is ever, everywhere, everyway, putting on and off, incessantly, fatiguelessly! Why? Because it is pleasant 'pass-time' to be 'all-ways' forgetting One-Self in order to remember One-Self 'all-ways'; to be 'all-ways' losing, seeking, finding, re-losing, pursuing, refinding One-Self. Time, it has been remarked by a humorist, is the greatest enemy of man; he is always trying to kill it, and never succeeding; instead, it kills every man. The jest is true in the profoundest sense; and it is true not only of Time, but of Space, and of Motion, too, all three; and all three are indestructible, un-kill-able, because the would-be Destroyer Him-self deliberately gives to them His own Ever-lasting-ness, by bearing them in His Universal Mind, His Eternal and Infinite Will-and-Imagination.

The soul which has merged itself into God, consciously endeavours to realize the 'sweeter' attributes, and show them forth by a life of serenely wise, devotedly philanthropic, and actively beneficent service of fellow-beings. Very highly advanced souls may sometimes have to manifest consciously the 'compelling' attributes also, as A va ṭā r a s, Messiahs prophets, do.

\begin{align*}
\text{Bhūda-buddhi-vi-nir-mukṭah} \\
\text{ sarva-bhūta-hitē raṭah. (U.)}
\end{align*}

(Freed from the sense of separateness, the soul Engages in the service of the Whole.)

\begin{align*}
\text{Kasē marde-tamām aṣṭ, az ūtamāmi} \\
\text{ Kunāḍ bā kẖwājagī kār-ē-gẖulāmī. (S.)} \end{align*}

(Being perfected, freed, the Master braves The noble task of slaving for the slaves.)

As Kṛṣhṇa says:

\begin{align*}
\text{Dāsyam aishvarya-vāḍēna} \\
\text{jñāṭīnāṁ tu karomi Aham. (Mbh.)}
\end{align*} Parī-ṭrāṇāya sādhunām,
vi-nāshāya cha ḍush-krīm,
Dharma-sam-sthāpan-ārthāya
sam-bhavāmi yugā yugā. (G.)
(Under the designation of 'the Lord',
I do the work of slave for all the world.
To save the virtuous, destroy the vicious,
And to establish Law Divine anew,
I manifest My-Self age after age.)

Ēvam pra-varṣītām chakram
na anu-varṣayaṭi iha yah,
Agh-āyuḥ inḍriy-ārāmaḥ
mogham, Pārṣhaḥ, sah jīvaṭi. (G.)
(He who thus helpeth not to keep the Wheel
Of Life and Love and Law revolving aye,
His life is selfish, sinful, lived in vain.)

Saiyaḍ-ul-qamān khaḍima-hum. (H.)
(The leader is chief servant of the tribe.)
Ān ke khaḍmaṭ karḍ, ā mahkṭum shuḍ;
Ān ke khaḍ rā ḍiḍ, ā mahrūm shuḍ. (S.)
(He who served others was by others served,
Who looked but to himself was thrust aside.)

"He that is greatest among you shall be your servant." (B.)

He who has seen, known, realised most fully the Truth of the identity of all selves in the One Self, he is the greatest and most free and most willing servant.

"Ye shall know the Truth, and the Truth shall make you free." (B., John.)

र्तेज्ञानात नाम मुक्तिह. (U.)
J्ञानात मोक्षाह. (U.)
(Freedom there’s none unless ye know the Self,
But if he know the Truth, then are ye free.)

बे-िल्म ना तवान क्हुदा रा शिनाक्ष्ठ. (S.)
(Ye cannot realise God till ye know.)

Miदाद० ाल-मुता०’िलम ा‘िला गिमातान िन्द-िलाहो, मिन नम-ि-िशहिदिन, िि सावि-ि िलाह. (H.)
(The Scholar’s Ink has, to the Eye of God,
A value higher even than the Blood
Of Martyr shed in Witness of the Faith.)

Mरिफात, िर्फान, प्रा-िज्ञाना, higher subtler िज्ञाना, ‘spiritual knowledge’, ‘vision’ or knowledge of the One, is essential one-third part of the tri-part-ite, threefold, means to मोक्षाह, नाजात, Deliverance from all ills.¹

¹ The word फुर्गान also occurs in Qurān, in the sense of Deliverance, liberation, also illumination, revelation, and, again, ‘distinction’, फार् between good and evil, ‘separation’ from bonds of this world; in terms of Yoga,
Such then is the final purpose of life in all religions—to find God, i.e., know and realise the Self as God; after having fulfilled its preliminary purpose, of tasting the things of the world, in accordance with Law and Religion and Science, i.e., Religio-Scientific Law'; and, by toiling consciously on the side of the forces of Good, to help others to do the same. This is what the Way of Knowledge leads unto.

1 On this point, something more will be said later, in chapters on 'The Way of Devotion' and 'The Way of Works'.
CHAPTER III

WAY OF DEVOTION, OR EMOTIONAL CONSTITUENT OF RELIGION

Way of Devotion is not a separate path at all; but is called thus only for certain special purposes. In the life of the human being, cognition, desire, and action are inseparable. Way of Devotion is only one of three inseparable departments. It is the department of Right Desire, Good Feelings, Deep and High Emotions, Noble Ethics.

If Right Knowledge is head, Right Love is heart, and Right Action is limbs, of organic, psycho-physical, bodily-mental Life. Love, Devotion, even genuine love human, infinitely more Love Divine, is the Joy of Life. Ishq-i-majāstī, Vishay-ānanda, Māna va-prēma, is but reflection, in the limited, of Ishq-i-Haqiqī, Brahm-ānanda, limitless Bhagavād-bhakṭī. Without rich emotion, encyclopedic science is as a desert without a stream, as bare bald mountains without vegetation, as the most beautiful human body without a living soul in it, is as a corpse.
Knowledge is ful-filled, completed from half into whole, when love is married to it, and noble acts are born to the two as children. Science plus Philanthropy, Benevolence, is Bene-science, is Wisdom; Right Will plus Knowledge of how to use it is Benevolence? Wisdom plus Helpful Activity, Beneficence, is Righteousness. Let us achieve Righteousness and all things else shall be added unto us.

Dharmāṭ arthah cha kāmah cha,
Sa kim-arṭham na sevyate? (Mbh.)
(Pleasure and Wealth both flow from Righteousness;
Why not pursue it, then, whole-heartedly?)

Commandments of all great religions, on the subject of Ethics, injunctions and prohibitions, do's and don't's, viḍhi and nishéḍha, umār (pl. of amr) and nawāhī, (pl. of nahī) or māmurāṭ and mamnūāṭ, are identical, for all practical purposes.

1. Five Principal Virtues, Disciplines.

Sāmāsīka Dharmā, 'Duty of Man in brief,' enjoined by Manu, who is regarded by followers of Vaidīka Dharmā (Hinduism) as Primal Law-giver, is same as the five yamas of Yoga and panchaśīla of Buddha. It is also five of the ten Commandments of Moses, which are re-uttered and confirmed by Christ too. They are to be found in Qurān also, though not all in one place. Thus Manu says:

Ahimsā, Saṭyam, Asṭēyam,
Shaucham, Indriya-nigrahah,
Ēṭam Sāmāṣikam Dharmam
Chāṭur-varṇyē abraṇī Manuh. (M.)

(Harmlessness, Truth, Honesty, Cleanliness, Restraint of senses from all erring ways,
—This is the ‘Whole Duty of Man in Brief,’
For every one in every walk of life—
Thus Manu, Father of the Race, declares.)

In another place, Manu says:

Dhṛtih, kshamā, damah, asṭēyam,
shaucham, indriya-nigrahah,
Dhīḥ, vidyā, saṭyam, a-kroḍhah,
dashakam Dharmam lakṣaṇam. (M.)

(Fortitude, forgiveness, rule o’er the mind,
Not taking others’ goods against their will,
Cleanliness, control over the senses too,
Alert intelligence, learning, and truthfulness,
Not giving way to anger—such the ten Unfailing marks of the eternal Dharma.)

Mahābhārata, Bhāgavata, and other Purāṇas, expand the list to twenty and more. Jaina sages, Samanṭa-bhaḍra and others, mention ten also—kshamā, mārdava, ārjava, saṭya, shaucha, samyama, ṭapas, ṭyāga, ā-kinchanya, brahma-charya, i.e., forgiveness, gentleness, straightness, truthfulness, cleanliness, self-control, asceticism, renunciation, discarding of all possessions, (sex-) continence. They also mention the ten opposites of these, kroḍha (or krūraṭa), māna (or ahamkāra), māyā (or chhala-kapata), a-saṭya, lobha (or ṭṛṣhṇā), a-sam-yama (or indriya-svachhandata), su-ku-māra-ṭa, sam-graha, mama-ṭa, and Buddha's 'Five Virtues' are:

Sir Edwin Arnold's tender version of these must be borrowed from his wonderful and immortal poem, a veritable scripture of Buddhism, The Light of Asia, and be given a place here reverently.

Kill not—for Pity's sake—and lest ye stay
The meanest thing upon its upward way.
Bear not false witness, slander not, nor lie;
Truth is the speech of inward purity.
Give freely and receive, but take from none
By greed or force or fraud, what is his own.
Shun drugs and drinks which work the wit abuse;
Clear minds, clean bodies, need no soma juice.
Touch not thy neighbour's wife, neither commit
Sins of the flesh unlawful and unfit.

The five wu-chang, ethical commandments, of Confucius are: 1. jen, service of or doing good to others; 2. yi, truthfulness; 3. li, propriety, proper conduct, correct behaviour; 4. chih, knowledge, ku-shīla, i.e., anger (or cruelty), pride (or ego-istic conceit), deceitfulness, falsehood, greed, non-self-control, i.e., indulgence of the senses, over-delicateness or excessive sensitiveness, acquisitiveness, possessiveness (this is mine), and ill-character (or bad manners and bad conduct.)
5. hsian, trustworthiness. Sometimes these are reduced to three, chih, jen, and chuang or courage.¹

Jainism gives same list as Buddhism:
(Sṭhūla-)prāṇ-āti-pāṭa-viramaṇa-vraṭa; (sṭhūla-) mṛṣhā-vāḍa-viramaṇa-vraṭa; (sṭhūla-) a-ḍaṭṭ-āḍānaviramaṇa-vraṭa; (sṭhūla-) maiṭhuna-viramaṇa-vraṭa; (sṭhūla-) parigraha-parimāṇa-viramaṇa-vraṭa. (Jaina Scriptures.)

(The five Resolves are, broadly: to refrain
From taking life; from speaking untrue word;
From taking what is not willingly given;
From all unlawful love; from ownership
Of goods beyond the limits of strict needs.)

Maḍya-māmsa-maḍhu-tyāgaih
saha anu-vraṭa-panchakam,
Ashtau mūla-guṇān āhuh
grhiṇām Shramaṇ-otṭamāh.

(J., SAMĀNTA-BHAḌRA.)

Maḍya-māmsa-maḍhu-tyāgaih
saha udumbara-panchakam,
Ashtau ete grha-sthānām
uktāh mūla-guṇāh shruṭau.

(J., SOMA-DĒVA.)

¹ Article by Prof. Tan Yun Shan, of Shānti-Nikētan
(founded by Rabindranath Tagore), in Vishva-vāṇi (Hindi monthly, Allahabad) for January, 1942.
Himsā-asatya-ṣṭeṣāṭ
a-brahma-parigrahāṭ cha vāḍara-bhodeṭāṭ, Ghrṭāṭ māmsāṭ maḍyāṭ
viraṭih grhiṇah ashta mūla-guṇāh.

(J., Mahā-ḍūrāṇa.)
(Besides the five, three others: to refrain
From flesh-foods, butter,¹ and from ‘maddening’ drinks—
Eight are root-virtues for the family-man.)
Himsāyām, anṛtē, ṣṭeyā,
maitṛhunē cha, parigrahē,
Viraṭih vratam—iti uktam
sarva-saṭṭv-ānu-kampakaih.
(J., Shubha-Chandra, Jñān-ārṇava.)
(Slaying, false speaking, theft, lust, greed to hold Aught as one’s own exclusive property—
To give up these, and wish well unto all,
This is the essence of all virtuous vow.)

Following verses, are taken from works which are honored as ‘scriptures’ by Jainas; they are by ancient authors ranging from 5th century B.C. to 12th A.D.; and they confirm the ‘five virtues’:

¹ Some read ‘honey’ instead of ‘butter’; since ‘honey’ involves killing of many bees (except when domesticated, as in hill-habitations and elsewhere, by apiculturists); or at least stealing from them. ‘Butter’ is forbidden, perhaps because it strengthens and vitalises and so makes more difficult resistance of desire for self-indulgence.
1. Savvē jīvā vi ichchanṭi jīvium, na marijjium, Ṭamhā pāṇi-vaham ghoram, nigganṭha vajjayanṭiṇaṃ.  (Ḍasha-vaiṁālika-Sūṭra.)

   Yah bhūṭeṣhu abhayam ḍaṭṭyaṭ, bhūṭebhyah ṭasya no bhayam.
   Yāḍṛk viṭāryate ḍaṇam ṭāḍṛk āsāḍyaṭe phalam.  (Hēma Chandra.)

   Āṭma-pariṇāma-himsana-hēṭuṭvāṭ sarvam ēva himsā ēṭat;
   Anṛṭa-vachan-ādi kévalam udāhrṭaṃ shishya-boḍbhaya.
   (Amṛṭa Chandra.)

2. Musā-vāo a logammi sarva-sāhūhi garihio,
   Avissāso a bhūaṇam, ṭamhā mosam vivajjaye.
   (Ḍasha-vaiṁālika-Sūṭra.)

   Dhūṛṭa-kāmuka-kravyāḍa-chaura-chaṛvākasēviṭā,
   Shankā-sankēṭa-pāp-ādhyā, ṭyājya bhāṣhā manishibhiḥ.
   (Śubha Chandra.)

3. A-viṭāṛṇasya grahaṇam parigrahasya, pramaṭṭa-yogāḍ yāt,
   Ṭat pratyāyam stēyaṃ;
   Sā ēva cha himsā, vaḍhasya hēṭuṭvāṭ.
   (Amṛṭa Chandra.)

   Ayam lokah, para-lokah, dharmah, dhairyaṃ, ḍhrṭiḥ, maṭiḥ,
Mushṇatā para-kīyam svam,
mushiṭam sarvam api aḍah.

(Hēma Chandra.)

4. Prāṇa-bhūṭam chariṭrasya, para-Brahm-aika-kāraṇam, Samācharan brahma-charyam,
pūjiṣaih api pūjyatē.

(Hēma Chandra.)

Yaḍi vishaya-pishāchī nirgaṭā déha-gēhāṭ,
Sapaḍi yaḍi vishīrṇah moha-nidṛā-(a) ti-rékah,
Yaḍi yuvaṭi-karankē nir-mamaṭvam pra-pannah,
Jhag-īṭi nanu viḍhēhi Brahma-viṭṭhī-vihāram.

(Shubha Chandra.)

5. Na so pariggaho vaṭṭō Nāya-puṭṭēna Tāyiṇā, Muchchhā pariggaho vuṭṭo, iya vuṭṭam Mahēsīṇa.

(Dasha-vaikālika-Sūtra).

Samsāra-mūlam ārambhāh,
ṭēshām hēṭuḥ pari-grahah,
Tasmāṭ upāsakah kuryāṭ
alpam alpam pari-graham.

(Hēma Chandra).

1. (All wish to live, not die; hence nīr-granṭha-s,
Followers of Jina, 'kill not' anything.
Who giveth fearlessness to other beings,
All beings cease from causing fear to him.
As a man gives so also he receives.
Since vices, all, 'murder' the soul's progress,
They all are only forms of killing;
Mention of lying, stealing, and the others,
Is only to wake up the pupil's mind.

2. 'False speaking' is condemned by all good men;
It spreads distrust, destroys social cohesion;
Therefore avoid it; guard against it well.
The false speech that the wicked love to speak—
Cheats, thieves, and 'beasts of prey', sceptic and lustful—
Which hides another meaning, full of sin—
Such speech should be avoided by good men.

3. Taking of goods that are not freely given,
'Stealing' them when unguarded by the owner,
Is 'theft'; which often leads to murder too.
The thief of others' goods, steals and destroys
His own good in this and the other world,
His dharma, peace of mind, security.

4. 'Sex-Continence' earns knowledge of the One,
Of Para-Brahma. Chastity is the soul,
The essence, of all righteousness in life.
The continent are honored by the honored.
The witch of sensuousness, when she has left
This house of flesh, and with her tak'n away
Intoxication of vice manifold,
And the soul's clinging to this body loosens,
Then Path to Brahma shines out clear and fair.
5. Not all 'possessions' have been equally Condemned by Jāṭi-puṭra, known as Tāyī.¹
Useless and false possessions has he blamed.
Desire to live and move are cause of birth
Into a body; sense of I-and-mine
Is cause of such desire; therefore he
Who would be free from bonds must carefully Reduce possessions ever more and more.)

Moses' Commandments are:

"(1) Thou shalt not kill, (2) not bear false witness,
(3) not steal, (4) not commit adultery, (5) not covet anything that is thy neighbour's." (B.)

"Fear God and keep his commandments—this is the whole duty of man." (B., Ecclesiastes.)

Chirst repeats these commandments of Moses and adds others.

Specific condemnation of intoxicating liquor, supplementing the commandments of Moses and Jesus, may be found elsewhere in Bible; thus:

¹ Mahāvīra Jīna and Buddha were kinsmen; therefore they named each other, to their respective followers, as Jāṭi-puṭra, 'son of kinsman', 'cousin'. Their followers gave to their respective Masters, the title of Tāyī, 'spreader' of the Ancient Sacred Wisdom. Followers of Vāda then began to interpret the word as 'Stealer' of that Wisdom.
"Woe unto them that rise up early in the morning, that they may follow strong drink; that continue until night, till wine inflame them." (B. Isaiah.)

"Who hath woe? Who hath sorrow? Who hath contentions? Who hath babbling? Who hath wounds without cause? Who hath redness of eyes? They that tarry long at wine; they that go to seek mixed wine. Look not thou upon the wine when it is red, when it giveth his color in the cup, when it moveth itself aright. At the last, it biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder." (B., Prov., 23:29-32.)

Muhammad commands:

Wa la yaqṭulūn-an-nafs-ṣallāti harram Allāho illā bil haqqī.
Wajṭanebū qaul-az-zūrē.
W-as-sareqo w-as-sareqato faqṭā'u aḥidayahoma.
Al khamro amalish-Shaiṭānī.
W-allazīna-hum le furūjehim hāfizūn. (Q.)

(1. Slay none; God has forbidden it, except Justice require it. (2) And avoid false words.

3. Woman and man who steal shall lose their hands.

4. Intoxicants are Satan's own device.

5. They who avoid unlawfulness in sex,
And watchfully and resolutely control
Their private parts, they only win success.)
These five duties or virtues, prescribed by Manu, Buḍḍha, and other great Teachers, are for laity, householders. For him who has renounced worldly life, sannyāsī, bhikṣu, faqīr, hermit, yogī or sālik; who, not that he may enjoy superhuman status, but that he may serve his fellow-creatures better, aspires after spiritual and psychical mysteries and powers and the Great Peace; for him, stricter yamas and ni-yamas, zohd and ṭaqashshuf, ibādat and riyāzt, abstinences and performances, devotions and disciplines, are ordained. These take the five duties to their extreme culmination.

Buddhist bhikṣu or shramaṇa has to cultivate five more šilas or virtues, viz., avoidance of (1) eating except at fixed time, (2) seeing and hearing dance, song, instrumental music, theatrical shows, (3) flower-garlands, perfumes, unguents, and all self-decoration, (4) high seats, luxurious couches, (5) gold and silver. These make ten qualifications, ḍasha-shila. At yet higher stages these have to reach a climax in ten pāramañña, 'extreme perfections':

Ḍāna, Sīla, Nekkhamma, Paññā, Viriya, Saṭṭha, Khānti, Aḍḍhitthāna, Mēṭṭhi, Upākkhā. (Bu.)

(Such Charity as gives away e'en life
To whosoever may ask for it; adherence
To rule of Noble Conduct in despite
Of even torture; Absence of Desire
For things of sense of e'en the mildest sort;
The Luminous Intelligence that sees
The heart of everything; Tireless Endeavour
For good of all; Patient Forgivingness
Of the worst torments even; Truthfulness
In face of death itself; and Fortitude
Of Will-to-right, dauntless 'fore obstacles;
Immense Compassion for all living things,
Blind souls, that wander helpless in the dark;
The seeing of the Process of the World
With Perfect Equanimity of Soul—
Such the perfections that a Buddha wears.)

The purpose of these negative and positive disciplines, forbearances and observances, is to turn inwards, the currents of vitality and consciousness, which flow outwards, into physical organs, in normal man. By such ascetic inward direction of them, gradually, subtler superphysical organs are re-awakened; and journey made easier, on the Upward Path of Renunciation of things of this world and all selfishness; Path of Re-ascent to the Spiritual state of Universality. Annals of every religion show us examples of highly advanced souls which have achieved various degrees of these 'extreme perfections.'
Yamas and ni-yamas, as given by Patanjali, are:

Ahimsa-satya-asteya-brahma-charya-a-pari-grahah yamah.
Shaucha-santosha-tapah-svadhyaya-Ishvara-pranipidhanani ni-yamah. (Yoga-Sutra.)

(Avoidance of all slaying, nay, of hurt
To mind or body, of a living thing;
Of falsehood in all speech, and e'en in thought;
Of all unlawful gain or coveting;
Of sex-indulgence, or in body or mind;
Of all sense of possessive ownership;
Such are the yamas. Then, the ni-yamas;
Observance of uttermost purity
That may be possible for body of flesh;
Contentment with whatever may befall;
Study of Sacred Science of the Self;
Restraint of body by determined will;
And, last, complete surrender of one's will
To God's, replacement of one's own small self
By the Great Self, by utmost trust in Him.)

When his questioner persistently asks, "What more good thing shall I do, that I may have eternal life," Christ also adds the Yoga-injunction of renunciation of all property, in which the sense of mine ness, egoistic separatism, is centred; "If thou wilt be perfect, give what thou hast to the poor and follow Me.” (B.) He also adds, as do other great Teachers, for the sake of such high aspirants, ready for Yoga, Sulāk, ‘communion’ with God and God’s Nature, ready for ascetic disciplines and ever-greater abandonment of carnal pleasures—for such he adds abhaya-daṇa, ‘giving of fearlessness to all others’, i.e., complete non-resistance and radical abstinence from sin; not only by deed, but by speech and thought also, thereby ‘not destroying but fulfilling the prophets’; completing, for renunciant anchorite, what Moses prescribed for ordinary householder. For such high aspirants, mere ordinary goodness and virtuousness are not enough; they must achieve greater and greater ‘saintliness’.

For such more earnest whole-hearted seekers, Muhammad too enjoins fuqr and sukn, complete renunciation of property and cultivation of utmost contentment, a-pari-graha and santi-sa, etc., like other Great Teachers.

Al-fuqro fakhri. (H.)

(Pride do I take in utmost poverty.)

Vedic law commands that saṁnyāsī-s, persons in the fourth stage of life, retired from household life, anchorites, must not defile their hands by contact of money. Apostles of Christ provided “neither gold, nor silver, nor brass in their purses,” and “the Son of Man (Jesus) had not where to lay his head”.
Peter spurned an offer of money for imparting spiritual powers, saying:

"Thy money perish with thee, because thou hast thought that the gift of God may be purchased with money." (B.)

In Jaina ‘commandments’, of five virtues for laity, sṭhūla, ‘broadly’, ‘generally’, occurs as a qualifying adjective; for ‘ascetics’, the limitation or modification is dropped.

It should be noted that any one of the five yāmās or sīlās, carried to its logical extreme, involves annihilation of separating individualising physical and material sheath or body, complete renunciation of individualised existence. It should also be carefully borne in mind that duties of household life are very different, in degree, from those of life of renunciation and asceticism.

So single-mindedly should the ascetic, all-renouncing, sālik, y o g ī, ‘mystic-gnostic’, concentrate on the Supreme Self, contemplate his own identity with All, that he must not allow himself to covet, or be tempted by offers of, even ‘god’-like powers and enjoyments, sūkṣma, or dīvya-indriyas, hawās-i-bāṭini, subtle ‘inner senses and organs’, as distinguished from hawās-i-zāhiri, ‘outer’.

Ḍar ān manzil buwaḍ kashf o kārāmāt;
Walé bāyad guzashṭan z-ān maqāmāt.
Agar ḍunyā wa uqbā pēsh āyaḍ,
Nazar karđan ďar ān hargiz na shāyaḍ.
Agar garḍī ĥu ďar Tauhīḍ fānī,
Ba Haq yābī baqāē zindagānī. (S.)
(Unselfishness, all-lovingness—as these Grow in the aspirant for uni-on
With God, with All, illuminations come,
And extra-ordinary happenings too;
Let him not dwell on these things, but pass by
All things of this world and the other worlds,
Let him pursue with single mind the One,
And merge himself in One-ness with the All;
Thus, losing his small life, he gains All-Life,
Losing a ‘time’, he gains Eternity.)
Tē samāḏhau upa-sargāh, vyuṭṭhānē sidḏhayah.
Sṭhāny-upa-nimanṭranē sanga-smay-ā-karanām,
punah an-ishta-prasangāṭ. (Yoga-Sūtra).
Iha-amuṭra-phala-bhoga-virāgah.

(SHANKAR-ĀCHĀRYA, Shārīraka-Bhāshya.)
Na yoga-sidḏhīh, a-punar-bhavam vā,
Mayi arpiṭ-ātma ichchaṭi Maḍ-vinā anyaṭ.
Mayi ḍhārayaṭah chēṭah upa-tishthanṭi sidḏhayah.
 Antarāyān vaḍanti ēṭān yunjaṭah yogam uṭṭamam.
Nahi ṭat kushal-āḍṛtyam, ṭaḍ-ayāso hi ap-āṛṭha-kah.

(Bh., xi, ch. 15.)
(These super-physical experiences
And powers will, as bye-products, appear,
Epi-phenomena, when mind is rapt
In contemplation of the One-in-All;
They are distractions from the End and Aim;
The yogi should be-ware, and studiously
Avoid all such temptations; for they bind
To things of subtle sense, new selfishness,
And greater, more intense, more evil; since
Far greater powers may now be misused.
Therefore, renunciation of all wish
For selfish pleasure, power, privilege,
Must be the one sole beacon-light for Him
Who seeks the Deathless Life of All for all.)

Let no one deceive himself by thinking and hoping, and subtly wishing: 'I will desire nothing for myself; then all powers will and should come to me'. This is a plain self-contradiction. Of course, persons without any such spirit of renunciation also snatch powers from Nature by strength of will and intellect, and extreme self-sacrifice during research; as western scientists have done, before our eyes. But we all see also that they have not won thereby any peace of mind, any real happiness, any sense and certainty of Immortal Life, for any one; instead, the very opposite. Of course, that opposite too has its own acute 'pleasure' of intensely active, restless, rushing, 'fast life' of intoxicated hectic excitement and frantic passions and emotions; palaces of luxury beyond dreams, on the one side, asphyxiating gases and millions writhing in death-agony, on battle-fields and in war-trenches, on the other. To souls that are at that stage of cyclic life and evolution, at which such fever and frenzy of excitement and rush-lust are preferred to the happiness of repose of soul and peace of body—for such, 'religious platitudes and sermons' have no use. They must go their own way, till their hour strikes, and call comes from within themselves, after experience of terrible consequences, to turn from Arc of Descent, A$vāroha-pa$tha, A$dho$mārga, Qaus-i-nazāl, to Arc of Re-Ascent, Ā-roha-pa$tha, Ĉrkha$mārga, Qaus-i-Urāj, in the Cycle of Life. On Path of Ascent, stage by stage, subtle super-physical experiences and powers unfold and enfold of themselves, in accord with laws embodied in that cyclic life; as physical experiences and powers, teething, crawling, standing, toddling, running, learning, adolescence, puberty, progenition, decay, appear and disappear, of themselves. But on this upward path towards Union with All, and ever-growing abandonment of separate individuality, the soul holds all such super-physical powers, with anxious care, with reluctance, as heavy burden of sacred trust for use of others, in constant fear and trembling lest it be tempted to misappropriate them for its own personal uses.¹

¹ See Light on the Path.
Among sense-organs again, tongue is most radical, most dangerous, most necessary, yet most difficult, to control, in respect both of what goes in by it, and of what goes out from it.

Christ says:

"Not that which goeth in at the mouth defileth a man; but that which cometh out of the mouth, this defileth him. Those things which proceed out of the mouth come from the heart; and they defile the man. For out of the heart proceed evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, blasphemies. These are the things which defile a man." (B.)

Elsewhere Bible says:

"If thou sit at a bountiful table, be not greedy upon it... Eat, as it becometh a man... and devour not, lest thou be hated... Be not insatiable, lest thou offend... A very little is sufficient for a man well nurtured... Sound sleep cometh of moderate eating; he riseth early and his wits are with him... Show not thy valiantness in wine, for wine hath destroyed many... Many have fallen by the edge of the sword; yet not so many as they that they have fallen because of the tongue. (B., Apocrypha, Ecclesiasticus.) Every kind of beasts, birds, serpents, things in the sea, is tamed, and hath been tamed, of mankind; but the tongue can no man tame; it is an unruly evil, full of deadly poison. (B., St. James.) Wine is a mocker; strong drink is raging; and whoever is deceived thereby, is not wise. . . At the last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder.” (B. Prov.)

“Thy wife Elizabeth shall bear thee a son, and thou shalt call his name John. . . He shall be great in the sight of the Lord, and shall drink neither wine nor strong drink, and he shall be filled with the Holy Ghost,” (B. Luke.)

Kṛṣhṇa says:

Vishayāh vi-ni-varṭantē
nir-āhārasya déhinah,
Rasa-varjam; rasah api asya
Param ċṛṣhtvā ni-varṭatē. (G.)

Indriyāni jayanṭi āśhu
nir-āhārāḥ maniśiṇaḥ,
Varjyaītvā tū rasanam;
ṭat nir-annasya varṇhaṭē.
Tāvaṭ jīt-ēndriyah na ayāṭ
vijit-āny-ēndriyah pumān,
Na jayēṭ rasanam yāvaṭ;
jiṭam sarvam jiśe rasē. (Bh.)

(Lusts of the senses leave the man who fasts—
For food supports and strengthens all desires—
Excepting taste for food and feel of self.
Indeed it waxes with the want of food;
But leaves him when the Supreme hath been seen.
Over no organ is control secure
Until the tongue has been placed under curb.
When that is conquered, all else are subdued.)

Asked by a follower to mention that one all-pervading principle which runs through and upholds all virtues, Muhammad explained thus: Fa akhaza be lesanihi wa qala kuffa a'laika haza... Wa balya, kubb-unnása fin nāri alā wujūhehim illā hasā'ido al-sīnaṭehim. (H.)

(The Prophet touched his tongue and said: Control The reign of this sense-organ o'er yourself... Men are hurled headlong into fires of hell By loads of evil that their tongues have reaped.)

1 Sādi relates that a Persian king sent a physician to Muhammad for counsel, and that Muhammad sent him back with the above. Sā'dī adds in his own words:
Bisiyār-khor ast bisiyār-khwār.
Andarun az tā'm khālī dār,
Ṭā dar ü Nūr-i-Mā'risaf bīnī.
Na chanḍān bi-khur k-az ḍabhan-āt bar āyād,
Na chanḍān ke az zo'ī jān-āt bar āyād. (Sā'īḍī.)
(Only when hunger overpowers them, the wise Do eat; and then they draw away their hands Before that hunger is quite satisfied.
Who eats too much must suffer too much too. Eat not so much that thou art taken ill, Nor, yet, so little that thou losest life.)
(Keep then some space unfilled within thy body, So may'st thou see the Light shine forth therein, The Light of the Great Self within the small, The Light of Knowledge, final, mystical.)
Zoroaster says:

Güstā yē manṭā ashēm ahūm-vish viḍvāo,
Ahura !, rézukhḍhāī vachanghām kshayamno
hijvo-vaso Thvā āthrā sukhrā, Mazaḍā !, vanghāū viḍāṭā rānnayāo. (Z. Gāthā, 31-19.)

(Illumination and all that is Good,
Lord Mazaḍā !, Thou givest unto him,
The hero, valiant in righteous war,
Who ever thinks, hears, speaks of Rectitude,
Who knows the Self, is wise, controls his tongue,
And tells the truth in soft convincing words.)

Yoī dush-khraṭhvā ashēmēm vareḍēm ramēm chā, khāīs hijūbīs fakhuyas ā afasuyanto... no ṭoī ḍaēvēm dān yā drēgvaṭo ḍaēnā. (Z., Gāthā, 49-4.)

(They who, seeing yet blind, spread, all around,
Intolerance and insolence and hate,
By th' evil words of their unbridled tongues,
Know them to be dire devils on this earth,
Disseminators of the Creed of Hate.)

Manu says:

An-ārogyam, an-āyushyam,
a-svargyam cha ati-bhojanam,
A-puṇyam, loka-vi-ḍvishtam;
ṭasmāt taṭ pari-varjayēt.

Vāchi arṭhā nihiṭāh sarvē
vāṅg-mūlāh vāg-vi-nis-sṛtāh;
Tasmāt yah stēnayeḥ vācham,
sah sarva-stēya-kṛt narah.
Ahimsayā ēva bhūtānām
kāryam shrēyo-anu-shāsanam,
Vāk cha ēva maḍhrurā bhākṣṇā
pra-yojyā dharmam ichchhaṭā.
Yasya vāṅ-ramaṇi śuddhā.
samyag-guptē cha sarvadā,
Sah vai sarvam av-apnoṭi
Vēḍāṇṭ-opa-gaṭam phalam.
Na arun-ṭudah syāṭ āṛṭah api,
na para-droha-karma-dhīḥ;
Yayā asya uḍ-viṣṭe vācā
na alokyām tām uḍīrayet. (M.)

(Ill-health, ill-mind, thence many sins, short life,
Loss of good name, and loss of paradise—
All these follow excessive and ill meals;
Let the wise man avoid such carefully.
And since all thoughts and feelings are enwrapt
In words, and are conveyed by them to others,
He who misuses words envenoms all;
Let the wise man then guard well all his speech.
If ye have to instruct, direct, command,
Use speech that may be smooth and soft and sweet.
Whose mind and speech are pure and well-controlled,
Only he finds the fruit of Final Truth.
Touch not another to the quick, though you Yourself are hurt; let malice sway you not;
And carefully eschew the speech of pride,
Unsocial, which perturbs all and repels.)

Satyaṃ brūyāṭ, priyaṃ brūyāṭ,
na brūyāṭ satyaṃ āpriyaṃ,
Priyaṃ cha na anṛtam brūyāṭ,
Eṣah dharmah sanā-ṭanah. (M.)

(Speak but the Truth, but speak it sweetly too;
So it may gracefully pervade and soothe
And influence the mind of him who hears,
Tell it not harshly so as to annoy,
Repel, and be rejected wastefully.
Nor ever tell an untruth, sweet or harsh.
Such is the ancient way trod by the wise.
Luqmaān-i-zamān ū tu khuḍ hai, gar bhūkh se yak
luqma kam khā. (Hindustānī Proverb).

(Luqmaān, the wisest of the world, art thou
Thyself, if thou but eat one morsel less Than hungry tongue clamours to thee to eat.)

God is Ar-Razzāq, giver of risq, livelihood, daily bread. Christ prayed: “Give us this day, O Lord!, our daily bread”; Bread Spiritual as well as Bread Material. Vēda-Rṣhi prayed: Anna-paṭe, annasya no ḍhēhi, an-amīvasya shūsh-miṇah; pra pra-ṭāṭāram ṭari-ša; sham na bhava dvi-pađé, sham chaṭushpađé; ‘Lord of Food, give us the food that will bring health and strength, not disease; bless him who brings it to us; and bless all, bipeds and quadrupeds, that dwell within these premises’; and proclaimed, Annam Brahma, ‘Food is Brahma, Principle of Life, Life-Supporter, Nourisher.’ ‘Daily bread’ is not to be treated with levity, much less to be despised, or abused and misused, by over-eating or wrong-eating. Eating, Mating, Speaking, the most elemental functions of life, are also the most sacred, to be performed most carefully. Never can too much care be taken over them. Ill-discharged, they lead to every misery. Well performed, they lead to all happiness.

Successful issue of diplomatic negotiations, upon which depend peace and welfare of great nations, often hangs upon finding of just the right formula, in words, which will smooth down ruffled feathers and bristling mane, and move aside, or draw back into their sheaths, outflung claws, talons, beaks, fangs, of all ‘human’ eagles, bears, wolves, tigers and lions concerned.

The metaphysic and psychology of solemn religious injunctions are plain. It is matter of common knowledge that “Sex and Hunger rule the world”. Abuse of these two appetites is cause of 90 per cent of physical and mental diseases, wars, and all other-ills of humanity. Lawful use of them is source, directly or indirectly, of all its joys. But Hunger is clearly deeper and more elemental than Sex. It extends literally and manifestly from birth to death; Sex does not. It means self-preservation, continued existence, life itself; Sex means only self-multiplication; as Acquisitiveness, whence Property, means self-expansion, self-aggrandisement. And speech means self-existence either as friend or as enemy of all around. To indulge too much or wrongly in food, or speech, or sex, is to accentuate one’s own egoism, antagonise and provoke others’ egoisms, and make oneself and others physically and mentally sick.

All earthly joy and woe may well depend upon right-use and mis-use of Bread, ultimately; and not only mundane, but also supra-mundane. Out of such right-use and mis-use, respectively, arise, clear intellect and darkened mind, virtues and vices, merits and sins, wisdom and criminal error, and their corresponding supra-mundane consequences, in the future life, after death. Only when deprived of daily bread, man realises the tremendous importance, value, sacredness of it; for as vitality is almost greater than intelligence, even thus is Bread-power almost greater than even Mind-power, Science-power, and far greater than Arms-power, Military-power, Money-power, steam-power, powder-and-gas-power, electricity-power, which are its bye-products, and than Labor-power, which it makes possible.

Āhāra-shuddhau sațṭva-shuddhāh,
Sāṭṭva-shuddhau dhruvā smṛtih,
Smṛti-ālambhé sarva-granṭhinām
vi-pra-mokshah. (Chhāndogya U.)

(When Food is pure, Mind too is pure and bright;
Thence Memory clear and sure, of Cause-Effect;
Thence Solving of all Knots and Complexes;
Thence Freedom from all Misery of Soul,
And crossing from the Dark to realms of Light.)

2. REVERENCE FOR PARENTS, TEACHERS,
Elders.

Commandments to honour teacher, father, and mother above all others, are also to be found in the forefront of Scriptures of all religions. Injunctions to love children are not needed; the mere fact that the younger generation lives and grows, is ample proof that Nature herself inevitably and successfully compels the older generation to foster it.

Parental affection, like water, necessarily flows down the slopes of time, from older to younger generation. Of course, there are exceptions, monsters

1 Essence of psycho-analysis is contained in these few lines.
who devour their own offspring. They only prove the rule. Even wolf and tiger and serpent mothers always foster their young, though fathers sometimes kill and even eat them. Filial affection, on other hand, being, by law of nature, unavoidably selfish in beginning, requires some persuasion and labour to ascend upwards. Hence injunctions, specially laid upon the younger, to honor elders. Parental, particularly maternal, affection is naturally so strong that it does not need to be strengthened by Scriptures. Even so, Vaiḍi̱ka Dharmā makes a Duty to rear up progeny virtuously. Even animal mothers fight with sublimely reckless heroism in defence of their young. Even the gentle Christ is stirred with wrath:

“Whosoever shall offend one of these little ones that believe in Me, it is better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck and he were cast into the sea.” (B.)

Shānkar-āchārya sings:

Ku-puṭrah jāyēta, kva-chiṭ api ku-māṭā na bhavaṭi.

(Many the sons un filial; never was,
And never is, a mother that was not
And is not, tender mother to her sons.)

Yam māṭā-piṭarau klēśham sahēṭe sambhavē ṇṛṇām,
Na ṭasya apachiṭih shakya
karṭum varsha-shaṭaṭh api. (M.)
(The travail that the parents undergo,
To make life for their children possible—
Hundreds of years of service may not make Adequate recompense for it at all.)

"Filial devotion and respect for elders are the very foundation of an unselfish life." (C., Analects.)

Moses and Christ say:

"Honor thy father and thy mother." (B.)

Muhammad says:

Bil wāliḍaini ihsāna. (Q.)
Al jannaṭo ṭahaṭa qaḍamil umm. (H.)
Ana ashkurūli w-al-wāliḍaik, (Q.)
(Serve and revere the parents. Heaven unfolds
Beneath the feet of mothers everywhere.
God sayeth: Be ye grateful unto Me,
And to your parents e’en as unto Me.
Remember with what pain and fainting-fits
Your mother bore you nine months in her womb,
And then with dire travail did bring you forth,
And nourished you with her own milk for years.)

Very truly, very wisely, does the Prophet declare thus. The sweetest, most holy, most benignant names of Allah, God, are Ar-Rahmān, the Beneficent, Ar-Razzāq, the Nourisher, Al-Ghaffar, the Forgiving.
Who more rahmān, razzāq, ghaffār to the child than the mother? Where mother-heart is, there is Godhead; where Godhead is, there is heaven. Therefore:

(Where'er the mother's foot doth tread,
There surely heaven lies outspread.)

Vēda says:
Āchārya-dēvah bhava, piṭr-dēvah bhava, māṭr-dēvah bhava. Prajā-ṭanṭum mā vy-ava-chchhēṣīh. (U.)

(Let thy preceptor and thy father be,
And let thy mother be, above them all,
Thy gods and guardian angels in thine heart;
So keep unbroken thou, from age to age,
The line of life in noble progeny.)

Image of mother, enshrined in heart of son and daughter, will effectively prevent that heart from erring into ways of vice and sin, and will guard it from many dangers due to weaknesses and temptations. The generation that does not cherish, in its heart, honor and gratitude towards its older generation, is not likely to make itself worthy of being honored by its own younger generation; and the whole nation will thus lose continuity between past and present and future, and will degenerate and decay rapidly. Saṭ-saṅga, vṛddha-sevā, keeping near to the virtuous, experienced, aged, and pondering carefully and reverently over their conversations and their ways, is more livingly educative and useful than study of many books.

Jawān rā sohbatē pīrān hisārē ā'hiyat bāshād. (S.)
(The company of wise, experienced, Virtuous and loving elders is, indeed, A rampart of protection for the young.)
Sohbatē sāleh ṭo-rā sāleh kunād;
Sohbatē arzal ṭo-rā arzal kunād. (S.)
(Wise company will make thee also wise; From vicious friends thou canst but gather vice.)
Hiyatē hi maṭih, tāta!
hīnaih sahā samāgamāt,
Samaith cha samaṭām ēti,
Vishishtaih cha vishishtatām,
Taṭhā saṭ-san-nilṭhanāna
Mūrkhaih yāṭi pravīṇatām.
(Hītopadēsha.)
(As is the company that you may keep, Such shall the quality be of your mind, Low if 'tis low, middling if it is middling, And excellent if it be excellent. E'en witless ones may gradually become Wise, if they only keep near to the wise And listen to their table-talk with care.)
Intelligent, reasonable, 'ancestor-worship and hero-worship' mean maintenance of high family-traditions. Therefore Manu and Vyāsa, translating Vēda, say:

Mātā-pitroh priyam kuryāt, āchāryasya cha sarvādā;
Tēshu ēve ṭrshu ṭushtēshu ṭapah sarvam samāpyatē.
Tē ēva hi īrayah lokāh, tē ēva īrayah āshramāh,
Tē ēva hi īrayah Vēḍāh, tē ēva ukṭāh īrayah agnayah;
Upāḍhyāyān ḍasha āchāryah,
shaṭ-āchāryān taṭhā piṭā,
Sahasram tu piṭrīn maṭā
gaurāvēṇa aṭi-richyatē. (M.)

(Serve mother, father, teacher studiously;
If you succeed in winning the applause
Of these three, ye have done all there's to do,
And gained all that can be worthy to gain.
They the three worlds, the three life-stages they,
They the three Vēdas, the three Sacred Fires.
Than teacher, yea, the father hath more weight;
Yet in the educator-quality
And right to reverence, the mother doth Exceed the father by a thousand times.)

Na aṣṭi maṭr-samā chhāyā,
na aṣṭi maṭr-samā gaṭih,
Na āṣṭi māṭr-samam ṭrāṇam,
na āṣṭi māṭr-samā priyā.
Kukshau san-ḍhāraṇaṭ dhaṅṭri,
janaṇāḍ janaṇī smṛtā,
Angānām vardhanāṭ ambā,
vīra-sū-ṭvēna vīra-sūḥ,
Shishoh shushrūshanāṭ shushrūḥ;
māṭā ḍēham an-anṭaram. (Mbh.)

(No cooler and more grateful shade is there,
From all the scorching heat and glare of life,
No refuge, no protection, yea, no love,
Greater than is found in that one word, 'Mother'.
Because she 'bears' the child within her womb,
She is named ḍhāṭrī; janaṇi, because
She 'giveth birth' to him; and ambā too,
Because she fondly 'fostereth his limbs'
And makes them grow; and vīra-sūḥ also Because she trains him so that he may grow
To be a 'hero'; shushrū, too, her name,
Because she ever sweetly 'cares' for him.
'Mother' and 'child—two bodies, yet the same!)

Sweetest and most famili-ar names, in every religion, for God are, Father in Heaven, Savitā, Bāḍī, Ḫālīq, Abbā; for His Omnipotence, Mother-
In Mythology of dead Egyptian religion, trinity was Kneph or Ammon-Rā, Father; Neith or Muth,
Mother; Phtah or Khons, Son; also Osiris, Isis
Horus. Trinity-in-Unity of every religion is Primal Family of Purusha-Prakṛti-Jīva, Brahma-Māyā-Manushya, or Iśvara-Jagat-Jīva, (V.); Vahme-Gayeṭḥa-Ḍaeva, (Z.); Father—Holy-Ghost—Son, (B.); God-Nature-Man (Science). The noblest sermon that Buddha preached, Mahā-Mangala-Suṭṭa, ‘Song of Greatest Blessing,’ is a hymn to the happy family.

... A-sévanā cha bālānam
   Pandiṭānam cha sevanā
Pūjā cha pūjaneyyānam,
   Ėṭam Mangalam uṭṭamam...
Māṭā-piṭu-upatthānam,
   Puṭṭa-ḍārassa sangaho,
Anavajjāni kammāni,
   Ėṭam Mangalam uṭṭamam...
Ṭapo cha, brahma-chariyam cha,
   Ariya-sachchāna-ḍassanam,
Nibbāna-sachchhi-kiriyā cha,
   Ėṭam mangalam uṭṭamam.

(Bu., Mahā-Mangala-Suṭṭa.)

(To shun the erring vicious; serve the wise;
Honor the worthy; and do blameless deeds;
To wait on father-mother reverently;)

"Ahura-mazda, Sraosha, and Miṭṭra form a trinity (in Zoroastrianism) analogous to that of Christianity";
And care all tenderly for wife and child;
Deny one-self; observe due continence;
See clear the truth of the Four Noble Truths—
Woe, Cause, Surcease of Woe, Way to Surcease;
To govern daily life by all these truths,
And realise Nirvāṇa at the end—
Such is the Blessed Life, the Blessed Life.)

Piṭā Aham asya jagatāh,
Mātā, Dhaṭā, Piṭā-mahāh,
Gaṭih, Bharṭā, Prabhuḥ, Sākshī,
Ni-vāsah, Sharaṇam, Suhṛt,
Pra-bhavah, Pra-layah, Sṭhānam,
Ni-dhānam, Bījam, A-vyayam. (G.)

(I am the Father-Mother of this world,
Spouse, Master, Ruler, Judge, Witness, Nurse, Friend,
Lover, Beloved, Abode, the only Goal
And Final Refuge, Place of Birth and Death,
I am (is) the Deathless Seed of All the World.)

Yā fēḍhrōī vidāṭ paithyayē, chā vāśṭraēbyo, aṭ chā khaēṭaōvē, ashāũni ashavābyō. (Z., Gāṭhā, 53. 4.)

(He is the Father, Husband, Servant, Lord,
He is the Comrade—He is all to me.)

Brahmanā pūrva-srśhtam hi
Sarvam Brāhmaṇa imam jagat. (Mbh.)
(Since Brahmā did create all moving things, They are all Brāhma, Brahmā's progeny.)

Al-khalqo a'yāl-Allāhi, fa ahabbul-khalqi il-Allāhi man ihsāna ilā a'yālihi. (H.)

(All creatures are the family of God; And he the most belovèd is of God Who does most good unto His family.)

Duty of loving fidelity between husband and wife, implicit in relationship of Father-Mother; and avoidance of adultery and all unlawful sex-relations; these are also expressly enjoined by all Scriptures. Bible says that husband and wife "are no more twain, but one flesh; what therefore God hath joined together let no man put asunder." Manu ordains that 'they shall perform all duties of life together, side by side, saha-dharma-chāra, and be faithful to each other unto death and beyond'. Qurān commands that if a husband has more wives than one, he shall love all equally; 'if thou canst not deal equitably and justly with each and all, thou shouldst take only one'. Vēdānta and Sānkhya tell us that the Primal Relationship is indeed Conjugal Marital Relationship of God and His Nature, Purusha and Prakṛti, Brahma and Māyā, Zāt and Sifāt; (another aspect of which appears as Ābā-i-Ulavī and Ummuhāt-i-Sifī, Celestial Fathers and Terrene Mothers); and that all other relationships, of paternity, maternity, filiety, fraternity, soreity (sisterhood), and all spiritual affections and unselfishness, are born from it.

Yādṛg-guṇeṇa bharṭrā śtri
sam-yuṣyeta yathā-viḍhi,
Tādṛg-guṇā sā bhavaṭi,
samuṭreṇa iva nimna-gā.
Utkarsham yoshiṭah praṭtāh
svaih svaih bharṭṛ-guṇaiḥ shubhaiḥ. (M.)

Vyāla-grāhī yathā vyālam
balāṭ uḍ-dharate bilāṭ;
Tathā paṭi-vraṭā nārī
paṭim niraya-gāminam. (Smṛti.)

Prajan-ārtham st̄riyah sṛshtāh, sanṭān-ārtham cha mānaṇāḥ. (M.)

(As is the husband’s quality of soul,
As, too, the nature and the circumstance
Of man’s and woman’s mating, such becomes
The wife’s soul-quality. The rivers run
Into the sea, and make their waters salt;
Sea-waters rise and clasp the sunny air
And from their brackishness turn into sweet.
As the strong serpent-charmer drags the snake,
Resisting, all-unwilling, from its hole
Into the light and air, so doth the wife,
Loving, devoted, clinging to her spouse,
Drag back the fallen man from hell itself.
One righteous aim of marriage is, no doubt,
To take joy in each other’s beauteousness;
But greater, higher, nobler far is this—
To know divine heartache and anxious joy
Of fatherhood and of sweet motherhood.
That they be fathers—were men fashioned men;
That they be mothers—woman were made women.)

Mohsinin, ghaira musāfihin, wa tā muṭṭakḥīzī akḥḍan. (H.)

(Marriage has been enjoined because it helps
To save the pair from immoralities,
To shun the waste of vital healthful power,
And to save woman from degradedness.)

Ḍar muhabbaṭ, chūn zan-ē
Hindī, kas-ē madāna n-īst.
Sokḥṭan bar shama‘e murdhah
Kār-e har parwāna n-īst. (HāFIZ.)

(No man so brave in love as Indian wife.
Not every moth with a dead flame can burn.)¹

"The unbelieving husband is sanctified by the wife, and the unbelieving wife is sanctified by the husband." (B., Paul, I. Cor.)

(Where there is happy union between Husband and wife, there shall be harmony
Between the parents and the children all;

¹ Refers to the practice of Ṣaṭṭi.
And sweet and generous affection too
Twixt brothers, sisters; all the family
Will be in happy state perpetually.
Loving example of one family
Will make the neighbourhood, nay, the whole state,
Loving; and courteous, from its courtesies.

C. THR., 263.)

Chinese for 'culture' or religion is chiao, from hsiao 'filial piety'. Confucius says, in Hsiao-king (Classic of Filial Piety): "The gentle-man teaches filial piety in order that man may respect all those who are fathers in the world. He teaches brotherliness in the younger brother, in order that man may respect all those who are elder brothers in the world. . . . Those who love and respect their parents dare not show hatred and rudeness to others. . . . Filial piety is the basis of virtue, and the origin of culture. To do the right thing and walk according to the right morals, thus leaving a good name in posterity, in order to glorify one's ancestors, is the culmination of filial piety." 1

Recent western poets have also recognised that wise parenthood is spiritual culmination and sweetest fruit of weddedness; though a horrible, brazen, screaming, shameless, naked, animal sexuality, very unregulated contraception, and wish to avoid all parental responsibility while snatching all sorts of lawless sexual excitement and pleasures, seem to have burst in an overwhelming flood on the world, after first World War, of 1914-1918.

1 Lin Yutang, My Country and My People, p. 171.

Womanliness means only Motherhood;
All love begins and ends there—roams enough,
But, having run the circle, rests at 'Home'.

(BROWNING.)

3. THE GOLDEN RULE OF CHRIST.

"Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them."

This is stated repeatedly in positive as well as negative form, in Vedic scriptures. It is also contained in a saying of Muhammad. It is to be found in Scriptures of all religions.

The negative aspect of this Golden Rule is source of all 'preventive' or 'constituent,' shāntika, nigrāha, kṣhema-sādha, insidādi, functions of the state; and the positive aspect, of 'promotive,' 'ministrant,' paush-tika, saṅgraha, anugraha, yogasādha, imdādi, functions.!

Vyāsa says:

Shrūyaṭām Dharma-sarvasvam, shruṭvā cha ēv ava-ḍhāryaṭām,

'Kṣhema-sādha' is 'protection', 'preservation', 'maintenance of peace and law and order', 'yogasādha', is 'new gain', 'promotion of well-being'.

Ātmanah praṭi-kūlāni
parēśhām na sam-ā-charēṭ;
Na ṭat parasya kuvīṭa
syāṭ an-ishtam yaṭ Ātmanah,
Yaṭ yaṭ Ātmani cha ichchēṭa
ṭat parasya api chinṭayēṭ. (Mbh.)

(Do not to others what ye do not wish
Done to yourself; and wish for others too
—What ye desire and long for, for yourself
—This is tho whole of Dharma, heed it well.)

Muhammad says:

Afzal-ul-īmāni-un ṭohibba linnāsē mā ṭohibbo le-nafseka, wa ṭakraho lahum mā ṭakraho le-nafseka. (H.)

(Noblest religion this—that thou shouldst like
For others what thou likest for thyself;
And what thou feellest painful for thyself,
Hold that as painful for all others too.)

Ashraf-ul-īmāni-un yamanak annāsō, wa ashraf-ul-Islāmi-un yaslam annāsō mil-lessaneka wa yaḍeka. (Q.)

(Noblest religion this—that others may
Feel safe from thee; the loftiest Islām—
That all may feel safe from thy tongue and hands.)

A verse of Bhāgavata says the same, in slightly varied form:
Eṭāvān avyāyī ṇharmah saḍbhīh niṭyam anu-
shthītah,
Yaṭ loka-shoka-harshābhīyām Āṭmā shochoṭi hṛsh-yāṭi.
(This Dharma stands unchallenged changelessly,
That I should sorrow when my fellow-beings
May sorrow, and rejoice when they rejoice.)

Stating the golden rule, Muhammad says, ‘This is the noblest religion’; Christ describes it as “This is the law and the prophets”; Vyāsa says, ‘This is the whole of Dharma.’ A disciple asked the Chinese Master, ‘Is there one word which may serve as a rule of practice for all one’s life?’, and Confucius answered:

Ťzu-Kung wen yueh: ‘you yi yen, er ko yi
Chung sheng hsing chih choh hu?’ Ťzu yueh:
‘Chī Shu hu! Chi so po yu, wu Shiah yu jen.”
(C., Analects, 15, 23; also 12. 2.)

(Is ‘Reciprocity’ not such a word?
Do not to others what you do not want
Done to yourself—this is what the word means.
If you act thus, your public life will not,
Nor will your private life, arouse ill-will.)

1 This transliteration of the original Chinese words was very kindly supplied to me by Prof. Tan Yun Shan, of Rabindranath Tagore’s famous institution, Šāntinikēṭana, by letter dated 16-7-1937.
Jaina form of Golden Rule belongs to one of the earliest available sacred books of that religion:

Vayam puṇa evām āikkhāmo, évam bhāsāmo, évam paruvēmo, évam pannavēmo—savvē pāṇā, savvē bhūyā, savvē jīvā, savvē saṭṭā, ṇa hanṭāvva, ṇa pari-gheṭṭavvā, ṇa pari-yāveyavvā, ṇa uḍḍaveyavvā; āriya-vayaṇam ēyam": (Āchāra-ānga-sūtra, 'Samattā', chaṭurṭha Aḍhyayana, Uḍḍēshaka ḍvitiya). “Ṭumam si nāma ṭam ch-ēva jam hanṭavvam ti manṇasi. Ṭumam si nāma ṭam ch-ēva jam ajjāvēyavvam ti manṇasi. Ṭumam si nāma ṭam ch-ēva jam pari-yāveyavvam ti manṇasi. Ṭumam si nāma ṭam ch-ēva jam pari-gheṭṭavvam ti manṇasi. Ėvam ṭumam si nāma ṭam ch-ēva jam uḍḍavēyavvam ti manṇasi”. (Ibid., 'Loga-Sāra', panchama Aḍhyayana, Uḍḍēshaka panchama).

Samskr̥t from above Prākṛt is: “Vayam puṇah évam āchakshmahē, évam bhāshāmahē, évam praṅpāyāmah, évam praṅṇāpayāmah—Sarvē praṅṇāh, sarvē bhūṭāh, sarvē jīvāh, sarvē saṭṭvāh, na hanṭavyāh, na ājñā-payitaḥvāh, na pari-grahitavyāh, na pari-tāpayiṭavyāh, na upa-droṭavyāh; Ārya-vachanam ētāt. Ṭvam asi nāma ṭat ēva yat hanṭavyam . . . yat ājñā-payitaḥvām . . . yat pariṭāpayaṭvām . . . yat pari-grahīṭavyām . . . yaḍ upa-droṭavyām iti manyaśe.

(Thus we enjoin on you, thus do we say,
Thy we believe, thus we proclaim to all:
No living things should be slain anywhere,
Nor ordered forcibly this way or that,
Nor put in bonds, nor tortured any way,
Or treated violently otherwise;

Because you are that same which ye would slay,
Or order here and there against his will,
Or put in prison, or subject to pain,
Or treat with violence; ye are that same;
The Self-same Life doth circulate in all.)

Buddha’s single word is sāmān-āṭmaṭā. He appealed specially to those who were ready to enter

1 Of course this is the extreme ideal, for renunciant ascetics. It has had to be modified, in practice, for ‘house-holders’, in Jainism as in all other religions, on the incontrovertible principle, that ‘Duty varies with circumstance’. An outstanding example of this, in Jaina history, is that of King Kumāra-pāla of Gujarāt (12th century A. C.). He was a Jaina, and under guidance of his preceptor Hēma-chandra Āchārya, most famous ‘doctor’ of Jaina Law, punished many offences with death strictly, and battled with and slew invaders. “Do your duty; do it as humanely as you can”—was his interpretation of a-hīmsā, non-violence. Ashoka too, while he engraved his Dharma-edicts on rocks and pillars, on one hand, on another had his prisons and places of torture and execution for criminals. Jainism expressly upholds the four (not hereditary but) vocational classes and their functions (including defender-soldier’s and punishing judge’s); just as does Buddhism; only the innocent must not be hurt, much less slain; and animal-sacrifice and animal-food are forbidden by both.
the Path of Renunciation, Sān-nyāsa or Naishthika brahma-chārya, Fugr and Tārk-idunīyā. Perhaps his chief purpose (as perhaps also Christ’s) was to create a great band of Spiritual Volunteer-Helpers of mankind, able to practise extreme self-denial; and Shankarāchārya’s too in founding ten orders of sannyāsis. But vihāras, mathas, abbeys, monasteries, nunneries, convents, Sūfī khāneqāhs, that grew up later, came, by degeneration, to embody the very opposite of that idea. For ordinary householders as such, Buddha enjoined five pancha-shīla abstinences and four positive observances, viz., (1) dāna, charity, (2) priya-vachana, gentle speech, (3) artha-chāryā earning of livelihood, but governed by purpose of social service, by philanthropic intention in all activities of life, trade, etc., and, finally, secret of all goodness and virtue, (4) samān-ātmātā, ‘equal-souledness,’ ‘equality,’ ‘similarity,’ nay, ‘sameness,’ of all souls; whence same-sightedness, feeling of, sense of, non-separateness; and possibility and necessity of observing the Golden Rule. This samān-ātmātā is same as Upanishadic and Qurānic Spiritual Democracy of Equality or indeed Identity of Souls.

Some other statements of the Golden Rule, in several scriptures, in varying forms are:

Bābā! vaira na kariyē kāhūn;
Ghata ghata aṇṭara Brahma lukāhūn.
(Guru Nānak, Granth Sāhab, ’Bāwan Akhri’.)

(Friend!, bear no hate to any one;
The One God dwells in every heart.)
Nānak !, ū ko milai badyāyī,
Āp pichhānē sarva-jiyān.
(,, ‘Siṅh-gosht.’)
(Says Nānak, he exalts himself, for sure,
Who sees him-Self, One Self, in all that lives.)

Evam chē sāṭṭa janeyyum,
dukkhāyam jāṭī sambhavo,
Na pāṇī pānīnam hantī;
pāṇi-ghāte hi shochaṭī.

(Bu., Mataka-bhaṭṭa Jāṭaka.)

(Who knoweth this great Truth—that Life is one
In all, and how all pain originates,
He hurteth not his one hand with his other,
Knowing that he himself will suffer pain.)

Āṭm-aupamayēna sarvatra samam pashyaṭī yah, Arjuna!
Sukham vā yaṭī vā duḥkham,
sah yogī paramah maṭah.
Sarva-bhūṭā-sṭham Āṭmānām
sarva-bhūṭāṇi cha Āṭmani;
Ikṣhaṭē yoga-yukt-Āṭma
sarvatra sama-ḍarshanah.
Yah Mām pashyaṭi sarvāṭra
sarvam cha mayi pashyaṭi,
Tasya Aham na pra-ṇashyāmi,
sah cha Mé na pra-ṇashyaṭi,
Sarva-bhūṭa-stḥitam yah Mām
bhajaṭi ēkaṭvam āśṭhitah,
Sarvaṭhā varṭamānah api
sah yogī Mayi varṭate. (G.)

Sarva-bhūṭeshu cha Ātmānām, sarva-bhūṭāni cha Ātmāni,
Samam pashyan Ātmā-yājī,
Śvā-rājyam aḍhi-gachchhāti.
... Svasya cha priyam Ātmānāh,
... sākshāṭ Dharmsya lakṣaṇam. (M.)

Māṭr-vat para-dārēshu,
para-dravyēshu loshta-vat,
Āṭmā-vat sarva-bhūṭēshu,
yah pashyaṭi sa pandītah, (Hit-opadēsha).

(By self-analogy who feels for all
In gladness or in sorrow, everywhere,
The highest yogī is he to be deemed.
He who hath joined his self to the Great Self,
And seeth all in Me and Me in all,
Same-sightedness he gaineth everywhere.
Who sees Me everywhere and all in Me,
He never loses Me, nor I lose him.
Who, having gained the Great Identity,
Loves Me in all—wherever he may be,
And howsoever, he abides in Me.

Who sees Me in all beings, and all in Me,
He sacrifices unto Me in all;
His life is all one constant 'sacri-fice',
'Good-act'; he only gains the true Svā-rājya,
'Reign of the Higher Self,' Kingdom of Heaven.
Who looks on others' wives as on his mothers,
Who looks at other's gold as so much dross,
Who feels for others as he feels for self,
He is true pāndita, he is true wise man.

The final mark of Duty, Righteousness,
Legal and moral Lawfulness, is this—
That what ye hold as dear and good for self
And which your inner higher self approves,
Ye hold as dear and good for others too;
And what ye may not like for your own self,
For others like it not, in the same way.
Who feeleth as his own the joys and sorrows
Of others, he is the true yogi, he Hath truly 'joined' his own soul with all souls.)

"Pity the misfortunes of others; rejoice in the well-being of others; help those who are in want;
save men in danger; rejoice at the success of others;
and sympathise with their reverses, even as though you were in their place."

(T., Tai-Shang-Kan-Ying-Pien, THR., 223.)
“When abroad, behave to everyone as if interviewing an honored guest; in directing the people, act as if you were assisting at a great sacrifice; do not do to others as you would not like done to yourself; so there will be no murmuring against you in the country, and none in the family; your public life will arouse no ill-will nor your private life any resentment. (C., Analects, xii. 2.)

Har che bā khuḍ na pasandī
bā ḍīgarāṁ ma pasandī. (S.)

(Whate'er thou likest not for thine own self,
For any person else, too, like it not.)

Sabbē taṇaṁ ḍandassa, sabbēsāṁ jīviṁ priyam;
Aṭṭānam upaṁm kaṭṭvā,
na haneyya na ghāṭayēt. (Dḥ.)

(All shrink from suffering, and all love life;
Remember that thou too art like to them;
Make thine own self the measure of the others,
And so abstain from causing hurt to them.)

"Love thy neighbour as thy-self." (B., Matthew, XX. 19.)

"Thou shalt love God above all things, and thy neighbour as thy-self." (B. Leviticus.)
Note that the Golden Rule does not attempt the futile and impossible task of abolishing and annihilating egoism. On the contrary, it makes Egoism the measure of Altruism. 'Do not foster ego more than alter; care for alter as much as for ego.' To abolish egoism is to abolish altruism also; and vice versa. This is the injunction for normal man, ordinary householder. It is varied in special circumstances.

Lā yomin ahaḍakum baṭṭā yahbo li-jārē mā lahbaho li-nafshiḥī. (H.)

(Not one of you has the true faith unless He loves his neighbour as he loves himself.)

"What a man hates to receive on the right, let him not bestow on the left; what he hates to receive on the left, let him not bestow on the right; this is what is called the Principle, with which, as with a measuring square, to regulate one's conduct."

(C., Great Learning, THR., 222.)

"What I wish others not to do to me,
That I wish also not to do to them."

(C., Analects, 5. 11.)

Ushtā ahmāi yahmāi ushtā kahmāi chīt.

(Z., Gāthā, 43. 1.)

(Skt: Ishtam asmai yasmai ishtam kasmai chīt.)

(That which is good for all and any one,
For whomsoever—that is good for me . . .
What I hold good for self, I should for all.\(^1\)
Only Law Universal is true Law.)

Corollaries of the Golden Rule are:

Yaḥ anyair viḍiṭam na ichchēḍ
āṭmanah karma pūrushah,
Apa-ṭrapēṭa vā yasmāt,
na taṭ kuryāṭ kaḍā-chana. (Mbh.)

Yaṭ sarvēṇa ichchhaṭi jñāṭam, yaṭ na lajjaṭi cha ācharan,
Yēna ṭushyaṭi cha Āṭma asya,
ṭaṭ saṭṭva-guṇa-lakṣhaṇam. (M.)

(What he would hide from others; would not like
Others to know; what his own heart feels shame
To do—let him not ever do such act.
What he is willing may be known by all;
What his heart feels no shame at all to do;
What satisfies his ‘con-science’, his best Self,\(^2\)
—That has on it the mark of Righteousness.)

Kah nu sah syāt upāyahiṣṭa, yēna aham ḍuḥkhiṭ-āṭmanām,

\(^1\) To some, this may seem to be a perhaps simpler and more easily intelligible statement of what the German philosopher Kant formulated as ‘the categorical imperative’, twenty-five centuries later, in pompous words, not easy to understand for the common man.

\(^2\) For nature and meaning of ‘con-science,’ as ‘join science’ of the Common Self of a ‘community,’ see Th Anțah pravishya bhūtānām, bhavōyam ṭhukha-bhāk sādā.

(Mbh., Anu-shāsana parva, ch. 50-51.)

(O! who would tell me of the sacred way
Whereby I might enter into all hearts
That suffer, and take all their suffering
Upon myself for ever and for aye.)

"I was an hungered and athirst, naked and sick, in prison... Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto Me." (B.)

Another corollary of the Golden Rule is: Refrain from fault-finding, carping, cavilling, back-biting, il-natured criticism, scandal-mongering, malicious libelling, defaming, slandering—all only too common and too destructive of friendliness and human happiness.

"The disease of men is this that they neglect their own field, and go to weed the fields of others, and that what they require from others is great, while what they lay upon themselves is light,"
(C., Mencius, THR., 113.)

"To attempt to correct others while one's own virtue is clouded, is to set one's own virtue a task for which it is inadequate," (T., Kwang-tze.)

"He who smites will be smitten; he who shows rancour, will find rancour; from reviling comes reviling, and to him who is angered comes anger."
(Bu., Uḍāna-varga, xiv. 3.) Therefore,

Na hi vērēna vérāni sammanṭ-īha kaḍā-chana;
A-vērēna cha sammanṭi; ēsa āhammo sanāṭano.
(Dh.)

(Never by hates are hates extinguished;
Only by love may hate be changed to love
And cease as hate—such is th' Eternal Law.)

Na cha api vairam vairēna,
Kēshava !, vy-upa-shāmyati;
Havishā agniḥ yaṭhā, Kṛṣṭa !, bhūyah ēva abhi-vardhatē.

(Hate is not quenched by hate; or strife by strife, Rather, as fire by fuel, grows the more.)

Rājān !, sarshapa-māṭrāṇi para-chhidrāṇi paszyasi,
Āṭmanah bilva-māṭrāṇi
paszyan api na paszyasi! (Mbh. Viḍura-niṣṭi.)

(Faults, mustard-small, of others, ye see well;
Your own, as large as bēl-fruit, ye see not.)

"And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother’s eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own?" (B.)

Suḍassam vajjam aññēsam,
atṭano pana ḍudḍasam;
Paréśam hi so vajjāni
opuṇāti yaṭhā bhusam;
Aṭṭano pana chhādēti
kalim 'va kiṭavā satho.
Na paréśam vi-lomāni,
nā paréśam kaṭā-kaṭam,
Aṭṭano 'va avékkhēyya
kaṭāni a-kaṭāni cha. (Dh.)

(The faults of others we see easily;
Our own are very difficult to see.
Our neighbour’s faults we winnow eagerly,
As chaff from grain; our own we hide away
As cheating gamblers hide their loaded dice.
Omissions and commissions and ill-deeds
Of others do not try to pry into,
[Unless your duty ’tis as public judge],
But scrutinise your own most carefully.)
O! wad some Power the giftie gie us,
To see ourselfs as itherse see us.

(Robert Burns.)

(Or, at the least, others to see
As kindly as ourselves see we.)

The Golden Rule is direct outcome, or complementary aspect, of the Ultimate Spiritual Truth of truths. Why should I do unto others as I would be done by? Because ‘I’ and ‘others’ are all One I, One Universal Self; therefore, what I do to others I do to myself, in and through those 'others'; and 'sins, as well as good deeds, come home to roost'; so that, soon or late, 'As I do unto others, so it shall be done unto me.'

Yah tu sarvāni bhūtāni
Ātmani ēva anu-pashyaṭi,
Sarva-bhūtēshu cha Ātmānam
tātah na vi-jugupsatē. (U.)

(He who sees all in Self and Self in all,
He hates, fears, scorns not any, any more.)

Yēna kéna prakāṛēṇa,
yasya kasya api janṭunah,
Saṅtosham janayēd dhīmān,
taṭ-ēva Īshvara-pūjanam,
Prāyashah loka-tāpēna
tapyanṭe sādhavah janāh;
Param āraḍhanam taṭ hi
Purushasya akhil-Ātmāhan.
Bhūta-priya-hiṣ-ēhā cha dharmah ayam sārva-varṇikah
Jyoṭīh Ātmāni na anyatra;
sarva-janṭushu taṭ samam. (Bh.)

(The Light of Consciousness is in the Self,
And in all living things It shines the Same,
Therefore to give joy to some living thing,
And feel the pain of others as one's own,
Is the best worship of Divinity,
Most pleasing unto Him who lives in All.)
Jyotishāṃ api Ṭat Jyotiḥ
ṭamasah param uchyātē,
Jnānam, Jñeyam, Jñāna-gamyam,
hṛḍi sarvasya dhīshthītaṃ. (G.)
(The Light of lights, beyond the deepest darkness,
'Tis seated in the heart of all, as Knower,
It is all Knowledge, and all Known also.)
The Golden Rule is not always easy to interpret and apply for the purposes of daily life. Yet it is intended for nothing else than daily practice. It can be followed fully and wisely only by those who have risen beyond personality, have 'let out ego and let in God.' Teachers have said seemingly different things at different times. But the inconsistency is only apperent. All-reconciling principle always is: Difference of circumstance makes difference of duty. But heart should always be benevolent; sincerely, not by profession only, like that of the horrible Inquisitors of Medieval Ages, and of cruel hypocrites in all religions; though duty may, at times, require giving of pain to another; like that of a surgeon operating on his own child.
Jesus says:
"Resist not evil; if any smite thee on the right cheek, turn the left to him as well... Bless them that curse you; love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you.

St. Paul says;
"Overcome evil with good." (B.)

Muhammad says;
Iqlfa' b-illati he-yâ ahsan. (Q.)

(Recompense evil, conquer it, with good.)

Manu says:
Kruḍhyantam na praṭi-kruḍhyêt,
ākrushtah kushalam vaḍêt, (M.)

( Be not wroth with those who are wroth with you;
To those who speak harsh words, reply with sweet.)

Vyâsa says:
A-kroḍhêna jayêt kroḍham,
a-sâdhum sâdhunâ jayêt,
Jayêt kaḍaryam dânéna,
jayêt satyêna cha anṛtam,
(Mbh., Viḍura-nîti.)

(With kindness conquer rage; with goodness malice;
With generosity defeat all meanness;
With the straight truth defeat lies and deceit.)

1 Roman philosopher Seneca, contemporary with St. Paul, also says: "Pertinacious goodness overcomes evil men". The adjective 'pertinacious' is well-chosen. Quick results should not be expected; though sudden conversions, too, do occur sometimes.
Buddha repeats the words of Vyāsa:
Akkodhēṇa jinē koḍham,
asāḏhunā Sāḏhunā jinē,
Jinē kaḍariyam ḍānēṇa,
Sachchéṇa-ālika-vāḍinam. (Dh.)

Jainism says:
(Conquer your wrath by sweet forgivingness;
And by humility check vanity;
By truth straightforward stay all crooked fraud;
And by contentment peaceful, vanquish greed.)
(J., Dasa-vēyaliya, THR., 228.)

"They rejoice not if revered, nor be angry if insulted; but they only are capable of this who have passed into the eternal harmony of God."
(T., Kwang Tze.)

Ṭulya-ninḍā-ṣṭuṭiḥ mauni, san-ṭuşthah yēna-kēṇa-chiṭ,
A-ḍvēṣṭā sarva-bhūṭānām,
maiṭrah, karuṇah ēva cha,
Harsh-ā-marsha-bhay-oḍ-vēgaih mukṭah yah, sa hi mé priyah. (G.)

(When censured or when praised—always the same;
Content; bearing in silence everything;
Angry with none; helpful and kind to all;
Free from all gusts of pride and fear and rage;
Such are the wise souls that are dear to Me.)
"If thine enemy be hungry, give him bread; if he be thirsty, give him water; so shalt thou heap coals of fire upon his head; and so the Lord shall award thee" [for thy enemy will feel ashamed of his hostile feeling, and his head, his face, will 'burn' with shame, and the will give up enmity and become thy friend, and that will be thy great reward]. "He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit, than he that taketh a city... Hatred stirreth up strife; but love covereth all sins... A soft answer turneth away wrath; but grievous words stir up anger." (B., Proverbs.) "Perfect love casteth out fear." (B.)

Aham-kāram, balam, ḍarpam, kāmam, kroḍham, pari-graham,
Vi-muchya, nir-mamah, shāntah,
Bhūmā-bhūyāya kalpaṭe. (Gītā, xxiii, 53.)

(Who gives up egoism and violence,
And pride and lust and greed of earthly gain,
Who gives up anger too, he gaineth God.)

Yo vē uppaṭitam koḍham raṭham bhaṇṭam'va ḍhārayē.
Tam aham sāraṭhim brūmi,
sasmi-ṣgāho ṛtaro jano. (Dh.)

Yah sam-ṛṣ-paṭitam koḍham
a-kroḍhena ni-yachchhaṭi,
Sa ēva shūrah vi-jñéyah,
na yoḍḍhā api mahā-raṭhah.  (Mbh.)
(He who restrains his rage from bolting with him,
He is true warrior and true charioteer,
Not he that slays in battle many foes.)
Sēṭūns-ṭara dusṭarān, a-kroḍhēna kroḍham, saṭyēn-ānṛtam.  (Sāmā-V.)
(Cross carefully the bridges hard to cross;
Cross Hate with help of Love; Untruth, of Truth.)
Mā vo ghnaṇṭam mā shapanṭam praṭī-vocē dēvayanṭam; sumnair-iḍ-va āvivāsé. Chaṭurash-chiḍ daḍāmānād vi-bhīyād ā-ni-ḍhāṭoh; na ṇur-ukṭāya spṛhayēta,  (Ṛg-V., I-41.9.)
(Repay not blow by blow, nor curse by curse,
Nor by base trick the meanest craftiness;
But shower blessings in return for blows
And curses and mean craftinesses, all.)
(Who gives up anger, he attains to God.)

But Kṛṣhṇa also says: "Therefore fight (against the wrong-doer and oppressor)"; and the Great War, of Mahābhārata, is consequence. He himself fought against and destroyed numerous evil workers and tyrants, throughout his long life.
Muhammad too says: "Fight in the way of God,
for the weak among men, women, and children";
and was a great leader of battles himself. Manu says: "There is no quicker and surer road to heaven than to give up life, fighting for protection of women and children". Christ also, when he "found in the temple those that sold oxen and sheep and doves, and the changers of money sitting,... he... made a scourge of small cords,... drove them out of the temple,... and poured out the changers' money and over-threw the tables"; he also pronounced heavy curse against scribes and pharisees and against those who offend against children. Socrates, famed wisest man of Greece, said:

"We ought not to retaliate or render evil to any one, whatever evil we may have suffered from him". (Plato, Crito):

His famous dictum is: "It is better to suffer wrong than to do wrong". Yet he fought in three wars against enemies of Athens, in the spirit of Gita.

Lao-tse said: "Recompense injury with kindness". Confucius asked: "What then will you return for good?"; and added as his own view: "Recompense injury with justice, and return good for good". Lao-tse's disciple, Chuang-tse, two hundred years later, answered Confucius: "To the good I would be good; and to the not-good I would also be good, in order to make them good. To those who are sincere, I am sincere; and to those also who are not sincere, I am sincere; thus all grow to be sincere". But for all practical purposes, China has preferred to follow Confucius here.
Christ says the same thing:

"Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you and persecute you; ... for if you love them which love you, what reward have ye? Do not even the publicans the same?" (B.)

But he also said on another occasion, "I bring not peace but a sword", (B.); and he cursed a fig-tree (with less justification, unless the episode is interpreted as an allegory). A few days before arrest and crucifixion, he advised his followers (being apparently undecided, as yet, what course to follow), "He that hath no sword, let him sell his garment and buy one, ... and they said ... behold, here are two swords, ... and he said, it is enough": (Luke, ch. 22.) "And one of them which were with Jesus, drew his sword, and struck a servant of the high priests [who had come to arrest Jesus] and smote off his ear; ... then said Jesus," in whom sight of severed ear and bleeding probably produced a great revulsion of feeling and decided him in favour of non-resistance, "Put up thy sword ... for all they that take the sword shall perish with the sword:"

(Matthew, ch. 26.) The last words show Jesus' recognition and enunciation of a fixed Law of Nature. Barring a few exceptional sects, here and there and now and then, all Christendom has followed Moses, "an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth ", rather than Christ.

Mencius, expounder of Confucius, is regarded, with Lao-tse and Kung-fu-tse (Confucius), as third of " the three blessed, pure, and holy ones of China, Loshi, Koshi, Moshi ". He too has said:

The nuances of pronunciation of one language are, as is well-known, difficult to reproduce in transliteration by the alphabet of another language. Tsu, Tse, Tzu, Tze, means 'philosopher' or 'wise man' in Chinese language. 'Lao' remains uniform. "Confucius was named 'Ch'iü' by his mother " because of the noble proportions of his forehead. In Analects, he refers to himself several times as Ch'iü; and again as Chung Ni, his other cognomen. But he is mostly spoken of by his family surname of K'ung... K'ung-fu-tzu or Confucius, meaning K'ung the Philosopher"; (Biography, prefixed to The Analects, World's Classics Series). Mencius is Meng-tse; he was the most famous exponent of the views of Confucius. Kwang Tze, (Chuang Tzu, Kouang Tsu, Chwang Tse, etc.) was, similarly, most famous expounder of Taoism, i.e., Lao-tse's philosophy. Y. L. Fung, History of Chinese Philosophy, (pub. 1937) tells us (p. 408) that Confucius was born in 551 B.C. and died in 479 B.C.; Mencius (372-289 B.C.); Chuang Tzu (369-286 B.C.). Confucius, as a young man, visited at least once, Lao-tse, then very old. Soon after, Lao-tse went into and disappeared in the mountains, in the ancient way, common in India, of yogi-s and sannyäsI-s.

Bardanes, Gnostic Christian teacher, contemporary of Roman emperor Marcus Aurelius (b. 121, emp. 161, d. 180 A.C.), defined "the good as those who did good even to the wicked, the just as those who did good only to the good, and the wicked as those who did evil even to the good"; J. M. Robertson, A Short History of Christianity, pp. 68 and 72).
"If another treat him perversely, the man of superior quality will turn round upon himself and say, 'I must have been wanting in propriety; how else should this have happened unto me?'; and will be especially observant of propriety. If the perversity of the other, and unreasonableness, are still the same, the superior man will again turn round upon himself and say, 'I must have failed to do my utmost', and will proceed to do his utmost" (C., THR., 226.)

But here, again, China follows the Master, not the disciple.

Reconciliation of all views will be found in following principles and illustrations:

Aṭṭhikāri-bheda; dharma-bheda; saḍhya-bheda; saḍhana-bheda; prasāthāna-bheda; darshana-bheda.

A-ḍandyān ḍandayan rājā ḍandyān cha eva api a-ḍandayan,
A-yashah mahaṭ āpnoṭi
narakam cha aḍhi-gachchhaṭi. (M.)

(Duty differs with different-functioned men;
So means do vary with varying ends;
And Outlooks upon Life, Views of the World,
Aspects of Truth, do vary with view-point.
The king who fails to punish criminals;
Or punishes, instead, the innocent;
He is hurled into infamy and hell.)
Ruler's prime duty is to be just, to do good to the good, and punish the wicked; if he were to begin to do good to the wicked also, (unless 'punishment' is regarded as 'good' for them), Society would become impossible and Nature's Law would be falsified.

"The cloak of charity covers a multitude of sins" is a Biblical proverb. Manu also says:

\[ \text{Dānam ēkam Kalau Yugē. (M.)} \]

(While other virtues reign in other ages, In th' Age of Discord, Charity prevails.)

But "Charity begins at home" is another western proverb; and Manu also says:

\[ \text{Shakṭah, para-janē đāṭā,} \\
\text{Sva-janē đuḥkha-jivini,} \\
\text{Maḍhū-āpāṭah, vish-āsvāḍah,} \\
\text{Sah dharma-praṭi-rūpakah. (M.)} \]

(The man who, being able, helpeth not His kinsfolk living in distress and want, But giveth unto others, thinketh ill And acteth ill. His thought and act are like The burning venom that is honey-hued; Of real duty it is copy false; It is not charity but self-display.)
So does wise Paul say,

"If any provideth not for his own, and specially for his own household, he hath denied the faith and is worse than an unbeliever." (B.)

This supplies commentary on Christ's saying:

"Take no thought, what shall we eat? What shall we drink? . . . But seek first His kingdom and His righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." (B.)

The two sayings are in perfect accord and supplement each other. The word 'first' in Christ's saying is the key.

Étaț ēva Aksharam Brahma,
Étaț ēva Aksharam Param,
Étaț ēva viḍītvā tu,
Yah yaṭ ichchaṭi ṭasya ṭat. (U.)

(He who hath seen the Infinite, the Self, Unperishing, Eternal, Brahma, All—Whatever he desireth, that is his.)

Such are illustrations of the truth that Duty varies with circumstance; and that achievement of God, of His kingdom, of His righteousness, is highest and Ultimate Duty of man, on fulfilment of which, all others are fulfilled automatically, without failure or mistake. A-hiṃsā, 'non-violence', 'non-hurting', 'harmlessness', 'thou shalt not murder', is the very first of all scriptural ethical commandments, as we have seen above. Yet also the right, nay, duty, of 'defence' of self, and of dependents even more, has been recognised, even enjoined by scriptures, and laws, in all times and climes; with special exceptions for special reasons. Himsā, 'harming'; 'slaying', of the innocent, must be distinguished from danda, 'punishment', of the guilty, the criminal, aggressor, brutal invader. As to who is to be held guilty and aggressor, in which circumstances—this has to be decided by 'divine law' and 'human law', in the manner, mentioned on pp. 108-109 supra, in which 'Divine Will' can be ascertained.

The governing principle, which illuminates the whole problem, and makes possible correct solution of each particular case, is:

DEVSHA-KALA-NIMITTANAM
bhedaiah dharmah vi-bhidyaTe. (MBH.)
(Diff'rence of time and place and circumstance Makes difference of duty and of right.)

General rule is: Return Good for evil; forgive; suffer, rather than cause suffering. This is so, less reservedly, for teacher, priest, man of God; with still less exception, when injury is done to himself; without any reservation, when injured person is a faqir, sannyasi, hermit. Special rule is: Fight against and resist evil; with physical force, passively or actively, negatively or positively, as conditions may permit and require; this is so, more specially, for the householder, man of and in the world; particularly when those dependent on him for protection are threatened; yet more particularly for 'public servant'; unreservedly and without exception for policeman, soldier, magistrate, ruler, whose express duty it is to protect people from miscreants. In short, him sā, 'hurting the innocent,' is clearly distinguished in Vedic Scriptures, and in all others also, explicitly or implicitly, from danda, 'punishing the guilty'. And right of private defence of person and property has been recognised, always, everywhere, as said above.

Gurum vā, bāla-vṛddhau vā, brāhmaṇam vā bahu-shruṭam,
Āṭāṭāyinam āyāntam
hanyāt ēva a-vichārayan. (M.)
(The poisoner, the incendiary,
The robber, and whoso commits assault
With lethal weapon, and the ravisher,
And one who tries by force to oust from land—These should be slain unhesitatingly.)
(Āṭaṭāyī mans these six).

This is for the ordinary person, householder, public servant. Renunciant hermit follows another law. He has given abhaya-dāna, 'freedom from fear,' to all and every one.
Detailed treatment of this subject is exceedingly important for practical purposes of manifold and very various and complicated daily individual and collective social life. It has been attempted elsewhere.¹ A brief outline will be included in next chapter, on 'The Way of Works'. Here, it is enough to say that the Golden Rule cannot but remain a mere pious wish, unless and until it is provided with a full technique; i.e., a complete Social Organisation. This would make clear what the main stages and situations are in each individual life; what the main occupations and positions are in the total social life; and what the duties and corresponding rights are that attach to each such stage and occupation. Then every one would know what he should wish for himself and therefore for others, in any given time-place-circumstance.

4. IMMORTAL VIRTUES AND DEADLY SINS.

'Seven Immortal Virtues' of Christianity, viz., Faith, Hope, Charity, Justice, Prudence, Temperance, and Fortitude, generally correspond with Shat-sādhanas, 'Six Helpful Means' of upward progress of Vēdānta, viz., Shama, Daama, Uparați, Tītikshā, Shraddhā, Samādhiṇhāna, i.e., ¹In present writer's other works, especially The Science of Social Organisation.

charitable Tranquillity, self-‘restraining’ Prudent Temperance, Resignation, all-enduring Fortitude, Hopeful Faith and Faithful Hope, just and all-reconciling Single-mindedness and Collectedness of mind. ‘Seven Deadly Sins,’ Pride, Covetousness, Lust, Anger, Gluttony, Envy, and Sloth, are same as Shad-ripus, ‘Six Internal Enemies,’ Kāma, Kroḍha, Lobha, Moha, Maḍa, Maṭśara, i.e., Lust, Hate, Greed, Infatuation, Arrogance, and Jealousy; Infatuation covers Gluttony and Sloth, also Fear. Shat-sāḍhāna-s, which we may well call Shat-mīṭras, ‘Six Internal Friends,’ are natural opposites and antagonists of ‘Six Internal Enemies’.

Sins have been reduced to two, in almost same terms, by Kṛṣṇa, some five thousand years ago, and by Maulānā Rūm, about seven hundred.

It is curious that in no available Skt. work are they expressly stated to be such. They are described as ‘the six helpful means’, at the beginning of Shankara’s Shārīraka Bhāṣya on the basis of verses in Upanishats, i.e., Bhag Up., 4.4.23, and Nrṣṭimha-U.T., 6. See Science of Emotions, page-references in Indexes.
5. Single Seed of Two Root-Sins.

Yoga tells us that Aṣmīṭā, Aḥam-kāra, 'I-am-ness' (of separatist individualised 'I'), Ḥudī, Egoism, is the yet more subtle root, from which both Lust and Hate sprout forth as obverse and reverse; and that the final seed, from which this egoistic selfishness too proceeds, is A-viḍyā, Wahm, Un-truth, Falsehood, Error, Illusion, Nescience, self-deceit, that 'I am not the Infinite One; but am this one particular infinitesimal body of flesh and blood and bone, among many such bodies; am therefore something quite separate from my fellow-beings; and that each one of these is utterly separate from all others and from the One Self.' This self-ish Un-truth, Nā-Haq, A-saṭ, is the ultimate source of all wrong feeling, wrong desire, wrong conduct. This a-viḍyā is the real kufr. Kufr means, literally, ‘hiding the truth,’ lā-haq, non-truth, i.e., considering mā-siwā-Allah, ‘any-other-than-God’, as ‘actor’. In affirming separate ‘I-ness’, (as contra-distinguished from the universal ‘I AM’), nafs, ego, commits shirk, ḍva iṭa,

For these definitions of kufr and shirk, see Khāja Khand’s The Secret of Anal-Haq, pp. 68, 83, 123, 151. Shirk means ‘joining,’ joining something to God, placing beside God something other-than-God, and believing it to have real existence also; whereas true Islam regards God as the Only Being, and all other-than-God as non-Existent; just the same as Vēḍānta. Gradually, kufr has come to mean disbelief in Islamic religion generally. Thus Gulshan-i-Rāz says:

Ke rā kufr-é-haqīqi shud piṭidār,
Ze Islām-é-majāzi gashṭ bē-zār.
Buṭ ḍījā Mazhar-é Ishq aṣṭ o Wahḍāt:
Buwaḍ zunnār-bāstan aqī-d-i-khīḍmat:
Chuṅ Kufr-o-Ḍīn buwaḍ qāyam ba Hastī,
Shawāḍ Ṭauḥīḍ a’yn-é Buṭ-parastī.
Cho ashiyā ḍast ḍastī rā mazāhir,
Azān jumlā Yak-é Buṭ bāshad ākhr.
Musalmān gar bi-dānīstē ke Buṭ ch-īṣṭ,
Bi-dānīstē ke ḍīn ār Buṭ-parast-īṣṭ;
W-agar Mushrik ze Buṭ āgāḥ gashtē,
Kujā ār ḍīn-i-khūḍ gum-rāh gashtē.
Na dīd ū az Buṭ illā khalq-ē zābir,
Ba(ā)-in illāt shud āNDAR shirk kafir.
Tu ham gar z-ū na bīnī Haq-i-pinhān,
Ba shara’ āNDAR na khwānand-āṭ Musalmān.

(Shabistārī.)
bhêda, sankara; it ‘adds’ ‘impurity’, mala, kasf, of the Finite, to ‘purity’, shuddhi, lutf, of (Whoever glimpsed the real Disbelief,

From outward Islám he did turn away.
An Idol is but sign of Love of One;
Mere symbol. So the Sacred Thread also
Is bond and pledge of service unto Him.
Since Faith in Many, and, too, Faith in One,
Are actual facts, both, rooted in th’ Existent,
To see the One in All is Idol-worship.
Since all things are expressions of One Being;
The One remains at last beneath all these.
If Musalmân but knew the Idol’s meaning,
In Image-worship would he see True Faith.
If Idoliser knew what Image means,
He too would never stray from the Same Faith;
He saw naught but the Outer in the Eikon,
Hence fell into the Slough of Manyness.
If thou see not the One hid in the Eikon,
Thou art not worth the name of Musalmân.)

“Apparent Islam consists in the observance of ordinances, and real Islam consists in the extinction of self [disbelief in the false self, the lower self, egoism]. . . Kufr is covering up the Oneness of Existence under the screen of Multiplicity. Shirk is considering the One Real Existence as two. Kufr and shirk of Sharîa are pollutions, from sins; those of Tartqaţ are love of the (sensuous) world; and those of Haqiqat, are the establishment of ghair” [‘other,’ iţara, divitīya, a ‘second’], “and not seeing the Oneness underlying Multiplicity”; The Secret of An-al Haq, pp. 114, 213. Difference between Védic Karma-kānda and Védānta, and between ‘Churchianity’ and real ‘Christianity’ is same. It is worthy of note that the technical Skt. word yajña-upavīţā means ‘the dress of or for (self-) sacrifice’; same idea as that of ‘pledge-bond of service of the One’.
the Infinite. Khuđā, over-powered by Khuḍī, becomes an individual or particular khuḍ, a separate self; Brahma, enveloped by Māya, becomes Jīva; Uṭṭama Purusha, Purush-oṭṭama, Param-Āṭmā, surrendering to (Daivi-and Mūla-) Prakṛti, A-vidyā (Mūlā, and Tūlā), becomes Jīva-āṭmā; mukṭa becomes baḍḍha; āzād, free, becomes asir, bound. Thus it is that God plus Satan, angel plus devil, is man. In very truth, quite visibly, is there an angel as well as a devil in everyone of us. See the same face now in smiles, and again in frowns.

Az bahāyam hissa ḍārī, waz malāyak nīz ham,
Bu-g'zar az haḍḍ-ē-bahāyam, k-az malāyak bug'zārī. (S.)

(A piece of beast, a piece of angel, thou!
If thou wilt only rise above the beast,
Then wilt thou pass beyond the angel too!)

Yea, we can rise on stepping-stones
Of our dead selves to higher things

(Tennyson.)

Saint Augustine!, well hast thou said,
That of our vices we can frame
A ladder, if we will but tread
Beneath our feet each deed of shame.

(Longfellow.)

With too much knowledge for the sceptic side,
With too much weakness for the stoic's pride,
Thus it comes about that:

Pra-kṛtēh kriyamāṇāni guṇaih karmāṇi sarvashah,
Aham-kāra-vi-mūdh-ātmā karṭā aham īti manyātē. (G.)

(This Nature of the Universal Self,
This Universal Nature, doeth all;
Yet man, deluded by false egoism,
Believes ‘I am the actor,’ not That Self.)

He hangs between; in Doubt to act or rest;
In doubt to deem himself a god or beast;
In doubt his mind or body to prefer;
Born but to die, and reasoning but to err;
Sole Judge of Truth, in endless Error hurled;
The glory, jest, and riddle of the world.

(Pope.)

Ekē saṭ-purushāh, par-ārtha-ghatakāh
sv-ārthān pari-tyajya yē;
Sāmānyāh tu par-ārtham uḍyama-bhṛtah,
sv-ārthā-virodhēna yē;
Tē amī mānusha-rākshasāh, para-hītam
sv-ārthāya ni-ghnānti yē;
Yē ni-ghnānti nir-arthahakam para-hītam,
ṭē ké na jānīmahē. (Bhāṛṭṛ-Hari.)

(There are the ‘good’, who sacrifice their own,
To help on others’ interests, amain.
There are the middle sort, who try to help
Others, if ’twill not cause loss to themselves.
There are the human devils who, to gain
Something for self, will cause another’s harm.
But to what deeper depths do those belong,
Who, for sheer malice, without any gain
Unto themselves, cause others injury!)

(Bhāṛṭṛ-Hari.)
This Aham-kāra, Ego-ism, Kṛudī, feel of separate self, appears as a triple Desire, (1) syām, may I always be', (2) bahu syām, 'may I be more,' (3) bahu-dhā syām, 'may I be many'; in other words, hirs, tama', cravings, urges, for (1) self-preservation, (2) self-expansion, (3) self-multiplication. In Vēdānta they are called three ēshaṇās, (1) loka-ēshaṇā, (2) viṭṭa-ēshaṇā, (3) dāra-suṭa-ēshaṇā. In Buddhism, (1) bhava-ṭṛshṇā, (2) vi-bhava-ṭṛshṇā, (3) kāma-ṭṛshṇā. Jainism knows them as (1) āhāra-sanjña, (2) pari-graha-sanjña, (3) maithuna-sanjña. Sūfis call them the primal desires for (1) zamīn, (land, whence food and self-preservation), (2) zar, (wealth), (3) zan, (wife). In Christian lands the popular names for these are: (1) 'wine', (in place of food), (2) 'wealth', (3) 'woman'. Western psycho-physiology knows them as primal instincts, cravings, impulses, appetites of (1) Hunger, (2) Acquisitiveness, (though this is not yet clearly recognised as an elemental radical factor, equally with the other two, which completes, with them, the primal triad of root Egoistic-Desire), and (3) Sex; (1) āhāra-ichchhā, (2) dhana-ichchhā, (3) raṭi-ichchhā. New psycho-analytic science, or, rather, branch of psychology, would perhaps name them as, (1) ego-complex, (2) property-complex, (3) sex-complex. Ḥṛḍāya-grāntḥi, 'heart-knot,' kāma-jatā, 'tangled desire-roots', are expressions, corresponding to 'complex,' found in Upaniṣaṣṭas, Bhāgavata, and other old Skt. writings. These three primary desires or appetites, vāsānaś-s, ā-sṛṣṭi-a-s, impulses, instincts, are, indeed, 'simplexes' rather than 'complexes'. But since all emotions accrete and conglomerate 'complicatedly' around and on them, they appear as 'complexes'. In connection with 'food', emotions appear in their most direct, elemental, simple forms; with 'possessions', they become more indirect and complicated; with 'sex', most so. Secretiveness appears in relation to all three, but least to food, most to sex, in man. Out of these three elemental appetites, in order that they may be satisfied in due measure, with 'alliance for existence,' and without internece 'struggle for existence,' arise three fundamental institutions of Society, (1) Law-Religion, (2) Property, (3) Marriage and Family.

1 Jainism seems to have put the triad in other words also, sammāna-ichchhā, samapaṭṭi-ichchhā, sanṭāna-ichchhā, 'desires for honor-wealth-progeny'.

Sublimated forms of these innate primal appetites are: (i) Wish-to-be-always, the Religious Instinct of attaching one-self to, identifying one-self, with, the Eternal; also Wish for 'lasting name and fame', 'a niche in history', honor, yās ṣaḥa, kīrti, tārif, shuhṛat, nāṃwarī; (ii) Wish-to-be-more, Wish for wealth, rich artistic possessions, proprietary and aesthetic instinct, to have ḍhānam, daulat; (iii) Wish-to-be-many, power-instinct, Wish for power to rule over many others and be depended upon by them. Correspondents are Dharma, Artha, Kama, din, daulat, dunyā; elemental lower forms are, wish for (1) food, (2) growth of body (especially muscle) and goods, (3) spouse and progeny. Wisdom—Wealth—Health, (wish to be 'healthy, wealthy, and wise'), this triad is another aspect of the same.

The altruistic three instincts, corresponding, and opposite, to the three egoistic ones, are to be seen in the verse:

Bhunkte bhojayaṭe cha ēva, guhyam vakṭi śṛṇoti cha,
Daḍāṭi prati-grhṇāti,
shad-vidāham mitṭra-lakṣaṇam.

(Not only eats, but feeds, also; not only
Receives confidings but gives such, in turn;
Not only takes, but makes, gifts—the true friend.¹)

¹ These may be regarded as corresponding to the three unselfish urges (opposites of the three selfish appetites, hunger, acquisitiveness, sex), viz., (a) wish to feed others (to enable them to live), (b) wish to give, to share possessions, to enjoy in common, (c) wish to make marriage between others, wish to associate with others, to merge oneself in others, in Society.
The One Self, which is Immortal and Omniscient; knows all past, present, future, all succession of events, which are Its own imagined creations; knows all senses, all ‘tastes’ of all ‘foods’; this Self has, as it were, ‘forgotten’ that fact, ‘hidden the truth,’ fallen into a-viṣyā and kufr, error of non-unity, of self-limitation, ne-science, multiplicity, self-diremption, belief in other-than-self, by Its own Free-will, for lahw o la'ib, līlā, ‘idle sport and play’, and has made itself mortal and little-knowing; It now tries to make itself pseudo-immortal and all-knowing, and maintain itself in unbroken continuity, by taking physical and mental food. The Self, which is Omnipresent; because all things are already, always, present in It, has, as if, veiled Its eyes to that fact, and made itself small; It now tries to make itself all-encompassing, in counterfeit, by growing bigger and bigger in body, and securing more and more wealth and possessions. The Self, which is Omnipotent; which already contains all potencies, all powers, all forms, within Itself; has 1 Samskrīt word for Self, viz., Ātman, Ātmā, etymologically means, that which sa-ṭatam atati, ati, ati-eti meyān, mā iśi nishēdhaṭi sarvān pari-miṭān, i.e., that which moves in, into, pervades, everything, always; which eats, (a t, to eat), tastes, everything; which transcends all limitation; which negates, repudiates, all limited things, all particularisations. Greek words etymon, ‘original root,’ etymos, ‘true’, also atmos, ‘air’, seem to be connected.

so to say, blinded Itself to that fact, made Itself weak and confined Itself to one form; It now tries, vainly, erroneously, futilely, to regain Its all-mightiness, by reproducing Itself, pro-generating Itself, in a series of many forms, all subject to Its will and power, through a spouse, a counterpart, a reversed image and reflection of Itself. Thus does Egoism work, giving rise to endless errors, wrongs, ill-wishes, through the branching of each of these three into endless derivative forms of like and dislike, love and hate, kāma and krodha, shahwaf and khashm.

Counteractives of the three down-dragging appetites, correspondingly opposed altruistic instincts, Desires, Deliberate Resolves, are those of (1) a-himsā, (2) a-parigraha, (3) brahma-charyā; (1) tark-i-īsā-rasāni, tark-i-sītām, (2) tark-i-daulat, fuqr, (3) tark-i-shahwat, tajrīd, husūr, zabt-i-nafs, a'smat; (1) harmlessness, non-violence, (2) non-possessiveness, non-proprietorship, voluntary poverty, (3) continence. Other shīla-s, khūbī-s, kamāl-s, virtues, perfections, yama-s and ni-yama-s will all come under these; while Saṭya, Haq, in the highest sense, the One Truth of the Unity of all, stands above and gives birth to all the three and their sub ordinates.¹

¹ For fuller exposition of the whole subject of Desires, Emotions, Egoistic and Altruistic impulses, their genetics, classification, and how the baser can be subjugated to
6. One Seed of All Virtues.

As wrong desires all take their rise from the False-hood of selfish and separative Egoism; from stubborn feeling that individual selves are really separate and different from one another and from the One Universal Self; so all right desires, good feelings, virtues, flow from, or are but aspects of, selflessness, unselfishness, self-sacrifice, nirahamkārita, be-khudi, which is corollary of the Great Truth of One Self in all. "Love God with all thy heart," said Christ, and also, "Love thy neighbour as thy-Self"—because God is thy inmost Self, and thy neighbour is the same.

As Lust-Hate are dual shoots that sprout from the seed of selfish Egoism, so bhaṅkti and karunā, ishq-i-haqqi and rahm, pure spiritual love and compassion, spring from selfless Altruistic Universalism. Vedaṇṭa tells us that Primal Desire, Māyā-Illusion, Avidyā-Nescience, has two chief powers, shakti-s, qudraṭ-s or shuyāṇat, viz., āvaranā and vi-kṣhēpa.1 One 'veils,' blinds, the eyes to the nobler, the reader may, if he cares to pursue the subject, see present writer's The Science of the Self, ch. vi, and The Science of Emotions, 4th edn. (pub. 1953).

1 Roots are vṛ and kṣhip; each has several meanings, further differentiated by prefixes; some seeming far distant, yet all more or less allied. Āvaranā is 'taking up,' 'choosing,' 'wearing'; also 'covering up', the Reality; the other ‘flings’, ‘distracts’, drives, the soul towards things of the Unreal. Sūfis would perhaps call them hejāb and īzāl. From the standpoint of infinite Self, Desire is deliberate Desire for Līlā, Play, Pas-time; for the World-Drama of Sṛṣṭi, Khaḷq, Creation-Preservation-Destruction, by means of the powers of Irāḏah (Ētabār, Iḵṭiyyār, Khwāhish) and Ṭasawwur, Kāma-Saṅkalpa, Will-and-Imagination. From the standpoint of ‘veiling’, ‘screening’ off. In causative form, ā-vāraṇā, nī-vāraṇa, is ‘warding off’, ‘preventing’, ‘keeping off’, as by a screening wall, rampart. When an object is chosen, and clung to, closely, all others are, ipso facto, kept off; it veils and covers up the mind, to, and from, all others. Clinging to body screens off mind from the Truth of jīva’s identity with Universal Self. Another and inseparable aspect of ā-vāraṇa is vi-kṣhepa, driving’, ‘flinging’, ‘dragging away’, ‘pushing’, of the soul, towards particular objects and experiences, connected with the sheath, body, which the soul is ‘wearing’, and supposing to be it-self. A western novelist describes the condition of the principal character: “From time to time he held his head between his hands and asked himself with the despair of a madman who feels his reason leaving him... He had loved too deeply... His jealousy carried him away, and his fierce hatred of (his rival) prevented him from coming to a reasonable conclusion.” Any passion in excess drives a person mad (Skt. un-māḍa); and love-lust is the fruitful source of all other passions, jealousy, hatred, etc. These passions constitute unreason, a-jñāna, a-vidyā; they are the opposite of reason; they obstruct and prevent it from working, ā-vāraṇa, and carry a person away, vi-kṣhepa.
individual self, it is the instinctive 'desire' of 'lust-hate' which 'blinds' first, then 'drives' into wrong action. Self-knowledge, Viṣṇu, Irfān, Truth, counteracts and conquers these two, respectively; with the help of ṭyāgā and vy-ava-sāya, tark and mujāhida, renunciation and perseverent practice of self-control, vairāgya and abhyāsa, mujānibat and munāzilat, surfeited and dis-gust-ed turning away from world, and resolute self-direction towards Spirit; so it strengthens and perfects the virtues of spiritual love and compassion, and altruistic service, sarva-bhūta-hiṭā (G.) or khyāma-te-khālq. (S.)

Sarvam Ātmani sam-pashyēt, sat cha, asat cha, sam-āhīṭah;
Sarvam Ātmani sam-pashyan,
na a-dharmē kuruṭē manah. (M.)

(See all in Self, truth, untruth, right and wrong; Whoever sees all in the Self, him-Self, He cannot turn his mind to sin again.)

"Love ... God with all thy heart ... soul ... mind. ... Love thy neighbour as thy-Self (God). On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets." (B., Matthew.)

St. Paul repeats the teachings of Vedas, Old Testament (Proverbs), and Jesus; and indirectly indicates that working of the Golden Rule must be governed by a complete system of publicly proclaimed and recognised rights-and-duties; that, indeed, without a complete Social Organisation, with well-defined rights-and-duties, it is entirely unworkable:

"Bless them which persecute you, and curse not. Rejoice with them that do rejoice, and weep with them that weep. Be of the same mind with one another. As much as lieth in you, live peacably with all men. Dearly beloved!, avenge not yourselves. If thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink; for in so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire on his head. Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good . . . Rulers are not" i.e., ought not to be, though they unhappily but too often are, "a terror to good works, but to the evil . . . Render therefore to all, their dues: tribute to whom tribute is due; custom to whom custom; fear to whom fear; honour to whom honour. Owe to no man anything, but to love one another . . . He that loveth another hath fulfilled the law. For this, thou shalt not commit adultery, not kill, not steal, not bear false witness, not covet; and if there be any other commandment, it is [all] briefly comprehended in this saying, namely; Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thy-Self.¹ Love worketh no ill to his neighbour. Love is the fulfilling of the law.” (B., Romans.) “... The Truth” of the Unity of the Self “shall make you free” of all vice, sin, doubt, fear, sorrow. (B., John.)

¹ See pp. 312, 298, 64, 309, supra.

A-samshayam, mahā-bāho !, manah ān-nigrāhom chalam ;
Abhyāsena tu, Kaunteya !,
vai-rāgyeṇā cha grhyatē ।

Yaṭah Yaṭah nish-charaṭi manah chanchalam a-sthiram,
Taṭah taṭah niyamya ētaḍ
Aṭmani ēva vasham nayēt, (G.)

(Hard to control, no doubt, this restless mind;
Yet by ‘dis-taste’, ‘dis-gust’, for things of sense,
‘Turning away from’ fleeting worldly things,
And by ‘persistent turning to’ the Self
Of this most fickle mind, dragging it back Again and yet again with resolute will,
Whenever it escapes to wayward ways,
It can, no doubt, be brought under control.)

Parānchi khaṇi vy-ātrṇaṭ Svayam-bhūḥ;
Tasmāt parāṅg pashyaṭi, na Anṭar-Āṭman;
Kash-čhīḍ dhiṛah Praṭyag-Āṭmānaṁ aikṣaṭāḥ,
Āvṛṇṣa-chakshuh, amṛṭaṭṭvam ichchhan. (U.)

‘Abhyāsa-vairāgya are the bright side; āvar-aṇa-āvikṣhepa, the dark; of ‘attention’.
(The Self-born pierced all senses outwards; hence
All human beings look Without them-Self;
One here, one there, desiring Deathlessness, Directs his mind aright, and looks Within.)

Chashm band o gosh band o lab bi-band;
Gar na bīnī rūy-e Haq, bar mā bi kẖand. (S.)

(Shut off thy eyes, ears, lips, and senses all,
From outward things; surely thou wilt see God.)

Ḍar nazār kun jumla ṭān rā, Ḍar nazār,
Ḍar nazār rau, Ḍar nazār rau, Ḍar nazār.
Haq ba jān āndār nīhān, o jān ba āil āndār nīhān,
Ai nīhān, āndār nīhān, āndār nīhān, āndār nīhān!
In chuniṁ ramaż-așṭ ayān, kẖūḏ bē-nīshān o bē
bayān,
Ai jahān āndār jahān, āndār jahān, āndār jahān!
(S.)

(Look within; yea, look within; yea, look within!
See frame of thine own body from within!
Life in the heart, Self in the life, behold!
World within world, world within world,
sans end!
Such is the Secret, speechless, yet all plain;
Without or mark or word, yet everywhere!
Punyam cha pāpam cha pāpē. (Vedāṇṭa maxim) (Sin, merit, both are sins; for both do bind
The soul unto the whirling wheel of change.)
Chūñ něk o baď az Khudāe ċidand,
Rū az hama do ċar kashīdand. (S.)
(The Wise saw Good and Evil both from God, Therefore from both they drew their heart aside.)
Jānāmi dharmaṁ, na cha mé pra-vṛttiṁ;
Jānāmi a-dharmaṁ, na cha mé ni-vṛttiṁ;
Kēna api ċevēna hṛdi sthitēna
Yaṭhā niyuktāḥ asmi yaṭhā ācharāmi. (Mbh.)
(I know the 'right', yet cannot do it;
I know the 'wrong', yet can't avoid it;
Some god sits in my heart and drives me.
And as he drives, so even I do flee.)
"The good that I would do, that I do not;
The evil which I would not, that I do." (B., Paul.)
Lā ṭaharraka zarraṭin illā ba a'zm-Illāh. (H.)
(No atom stirs except by God's command.)

As a western proverb says: "To understand all is to forgive all." And to understand all is possible only by understanding one's own heart, once own Self, fully. The only way for each one of us to become really charitable towards all who may seem to be errring, or to be causing hurt to us, is to see, by introspection, anṭar-ṛṣṭi, praṛyak-chētanā, sair-i-nafasi, how full of possible weaknesses, wicked wishes, grievous mistakes, our own heart and life are.

"I am the Truth, the Life, the Way." (B.)

Satyam satst sañã dharmañ, Satyam Dharmah Sanåñanah, Satyam, Yajñah, Tatpah, Yogah;
Sarvam Satyé prañi-shtitham.
Satyam, Damah cha, Samata,
Hrih, Titiksha, An-asuya,
A-matsaryam, Kshama, Tyagah,
Aryatvam cha, Dhritih, Daya,
Dhyana cha eva, api A-himsa cha,
Satya-akarah, trayo-dasha...
Kamah, Krodhah, Shoka-Mohau,
Vidhiitasa cha, Par-asuta, ¹
Lobhah, Matsaryam, Irshya cha,
Kutsa, Asuya, A-kripa, Bhayam,
Trayo-dasha ete A-satyasya
Akarah tu smrtah budhaih.

(Mbh., Shanti-p., chs. 160, 161).

(Self-Sacrifice, the life of Abstinence,
The ways of Yoga and of Self-Control,
Modesty, Equity, and Charity,
Forgivingness, Endurance, Fortitude,

¹ Par-asuta, literally 'life-less-ness'; i.e., listlessnes, langour, neurasthenia, resulting from unclean, unhealthy, evil, 'false', 'un-true' living.
Pity, and Uprightness, Un-Enviousness,
Non-Violence—all these are forms of Truth.
Lust, Hate, Greed, Jealousy, Aggressiveness,
Sorrowing o'er trifles, Fear, and Cruelty,
Slandering of others, Neurasthenia,
Inequity, and rankling Malice too,
And Crookedness—of Untruth, all are forms.)

Aṭ ṭoī, Mazādā!, tēm maïnyūm asha-okshayanțāya sarēdyayāo khāṭhrā maētha mayā vahishtā varēṭū mananghā ayāoi araī hākurēnēm yayāo hachinṭē ūrvāno. (Z.. Gāthā, 33. 9)

(May this my Conscience, Mazādā!, show to me
The Truth, Thy Immost Spirit, Greatest Good,
Ideal of Ideals, to guide me
Aright in ways of Righteousness alway.
Having achieved that goal, I will have gained
All lesser things to which my soul inclines.)

Saṭyāṭ na aṣṭi parah dharmah ;
na An-ṛṭāṭ pāṭakam param.
Sṭhitih hi Saṭyam Dharmaṣya ;
ṭasmāṭ Saṭyam na ṭāpayēṭ.

(Mbh., Shānti-p., ch. 160).

(Religion there is none higher than Truth;
Than Falsehood there's no more de-grading sin.
The one Foundation of All Dharm', is Truth;
Therefore hurt not the Truth in any way.)
As-Sūfī lā mazhabu lahū illā mazhab-ul-Haq. (S.)
(Religion else than Truth Sūfis know not.)

The Truth of the real Identity of separate-seeming selves appears as Love in the aspect of Emotion. Love for elders, superiors, becomes Reverence, Adoration, Worship; for youngers, inferiors, Tenderness, Compassion, Pity; for equals, Friendship, Affection, Esteem. These words, expressive of feelings, indicate corresponding virtues and duties also. Where the Truth of the Uniting Higher Self reigns, there, inevitably, 'joy becomes duty, and love becomes law', and all virtues wait attendant. Even so, the Untruth of Separateness becomes Hate, which sub-divides into, Fear of the stronger. Anger against equals, Scorn of the weaker; with numerous degrees and modifications.¹

The Imperial Rescript of Japan issued in 1890, which is the foundation of the moral education of growing generations in all schools of that great nation, and has been a vital factor in its marvellous rejuvenation, paraphrases these same eternal and perennial teachings.² Loyalty, filial piety,

¹ For details on this point, reader may see The Advanced Text Book of Hinduism, Pt. III; The Universal Text Book of Religion and Morals, Pt. II, edited by Dr. Annie Besant; and The Science of Emotions, chs. 6, 7, 8, by the present writer, 4th edn. (pub. 1953).
² The above, ré Imperial Rescript of Japan, was written in 1930. Internal psychological causes, and family affection, conjugal harmony, truth, friendship, modesty, moderation, benevolence, learning, arts, public good, common interests, respect for just laws, courage, faithfulness, reverence—these are the virtues the Rescript emphasizes, and, as shown above, (p. 307), they all are the sweet and healthy fruits of the tree of non-separateness. Sense of non-separateness, opposite of separatism, is source of righteousness, right dealing with one another, whence trust, 'solidarity', 'fraternity', strength, 'alliance for existence'. "Righteousness exalteth a nation:" (B.).

external political causes and world-causes, between that year and 1945, drove Japan also within the ambit of the awful Cyclone of War-Mentality; which raged, (and continues to rage, in 1954) between rival Imperialist-Militarist-Capitalist-Nationalist or Fascist-Naziist Powers, (there was never any real difference between the two) on one hand, and, on another, the antagonistic Ideologists of Socialism-Communism. All this only illustrates the difficulty of following the just middle course that Confucius taught equally to both China and Japan. Despite that teaching, China has been torn by internal wars all along, and was invaded fiercely by Japan, to forestal other Powers, in 1931. Japan was defeated in 1945, but civil war continued to rage in China between the then Government and the Communists till the latter established their Republic on 1st October, 1949. All this emphasises the need for distributing very extensively and intensively the Spiritual Bread that has been rained like manna from Heaven, by all Lovers of Mankind, and which only can allay all heart-burnings, assuage all heart-hungers, and create Love in place of Hate, if anything can.
Per contra, imperialistic, selfish, ruthless, unrighteous aggressiveness and exploitation, abase the nation which practices them, and overthrow it sooner or later by breeding distrust and ‘struggle for existence’ inside and outside it.¹

Only he who is wise with wisdom of the Higher Self can steer safely the difficult course of virtue between vices:

- “Be straightforward, yet mild; gentle, yet dignified; strong, but untyrannical; energetic, but not arrogant; tolerant, yet stern; mild, yet firm; complacent, but reverent; inclusive, yet considerate; docile, yet daring; magnanimous, but discerning; resolute, yet sincere; courageous, but just.” (C., Shu King.)²

7. GOD IN MAN.

All religions therefore pre-eminently proclaim Recognition of the Universal Self, as the one sure guide in all situations, the one certain means of ¹ Japan of Mikado Mutsuhito (in 1905) and Japan of the present (constitutional) ‘emperor’ Hirohito, (in 1954) illustrate both aspects of the truth stated in above para. So also do more or less, all other belligerent countries of the second World War, except perhaps Russia, which has been trying to avoid ‘unrighteousness’, according to her lights, which, it seems, are very dark. The task of world-mending is unending. Daily do dust and dirt gather. Daily must they be swept away.

² See pp. 47-49, supra. effectively subordinating man’s lower nature to his higher nature, his lower self to the Higher Self, Khudī to Khudā, nafs-i-ammārā (sense-ward-driving desire) to nafs-i-Rahmāni (Divine Element in man), aham-kāra (egoism) to Brahma-bhūya (Universalism, state of all-including infinite Brahma or God), a-shubhā vāsanā (impure desire) to shubhā vāsanā (pure desire), an-ekatā, bhēḍa-buddhi, tafrāqā, insīsāl, ghairiyāt, (sense of separateness), to ekatā, abhēḍa-buddhi, wahdāt, ittīsāl, a’iniat, (sense of unity), svārtha to parārtha and paramārtha, khud-ghanāzī to bē-ghanāzī, doshās to guna-s, razāel to fazāel, selfishness to unselfishness, vices to virtues, competitiveness to co-operativeness, individualism to socialism and communism in the finest and only true sense, viz., in the sense of spiritual equality, or, rather, identity, and material equitability (not an impossible material equality and equalitarianism).

Reader may see Ancient vs. Modern Scientific Socialism by present writer, for fuller considerations.

A doubt may arise here. It is said above that recognition of the Universal Self enables us to subdue our lower self. But, on another hand, it is also true that unless change of heart takes place, vision of the One does not arise. Apparently there is a vicious circle. What is the solution? This: Both high and low are ever-present, ever bound together, in every one of us, in all Nature, God’s Nature, our nature. They are always
In the system of Confucius:

"Jen is the fundamental virtue. It is sympathy, fellow-feeling. This fellow-feeling is the reason of the Golden Rule. It is Tao; it is the road which must be travelled by every human being. Tao is the feeling of fellowship, and feeling of fellowship is Tao. Without it, one will not be kept from doing to others what one would not have done by others to him. All virtues spring from Jen, loyalty, filial piety, courage, wisdom, propriety, faithfulness, righteousness, long-suffering, humaneness, benevolence. There are only two moral principles, fellow-feeling turning round and round each other. Now one is uppermost; again the other prevails. Going down of either, coincides naturally with rising up of the other. This phenomenon appears in the human mind as wish and effort to put one down and lift up the other. A friend once asked: "I have acquired an intellectual understanding of Vedānta—the doctrine of the One Life; but how can I realise it?" I asked: "What distinction do you make between intellectual understanding and realisation?" He said: "Keeping the truth always in mind, and acting it out in all deeds." "Very good; now, what is the difference between some times and always, some deeds and all deeds? Is it not one of degree only?" "Yes." "Same is the difference between intellectual understanding and realisation, paroksha and aparoksha, shantidah and didah, 'heard' and 'seen'. There can be no intellectual understanding without some degree of realisation, at least in imagination. Continuous understanding and corresponding constant action—is only a higher degree, much higher, let us grant, of intellectual understanding".
or Altruism, and its opposite, Egoism. Jen, fellow-feeling, is man himself. Jen is the reason of love. Only different shades of meaning of Jen are prosperity, kindheartedness, charity, sincere sympathy, and unselfishness. When a man behaves as his heart desires, yet never transgresses the mean, he has reached perfect adjustment between natural impulses and moral discipline. He is now Jen itself. He is Seng Jen, a holy man. He behaves as freely and innocently as a child fresh from the bosom of nature, and all that he does never deviates from the Middle Way, Chung Tao. 1

We have only to read Jen and Tao as the Higher Self, to see that the above is nothing else than Veda and Tasawwuf. Jen as fellow-feeling flows from non-egoism, un-selfishness, suppression and denial of lower self; which, in turn, is result of conscious or sub-conscious predominance of Jen as Higher Self; on identification with which, the sage is known as Seng Jen, Brahma-bhūta, Jīvan-mukta, Insān-i-kāmil.

N-ist andar jubba-am ghair az Khu’dā. (S.)
(There’s naught within my robe but God Him-Self.)

Lisā fī jubbatin siwā Allāh. (S.)

1 Abridged from Suzuki, History of Chinese Philosophy, pp. 51-56, in his own words.
(What else-than God is there within my cloak?)
Brahma éva san Brahma apyéti.
Brahma véda, Brahma éva bhavaṭi,
Tād Bhrahma asmi aham A-ḍvayam. (U.)
Brahma sam-paḍyaṭé taḍā. (U.; G.)
(He knoweth Brahm' who is already Brahm'.
'Brahma am I, others-less, second-less.'
Cleansed of all sins, holy in body-mind,
Knowing the cyclic process of the world,
His being, all and whole, becometh Brahm'.)
A'rīf o mā'rūf ba ma'ni yak asṭ;
Ān ke Kḥudā rā be-shināsaḍ Kḥudā-st.
(The Knower and the Known are but the same;
Who knoweth God is God; God knows Him-Self,
How may an-other than the Self know God !)
Uṭṭamā sahajā avasṭhā. . . .
Brahma-bhūyāya kalpaṭe.
Kantakam kantakēna iva, yēna tyajasi tām tyaja. (Pūrāna; G.; U).
(The nat'ral state is best . . . the state of Brahm'.
As when a thorn has pierced into the foot
Men with another thorn do draw it out,
And then cast both the thorns away from them,
So, now that worldly things have been renounced,
Renounce renunciation, and be Free.)
Sar-barahna n-istam, āram kulāhē chār ārk,
Tārk-e-dūnyā, tārk-e-uqba,
Tārk-e-Maulā. tārk-e-tārk, (S.)

(Upon my head I bear a four-fold helm;
Of four renunciations is it made;
Renunciation of (1) the world, (2) the next,
(3) God personal, (4) renunciation too.)

Tyaja dharmam a-sankalpāt,
a-dharmam cha api a-lipsaya,
Ubhē saty-anṛṭē buddhyā,
buddhim parama-nishchayāt.

Tyaja dharmam a-dharmam cha,
tathā saty-anṛṭē tyaja,
Ubhē saty-anṛṭē tyaktvā
Yēna tyajasi tam tyaja.

(Mbh. Shānti, chs. 329, 344.)

Vāsanāḥ tvam pari-tyaja
Moksh-ārthiṭvam api tyaja. (Muktika U.)

Na pāpam na cha vā puṇyam.
na bānḍho na api mokshaṇam,
Na sukham na cha vā duḥkham
iti ēśā param-ārthaṭā. (U.)

(Cease to initiate new acts, so shalt thou cease
To make new bonds of ' merit '; cease from greed
Of any gain, so shalt thou cease from ' sin ';
Pass from the relatively true and false—
By judging well the nature of the two;
Then quitting that for which thou givest up,
Renouncing 'worldly false' and 'worldly true',
Rise above both, fast holding to the One.
Give up desire for e'en Deliverance.
Nor sin nor merit; neither bond nor free;
Nor joy nor sorrow—this, the Verity.)

Mama iti baḍhyaṭé janṭuh, na mama iti vi-muchyaṭé,
Aham-ṭā-mama-ṭé ṭyaktvā,
mukṭo bhava, mahā-maṭé ! (U.)

(Bondage is—"mine"; Freedom—to say "not mine"; Give up I-ness and mine-ness and be free !)
Qalam andar ba sūrat khwēsh bar zan,
Hisārē-nafs rā az bēkh bar kan.
Ṭā na garḍaḍ nafs āba' rūh rā,
Kai dawā yābī dīlē majrūh rā.  (S.)

(Thy pen strike through the writing of thy 'self';
Dig up this fortress of thy lower self!
Until this lower self (nafs) submits itself
Unto the higher Self (rūh), till then thy heart, Thy wounded heart, will know no rest from pain.)

A western poet has put the same idea in other words:

Love took up the harp of life,
And smote on all the chords with might;
Smote the chord of 'self,' which, trembling,
Passed in music out of sight. (Tennyson.)

Christian mystics have put the idea more powerfully and nobly than this poet:

Though Christ a thousand times in Bethlehem be born
But not within thyself, thy soul will be forlorn;
The Cross of Golgotha thou lookest to in vain,
Unless within thyself it be set up again.

(Scheffler.)¹

¹ The Cross, in varying forms of Svastikā, a universal symbol, found in all times and climes, had a profound cosmic significance; (see H. P. Blavatsky's Isis Unveiled and Secret Doctrine, Indexes). It implied the 'crossing' of Spirit and Matter, Infinite Masculine and Eternal Feminine; sacrifice of Universal Man and Universal Woman to each other; limitation of them by each other. This has, since the rise of Christianity, and inauguration, so to say, thereby, of the Age of Intellect-cum-Individuality, become crystallised specifically into the symbol of 'individual self-sacrifice,' denial and repression of egoism in all its threefold expression (see pp. 432-448, supra). Post-Christian history may be interpreted now, therefore, in terms of the perpetual struggle, of the Cross of Self-Sacrifice of altruistic individuals, with the Devil of Selfishness of egoistic individuals, in all aspects of life, collective, social, national, racial. It may be interpreted in terms of the Cross Militant, the Cross Political, Aesthetic or Artistic, etc., according to the department of life in which the struggle is carried on. Milton's Paradise Lost and Regained is the English
The Sūfis have said, similarly:
Nūh guť, 'Ai sar-kashān l, man man na-yam,
Man zi jān murḍam, zi Jānān mī ziymam,
Chūn bi-murḍam az hawās-ē-bul-bashar,
Haq ma-rā shud sammo iḍrāk o barar,
Chūn ki man man n-īstam, īn ādam zi-Īst,
Pōsh-e īn ādam har ke ādam zad kāfic ūst. (S.)

(Said Noāh to his disobedients:
Ye faithless ones !, have faith !, I am not I;
Believe that my small self died long ago;
The One Life of all life now lives in Me!
When all the senses died within my being,
Of sep’rate individuality.
Then Truth, God, came and dwelt within my heart,
And was my understanding, ear, eye, speech.
Yea, only since my death I truly live;
Whate’er lived in me ere that was my foe.)

Buddha too:
(They call me Gautāma who have no faith
In what I say; but they who do believe—
As the Enlightened One, the Buddha, they epic of this struggle between Satan and Christ. Milton has synthesised all the available historical and mythological knowledge of his time for the service of his theme. Centuries before him, Dante did the same work in Italian, in his Divina Comedia.

Call Me, the Teacher, and the blessed One.
And this is right; for even in this life,
Have I passed to Nirvāṇa, and the being Of Gauṭama has been extinguished.)

"And Enoch walked with God; and he was not;
for God took him." (B.)

"He that findeth his life shall lose it; and he that loseth his life for My sake shall find it." And again, "Whosoever will save his life shall lose it;
and whosoever will lose his life for My sake shall find it." And yet again, "He that loveth his life shall lose it; and he that hateth his life in this world shall keep it unto life eternal." (B.)

Sira rākhē sira jāṭa hai, sira kātē sira hoe;
Jaisē bāṭī dīpa kī,
kati ujiyārā hoe.
Sīsa utārai, bhuiṅ dharai,
tā para rākhai pāoṅ,
Ḍāsa Kabīrā yoṅ kahai,
aisā ho ṭo āo. (KABĪR.)

(Wilt keep thy head? Then it will be cut off!
But cut it off thyself, thou'lt grow a better!
Snip the burnt wick, a brighter flame will glow!
Cut off thy head, thy smaller selfish self,
And place thy foot upon it fixedly!
If thou canst do so, then come unto Me!)
Ptém milan ko jo ū chāo,
Sir ḍhar ṭali, gali mēri āo;
Prém milan kī yahī sařēkh,
Main ūthi ḍēkhauṅ, ūthi mohi ḍēkh;
Ptém milan kī yahī ṭēk,
Dikhaṭ dikhaṭ Dui kē bhaē Ėk. (KABĪR.)

(Dost crave the Union of Love?
Bring me thy head on outstretched palm.
Nothing but this, Love’s meeting means,
That Thou see Me, and I see Thee,
Unceasingly, till Two grows One,
And I am Thee, and Thou art Me.)

Jesus says:

“Believest thou not that I am in the Father and the Father in me? The words that I speak unto you, I speak not of myself; but the Father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works.” (B.)

And St. Paul:

“I live, and yet not I, but Christ liveth in me.” (B.)

So Qurān, though uttered by Muhammad, was spoken by God:

Gar che Qurān az labē Paighambar ast,
Har ke goyāḍ Haq na gufta Kāfīr ast. (S.)

(Though Qurān through the Prophet’s lips did come, Yet whoso says God spoke it not, speaks false.)
Ishvarah sarva-bhūtānām
hrd-dēshē, Arjuna !, ūsthhält, Bhrāmayan sarva-bhūtāni
yānṛ-arūdhami mayā. (G.)

(God dwelleth in all hearts and turneth them Around, as by machinary, at will.)

Sarv-ājīvē sarva-samsēhē bhranṭē
Asmin Ham-sah bhrāmyaṭē Brahma-chakrē,
Prṭhak Āṭmānam Prēritāram cha maṭvā;
Jushtah ūṭah Tēna amṛṭatvam étī. (U.)

(This Whirling Wheel of Brahma, vast, immense,
This ‘ Planetarium ’, ‘ Asterarium ’,
In which all souls are circling without rest,
And being born and dying o’er and o’er,
So long as they believe they are the ‘ whirled ’,
Fixed on the spokes and tyres, all separate
From the Fixed Whirler at the Central Nave—
Whoever glimpses his Identity
With It, at once gains Immortality,
Seeing that Twirled and Twirler are the Same,
That the One Self, dances around It-Self,
And finds Him-Self at Rest in Heart of Peace.)

Shrēshtham vānijyam ṛṭam amṛṭam cha mē astī!
Marṭyēna aham kṛita-yān aṣmi Amartyaṃ.
Jānāmi aham shēvaḥdhīḥ iti anitvam,
Na hi a-ḥhruvaiḥ pr-āpyaṭē hi Ḫhrvam Taṭ;
Taño maya, Nachi-kétaḥ!, chiṣṭah Agniḥ;
A-nilīyaiḥ dhrayaiḥ pr-āpta-vān asmi Niṣṭyaṃ!

(Katha U.)

(Behold! My trafficking is truest, best,
And profitable most! For I have sold
My mortal 'pottage' all, and bought with it
My 'birthright' of Immortal Affluence!
I know all store of worldly goods doth pass,
And the un-sure can never win the Sure;
Therefore have I invoked the Fire Divine
And burnt up in It all these transiencies,
And by that sacrifice of mortal things
Have I obtained th' Immortal Self of All!)

Amṛṭam cha ēva mṛtyuṣh cha, ḍvayam ḍēhe praṇīṣṭhītām;
Mṛtyuḥ āpāḍyaṭe mohāt,
Satyaṭ āpāḍyaṭe Amṛṭam.

(Mbh., Śaṅti-p., ch. 174.)

(Death, Life Immortal, both are in us here,
The False Belief brings to us taste of Death,
The Knowledge True gives us Immortal Life.)

God (Sense of Oneness with all, and all that that means) descends into and fills wholly, He blooms and blossoms in, the soul that opens itself out to Him by Love Universal. God loves His lover and identifies Himself with him, so that whatever the latter does, he does in the Great King’s name, and by His Royal Warrant.¹

Yē bhajanṭi tu Mām bhaktyā,
Mayi ṭe, ṭeṣhu cha api Aham. (G.)
(Who love Me are in Me, and I in them.)

Ḍāśānām anu ḍāsah Aham. (Bh.)
(I am the servant of My servants ever.)
(Whoso advanceth but a span to Me.
I go a cubit unto him—saith God.) (H.)

“No man can come to Me except the Father draw him . . . Abide in Me and I in you . . . I am in my Father and ye in Me, and I in you. We know that we dwell in Him, and He in us, because He hath given us of His Spirit.” (B.)

¹ As has been said by a great teacher, “Personality is the synonymn for limitation; the more selfish, the more contracted, the person’s ideas, the closer will he cling to the lower spheres of being, the longer loiter on the plane of selfish social intercourse.” Yet this experience of even intense personality, of existence as an individual separate from other individuals, is necessary, unavoidable, on the arc of descent. Craving for immortality begins as a conscious craving for personal immortality, at the junction point, where Descent ends and Ascent begins; it ends with the realisation that the Personal is inherently Mortal that Immortality belongs only to the Impersonal, and that personalities are not separate from each other, but are all, always, ever, everywhere, identified in and with the Impersonal and Universal.
F-azkurūni azkarakum w-ashkurūli
wa lā takfurūn. (Q.)

(Avoiding gratefully all sense of separateness, Think of Me e'er and I will think of you.)

Yah Mām pashyaṭi sarvāṭra,
sarvam cha Mayi pashyaṭi,
Tāsya Aham na pra-ṇashyāmi,
sa cha Mē na pra-ṇashyati. (G)

(Who seeth Me in all, and all in Me.
I ne'er lose hold of him, nor he of Me.)

Obviously, the purpose of Love-Devotion is Union;
Marriage, in the case of physical bodies; Identification, in the case of jīva and Īshvāra, rūḥ and Rūḥ-ul-arwāḥ, individual soul-spirit and Universal Spirit. Samskrṭ nā mā h, 'salutation' interpreted by methods of Nirukṭa, means nā, not, mā h, 'I', i.e., 'not I but Thou'; 'Thy will, not mine'; not individual ego, but Universal Ego. In some Vedic prayers, the closing words are, more expressly, nā mā mā, 'not mine'. This is the inner significance, of 'I bow to thee', i.e., 'I bow to Thy Will', I submit to and will carry out Thy command.' 'Thy will be done; not mine.'

Whatsoever thou Lovest
That become thou must;
God if thou love God,
Dust if thou love dust.
If thou dwellest on the lowest
Then the lowest must thou be;
Fix thy thought upon the Highest,
And the Highest shalt thou be.

(English Poets.)
Har ān chîzê ke maqsûdê ùç âmâd,
Hamâ'n Maulâ-e-mâ'budê ùç âmâd;
Har ān chîzê ke dâyam dâr dîlê ùsîf,
Hamâ'n, hush dâr, âkhîr hâsilê ùsîf.
Gar gul guzaraç ba khâtir-at, gul bâshi;
Wa-r bulbulu bê-qarâr, bulbul bâshi;
Tû juzw-i, wa Haq Kul aâs; gar rozé chand,
Andêshâ-i-Kul pêsha kunî, Kul bâshi. (S.)
(Whatever with thy heart thou dost desire,
That is thy God adored, undoubtedly;
Whatever thing is in thy heart alway,
That, be thou sure, thou shalt attain, at last.
If rose be in thy heart, thou'lt be a rose;
If nightingale, then that sweet-singing bird.
Thou art a part, God is the whole; if thou Engage and occupy thy-self, some while,
With that Great Whole, it will fill all thy being,
And make thee Whole. The Part becomes the Whole.)
Shraçdhâ-mayah aym purushah,
Yah yat-shraçdhah sah ēva sah.
Anṭa-kâlê cha, Mâm ēva
Smaran, mukąṭvâ kalévaram,
Yah prayāṭī, sa Maḍ-bhāvam
Yāṭi, na aṣṭi aṭra samshayah.
Yam yam vā api smaran bhāvam
Tyajaṭi antē kalēvaram,
Tam tam ēva aīṭi, Kaunṭeyal,
Saḍā ṭaḍ-bhāva-bhāviṭah. (G.)

(The man is what he loves with all his heart,
And places utter faith in, as the Truth.
Whatever thought he harbours in his mind
Most closely at the time that he does cast
His body off—to corresponding state,
In the next world, and in this world again,
He comes, in-form-ed and guided by that mood.
If he should pass out of his prison of flesh,
Thinking of Me, fixing his heart on Me,
Then, let none doubt, he will come unto Me, Become One with Me, and attain My Being.)

On this metaphysical and psychological law seems based the beautiful Christian ceremony of administering the Last Uction and receiving Confession of Faith, before the departing soul withdraws all sign of earthward consciousness; other religions also enjoin more or less similar solemn ceremonies for the purification of the last thoughts of the departing soul; after which, the inward and upward retirement should not be disturbed even by whispered Vēda-hymn or Qurān-verse or other scripture-reading, however sacred.' And, since Analogy prevails throughout, since the small is as the great, and deep sleep is similar to death; therefore, little children should be tenderly and reverently taught, and all

"At the last moment the whole life is reflected in our memory, and emerges from all the forgotten nooks and corners, picture after picture, one event after the other. The dying brain dislodges memory with a strong supreme impulse, and memory restores faithfully every impression entrusted to it during the period of the brain's activity. That impression and thought which was the strongest, naturally becomes the most vivid, and survives, so to say, all the rest. No man dies insane or unconscious... Even a madman, or one in a fit of delirium tremens, will have his instant of perfect lucidity, at the moment of death, though unable to say so to those present. The man may often appear dead. Yet from the last pulsation, from and between the last throbbing of his heart and the moment when the last spark of animal heat leaves the body—the brain thinks, and the Ego lives, in those few brief seconds, his whole life over again. Speak in whispers, ye who assist at a death-bed, and find yourselves in the solemn presence of Death. Especially have you to keep quiet just after Death has laid her clammy hand upon the body. Speak in whispers, lest you disturb the quiet ripple of thought, and hinder the busy work of the Past casting on its reflections upon the veil of the future. It is a wide-spread belief among all Hindus that a person's future pre-natal state and birth are moulded by the last desire he may have at the time of death. But this last desire, they say, necessarily hinges on the shape which the person may have given to his desires, passions, etc., during his past life. It is for this very reason, vis.—that our last desire may not be unfavorable to our favorable progress—that we have to watch our actions, and control our passions and desires throughout our whole earthly career;" The Mahatma Letters, grown-up men and women should make it a rule, to recite some beautiful, holy, soul-elevating, heart-refining verses of earnest prayer, before they go to sleep each night. Their dreams will be beautiful, their minds will make sub-and-supra-conscious progress, and their subtler inner bodies will develop rightly.

When identification between individual and Universal Soul has been really and genuinely made; when the individual body, by purity, self-denial, wisdom, has become 'fit temple for God'; then only may 'miraculous powers' be entrusted to, and be exercised by, it, without danger:

"Whatsoever ye ask in My name, that shall be done." (B.)

Khāsān-i-Khudā Khudā na bāshand,
Lékin ze Khudā juḏā na bāshand. (S.)
(The favorites of God may not be God,
But neither are they separate from God.)

Mayi ḍhārayatḥah chēṭah,
Upa-ṭiṣthanthi siḏḏhayah. (Bh.)
(He who hath fixed his heart, his soul, in Me, My Powers and Perfections wait on him.)

pp. 170-171. This is for the ordinary human being; daily prayers andworships and ethical injunctions of all religions help towards such happy ending. The conditions of Yo g a - s i ḍ ḍ h a - s are different.
Yoga and Védānta mention grades of Muni-s, Siddha-s, Rṣhi-s, Maharshi-s, Dévarshi-s, Paramarshi-s; Sūfis speak of such as Kāmil, Akmal, Mokammal; Buddhism mentions Chohans, Dhyān Chohans, Bodhi-sattvas, Budhhas; Jainism, Arhaṭs, Siddhas, Muni-s, Tīrthabharan-s. Christianity also mentions hierarchies of Saints and Angels.¹

"Angels ... principalities ... powers; ... gods, whether in heaven or in earth, gods many and lords many; ... principality, and power, ... and dominion; ... principalities and powers in heavenly places." (B., Romans, Corinthians, Ephesians, etc.)

As on the Path of Knowledge there is great danger of mistaking the lower self for the Great Self; so, on the Path of Devotion, there is that of supposing love of some one person or personal deity to be the whole of true Universal Love; mistaking ishq-i-majāzi, selfish carnal love, for ishq-i-haqiqi, selfless divine love; imagining kāma and rāga to be bhakti and prēma. Khudā must be very carefully distinguished from khuḍi; nafs-i-lawwāmā, soul that warns, warning voice, nafs-i-muṭmainnā, soul of peace, nafs-i-mulhimā, soul that receives divine inspirations, and nafs-i-rahmānī, soul of divine compassion, from nafs-i-ammārā, earth-ward soul of worldly sensuousness; \( s \)h\( u \)\( d \)h\( a \)m \( m \)an\( a \)s, pure mind, from a-\( s \)h\( u \)\( d \)h\( a \)m \( m \)an\( a \)s, impure mind; higher \( s \)\( v \)\( a \) from lower \( s \)\( v \)\( a \). Otherwise, indeed, \( s \)\( v \)\( a \)-r\( a \)j, Self-government, will become devil-government.

¹ See pp. 284-295, supra.

\( D \)v\( a \) Suparn\( a \) sayuj\( a \) sakh\( a \)y\( a \)
Sam\( a \)n\( a \)m v\( r \)ksh\( a \)m pari-shasvaj\( a \)t\( a \);
\( T \)\( a \)yo\( h \) ek\( a \)h pippalam sv\( a \)d\( u \) a\( t \)\( t \)i,
An-ashnan anyah abhi-ch\( a \)kashi\( t \)i. \( (U. \)

(Two birds of wondrous plumage rest awhile
On this most curious tree of bodied life;
Twins, closest friends, two birds that yet are One,
Each double-wing\( \dfrac{\text{ed}}{} \), like seeds—double-sprouting;
One eats the sweet-sour fruits with eager greed,
And suffers many ills in consequence;
The other looketh on compassionately.)

Very subtle is this dangerous Error of egoism. A hair’s-breadth divides heaven from hell. Both are ever-present in us. Now one prevails; now the other. Wish to save, is heavenly; wish to become a saviour, may lead to purgatory.

\( ^{'} N \)afs-i-amm\( \text{r} \)\( \text{r} \) may be regarded as equivalent to
\( T \)sh\( n \)\( a \)\( c \)hi\( t \)t\( a \)m or vyu\( t \)t\( h \)\( a \)n\( a \)\( c \)hi\( t \)t\( a \)m; nafs-
i-law\( w \)\( \text{n} \)\( a \), ni-sh\( \text{d} \)h\( a \) or ni-ro\( d \)h\( a \)\( c \)hi\( t \)t\( a \)m;
nafs-i-mul\( \text{m} \)ain\( n \)\( a \), pra-sha\( m \)a-chi\( t \)t\( a \)m; nafs-irah\( m \)\( \text{t} \)\( a \), maha\( k \)aru\( n \)a-chi\( t \)t\( a \)m; nafs-i-mul\( h \)\( m \)\( i \)\( m \)\( a \), pra\( t \)i-bha\( c \)hi\( t \)t\( a \)m or yo\( g \)a-chi\( t \)t\( a \)m. Manas seems to correspond to Ar.-Per. k\( \text{h} \)\( \text{t} \)\( a \)\( t \)\( a \), seat of emotions,
(k\( \text{h} \)\( \text{t} \)\( a \)\( t \), Skt. k\( s \)h\( o \)b\( h \)\( a \)) or qal\( b \), ‘heart’.

\( ^{'} N \)afs-i-amm\( \text{r} \)\( \text{r} \) may be regarded as equivalent to
\( T \)sh\( n \)\( a \)\( c \)hi\( t \)t\( a \)m or vyu\( t \)t\( h \)\( a \)n\( a \)\( c \)hi\( t \)t\( a \)m; nafs-
i-law\( w \)\( \text{n} \)\( a \), ni-sh\( \text{d} \)h\( a \) or ni-ro\( d \)h\( a \)\( c \)hi\( t \)t\( a \)m;
nafs-i-mul\( \text{m} \)ain\( n \)\( a \), pra-sha\( m \)a-chi\( t \)t\( a \)m; nafs-irah\( m \)\( \text{t} \)\( a \), maha\( k \)aru\( n \)a-chi\( t \)t\( a \)m; nafs-i-mul\( h \)\( m \)\( i \)\( m \)\( a \), pra\( t \)i-bha\( c \)hi\( t \)t\( a \)m or yo\( g \)a-chi\( t \)t\( a \)m. Manas seems to correspond to Ar.-Per. k\( \text{h} \)\( \text{t} \)\( a \)\( t \)\( a \), seat of emotions,
(k\( \text{h} \)\( \text{t} \)\( a \)\( t \), Skt. k\( s \)h\( o \)b\( h \)\( a \)) or qal\( b \), ‘heart’.
Innahū jasro jahannum wa inna alaihe mamarro jamī-il-khalq, aḍaqqa minn-as-shair wa aḥaddo minn-as-saif. (Q.)

(Over Avernus runs, thin as a hair, Sharp as a sword, a bridge o' er which must pass All souls—only the good can safely cross it.)

Kshurasya dhārā nishīṭa dur-āṭyaya Durgam pāṭbahl tāṭ kavayah vāḍanṭi. (U.)

(Sharp as the razor's edge is th' ancient path, Most difficult to tread—the wise ones say.)

Ashīma ashāī vohu kshaṭhrém mananghā... fro ṭāīśh vīspaīsh Chinvatō rafro pērēthum... yēng khē ērva khaēcḥā khraōḍaṭa ḍaēnā hyāt aībi-gemēn yaṭhrā Chinvatō pērēṭush, yavoī vīspaī ḍurjo dēmānāī aṣṭayo... Yā isho stāonghāṭ ā paiṭhī ākāo arēḍrēng dēmānē garo ṭōraoshānē. (Z., Gathā, 46. 10, 11; 50. 4.)

(With Conscience, Rectitude, and Self-Control As Guides, enable us to cross the Bridge, Chinvat, 'Discriminating' right and wrong, And 'separating' good from evil souls. 'Th' unhappy souls whose Self condemns themselves, When they come to the Bridge that 'separates', Are thrust away into the House of Lies, And have to suffer there long lengths of time. I worship Thee, O Lord !, that on the way Unto the house of Beatific Song,
The Song of Deep Devotion unto Thee,
I may pass safely, e'er adoring Thee.)
(The soul of man, in joy of holiness,
Of perfect holiness, walks o'er the bridge,
Far-known, well-kept, the mighty Chinvat Bridge, Safely and steadily by virtue's aid.) (Z., Vish-tasp, vi, 42).

"Strait is the gate and narrow is the way which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it: [yet also] the kingdom of God is within you." (B.)
The meaning is that the higher Self is within us, and the lower self is also within us. To pass from latter to former is very, very, difficult. Yet is it also very easy. We have only to turn our face from front to back, from outward to inward. But the outward is fascinating and hypnotising us. A geometrical line, length without breadth, runs between our higher and lower natures; each nature is always trying to pull the soul over this line to its own side.¹

¹ In Vedic and Purânic mythos, one of the Creator Brahma's manasa-putra-s, 'mind-born sons', Kashyapa (an anagram of Pashyaka, 'Seer', Sūri, Sūrya, Sun) marries A-diti and Diti (spiritual and material aspects or natures of Earth). By former, he procreates āditya-s, deva-s, gods; by latter, āditya-s, titans. These 'step-brothers' are ever at war, and prevail by turns.
All souls that would walk on this sword-edge bridge-path and pass through this strait gate safely, must cultivate Love Universal selflessly, by constantly meditating on the presence of the Self in all.

Dēvāḥ cha Asurāḥ cha prakṛtyāḥ.
(Shankar-āchārya. Bhāshya on Chhāndogya U.)
(Gods, titans, are but Nature-qualities,
Good, evil; altruism and egoism;
Both are inherent in each living thing.)

In Hebrew, Christian, and Islamic legend, God creates angels; the highest of them, Azazel, promptly develops pride, aḥam-kāra, khudī, rebels and becomes Satan, the prince of d'evils. God then creates the Garden of Eden (far past Satya-yuga, Golden Age); puts Adam, sexless, there; then takes a 'rib' out of Adam and makes Eve; which signifies that man was, at first, sexless, gradually became herm-aphrodite, andro-gyne, and then separated into two different sexes. God forbade the two to eat the fruit of the Tree of Knowledge. But Satan entered the Garden and beguiled them into eating it; i.e., into knowing each other carnally. They 'fell' out of the Garden, and clothed themselves in skins; i.e., they sank deeper and deeper into matter and were born into denser and denser bodies. The Human Race knew the joys and woes of involution and evolution. Such was 'original sin', 'a-vidyā', 'error'. Bye and bye, when Christos, 'anointed with Spiritual Wisdom', arises within man, he attains the 'second childhood' of pure and perfected 'Nocence', gnosis, 'knowing' in place of the 'in-nocence', 'ignorance', of first childhood. Then he re-enters Heaven.

The very witty English writer, Bernard Shaw, has remarked: "Adam was the first cad; he peached against his wife; when questioned by God, he said, 'She tempted
Miśtrasya chakshushā sarvāṇi bhūtāṇi pashyeyam. (V.)

(May I behold all beings with the friend’s eye.)

Évam tu pandītaih jñātva
sarva-bhūta-mayaṃ Hariṃ Kriyatē sarva-bhūtēshu bhaktih a-vyabh-chāriṇī. (Vīṣṇu-Pur.)

me.” He has done injustice to his primal progenitor. What Adam meant was obviously what a child would mean if he said: “The mango tempted me and I did eat”, i.e., the mango was tempting. Even so those first human children of God were tempting to each other, and ‘in-nocently’ committed ‘the original sin’. With this sin are connected all possible emotions, ‘sense of shame and guilt’, of selfish sexuality, as well as ‘sense of fulfillment, satisfaction, (honest and righteous ‘pride’, the opposite of ‘shame’), and virtue of unselfish parenthood—which is the redemption of that sin.

In wider and deeper sense, ‘original sin’ is putting on of a body of matter, however ethereal at first. This ‘error’ of identification of the Infinite with a ‘finite’ is the prime cause of all ‘misery’, klēśha, (as well as corresponding pleasures). In terms of Yoga, from this original a-viḍyā arise successively, āsmitā, rāga, ḍvēśha, abhinivēśha, i.e., egoism, like, dislike, ‘stubbornness’ (clinging infatuation, confirmed sentiment, ‘complex’ personality made up of loves and hates and all sorts of derivative emotions). ‘Pleasures’ as well as ‘pains’, inseparable, are both included under klēśha, ‘misery’, by Vēḍānta and Yoga, from the standpoint of the vīvēkī, ‘sensitive and discriminating thinker’; not from that of the ordinary person, immersed in the world.
Yah ṭu sarvāṇi bhūṭāni
Āṭmani ēva anu-pashyaṭi,
Sarva-bhūṭēshu cha Āṭmānam,
ṭaṭah na vi-jugupsaṭē. (Īsha-U.)

We look before and after,
And pine for what is not;
Our sincerest laughter
With some pain is fraught;
Our sweetest songs are those
That tell of saddest thought. (SHELLEY).

In the Zoroastrian Scheme, Spenta Mainyu and Angra Mainyu, 'bright mind' and 'dark mind', are ever-working ever-opposed forces. (One is tempted to think that English 'anger' is connected with this Zend 'angra'; and Skt. 'angha', to blame, and 'agha', sin), Popularly, but not correctly, Ormuzd (Hormuzd, Ahura-Mazada) has been substituted for Spenta, (Skt., śh vēṭa, white), and Angra-mainyu has been transformed into Ahriman. Philosophically, Ahura-Mazaḍa is the source of both Spenta and Angra.

Thus, always, everywhere, has human mind recognised inevitable ineffaceable 'antagonism' of Dual Principles; an 'antagonism' which is also a 'protagonism'; for, without both, World-Process were impossible.

Yaḍ dévā akurvan taḍ daiṭyāḥ abhī-druṭya pāpmanā avidhyan. (U.)

(What the gods made, the titans did run after
And stain with sin; hence nothing in the world
Is free of either virtue or of vice.)

Na aty-antam guṇa-vat ḫin-chiṭ,
Na aty-anṭam ḷosha-vat taṭhā. (Mbh.)

(Nothing is wholly good or wholly ill.)
(The wise, who see the Lord enshrined in all, Give service unto all in consequence. Who seeth in all beings the Self, him-Self, And all in the same Self, he hates no more.) Ai ba chashmān-i-dīl ma-bīn juz ḍoṣt, Har che bīnī bi-dān ke mazhar-i-Ū-slī (S.)

The Indian maker of famous hymns, Sūr Ḍās sings, Ḍayā-nilā! Ṭērī gaṭī lakhi na parai! Akarama karama, karama ṭēn a-karama, A-dharama dharma karai! (Sūr Ḍās.)

(Lord of Pity! We know not thy way! Out of sin Thou drawest virtue; from it, sin, in play!)

Renowned Scotch novelist, Sir Walter Scott, has included a beautiful song to Ahrimān, in his story, The Talisman. It is commentary on the Upanishat text quoted above.

Dark Ahrimān! whom Irāk still Holds origin of woe and ill! Sure art thou mixed in Nature's source An ever-operating force, Converting good to ill; An evil principle innate, Contending with our better fate, And Oh! victorious still! Where'er a sunny gleam appears, To brighten up our vale of tears, Thou art not distant for; 'Mid such brief solace of our lives, Thou whett'st our very banquet-knives To tools of death and war. [Lurking and working ever, thou, The human heart within, All wish, most virtuous-seeming now,] Thou goadest into Sin (Friend! with the loving vision of the heart
Naught else than friend canst thou see anywhere.
Thou knowest now that all are but His forms.)

Ab hauñ kāsoñ baira karauñ,
Phiraṭa pukāraṭa Prabhu nija mukha tēñ
Ghata ghata Hauñ biharauñ. (Sūr Ḍās.)

(How may I bear hate now to any one,
When my own Lord goes round proclaiming loud
With his own blessed lips: 'I am at play
Hidden behind the beating of all hearts'.)

Jo ġhāir kū āp kar pichānē,
Phir kyũñ kare āṭušmanī, ċiwaṇe!

(S., Bahri, Man-lagan.)

(O lunatic!, if thou dost recognise
That others are thy-Self, whom canst thou hate?)

Hama ďōst, 'all are friends', is the necessary consequence of Hama Ū-st, 'all is and are He.'

Such is the Way of Devotion, the way of ṭasfiyā-i-ḏil, (from safā, clean, pure, whence also Sūfī and Tasawwuf), ṭazkiya-i-ḏil, 'making the heart sharp and sensitive to inspiration from the Higher, and

But also, on the other hand,
An ever greater glory springs
From ruins of the broken past;
And sin its own repentance brings,
Till Man stands Perfected at last.

4 See p. 327, supra.
cutting off its lower tendencies', chiṭṭa-parikarma or chiṭṭa-prasāḍanam, (as Yoga-shāstra calls it), 'cleansing of heart', 'toilette of mind', 'purification of soul'—with its disciplines and practices, vows and vigils, abstinences and observances, negative and positive, its storing and perfecting of five virtues and five further virtues. casting off of sins, its ever-increasing self-effacement, i.e., extinction of the lower smaller worse egoistic self. It is but another and inherent aspect of the Way of Knowledge, for realization of identity of all selves in Universal Self.

A very important teaching of all religions is, that we should welcome strokes of fortune as coming from God, our own Inmost Self, for our soul’s chastening, refinement, further progress on the Path of Ascension, Urḍhva-gaṭi, Āroha, Qaus-i-Urūj, Arc of Ascent, opposite of the Path of Declension, Adho-gaṭi, Av-Āroha, Qaus-i-nazūl, Arc of Descent.

"Whom the Lord loveth, He chasteneth." (B.)

Yasya anu-graham ichchhāmi tasya sarvam harāmi Aham. (Bh.)

Ārto, jijñāsuh, arth-ārthī,
jānī cha, Bharaṭ-arshabha ḷ,
Chaṭur-viḍhāh bhajantē Mām,
janāh sukṛṭinah, Arjuna ! (G.)
(Whom I wish well unto, I rob of all
That he holds dearest and most near his heart;
Thus stricken from the world, he comes to seek
With deadly earnestness to know the Truth
Of how the Wealth of Happiness is found;
And then he learns the Supreme Final Truth
That Happiness is Self and in the Self—
Such the four states of him who loveth Me.)

Ezā ahabb Allāho a'bḍan aghṭammahū b-il-balāē. (H.)

(When God doth love a servant, then he sends Sorrows to try him, and embraces him
Around the neck with arm of adverse fate.)

Wa la nablowannakum be shai-im min al-kḥaufe
w-al-jū-e wa naqṣim min al-amwāli w-al-anfūsi w-as-samarāt; wa bashshiris sābirīn allazīna ezā asabāṭahum musībaṭun qālu, inna l-illāhi wa inna ilaihi rāje-ūn, ulā-ika alaihim salawāṭum miḥrabehim wa rahmah; wa ulāika humu moḥṭāḍun. (Q.)

(Ye will be tried in many ways, indeed;
With fears and hungers, yea, with loss of fruit,
And loss of property and life itself.
But unto those who, when afflictions fall
Upon them, say, calmly and patiently,
'We all are God's, to Him shall we return,'
Unto them give this good news that ye are Followers of the right course, on which rest
The Mercy and the Blessings of the Lord.)

Fuqr bhi hai Haq ki bakhsheyish ka ganj
jis se khushe ho de usi bandhe ko ranj. (S.)

Fahm o khahir tez kardan n-ist rah
Juz shikasta mi na girad fazl-i-Shah. (S.)

(Want is a blessing in disguise from Him;
Who pleaseth Him, to him He sendeth pain.
To sharpen th' intellect is not the Way;
The Royal Gift is for the broken heart.)
Kshudha-trysh-artha jananim smaranthi.

(SHANKAR-ACHARYA.)

(Children forget the mother, in their play, Until they feel an-hungered and a-thirst.)

"Heaven makes hard demands on faith."

(C., Shi King, THR., 38.)

"Humility is the root of honour, lowliness the foundation of loftiness; the world's weakest overcomes the world's hardest."

(T., Tao Teh King, THR., 102.)

"Pride goeth before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall . . . The fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge." (B. Prov.) "Blessed is the man that endureth temptation; for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life which the Lord hath promised to them that love Him." (B., James.)
BLESSED ARE THE MEEK

The titans took great pride; therefore they fell. Let no one therefore overween himself. Pride is the very gateway to defeat.

"Blessed are the poor in Spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven. Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth. Blessed are ye when men shall revile you and persecute you... for great is your reward in heaven." (B.)

"The Kingdom of God cometh not with observation; neither shall they say, lo here!, or lo there!; for behold, the kingdom of God is within you." (B., Luke.)

"It is better to hear the rebuke of the wise, than... the song (of praise) of fools." (B., Eccles.)

Yam pra-shamsanti kitavah,
Yam pra-shamsanti charanah,
Yam pra-shamsanti bandhakayah,
Na sah jivati manushah. (Mbh.)
Sulabhāh purushāh, Rājan!
Saṭaṭam priya-vādīnāh:
A-priyasya cha paṭhyasya
Vakṣā shroṭā cha ṭur-labhah.

(Vālmiki, Rāmāyaṇa.)

(The man who fills with joy and swells with pride,
When he is praised by gamblers and paid bards
And vicious women—he is dead though living.
Easy to find are men who always speak
Soft, pleasing, honeyed words of flattery;
Rare—who speak fearless; rare—who humbly hear,
Words that are harsh to hear but good to heed.)

"Even if we brothers over the whole earth give good examples of holiness and edification—in that is not the perfect happiness; even if we spoke all tongues and knew all wisdom and the whole of the Scriptures and were able to reveal the future and the secrets of the heart; even if we spoke with the tongues of angels and knew the courses of the stars and the powers of herbs, and all the treasures of the earth were revealed to us, and all virtues and powers of birds and beasts and fishes and also the properties of mankind and of trees and stones and roots and water—even in that there is not perfect happiness.
When we endure abuse of words and wickedness of treatment, without becoming angry, when we instead think in humility that we are really deserving of it all—that is perfect happiness. If we endure patiently hunger and cold and blows, and all sorts of suffering injustice, contempt, and harshness, and regard them as trials and crosses, and think how much more we ought to suffer—that is perfect happiness." (St. Francis of Assissi.)

"Knowledge increaseth sorrow... Sorrow is better than laughter; for by sadness the heart is made better. The heart of the wise is in the house of mourning; but the heart of fools is in the house of mirth." (B., Eccles.)

Duḥkham ēva sarvam vivēkinah. (Yoga-Sūtra.)
(To mind, discerning, quick, and wise, Joy is but Sorrow in disguise.)
Pathemata Mathemata. (Greek saying.)
(Sufferings bring knowledge.)
Duḥkha-ṭray-ābhi-ghāṭāṭ
jijñāsā ṭaḍ-apa-ghāṭakē ṛēt̐au.
(Sānkhya-kārikā.)
(When sorrows come, then search for knowledge grows—
Knowledge of cause of sorrows, and their cure.
None asketh, Why have pleasures come to me!)
Duḥkham, dukkha-sam-up-pādam, dukkhassa cha aṭi-kkamam,
Ariyam ch-atth-angikam maggam,
dukkh-ūpa-sama-gāminam. (Dh.)
(Pain, cause of pain, crossing beyond all pain,
The eight-fold way of crossing—these four Truths,
Noble, beneficent, the Buḍḍha taught.)

Hurt child is clasped closest to mother’s breast.
Va-i-rāgya, mūjānibat, very storm of revolt from world of sense, and of passionate compassion for all who suffer, is indispensable for abhyāsa, munāzīlat, turning towards and finding the world of the Spirit.

“Who can by searching find out God? The Kingdom of Heaven is taken by storm.” (B.)

Later on, when the World of Spirit has been found, the World of Matter is assigned its proper place in subordination to it; and after that success has been achieved, the great passionings and extreme efforts needed to achieve success sink into tranquil routine of newly understood and freshly organised duties, and gradual ‘repayment of all Karmic debts,’ ‘winding up of worldly business’, Renunciation and Retirement slowly into Nirvāṇa.

Na ayam Ātmā pra-vachanēna labhyah,
Na mēdhayā, na bahunā shrutiēna,
Yam ēva ēsha vṛnuṭē tena labhyah,
Ṭasya ēsha Ātmā vi-vṛnuṭē tānum svām.
Na a-virātah dush-charitāt,
na ashāntah, na a-sam-āhiṭah,
Na ashānta-mānasah vā api
prajñānēna ēnam āpnyāt. (U.)
Dhyāna-yoga-parah niṣṭyam, vairāgyam sam-up-āshriṭah,
Vimuchya kāmam kroḍham cha,
Brahma-bhūyāya kalpaṭe. (G.)
(By eloquence this Self may not be found,
Nor by much learning, nor sharp intellect;
But if a soul loves It with its whole heart,
Then It too gives Its love unto that soul,
And unto it Its loveliness unveils.
Unless man turn away from evil ways,
Unless he cease from quivering restlessness,
Unless his greed for worldly things die out,
Unless his mind resign and quiet down,
Unless he long for It with all his strength,
He will not gain the Luminous Insight,
The Radiant Vision will not dawn on him.
Only by thinking of It constantly,
Only by casting off all lusts and hates
And all his clinging to the finite, may
He gain the glory of the Infinite,
And thus gain all the world, becoming Brahm.’

Allāho yaṣṭābi ilaihe maṇyāshāo. (Q.)
(God draws unto Him-self the soul Ho loves.)

"Heaven, when about to save one, will protect him with compassion." (T., Tao Teh King, THR., 58.) (Heaven loves the people; therefore gives them aid;
But can there be true love which does not lead
To strict direction, [and correction too,
Of its own object, on the Righteous Path,
The Path which leads to lasting Happiness]? It is not ‘loyalty’, not ‘law-fulness’,
Which unto right instruction does not lead,
Of its own object whom it wishes well.
[Hence Heaven, since It loveth, chasteneth].
There are few persons in the world who love
Yet also know the faults of those they love;
Few also those who hate, yet also know
The virtues of the object of their hate;
[But Heav’n knows all and guides accordingly].
(C., THR., 238.)

As much as Infinite is more than Finite, so much must the love of God for His progeny be more than can ever be the children’s love for God. But the love of God for His progeny is not blind, as that of so many human parents. It is very wise. It knows how to guide, very far-sightedly. The child may forget the mother when engaged in play. But the mother’s heart is always fixed upon it, even when she seems most deeply engaged in other work; and she is always running up to it, whenever any mishap threatens. We have seen (pp. 469, 483), that the Higher Self is always watching, and wishing well to, and endeavouring to redeem the lower self.
Ishvara-prasāda, shubhānu-ḍhyāna, anugraha, tawajjhu-i-Ilāhi, tawajjhu-i-Ilqāi, 'grace of God,' 'inspiration by God,' also guru-kṛpā, mehr-i-shēkk, compassion of the spiritual preceptor and guide, is always helping the worthy seeker, silently. It is true that the seeker must walk the way with his own legs, and must see the Face he seeks with his own eyes; yet is a true guide very helpful, nay, almost indispensable, to make the journey straight, short, safe, and to provide a lamp for illuminating the deep darkness. But the guide cannot force himself on the pilgrim; he attracts and influences supra-consciously, always; but must be sought by the Pilgrim consciously, before he can help consciously.

Ham Khuḍā khwāhī wa ham ḍunyā-i-ḍūn,
Iū muhāl ast o khayāl ast o junūn.
Na gum shuḍ ke rūy-ash ze ḍunyā bi-ṭāft,
Ke gum-gashta-e khwēsh rā bāz yāft. (S.)

(God thou desirest, and the world also—
Absurd thy thought, and insane thy desire!
If thou wouldst find High God, turn thou away
Thy face from worldly things; and do not fear
Thou wilt be lost if so thou turn away!
Rather thy lost Self shalt thou gain again.)

"Ye cannot serve God and Mammon both." (B.)
Vipaḍah saṇtu nah shashvat ṭaṭra ṭaṭra, Jagaḍ-Guro!
Bhavaṇaḥ Ṛarshanam yaḥ syaḥ
a-punar-bhava-ṛarshanam. (Bh.)

(May ills befall us o'er and o'er again,
O Thou Benignant Teacher of the Worlds!
For so alone are we compelled to think
Of Thee, and pray to Thee, and turn to Thee
With our whole heart, whole being, and then see Thy Face Divine—whereafter sorrow ends.)

Lau ya‘lam-ul-momin ni‘lahū min-al-a’jrē f-il-masāyab laṭamannā annahū qrēza b-il-maqāriz. (Q.)
(The man of faith—if he but understood
What blessings would flow unto him from strokes
Of what men deem ill-fortune, he would crave
That he be cut with scissors piece by piece.)

Kā’ba Kā’ba hai, Sanam-khāna Sanam-khānā,
Lēk tūtā ĺil hi asīf maṇzilē Jānāna hai. (S.)
(Kābā is sacred Kābā doubtlessly;
And Fane of worshipped Image, sacred Fane
Also, for sure—but yet the Broken Heart
Is the true permanent abode of God.)

'Tis only through the broken heart
That Christ can enter in. (English Poet.)

"The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit; a broken and a contrite heart, Thou wilt not despise, (B.) Blessed are they that mourn; that suffer and weep."  (B.)

"Love not the World, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him. For all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world. And the world passeth away, and the lust thereof, but he that doth the will of God abideth for ever."  B., John.)

Parikshya lokān karma-chītān, brāhmaṇāh nirvedām āyāt; na asti krśam krśena; Tād-vijñān-ārtham sah gurum ēva abhi-gachchhēt, samīt-pānīh, shroṭriyam Brahma-nisṭham.  (U.)

(Now hast thou tasted to the full the sweets, And even more, the bitters, of the worlds Thy Karma earned; hast deeply tested them. If thou hast had enough, wantest no more Of those embittered sweets that burn the mouth; Hast seen such cannot rest thy soul's unrest; Then, Child of Brahma!, turn thee now to seek Thy long-forgotten Father; then, for help In that Great Questing, go with humble mind, To some true Teacher, wise, benevolent, Who knows the Sacred Science, and is fixed, Steadfast, in Brahma-Super-Consciousness. Make fuel of thy heart, and offer it Unto the Sage; and he will light therein
The Fire Divine that maketh all Life new,
And shows—thy Father and thy-Self are One.)

"O men and women! when your passion, inherently rooted in you, will have exhausted its vitality and been torn out, when sinful thoughts have been abolished, then will you be rewarded for that great achievement; therefore gird up your loins for that high emprise; otherwise, in the end, you will have to exclaim, Alas! Alas!" (Z., Yasna, iii. 7.)

"Foxes have holes and the birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man hath not where to lay his head." (B.)

Therefore, because he gave up all parigraha, all sense of possession, sense of 'egoistic mine-ness', and embraced uttermost poverty, fuqr, sukn, nish-kîn-chânaţä, therefore Son of Man became and was Son of God. The soul which ties itself to nothing, No-Thing-in-Particular, No-Thing-Limited, No-Finite, necessarily includes everything, the All.

A recent western poet, whose path in life was very full of sorrow and remorse for failings which he could not conquer, has illustrated the same ancient teaching of the great teachers and lovers of mankind, with such profound and genuine emotion of heart, and such splendid diction, that his words deserve to be reproduced here.
When so sad thou canst not sadder,
Cry—and upon thy so sore loss
Shall shine the traffic of Jacob's ladder
Pitched betwixt Heaven and Charing Cross.
Yea, in the night, my Soul, my daughter!
Cry, clinging Heaven by the hems,
And lo!, Christ walking on the water,
Not of Gennesareth but Thames.
O World invisible!, we view thee,
O World intangible!, we touch thee,
O World unknowable!, we know thee,
Inapprehensible!, we clutch thee!
Does the fish soar to find the ocean,
The eagle plunge to find the air,
That we ask of the stars in motion
If they have rumour of Thee there?
Not where the wheeling systems darken
And our benumbed conceiving soars,
The drift of pinions, would we hearken,
Beats at our own clay-shuttered doors.
The angels keep their ancient places,
Turn but a stone and start a wing!
'Tis ye, 'tis your estranged faces
That miss the many-splendoured thing!

(Francis Thompson.)

Nirbala ke bala Rama. (Hindi proverb.)
(God is the strength of the weak and the meek.)
Repentance, humility of spirit, utter faith in and self-surrender to God, (at first a Personal, ultimately the Impersonal and All-personal)—this is the only way to Salvation,

Alam Kalau vraṭaiḥ tīrṭhaiḥ
Yogaiḥ shāśṭraiḥ, alam makhaiḥ,
Alam jñāna-kaṭhā-lāpaiḥ.
Bhaktīḥ ēkā ēva mukti-ḍā.

(Bhāgavata Māhātmya.)

(Enough of pilgrimages, vigils, vows, Porings o' er books, and Yoga-practices;
Put by all sacrificial rituals,
Have done with philosophic arguments;
Give all thy love, to God—thy heart, to Me,
So only from all fear wilt thou win free.)

Saḍ kiṭāb o saḍ waraq āgar nār kun,
Jān o ār rā jānib-ē-Dīl-ḍār kun. (S.)

(Fling all thy piles of books into the fire;
And turn thy heart unto the Heart's Desire!)

In the ages of Kali, of perpetual warrings; of ruthless riot and revel of egoism, lawlessness, disorder; of tyrannical oppression of the weak by the strong; of torturing of innocents by wolves and tigers in human shape; in such periods, renunciation of the world, absolute surrender to God, and life in convents, monasteries, māṭha-s, kḥāneqāhs, or forests—is the natural refuge of the weak and the sensitive. But horrors follow them there also.

When we happen to come across descriptions of the debaucheries, abortions, infanticides, in these 'houses of religion'; of the doings of Inquisitors in medieval Europe; of other religious fanatics elsewhere; of their burnings and buryings alive, their flaggings, mutilations, rackings, of men, women, and children—such horror grips the heart that it becomes difficult to read on, and the whole soul cries in agony: Why, why, dost Thou permit such dire cruelties! The only, and sufficient, answer and consolation is that truly does God, the God, in the victims, suffer it all Himself, for the extreme experience, (in the deepest sense 'enjoyment'), of the tragic side of World-Drama; for greater glory and bliss of the 'victims' in their after-life; for their exaltation in heaven and on earth as martyrs whose blood is seed of the tree of Virtue; for making enviable use of them as exemplars with which to infect the world with heroism; for expiating wholly all their own past sins, of previous lives or of this, making them reflect poignantly on the nature of the World-Process and the Meaning of Life, teaching them to put their faith in Self, and not in anything or person else; for taking them to His Infinite Heart more closely; for creating indefeasible desire for expiation in the souls of (the inverted God or Satan pseudo-God, in) the 'victimisers', by inevitable reaction and revulsion of feeling, whereby they too will be compelled from within to expiate their grievous sins, will be regenerated in due course, and will regain the paradise they have now lost; and, finally, for teaching to all, turn by turn, age after age, of the lesson of Sātya, 'steadfastness in Truth', A-himsā 'non-violence,' Tyāga, 'self-sacrifice,' Brahma-charīya, 'continence, self-control,' and Nirahamkārița, 'denial of and freedom from ego-ism, the lower and smaller self'; from which conquest of the lower self, 'self-effacement,' flow all other virtues and perfections of soul, specially 'the crowning virtue of Humility', tawakkul, Īshvāra-praṇidhāna, resignation, submission, pra-paṭṭi, surrender to and utter trust in God, the Universal Self. Truly is Humility, with its patience under suffering, the crown of virtues, since it means that the false separative ego, which asserts itself as 'other than others', has been let out, and God, the all-pervading, all-including, Universal Ego, has been let in.

Humility is indeed only another name for non-egoism. That, in its fulness, results from Sātya, Truth, not only practice of truthfulness in speech, but realisation of the Ultimate Truth of Oneness of all selves in the Universal Self. From non-egoism arise naturally all the five principal, and many derivative, virtues spoken of before, in ever greater perfection. Of five principal virtues, three may be regarded as including the other two, and as being counter-actives of three 'appetites', root-desires, mentioned earlier. Ahimsā, non-violence, is the opposite of Lokā-ēshanā, Hirs-i-dunyā, hawas-i-zindagi, Hunger of mind and body, wish for self-maintenance, (which cannot be fulfilled without hurting some one else, more or less), and consequent Krodha, Khashm, Hate of others; Satya, truthfulness of speech, may be regarded as part of this, for untruthfulness is intended to hurt others, directly or indirectly. Brahma-charya, Pak-damanī, Par-īz, Continence, purity, is opponent of Dāra-suṭa-ēshanā, Ārzū-e-tawallud, and Kāma, Shahwaṭ, Lust, sexuality, wish for self-multiplication. Aparigraha, Tyāga, Fugr, Sukn, renunciation of possessions and property, is opposite of Viṭṭa-ēshanā, Tama'-i-zar, and Lobha, Tawalla', Greed, acquisitiveness, wish for self-aggrandisement; Aṣṭeṣya, non-stealing, is obviously included in it. Thus is Truth the fount of all virtues, and Humility the crown of them.

Be it remembered, here, that, for the Path of Descent of the soul and of Pursuit of Matter by it, the three appetites, in due degree, are sources of (1) religion and law, (2) property, and (3) home and family instincts and institutions—all righteous, in due degree.
Another reminder must be given here also, again, in connection with practice of humility, viz., 'Duty varies with Circumstance.' While everyone should feel humble in heart, and before the Supreme Self; it will not do always to show humility to every vicious human being one may have to deal with. The task, the duty, of acting with discrimination, can never be shirked without grave danger. To reflect, to discriminate, is no doubt often more difficult than to act on the spur, the impulse, of the moment. Yet the latter way is not safe. Advance in human evolution means clear thinking and wise discernment. Simple mind naturally wants to be given some very simple rule to go by. We have seen before, a companion of Muhammad's asked him to name just one virtue which covers all; and a similar request was made to Confucius by a disciple. Arjuna also said to Kṛṣṇa:

Vyā-mishréṇa iva vākyéṇa
buḍḍhim mohayasi iva mé;
Ṭaḍ ékam vaḍa nish-chiṭya,
Yéna shréyah a-ham āpnuyām. (G.)

(Thy speech, commixt of many subtle thoughts,
Confuses my poor mind. Therefore tell me
Some one thing, sure and certain, beyond doubt,
By following which I may attain to Good.) material, then, is this aspect of Religion, though its only foundation is the theoretical, ideal, Metaphysical, Spiritual Fact of the Unity of all selves in the Universal Self.

धर्माद अर्थह च खामाह च,
Sa kim-artham na sevyate? (Mbh.)

(All Riches and all Joys do flow from Law—
The law of rights-and-duties that is shown
In final truth by Religion alone—
Men!, Why do ye not then follow the Law !)

कुठाद को पाया तो क्याना पाया,
Khuđā ko pāya to kyā na pāya,
Khuđā milā to sabhī milā hai. (S.)

(If ye gain God, what can ungained remain?
Find God and ye shall surely all else gain !)

"Achieve righteousness and all things else shall be added." (B.)

After all, Pain is inseparable companion of Pleasure.

Mutual Balancing of Pleasure and Pain.

Metaphysical, Divine, Law of Polarity,
Duality, Opposition, द्वाम्, ‘Two-and-two,’ Zidāin and Zaujain, ‘Opponents-Spouses’, necessitates both. That man deliberately, sadistically, inflicts torture upon fellowman—excites horror to its utmost, no doubt. But willing submission to such torture, for a noble cause, in the name of the Universal Self, develops Heroic Humility to its utmost, also. And there is the consolation, that the never-failing Law of Action and Reaction makes adjustment inevitable. The souls of all, victim and victimiser, have to pass through all kinds of experience, in the course of the vast eons of cyclic evolution. Victim has been victimiser. Victimiser shall be victim. So far as mere physical pain is concerned, Nature's winds, waters, fires, earthquakes, accidents of all kinds, predateceans, reptiles—are always inflicting awful tortures upon human beings as well as animals. Human beings have to learn to keep an equable mind in pain as well as pleasure. What right have we to take all the mass of pleasure (no whit less, by metaphysical calculus, than the total mass of pain, in the universe) which we derive from 1 Some sects of Christianity, e.g., Calvinists, are said to hold that some souls are pre-destined to eternal Hell, and others to eternal Heaven. There are corresponding sects in Hinduism and Islam, which also believe in nīṭya-nārakikās or nāriyān and nīṭya-svārgikās or nūriyān. The element of truth in these beliefs is that 'heaven' and 'hell', love and hate, bliss and misery, are eternal facts; but the souls that dwell in those regions, and pass through those states, are always changing; like inmates of pleasure parks, and of prisons, in a great city. Each 'person' has to taste all experiences, all joys and all sorrows, turn by turn, one after another. Indeed, Love is Heaven, and Hate is Hell; and both may be found anywhere and every-where, on this planet and plane, or on any other planet or star and plane, which is as far from this, as this is from that.

'the world beautiful', as our due? Why do we give no thanks for it? Why not balance it against the pain, which we equally derive from 'the world horrid'? What right have we to cry out, and make complaint, against the latter only?

Na jyēshthāsah na kanishthāsah étē.

(Shaṭapatha Brāh.)

(None among souls is, on the whole, Greater than any other soul.)

Paryāya-yogāt, vihiṭam Viḏhāṭrā, Kālena sarvam labhaṭe manushyah.
Sarvān ēva ēshah paryāyah marṭyān sprṣhaṭi ḍus-sahah;
Yaṭhā mama taṭhā anyēsḥām, iṭi pashyaṭ na muhyaṭē.
Evaṃ ēṭāni kālena priya-dvēshyaṇi bhāgashah,
Jīvēshu parivarṭanṭē ḍuḥkhāṇi cha sukhāṇi cha.
Sukhasya ananṭaram ḍuḥkhāṃ, ḍuḥkhāṣya ananṭaram sukhāṃ;
Na nitiṃ labhaṭē ḍuḥkhāṃ.
na nitiṃ labhaṭē sukhāṃ.
Sukham cha ḍuḥkhāṃ cha, bhay-ābhayau cha,
Lābh-ālābhau, marañāṃ jīviṭam cha,
Paryāyaṭah sarvē ēva āpnuvaṇṭi,
Tasmāt na muhyēt, na cha sam-pra-hṛshyēt,
Samādhi-mān vishva-ḍarshi manushyah.

(Mbh., Śānti-p., ch. 25.)

Na bhavaṭi viḍushām mahaḍ bhayam,
Yaḍ a-viḍushām su-mahaṭ bhayam bhavēt;
Nahi gaṭih aḍhikā aṣṭi kasya-chīṭ,
Sakṛṭ upa-ḍarshayaṭi iha ṭulyaṭām.

(Op. cit. ch. 291.)

(Each one, in turn, gets everything—such is The Law of the Fate-Master, who makes all.
As ‘I’, so all these others too must pass Through this e’er-circling wheel—who knoweth thus,
He feels not overwhelmed, whate’er befall.
What is desired and what is not desired,
Pleasure and pain, come unto all by turns.
Pain follows pleasure, pleasure follows pain,
Unvaryingly; neither can last for ever.
Sorrow and joy, and fear and fearlessness,
Loss, gain, hurt, health, and life and death also,
Do come, by turns, to every one of us.
Therefore let none grow too elate with joy,
Nor too depressed and overpow’red by grief.
That which is fearsome unto the unwise,
That same bringeth no terror unto those
Who know that, on the whole, in net result,
None can exceed, in ambit, any else.
All equal are—to us, thus Scripture tells.)
Atra eva svargah, atra eva narakah. (Bh.)
(Heaven is here, in us, and so is Hell.)
Ghair-haq guftand ke bar alam-e-bala-st bahisht;
Har ja ke waqte-kusho rū dihaď, ān jā-st bahisht. (S.)
(They err who say that Heaven is on high; Wherever there is joy, there Heaven is nigh.)
Duhkheshu an-ud-vigna-manah,
sukheshu vi-gaṭa-spṛḥah,
Viṭa-rāga-bhaya-kroḍhah,
śtiṭa-ḍhīḥ munih uchyate. (G.)
Duhkhē duḥkh-āḍhikam pashyēt, sukhē pashyēt sukh-āḍhikam;
Sukha-duḥkha-mayam sarvam
jñāṭvā ūpēna muchyate. (Purāṇas.)
(Not 'whelmed by sorrow, nor elate in joy,
Of others' greater pains, and pleasures, think,
To check despair, and overweening pride.
Who thus sees weal and woe spread everywhere,
He casts off lust, hate, fear, and gaineth Peace.

Whoever humbles himself as this little child, he is the greatest in the kingdom of Heaven. Whoever shall exalt himself shall be humbled. God giveth grace to the humble. (B.)
(Pride bringeth loss; humility, increase;
This is the way of Heaven. He comes to ruin
Who says that others do not equal him.)

(C., Shu King, THR., 101.)

Inna Allah lā yohibbo kulle mukḥṭālin fukḥurin. (Q.)
(God loveth not the self-conceited proud.)

Sukham shētē hi ava-maṭah sukham cha praṭi-buḍhyaṭē,
Sukham chaṛati lokē asmin;
ava-maṇṭā vi-nashyaṭi. (M.)
(The wise who bear slights humbly, sleep, wake, walk,
With tranquil mind; the slighter perisheth.)

Thus does God's Nature educate all into true Humility ultimately, and into Duty of emergence of individualistic into Universal (and therefore social)
Will, true Spiritual Communism and Socialism.

Ultimate lesson of it all, for purposes of practical action in daily life, is: Do your Duty devotedly. But to do our duty, we must know precisely what our duty is. The one sole purpose of whole of Gītā is to explain to Arjuna what his duty is to do, in the particular circumstances in which he finds himself, with reference to duties of others.
Avaréna ya vichithahyā narēm
         narēm svakhyāī ātanūyē. (Z., Gāthā, 30. 2.)
(Let each man ascertain with heed and care
What he ought, what his duty is in life,
That which is good and right for him to do.)

Duty is what is 'due', 'debt', déya (Skt.), dād (Per.), dātha (Z.), 'something to be given to another,' which 'ought' to be done, which is uchita (Skt.), ushṭa (Z.),1 'desirable', right and proper. Obviously, what is right and proper to do, 'Duty', differs with circumstances, as noted before,2 with position in life, profession, age, special situation (normal or abnormal, fortunate or unfortunate, straitened or prosperous), of the person concerned. Child, youth, middle-aged, old; student, householder,
retired publicist, religieux; educator, ruler, merchant, workman; all have different duties. Same man in health, and in illness, has different duties. Duty of Educator may be said, in terms of 'family feeling', to be Maternal Tenderness, Compassion, nourishing of mind-body of younger generation; of Ruler-Protector, Paternal Justice, Regulation, Disciplining, Balancing; of Tradesman, Fraternal

1 Shri J. M. Chatterji, Gāthā, (p. 148), connects Zend USHTRA with Skt. vasah, to 'wish', past participle of which is vashita. Skt. ish also means to 'wish'; its past participle is ishta, 'wished-for', 'desirable'.

2 See pp. 97, 411-426 supra.
Helpfulness and Charity; of Workman, Filial Service, Obedience, abdiyaṭ. But the general rule, for the mature of mind and body, is:

Do your Duty, your Farz, your Kṛṣṭya, to your fellow-beings; in the spirit of philanthropy, of Devotion to the forces of Good in World-Drama; in good fortune and ill, without thought of gain for only yourself; undeterred by indolence or doubt or fear of suffering; content with the remains of sacrifice, if any, and without even them, if there are none; full of utter faith in the Omniscient Wisdom of the Universal Supra-conscious, with complete submission and surrender of your small self to that Infinite Self. This is ultimate practical lesson of all Religion.

"Tao is near, and men seek it at a distance. Duty lies in what is easy, and men seek it in difficult tasks. Let each man love his parents, and respect his elders; there will then be tranquillity in all the land." (Mencius, quoted by Inazo Nitobe, Japan, p. 346.)

Uṭṭhānam cha api ādaivasya hi, an-uṭṭhānam cha ādaivaṭam;
Prājñāḥ purusha-kārē ṭu
varṭantē, ādaivam āṣṭhitāh. (Mbh.)

(Inactive indolence, active emprise—
Both equally are caused by Īḍaiva-Fate;
We know not what is fated, what is not;
Therefore the wise take action duteously
And strenuously, leaving result to Fate.)

"Take no thought for the morrow. (Even) one sparrow shall not fall on the ground without your Father. The very hairs of your head are all numbered. (Yet) whatsoever (of duty) thy hand findeth to do, do it with all thy might." (B.)

Ishvarah sarva-bhūtānām
ḥṛḍ-ḍēshē, Arjuna l, ṭīshthaṭi, Bhrāmayan sarva-bhūtānī
yanṭr-ārūḍhāni, Māyayā,
Ṭasmā t a-sakṭah satātam
kāryam karma sam-āchāra;
A-sakṭah hi ācharan karma
Param āpnoṭi pūrushah.
Karmaṇī ēva aḍhi-kārah tē,
ma phalēshu kaḍā-chana,
Mā karma-phala-hēṭuḥ bhūh,
ma tē sangah astu a-karmaṇi.
Yajña-shisht-āshinah sanṭah
muchyantē sarva-kilbishaṭ;
Bhunjate tē tu agham pāpah
yē pachanṭi āṭma-kāraṇāṭ. (G.)

(God bideth hidden in the hearts of all,
And turneth them around, as if they were
All mounted on an infinite machine.
Therefore the part assigned to thee do well,
Thy Duty, and cling not to thought of fruit.
So acting, with detachment from all thought
Of selfish gain, thou hast already gained
The Highest Gain there is to be attained.
Only the remnants of thy sacrifice
Are, by the Law, permitted unto thee.
Who makes and tastes all tasteful goods and foods
Himself, alone, he makes and tastes but sin.
To do thy duty is thy only Right—
Duty of Service of thy fellow-beings;
No right hast thou to wish for other fruit.
Think not of gain, nor of inaction either,
And self-deluding slothful idleness.)
Qulūb-ul-khalāyaq fir asābi-ir-Rahmān. (Q.)
Ramze "al-kāsib habīb Allah" shinau,
Az ūrūkku lā dar sabab ghāfil ma shau.
Rau, ūrūkku kun tu bū kasb, ai umu!
Jehū mī kun, kasb mī kun, mū-ba-mū. (S.)
(Around the fingers of Almighty God
The hearts of all His creatures ever twirl.
Therefore, the secret of all righteous will
Is, not to shirk, but to do manfully
Thy Duty in accordance with God's Will.
The Prophet said, 'The worker loveth God
And is beloved of God'. O! be not blind,
But see the true import of what he said.
Surrender thy whole being unto God,
But be not negligent of this great fact
That only duteous action proves thy faith,
And that effects are not produced sans cause.
Thy effort, as a cause, is in His Will.
Prove thy submission by thy righteous deeds;
Thy duty, by a hair's-breath e'en, shirk not.)

Supreme is Bliss of such Mergence of small will into Great Will, of such Dutiful surrender, such Humility.' When mutual mergence, and identification of life, being, interests, of spouse and spouse, in finite human marriage, are so blissful; infinitely

'Ever-recurring question of Free-will vs. Destiny has been dealt with before, at pp. 249-257. No one believes in Destiny so completely and sincerely as to make no movement to lift morsel from plate to mouth, and allow 'Destiny' to do so for him. Of course, in metaphysical transcendental sense, from standpoint of the Infinite, every movement of every atom, every experience, is predestined, ultimately; but every human effort, also, is included in this 'every movement'. From empirical standpoint of the Limited, every human experience depends, immediately, upon, and is necessarily connected with, an effort of some sort, negative or positive; willful, or careless, or lazy non-exertion also is to be regarded as 'negative effort', as contra-exertion.

Purusha-kāra-pūrvakātvāt sarva-pravrūtiṁām, upāyah prātyayah. (Vātsyāyana, Kāma-sūtra, I, 1. 38.)
(All human movements and experiences are preceded by human effort; hence effortful means must be regarded as cause of results desired.)

'* How ascertain the Great Will?*—for answer, see p. 108 supra, and section 20, 'Social Organisation', of Ch. IV infra.
greater must be, is, Bliss of mergence of Finite and Infinite; Joy of realisation that jīva is Brahma, rūh is Rūh-ul-Rūh, Rūh-i-Ā'zam, that Man is very God. Ecstatic joy of this realisation has been described in all religions. God is Love. Love is God. Mutual Devotion, Devotion of one to All, of All to each—this is goal of Path of Devotion.

Pūrṇ-ānand-aika-rūpa-Rasa-boḍhah.
Raso vai sah. Ėshah rasāṇām Rasa-ṭamah. Kṛṣṇah
Rasa-ghanah ēva.
Ātmanah tu kāmāya sarvam vai priyam bhavaṭi.
Ānandam Brahmaṇah vidvān na bibhēti kuṭash-chana. (U).

(One taste, sap, Savour of Life-Consciousness, One relish, one full feel of Bliss compact—He is the only Savour in the world, He is the flavour-essence by which all The savors of the world are flavoréd. Whate’er is dear is dear for sake of Self. He who has known the Taste of that Great Bliss Of gain of Self—he knoweth fear no more.)

"Ye are the temple of God. Ye are the salt of the earth. If the salt lose its Savor, with what shall it be flavored? What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world but lose his own soul?" (B.) "Rejoice in the Lord, always, and again I say, Rejoice." (B. Paul.)
"He saith: 'I am the ground (i.e., object, purpose, cause, motive) of thy beseeching.' Wouldst thou learn thy Lord's meaning in this thing? Learn it well: Love was His meaning. Who showed it thee? Love. What showed He thee? Love. Wherefore? For love." (Mother Juliana of Norwich, Revelations of Divine Love.)

"Beloved, let us love one another; for love is of God, and everyone that loveth is born of God and knoweth God. He that loveth not, knoweth not God. For God is Love." (B.)

Ma bādā héch dīl bē ishq-bāzī,
Agar bāshaḍ haqīqī yā majāzī;
Majāz āyīna-ḍār-ē-rūy-e-mānī-st,
Sar-ē īn jalwa ham čar kū-e-mānī-st. (S.)

(Be there no heart wholly devoid of love—
Be that love human or be it divine;
For human love too mirrors love divine;
The flame of this lights up the path to that.)
Rah-ē aql juz pēch čar pēch n-īst.
Bar-ē ā'rīfān, juz Khuḍā héch n-īst. (S.)
(The way of reason is twist within twist;
To those who know, than God Else is Non-est.)
(Love wisely—that is best; for to do that
Is to love all the living things of God,
And to give each its due of loving justice;
But if thou canst not, then love foolishly;
'Tis better far than not to love at all.)
A western writer has said well:
"God is love in essence. Love is God in solution. In so much as we love we are in God and God is in us, and in so far as we do not love we are without God, in this world or any other. The Ideal Church of all religions and philosophies is the same. It is the union of all who love in the service of all who suffer."

Lower love, of the lower self, one's own little particular separative self, khuddī, ahamkāra, desires to take; higher love, of the larger Self, Universal all-embracing Self of all, desires to give. 'He wants my body; I want his soul.' The conflict between Pleasure and Duty, Préyas and Shrēyas, Svārthā and Paramārthā (V.), Lābha and Nibbān (Bu.), Druj and Ashā (Z.), Gharz and Farz (S.), Heart and Head, selfishness and selflessness, Egoism and Altruism; this conflict is dissolved and antagonists are reconciled, only when ego and alter realise their identity, when every alter, 'other', becomes an alter-ego, small self becomes All-Self.¹

¹In western philosophy, Epicureanism is regarded, popularly, as the school of thought which holds that refined sensuous pleasure is the best aim of life; and Stoicism as that with thinks that virtue alone brings happiness, and that performance of duty, at the cost of whatever pain may be involved, is highest end of life.
Then ‘worthiness’ and ‘pleasurableness’ become identical; Joy becomes Duty and Duty becomes Joy, Law becomes Love and Love becomes Law. The mother lives, in and for her baby; her altruistic tending of the baby, with utter disregard and sacrifice of her personal comfort, is means of her own ‘personal’ comfort, of her very life. Such is the open paradox of love, Mother-love, God-love. The soul still lingering on the Path of Descent, Pra-vṛtṭi, Nazūl, naturally clings to the smaller self; the soul which has turned the junction point, and crossed over to the Path of Ascent, Urūj, Ni-vṛtṭi, equally naturally clings to the Larger, the Infinite Self.

Ṭyāgēṇa ēkēṇa āmṛtātvam ānashuh. (U.)
(They only can taste Immortality,
Who can eschew the taste of mortal joys.)

The distinction commonly made between ‘hedonism’ and eudaimonism’ is much the same. But, strictly, difference between views of Epicurus and Zeno, both Greeks, and contemporaries, (340-270 B.C.), was not at all so sharp. Thus Epicurus is reported as saying: “If thou wilt make a man happy, add not unto his riches, but take away from his desires”, and “We cannot live a life of pleasure which is not also a life of prudence, honor, and justice; nor lead a life of prudence, honor, and justice, which is not also a life of pleasure”: (Baldwin, Dictionary of Philosophy, art. ‘Epicureanism’). This is sound Vēḍānta and Vaiḍīka Dharma also. Walter Pater has tried to put Epicurean Philosophy in elaborate literary form, in his story Marcus, the Epicurean.
Yaṭ cha kāma-sukham lokē,
yat cha divyam mahaṭ sukham, Trṣhṇā-kshaya-sukhasya ētē
na arhaṭah shodashim kalām.

(Yoga-Bhāshya, ii. 42.)

(These sense-delights of earth and even heaven,
They weigh not e’en as much as one-sixteenth
Of the deep Joy of Ceasing of Desire.)

Na viṭṭēna tarpanīyah manushyah.
Lapsyāmahē viṭṭam aḍrākshma chēṭ āvā?
Jīvishyāmah, yāvaḍ īshishyasi āvam;
Varah tu mē varanīyah sah āva. (Katha U.)

(‘Man lives not by material bread alone’.
No vastest wealth can satisfy the soul.
Death! while we see thee not, so long we live!
We live only so long as thou permittest.
And, with the body, earthly goods all die.
Thou wilt take back these goods when’er thou pleasest.
Can we to coins cling after seeing Self?
Can we retain earth’s riches after death?
The soul craves immortality, not wealth!)

But—Dharma tells us, as Bible does, that there is a time for everything, a time for duly regulated Desire, and a time for Desirelessness.¹

¹ See pp. 98-99 supra.
Shréyah cha Préyah cha manushyam ôśah;
Tāu sam-par-ītya vi-vinakti dhirah;
Shréyah hi dhirah abhi préyasah vrñîte;
Préyah maṇḍah yoga-kshēmād vrñîte. (U.)

(The Good comes unto Man; also the Pleasant.
Each asks to be accepted. The wise man,
Of steady and calm mind, compares the two,
Discerningly discriminates 'twixt them,
And chooses not the Pleasant but the Good.
The hapless child-mind chooses otherwise.)

Anyāt shréyah anyāt uṭa ēva préyah . . . Ātmā ayam jyēṣthah cha shréṣthah cha (prēṣthah cha) . . . préyah puṭrāt, préyah viṭṭāt, préyah anyasmāt sarvasmāt. (U.)

(The Good is one; the Pleasing is another.
But Self is both. It is the Greatest Good;
It is the Dearest and most Pleasing too;
And Ancient-most by far. It is more dear
Than riches, spouse, or child, or any thing.
Whate'er is dear is dear for sake of Self.)

Anyā hi lābh-ōpanishā, anyā nibbāna-gāmini. (Dh.)
(The way of worldly gain is one; another,
The way that leadeth unto the Great Peace.)

It has been well said that "Every question of conduct, to be finally settled, must be carried up for decision to the court of the Supreme Mother".
As particular is to Universal, part to Whole, so is each duty to Virtue in general. Each immediate end, purpose, aim of or in life, is more or less consciously subordinated to or connected with another beyond it; until, in the case of a consistent life, we finally trace them all up to the final aim. This aim, in all religions, is finding of, and merging into, the Supreme Self or God. In other words, each question is tied to some other question; that to another; until we come to the final question, 'Who am I, and What is This, and What is the Relation between I and This'. The answer to this answers all questions; including those relating to reconciliation of various particular duties with each other and with Virtue in general; and also those pertaining to reconciliation of the Pleasant in general and the Good in general.¹

Gain of one’s own soul, recognition of one’s own and of all others’ identity with Universal Self, and permanent tasting of that Divine Savour, is goal of Devotional aspect of the Tri-une Way called Religion.

¹ Recognition of this need keeps cropping up even in stories which are at all thoughtful: thus: “Some working explanation of the universe is necessary, however absurd, to the happiness of every individual who seeks to do his duty in the world and face the problems of life.” Algernon Blackwood, The Willows.
Kulle shayìn hàlikun juz wajh-i-Ü.
Gar ṭu-ī ðar wajh-i-Ü, hàṣṭī ma jū,
Chūn na-ī ðar wajh-i-Ü, hàṣṭī ma jū. (S.)

(All forms appear and pass. His Being lasts.
If thou art in that Being ¹—as thou art,
Since how else couldst thou say ‘I am,’ ‘I am’—
Then thou art sure of deathless Being too,
And there is nothing more for thee to seek.
If part and parcel of Him thou be not,
Then too there’s nothing more to seek, for thee;
For vain thy search for Deathlessness would be.)

Joy of that Divine Union, only and final cure for all world’s sorrows, must be, and is, inevitably, unconsciously at first and consciously afterwards, striven for and achieved by all souls.

Bishkanad ðaṣṭé ke kham ðar gardané yaré na shud,
Kor beh chashme ke lazzat-gir diḍāre na shud. (S.)

(Be paralysed the arm that knows not Rest
In tender curve around the Loved One’s waist;
Be blind the eyes that tasted ne’er the Bliss
Of the sweet Vision of the Loved One’s face.)

¹ In theosophical phraseology, ‘If the fifth principle, Manas, has attached itself to the sixth, Budhhi, which is inseparable from the seventh, Ātmā; in Védánta-language, ‘If the individualised self, has attained the consciousness that it is identical with Universal Self, Brahma’.
Shakle-insān mēn Khuḍā ṭhā,
mujhe māl'ūm na ṭhā;
Chāṇḍ bāḍal mēn chhipā ṭhā,
mujhe māl'ūm na ṭhā. (S.)
(I saw Thee not before—I see Thee now,
Belov'd! Thou peeppest forth from every face!
I saw Thee not before—behind the clouds,
Beloved!, Thou didst hide, I see Thee now!.)

Ṭat yaṭhā priyāyā jāyāyā sam-pari-shvakṭah, na bāhyam kin-chana vēḍa na āntaram, ṭat vā asya ēṭat āpta-kāmam a-kāmam rūpam shok-āntaram.
(Bṛhad U).

(As loving man and wife, when they embrace,
Are both dissolved in but one feel of Love,
One feel of Unity, and know naught else,
Outside their body or inside their mind:
E'en more, the Soul when it embraces God,
And feels its Unity with the All-Self,
Passes beyond all sorrow, all desire;
For all desire is now for e'er fulfilled.)

Yuvaṭīnām yaṭhā yūni,
Yūnām cha yuvāṭau yaṭhā
Manah abhi-ramaṭe, ṭaḍ-vaṭ
Manah mé ramaṭam Tvayi. (Ṣṭotra.)

(As maid delights in youth, and youth in maid,
So may my mind rejoice in Thee, my Lord!.)
"If the soul is to go on to higher spiritual blessedness, it must become woman—yes, however manly you may be among men." (Cardinal Newman.)

"Let him kiss me with kisses of his mouth. For Thy love is better than wine. Behold, Thou art fair, my Beloved, yea, pleasant. Also, our bed is green. His left hand is under my head, and His right hand doth embrace me." (B., Song of Songs.)

Mīrā kē Prabhu gahira gambhirā!
Āḍhi-rāṭa ko ṛdarshana dēṅgē
Prēma-naḍī kē tīrā!
Hirḍaya rākho ḍhīrā! (Mīrā.)

(Be patient, O my heart !, for Mīrā's Lord
Is very shy; He comes not till midnight;
Then will He show His Beauty unto Thee
On the lush bank of Love's deep-flowing stream !.)

Upon an obscure night,
Fevered with Love's anxiety,
—O hapless happy plight!—
I went, none seeing me,
By night, secure from sight,
And by a secret stair, disguisedly.
Without a light to guide,
Save that which in my heart, burnt in my side.
That light did lead me on,
More surely than the shining of noon-tide.
Where, well I knew, that One
Did for my coming bide.
Upon my flowery breast,
Wholly for Him, and save Him-Self for none,
There did I give sweet rest
To my Beloved One.
The fanning of the cedars breathed thereon,
All things I then forgot.
My cheek on His, who for my wooing came,
All ceased, and I was not,
Leaving my cares and shame
Among the lilies and forgetting them.

(St. John of the Cross.)

A reminder is needed here. Man's Duty is to A Reminder. obey God's Will, his own Inmost Self's Will. That Will is, (if teachings of Scriptures, quoted before, and also of Science, be worthy of faith), that the soul should pass into Life Mortal, and then pass again through Death into Life Immortal. Man can carry out this Will

1 A friend once sent me a very small book; anonymous, published in U.S.A. It was a series of letters, written as if by a very loving elder brother to a much younger; in reality, by the author’s own higher stronger wise self to the junior weaker frightened self. The letters were full of tender love, encouragement, consolation, loyal steadfast support, as a mother's towards a little child. The booklet illustrated vividly a conscious deliberate dissociation of one personality into two, of a most beautiful and useful kind.
best, and attain to the Summum Bonum, Greatest Good, Paramam Shrėyas, Khair-i-Mahaz, Nis-shrėyasā, Wājib-ul-Wusūd, Supreme, Pure, Self-complete Being, Niṭya-Ānandah; Surūr-i-Jāwēdāni, Immortal Happiness and Peace; by diligently and faithfully discharging the duties of the four successive natural stages of life, and by following some sub-variety of one of the four main classes of human professions, occupations, means of livelihood, during second stage of life. Human beings pass through these stages everywhere, more or less, by inner compulsion as well as outer force of circumstances; but they have been deliberately systematised in Vēdism (i.e., Vaiḍika Dharma or Hinduism). Thus:

\[
\begin{align*}
\text{Rṇāni ṭrīni apā-kṛtya} \\
\text{manah mokṣhē ni-vēshayē} \\
\text{An-apā-kṛtya ūnī ēva} \\
\text{mokṣham ichchhan varajaṭi aḍhah. (M.)} \end{align*}
\]

\[
\begin{align*}
\text{Āḍau vayasi na aḍhīṭam,} \\
\text{dvitīyē na arjitam āhanam,} \\
\text{Tritiye na ṭapah ṭapṭam,} \\
\text{chaṭurṭhē kim karishyasi. (Hit-opadēsha.)} \end{align*}
\]

(The son of man, in being born, is born
With three great 'social debts' upon him; first,
The debt unto the déva-angels, who
By God's command have made this Nature-World
Of objects of the senses which he tastes;
The next to his Ancestors, who have given
His body to him wherewith he knows life;
The third is to the Sages who have stored
Knowledge, age after age, to light his mind.
By pious public works he pays the first;
By rearing virtuous progeny, the next;
By handing knowledge on, he pays the third.
He who, without repaying these great debts,
Strives to win Freedom
—stronger grow his bonds;
Instead of soaring high—deeper he falls.
If in the first part of thy life thou didst
Not gather precious knowledge virtuously;
Nor cherish spouse and child, nor earn fair means,
In the next quarter; nor perform good deeds
Of self-denial, charity, sacrifice,
In the third portion of thy mundane life;
How in the fourth, the age of feeble eld,
All unprepared, cans't find thy Self and God?)

Only that person who has honestly discharged these three congenital debts can be permitted to sell his body of earth, made thus into one of high worth, and buy therewith Immortal Body of Ethereal Light.
Danger, of mistaking devotion to a person, for devotion to the Impersonal or All-personal, has been referred to before. Yet former is a necessary stage on progress to latter. Final perfection of devotion, as

1 See pp. 468-'71 supra. Language of préma, bhakti, ishq-i-haqiqat, love of and devotion to God, is so similar to erotic utterances of kāma, ishq-i-majāst, carnal love of and devotion to a person of opposite sex, that the two become practically indistinguishable; see, f.i., passages quoted at pp. 49-50, 301-2, 307-12, 339-40, 357-8 supra. In conduct also, since it is easier to roll down than to climb up, facilis descensus averti, in the case of even most sincere and earnest cultivators of 'spiritual' love, it only too often runs into the 'carnal'. Past history, and cults, (—new ones keep cropping up all over the world—), especially of some bhakti-cults and so-called sūfī-sects of India, and 'revivalist' sects of the west, are proof. Of course, besides sincere aspirants who go astray, or are cruelly deceived, there are many groups composed of 'faith-giving fools' who sub-consiously wish to be gullied and fleeced and debauched, and of 'faith-demanding knaves' who pose as 'spiritual guides, preceptors, mentors', and consciously will to dupe and rob and corrupt, under cover of 'religion'. Or, why go outside for warning knowledge? Everyone can, indeed, find enough evidence of the danger, if he will only look into his own heart. We have noted (pp. 431-2 supra) that all angels and all devils, seeds of all vices and all virtues, are ever present in every human heart; the set which prevails, makes the 'character' of that person, makes him good man or bad man, sinner or saint. There are only two poles to the human axis, the cerebrospinal column; soul has only two courses open; to travel laboriously towards the upper pole, brain, Brahmanadhrā, pituitary and pineal glands, Love Universal, has to be preceded, in soul-evolution, by love personal.

kanda-s, chakra-s, and regain the lost Paradise; or to slide easily down towards the lower pole and sexual plexuses. Each half of the pole has its own 'branchings' and 'complexes', and the two sets often mix. When the soul makes an effort to ascend, but fails to gain assured foothold, and slips, it takes down with it a higher quality of mentality, a refinement, which makes sensuous enjoyments keener and more alluring. A western writer has observed well that there is no voluptuousness like to mystic voluptuousness. 'Religious' and 'mystical' experiences of many 'brides of Christ', 'milkmaidens of Kṛṣṇa', 'shaidās of Muhammad', and 'devoted disciples of guru-s, pir-s, muršiās, shaykhs', become but too often experiences of carnal voluptuousness; some of the worst perversions take place under cover of Vāmamārga, 'Left-hand Path', in East, and Black Mass in West; even Buddhism has developed an atrocious Vajrayāna; and Islām, a Yazidi-sect with similar practices. Love, attempted to be transferred from physical to superphysical, too frequently falls back to the physical plane with added momentum. What psychoanalysts call 'transference', is partial illustration of the same fact. Emotions which should flow towards physical spouse, or superphysical ideal, begin to flow towards physical psychoanalysed, or physical guru, pir, priestly 'mediator', 'father-confessor', 'spiritual guide'.

"The influence which spread most widely was that of leaders like Ḡazzālī, Father of the later Muhammadan Church, who recommended moral purification of soul as the only way by which men would come nearer to God. Some wanted to pass over the gap between the Creator and the Created along a bridge of contemplation; and so, driven by the fire of sublime passion, precipitate themselves towards the object of their love, in a kind of rapture, which poets compare with intoxication. The evil Yet also, love personal, though, in course of nature, it leads on to love Impersonal, is not abolished world said that impossibility to accomplish this divine union often induced these people to imitate it for the time being with earthy means of wine and sensual love"; Hurgronje, Mohammedanism, pp. 81-82 (pub. 1916).

Finer superphysical love, so long as it does not become wholly (i.e., predominantly) transmuted from 'psychical' into 'Spiritual', experiences all the transports, agonies, ecstasies, elations, depressions, deadly jealousies, humble reconciliations, bitter wrongs, generous forgivings, shames, restorations of trust; in short, all the infinite shades of all sorts of passions and emotions that form the turbulent retinue of common carnal love. Only, in the case of 'psychical' love, they are all of correspondingly subtler quality; at least they ought to be; though they often are not; as witness the violent, even murderous feuds, caused by jealousy, between even immediate disciples and followers of even every Founder or Reformer of Religion. In fact, Jealousy and Love are very closely connected; They are the two end-links of the chain of the six main passions, (see p. 427, supra). Jealousy is, in a sense, the very culmination of the 'miseries'. It includes all the other five. It is responsible for greatest and most extensive failures of humanity; failures, with most wide-reaching consequences, and on largest scales; as in politics. Gates of besieged towns and forts have often been opened to the foe by jealousy. Battles, which have changed the course of history have often been lost through treachery born of jealousy. Great causes have been betrayed by jealousy. The word 'envy' or 'jealousy', occurs on almost every page of Plutarch's Lives; name of no other human emotion occurs so often.

Kāma, in the broad general sense of Desire, is the very root-cause of the Universe; and we have seen that by latter. Even as Spirit and Matter are inseparable; as abstract and concrete; so are Impersonal and Personal. Vision of Universal Self does not Sex-Kāma is climax of Desire, though it is not its fundamental form.

Kāmah taṭ agré sam-avarṭaṭa adhi
Manasah réṭah praṭhamam yaṭ asīṭ;
Saññah banḍhum asaṭi nir-avindan
Hṛṭi praṭiṣṭhya kavayo maṇiśiṇaḥ.

(Ṛg-V., 10. 29. 4.)

Kāmah Sanāṭana-ṭamah abhavaṭ.

(Mbh., Anu. ch. 131.)

Jyāyān samuḍrāṭ asi, Kāma !, Manyo !

(Aṭhārva-V., ix. 2. 2. 3.)

Samuḍraḥ iva hi Kāmah. (Tait, Brāh., II. 2. 5. 6.)

Kāma-bandhanam ēva iḍam,
Na anyaṭ asṭi iha bandhanam. (Ibid., 8. 9. 5.)

Kāma-mayah ēva ayam purushah. (Br-.U., 4. 4. 5.)

Sāṭyam pushpa-phalam viḍyāṭ,
An-ṛtam mūlam Āṭmanah. (Bh.)

(Kāma arose the first, foremost of beings,
Preceding and presiding over all,
Like unto sea; nay, vaster than all seas.
It was the germ of Mind. The wise ones saw,
Deep searching in the heart with all their mind,
That Falsehood was half-brother unto Truth.
Kam'-Error is manure; Truth, flower and fruit.
Desire is the most ancient of all ancients,
More deep, far-spread, than seas or Space itself.
The bonds of Kāma are the only bonds
That bind the Soul of man; indeed the soul
Is naught else than a vortex made of Kāma.)

When such is the very constitution of God's own Nature, it is obviously not possible for any one to avoid necessarily, and ought not to, destroy belief in ‘individual gods’, rulers of planets, suns, stars and all risks of falling back, even while treading most carefully and assiduously the Path of Ascent. We have noted that each and every soul must, by metaphysical law, because it is identical with the All-Soul, pass through all experiences in Infinite Time and Space and Motion. Failure, falling back, striving again, and rising again, higher and higher, is part of such Total Experience; in fact, a very common part, in all departments and phases of life. But it is possible, and right and proper, for persons who have arrived at a certain stage of evolution, to be on guard, to the best of their ability, against slipping back from upper half to lower half of the pole. In such guarding, a thorough grasp of the nature and varieties of Emotions is of great help; for obviously, the guarding is self-guarding, against baser Emotions, and by means of perpetual self-examination, sva-chittapariksha, Khudhisabi, introspection, anantar-mukhata, constant awareness of what is going on within one’s own mind.

In Vedic Samskṛt literature are included systematic expositions of Bhakti-shāstra, ‘Science and Art of Divine Love’. Ends of human life are, primarily, two, Kāma or Vishayānanda, Sense-Enjoyment, and Moksha or Brahmānanda, Spiritual Bliss. But refined Kāma, through Marriage and Family-life, is not possible without Artha, Property, and that is not possible without Dharma, Law-Religion. Hence the one end, Kāma, becomes triple, Dharma—Artha—Kāma. So Moksha also becomes triple, Bhakti—Yoga—Ātma-jñāna, (corresponding to Kāma—Artha—Dharma, respectively). Each of these becomes the subject of a Shāstra, a science; and has text-books devoted to it. Works on Bhakti-shāstra contain much helpful information on emotions and their sublimation. A noteworthy feature is that they distinguish many forms which are expressed in star-systems. Devotion to some one 'personal god' or other, will always be due from every subordinate language very different from erotic: thus, love of servant devoted to his master, as of Hanumān for Rāma; of friend devoted to friend, as of Arjuna for Krṣṇa; of parents devoted to child, as of Dāsha-rāṣṭha and Kauśalyā for Rāma, of Mary for Jesus, of Fāṭimā for Hasan and Husain; and of children for parents. This last is safest form, of Devotion to God, for human beings to cultivate. Nature prompts us to regard God and His Nature as our Father and Mother. All religions instruct us also to same effect. In cultivation of this Spiritual Emotion, is least danger of going astray. Yet it too is not wholly safe! There is danger of becoming too dependent, of wanting and begging too much, of shirking self-reliant exertion.

Rā life-values, see pp. 295-304 supra. The mutually corresponding quartettes--Dharma-Artha-Kāma-Moksha, Saṭṭva-Rajas-Tamas-Niṣṭraigunya, Brāhmaṇa-Kshaṭtriya-Vaishya-Man (Shūdra), Student-Householder-Publicist-Recluse, and some others (see App. A infra)— pervade all Skt. literature. Budḍha preached asceticism and Nirvāṇa mostly for special reasons; but, tacitly, and now and then explicitly too, he taught also that, for purposes of vya va hāra, practical daily life in society, the then current system of socio-individual organisation by four varṇa-s and four āśrama-s, vocational classes and stages of life, should be followed. But the system had been vitiated and corrupted grossly, by shift of its basis from vocational aptitude to mere heredity.
He therefore strongly insisted that the original rational and scientific basis be restored. Mahāvira Jina, whose first name was Vārdha-māna, also taught same. But teachings of Jainism, in this respect, are less known than those of Budḍha. Some extracts are therefore given here, from ancient authoritative Jaina writers.
jīva, even after that jīva, has become mukṭa, 'free'.

Ṭē prāpnuvanṭi Mām ēva,
sarva-bhūṭa-hiṭe raṭāh. (Giṭā.)

(They also come to Me, to work with Me
For helping of the world devotedly.)

Samanṭa-bhādra, (2nd cent. A. C.), briefly indicating contents of his work, Raṭna-Karanda-Shrāvaka-Āchāra, says, among other things:

Grha-mēḍhi-An-āgārānām...
samyag jñānam vi-jānāti...
Puṇya-Apuṇyau cha, Bandha-Mokshau cha,
... shruta-vidyā-ālokam āṭanuṭé.

'Duties of Ascetic and Householder are described here;
also characteristics of Virtue and Vice, Bondage and Deliverance'.

Soma-déva Śūri, in Niṭi-vākyā, says: Dharma-Arṭha-
Kāma-phalāya Rājyāya namah. Yaṭah Abhyudaya-Nisshṛeyasa-isṭdhīh sah Dharmaḥ; yaṭah sarva-prayo-jana-isṭdhīh sah Arṭhaḥ; ābhi-māṇika-rasa-anu-viśdhā yaṭah sarva-indriya-prīṭih sah Kāmaḥ. Dharma-Arṭha-avirodhēna Kānam sévēṭa; taṭah sukhi syāt.

'Salutation to the well-organised state; whence only the possibility of Lawful Wealth and Rich and Refined Sense-Enjoyment. That which secures Happiness here and hereafter and also Supreme Bliss of Freedom from all fetters, that is Dharma, Religious Law; that which is Means of Achieving all Requirements is Arṭha, Wealth: that which fills all senses with delight, which rejoices whole individual being, which is permeated by keen enhancement of Ego-feeling, feeling of self-existence, that is Kāma, Sense-Enjoyment. Kāma
This ‘personal god’ is almost inevitably conceived by the devotee as wearing some sort of form. A must be pursued in accord with Dharma and Artha; never against them; so only will it bring Happiness’.

Harish-chandra (6th cent. A.D.), in Dharma-Sharma-Abhyudaya, writes:

Sukham phalam Rājya-paḍasya janyaṭé;
Taḍ aṭra Kāména; sa cha Artha-sāḍhanah:
Vimuchya ūau, chēt, iha Dharmaṁ ihase,
Vṛṭṭhā ēva Rājyam, vanam ēva sēvyatām.
Iha Artha-Kāma-abhi-nivēsha-lālasah,
Sva-Dharma-marmāṇi bhīnaṭṭi yah nṛpah,
Phala-abhīlāsēṇa sam-īhatē tarum
Sa-mūlam un-mūlayitum sah ādh-māṭih.

‘State-organisation is only means to human happiness. That happiness results from Kāma; which can be secured properly only by Artha; Artha results from Dharma. He who would pursue only Dharma and Artha, had better live in the forest, not in society. Also, he who thinks to secure Kāma and Artha without Dharma, he is like one who roots up the whole tree to secure the fruit.’

Jina-sēna Āchārya, in Hari-Vamsha Purāṇa writes:

Dharma-Artha-Kāma-Mokshēshu,
Dharmaḥ shānti-ādi-lakṣaṇaḥ;
Dharmaṭ Tri-varga-nishpaṭṭih, ṛtshu lokēshu, bhāṣhītā. (ix, 137; xvii. 35.)

‘Of the four, Dharma is characterised by control and calm of mind; by it are the first three secured in all three worlds’.

Ādi Purāṇa by Jina-sena and Guṇa-bhadra, Trai-varṇika-āchāra by Soma-sēna Bhattāraka, and other Jaina works, also have verses purporting same interdependence of life-values.
'formless' being and 'personal' also, is almost a contradiction in terms. The forms, no doubt, differ, from vaguest, most ethereal, luminous, to most concrete, according to nature of worshipper.

Yah yah, yām yām, ṭanum, bhakṭah, shraḍḍhayā archiṭum ichchhaṭi,
Tasya, tasya, achalām shraḍḍhām
ṭām ēva viḍaḍhāmi Aham. (G.)

Bhakṭaṇāṃ anu-kamp-ārṭham
Dévo vigraha-vān bhavēṣ. (Bh.)

(Whichever form the worshipper devotes
His heart unto, that same I do confirm.
The Self assumes the form that is best loved
And most adorēd by the devotee,
Out of compassion to the tender mind.)

This personal love has many grades and degrees, according as it gives more and more of service, and takes less and less of return. The human being begins as a body, with intensely selfish love for the mother, and ends as a parent, with selfless love for children. Especially self-less is the love of the mother, all-giving, all-forgiving. Mother is nourishing Mercy incarnate; father, protective and instructive Justice. She represents jamaṭī aspect, maḍhurya, ṭayā, karuṇā, ḍhāṭā, kalīṇa attributes, Beauty and Sweet Tenderness, of God; he, the jalālī aspect, aishvarya, prabhuvatva, pra-ṭāpa, ni-yantā, vidhāta attributes, His Majesty, His Awe-inspiring and Compelling Order-lines; (see pp. 57-63 supra). She embodies ministrant and promotive functions of State; he, constituent and preventive. But human maternal devotion to children, though so sweetly selfless, is generally exclusive, limited to one's own children. It seldom extends to even nearest neighbours' families. But God's Family is Whole Universe.

As in life of family; so in that larger life which includes life beyond this life and also life of community, society, nation, humanity, and even other kingdoms of nature; soul passes through stages. Guru, āchārya, Brahma-viṣṭ, murshid, sheikh, pir, ārif, Haq-shinās, priest, saint, spiritual preceptor, godly counsellor, 'knower of God', is father-mother here. If he or she is physical parent also, the relationship is best and safest. But all parents are not competent to discharge the sacred and delicate function of spiritual guide too. Therefore all religions have evolved and differentiated out a class of such. But very evil consequences have arisen, after certain limits have been passed. Such is the way of Nature. She follows a Law of perpetual Swing, from Extreme to opposite Extreme, back and forth. Vaidika Dharma, by express provision in its Social Organisation, includes the vocation of priests as that of a sub-class under the general class of 'the Learned Professions'. This class, it is enjoined, should be made up of persons who are by temperament, 'men of viḍyā and ṭapas, irfān and zohd, men of knowledge and philanthropic virtue and: self-denial.' But spiritual preceptorship of children by parent in each family is also encouraged. Buddhism, Jainism,

'Vedic 'priesthood' is not organised into a Church and a Hierarchy of super-, sub-, and co-ordinates, unless, perhaps, in a very loose sense, by simply popular recognition of greater or lesser learning or other merit; as it is in the case of Buddhism, western State-Churches, Roman Catholicism. Strict organisation of a priesthood, necessarily imparts to it, the faults (together with the merits) of 'bureaucracy' and 'mechanisation'. These faults are peculiarly incongruous with the intimate, personal, un-official, confidential, loving, spiritual relations, which ought to subsist between 'minister' and 'ministered', 'pastor' and 'flock'. Organised bodies, it is well-known, can do more good than individuals; but, if the spirit becomes perverted, can become far worse tyrants than individuals. In Vēdism, the practice has been for each family to choose its own priest or rather priest-family. That system has also its disadvantages as well as merits. It is always the old story of 'the mean between extremes'; some organisation and also some individual freedom; neither rigidity nor looseness but elasticity. And, do what we may, we cannot escape evil, altogether, until we give up good also. Life is a perpetual choice between evils and goods. Wisdom consists in choosing the lesser evil and the greater good in any given circumstances.
Christianity, Islām, beginning with missionary bhikshus, shramaṇas, kṣaṇaṇas, yaṭīs, apostles, disciples, asahāb, companions, nomins, faithful ones, imāms, khālijās, have also (even despite some efforts in Islām, to avoid it) inevitably developed very potent priesthhoods. Such are very good, very self-denying, very helpful in the beginning. But they always degenerate (as do ‘kinghoods’); pass over to opposite extreme; and develop tendencies to demoniac treachery. Shepherd and sheep-dog devour the sheep which they are set to guard from all harm. History may be said to be largely

In India, organisation of priesthood began with congregations of Buddhist Bhikkhus in Sangha-s and Vihāra-s. Followed, organised Christian Church. Islām has no formally organised priesthood; but, informally, the sheikhs, imāms and pēshe-imāms of mosques, khālijās, tākiyā-dārs, mullās, pīrs of Sūfī and other sects—all these have become practically a very powerful ‘priesthood’. The numerous matha-s of dozens of kinds of sānnyāsi-s and sādhus, beginning with those of Shankar-āchārya (7th-8th cent. A.C.), in imitation of Buddhist vihāra-s and tāmāsī-s, add another kind of specifically organised ‘priesthood’, like that of monks and nuns of medieval Christianity, to the informally and loosely organised priesthood of the ‘Brāhmaṇa-caste’; all useful at origin; very baneful after lapse of some time and growth of vicious parasitism. Winwood Reade entitles his fine book as Martyrdom of Man, and repeatedly points out the good as well as evil that priesthoods have done to their peoples in several countries, in ancient as well as modern times. Ranke’s History of the Popes, 3 vols. (1896), is also very informative and illustrative.
history of martyrdom of humanity at the hands of its trustees, its ‘mother’ and ‘father’, its priests and rulers, its ‘educators’ and ‘protectors’, its ‘spiritual power’ and ‘temporal power’.

Yasya anke shirah ādhāya
janah svapiṭi nir-bhayah,
Sah éva taṭ shirah chhinḍyāṭ,
taṭṭra kam pari-ḍēvayēt. (Mbh.)
Sarvam ūm par-āḍāṭ yah Āṭmanaḥ anyaṭra brahma, kshaṭṭram, lokān, ḍevān, bhūṭāni, sarvam
vēḍa. (Br. U.)

(The child goes trustfully to sleep, with head
Upon the parent’s knee; if that same parent
Cuts off the head, and murders his own child,
How and to whom may the slain child complain?
Whoever placed his faith without reserve,
Not on him-Self, but some one Else-than-Self,
Brāhmaṇa, Kshaṭṭriya, Vaishya, or god,
Or other living or non-living thing,
Whate’er he made himself dependent on,
That thing or person did give him away,
And did betray that purblind trust, some day.)

If spiritual guides and temporal protectors of the people themselves betray their trust, and prey upon the people, who can redress that awful wrong? The only answer is: The People themselves, under Divine impulse from within, specially focussed in new great leaders.

Guru, spiritual preceptor, is placed on a level with deity; thus,

Ajñāna-ṭimīr-āṇḍhasya, Jñāna-ānjana-shalākayā,
Nēṭram un-mīlītam yēna, ṭasmai shri Guravē namah.
Namah astu Guravē ṭasmai, Ishta-ḍēva-sva-rūpine, Yasya vāky-āṃṛtam haṇṭi,
visham Samsārasanjñākam.
Guruh Brahmā, Guruh Vishṇuh,
Guruh ḍēvah Mahēshvarah,
Guruh ēva Param Brahma, ṭasmai Shri Guravē namah.

(Guru Gaṭā.)

(My Error-blinded eyes who cured
With sovereign remedy of Truth,
Whose words ambrosial have destroyed,
For me, the venom of this world.
Who is to me as deity,
Brahmā, Vishṇu, and Shiva too,
Nay, e’en as Para-Brahma’s Self—
Him I adore, most lovingly.)

Chūn-ke karḍ-ī zāṭ-i-Murshīd rā qubūl,
Ham Khuḍā ḍar zāṭ-ash āmaḍ, ham Rasūl.

(Rūmī.)

(Since thou hast placed thy faith in him,
As thy commander and thy guide,
Thou hast thyself brought into him,
Thy prophet and thy God also.)

But, again, we are told very strongly to beware:
Ai basā Iblis Ādam-rūy aṣṭ,
Pas ba har ċaṣṭe na bāyaḏ ďad ċaṣṭ. (S.)
(Many a fiend doth wear the human shape;
Give not the hand of trust to every hand.)

Wāezān k-īn jalwa ğar mīhrāb o minbar mī kunand,
Chūn ba hujrah mī rawand,
līn kār-e-ďīgar mī kunand. (Hāfiz.)
(These sermon-orators who do display
Such brilliance on the pulpit and platform,
When they retire into their private rooms,
In very different way they do behave.)

Guravah bahavah, ċāṭa!, shishya-viṭṭ-āpa-hārakah;
Viralāh guravah ťe yē shishya-san-ţāpa-hārakah.
(Guru Gītā.)

(Many the guru-s who do take away
The pupil’s goods, but very few, alas!
Those that can take away his ache of heart.)¹

¹ See, e.g., New York Reader’s Digest for May 1946, for a telling, though very condensed, description of the amazing ‘Cults of California’ (from 1890 up to date; swindles practised by ‘founders’ on their numerous gullible followers, whose blindness is the really amazing element); immense amounts of money collected by them from these dupes, by all sorts of tricks; and end of a Scriptures themselves warn us against false priests and false prophets, and lead us back, again and again, from blind belief to the necessity for reliance upon our own Rational Intelligence. The whole second chapter of Gītā is one 'Great Sermon on the Battle-field of Life', emphasising that necessity; and throughout that Scripture, over and over again, Intelligent Reason (buḍḍhi and its synonyms, prajña, dhiḥ, jānam) is praised above other ways of progress of soul.

Buḍḍhau sharaṇam anu-ichchha,
... buḍḍhi-nāshāṭ pra-ṇashyaṭi. (Gītā.)
(Seek final refuge in thine own high Reason; If buḍḍhi is destroyed, the soul is lost.)
Yam tu himsiṭum ichchhanṭi, na ḍēvāḥ pashu-mārā-vat,
Shastram āḍāya himsanṭi,
ḍur-buḍḍhyā yojayanṭi ṭam.¹
Yam tu rakṣiṭum ichchhanṭi,
na ḍēvāḥ pashu-pāla-vat,
Ḍandam āḍāya rakshanṭi, sad-buḍḍhyā yojayanṭi ṭam. (Mbh.)

number of them in prison. Angling for 'love-offers' of money, and secret immoralities—these two, greed and lust, are the obvious and unfailing 'tests' for such 'guru-s'. Such 'revivalist' cults are always arising and dying out in all countries of east and west.

¹ Quem Deus vult perdere, prius dementat; (Lat. proverb). 'Whom gods wish to destroy, they make mad.'
(Whom gods wish to destroy, him they drive mad,
They fill him with the Wrong Intelligence;
While, whom they would protect, him they endow
With the Right Buḍḍhi, with the help of which He saves himself from all the risks of life.
(In neither case they use material arms.)

Pāshandinah vi-karma-ṣṭhān baidāla-vraṭikān shathān, Haiṭukān baka-vṛiṭṭīn cha,
vāṅg-māṭrēṇa api na archayēt.
Na vāri api pra-yachchēt, tu,
baidāla-vraṭikē ḍvi-jē,
Na baka-vraṭikē viprē,
a-vēda-vidi, dharma-viṭ.
Yē baka-vraṭinah viprāh,
yē cha māṛjāra-linginah,
Tē paṭantī anḍha-ṭāmischā,
kṛtvā śrī-śūḍra-dambhanam.

(M., iv. 30, 190-200.)

(Priest-hypocrites, immoral, evil-living,
That purr, and pry, and pounce on prey cat-like;
That argue much; or pose, with downcast eyes,
Looking devout, calm, modest, like to herons,
But ever watchful, snapping up like lightning
Any unwary fish that may pass by—Avoid such; do not even speak to them.)
Not even water should be given to such
By him who Duty knows, and right from wrong.
Such vicious priests, who ever do deceive
The ignorant and simple men and women,
Will surely fall into the darkest hells,
Created by their own conscience for them,
And suffer there, until they change their heart.)

1 There is a current notion that Manu-smṛti, chief religious law-book of Vēdisim, held in reverence next only to Vēdas, has been written by brāhmaṇas for brāhmaṇas, and therefore praises them inordinately, and gives them supreme authority in every respect. Such a notion is based on insufficient and prejudiced study of the original, and on observation of current absurd claims and evil behavior of priests. An impartial study of the whole book, (though, as now available, it probably, almost certainly, has some spurious interpolations), shows that the ancient Lawgiver has based his Scheme of Civilisation on the triple foundation of three 'twice-born' classes, but, more particularly, of (1) the spiritual-hearted self-denying Educator, the true brāhmaṇa, (2) chivalrous self-sacrificing Protector and Defender, true kṣaṭṭriya; and above all, (3) the selfless Mother, true woman who corresponds with the 'Nourisher,' true vaishya; (see pp. 384-397, supra). These three, when they strenuously live up to the ideal he places before them, he praises to the skies; ranks above all gods. But when they fall from that ideal, and become corrupt, then he condemns them down to deepest hells. Also, the fact, hastily ignored by prejudiced critics, must not be overlooked, that more than one-third of Manu-Smṛti is occupied with Rāja-Dharma, 'Kṣaṭṭriya's Duty'. If it is a 'Brāhmaṇa's Manual' at all, as ignorant critics say it is, then it is so only in as much as Brāhmaṇa is made, by it, ultimately responsible for Kshaṭṭriya's
Muhammad warns his followers against impostors:
Yakṣobuna ba aydıhim wa yakuluna hāzā min ind-Ilāh, wa mā howā min ind-Ilāh. (Q.)
(With their own hands they write, and yet pretend,
And tell you falsely—This is writ by God.
Indeed it is not writ by God at all.)

"Believe not every spirit, but try the spirits, whether they are of God, because many false prophets are gone out into the world." (B., John.) "Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves.
Ye shall know them by their fruits." (B.) "Take heed that no man deceive you; for many shall come in My name, saying, I am Christ; and shall deceive many. Then if any man shall say unto you, Lo, here is Christ, or there, believe it not. For there shall arise false Christs, and false prophets, and they shall deceive the very elect. The Scribes and the Pharisees'

Vaishya's, Shudra's good behaviour. Which careful student of human history is prepared to say that genuine civilisation, anywhere and anytime, has flourished where these three have been corrupt; or has not flourished, where these three have done their duty?

"Pharisees were mostly persons of low birth ... prominent representatives of the popular belief, sealots in patriotism as well as religion, teaching, preaching, proselytising. Among them were two kinds of men, the hypocritical, and the really pure and gentle"; Winwood
Reade, The Martyrdom of Man, pp. 165-166. Hosmer's History of the Jews (Story of the Nations' Series), sit in Moses' seat. All their works they do for to be seen of men; they make broad their phylacteries, and enlarge the borders of their garments, and love the chief seats and greetings, in the markets, and to be called of men, Rabbi, Rabbi. But woe unto you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites!, for ye devour widows' houses, and for a pretence make long prayer. Ye are like whitened sepulchres, which indeed appear beautiful outward, but are within full of dead men's bones and of all uncleanness. Even so ye also outwardly appear righteous unto men, but within ye are full of hypocrisy." (B., Matthew, chs. 7, 23, 24).

Such evil priests and kings must be thrust away, and replaced by virtuous ones, by the people themselves, under the direction of really trustworthy

Morrison's Jews under Roman Rule, (do :), Paul Goodman's History of the Jews (Temple Primers' Series), and Macalister's History of Civilisation in Palestine (Cambridge Manuals of Science and Literature) give much information about Scribes, Pharisees, Sadducees. It is only another example of the eternal struggle of Good and Evil in every aspect of life; 'prophets' vs. 'priests'. For contrast between genuine 'philoso-phers', 'lovers of Wisdom', and 'professors of philosophy', real teachers and sophists, Socrates and Gorgias, see prefaces to first and second editions of Schopenhauer's World as Will and Idea; also A. Holm's History of Greece, vol. II, 423-456, and III, 427-430.

1 Manu, chs. 4, 7, and Mbh., Shánți-parva, chs. 90, 91, 92, say: "The tears of the weak consume the deceiver and oppressor more surely, at last, than hottest fires.
leaders of ascetic philanthropic quality, and eminent in knowledge. Scriptures enjoin upon the People to do so; and history shows how this has been done, over and over again.

Experience of such awful treacherousness has its own uses, necessarily, in the providence of God’s Nature. The soul of the victim receives a terrible shock which transforms it. Its own latent selfishness is exposed to itself. It desired worldly advantages too much; not spiritual gains also, sufficiently; and had made itself small, mean, petty, pitiable, pitiful, kṛpaṇa, haqīr. It is now thrown back upon its Higher Self, by a violent revulsion. It plumbs far depths and touches unknown heights, (which heights and depths are all within its own infinite consciousness in fact), at a bound, it gains true humility;

Power, entrusted to the ruler, for the general good, if misused, turns, against him, and destroys him root and branch. The priest-scientist, who takes gifts from such a vicious ruler, instead of restraining him, falls into hell after hell, together with that ruler.”

'For instances of pseudo-Messiahs within the pale of Judaism, see Goodman’s History of the Jews; pp. 103-6. 'Mahdi-s’ have been appearing, within Islam, repeatedly, within the last hundred years. Of new sects, arising under new pseudo- ‘prophets’ there is no end, within every religion; see pp. 536-37 supra. On careful scrutiny, it will be seen that the same great broad features are common to histories of the birth, growth, ups-and-downs, decay, of all religions; though, of course, there are some features peculiar to each also.
also appurtenant courage and power; for true humility becomes same as true majesty, since it regards all selves as equal, spiritually, and not itself as smaller than all others. Then it attains freedom, sooner or later, from spiritual as well as all other enthralment to others, to an-Other, to any Other.

We have seen before that every one is himself, ultimately, sole judge over all religions and all preceptors, since he can accept or reject any he likes to. After all, who is to decide between 'true prophets' and 'false prophets', 'true Christs' and 'false Christs', 'true gurus', and 'false gurus', 'mediators to God' and 'mediators to Satan'? Only he can decide, and ultimately has to decide—he, the man in the street, to whom these prophets, Christs, gurus, mediators say: 'Accept me'. He alone can judge, for him-Self, by him-Self, which of these is true, which false. Miseries brought by excessive faith in any, arouse this Almighty, but till now sleeping, Self within him, and he realises vividly the truth of the scriptural declaration:

Yah Ātmah anyatra brahma vā, kshaṭțram vā, lokān vā, ādevān vā, bhūtāni vā, sarvam vā, vēḍīa, tām sarvam par-āḍāt... Brahma, kshaṭṭram, lokāh, ādevāḥ, bhūtāni, idam sarvam yaḍ ayam Ātmā. (U.)

1 See pp. 71-75 and 218 supra.
(Whoever makes himself dependent, blind,
Utter and slavish, upon anything,
Regarding it as other than him-Self—
Outside and independent of him-Self—
Priests, rulers, worlds, gods, living or dead things,
Any, or all; that other will deceive,
Betray, and ruin him; until he learns,
That all these are within him-Self, the Self,
And knows him-Self as Master of them all.)

 Mana éva manushyānām kāraṇam bandhā-mokshayoh.
Mama iti baḍhyatē janṭuh,
na mama iti vimuchyatē. (U.p.)

Ja ké ghar sukh kā bhanḍārā,
So kyoṅ bharmai ṅar ṅar mārā.
Ja ké man mēṅ ḍukh kā soṭā,
Kyoṅ na rahai wah nis-ṛin roṭā!
Man mor chanchal, jiya uḍās,
Rahauṅ jala bhīṭar, marauṅ piyās.

(Hindi folk-song.)

(The mind doth bind, and mind too doth unloose.
Say 'mine', and thou art bound; 'not mine,' art free.)

(Who hath all store of joy in his own house,
Why should he go a-begging door to door!
So, why should he not drown himself in tears,
Who, in his mind, of woes, has endless store!)
I dwell within a river yet I die
Of thirst!—due to my silly restless mind!
It must feel sad and fill itself with worries,
Though all around are means of rest and peace!)

(Heaven and Happiness, Misery and Hell,
With all their wealth of weal and all their woe,
Are all within you, truly, verily.
If you but knew that it is your own mind,
Makes and unmakes your body and its worlds,
Your loves and hates, your joys and agonies,
Superior to them all then would you rise.)

In all text-books of ethics, we are exhorted to cultivate self-reliance, even in those which inculcate profoundest faith in God. Replace small 's' of 'self' by capital 'S'; ethics becomes completed by, and unshakeably founded and grounded in, Metaphysics.

Conscience, higher soul, of betrayer also unavoidably awakens some day; he too undergoes revulsion of feeling, and helplessly makes expiation by equal suffering, and also learns same humility.

Very cruel, as well as very beautiful, is this process; all this World-Process. Faith, Trust, Love, is very beautiful; Deception, Betrayal, Murder of Innocents, is horribly cruel. But the God within has Him-Self chosen to pass through all experiences, ranging from Nirvāṇa to Avichi, before returning to Primal Peace.

Anēka-janma-sam-siddhah
ṭaṭah yāṭi parām gaṭim. (G.)

(After the tasting of full many lives—
Of pleasures, pains, joys, utter miseries—
The Soul regains its Fullness, and returns
Unto the state of Perfect Wholeness, lost
By Its Self-willed wilful Obliviscence—Transformed into Reminiscence now.)

Inna Ilaihā rājeʿūn, laṭarkabunna ṭabaqan an ṭabaq. (Q.)

(Back unto God, ascending stage by stage, Must ye return with labor and with pain.)

Ordinarily, the soul develops slowly the purer aspect of Family relationships and affections, and accompanying self-denial, ishq-i-majāzi, muhabbat, īsār, prēma, prīṭī, anu-rāga, ṭyāga. It also cultivates, side by side with these, love of, faith in, and reliance for refuge upon, a living spiritual preceptor, and also a higher unseen barzakh or 'mediator', mādhya mā, messiah, nābī or prophet, rasūl or messenger of God, avātāra or incarnation of divine power, insānul-kāmil or perfect man, ishṭa-ḍēva or beloved form of deity represented by high ḍēva or angel, that manifests one ʿism, nāmā, name, aspect, i.e., power or energy, of God—all which are facts in Nature. Through such mediator it seeks to reach God—whatever the highest conception, (generally that of a Personal God, separate from devotee and from all creation), which the devotee concerned may be able to form.

These mediators, in every religion, are indeed very near and dear to God. As said before (p. 467 supra),

"The masses with their young mind, yearn for a near God or 'son of God', who is as one of themselves, one they can understand, who understands them, feels for and sympathises for them"; Macleod Yearsley, Story of the Bible, 105. Also, Morrison, Jews under the Roman Rule, ch. xvi. 'The Messianic Hope', (Story of Nations Series).

Distinction between mediators and mediums should be understood clearly. (See H. P. Blavatsky, Isis Unveiled, I, 487-488). It is possible for persons of each of the two types to be either beneficent or maleficent; but, usually, 'mediators' are spiritual adepts, holy persons, pure in thought and deed, and strong of will, the superhuman morality and sanctity of whose lives (whatever their outer creed) attracts pure, beneficent, high, and powerful spiritual influences to them, for helping of human beings. 'Mediums', on contrary, are spiritual or rather psychical slaves, weak of will, sickly of nervous system, unable to resist evil influences; more often than not they are taken possession of, obsessed, by evil spirits, either disembodied human spirits, or nature spirits, i.e., 'sprites', which normally belong to other planes and kinds of matter than humans do.
The devotees of God may not be God,
Yet neither are they far away from God.)

ןדסנ"מ anu-ןדסאḥ Aham. (Bḥ.)

(I serve My servants—thus declareth God.)

Mayi dhārayatḥah chēṭah
upa-ṭishthanṭi siddhayah. (Bḥ.)

(Whoe'er identifies himself with Me,
Merges himself in Me, all selflessly,
My powers and marvels do flow into him.)

"He that believeth on Me, the works that I do shall he do also, and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father, and whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son. If ye ask anything in my name, I shall do it. This is my commandment, that ye love one another as I have loved you. Greater love hath no man than this that a man lay down his life for his friends. Ye are my friends if ye do whatsoever I command you, Henceforth I call you not servants; for the servant knoweth not what his lord doth; but I have called you friends." (Jesus, in B.)

So long as the soul is not able to get over sense of personality, personal sin, weakness, danger; so long as it clings to a separate body of its own and desires to continue a separate individual existence; so long it must tie itself to some such highly advanced soul, embodiment of spirituality, in-carnation of Spirit; even as children must seek protecting help of parents, until they attain maturity; and it must evoke such help by its own loving reverence and earnest cry for it in the way of whole-souled prayer.

After vision, realisation in one-self, of the Impersonal, has been reached, through such very help; after that, love and reverence for spiritual preceptor and mediator, ought to, and do, become deeper than ever, and a profound gratitude is added to them, in every truly illumined soul. Right-minded son and daughter, nourished and fostered tenderly by parents, until they have reached majority of body and mind, feel, if possible, greater love and reverence and gratitude than they did or even could for those parents while they were little children.

Herein is large part of the satisfaction of the requirement of personal emotion, of needs of heart, that religion is expected to, and does, bring to all sincere souls. Clearly, there is no conflict here between head and heart; but much soothing, nay, very joyful, harmony instead.

If followers of different religions quarrel with one another—one saying that Rāma or Kṛṣṇa is the only personage who should be followed and honored, another that Zoroaster is the only such, a third that Moses, a fourth that Buddha, a fifth that Jina, a sixth that Christ, a seventh that Muhammad, is the only such, then the plain cause is that they are not sincere devotees but arrant egoists. None of them really honors and follows the great Master whom he pretends to honor and follow. Each is really the devotee of his own narrow and conceited little self; and wishes to impose that little self and its small-minded opinions upon all the world; for satisfaction of his own vanity, and tasting of a false greatness, under cover of the true greatness of the Master. That true greatness he only belittles and drags in the mire by his own false understanding of it. But they will all grow wiser, bye and bye, turn by turn, each in his own due time.¹

¹ See pp. 92-97 supra.

Tū che dānī sirr-e Haq az jāhīlī?
Tū girftār-e Abu Bakr o Alī!
Ahl-i-dunyā kāfrān-e muṭlaq and,
Roz o shab ḩar zaq-zaq o ḩar baq-baq and. (Rūmī.)

(What canst thou know of the great difference
'Twixt Truth Divine and Erring ignorance?
Thou, who art in the grip of merest names,
The name of Ābu Bakr, or of Allī!
Such worldlings verily faithless are to Truth,
That wrangle day and night o'er merest words.
The real infidels, these chatterers.)
On another hand, in name, for sake, by example, of each great Master, have men, and women, and even little children, over and over again, throughout history, risen, and are rising today, here and there, to great heights of self-denial and self-sacrifice, of uttermost suffering and death for love of fellow beings, of heroic martyrdom to bear witness to their faith; heights of heroism, धर्माशुरात्ता, शहादत ‘witnessing’ of the faith, which may well evoke envy and shame, and greater sweetness than before, in the breasts of even angels.

Because I naturally love and honor my own parents beyond the parents of others, is that a reason why I should insist that others should also love and honor my parents beyond, or instead of, their own? If I am at all right-minded, and not insane, I should be the first to say to my neighbour; Even as I revere my parents most, so should you yours; but, as I regard and love you as my cousin, so I shall, next after my parents, revere your parents as cousins or brother and sister of my parents, and therefore as my uncle and aunt; and even so should you revere my parents as your uncle and aunt. Your parents have done for you what mine have done for me. They have washed you of soiling vices, fed you with the milk and bread of life, tended you day and night, guarded you from dangers and illnesses of sin, taught you anxiously the same soul-wisdom, and brought you to majority of years and maturity of body and mind; so that you can now stand upon your own feet, and even help and care for others, even as you have been helped and cared for. Your first duty, therefore, is to your parents, even as mine is to mine.

Also, Teachers themselves advice us, nay, command us, to think, not of them, but of their teachings:

Unzur elā mā qāla, wa lā ūanzur elā man qāla. (HAZRAṬ ALI.)

(See what is said; do not see who says it.)

Khuz mā safā, dā mā kaḍar. (H.)

(Gather the good, and cast aside the bad.)

Yukti-yuktām up-ā-ḍeyam vachanam bālākāṭ api; Anyāṭ tṛṇam iva ṭyājyam api ukṭām Paḍma-janmanā. (Yoga-Vāsishtha.)

A-mitrāt api saḍ-vṛttam, bālāt api su-bhāshiṭam. (M.)

(What stands to reason, take it readily,
If uttered even by a little child;
Take good example from even a foe;
That which offends the reason, put aside,
Though it be said to be part of God-spell.)

Jagat éva guruḥ Jagad-guruḥ. (Skt. proverb.)

(The one World-Teacher is the World itself.)
Az zamāna moaḍḍibu. (H.)
(Take needed lessons from the March of Time.)
Āchāryah sarva-chēshtāsu lokah ēva hi ḍhi-maṭah.
Kṛṣṇah hi lokah buḍḍhi-maṭām āchāryah ; shatruh cha a-buḍḍhi-maṭām. (Charaka.)
(To the wise man, who can observe the world,
The finest teacher of how to behave,
Most friendly counsellor, is the whole world ;
To the unwise, it is a ruthless foe.)

Let followers of the several religions, (or rather of re-proclaimers of the same One Universal Religion, in different languages and times and climes), be only thus loving, simple, straight of heart, only a little reasonable; they would fill their own homes and all other homes of the whole world with loving pæans of joy, and with mutual service and real blessings of religion. Instead, they have been filling them, century after century, with cruel cries of hate and war, bloodshed and torture, and turning religion from greatest blessing into worst curse of mankind.

The soul which has learnt true humility, cannot behold these conflicts without greatest agony of heart. Its only consolation is the faith that they also must serve the ultimate purpose of World-Drama, planned and operated by Divine Will-and-Imagination. Worst and most saddening feature of these terrible conflicts is that they are all about merest words and names, utterly non-essential forms and superficial trivialities. Let men only endeavour quietly and leisurely to 'understand', instead of hastily and excitedly 'misunderstanding', each other. Then they surely would, instead of hating, honor founders of other religions, even though in a lesser degree than the founder of their own. They would multiply their joy, by giving and receiving sympathy and congratulations, on all appropriate occasions, of holy-days of each religion, instead of marring it wholly, by mutual antipathy and obstructions, and even riots, looting, arson, bloodshed, murders.

A western clergyman, Dr. Westcott, has well said: "It requires a serious effort to enter with living sympathy into the character of another man, or of another class, or of another course of thought; to feel, not with a sense of gracious superiority, but of devout thankfulness, that, here and there, that is supplied which we could not have provided; to acknowledge how peculiar gifts or a peculiar environment, how long discipline or intense struggle, have conferred upon others, the power of seeing that which we cannot see". If ways of education were better, there would be no serious effort required for this very desirable attitude. It could be more natural to appreciate the good points of others, than to depreciate.

If any god at all, then Right Education is— The god which can the giftie give us. To see ourselves as others see us.

Let us all be diligently taught, in our earliest years, to see with other's eyes as well as our own. We would see much more, and our life would be so much richer, with others' special and peculiar virtues, experiences, and
To the soul which has seen the great Vision of Self-in-All and All-in-Self, meum and tuum are reduced to a minimum, if they cannot vanish altogether while fleshly tenement lasts. Religions, in the plural, disappear for him; only Religion, in the singular, remains.

Gufṭ-o-gū-é Kufr o Dīn
ākhir ba yak jā mi khashā;
Khwāb yak khwābē-št, ammā
mukhtalif tābir-hā. (S.)

(Doubt, Faith, both turn around, and end in, One; Interpretations may differ, Dream is the same.)

gifts, as well as our own. As member of various governmental and non-official educational committees, and as chairman, (1923-1925), of Banaras Municipal Board, which then maintained schools teaching over ten thousand boys and one thousand girls, I tried hard to induce my colleagues to introduce, into the curriculum, simple glossaries giving Skt. and Persian equivalents for the most simple and common religious ideas (such equivalents as are scattered all over the present work), but I never succeeded in securing a majority to adopt a resolution!

Yārān che qadar rāh-e ḍu-rangi āranḍā!
Masahaf ba baghl, dīni-i-firangi āranḍā!
Paiwaṣṭā bāham cho mohraḥā-ē shaṭ-ranj,
Dar ḍil hama fikr-i khāna-jangī āranḍā. (S.)

(Our astute friends act smartly double parts,
Qurān under the arm, sin in the hearts!
Intent on setting by the ears, all fools,
Like chess-players pushing on their pawns and tools!)
Hama kas īlīb-e Yār and,
che hushyār o che masṭ,
Hama jā kḥāna-e iṣhq ast,
che masjīd che kanisht. (S.)
(Sane and insane, all are asearch, love-lorn,
For Him, in mosque, fire-temple, church, alike.
The only God is the One God of Love.
And Love calls from all these, each one, His home.)

Yē api anya-ḍēvaṭā-bhaktāḥ yajanṭē shraḍḍhayā an-viṭāḥ, Ṭē api Mām ēva, Kaunṭōya!, yajanṭi aviḍhi-pūrvalam.
Yē yaṭhā Mām pra-paḍyantē
tān taṭhā ēva bhajāmī Aham,
Mama varṭma anu-varṭantē
manushyāḥ, Pāṛṭha! sarvashah. (G.)
(They who do worship other gods with faith,
They also indirectly worship Me.
From all sides are men coming unto Me;
I meet them on whichever way they come.)

Ṭrai-guṇya-vishayāḥ Vēḍāḥ, nis-ṭrai-guṇyah bhava, Arjuna! (G.)
Nis-ṭrai-guṇyē paṭhi vīcharaṭah kah vidhiḥ, kah ni-shēḍhah.
Na varṇāḥ, na varṇ-āshram-āchāra-ḍharmāḥ,
Na Mē dhāraṇā-ḍhyāṇa-yog-āḍayah api,
Na ḍuhkham sukham, na ēva bandhah na mokshah Taṭ ēkah avashishtah Shi ṣaḥ kēvalah Aham.

(Shankar-āchārya).

(All Vedic ritual deals with finite things, Objects of finite thoughts, desires, and acts, Pass on 'beyond these three' unto the One. He who has passed beyond the three and seen The One, and steadfast moves upon Its Way, He no more needs from others 'yeas' and 'nays'; He has become a law unto him-Self. No caste, class, creed, or stage of life are Mine, No concentration, meditation, yog', No sorrow, joy, bonds or deliverance; I am the Restful One and all is Mine!)

Guftam-Ash, 'Tā chand ḍar parḍah nihāṅ khwāhī shudān, Waqt āṅ āmad ke ḍigar rū na poshāṅi ze man!'
Guft, 'Man bē-parḍah am, gar parḍah bīnī, āṅ tū-ī! Tā ṭu hāstī, ḍar hazārāṅ parḍah pinhāṅ-ī ze Mā!'

(Muīnuddīn Chishtī.)

('For how much longer', so I asked my Lord, My Lover and Bolovēd, My heart's God, 'For how much longer wilt Thou keep Thy Face Close hid behind this screen? Sure, it is time
That Thou unveil Thyself to Thy slave's eyes!
He said, 'I ever am, without a screen!
See-est a screen? Then that screen is thy-self,
Thy sep'rative and egoistic self!
While thou art, fixed in sense of separateness,
Countless as living bodies are the veils
Thou flingest o'er Me, keeping Me unseen!
Thy sep'ratist small self itself is screen!
My-Self is by the self-less ever seen!'

Che ṭādbīr, ai Musalmānān!
Ke mān khud rā na mīn dānam;
Na Ṭarsā, na Yahūdī am
Na Gabr am, na Musalmān-am.

(Shams Ṭabrēz.)

Sūfī shud n-ṭīst, n-ṭīst rā mazahab n-ṭīst;
Bā Yār rasīda rā ḍīgar matlāb n-ṭīst.
Rab-ras Rab shud; ṭamām Rab rā Rab n-ṭīst.
Har jā khurshayd haṣṭ ān jā shab n-ṭīst. (S.)
Shauq hai jab ṭak pasē pardah jamāle Yār hai,
Hat gayā pardha ṭo phir didār hī didār hai. (S.)

Haḍīse muṭrib o mai go,
Wa rāze ḍahr kam-ṭar jo,
Ke kas na kushūd ṭo na kushāyaḍ
Ba hikmat īn moammā rā. (S.)

Asrār-i-azal rā na ṭū ḍānī wa na man,
Īn harf-i-moammā na ṭū khwānī wa na man,
Haṣṭ az pas-e pardaš gucht-o-gū-e man o ṭū,
Chūn pardaš bi-yufṭād, na ṭū mānī wa na man.
(S., OMAR KḤAYYĀM.)

(What can I do, friends!, I know not myself,
I have forgot my-self, quite lost my-self!
I am not Christian, neither Jew am I,
Nor Zoroastrian, nor Musalmān;
I only know that I am only I!
The Sūfī is no more—his lower self
Is now no more—and that which is no more
Any religion can possess no more.

He, who has found his God, is God, is Self;
Who is all God can need no other God;
Where the Sun shines night can no longer be.
So long as the Belovéd's Loveliness
Is hid behind a veil, love's longings last;
But when the veil uplifts, all longings go,
And only Vision face to face abides.
Strike on the harp of thine own inner being,
And drink to fill, the wine of Love Divine.¹

¹ Literally translated, the verse means: 'Don't bother your head about unfathomable mysteries; enjoy yourself while you may, with wine and music'. 'Esoterically' interpreted, mutrib, (a Persian stringed instrument) is sā iyām ḍa i vī vīnā, 'this divine harp', the nervous system, on which the Self plays, the Self whose Nature and ways are understood, not by arguing, but by insight, intuition; the song is a nā hā ṭa nā ḍa, 'voice of the silence', heard within 'head' or 'heart', when all physical senses have been closed; (some 'esoteric'
No argument may ope the mystery
Which the deft touch of Love alone can ope.
While there remains the sense of 'I' and 'thou',
Nor 'thou' nor 'I' can probe this mystery
Of the World's Dawning; neither 'I' nor 'thou',
Can read this mystic rede illegible.
With screen between, is talk of 'me' and 'thee',
The screen of this gross flesh and blood and bone,
This curtain of dense selfish egoism.
When the veil lifts, there's no more 'thou' and 'I',
But all the Uni-verse grows On(e)ly I.

This chapter on the Way of Devotion may well close with a noble song by a great devotee, who bore witness splendidly to his faith, by the martyrdom to which he went, singing a song, of reminder to all, of the Spiritual Race of lovers and helpers of humanity:

Sarmaḍ! gila-go na shud,
niko shud ke na shud;
Lab bé-huda-go na shud
niko shud ke na shud.
Minnaṭ-kash-e Charkh na mi shudī ākhire-kār,
schools teach concentration in heart, some in head);
wine is wine of 'love divine', and also a superfine secretion, a-mara-vāruṇī, 'wine of the immortals',
'elixir of life', which forms in brain and nervous system,
when listening to that 'unuttered sound' is practised.
Such is the indication of old books and wandering ascetics. (See p. 363, Science of Emotions, 4th edn.)
Kār-ē ke niko na shud,
niko shuḍ ke na shud.

Sarmaḏ ! ba kū-e ishq baḍ-nām shuḍī !
Az ḍīn-e Yahūḏ sū-e Islām shuḍī !
Mā'lūm na shuḍ, kai az Khuḍā o Ahmād
Bar-gashṭa, ba sū-e Lachhman o Rām shuḍī !
Sarmaḏ ! gham-e ishq, bul-hawas rā na dihanḍ !
Soz-e-ḍil-e parwāna, magas rā na dihanḍ !
Umbr bāyaḍ ke Yār āyaḍ ba kinār ;
Īn ūaulaṭ-e-Sarmaḏ hama kas rā na dihanḍ !
(Sarmaḏ ! thou ne'er did's't cringe and whine and pray.
Nor ever let thy lips abuse thy-Self,
Even before the rolling vault of Heaven!
They say, 'Twas not well done'; but Sarmaḏ says,
'IT was well done that it was not well done'!
Sarmaḏ! they scorned thee, treading lone the lane
Of Love, amidst the towns of Judah's creed,
And of the faithful followers of Islām,
Then also of the votaries of Rām.'
Lovers of their small selves alone thou found
Mostly; and very few of the One Self.
Sarmaḏ!, the blissful ache of Love Divine
To seekers of the senses is not given.
The flame of heart is for the moth alone;
The fly feeding on fifth can know it not.
A whole lifetime of yearning, sad and mad—
Then only thy Loved One came to thy arms!
This Wealth Infinite that belongs to thee,
Sarmaḏ! alas! to all may not be given!"

Sarmaḏ was a spiritual descendant of Mansūr. Mansūr was martyred by the then Khalīfā of Baghdād, in 920 A.C., for going about the streets exclaiming An-nal-Haq, ('I am God', Aḥām Bṛāhma). After wandering about, in search of God, in western countries of Asia, he came to Delhi, in the days of Shahjahān and Aurangzēb, became a Sūfī-Vēḍāntī, and went about in its streets, God-intoxicate, careless whether there was any clothing on his person or none at all, shouting An-nal-Haq, like Mansūr, from time to time. Aurangzēb ordered him to be be-headed (circa 1690 A.C.) He went to his martyrdom, with sad smile of compassion on his face for those who, 'knowing no better', slew him, and song of triumph over Death on his lips, for instruction of future generations:

Arsa būd, āwāza-é Mansūr kuhan shuḍ,
Man jalwa āhām bār-e ḍīgar ḍār o rasan rā!

(Long years have passed since Mansūr gave the world
His message; and its holy influence Grows faint; I must revive it now, and give Fresh power to it with the help of these—
The headsman's binding ropes and block of wood!
Death gives a larger Life to sons of God!)

Sarmaḏ addressed the following quatrains to Aurangzēb when the latter sentenced him to death for going about nude in the streets of Delhi.

Ān Kas ke ṭo-rā ṭāje-e jabān-bānī dād,
Mā ṭa hama asbāb-e parīshānī dād.
Poshānḥ ṭibās har ke ṭa a'īb ẓād,
Bē-a'ībān ṭa ṭibās-e uryānī dād.

(He who did place the dead weight of a crown
With kingship's worries on thy sinful head,
He gave to me the wealth of Poverty,
Self-chosen, free from all the cares of Wealth.
He told the sinful ones to hide their shame
In many folds of clothing; but to those Who have not sinned, He gave the beauteous dress
Of babies—Innocence and Nakedness.)

Some more fragments of his heart-touching songs may be recorded here.

Zāhidā l, shāh-ē-shahān-am,
chūn ṭo uriyan n-īśtam;
Zauq-o-shauq-o-shorish-am,
lēkin parīshān n-īśtam.
But-parast-īn, kāfir-am,
az ahī-e-Imān n-īśtam;
Sūe-masjid mī rawam,
ammā Musalmān n-īśtam.
Gar ār ār bā chaman,
Wahdaṭ-ē yak-rangī biēn;
Āshiq o ishq, būṭ o būṭ-gar,
ai yār! yak-Īśt.
Kā'ba o dair o masjid,
hama jā tāriskī-st.
Ghaur kun, āshiq wa māshūq,
khwār o gul, yak-jā duī-st.

(Though not enwarapt in robes like thee. O priest!,
I am not bare of soul as thou art, friend!
I am the king of kings, in verity!
All interests, emotions, tastes of art,
A very riot of all feelings—Mine!
Yet am I not distraught because of that.
I am an idol-worshipper, no doubt;
An infidel; not of the faithful flock.
I go to mosques, no Muslim yet am I.
Lover and love, idol and sculptor skilled,
Are one, O friend!, and only darkness reigns
In Ka'ba-mosque and Temple equally.
Come thou into my garden; then wilt see
The White Blaze of the Light of Unity!
Look well, Loved, Lover, rose and thorn, are one!)
Sarmad, thou in this world, did win fair fame
For learning and for pious ways also,
And came from heathen ways into Islam.
What fault saw'st thou in Allah and Rasul
That thy mind turned away from them, and thou
Didst bend thy head before Lachman and Ram?!
From my material body I cast off
All effort, yea, all motion, strain of strife,
And then I saw the Light of the One True
Fill all my Self's Being from foot to crown.
If thou desir'st the same experience,
Then stand aside from thy small self, and see!
Sarmad, if thou art faithful unto Him,
And if He too is faithful unto Thee,
And if His coming unto Thee be right,
Then surely will He come Him-Self to Thee!
Why shouldst Thou run, demented, after Him?
If He is God-the-Self, He'll come Him-Self!

A rather ‘wildly beautiful’ hymn to Love Divine, with a touch of ‘superphysical worlds’, somewhat in the vein of Shelley, by a later Sūfī, Sirāj, may also well find place here, at the close of this chapter on ‘The Way of Devotion’:

Kḥabarė ṭahawwar-e Ishq sun,
(or, Kḥabarē ṭahayyur-e Husn sun,) na junūn rāhā, na parī rāhī,
Na ṭū rāhā, na to Maīn rāhā, jo rāhī so bē-kḥabarī rāhī.
Shah-e bē-kḥudī ne aṭā kiyā
mujhe jab libās-e barahna-gī,
Na kḥiraq ki bakḥya-gari rāhī,
na junūn ki parda-dari rāhī.
Wo jo hosh o aql o hawās ṭhē,
Ṭert yak nigah né udā ādiyē,
Wa sharāb-e sādqa-e ārazū
khumē dīl menī ṭhī so bharī rāhī.
Chalī simṭ-e Ghaiib se yak hawā,
ke chaman gḥurūr kā jal gayā,
Wale Shama’, kḥāna jalā ke sab,
gule surkẖ sāhī harī rāhī.
Woh a’jāb ghadi ṭhī ke jis ghadi
liyā dars-e nuskẖa-e Ishq kā, Ke kīṭāb-e aql kī tāq par
jo ḍharī so yūn hī ḍharī rāhī.
Ṭēre josh o hairaṭ-e Husn kā
asar is qaḍar se yahān huā,
Na ṭū āinē menī jilau rāhī,
na parī menī jalwā-gari rāhī,
Kiyā kẖāk āṭish-e Ishq né
Dīl-e bē-nawā-e Sirāj ko
Na hazar rāhā, na kẖaṭar rāhā, jo rāhī so bē-kẖatarī rāhī.
(When, of that Wondrous Beauty and of Love Almighty, came the fame, then disappeared
Both Thou and I, and there was left but One Vast all-unconscious Blessedness alone!
The Lord of 'self-less-ness' bestowed on me
The gorgeous garment of Self's Nudity;
Then vanished intellect's quick subtlety,
Also veil-rending lack of sanity!
One glance of Thine did put to sudden flight,
All wisdom, all alertness, and all sense;
Craving, inebriate, for self-sacrifice,
Which had filled all my heart, alone remained.
A fiery wind blew from Negation's Fort,
And in an instant blasted into ash,
The garden, so luxuriant, of my pride;
The candle-Flame that was lit in my house,
Burnt all the house; it-Self remains a-glow.
Wondrous the hour when first was read the rede
Of this o'er-powering over-whelming Love!
The book of intellect that then was 'shelved,'
Remains upon the shelf unto this day!
The wonder, ardour, fervour of Thy Beauty
Had such miraculous effect on earth,
The mirror lost its polish, and the image,
Shown by it of the paltry selfish self,
Worshipped till now as fairy beautiful,
Has disappeared, vanished, for evermore.
The fire of Love Divine has burnt to ash
The selfish heart of this poor devotee;
No home is left to him which he may call
'His own', not any pride, nor any fear;
Remains to him but blessedness Al-One
And All Infinity, 'His Home', 'His Own'!)

(I cannot resist the temptation to put in another beautiful Sūfī poem here. It is translation of some verses of Maulānā Rūmī, and occurs in a foot-note on p. 190 of Hegel's Philosophy of Mind, translated by W. Wallace. It was translated into German by Ruckert, and re-translated into English by Wallace with the help of Miss May Kendall.)
(I saw but One in all sea-billows wildly streaming;
I saw but One through all heaven's starry spaces gleaming;
I looked into the heart, a waste of worlds, a sea—
I saw a thousand dreams—yet One amid all dreaming.
And earth, air, water, fire, when Thy decree is given,
Are molten into one; against Thee none hath striven.
There is no living heart but beats unfailingly
In the one song of praise to Thee, from earth and heaven.
As one ray of Thy light appears the noonday Sun,
But yet Thy light and Mine eternally are One.
As dust beneath Thy feet, the stars that sweep on high;
Yet only One, and One for ever, Thou and I.
The dust may turn to stars, and stars to dust decay;
Yet art Thou one with Me, and shall be One for Aye.
How may the words of Life that fill Heaven's utmost part.
Rest in the narrow casket of one poor human heart?
How can the Sun's own rays, a fairer gleam to fling,
Hide in the lowly ore, the jewel's covering?
How may the rose-grove all its glorious bloom unfold,
Drinking in mire and slime, and feeding on the mould?
How can the darksome shell, that sips the salt sea-stream,
Fashion a shining pearl, the sunlight's Joyous beam?
O heart!, should warm winds fan thee, shouldst thou floods endure,
One element are wind and flood; but be thou pure.
I'll tell thee how from out the dust God moulded man—
Because the breath of Love He breathed into his clay.
I'll tell thee why the spheres their whirling paths began—
They mirror to God's throne Love's Glory day by day.
I'll tell thee why the morning winds blow o'er the grove—
It is to bid Love's roses bloom abundantly.
I'll tell thee why the night broods deep the earth above—
Love's bridal tent to deck with sacred canopy.
All riddles of the earth dost thou desire to solve?
Then in Thy heart the Love of the One Self evolve!
Life shrinks from Death in woe and fear,
Though Death ends well Life's bitter need;
So shrinks the heart when Love draws near,
As though 'twere Death in very deed;
For wheresoever Love finds room,
There self, the sullen tyrant, dies.
So let him perish in the gloom,
Thou to the Dawn of Freedom rise.)
CHAPTER IV

WAY OF WORKS, OR VOLITIONAL CONSTITUENT OF RELIGION

In life, cognition-desire-action, jñāna-ichchā-kriyā, īlm-khwāish-fa'īl, are always rotating. We perceive something; we feel a desire for or against it; we act to secure or remove it. New activity brings new knowledge; that engenders new desire; that causes new movement. Thus are these three life-functions always circling round and round; inseparable, though distinguishable. Same three factors are distinguishable but inseparable components of Religion. We begin life, as infant, with desire (for nourishment) predominant: then pass on, as child, to (aimless-seeming) restless activity; then slowly develop intelligence and gather knowledge, connected, systematic, organised; then have larger desires, ambitions; more complicated activities, enterprises. So in Religion, first stage is desire (more or less inchoate) for ‘nourishment for soul’, for something more than this life offers; then comes activity, "way of works", sharia't, k arma- mārga, rites and ceremonies; then a somewhat clearer notion of other worlds, and of God; then more earnest desire for God, "way of devotion," bhakti-mārga, tariqat, yearnings, fervors, ardours, worships, internal prayers and beseechings, passionings and compassionings; then earnest thinking, intense study, reflection, vi-chāra, ghaur, khauz, "mental exploration", "intellectual diving, moving, searching all round", the "internal" side of yoga-practices; then "way of knowledge", "illumination", "Finding of the Sought", jānāna-mārga, haqiqat or mā’rifat; after which, there is deliberate desire for good of all, conscious philanthropy, (not only temperamental goodness as that of a good child), and deliberate appropriate dutiful activity, all three in one.¹

¹ See pp. 113-4, supra. In other words, and from a slightly different standpoint, we may say that Path of Action is for very outward-turned 'extrovert' restless child-soul; of Devotion, for partly inturned adolescent or youth; of Wisdom, for largely inturned, or rather, 'combined introvert-extrovert', balanced elder. On Path of Works, 'sense of separateness' is strong; 'sense of unity' with other individuals, weak. On Path of Worship, sense of separateness is less strong; of unity, stronger; aim is union; as between earthly lover and loved, so between human worshipper and divine 'Worshipped'; but even during union, sense of separateness persists, though minimised; and reasserts itself after a while. On Path of Knowledge or Wisdom, which includes 'all-person-al
Yogāḥ ṭrayah Mayā pr-okṭāh,
Nṛṇāṁ shrēyo-vidhiṣṭsayā;
Jñānam, Karma cha, Bhakṭih cha;
Na upāyah anyah aṣṭi kuṭra-chiṭ.

Devotion’ and ‘Works of service to all’, separateness is at minimum, not annihilated: of unity, at maximum and ever-present. Soul advances successively from first to third.

As thought-and-desire-and-muscle-force of an individual gathers sensuous matter, and creates a machine, an instrument of defence-and-offence, destruction-or-construction; so mind-force of thousands and millions of humans, concentrated on one ideal ‘god-form’ or ‘mediator-form’, by Devotion aided by Knowledge, actually creates that form, of a very powerful kind, in super-sensuous matter, and ‘vivi-fies’, ‘vita-lises’, it, by prāṇa-pratiṣṭhā, ‘life-estab-lishing’, ritual, to be of help. Human form itself is result of Will-and-Imagination of the Universal Principle of Consciousness. Devas, gods, angels, Dhyān Chohans, planetary spirits, create and become men; and, vice versa, men create and become gods; (see p. 300 of Vol. V of The Secret Doctrine, and p. 296 of From the Caves and Jungles of Hindūstān, by H. P. B.). Thoughts become things; things become thoughts; ideals, reals; reals, ideals. An idea in the mind of an artist becomes a picture, a statue, a palace, a temple, a song, a park, a town; this crumbles and vanishes with lapse of time, and becomes a ‘memory’, an idea. Gases become solids; solids, gases. Super-physical makes or becomes physical; physical dissolves again into superphysical. Therefore, Purāṇas say that a dēva-kingdom accompanies a ‘human kingdom’, i.e., a human race; therefore, every ‘civilisation’ has a ‘religion’, a ‘mythos’, of its own.

It has just been said that the soul progresses from Works, through Worship, to Wisdom. But the three Nir-viñanaṁ Jñāna-yogah,
Nyāsināṁ iha karmasu;
Tēshu a-nir-viñana-chiṭṭānāṁ
Karma-yogah āṁ karmiṇāṁ;
Yadṛchchhayā Maṭ-kaṭhā-(ā)dvau
Jāta-shraḍḍhah āṁ yah pumān,
Na nir-viñanaḥ, na aṭi-saktah,
Bhakti-yogah asya siddhi-dvau.

(Bhāgavata, xi. ch. 20.)

(Three ways have I declared, for helping men,
Walking which, they may gain the Highest Good;
For the child-mind that clings yet to the World,
There is the Way of Rites and Pious Works.
For those not clinging nor yet surfeited,
Who have heard rumours of Me, and have felt
Vague longings and strong stirrings of the heart,
The Way of Worship is the helpful way.
For those who are world-weary, ‘dis-illusioned’,
Who seek but rest from all this Vast Illusion
Of whirling purgat’ries and paradises, are expounded, in the present work, in the reverse order.

This is so, because it is hoped that the book may be used for the purpose of Education of the young, and, for that purpose, the Educator has to become a person of Knowledge first, and then reinclude, on a higher level, Devotion and Action also, in his life, and combine all in balanced Wisdom.
And have no wish left to initiate
New enterprises, but only to pay
All unpaid ‘debts’, do ‘duties’ undischarged—
For them the Way of Knowledge is the Way.)

For the soul which has found the Final Object of all Seeking, the three Ways have merged into one. For those yet seeking and slowly and steadily progressing, the three are distinguishable. Since ‘action’ is most ‘manifest’; desire and cognition are hidden, and manifest only in and through action; therefore, differences, quarrels, also ‘manifest’ most in the ‘actions’ of ‘children’, ‘child-minds’.

Accordingly, differences between religions are most apparent in third department, viz., Kārma-kāṇḍa, Sharia’t or Māmilāt, sacraments, rites, ceremonies and observances. Yet those differences are only apparent. There is very substantial similarity underneath surface. Dresses of men seem to differ greatly; yet because the human shape enclothed by them is same, all dresses have to shape themselves to it more or less closely.

1. Prayer.

1. Vedic sāndhyā-upāsanā, Christian prayer, Muslim namāz—are same. Essential parts of all are almost exactly same. Indeed they are almost like translations of one another. They all pray to the Ultimate Source or Reservoir of all Cosmic Energy, Mental, Physical, Biotic, for Right Intelligence and Righteous Will, inner illumination, guidance, protection from evil temptations, and strength of mind to do right duty. Obviously, if intelligence is right and righteous, and will strong and guided by that intelligence, everything will go right.¹

¹ Psychologically, prayer is essentially prayer to the God Within All, Collective Consciousness, Principle of Consciousness, Omnipresent, Omnipotent, Omniscient. Latest 'scientific' name of this Ultimate is 'Total Unconscious'. It is a new and significant variant of the old 'Unmanifest', a-v-y-a-k-t-a, bāṭin, 'hidden'. "Praying" is, mostly, an 'unconscious', i.e., unwitting, non-deliberate, (in a comparative few, deliberate) wishing and willing that this 'Unconscious' may become conscious, in the person praying. A scientist, an inventor, 'concentrating' upon solution of some problem, is thus praying, performing yoga, that the all-knowing Unconscious within him, may become conscious in his brain in respect of that part of All-Knowledge which he (the person praying) desires. Young souls can only gradually transfer their prayers from 'a god Without' to 'God within'. As children, we pray to our father, mother, elder, guardian, for everything. When grown up, we 'pray' to ourselves, we insist upon ourselves, we will, to stand upon our own feet, and avoid troubling others with requests for help, as much as possible. But this is not always possible. Then we, (even though grown-up, yet not grown sufficiently strong), have to seek help of others, who are senior, stronger, superior. Always in last resort, final work has to be done by one-Self. Mother and father may give food; teacher, information; but eating, Aum! Bhūh, Aum! Bhuvah, Aum! Svah.
Aum! Taś Savituh varēniyam bhargah Devasya dhīmahi, dhīyah yah nah pra-choḍayāt. Aum!

(Ṛg.-V., Gāyatrī, 3. 62. 10.)

Masticating, digesting, absorbing, understanding, assimilating, must be done by one-self. There are prayers to personal gods, ištə-a-deva-s, malayak, auliya, rishis, gurus, pīr-s, mediators, angels, saints (see p. 531 supra); behind them all there is perpetual unavoidable 'prayer' to Impersonal Omnipresent God. Of this 'perpetual prayer', incessant breathing, 'praying to the god of air', atmos, (Ātmā seems connected with three Greek words, atmos, etymon, autos), is a primary simple manifestation. In its spiritual aspect, this 'breathing' is called, in Vēdism, a-japā gāyatrī, 'muttered inaudible prayer'; in which every breath signifies, 'That am I', 'That am I', 'I am That', 'I am That', S a h A h a m, A h a m S a h. Without perpetual in-filling, in-coming, of that Great Pure I, and out-going, out-casting, of impurities of small I, small I cannot live at all.

Har nafasé ke furo mī rawad,
Mumidā-e hayat asṭ;
Wa chūn bar mī āyaḍ,
Mufarreh-e zāṭ;
Pas dar har nafasé do nē'maṭ
Maujūḍ ast;
Wa bar har nē'maṭe shukrē wājib. (S., Sā'ḏi.)

(Each breath that goeth in strengthens the life;
Each that comes out, the body purifies.
Each breathing in-and-out two blessings brings;
Then think of Him with each, with twofold thanks.)

Praying for display of piety, is obviously wrong; and not only useless but harmful. Ordinarily, prayer in secrecy and solitude is sincerest and most full of deep emotion. In conditions of widespread, profound, national Aum ! Agnél, naya supathā rayé
Asmān, vishvāni, Déva l, vayunāni vidvān ;
Yuyoḍhi asmaj-juhurānam ēnah ;
Bhūyishthām té nama(h)-uktīm viṇhēma. Aum !
(Yajur- V., 40-16.)

surge of feeling, in presence of great danger or actual calamity, mass-prayer is obviously commanded by Nature itself. Congregational prayer is right, useful, effective, in other circumstances also, if sincere and single-minded. Solitary study has its own uses ; so has joint class-room study. It all depends upon the object in view, temperaments and requirements of persons concerned, and general surrounding conditions.

"Prayer opens the spiritual sight of man, for prayer is desire, and desire develops into will. The magnetic emanations proceeding from the body at every effort—whether mental or physical—produce self-magnetisation and ecstasy. Jesus has given the advice: 'When thou prayest, thou shalt not be as the hypocrites are; for they love to pray standing in the synagogues and in the corners of the streets, that they may be seen of men. But when thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father in secret'..."
(H. P. Blavatsky, Isis Unveiled, I. 434.)

Muhammad said to a new convert who was shouting out his namáz-prayer at the top of his voice: 'Brother!, Allah is not deaf; you need not shout so loudly'.

It has been said that "The usual influence of Christian belief" (and indeed of all blind belief, in any religion) "has been to override the idea of invariable causation in nature; even after the belief in recurrent miracles is disavowed, the doctrine and practice of prayer remain to represent the old concept": (J. M. Robertson, A Short History of Christianity, p. 242); the old concept, vis., that God can intervene, to change the ordinary Aum! Vishvāni!, Dēva Savitāh, durītāni par-
(ā)-āsuva, yaḍ bhaḍram ṭat nah āsuva! (Rg.-V.)
Aum! Yaṭ jāgratāh dūram uḍ-aiti Daivam,
Ṭaḍ u supṭasya ṭaṭhā īva aiti,
Dūraṇ-gamam jyoṭishām jyoṭih Ėkam
Ṭaṭ mē Manah shiva-sankalpam āṣu!

course of causation, in answer to prayer. Yet 'miracles never cease'; every the least change, and every 'invariable' particular pair of cause-and-effect is an untelligible miracle. Who can say why fire burns human skin and ice feels cold to it? Besides this radical consideration, there is the, if possible, even more radical one: in the familiar course of Nature, a weaker force as cause is overpowered by a stronger force as greater cause which produces a different effect. Interpret 'prayer' as willing; as concentration of 'mind-force', such as is exercised in 'hypnotising' or in 'auto-suggestion'; as intense 'mental effort' to draw strength and power from Universal Space and Energy; similar to 'bodily effort' to expand lungs and draw strength and vitality from universal air by great in-breathings. Such interpretation will readily restore 'scientific causation' to its proper place.

Alexis Carrel, M.D., Nobel Laureate, author of Man, the Unknown, renowned biologist, recipient of many other honors from famous learned bodies and from States, who passed away in 1944, wrote, in New York Reader's Digest for March 1941, an art., 'Prayer is Power'. In the course of it he said: "Prayer is not only worship, it is also an invisible emanation of man's worshipping spirit—the most powerful energy that one can generate.
The influence of prayer on the human mind and body is as demonstrable as that of secreting glands. Its result can be measured in terms physical buoyancy, greater Yaś praśnānam, uta chētah, dhṛtiḥ cha,
Yaś jyoṣṭhī anṭah Amṛtām praṇāsū,
Yasmāt na ṛṭē kin-chana karma kriyaṭe,
Ṭāṭ me Manah shiva-sankalpam astu!
Yena īdām bhūṭam bhuṇam ahāvīṣyati
Pari-grhīṭam Amṛtēna sarvam,
Yasmin chiṭṭam sarvam oṭam praṇānām,
Ṭāṭ me Manah shiva-sankalpam astu! Aum!

(Yajur-V. i, 1-6.)

Aum! Yah ādevānām prabhavah cha uṣdbhavah cha,
Vishv-aḍhipah, Rudraḥ, Maharṣhīh,
Hiraṇya-garbham janayāmāṣa pūrvam,
Sah nah buḍḍhyā shubhāya samyunaktu!

Aum! (U.)

Aum! Uḍīhi, uḍīhi, Sūrya!

Varchasā mā abhi-uḍīhi;

intellectual vigour, moral stamina, and a deeper understanding of the realities underlying human relationships. A tranquillity of bearing, a facial and bodily repose, are observed in those whose inner lives are enriched by prayer. Within the depths of consciousness a flame kindles. And man sees himself. He discovers his selfishness, his silly pride, his greeds, his blunders. He develops a sense of moral obligation, intellectual humility. Thus begins a journey of the soul towards the realm of grace". In Man, the Unknown (pub., 1937), pp. 141-145, he mentions his own experience and "the most important cases of miraculous healing, recorded by the Medical Bureau of Lourdes". See account, by Dr. Carrel, of a miraculous cure of a dying woman, at Lourdes, reprinted in N. Y. Reader's Digest for October, 1950.
Yān cha pashyāmi, yān cha na,
Tēshu mām su-maṭim kṛdhi! Aum!

(Atharva Veda.)

(Aum! In the three worlds, planes, states of consciousness,
Waking, and Dreaming, and Deep Slumber too,
Father of all, may Thy Supernal Light
Inspire, illuminate, and guide our minds;
We ope them to that Radiance Divine! Aum!)

(Aum! Supreme Director! Lord of Warmth and Light,
Of Life and Consciousness, that knowest all!
Guide us by the Right Path to happiness!
And give us strength and will to war against
The sins that rage in us and lead astray!
We bow in reverence and prayer to thee! Aum!)

(Aum! Father Divine!, all sins ward off from us,
And all auspicious virtues grant to us! Aum!) (V.)

(Aum! This Mind Divine of mine, which wanders far
When I am waking, and comes back in sleep—
May this far-reaching light of lights will right!
This Mind of mine, which is intelligence
All-knowing; which is living consciousness,
And patient self-maintaining fortitude;
Which is the inner and immortal light
Without which we are naught—may it will right!)
This Mind of mine, which in eternal grasp,
Holds past and present and the future, all,
In which all other minds are interwoven
As warp and woof—may it will ever right! Aum!

(V.)

(Aum! Who did create and is the Lord of all,
Senses, sense-objects, souls, or high or low,
Rudra, the Seed of I-ness, and all-knower,
Maharshi, Who did generate at first
The Golden Egg wherein are interlinked
The wheeling globes by Prime Intelligence—
May He endow us with the righteous Mind! Aum!
Aum! Arise, arise, our gracious Lord, O Sun!
Envelope us in Thy Effulgent Glory,
And raise us to the height of Thine own Wisdom,
So we may have insight of thy Great Purpose
And rightly understand our fellow-beings,
Create in us loving good-will for all,
Those whom we see and those we do not see!
Aum! (V.)

Aum! Bhadram karnébhih shrñuyáma, Déváh!
Bhadram pashyéma akshabhíh yajaòrañ;
Sthiraih angaih tushtuvámsah tanúbhíh
Vyashémahi déva-hítam yañ áyuñ. Aum! (Up.)

(May we hear words of sweetness with our ears;
May we see joyous sights with our eyes;
With firm and healthy limbs, may we live on...
For so long as is good for our organs,
Sensor and motor, through which ye do live,
Ye gods! ye Nature-forces!¹ Living thus Shall we express and hymn your glories well!)

A-ḍīnāh syāma sharaḍah shatām, bhūyah cha sharaḍah shaṭāt. (Yajur-Vēda, 36. 24.)

Bhaḍram jīvanṭah jaraṇām ashīmahī.
(Rg-Vēda, 10. 37. 6.)

Pashyēma sharaḍah shatām, rohēma sharaḍah shaṭam, pushyēma sharaḍah shaṭam, bhavēma sharaḍah shaṭam, bhūshēma sharaḍah shaṭam, bhūyashcha sharaḍah shaṭāt.

(Aṭharva-Vēda, 19. 67. 1-8.)

(May we live, un-depressed, a hundred years;
And even more; and, living sumptuously,
A hundred autumn-glories may we see;
And for a hundred autumns may we grow
In health and strength, and decorate ourselves;
And e’ en beyond the term of hundred years!)

B-ism-Illāh-ir-Rahmān-ir-Rahīm.
Al-hamdu lillāhi Rabb-il-ālimīn.
Ar-Rahmān ir-Rahīm! Mālik-i-yaum-iḍ-ḍīn.
Iyyāka na’buḍu, wa iyyāka nasṭa’īn;

¹ Das, 'gods', are nature-forces of 'five elements, ākāsha-ether, air, fire, water, earth', with which, five sensor and five motor organs are connected, in Vēdic 'natural philosophy'.

E.U.A.R.]} MAY WE LIVE HUNDRED YEARS 581
Ihdin-as-sirat-ul-mustaqim,
Sirat-allazina an amta a'laihim,
Ghair-il-maghzub-i-a'laihim
wa la-azzallin. Amiin! (Q.)

(Praise be unto the Lord of all the worlds!
The Lord of Mercy and Beneficence!
Master Supreme of the great Judgment Day!
Thee do we serve and Thee beseech for help;
Show us the Path on which Thy blessings rest,
The Straight Path; not of those whose who go astray,
On whom descends thy wrath and punishment!
Amiin.)

Rabbana atina f-id-duniya hasanaat, wa f-ilakhiraati hasanaat, wa qinaa azab-un-nar. (Q.)

1 We have seen before, pp. 381-'4 supra, that Vedic 'Messiah' as well as Biblical 'Nabi' have prayed for 'daily bread'. In above text, Quranic 'Rshi' does the same. Vedic verse, quoted just before, praying for long life of physical body and for auspicious sense-objects, has same significance. Affairs of this world are by no means to be neglected and despised. Quite obviously, by declaration of all religions, right conduct in this world is necessary condition of welfare in the next. That there is a next world, all religions are agreed; and if the question were to be decided by 'democratic' method, and were put to a universal plebiscite, vast majority of about 2,500 million human beings who inhabit this earth, including 180 or so millions of even Soviet Russia of today, would surely say 'Yes'! Therefore, it is right that we should pray for, and exert ourselves to win, (O God of all!
Bestow on us all blessings in this world,
And also in the other future world;
And save us from the fires of sin and hell.)

"Our Father which art in heaven! Hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors. And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil; for Thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever. Amen!" (B., N. T.)

"Lead me, O Lord, in Thy righteousness. Make Thy Way straight before my face. Cleanse Thou me from secret faults. Keep back Thy servant from presumptuous sins; let them not have dominion over me. Wash me thoroughly from my iniquity, and cleanse me from my sin. Create in me a clean heart, O God!, and renew a right spirit within me. Search me, O God!, know my heart, try me and know my thoughts, and see if there be well-being in both worlds. Vedic Rshi, indeed, declares expressly that "Religion is that which secures happiness here as well as hereafter ".

Yaṭah Abhy-udaya-Nis-shreyasasiddhiḥ sa Dharmah. (Vaisheshika-Sūtra.)

Whole of Isha Upanishat stresses same fact.
any wicked way in me; and lead me in the Way Everlasting. Show me Thy Ways, O Lord! Teach me Thy Path; and lead me in Thy Truth; Thou art the God of my Salvation. Open Thou mine eyes that I may behold wondrous things out of Thy law. Quicken thou me according to Thy Word. Remove from me the way of lying.” (B., O. T., Psalms.)

Shemaa Israel! A'donai Elohenu A'donai Eihad! Yehi rason millefanekha, A'donai Elohenu velohe abothenu, she'targilenu Be'thara'theka vethadbikenu bemisswo'theka, ve-al tebienu lide het velo lide abera velo lide nissayon velo lide bizzayon vethherhikenu miyesser haraa; vethadbikenu beyasser hat'tob vethnenu lehen velhessed velrahmin be'-enekha vebene kol roenu veggomlenu hasadim tobim. Barukh A'tta A'donai gomel hasadim tobim leammo Israel. Amen.

(Hear. O Israel! the Lord is our God, the Lord is One. May it be Thy will, O Lord our God, and God of our fathers, to cause us to walk in Thy law and cleave to Thy commandments; and lead us not into sin, transgression, temptation, and contempt. Remove from us every evil inclination and cause us to adhere to the good. Oh, grant us grace, favour and mercy in Thy sight, and in the sight of all that behold us, and bestow gracious favours on us. Blessed art Thou, O Lord, who bestowest gracious favours on Thy people Israel. Amen."

"Honovar"-prayer, (so named because of the words 'ahu-vairaya' or 'ahuna-vairayo' which occur in it), is held as sacred in Zoroastrianism as 'Gāyaṭrī' in Vēdism. It is:

Yaṭhā ahu(na) vairayo, aṭhā Raṭush, asbāṭ chīṭ ha chā, vanghéush daṭaḍā manangho, shyaọthanānām anghēush Mazaḍā-i kṣaṭthrēm chā Ahurāī ā. Yim ḍreguvyo daḍāṭ vāṣṭārēm.

(Fix we our minds in worship on the Lord,
Of Right and Might, of Wisdom and of Power,

Who gives us Conscience to do godly deeds,
And also gives Detachment from the World,
And patient Resignation whence we gain
Solace in time of weakness and of pain.)¹

¹ This rendering is based on the interpretation made by Shri J. M. Chatterji, Ethical Conceptions of the Gāthā, (2nd edn.), pp. 11 and 592; so also are all other renderings of Gāthā-texts, given in this book, based on his. Scholars can check and correct by the original texts, reproduced here in roman letters. Another version of Honovar is as below; it is only a versified form of the words (slightly altered for purposes of metre) of an English translation by Dr. Irach J. S. Taraporewala which appeared in The Bombay Theosophical Bulletin for September, 1937.

(As the earth’s sovereign ruleth o’er the earth,
E’en so the Spiritual Teacher rules
The Mind of all, because of the Great Power
Of Rectitude and all the other gifts
Of the Good Mind. The Strength of Ahura,
And all these other gifts that go with it,
Are given to him who worketh for the Lord
In service of his brethren to his best.
May the Good Mind inspire us so we may Bring solace to the souls of all in need!)

Dr. Taraporewala says that, like all other Saviours,
"after years of struggle with his lower self, Zarathustra gets Illumination", and begins the work of his mission with the utterance of "the Ahuna-vairya, ‘the Holy Word of sacrifice’...". "Ahunem vairim, ṭanūm paiti", means ‘the mantra saves the man’. Vairya is from Skt. vṛt, to choose; hence it means ‘all-powerful, who can choose as he wills’. " (Personal letter d/24-1-1938.) Gāya-ṭri too trāyaṭe, ‘saves’ him who gāyati, ‘sings’ it.
... Apāno ďarėgo jyātīm, ā kshaṭṭhrēm vanghēush manangho; ashāṭ ā ērējūsh paṭho yaēshu Mazadāo Ahuro shaēṭī. (Z., Gāthā, 33. 5.)

... Ahmāṭ avā mananghā yā vērējyē-īdēyīyī manṭā vāstrāyā ... (33. 6.)

... Ahuro Mazadāos chā ārmaīṭīsh chā ashēm chā frādaṭ gaēṭhēm manas chā vohu 'kshaṭṭhrēm chā ... ādāī ... (33. 11.)

Yā shyaoṭhanā yā vachanghā yā yasnaā amērēṭātēm ashēm chā taibyo dāonghā, Mazadāl kshaṭṭhrēm chā haūrvāṭaṭo aēshām ṭoī, Ahurā!, ēhya poūruṭēmāīsh dāṣṭē. (34. 1.)

Aṭ chā hoī sачanṭū mananghā ukhēhāīs shyaoṭḥānāīs chā; kshnūm Mazadāo Vahmāi a fraorēṭ yasnaās chā ... Dāonghō ērējūsh paṭho yām đaēnām Ahuro Saoshyanṭo đaḍaṭ. (53. 2.)

(Grant me long life, Lord Mazadāl!, Fortitude,

And the right mind; and show me

the Straight Path,

O'er which Thou broodest, and which leads to Thee.

Lord! give me such a Mind as makes men Wise

And dutiful. ... The wealth of Rectitude,

From which all other wealth flows of itself,

And Conscience Just, and Patient Fortitude,

And right Activity, bestow on me.

Come unto me, Great Mazada! with Thy hands

Full of those duties, righteous words and deeds,
Which bring Spirituality, detached
Aloofness from the world, Salvation thence,
Right thoughts, right words, right deeds—by these we gain
Knowledge of Mazaḍā, and thence of Brahm';
The Straight Path that the Loving Lord Soshyant Gave us—may we not ever err from it.)

At ṭoī, Mazaḍā! tēm mainyūm asha-okshanṭāya sarēḍyayāo khāṭhrā maēṭha mayā vahistha varēṭū manangbā ayāo aroī hākurēnēm yayāo hachinṭe ūrvāno. (33. 9.)

(May this my mind, Lord Mazaḍā! show to me
The Truth, Thy inmost Spirit, Greatest Good,
Ideal of Ideals, to guide me
Aright in ways of Righteousness alway.
Having achieved that goal, I will have gained
All lesser things, to which my soul inclines.)

Sīshā nāo ashā paṭho vanghėūsh khaēṭṃg manangho. (34. 12.)

(Teach us the path of conscious Rectitude, Great Lord! wherein Conscience rests satisfied.)

Aṣhā, Rectitude, Right Desire, Vahishṭam
Manah, Right mind, Right knowledge, Ārmāṭṭī, Right will, Right action, Kshaṭṭhräm, Patient and Steady Detachment, and Mananghā, thoughts, Vachanghā, words, Shyaōṭhanā, deeds—these words are of very frequent occurrence in Gāṭhās.
A brief, and very common, Vedic prayer to be cleansed of sins, and be forgiven, is:

Pāpah aham, pāpa-karmā aham,
pāp-ātmā, pāpa-sambhavah,
Pāhi mām, Pundarik-āksha ī, sarva-pāp-harah bhava. (Mbh.)

(Sinful am I, sin-acting, and sin-born, Sin-natured. Cleanse Thou me from all my sin !)

It may be noted that Aum (Om), Āmīn, Amen, respectively used by Vaiḍika Dharmā, Islām, and Christianity, are the same word, all meaning, “Be it so”, besides other meanings.

A Jaina prayer-hymn is:

Arahanṭa namo! Bhagavanṭa namo!
Param-ēśhvara Jina-raja namo!
Prabhū pāran-gaṭa, para maḥoḍaya,
Avināshī, akalanka, namo!
Ajara, amara, aṭṭi-shaya aḍbhuṭa-nidhi,
Pravachana-jalaḍhi-mayanka, namo!
Kēvala-gyānā-ḍarshē ḍarshiṭa,
Lokā-loka-sva-bhāva, namo!
Nāshiṭa-sakala-kalanka-kalusha-gaṇa,
Duriṭa-upāḍrava-bhāva, namo!
Asharāṇa-sharāṇa, vi-rāga, nir-anjana,
Nir-upāḍhika, Jagad-Īsha, namo!
Boḍhi dīnu an-upama dān-ēśhvara,
Gyāna bimala, sūr-īsha, namo!¹
(Thou that deservest every praise;
The Lord of every glory, Thou!
Our God Supreme! We how to Thee!
Stainless, decayless, wonderful,
Exhaustless fount of marvels all;
The One Sole object of all hymns,
Who can be glimpsed but in the glass
Of Solitary Consciousness,
That has negated all the taints
Of restless sins, disturbances,
Attachments of false fleeting things,
That stain Thy Purity of Peace!
Thou Refuge of the refugeless!
Thou Formless, Moveless, Passionless!
Lord of the Worlds! Thee we adore!
Most Generous of givers, Thou!
Give us that greatest gift of all—
The Luminous Intelligence
And Final Knowledge of Thy-Self!
Give us this gift! We bow to Thee!)

Buddhist prayer, in most common use is:
Buḍḍham sharaṇam gachchhāmi,
Dhammam sharaṇam gachchhāmi,

¹ This prayer also is taken from the Theosophical publication mentioned before, p. 585 supra. For some verses from another Jaina prayer, in Samskṛt, see p. 194 supra.
Sangham sharanam gachchhāmi,
Aum! maṇih padaṁe Aum!
(Ah! Blessed Lord! O High Deliverer!
Ah! Lover! Brother! Guide! Lamp of the Law!
Source of all Wisdom, Fountain of all Light!
I take my refuge in Thy name and Thee!
I take my refuge in Thy Law of Good!
I take my refuge in Thy Order! Aum!
The gem-like drop of dew—my little soul—
Ah! may it pass into the Lotus-bloom
That floats upon the Sea
Of Thy Infinity!)

A few verses from a Sikh prayer are:
Sarab Kāla hai Piṭā apārā,
Devi Kalikā Māṭa hamārā,
Manuyā Guru mohi, Manasā Māyī,
Yin mo ko saṭ-kriyā parhāī.

The first six lines are taken from Sir Edwin Arnold's The Light of Asia. 'Mani pamme' (Skt. maṇih padaṁe), 'the jewel in the lotus', seems to have a significance similar to that of a Hindu tradition, viz., that if the body of a departed person is carried through the street in Banaras, named Brahma-nāla, to Mani-karṇikā, a holy spot on the bank of Gangā, and is burnt there, the soul attains moksha. 'Mystic' meaning of Brahma-nāla, 'stem of Brahma', is that if the soul, by Yoga-practice, is able to travel up through spinal cord and brain to Brahma-randhra, 'Brahma-hole', Mani-karnikā, 'jewel-bud', (i.e. pituitary body cum pineal gland?), it attains omniscience: (see The Secret Doctrine, V, 482).
Devi Shivāl! vara mohi yahai
Shubha karmon té kabahūn na tarūn,
Na darūn ari só jaba āi larai,
Nishchaya kari apanī jiṭa karūn.
Thāḍha bhaye kara jora kar,
Vachana kahā shira nāe,
Panṭha chalai Tava jagaṭa mēn
Yav Tum karo sahāe.

(Guru Govinda Simha, Vīchīṭrā Nātaka and Chandī Charitā.)

(Th' Eternal is my Father measureless,
My goddess-Mother is Eternity,
My Teacher is my Mind; its Intuition
Is my good Nurse. They teach me to do right.
Thou blessed Consort-Nature of the Lord!
Grant me this boon that I may never turn
From the Right Path of Duty; never fear
To war 'gainst evil; and may always win!
I fold my hands in humble prayer to Thee!
I bend my head in lowly reverence!
Ordain that Thy Path may be trod by all;
Give me the strength to make it plain to men!)

1 These last three prayers, Jaina, Buddhist, and Sikh have some words in them, which make it possible, according to mood of devotee, to regard them as addressed either to the Supreme, or to a 'personal' embodiment of the Supreme, vis., Mahāvīra Jina, or Buddha, or goddess Durgā.
Another great prayer, common to the several religions, may be noted; common because it arises spontaneously from unsophisticated human heart, which is same all over earth; for Darkness, outer as well as inner, is the great enemy of the good, and Light their great friend, everywhere:

Aum! Tamasah mā Jyoṭih gamaya,
Asaṭah mā Saḍ gamaya,
Mrtyoh Amṛtam! Aum! (V.)

(Lead me from Darkness unto Light; lead me From the Unreal to the Real; lead Me from the mortal to th' Immortal Self!)

Il allazīna āmanu yukṣrijahum min az-Zulmāṭi il an-Nūr! (Q.)

(Those who have found the faith are taken out Of Darkness into Light, ye faithful ones!)

Nūrun alā nūrin yahḍillāhū li nūriḥī manyashāo. (Q.)

(Light blazing upon Light, God guideth him,
To whom He gives His grace, unto His Light.)

(Ocean of mercy! dwell within our heart,
Ever, and give such Light unto our mind,
That we may love, serve, worship Thee, our God!
Ever Thy presence may we feel near us,
Thou art our Father, Mother, Master, all!)

(Si., THR., 31.)
Lead, kindly Light, amid th' encircling gloom,
Lead thou me on!
The night is dark, and I am far from home,
Lead thou me on!

(Christian Hymn, by Newman).

An old Greek hymn to Minerva, goddess of Wisdom, sprung from the head of Jupiter, (which implies that she is personification of the aspect of omniscience of the Supreme), sings:

Great Goddess, hear! and on my darkened mind,
Pour thy pure Light in measure unconfined;
That Sacred Light, O all-preceding Queen,
Which beams eternal from thy face serene.
My soul, while wandering on the earth, inspire
With thine own blessed and impulsive Fire.

(Proclus, translated by Thomas Taylor.)

All old 'dead' religions, and many of the living but smaller and less known religions of less-developed primitive or degenerate peoples, have similar prayers for 'illumination' of mind and body, for guidance and inspiration, for being shown the right way and given strength to tread it.

Let us note that most of these great elemental heart-prayers are prayers for collective 'we', 'us', rather than single 'me'; and even where the singular form is used, intention is plain, of righteous and loving relationship with all. Indeed, prayer without love, love of fellow-men as much as of God, (because former is beginning of latter), is hollow, is mockery.
Measure of power of prayer to help is measure of love in the heart which prays, and vice versa.¹

¹ For condemnation of malevolent evil prayer, which belongs to Black Magic, see Secret Doctrine, V. 48, 70-71.
Some other purposes and benefits of sincere good benevolent prayer may be noted. It is as toilette of the mind, the soul. It is bathing in the pure waters of spiritual emotion; looking into mirror of introspective self-examination; making sure that no unseemliness is left uncorrected, before presenting oneself before and to the Supreme, and then going forth to work among fellowcreatures, or retiring to rest for night. Detailed considerations, in this regard, are offered in The Science of Social Organisation, 1, 376-392. As to times for prayer, obviously all are good in which the soul feels need for it. Significance and value of a-japā gāyatrī have been referred to, at p. 575 supra. The more advanced, more pure, more (wisely) 'child'-like the soul, the more does it 'keep near' to Parent; desirous to please Parent thereby; while performing any and every act, as if the Divine Father-Mother is looking on and approving. Still, for an ordinary person, and for regulation of day's routine, hours of sunrise and sunset are recommended by most religions. Glories of God's Nature are most manifest then. Some beautiful English hymns may be quoted, to illustrate:

An Hour with Thee.
An hour with Thee! when earliest day,
Dapples with gold the eastern grey!
O what can frame the mind to bear
The toil and turmoil, care and care,
New griefs which coming hours unfold,
And sad remembrance of the old?
   One hour with Thee!
2. Repentance, Confession, Expiation.

2. But since men cannot always avoid temptation, and darkness falls upon their hearts and eyes, from time to time; nay, but too frequently; and

An hour with Thee! when burning June
Waves his red flag at pitch of noon!
What shall repay the faithful swain,
His labor on the sultry plain,
And more than cave or shelt'ring bough
Cool fevered blood and throbbing brow?

One hour with Thee!
An hour with Thee! when sun is set!
O what can teach me to forget
The thankless labors of the day,
The hopes, the wishes, flung away,
Th’ increasing wants, the lessening gains,
The master’s pride who scorns my pains?

One hour with Thee!

Ave Maria.

Ave Maria! blessed to the hour,
The time, the clime, the spot, where I so oft
Have felt that moment in its fullest power
Sink o'er the earth, so beautiful and soft,
While swung the deep bell in the distant tower,
Or the faint dying-day-hymn stole aloft,
And not a breath crept through the rosy air,
And yet the forest-leaves
Seemed stirred with prayer.
Ave Maria! 'tis the hour of prayer!
Ave Maria! 'tis the hour of love!
Ave Maria! O that face so fair!
Those downcast eyes beneath th' Almighty Dove!
Ave Maria! may our spirits dare
Look up to thine and to thy son's above!
they err into sin again and again; therefore all religions prescribe expiation; and all in three steps:
pashchāt-ṭāpa, prakhyāpana, prāyashchiṭṭa; nādm, ētarāf, kaffārā; repentance, confession, expiation.

_Earth has no sorrow that Heaven cannot heal!_

Come, ye disconsolate!, where'ver ye languish,
Come to God's altar, fervently here kneel,
Here bring your wounded hearts,
here bring your anguish,
Earth has no sorrow that heaven cannot heal!
Joy of the desolate, Light of the straying,
Hope, when all others die, fadeless and pure,
Here speaks the Comforter, in God's name saying,
"Earth has no sorrow that Heaven cannot heal!"
Go, ask the infidel, what boon he brings thee,
What charm for aching hearts can he reveal,
Sweet as the blessed promise that hope sings us,
"Earth has no sorrow that Heaven cannot heal!".

_Breathe on us, Breath of God._

Breathe on us, Breath of God!,
At dawn, our life re-new,
That we may love what Thou dost love
And do what thou wouldst do.
Breathe on us, Breath of God!,
At noon, until our hearts are pure,
Until with thee we will one will,
To do and to endure.
Breathe on us, Breath of God!
At eve, till we are wholly Thine,
Till all this earthly part of us
GloWS with Thy Fire Divine.
Breathe on us, Breath of God!
Always, so we shall never die.
But live with Thee the perfect life
Of Thine Eternity.
Bāz ā, bāz ā, un-che haštī bāz ā,
Gar kāfir o gabr o buṭ-parasṭā, bāz ā;
In ḍar-gahe Mā ḍar-gahe nā-umēdī n-īstī;
Saḏ bār agar ūauba shikāstī, bāz ā! (S.)

(Come back, come back,
whate'er thou art, come back—
Sceptic, or worshipper of stone or fire!
My House is not a house of hopelessness!
If thou hast broke thy vow a hundred times,
Yet still repent, and come again to Me!)

Apa chēt su-ḍur-āchārah
bhajaṭe Mām ananya-bḥāk,
Sāḏhuḥ ēva sa maṇṭavyah
sanyak vy-ava-sīṭāh hi sah. (G.)

(However gross his sins, if he will turn
To Me and love Me with unswerving heart,
He is a saint, he has resolved aright.)

"When in the wrong, do not hesitate to amend."
(C., THR., 47.)

(Be not ashamed of your mistakes, for you
Will thereby aggravate them into crimes . . .
Do not defend, and do not try to hide.
That which was wrong and sinful in your past.)
(C., Shu King; Liki, THR., 111.)

(If one has done bad deeds of wickedness,
But afterwards repents and mends his way,
Resolving not to do such any more,
But practise reverently all that is good—
He, in the long run, will be sure to gain
Good fortune, and will change calamity
Into sweet blessing through the lessons learnt.)

(T., Tai Shang Kan-Ying Pien, THR., 50.)

Khyāpanēna, anu-ṭāpēna, ṭapasā, aḍhy-ayanēna cha, . . .
Pāpa-kr̥t muchyaṭe pāp̥t . . .
prāyash-chiṇṭaih pr̥thag-vidhaih.
Yaṭhā yaṭhā narah a-ḍharmam
svayam kṛtvā anu-bhāṣhaṭe,
Ṭaṭhā ṭaṭhā, ṭvachā iva ahiṁ,
ṭena a-ḍharmēna muchyaṭe.
Yaṭhā yaṭhā manah ṭasya
dush-kr̥tam karma garhaṭi, Ṭaṭhā ṭaṭhā sharīram ṭaṭ
tena a-ḍharmēna muchyaṭe.
Kṛtvā pāpam tu san-ṭapya
ṭasmāt pāp̥t pra-muchyaṭe,
Na ēva kuryām punah iti
Ni- vr̥ttyā pūyaṭe tu saḥ.

(M., xi, 46, 227, 228, 230.)

(Burning remorse, confession, and amends
And expiation in the proper ways,
And sacred studies and ascetic life—
By such are sinners washed clean of their sins.
As he repents his evil acts committed,
As he confesses them with deep remorse.
As he resolves he will not sin again,
As he makes expiation duly, too,
His sins peel of from him as snakes' dead skins,
And he feels clean again, in body and soul.)

"Except ye repent, ye shall all perish. Repent ye, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out. If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." (B.)

"He that covereth his sin shall not prosper; but whoso confesseth and forsaketh them shall have mercy." (B., Proverbs.)

(They who, when they commit a crime or wrong, Remember God and beg Him to forgive, And do not persevere in what they did, But turn their heart from sin, repent, amend—They will gain pardon surely from the Lord.)

(THR., 49; Q., 2. 155; 5. 43; 6. 54; 3. 129, 130; 16. 20; 145.)

It should be carefully noted that mere subjective repentance and remorse is not enough; confession, to some good and wise man, a saintly person, if available, should follow; but even that is not enough; there must be expiation also; the victim of the sin must be compensated and propitiated; or if that person is no longer available, then some one else; or, in some other suitable and effective manner, penances, mortification of flesh, charities to genuinely good causes or person.

analysis, with much groping and many mis-corrections, is slowly developing a modern technique, for this ancient method of purging, from 'sin' and 'toxic' passion and which make both soul and body sick with ' and 'neuroses'. Latest advance of science is embodied in the word 're-education', i.e., psycho-analytic treatment, to be successful, must 're-educate' patient. 'Re-education' is new name for a small part of what was formerly called 're-generation', 're-birth', 'conversion', 'change of heart'. Old doctors had forgotten that significance of quacks or worse. A change was necessary. Therefore, Nature, collective human wisdom is bringing it about. Religion is being scientific. Science is becoming religious. New healer will have to be healer of body and soul simultaneously; for both always fall ill together, usually, one more and other less. Medicine-man will have to be such, on level of 'spiritual scientist', 'scientific' priest'. and 'prisoners' education is working in same direction. But it seems to be suffering from one serious and dangerous defect, viz., it does not induce criminal to make repentant expiation to victim. Consequence of this is likely to be that jail may come to be regarded as a desirable place of comforts, which can be easily secured by crime.

3. Discriminate Charity.

3. All religions equally enjoin discriminate 'charity' to the deserving, pāṭrē ṅāna, zakāṭ, and construction of 'pious works', churches, mosques, temples, alms-houses, rest-houses, wells, tanks, hospitals, schools, colleges, roads, aqueducts, and plantations of groves and avenues of fruiting, flowering, and ornamental trees, etc.—all dedicated for public use in name of God. Modern 'secular' way of satisfying this need of individuo-social heart is, 'subscriptions' and 'donations' to public institutions or movements, educational concerns, schools, universities, libraries, scientific institutes, hospitals, charitable endowments of all sorts.

4. Revelation.

4. All call their Scriptures by names having same significance, viz., 'Word of God': Brahmadvākya, Kalām-ullāh, Go(d)-spel(l). All arrange them in same way, aḍhyāya and mantri, ‘chapter and verse’, surah and ayat. All have written immense and numerous bhasyaśc, commentaries, Qurānic tafsīrs and tashrīhs, Hebraic Talmūds, on them. All have evolved a Mīmāṃsā, Science of Theology and Exegesis, Fiqāh. All interpret them in various ways, literal, allegorical, mystical, moral, anagogic, arithmetical, ‘prophetic’, etc. All believe their respective religions to have two aspects; one, for the masses; another, for the few advanced souls; (see pp. 128-137 supra). As Upanishāts are the rahasya, ‘secret’, of Vēdas; so Qabbālah is that of Old Testament or Hēbrew part of Bible; Bāṭini Tasawwuf, that of Qurān; Gnosticism and Mysticism of St. John and St. Paul and Book of Revelation, that of New Testament, Christian part of Bible; and these ‘hidden’, ‘esoteric’, ‘occult’ teachings of all religions are almost exactly the same. All believe in a fourfold source of religious law: Qurān—Haḍīs—Ijmā—Qayās; Revelation—Tradition—Canonical Regulation (i.e., Episcopal Legislation, Learned Opinion, Good Custom, also Example of the Wise and Godly)—Conscience; Shruti—Sruti—Sadāchāra—Ātmā-tushti (or Ḥṛday-ābhy-anu-jñā); which all correspond to modern legal Statute—Custom—Precedent—Equity.¹

¹ ‘Cha’ in Manu’s verse: (1) Shrutiḥ, (2) Srutiḥ, (3) Saḍāchārāḥ, (4) Svasya cha priyam Āṭmanah—
5. Shrines of God.

5. Because man clings to form, being himself naught else than God incarnate in a form, and finds it difficult to turn at once to the Formless, therefore all religions try to take him, step by step, from outer worship to Inner Worship. But religion everywhere becomes ruthless priestcraft, when, instead of leading the people on from step to higher step, endeavour is made by its custodians to stultify them with debasing superstitions and fears, and madden them with murderous bigotries, in order that they may be preyed upon more easily. Abusus optimi pessimus, 'the best, fallen, becomes the worst.'

indicates that all four are inter-dependent; all are needed to make good sound law-dharma acceptable to all. First three represent Society and Socialism; last, Individual and Individualism. This last, since 'Individual' is in essence 'Universal' and 'law unto him-Self', ultimately becomes Universalism, when Individual has consciously realised his identity with Universal.

This fourfold source is not so clear in Judaism; but (a) Law, (b) Writings, (c) Halacha, (d) Haggada, seem vaguely to correspond. See W. D. Morrison, The Jews under the Roman Rule, ch. xi (Story of the Nations Series).

1 Ranke's History of the Popes, (Eng. trans. by Foster, 1896) gives the full story of mutual murders of Roman Catholic and Protestant in very many countries.
Apsu ṛevaḥ manushyaṇaṁ,
ḥi ṛevaḥ maniṣhiṇaṁ,
Bālāṇaṁ kāśtha-loṣṭeṣhu,
buddhaṇa Aṭmaṇi ṛevaṇa. (Agni Purāṇa.)
(The child-soul's gods abide in wood and stone;
Of average man, in holy lakes and streams;
Of the intelligent, in heavenly orbs;
The wise man's God is his Immortal Self.)

Christian Scriptures distinguish between 'milk for babes' and 'meat for the strong'. We have recorded before, Kṛṣṇa's counsel: 'Those who know more should not shake the minds and faiths of those who know less, too violently'; and Muham-mad's advice: 'Teach people according to their intelligence.'

1 See pp. 201-203 supra. Also,
ṇve vāva Brahmano rupe,
Mūrtaṁ cha ēva, A-mūrtaṁ cha.
Yata Mūrtaṁ taḥ Mrtaṁ;
Atha A-mūrtaṁ, taḥ A-mṛtaṁ. (Bṛhad. Up., 2. 3. 1.)
(The Absolute hath being in two forms;
One is the Formless; 'th' other is 'all forms'.
The Formless is Unchanging, Permanent;
While 'forms' all mortal are, changing incessant.)

We have seen before (p. 1-3, 203-211) that all forms, names, are His, Mine, Universal Self's. The Abstract ex-ists in and through and by the Concrete. General Laws appear in particular Facts. Psychology and Metaphysic are illustrated, are realised, by History, by the whole World-Process. So, there is no impropriety
A western poet makes a repentant sinner say:

I thought I could not breathe in that fine air,
That pure severity of perfect light,
I wanted warmth and color. Now I know
Thou art the highest and most human too.

( Tennyson.)

Zoroastrianism, eschewing all worship of forms, has yet established Agyāri, Āṭash-Bahrām, Visible Fire, symbol of Spiritual Fire of Life and Consciousness, Fire round which all human beings should gather to derive therefrom Heat and Light, warm Vitality, and En-light-enment of Mind, common Consciousness of Unity and Brotherhood, and common Purpose of General Welfare and United Effort to achieve that Purpose. This agyāri, (Skṛ. Agni-āgāra, 'storing-place of fire') corresponds to 'Agni-hoṛa' ceremony of Vēḍism.

An Islāmic legend says that Moses rebuked a simple-hearted cobbler for praying to God to appear to him, so that he might put a pair of fine shoes in the child-soul clinging to a noble ideal-istic 'Image'; or even in a sage-soul feeling a devoted attachment for a yet higher and more advanced and perfected Individual Deity represented in a grandly artistic Imagin ary 'Image'. Nirukta (Vēḍa-Exegesis) tells us that Vēḍa has two meanings: (1) a Nītya, permanent, philosophical one, and (2) a Sāmayika, temporal, passing, historical.
on His feet. But the Voice of God, from within him, rebuked Moses, in turn:

Mazhabé Ishq az hamā millaṭ juḍā-št;
Āshiqān rā mazhab-o-millaṭ Khuḍā-št.
Mūsiā l, ādāb-ḍānān dīgar and,
Āshiqān soz-e-durūnān dīgar and.
Tū barāyé wasl kardān āmaḍī,
Nai barāyé fasl kardān āmaḍī. (Rūmī)
(The Faith of Love differs from other faiths.
The Religion and the Community
Of Those who Love is God and God alone.
O Moses I, know thou well and once for all—
Other are knowers of proprieties,
Other the hearts that are aflame with Love!
Thou wast sent down to bring souls near to Me,
And not to thrust them thus away from Ma.)

So, the chronicles of Roman Catholic Christianity record that, once upon a time, there was a juggler, who made his living by going about and showing his tricks to village-folk and towns-folk, with balls and knives. He attained great skill, and therefore even fame, in his art; though he could not always earn enough for his meals. One day he went into a church, and saw monks praying before a beautiful image of Madonna, the holy Virgin Mary. Very simple was his heart. Great love for the Madonna suddenly entered into it. When the monks went away, he, wishing to show his devotion to the Virgin, and knowing no other way, began to perform his tricks, with his head on the floor and feet in the air. The monks returned, happened to peep in, through chinks in the closed door, and saw the clown. They felt angry, and wished to enter, and remove him by force. Suddenly a haze came upon their eyes. Through it they saw a 'vision'. Madonna descended from her pedestal, and with her mantle wiped the sweat that was streaming from his brows. They fell upon their knees, bowed their heads to the floor, and murmured: "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."

Bhakti-legends of Hinduism are full of similar stories of soul-purifying 'visions' won by simple heart and faith undoubting, the faith that can move mountains, through child-like works of worship, very acceptable to the All pervading Spirit of Love.¹

¹ Hari Ḍas, (from whom Akbar's famous musician Tān-sēn acquired his art), was a great devotee of Kṛṣhṇa. The beautiful youthful dancing form of the deity was the object of his special adoration. When he used to play on his vīṇā and sing a dancing-song in ecstasy, he and his disciples often had 'vision' of 'the azure image' descending from its pedestal and dancing before them. Legends say that the emperor went on foot to Hari Ḍas' cottage in disguise, in company with Tān-sēn, in the right mood; and the 'glorious vision of Beauty Incarnate' was vouch-safed to him also. Tulasī Ḍas is the author of the famous Hindī Rāmāyana which has been the Bible of the Hindu people for last three hundred
Image-worship would serve its rightful purpose, if it is kept within strict limits; not positively encouraged; and if elders and spiritual ministers keep constantly reminding the people that the image is only a symbol, a remembrancer, of the One God. Islāmic tradition says that when Umar expressed doubts as to the utility of kissing the Black Stone, Hajr-ul-aswād, fixed within Kā’ba (which ceremonial kissing Muhammad had ordained), Ali explained to him:

Al hajru Yamīn-ullāh f-il ard.

(This stone is as God’s right hand on the earth.)

years. He was a contemporary of Hari Dāṣ. He was devoted to the Rāma-incarnation. At first, he was a householder; and, devotee as he was, times being troublous, his piety was tinged with anxiety for his goods. One night, he had occasion to come out of his house, soon after midnight. He ‘saw’ a magnificently handsome and mightily manly youth, armed with bow and arrows, pacing up and down, sentry-wise, in front of the house. He went up eagerly and asked; “Who are you, and why pacing up and down?” A rich-toned voice answered: “A friend of mine lives in this house and is anxious for his household goods; so I am keeping guard.” And, with a smile, the youth vanished. A great awe and a great joy and a great shame filled the soul of Tulasi Dāṣ, and made tumult therein: “I have seen my Lord! But I have put Him to so much trouble by my sordid worry over some wretched pots and pans!” At once he gave them all away, and followed Him”, and became the author of the Hindu’s ‘New Testament.’ Such are the beautiful heart-purifying soul-uplifting legends of true devotees of all races and religions.
Accordingly, all religions have their specially sacred shrines, bathing places, towns, places of pilgrimage, etc. Purpose of all is to keep mind fixed on higher and higher religious thoughts, spiritual ideas and virtues. To the soul not yet advanced to the stage of capacity for abstract contemplation, attaching of progressively abstract concepts (first super-physical, then meta-physical) with concrete physical objects, acts, movements, of various kinds, is of very great help, nay necessary.

Hinduism has, from time immemorial, its well-known seven Pāvīṭra-purī-s, Sacred Towns of Pilgrimage. These are, Māyā-purī or now Haradvāra (Hardwar), Maṭhurā (Muttra), Ayoḍhyā (Ajodhyā), Kāśī (Banaras), Avantikā (Ujjayini, Ujjain), Kānchī (Conjeeveram), and Dvārakā (Dwarka). These were all great ‘seats of learning,’ centres of education, brahma-purī-s, vidyā-pīṭha-s, in earlier days, like modern ‘university’ towns. Kāśī is still such, and has continued to

1 A European traveller in Thibet, asked a lāmā: “What is the good of merely mechanically turning a prayer-wheel?” The lāmā said: “The person, at his or her present stage, incapable of rising higher in mind, feels that he is praying, when turning the wheel; that is something; it is a first step towards introspection and meditation”; Mme. Alexandra Neele, With Mystics and Magicians in Thibet.

1 Purāṇa-name is Gangā-āvāra, ‘Gangā-gate’, for Gangā emerges here, first, from between hills on to plains.
be so, unbrokenly for at least three, probably five, thousand and more, years. Another set of four 'holy places' of pilgrimage, chaṭur-dhāma, consists of Bādari in Himālayas, Jagan-nātha on eastern sea-coast, Rām-ēshvara on southern, Īvārakā on western. Hundreds of new temple-towns, (like cathedral-towns of medieval Europe and mosque-towns of western Asia), have sprung up within last two thousand years, of which a score or so now come only next after above-mentioned seven and four, in public estimation.

Buddha, shortly before leaving this world, advised his followers to make centres of pilgrimage of four places, viz., those of his (1) birth, Lumminī (Rukminī)-vana, (2) enlightenment, Buḍḍha-Gayā, (3) commencement of his work of mercy and preaching, Sār-nāṭh1 in Banaras, and (4) passing into Paranirvāṇa, vis., Kushi-nara (-nagara). He did so,

1 There seems to have been a great temple of Shiva, here, in days of Gauṭama Buddha; and the deity was imaged as 'Lord and Protector of sāranga, deer', of which, there seem to have been great herds here, then, specially protected and preserved from (not for) hunting, by local public religious feeling. As such Protector, the image of Shiva was named Sāranga-nāṭha, now shortened by non-literary popular usage into Sār-nāṭh; and the place was known as Sāranga-vana, 'Deer Park', Mrga-ḍāya, in Pāli. (Ḍāya, as in dharma-ḍāya, ḍāy-āḍa, means 'inherited property,' 'given to', from ḍā, to give'; woodland 'given to' deer). Compare the great saying of Christ: 'Other sheep have I, which are not of this presumably, to satisfy unconquerable human craving for something visible, something tangible, even in religion; and to create external means of binding human hearts together, by establishing common interests and meeting-places for persons from all parts of the world, in a religious atmosphere and a pure mood of spiritual exaltation and aspiration. Trade and commerce and ideas all travel along such pilgrim-routes and help to spread common culture, common sympathy, humanism. Also, offerings of pilgrims, and need to supply their personal requirements, food, clothing, curios, mementoes, for which they pay well—all these help to build up flourishing temple-cathedral-mosque-towns, where arts and learning prosper, or at least have chance, and ought, to prosper, side by side with trade and marketplace. Unfortunately, as usual, 'God proposes and Satan disposes,' also, and 'much darkness gathers right under the lamp', and foul evils thrive in the shadow of 'houses of God'.

Muhammad destroyed three hundred and sixty idols in Macca, because he perceived the ill effects of excessive idolatry. Yet, realizing the needs of flock' (i.e., Jews). Christ is the 'shepherd'. Humane feeling towards animals, 'religious' in India, is beginning to express itself 'secularly' in the west, in such institutions as Yellowstone Park of U.S.A., Kruger Park in S. Africa, Zoos, and in laws for protection of wild life, here and there.
the human heart, he preserved one, viz., the Temple built by Abraham, Kā'ba, 'Cube,' with its Hajr-ul-Aswād and Hajr-ul-Yamān; and, with great foresight, made it the principal place of Islamic worship, a uniting centre of an ordained pilgrim-age, Hajj. Muslims, offering prayers at prescribed hours, always turn their faces in the direction of Kā'ba, in whatever part of the world they may happen to be. But Muhammad omitted not to teach that, though enjoined for common practice, it was not spiritually essential. For, indeed:

Wal-illāh il mashriqu w-al maghribu, fa aina mā ṭowallu fa summā Wajh-Ullāhī; inn-Allāhā wāseūn ālīm. Laisal birra an ṭowallu wujūha-kum qibal-al-mashriqi w-al-magḥribi, wa lakinnal birra man āmāna b-Ilīhī w-al-yaum-il-ākhirī w-al-malāyakāti w-al-kiṭabī w-an-nabiyyīna. (Q.

(Since God is omni-present, all-pervading,
Since He is in the east as well as west,
Whichever way ye turn, God's Face is there;
His Presence doth pervade the Universe:
It is not righteousness to turn the face
To east or west; but to believe in God;
And in the Day of Judgment when you must
The consequence of your good deeds and ill
Meet with unfailingly; and to have faith
In angels, scriptures, and the prophets too.)
Lâ inço Rabbi sabahun wa lâ māsūm. (H.)
Wa hua mâkum aynama kunṭum. (Q.)
(For God there is no morning and no eve;
And He is with you wheresoe'er you are.)

The courtyard, corridors around the central Cubical Temple, and sacred Zam-Zam well in the courtyard, of Ka'ba, are very like precincts of the great temples of South India. Method of worship too has many items quite similar to those which prevail in Indian temples. Pilgrims wash their faces and hands and feet, drink the water of the well, and sprinkle it over their bodies; put on two pieces of ehrām or unsewn cloth, like Indian avasīya (ḍhauṭī, ḍhōṭī) and uṭṭariya; make tawāf, pari-kramā cirum-ambulation, of the temple; kiss the holy stones, Hajr-ul-Aswaḍ, 'Black Stone,' and Hajr-ul-Yamān, 'Brown Stone,' fixed inside the cubical room; and sit in meditation. These stones are said to be meteorites, left, as they fell from the heavens, unshaped by human hands, like the Shiva-lingas in some famous Indian temples. Pilgrimages, hajj,

They are specially called Jyotirlinga-s, 'pillars of light'. Twelve such are mentioned in Purāṇa-s. One is in Kedāra-nātha temple in Banaras. Others are in other parts of India. 'Of light' because, when falling from the skies, they must have been luminous with ignition. All 'falling stars' are. To unsophisticated mind, unacquainted with scientific explanation, they would appear as special miracles. To scientific yāṭrā, are made by Islāmic pilgrims to other sacred places also, especially Madīnā, and Najaf, Karbalā, Meshed, etc. Islāmic tradition is that Ka'ba temple was originally erected by Abraham, who was also known as Khalīl.

Chief holy place of Hebrew religion is Jerusalem.

Christian religion too, naturally and rightly holds in great veneration, and regards as places of pilgrimage, places which have been sanctified by the birth of Christ, Bethlehem; upbringing in early years, Nazareth; baptism, river Jordan; ministry, sea of Galilee or Gennesareth, and towns on its shores, Tiberias, Capernaum, also town of Jerusalem; and finally, his crucifixion, Calvary. Besides these, it has its holy towns, like Rome, mind, they are only infinitesimal parts of the infinite perpetual miracle of the heavens with their countless contents of ever-rolling, breaking, and re-forming, shining and extinguishing, dying and re-appearing orbs. If priests of temples were wise and benevolent, they would explain the significance of 'jyotir-līngā' as above, to pilgrims, and help them to take a step forward from 'form' towards the Formless.

Bible also, (Exodus, 20) says: “If thou wilt make me an altar of stone, thou shalt not build it of hewn stone; for if thou lift up thy tool upon it, thou hast polluted it.” Another aspect of the truth is embodied in a Hindī proverb: “It takes a thousand strokes of chisel-and-hammer to evolve a god (idol) from a stone-block”. The soul must pass through all sorts of experience before it becomes perfect.
Kiev, Canterbury, Lourdes, etc., and its specially sacred shrines and churches, where images of the Blessed Virgin and her Bambino are worshipped with incense, lighted candles, water-sprinklings (by persons of the Roman Catholic persuasion), much in the Hinḍū way, and miracles are believed to be performed, especially of healing.

Worship of ideal Mother and Babe is, indeed, not only common to all religions, but is their purest, sincerest, most natural, and most ennobling part. So necessary is it for the human heart, that Buddhism in China has found out a Kwan-yin Budḍha, a female Buddha with a divine babe, to worship; she is 'Goddess of Mercy' 'Hearer of the World's prayers'.¹ And Fāṭimā and Hasan-Husain are as prominent in Islām, as Madonna and Babe in Christianity; or Yashodā and Kṛṣhṇa, and Kausalyā and Rāma, in Hinduism.

But here, as elsewhere, the human heart runs to excess, and converts good into evil. Followers of Islām, not content with one central Temple, worship tombs and mausolea too, which are as uselessly and mischievously numerous as Hinḍū temples and ¹ F. W. S. O'Neil, The Quest for God in China, pp. 153-154. H.P.B., The Secret Doctrine, II. 192-195 (and other places, see Index) indicates that Kwan-Shai-Yin or Kwan-Shi-Yin is Ātmā, and Kwan-Yin is Budḍhi. She suggests other elusive meanings also. See also The Mahatma Letters, p. 344.

images; though the wisest elders of Islam and Christianity and Vaidika Dharma say:

Ḍilā! ṭawāf-i-ḍilān kun, ke Kā'ba-ē makhfī-ṣṭ,
Ke āṇ Khalil binā kard, wa īn Khuḍā khuḍ sākhṭ.
Ṭā kai ziyāraṭ-i-maqābir, kunī, aī afsurdaḥ!
Yak gurba-i-zinda beh az hāzār shēr murdaḥ! (S.)
(Thy-Self, the Self in all hearts, O my heart!
Go, circum-ambulate, circle with love!
For every living heart is made by God
And is the inner mystic Kā'ba true;
While th' outer Kā'ba was built by Khalīl.
How long, what for, wilt thou make pilgrimage,
O luckless one! to dead tombs? One live cat
Is better than a thousand lions dead!)

Pūrṇasya āvāhanam kuṭra!, sarv-āḍhārasya cha āasanam!,
Pra-ḍakshiṇā cha An-anṭasya!,
hi A-ḍvayasya kuṭah naṭīḥ! (Parā pūjā.)

(How can the All-pervading, Who holds all,
Be brought into a temple and confined
In a small image on a pedestal!
How fix the Omnipresent to one spot!
How can the Infinite be circled round
By pigmy man! How may we bow to Him
Who has no Second that could bow to him,
Who is our very Self, naught else than We!)
Na nāka-prshthē, na Mahēndra-lokē,
Na nāga-rājyē, na rasā-ṭalē vā,
Na parvat-āgrē, na samudra-garṭē,
Na cha ashta-sidhēhishu; An-Idam hi Mokshah.
Na pāṭālam, na cha vivaram girīnām
Na ēva anḍha-kārah, kukshayah na uḍaḍhīnām,
Gubā yasyām nihīṭam Brahma shāśvataḥ,
Buḍḍhi-vṛttim a-vishishtām kavyah vēdayantē.
(Yoga-bhāshya.)

(Not in the heavens, nor the underworlds,
Not in the hollow caves of trackless mountains,
Nor in black darkness of the ocean's deeps—
The cave where Brahma shines is the heart-cave
Of Mind which is filled with the Consciousness—
'I am not any finite passing This.')

Bā-wujuḍē ke muzhā-e Ťērā, nahn-o-aqrab,
Safahe Masahaf pai likhā ṭhā,
mujhē mā'īmum na ṭhā. (S.)

(Though it is writ plain in the Holy Writ,
God sayeth, 'I am nearer unto thee,
O purblind man! than thine own jugular vein!'
Yet, being blind, I could not read that writ.)

"It is not hidden from thee, neither is It far off.
It is not in heaven, that thou shouldst say 'Who shall go up for us to heaven, and bring It unto us that we may hear It and do It? ' Neither is It beyond the sea, that thou shouldst say, 'Who shall go over the sea for us, and bring It unto us that we may hear It and do It?' But the Word is very nigh unto thee, in thy mouth, and in thy heart, that thou mayst do It." (B., Deuteronomy, 30, 13-14.)

That which thou art thou dreamest not; so vast
That lo! time present, time to be, time past,
Are but the sepals of thy opening soul
Whose flower shall fill the universe at last.
Thou ponderest on the moon, the stars, the sky,
When the winds gather, how the waters run,
But all too lightly deemest of thy-Self
Who art a thousand miracles in One;

(JAMES RHODES.)

So, too, have followers of Buddha taken to image-worship in excess. Philologists tell us that the very name, invented by neighbouring Persian-speaking peoples, for 'idol', viz., but, is but a corruption of 'Buḍḍha'; because the countless images, which they saw scattered all over the tracts now called Afghānīstān, Türkištān, etc., were all described to them, by their worshippers, as 'Buḍḍha'. Yet none has declared more emphatically than Buddha, that 'Within our-Self deliverance must be found,' and not from images.' His very last words were:

Āṭṭa-dīpā viharatthā,
Āṭṭa-saraṇā, an-aṇṇa-saraṇā,
Vyaya-ṭhannā sankhārā, appamādēna sampādētha. (Bu.)

'Prof. B. K. Sarkar, in his paper on 'Religious Categories,' (pp. 191-217 of The Religions of the World, vol. I, pub. by the Rāma Kṛṣṇa Mission, Calcutta, 1938), describes how Confucius, who died a disappointed and unappreciated reformer, was, some two hundred years later, described by Mencius as "the embodiment of highest perfection"; "three hundred years after his death he was made Duke and Earl"; another two hundred years later, Sze Ma-chien described him as "divinest of men"; by end of first century A. C., "his birthplace became a goal for pilgrims", emperors included; "in A. C. 178, a likeness of his was placed in his shrine, instead of the commemorative wooden tablet"; "in 267, an imperial decree ordered the sacrifice of a pig, a sheep, and an ox, to Confucius, at each of the four seasons; the first complete Confucian temple was built and dedicated in 505 A.C.; about 555, it was enacted that a Confucian temple should be built in every prefectural city". Prof. Sarkar also says that "Muhammad's death surprised even Caliph Omar as something impossible or inconceivable. Subsequent generations enriched his life-story with details of his miracles. In the third century after his death, Ibn Habban of Andalusia went so far as to say that Muhammad was not a human being subject to hunger and thirst." These instances are typical of how extravagant beliefs gradually grow up round the memories of great persons. The child-mind cannot see the miraculousness of the 'familiar'. It invents romances. They are its (Be lamps unto your-Self, and refuge too.
Seek not for refuge from aught else than Self.
Desires, and tendencies made by them, pass.
The Self abides. Achieve It heedfully.)

It is well-known that the teaching of Mahāvīra Jina is not different from that of Vēḍāṇṭa, even in words, so far as the most important of them are concerned.

Nayaṭi Āṭmānam Āṭmā ēva,
Janma, Nirvāṇam ēva, vā, nourishment; and should not be wholly forbidden;
otherwise, the child-mind will languish. But, also, when adolescence and youth have been reached, they must be replaced more and more by 'the miracles' of 'the familiar,' the so-called 'real'. Similar myths have grown up around the names of Kṛshṇa and Christ. Those connected with Kṛshṇa are especially imaginative; because they have had many more centuries to grow. Qurān (3. 138; 41. 6-8; 38. 96; 17. 93 : 25.
20; 6. 30; 7. 188; 13. 38; 21. 7. 8; 25. 20) itself expressly declares that prophets are mortal, and eat food, and go about in the markets, and have wives and children, like other human beings. No prophet has claimed immortality for his physical body. Nevertheless, extravagant, fantastic, superstitious beliefs grow up about them. There are sects of excessively 'faithful' ones, which believe that the bodies of Kṛshṇa and Jesus Christ were made, not of ordinary, but some peculiar ethereal, matter. In the past, the odium theologicum of utterly senseless, yet very bitter, controversies between rival sects, over such subtleties and hair-splitting, has caused much bloodshed.
Guruh Ātmā Ātmamanah, ṣaṃśmāt,
Na anyah ati, param-ārthaṭah,
(J., Samādhi-ṣaṭaka.)
(The Self doth lead it-Self to a new birth;
Or to Nirvāṇa's freedom from such birth.
No other Master has the Self than Self.
This is the one, the whole, the very Truth.)
These are almost the very words of Vēdism:
Ātmā ēva dévaṭāh sarvāh,
sarvam Ātmanī ava-sthitam,
Ātmā hi janayati ēshām
karma-yogam shārīrinām (M., xii 119.)
(The Self is all the gods; all's in the Self;
The Self it-Self puts on the bonds of Karma;
And then it frees it-Self from them, again.)
Yet there is a great deal of worship of images of Tīrthab ankaras, among Jainas to-day; though less so, and perhaps in a more refined form, than among Hindus; and there is a considerable number of Jaina temples, some exceedingly beautiful, scattered all over India, and located on admirably selected sites. Competent judges have recorded their opinion, that from the viewpoint of art, Dīlwaṛā Jain temples on Mount Abu rank immediately after Tāj Mahal of Agra.
Faqīhā ḍaṛṭar-ē rā mi parasṭand,
Haram-joyān ḍar-ē Mā mi parasṭand;
Bi-afgan parđah, tā mā'lūm gardaḏ,
Ke yārān Đigārē rā mī parasṭand.
Har kham o pēch-ē ke shuḍ
az tāb-e-zulf-ē Yār shuḍ, Dām shuḍ, tasbīh shuḍ,
zanjīr shuḍ, zunnār shuḍ.  (S.)

(The legalists worship their heaps of books;
The seekers of the holy secret seek
The door that leads to Me, within their heart.
Throw down the screen; then only wilt thou see
That th' intimates do worship Naught but Me,
While cunning ones do worship Something Else.)

(The curls and twists of the Belovèd's locks
Take on, in different hands, the different forms
Of ros'ry, girdle, chain, cord, sacred thread.)

Guru Nānak, Founder of the Sikh reform of Hinduism, has taught the very same essentials of Vēḍānṭā.

Kāhe re, mana ! bana khojana jāį !
Sarab-nivāśī, saḍā alēkhā, ṭo saṅg rahaṭ saḍāį,
Puhupa māṅhi jasa bāsa basaṭu hai,
Mukura māṅhi jasa chhāyāį,
Ṭaisē hī Hari bastaṭa niranṭara
Ghatahi méā, khojahu, bhāį !
Bhīṭara bāhara Ėkahi jānau,
Yaha Guru gyāna baṭāį.
Kahe Nānaka, binu Āpā chīnhē,
Mitai na Bhrama ki kāi!

(Why wilt thou go into the jungles, Why!
What hopest thou to find there, O my mind!
E'en as the scent within the flowers dwells,
And as thy image in the glass is held,
So God within thine own heart ever bides;
Seek Him with earnestness—and find Him there!
Also in everything and everywhere!
Outer and Inner, know, are but the same—
So does the Teacher teach thee finally.
Until thou know thy-Self, so Nānak says,
From the World-Mirage thou canst not get free.)

Another hermit of Punjab has sung in his own mother-tongue:

Dhūndné-hār nū dhūndh khān ṭū,
Payā paraṭ ḍē ghar ḍā ras ṭaiṅ nū,
Kahīn ṭū hī na howai Yār sab ḍā,
Phirai dhūndhaṭā jangalān bichcha jin nū.

(But seek the Seeker for a while, O friend!
He whom thou seekest in all others' homes,
And in thick jungles, getting lost thy-Self,
Haply He is thy-Self, the Friend of all!)

Yet is there much reversion to image-worship among Sikhs too; much merely formal repetition, without realization of meaning, of their sacred book, Granthā Sāhab, (a collection of the noble and elevating hymns and writings of the Gurus, who have incorporated in it some hymns of others, f.i., Kabīr, also); and even ritualistic worship of copies of it, wrapped in costly cloths, placed on ornamental stands, with whisks made of expensive kinds of animal hair waved over them by devotees, in the great and beautiful central Golden Temple in Amrit-sar, (‘lake of ambrosia’) and in subordinate sanghaṭs, ‘religious meeting-places,” in many towns. As said before, such formal worship is unavoidably craved by the child-mind. Within due limits, it is desirable and indeed indispensable. Apparatus, exercises, games, social work, of various kinds, are needed in kindergarten, school, college, university, for physical, intellectual, and one important part of moral, education and character-formation; even so, such worships are needed, in the beginning, for spiritual, moral, and emotional, education of the growing soul. But, obviously, such apparatus ought not to be clung to, after its work is done, its utility exhausted. Means should not be allowed to over-power and destroy the end.

Excessive clinging to external things is weakness, not wisdom. It should be vigilantly guarded against.¹

¹ So, wise parents take care to gradually wean their children from dependence on them (the parents), and encourage and train them to ‘stand on their own feet’. The Adler school of psycho-analysts has rightly stressed this duty of parents.
Multiplication of images, eikons, idols, tombs, mausolea, and of temples, pagodas, churches, mosques, beyond due proportion to population, should be diligently discouraged, not encouraged, by the wise and learned of each religion. As a fact, Islām enjoins that a new mosque should not be built within reach of voice of the muā'zzin (caller to prayer) of an existing mosque; and, similarly, Hindū scriptures say that it is much greater piety to maintain an existing old temple in good repair than to build a new one.

Real purpose of pilgrimage is excellently illustrated in a conversation which a Musalman saint, Junaidī, held with a person just returned from Mecca: "From the hour you began journeying away from your home, have you been journeying away from your sins also?" "No." "Then you have made no journey. At every stage where you halted, had you advanced a stage towards God?" "No." "Then you have covered no stages. When you changed your ordinary clothing for pilgrim's garb, did you discard your vices and put on virtues?" "No." "Then you have not put on pilgrim's garb. When you stood near mount A'rafaṭ ('wisdom'), did you stand in contemplation of God?" "No." "Then you have not stood at A'rafaṭ. When you circumambulated Kā'ba, did you behold all aspects of Immaterial Spirit?" "No." "Then you have not gone round Kā'ba. When you ran between (two hills) Safā and Marwā, did you achieve Purity (Safā) and Considerateness (Murawwat)?" "No." "Then your have not done any real running. When you reached the place of sacrifice, did you sacrifice your worldly desires?" "No." "Then you have not made sacrifice. When you threw pebbles, did you throw away whatever sensual ideas were
6. Pageants, Processions, Festivals

Holy-days.

6. All have pageants, eikon and bambino processions, Maulūd, Kaṭhā and Kāla-kshēpa, Ḍulādul and Tāziā, Rāma-līlā and Krṣhṇa-līlā, Muharram and Piṭṭ-paksha, holy-days of fasts, festivals, lamentations, Ḗkā-ḍashī, Ramsān, Lent; though few of these are in accord with injunctions of basic scriptures. All have a sabbath-day; Vēdisim on first, eight, and eleventh days of each lunar fortnight; Judaism on Saturday; Islām on Friday; Christianity on Sunday; for rest and recuperation.

Incidentally, it may be noted that all finest products of fine arts, and some also of useful in your mind?" "No." "Then you have not thrown pebbles, and have not performed pilgrimage."

All religions have similar rites and ceremonies, all of which are "outward symbols of inward graces", some more refined, some less. If done in the right spirit, under right guidance, they are ‘initiations’, and leave behind permanent impressions of great value. Eleusinian Mysteries have been referred to before, at pp. 102-103, supra. The living body is a ‘symbol’ of the powers of the Spirit. Symbols express, in terms of matter, things, processes, movings, of the mind. Yāṭrā, yajña, bāli-dāna; hajj, qurbānt; pilgrimage, vows of poverty, ‘entering’ religion, joining a monastery or convent—all these ‘symbolise’ wandering and search of the soul for the Supreme Self, finding and seeing of It, self-extinction into It and giving up of all sense of separateness.
arts, poetry, drama, dancing, music, painting, sculpture, architecture, clothing, metal-work, town-planning, gardening, tree-planting, road-making, and so on, have found their greatest, most refined and cultured, patron in, and drawn their most splendid inspiration from, religion, in all ages, and in all countries. This is but natural. True religion ministers to, and further sublimes, the most elevated emotions, whose conscious expression is 'fine art'; and, if philanthropy be the noblest of all emotions and the active essence of religion, as it surely is, then all 'useful art' is such expression also. Religion has thus secured some of the purest joy to humanity, even in the life of senses. Correspondingly, when religion has degenerated, by excess, by hypocrisy, by lack of intelligence, by low and evil nature, of custodian and of follower, or has been strangled, suffocated, buried, cremated, by overbearing and overpowering materialism, then art has also degenerated into coarse, vulgar, sensual, or even outright barbarous, savage, brutal, horrible, coarsely and grossly obscene forms.

If religious leaders of different communities had only sufficiently large heart and wise head; would sit down together and consult with each other benevolently; make a good selection from all these very varied forms of manifestation of religious or religion-colored emotion, especially from the festivals; and would advise their respective followers, each to join with others, in all those selected forms and festivals; then they would double and treble the joy of each community; instead of marring it all, by promoting separateness, antagonism, riots and fatal fights, and ever-rankling revengefulness; as they have been marring it throughout the medieval ages in east and west alike, and today also in India. Such mutual consultation and co-operation, between religious leaders, is as necessary today as between politico-economic leaders; for rapid earth-encircling transport and communication have mixed up all nations, races, religions; and the only alternative to 'organising for war' and destruction of civilisation, is systematic 'organisation for peace' over the one double problem, 'adequate and equitable distribution of (a) Spiritual Bread and (b) Material Bread'.

7. Sacraments.

7. All religions have sacraments, sāṃskāras, sunnāts, initiations, solemn ceremonies, originally intended to refine and improve mind and body, and to bring about punar-janma, 'regeneration', 'second birth', 'becoming as little children again', pāvana, paviṭri-karaṇa, shoḍhana, 'consecration', ṭagdis, upa-nayana, dviṭiya-janma, nava-jot (Z.)

All insist on cleanliness by frequent bathings and washings, snāna, shaucha, wuzū. Zoroastrianism emphasises it more than almost any other virtue; indeed, it includes all virtues under 'purity' in the broad sense.

"Purity is for man, next to life, the greatest good; that purity which is procured by the law of Mazāda for him who cleanses himself with good thoughts, words, and deeds." (Vendidad, Fargard, x. 18, 20). Christian saying is well-known, that "Cleanliness is next to godliness."

8. AIDS TO MEDITATION.

8. All use appliances to help concentration of mind during devotions, like ṭasbih, mālā, rosary;

1 Zunnār, 'sacred thread,' 'baptism,' ḫaṭṇā, 'circumcision,' 'eucharist,' etc., are others. Some of the finer sacraments are such that if they were duly performed by wise and spiritual-minded 'scientist-priests', much of the nervous and mental disease, that is now dealt with by psycho-analysts and psychiatrists, would be avoided.

An anecdote is related of a young candidate for ordination as Christian priest, who was asked by a senior, during examination, to expound "next—on which side of godliness?" (i.e., next before or next after). He promptly and rightly said, "on both sides." In current Hinduism, this vitally important scientific principle of cleanliness has been reduced to the absurdity of senseless 'don't-touchism', as between thousands of mutually exclusive 'castes' and 'sub-castes'.

and special postures and movements of body and limbs, during prayers.

9. LITANIES, LITURGIES, FASTS, VIGILS.

9. All have japa, azkār, litanies; upavāsa, roza, fast; jāgarāṇa, shab-bīḍāri, vigil; to fix heart on God and God in heart.

10. PURE FOODS AND PURE SACRIFICES.

10. Vaidīka Dhārma, Islām, Judaism, all, unhappily, as currently practised, believe that the Great God (and not only evil sprites) can be propitiated by ceremonial bloodshed; and all therefore practise animal-sacrifice; but all, happily, believe that ṭark-i-haumānat, māmsa-varjana, avoidance of flesh-meats, and nafs-kushī, ṭrshnā-tyāga, ānīrṇāyaṇagha, aṣmīṭā-nirōḍha, self-sacrifice and not other-sacrifice, are higher and better way of life and worship; and all refrain from animal food on 'holy' days. The real and profound meaning of animal-sacrifice is that the animal-in-man, beast-in-man, lower base selfish nature of man, his lust, anger, pride, timidity, egoism, symbolised by goat, buffalo, horse, camel or cow, and lastly man, should be slain. But that same selfishness, instead of allowing itself to be slain, twists the scriptural metaphor into literal service of itself; slaughters innocent animals and, feeds itself with their flesh, while professing that it is feeding God therewith.

1 Another, and very good, explanation also is suggested in Gangā Prasāda’s The Fountain-head of Religion, (pp. 140-143), on the basis of Haug’s Essays.

The ceremony of go-mēza is described in Zend ĀVESTĀ. The word is obviously nothing else than Zend from of Skt. go-mēdhā. Dr. Haug says: "Gēush-ūrvā means the universal soul of Earth, the cause of all life and growth. The literal meaning of the word, soul of the cow, implies a simile, for the earth is compared to a cow. By its cutting and dividing, ploughing is to be understood. The meaning of that decree is that the soil is to be tilled as a religious duty." Gangā Prasāḍa adds that "Gō-mēdhā means (1) exoterically, in its ādiḥi-bhautilka sense, ploughing of land for agriculture, and (2) esoterically, in its ādiḥyātmikak sense, control of one's senses". In Skt., gō or gauḥ, from the root gām, to go, means 'whatever goes'; hence, Earth, which goes round Sun; senses which go after their objects; rays of Sun; cattle; arrows; speech; etc. Along this line of interpretation, each sacrifice may be regarded as intended to foster, in special ways, that kind of domestic animal after which it is named. But it must be admitted that the detailed descriptions of the ceremonies, mean, by the letter, much slaughter of animals, revel and casual, hail and wassail.

In MBH. Shanṭi-parva, ch. 345, (Kumbhakonam edn.) is described a great dispute between ṛṣhī-s, 'sages, saints, seers,' and dévā-s, 'gods' ('those who play through the senses'), as to whether sacrifices should be bloodless or bloody. Ṛṣhīs decided in favour of the bloodless.

Bijaih yajñēshu yashtavyam iti vai Vaiḍiki Shrutiḥ,
Aja-sanjñāni bijāṇi,
Chhāgam no hanṭum arhaṭha.
No sacrifice can be acceptable to God, Rahmān, Shiva-Shankara, Benign, Auspicious, Merciful, Universal Life, except sacrifice of one's own lower self and selfishness.

“Go ye and learn what that meaneth, ‘I will have mercy and not sacrifice.’” (B., Matthew.)

“I desired mercy and not sacrifice; and the knowledge of God more than burnt offerings.” (B., Hosea.)

“To obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams.” (B., Sam.)

Na ēśa dharmaḥ satām, dēvāḥ ī,
Yaṭra vaḍhyēta vai pashuh,
Idam Kṛṭa-yugam shrēśthham, kaṭham vaḍhyēta vai pashuh. (Mbh.)

(The Vēdas say ye shall make sacrifice With vegetable seeds and grains of corn. A-ja, the word which ye would say means ‘goat’, Means grains ‘un-sprouted,’ and not goats at all. Ye must not slay these harmless animals; Must not create blood-guilt and cruel sin In this the Age of virtuous Innocence, And change it into th’ Age of murderous War. Where blood is not shed, there is Golden Age.)

Buddha’s most manifest reform has been the practical abolition of such formal blood sacrifices in India; and though he did not succeed in abolishing animal food, he has, no doubt, reduced it among large sections of the people. His interruption of king Bimbisāra’s sacrifice has been made famous by that unique poem, The Light of Asia, of Sir Edwin Arnold. Jainas are well-known for their extreme avoidance of killing.
(God sayeth:) "If I were hungry, I would not tell thee, for the world is mine, and the fullness thereof. Will I eat the flesh of goats, or drink the blood of bulls? Offer unto God thanks-giving, and pay thy vows unto the Most High." (B., Psalms.)

"I delight not in the blood of bullocks, or lambs, or he-goats. Bring no more vain oblations. When ye make many prayers I will not hear; your hands are full of blood." (B., Isaiah.)

"The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit, A broken and contrite heart, O God, thou wilt not despise." (B., Psalms.)

"Shall I come before God with burnt offerings; with calves a year old? Will the Lord be pleased with thousands of rams, or with ten thousands of rivers of oil? He hath showed thee, O man, what is good; and what does the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?" (B., Micah.)

"He that killeth an ox is as if he slew a man." (B., Isaiah.)

"Sacrifice and offering thou didst not desire; mine ears hath thou opened; burnt offering and sin offering hast thou not required. I will praise the name of God with a song and will magnify him with thanksgiving. This shall please the Lord better than an ox or bullock that hath horns and hoofs." (B., Psalms, chs. 40 and 69.)
"He that findeth his life (egoism) shall lose it; and he that loseth his life for My sake (the sake of Self, Universalism) shall find it (as the Immortal Universal Life)." (B.)

Jehd kun ḍar bê-khuḍī, Khuḍ rā bi-yāb,
Zūd-ṭar, w-Allāhu ālam b-is-sawāb.
Chand ḍar bandé khuḍī? Az khuḍ bar ā!
Ekhāl in nālāin f-anzur Māṭ rā! (S.)

(Plunge into selflessness to find thy Self
At once, most certainly—God knows 'tis true.
How long wilt thou be bond-slave of thy self?
Come out of thy small self into the Great!
Put off those dirty shoes of outer forms,
Enter the Temple, and its marvels see!)

Jab maiṁ ṯhā ṯab Hari nahīn;
Ab Hari hai, maiṁ nāṁhi;
Prēma-galā atī sāṅkari,
Wā mēn ḍo na samāṁhi. (KABĪR.)

(When I was, God was not; now that God is,
I am no more; yea, very strait the lane
Of Love Divine, it has no room for two!)

Ham moṭaqqiḍ ḍa'wa-i-bāṭīl nahīn hoṭē;
Sīnēn meṁ kisī shakhhs kē ḍo ḍil nahīn hoṭē. (S.)

(How can we e'er accept the claim absurd
That there can be two hearts in the same breast.
God fills me—and for 'me' no space is left.)
Lisā fi jubbaṭin siwā Allah. (S.)
Lisā fiḍ-ḍārain gḥairi. (S.)
N-īṣṭ anḍar jubba-am gḥair az Khuḍā. (S.)
(Who is there in my cloak but God Him-Self?
Who is there in both worlds except My-Self?
There is naught-else-than-God within my clothes.)
Laḥyan al-Allāhā lohumohā wa lá ḍemāohā, wa
lākin yan al-ohuṭṭaqwā min-kum. (Q., ch. 22.)
(Neither the flesh nor yet the blood of these—
The sacrificial victims—reaches Him.
Keep your-self pure—that is what reaches Him.)
Fa kūlu mimma raazaqa-kum-Ullāho halālun ṭayyaba. (Q.)
(O men!, the means of living, various foods,
That to the creatures of the earth I gave,
Of those, select the good and pure and eat.)
Baʿina farsin wa ḍammil laisa khābsan sāyagḥan lis sharebīna. (Q.)
(O men! from between dung and blood,
I give you cow's pure milk to drink.)
Lohumohā ḍāūna, wa libnohā ḍavāūnā. (H.)
(Cow's flesh is poison; cow's milk, medicine.)
For higher progress of Soul, abstinence from bloodmeats of all kinds is regarded as indispensable by Yoga and Sulūk. Ali, nephew and son-in-law of Muhammad, and said to be the first Sufi in Islam after the Prophet himself, is reported as having advised higher aspirants:

Lā taja’lu butūnakum maqābir-ul-haiwānāt. (ALI.)

(Make not your stomachs graves for animals.)

In Vaidika Dharma, apart from higher metaphorical meaning of animal-sacrifice, the cumbersome ceremonial prescribed for sacrifice of each animal is said to have been intended to restrict killing and drinking, and, at the same time, to give regulated and minimised vent to sadistic and orgic tendencies of human beings when uncontrollable. But though formal ‘sacrifice’ may have diminished among some peoples (e.g., Christians have none), flesh-foods and spirituous drinks are but too common all over the world, particularly among the well-to-do.

Loké vyāvāy-āmisha-maḍya-sévāh
Niṭyāh ṛtu janṭoh; nahi ṭatra choḍanā;
Vyavaṣṭhiṭih ṭāsu vivāha-yajña-
Surā-grahaih; āsu nivṛṭṭih ishta. (Bhāgavata.)

1 There are periodic carnivals, Saturnalia, Bacchanalia, and festivals of unrestrained indulgence and riotous licence, unfortunately, within the pale of every religion, even as there are intestines full of faecal filth within even the most beautiful human body. The inexorable indefeasible Law of Duality necessitates it. But it is the duty of Rational man to minimise the filth.
(The urge of sex, flesh-hunger, and wine-thirst,
Are ever there and need no stimulus.
The institutions of the marriage-bond
And ceremonial sacrifice were made
To limit them; better is abstinence.)

"If they cannot contain, let them marry; for it is better to marry than to burn." (B., Cor.)

11. Outer Marks.

11. Followers of all religions wear outer marks of one kind or another. Some wear tufts of hair on their heads, some on their chins, some practise tonsure. Some wear yajña-opāvīta, 'sacificial or sacred thread', across chest over left shoulder, and paint marks on their foreheads, some wear zunnār round waist, some wear helal and sitāra, 'crescent and star,' on their caps, some carry a cross by a chain round their necks. All believe in the mysterious potency of special objects, and wear on their person, tawīz, yantra, amulets, phylacteries.\(^1\) All

\(^1\) And the potency is a fact; subjectively, because strong faith in something-else-than-self, however imaginary, as a helper, actually produces mental concentration, mind-force, will-force, energy, and efficiency, (or, as a hinderer, the opposite), in the believer him-self. 'The new psychology of the unconscious' illustrates this freshly. The potency is a fact objectively, also, for as we have seen before, pp. 259-270 and 284-295 supra, have special forms of dress, often national but sometimes religious also. If these distinctive marks and dresses were worn with an eye to artistic effect and mutual appreciation as well as to devoutness, it would all make for variegated beauty, interesting novelty, and greater total richness of social life. Instead of this, as worn at present, they often serve only as 'red rags to bulls', as mutually threatening and provoking horns and tusks, claws and fangs, beaks and talons, bristling hair and flailing tail; because religious mis-leaders cultivate ferocity in their followings more than humaneness and rationality, and teach them assiduously that those who do not wear their hair in the same way (on top of head, or on jaws and chin), or dress differently, or eat and drink other things, or speak and pray in another language, are strangers to be avoided, even enemies to be suppressed.

12. All call their places of worship by names which have the same meaning, viz., 'House of God' (church), Dev-alaya (mandira), Bait-Ullah religion and science, both, justify belief in the existence of benign as well as malign living forces, of sorts and types other than those cognisable by our physical senses, which can be attracted by strong belief and emotion of human beings.

(masjid). All build them with heavenward-aspiring shikhara, kalasha, gopura; munārā, tā'arum, gumbaḍ; tower, dome, cupola, spire, steeple.

13. Calls to Prayer.
13. All have calls to prayer, a'zān, g h a n t ā, bell.

14. All offer prayers, masses, fātiḥā at chehlum, shrāddhā, for the dead; and have ceremonial funeral feasts, bhoja-s, kandūri-s.

15. Spiritual Relationships.
15. All believe in special spiritual relationships of guru—shishya, pīr—murid, saint—disciple.

16. Rites and Ceremonies.
16. All have rites, ceremonies, and ways of sitting up and down, or bending and kneeling and prostrating, or turning round and round, or carrying the hands to various part of the body, uttering special words, during sandhy-opāsana, namāz, prayer. If one has an āsana, another has a corresponding sajjādah, or a pew.
17. Priests of Many Grades.

17. All have priests; sexton, sacristan, beadle, verger, almoner, churchwarden, deacon, curate, chaplain, parson, vicar, rector, canon, prebendary, archdeacon, dean, suffragan, diocesan, prelate, bishop, Protestant archbishop and primate, Romish curé, abbé, cardinal, pope, Greek archimandrite, metropolitan, patriarch; pandās, pujāris, puro-hiṭa-s, yājakas, pandiṭs, dharmāḍhikāris, sam-praḍāy-āchāryas, temple-attendants of many degrees and names; mua'zzins, mujāwirs, muṭawallis, mullāhs. muftis, u'remā, mujāhiḍs, imāms, khalifās; ḍastūrs, mobeds (Pārsis); scribes, pharisees, levites, rabbis (Hebrews); bonzes, phoongyes, talapoins, lamas, trapas, gelongs, tulkas, gomchens, chutukṭus, khobilgans (Buddhists); etc.—far too many of them.

18. Hermits and Monasteries.

18. All have sannyāsis, yatīs, maṇḍalīshas, sāḍhus, bairāgis, udāsis, maṭhāḍhīshas, mahānṭs; faqīrs, miskins, darvēshas, auliyas, sajjādah-nashīns, sheikhs, ṭīrs; murshīds, ṭakiyā-dārs; bhikshus, sthānakā-vāsis, shramaṇas, kshapaṇas, ṭhēras, maḥā-ṭhēras, lāmās; anchorites, cenobites, monks, nuns, friars of scores of sect-or-order-names, abbots, priors, prioresses, abbesses, canonesses, novices—in excessive numbers, and very few genuine ascetics.

All have maṭhas, akhādās, dharmashalās; monasteries, nunneries, almshouses; vihāras, lāmāseris; dargāhs, takiyās, khāniqāhs; and dharmatras, dharmadāyas, déva-tras; waqfs; church-endowments and properties—mostly very badly mismanaged and only too often put to very sinful uses.¹

¹ Max Muller writes in Chips from a German Workshop, I, 187: "The late Abbé Huc pointed out the similarities between the Buddhist and Roman Catholic ceremonials with such a naïveté, that, to his surprise, he found his delightful Travels in Thibet placed on the Index (Expurgatorius)!

One cannot fail being struck," he writes, "with their great resemblance with Catholicism. The bishop's crozier, the mitre, the dalmatic, the round hat that the great lamas wear in travel, the mass, the double-choir, the psalmody, the exorcisms, the censer with five chains to it, opening and shutting at will, the blessings of the lamas, who extend their right hands over the heads of the faithful ones, the rosary, the celibacy of the clergy, the penances and retreats, the cultus of the saints, the fastings, the processions, the litanies, the holy water; such are the similarities of the Buddhists with ourselves." He might have added tonsure, relics, and the confessional." The Index Expurgatorius was brought into play in order to prevent intelligent readers from drawing the obvious conclusion that later Christianity had borrowed whole-sale from Buddhism; instead of the reverse, as simple-minded Bishop Heber thought, forgetting that Buddhism was five centuries older.
19. SECTS.

19. All have subdivided into much too numerous sects, sam-pra-daayas, panths, firqas; literally hundreds, in Hinduism; also hundreds in Christianity, which is not generally known; and scores in Islam.¹

20. SOCIAL ORGANISATION.

20. Vaidika Dharma is supposed to have one feature, viz., the 'caste-system', which is peculiar to it, and not to be found in any other religious scheme. The supposition is not quite correct, nor wholly incorrect. In every civilised society—and every civilisation is connected with a religion—seeds, marks, outlines, of such a 'caste'-system are discernible; because they are inherent in human psycho-physical individuo-social nature. The seeds are sprouted, the lines filled in, most fully, in Vaidika Dharma. All religions, directly or indirectly, sanction some laws and social institutions for regulation of property, family-life, administration of justice, defence of the people, wielding of executive authority; and so on. Vaidika Dharma enjoins a social structure, dealing with all aspects of human life, directly, comprehensively, systematically.

¹ Very troublesome and disturbing to peace, this, no doubt. Yet, 'the darkest cloud has a silver lining', and 'the worst wind blows somebody good'. The patent fact that men interpret and modify and reshape the 'religion' of the Founder into any shape of any sect as they please, is proof patent that they are the masters of religion; not religion, their master. That they can and do change from any religion wholly into any other, is conclusively strong proof.

Let us recapitulate a little; for the subject has exceeding great importance.

The one craving of Humanity is for Bread; (a) Bread Spiritual, and (b) Bread Material. The one problem of problems is, How provide an adequate and equitable supply of both to all. All religions seek to minister to both needs. Degenerations set in, in the practice of the religions, because of growth of excessive selfishness in custodians and trustees.

1 Kalâ bahaṭṭar purusha kî; vâ měn' do sarḍâr,
Éka jîva kî jîvikâ, éka jîva uḍḍhâr. (Jaina saying.)

(Full two and seventy are human arts,
But two of these do hold the two chief parts:
One is, to feed and keep the Body Whole;
The other, is, to find Peace for the Soul.)

"...Possibly the study of the social merits and defects of the workings of the Indian caste system may have more to contribute to politics of the future than, as heirs to a supposedly superior heritage, we are at present inclined to admit. Count Keyserling tends to think in terms of caste, with stress on the aristocratic ideal and the forces of leadership": article on ‘The Study of Man in Society; Political Science’, by Ross Nichols, in History of Our Times, published in 1939, by The University Society, Edinburgh.
Everything that is born, and grows, must also decay, and pass away, yielding place to new. Re-generations, new births, necessarily follow. Everything that dies, must be born again, in a new form. The soul, idea, ideal, principle, remains the same. The embodiment, expression, vehicle, changes. In the Life of the Human Race, present times, with their characteristic civilisation, of predominantly physical science and machinist intellectuality, require a 'democratic and socialist' Religion, which will include a 'democratic and socialist' Polity, i.e., a complete Social Organisation.

In short, what the Human Race needs today, is a World Religion, which will not be a new, separate, distinctive, exclusive religion; but the very oldest, indeed eternal, all-inclusive, universal religion, which will expressly include, explain, interweave, reconcile, synthesise, all existing religions; and will also provide a World Order, a World Organisation, which will not abolish any, but will include, moderate, federate, all existing nationalities. Védism, Mānavā Dharma, tried to supply this need, for India, in past times.¹

We have repeatedly noted before, that it is not enough to pray, however sincerely, that God's Will be done on earth; it is necessary also to know what that Will is; if we are to subserve it, to act in obedience to it. It is not enough to be willing to do one’s Duty without greed for reward; it is necessary also to know what exactly that Duty is; if we are to discharge it actively and efficiently. It is not enough to be ready, even eager, to obey the Golden Rule of Conduct; we must also know what, in any given situation, we ought to wish, or not wish, for self and therefore for others; if we are to act according to that Rule usefully, without creating confusion all round.

¹ See the present writer's book, World War and Its Only Cure, World Order and World Religion.

Spirituo-Material Science, as taught in the great utterances and writings, ‘scriptures,’ of highly evolved members of the Human Race; (a) avâṭâra-s, ṛṣhi-s, nabi-rasûl-s, messiahs, prophets, religious and intuitional ‘supermen’, possessed of ‘divine fire’, of superhuman faculties of subtler sensation, perception, (clairvoyance, telepathy, clairaudience, ‘prophetic vision’), of finer intellect and intuition, and taught by (b) scientific and rational ‘supermen’, endowed with ab-normal, extra-ordinary, powers of observation, intellect and intuition, and tireless application and research;—such Spirituo-Material science gives us the needed knowledge; (see pp. 141-142 supra). It tells us, in the first place, (I-a) in broad outlines, what God’s Will is, on the infinite-and-infinitesimal scale: what the Nature of World-Process, and Meaning of Life, are; and (I-b) what Man’s General Duty is; and, in the second place, (II) how Human Society should be organised, and Individual Life planned, with clear specification and partition of all particular rights and corresponding duties; so that each one of us may be able to ascertain readily what his duty and corresponding right is, in any given situation; and both our needs, Spiritual and material, may be duly satisfied, in accordance with that Nature and Meaning.¹

The normal human being is not a solitary. He is born in a family which lives amidst a community of families. He lives, grows, decays, dies in a family amidst a community. His joys and sorrows are unavoidably and inseparably bound up with those of others. It is impossible for any individual to carry out the Divine Will, observe the Golden Rule, perform his Duty, and achieve any reasonable amount of Happiness here and hereafter, (i.e., secure Material and Spiritual Bread); (i) if the ¹From such very limited study and thinking and public work as he has been able to do in eighty-six years, this writer has derived the conviction that (1) The Secret Doctrine, by H. P. Blavatsky, studied together with five or six of the most important Purāṇa-s, and Rāmāyaṇa, and Mahābhārata, in the light, and with the help, of modern evolutionist science, and of Vēdānta-Sāṅkhya-Yoga philosophy, is the best available exposition, in broad outlines, of what the Divine Will or Plan is, on the vast scale, for our solar system in general, and this earth and the human race in particular; and that (II) Manu’s Scheme of Individuo-Social Organisation is the best available scheme of Human Planning.

community, the society, amidst which he is born, lives, and dies, is not systematically organised for peace and prosperity, (which organisation for peace includes, as a subsidiary, organisation for defence); and (ii) if the life of the individual is not correctly mapped out and planned, and fitted into that social organisation, in such a way, that each person, in accord with his special temperament and vocational aptitude, (a) receives appropriate education, (b) readily secures, or is provided with, a suitable occupation for his and family's livelihood, with regard to that aptitude, as ascertained and developed by his educators, (c) retires from bread-winning work in right time, to take up some one or more out of numerous kinds of honorary unremunerated public duties, in keeping with his special capacities, and, finally, (d) spends the last years of his physical life in ever greater absorption in spiritual exercises, meditations, well-wishing to the world at large, and promoting general welfare by pouring into the moral atmosphere, a continuous stream of benevolence, 'good-will', and the powerful influence of high example of life well-lived in the past, and now incarnating God's blessings of renunciant self-lessness, contented repose of soul, and all resignedness and spiritual peace.

Because Religion, to justify itself as helper of mankind, has to secure for them, happiness here as well as hereafter; therefore it will not be out of place to give some account, briefly, of how Vēdism endeavours to secure the former; in other words, of what its conception is, of the kingdom of God and His Righteousness on earth, in practice, for man as now constituted.

Vēdic Scheme of Individuo-Social Organisation.

Main great declarations of all Religions and of Science, on (I) Nature of World-Process and Meaning of Life, have been sketched in chapter ii above; and those on (II) General Duties of the human being, in ch. iii. Briefly,

(I-a) Infinite Spirit descends into denser and denser finite forms of matter, and then re-ascends back out of them, on all possible scales of Time, Space, and Motion, from minutest atom and ultramicroscopic animalcule to vastest star-system; and (I-b) at the stage of the human form, on return journey, ‘We should do unto others as we would be done by’.

As regards (II), Vaiḍika Dharma prescribes a Scheme of Individuo-Social Organisation, applicable to the whole Human Race, which makes an equitable partition, between the several human ‘types’, according to temperament, of different kinds of ‘work-and-wages’, ‘labour-and-leisure’, ‘hardship-and-pleasure’, ‘rights-and-duties’; brings suitable work and suitable worker together; makes it possible to ensure 'necessaries' for every one; gives opportunity to each person to win additional, temperamentally suitable and desired, 'comforts' and 'luxuries', by special good work; provides appropriate incentives to such good work, for all; secures regulated and just play for all human instincts, egoistic as well as altruistic: reconciles individualism and socialism and communist proletarianism, by vigilantly guarding against the one Sin, 'Excess', through sedulous cultivation and practice of the one Virtue, 'the Golden Mean'; and, by doing all this, it enables every one to know precisely what his particular duty, and corresponding right, is, in any particular situation; and gives, to every one, just opportunity as well as instruction for securing happiness, here and hereafter, as far as is humanly possible.

Details of this Scheme have been dealt with elsewhere.¹ Main principles may be summed up in a few tetrads, here.

There are:

1. Four main types of human beings, by temperament and vocational aptitude; not by mere 'heredity', but by individual 'mutation' or 'spontaneous variation': men (and women) (a) of knowledge; (b) of action; (c) of acquisitive desire; (d) of undeveloped undifferentiated mentality and capacity, of general labor, of unspecialised work; or (a) sāttvika, (b) rājas, (c) tāmasa, (d) avyakta.

¹ In the present writer's Ancient vs. Modern Scientific Socialism; more briefly, in The Science of the Self, ch. vii; in much greater detail, in The Science of Social Organisation, in three volumes.

2. Four main classes of vocations, occupations, professions, with numerous sub-divisions under each: (a) learned; (b) executive; (c) commercial; (d) industrial or laboring.

3. Four main kinds of livelihood; regulated (a) honoraria, fees, presents; (b) taxes, tributes, public salaries; (c) profits; (d) wages.

4. Four main stages of life; (a) student; (b) house-holder; (c) honorary unremunerated public worker, retired from competitive bread-winning; (d) renunciant ascetic, hermit, anchoret, recluse.

5. Four main physical appetites, urges, of: (a) hunger; (b) acquisitiveness; (c) sex; (d) rest, recreation, amusement, play, health, sense of physical well-being.

There are subordinate quartettes under each of these four. (5-i) Four kinds of food: (a) bloodless, light, easily-digested, but non-volatile, bland, mostly fruit-and-milk diets, for spiritual scientist, who needs lucid mind and long calm steady thinking; (b) strong, stimulating, energy-producing foods, for administrator, executive officer, who has to decide and act quickly and meet emergencies; for soldiers, even fleshfoods and strong drinks, in moderation, (allowable, not desirable); preferably flesh of wild animals that damage crops and multiply fast; not of animals to be reared for slaughter and eating, ν ῥ ᾱ ἀ μάς μᾶς; (3) 'staying', 'sustaining', cereals, milk-foods, (also flesh of crop-destroyers as above), for tradesman and agriculturist; (4) heavy foods, (nitrogenous), producing capacity for long-continued bodily exertion, for workman and laborer.

(5-ii) Four kinds of special possessions, suited for the four temperaments, and for carrying on of their professions, respectively, e.g., (a) books, laboratories, and objects and means of observation and investigation; (b) weapons and subsidiaries; (c) machinery and other means of production and distribution; (d) implements of work.

(5-iii) Four kinds of marriages: (a) settled by wise elders; (b) by mutual self-choice, or by love-chase, and 'capture'; (c) for monetary consideration; (d) by blind passion.

(5-iv) Four kinds of recreation and festivals: (a) communion with Nature, contemplation of her beauties; (b) sports of various kinds, involving quickness of mind as well as body, hunting, racing, fencing, animal taming and training; (c) trials of luck with money-stakes within strict limits, supervision of charitable works, home-athletics; (d) gymnastics, fairs, shows, simple games. The pleasure of 'pilgrimage' is appreciated by, and is open to, all types; and pilgrimages may be and are performed during any of the four stages of life; but they are recommended for the last two. To practical worldly benefits of pilgrimage, indicated on pp. 610-617 supra, may be added the liberalising education and aesthetic enjoyment that are derived from wide travel, and seeing of other towns, cities, peoples, ways and manners, great monuments of human art, and Nature's grand and ever-varied scenery, woods, waters, mountains, deserts, snows, and seas, which make Her poetry of the sublime, the awful, the beautiful, ever and everywhere wonderful.

It must be borne in mind, always, that there is nothing exhaustive or exclusive about the lists given, or distinctions drawn, in any of the quartettes mentioned here; but only an indication of predominant feature or quality. Patently, all organs and all functions are present in every living human Mind-Body; equally clearly, some are more strong and prominent in one, some in another; wherefore we call one person a professor, another a captain, another a banker, and a fourth a shepherd or mill-hand; though all are men.

6. Four main psychical appetites, incentives, 'luxuries', cravings, for; (a) honor (public esteem); (b) power (official authority); (c) wealth (artistic possessions); (d) en-joy-ment (of one-self; compare the common phrase, 'we enjoyed our-selves thoroughly').

7. Four main 'ends' of life (see pp. 296-300 and 526-'9 supra): (a) observance of lawfulness-and-morality, (which regulate) (b) wealth, riches, (which refine) (c) (psychophysical) pleasure; (d) (spiritual) happiness, (en-joy-ment of the Great Self). i.e., Dharma, Artha, Kama, Moksha.

8. Four main social institutions: (a) Law (Government and State); (b) Property; (c) Family; (d) Religion (Church).

9. Four main 'powers' of State: (a) science power; (b) valour (military) power; (c) finance (bread-and-money) power; (d) labor power.

10. Four main sets of rights-and-duties, for four main temperaments and professions: (a) duty to gather and to spread true and useful knowledge of all sorts; right to receive honour, ; (b) duty to develop needed ability, and give protection to all who need and deserve it, and to maintain law and order and peace in the land; right to be entrusted with official authority and power of command; (c) duty to arrange for production and distribution of all necessaries and comforts, in accord with laws of the state; right to receive prices (which will yield reasonable profits, within limits permitted by laws); (d) duty to give help and service to others; right to receive adequate wages and be provided with amusements, (panem et circenses). Besides the special rights above mentioned, the general right belongs to all, to receive necessaries of life, and suitable means, in accord with their capacities, of discharging their duties properly, e.g., (a) libraries, laboratories, facilities for travel and research, (b) weapons, munition, office apparatus, (c) machinery, and all requisites for production, distribution, transport, (d) implements of work; and also right to be provided with the respective livelihoods (and none other) which have been mentioned in section 3 above.

11. Four main duties of older generation towards younger, and of state towards people, viz., to: (a) educate, (b) protect, (c) nourish and cherish, (d) help in all other ways as needed. Briefly, to (a) teach, (b) guard, (c) feed, (d) serve. Constituent or preventive functions of state are covered by (b); ministrant or promotive, by other three.

12. Four main interlinked subordinate organisations, which together make up total Individuo-Social Organisation of State or People as a whole: (a) educational; (b) protectional (political, administrative, sanitary, judicial, executive, military); (c) economic; (d) industrial. Only such a 'totally' complete organisation of the 'total' People makes true 'totalitarian' State.
(a) Educational organisation is made up of learned ‘class’ or professions and student order or ‘stage’, i.e., of educator and educand in the broad sense; (b) protective, of executive professions and order of honorary publicists to guide and supervise them; (c) economic, of commercial professions as producers and distributors and of the order of householders as consumers; (d) industrial, of workman class, laboring professions, of many grades, as physical helpers of community, and order of renunciant ascetics as spiritual servants of it.

13. Four main congenital social ‘debts’ laden with which, every human being is born: (a) to ‘gods,’ i.e., forces of Nature, which spread out the universe of objects on which our life and senses feed, and all our experience is based; (b) to ‘ancestors’, who have given to us our body, in and through which our life is lived; (c) to ‘sages, seers, scientists’ of the past, who have left to us the stores of knowledge which differentiate us from lower kingdoms and refine and ennoble our life; (d) to the Supreme Self, which has given us the spark of life, our soul.

14. Four main ways of repayment of those debts and winning final Release, Spiritual Freedom, Moksha, Najat, Salvation: (a) performing ‘pious works’, such as plantation of trees, re-afforestation of denuded tracts; construction of water-works, wells, tanks, reservoirs, lakes, canals; protection and promotion of useful and beautiful animal life; purifying of psychical and physical atmosphere by burning incense, chanting holy hymns and reciting scriptures and noble epics, lighting sacred fires and lights with special substances; whereby the stores of Nature, earth, water, fire, air, 'ether', respectively, which we use up or pollute, and also our depleted and struggle-and-passion-soiled mental powers, are replenished and sanitized; in modern conditions, carrying out measures for supplying pure water, abating 'smoke-and-noise-nuisance', preventing contamination of water and growth of disease-germs, converting sewage into manure and food for soil, and such other 'public works'—these represent what in the earlier times were called 'pious works'; (see pp. 602 supra); (b) rearing worthy progeny, nor too many nor too few, (to preserve balance between produce and consumers), of the best quality possible; (c) giving knowledge, or helping learned classes to give it, to new generation; also adding to existing stores of knowledge, or enabling others to do so; (d) retirement from competition, renunciation, spiritual meditation, realisation of identity of Individual with Universal, and earnestly and constantly wishing well to all.

In first two quarters or stages of each person's life, individualist or egoistic instincts are given regulated play; in last two, socialist or altruist instincts are brought to culmination. In this way are all 'isms' duly balanced and reconciled; State exists for Individual and Individual lives for State; each is for all, all are for each; to each is given according to his need, from each is taken according to his capacity.

We have noted before that all factors of all these tetrads are inter-dependent, like head, arms, trunk, and legs; or like nervous, muscular, glandulo-vascular, and skeletal systems of a single living human organism; also that only main factors, groups, classes, can be broadly distinguished; while sub-divisions intermingle, pass into, permeate and pervade each other, so subtly and inextricably, that attempt at any precise demarcation is bound to fail. As said in Gītā: 'definition is a passing from indefinite to indefinite.' Arrangement by tetrads is also a matter of convenience only. Facts and factors may be, and elsewhere have been, grouped in duads and trinitīes as well as quartettes. Variety in presentation of ideas should, to scrutinising mind, bring out basic truths only more clearly. Also, in detailed working, subordinate tetrads may be distinguished and formulated usefully, under each of the others, as under (5), above, e.g., four kinds of pathological temperaments (or 'personal idiosyncracies') and four corresponding kinds of medical treatments; four types of crimes and criminals and four corresponding kinds of punishments; and so on. But it must always be remembered that these quartettes do not and cannot imply any hard and fast divisions. Only predominant feature or quality makes a type.

Such is a brief sketch of ancient Vedic Individuo-Social Organisation. It is an essential part of Vedicism, one of the names of which is Varna-ashrama Dharma, 'Duty-Right of Social Vocational Classes and Individual Life-Stages.'

1 If reader will kindly peruse, e.g., chapter 59, (which author himself calls "the most cardinal," in ch. 66), of that most interesting, luminous, and valuable work, H. G. Wells' A Short History of the World, side by side with pp. 643 et seq. of this book, he will probably be better able to appreciate contacts and contrasts between ancient Vedic 'individuo-socialism', and trends of modern western thought in respect of 'individualism' and 'socialism'. In a hundred pages of his 'eu-topian' work, The Shape of Things to Come, Mr. Wells rightly stresses repeatedly the need of "educational revolution" for "remoulding mankind"; says that 'social psychology' should "become, so to speak, the whole literature, philosophy, and general thought of the world"; and suggests that "the world which had once been divided among territorial Great Powers" should become "divided among functional Great Powers", which, in co-ordination, would constitute the "World-State" or "World-Organisation." He also suggests the desirability of "a scientific classification of types". His "functional Great Powers" would seem to be, in other words, world-wide 'Guilds'. He does not scientifically classify 'functions', but those which he indicates could all be readily classified under four great varnas, 'vocational guilds'
Some elucidative comments, and correspondences in other religions, may be added.

manned by four temperamental ‘types’. (See present writer’s Ancient vs. Modern Scientific Socialism, pp. 69-73, 132-140, 165-209) and World War and Its Only Cure—World Order and World Religion, Chs. XIII and XIV, specially). What Mr. Wells says about ‘types’ gives the impression that he is thinking of only physical types, suited for different climatic and other natural conditions; not of temperamental vocational types. And he concerns himself almost exclusively with the outer machinery of the World-State, and does not say anything about different psychical types of persons, indispensably needed to discharge successfully, different (may we say, ‘types of’) functions of the several “functional Great Powers.” Védist scheme supplements the scheme of ‘outer machinery’ with a scheme of corresponding appropriate inner machinery, without which, ‘outer machinery’ can never work successfully; and thereby makes it possible to provide, without any competitive waste of vitality, for every social work, the right kind of worker, who is best fitted to perform it efficiently.

There is much that seems plausible, even feasible, in this latest ‘eu-topia’ of Mr. Wells. His picturing of ‘things to come’ may be said to illustrate concretely, how ‘all things else can be added, if men achieve righteousness first,’ as Bible says. Flaw in his scheme, (as in most other ‘utopias,’ including Marx’s and Russian Soviet’s, as latter seems to have discovered in actual working), is that, (even allowing full effect to education, which he very rightly stresses as all-important), he assumes righteousness achieved too facilely; does not take sufficient account of the metaphysical Law of Duality, which works as indefeasibly in human psychology as in any other department of Nature; reduces too easily to a negligible minimum, even if he does not quite abolish, egoistic urges and passions; and makes all human life,
A tree or animal, in its fullest development, shows only that which was latent in its seed or zygote. A too readily, one round of picnics and scientific research, to occupy the vast amount of leisure for all, which he creates, by magic of pen. One gets an impression that he believes that 'pairs of opposites' are neither inevitable nor needed; that the universe can be re-manufactured, with help of clever machinery, in terms of one only of each such pair; of pleasures only, without pains; of lights only, without shadows; of loves only, without hates; of comforts only, without bothers. Then, he provides no spiritual foundations for his material superstructure of pleasant physical sensuous life. He does not say anything about the finer spiritual domestic affections, maternal, paternal, fraternal, filial; nor about Meaning of Life, or soul, or 'after-life'. All current religions are duly suppressed by his new-world-makers; but no substitute, satisfactory or even unsatisfactory, is provided; nor does he say that his new humanity has so entirely changed its psychology that it does not care for any such trifles, any more. Because of these great lacks, the book remains a very ingenious fantasy. Vedic Scheme, on the other hand, makes due provision for egoistic as well as altruistic instincts, man's 'this worldly' as well as 'other-worldly' needs, for spiritual as well as material bread; tells us what the Meaning of Life is; and assures us of after-life, endless evolution, Immortality. Be it observed that there is no radical irreconcilable antagonism between Vedic Scheme and Mr. Wells'. On the contrary, latter would improve greatly in balance, and therefore practicability, (as would Russian Soviet's) if it were duly corrected and rationalised in the light of psychological principles of former. In a recent edition (1937) of his magnificent Outline of History, however, he repeatedly acknowledges, nay, even stresses, indispensability of genuine Universal Religion, freed from the dross of priest-craft, for a World State and higher civilisation.
'civilisation' is only an explication of what is implicit in human nature. That nature is three-fold, cognitive-desiderative-active; or, if we wish to pursue the scheme of tetrads, also 'rest-ive', 'wishing to rest', 'to sleep in the unconscious', 'unwilling to keep awake and go forward'. Every civilisation has three corresponding aspects; fourth being that of reactive weakening, fatigue, decay, after attaining zenith. The three are: (a) its stores of peculiar kinds of knowledge; and its special language, which embodies one out of infinite shades of the All-Spirit; (b) its characteristic fine and useful arts, recreations, ideals, aspirations, buildings, towns, worships, religion generally; (c) its ways of living, forms of government, enterprises, colonisations, conquests, commercial and mechanical activities of all sorts. Another tetrad, of the religious side of every civilisation is (a) a sacred book, (b) a sacred town-and-river, (c) a chief 'mediator', 'reveler', teacher, proselytiser, spreader of the religion, (d) gradual degeneration, decline, death, disappearance.

Each civilisation shows some differences from others, in respect of all these; but general facts are same in all.¹ Every human face and figure is different from every other; but general features of all human bodies are same. The more advanced and complex the civilisation, the more specialised and differentiated the three types (and many sub-types) of persons who carry on three main (and many subordinate) functions of three main aspects. But three main types, with fourth residual plasmic type, are to be found in all grades of communities of human beings; primitive, barbarous, 'semi-civilised'; as well as those which regard themselves as 'very advanced' and 'very highly civilised'; even though, unhappily, these commit most extensive and intensive mass-crimes of exploitation and butchery; as is shown by all known history; side by side with some humane and beneficent deeds of true greatness and glory, and many magnificent achievements, to-day, of science and valour combined; outracing eagle and wind itself in high heaven, giant fish in depths of ocean, leaving fastest racer far behind on land, capturing voices and music form given object is in exact proportion to his recognition of the object's essential modernity"; Sir Leonard Woolley, Digging up the Past, (Pelican Books, 1937), p. 14. In fourth and fifth decades of twentieth century, diggings were made in Banaras, on left bank of Gangā, for construction of a new bridge; dozens of clay-models of women's heads were discovered, of 4th cent. A.C., with varied coiffures, exactly like those of modern west. So, in Egyptian tombs have been found cosmetics and ornaments corresponding closely to modern articles. History repeats itself, in cycles.

¹ "We see the elaborate drainage-system of Knossos' (of the ancient times of king Minos in Crete) 'and at once feel at home; the cosmetics found in an ancient grave strike us as pathetically up to date; the surprise which a visitor to a Museum expresses at the age of a
all parts of earth at once in any home they please; all which achievements, however, subserve only the very same fundamental ‘appetites’, though with ‘longer circuiting’.

Vēdic Samskṛt names for the four types are, (a) brāhmaṇa, (b) kṣaṭṭriya, (c) vaishya, (d) shūdra. Islāmic Arabic-Persian names are, (a) ul-ul-‘ilm, also ul-ul-albāb, (b) ul-ul-amr, (e) zurrā, (d) muzd-war; first four occur in Qurān; simpler and more commonly used forms are, (a) ā’lim, (b) ā’mil, or amīr or āmīr (from amr, to command), (c) tājir, (d) mazdār. Abul-Fażl, famous minister of Akbar, in Introduction or ‘Fore-word’ (Muqaḍḍamah) to his great book Āin-i-Akbarī, ‘Laws of Akbar’ (like ‘Laws of Manu’), names the four as: (1) Ahl-i-qalam, ‘men of pen’, the learned; (2) Mubārizān, warriors, from burz, valour, battle; (3) Pēshā-warān wa Bāzar-gānān, ‘men of trade, commerce, business’, ‘men of bāzār or market-place’, (4) Barzagārān wa Kishā-(or Kushā)-warzān, ‘artisans, peasants, tillers of the soil, men of labor, poulterers,’ from barz, decoration, kish, sowing, poultry-rearing, kashidān, dragging, laboring. He also expressly recognises and asserts the universal character of this fourfold vocational classification. Thus:

Jahāniān az chahār garoh bérūn na bāshand.
(No human being, in all the world, Falls outside of these four.)
Zoroastrian names are, (a) airyamnā, (b) véréjen, (c) khaētush, (d) go-vāstrā.¹

Akhyā chā khaētush yāsaṭ ; ahyā véréjenēnē maṭ airyamnā. (Z., Gāṭḥā, 32. 1)
Khaētēūsh chā ṭarēmaīṭīm, véréjanakhyā chā najaḍiṣṭām ḍrumem, airyamanas chā nadēṇṭo, gēūsh chā vastrāṭ achishṭēm maṇṭūm. (38. 4.)

Kē airyamnā, kē khaētus, dāṭa is a amhaṭ yē véréjenēi vam-ūhim frasaṣṭīm. (49.7.)

(The khaētus, the airyamnā, also
The véréjen, runs seeking after this,
[The easy lazy pleasures of this world].
Be not our khaētus renunciant,
Do-nothing, indolent ; our véréjen
Be not too violent ; our airyamnā,
Be he not ignorant, lacking in knowledge ;
Nor our go-vāstrā, who serves all the world,
Be e'er downcast in spirit. In bad times,
When foes attack, what can th' airyamnā do?

¹ These are possibly connected with Skt. aryamnā (which means Sun, also a friend, for Sun is 'friend ' and benefactor of all the world); vīryavān, (virile, mighty), or rājanya, (which is a synonym for kshaṭṭriya); kshīṭsha or kshēṭrī, owner or tiller of the soil, the field; go-vāsi or go-vēshi, dweller among cattle, keeper of domestic animals.
And what the khaētus? The vérējen Alone, with God’s help can defend us then!)

In Britain they used to speak of ‘the three estates of the realm’, (a) clergy, (b) nobility, (c) commons, to which a fourth has to be added now, (d) proletariat, (labor, workmen, industrialists). Other countries and languages of Europe have corresponding classes and words. Japan has, (or until recently had), (a), kuge (court nobles, kinsmen of the emperor), (b), bushi or buki, or sāmūrāi (warriors), (c), heimin, (common people), (d) étā, hinin (like ‘outcastes’). China has (or until recently had), (a) scholars (literati, including officials, mandarins), (b) farmers, (c) artisans, (d) traders, merchants.

Very fortunately, it has never insisted on ‘heredity’.

1 Gangā Prasāda, M.A., M.R.A.S., in his excellent work, The Fountain-head of Religion, at pp. 91-93, quotes from Dr. Haug’s and Prof. Darmestetter’s and others’ writings on Zoroastrianism and translations of its books, and says that Zend names for four castes were; “Aṭhrava, priest; Raṭhaestao, warrior; Vāṣṭriyofshyas, cultivator; Huīṭes, workman”; also that “in the later scriptures of the Parsi religion”, the names were changed to “Horistaran, Nuristaran, Rosistaran Soristaran; in Pahlavi, Rathornan (priests, Skt. Aṭharvan), Raṭheshtaran (car-warrior, Skt. Raṭha-stha), Ḥotkshan (agriculturists), and Bastaryoshan (who render all kinds of service).”

2 Ency Brit., 14th, edn., xii, 940, art. ‘Japan’.

3 Ibid., v, 514, art. ‘China’; Lin Yutang, My Country and My People, p. 182. It is remarkable that ‘soldiers’ are not included in this grouping; they have Compare following verses from Manu and Vēdas:
Brāhmaṇah, Kṣaṭṭriyah,
Vaishyah, trayah varṇāh ṛvi-jāṭayah;
Chaṭurṭhah ēka-jāṭih ūtu
Shūḍrah; na aṣṭi ūtu panchamah. (M.)
been regarded practically as 'out-castes' in China all along; hence, "the Chinese are the world's worst fighters ", Lin Yutang, ibid., 56; but, latterly, long-continued war between Japan and China, and now in Korea, has changed all this; see, e.g., Mowrer in China (Penguin Series), pub. 1938.
Prof. Tan Yun Shan, in his Modern Chinese History (1938), p. 56, writes: "The characteristic feature of the Chinese social structure is that there is no caste system. The Chinese people were formerly divided into four categories, (1) Shih or scholars, (2) Nung or farmers, (3) Kung or artisans, (4) Shang or merchants. Society was thus stratified and the Government's dealing with each group would be different. But movement from one group to another was not denied, and it was not birth but personal talent and aptitude that occasioned the classification. Intermarriage between different groups was not only permitted but was quite frequent. The scholar was universally respected and he held the highest position in society. It was the merchant who occupied the lowest rung of the social ladder; he really produced nothing with his own labor and was almost looked upon as a parasite, notwithstanding his wealth." Curiously, Prof. Tan Yun Shan does not mention either soldiers or slaves. Other Chinese as well as reliable European writers make it clear that both these categories existed also, and that soldiers were regarded as lower than even merchants and were interchangeable with slaves, or at least were mostly recruited from them and from convicts. The very violently aggressive impact of Europe and Japan upon China during the last six or seven decades, (Brāhmaṇa, Kshaṭṭriya, and Vaishya—these Are the three ‘twice-born’ types of men; the fourth
Is ‘once-born’, Shūdra; and there is no fifth.)
Mukham kim asya āsīṭ, kim bāhū, kim ūrū pāḍā uchyětō?
Brāhmaṇah asya mukham āsīṭ,
bāhū rājanyah krṭah,
Ūrū taṭ asya yaṭ vaishyah,
padbhyām shūdraḥ ajāyaṭa.
Purushah ēva idam sarvam,
yaṭ bhūṭam yaṭ cha bhavyam;
Sah bhūmīm sarvāṭah sprītvā
atya-tīshthatāt dash-āṅgulam.
(Ṛg-Veda, 10. 90; 10-11-12)
Rucham nah ḍhéhi brāhmaṇēshu,
rucham rājasu nah krūḍhi,
Rucham vishyēshu, shūḍrēshu,
mayi ḍhéhi ruchā rucham.
Yaṭhā imām vācham kalyāṇīṁ
ā-vaḍāni janēbhyyah, especially since the Boxer movement of 1910-11, (immediately after which began the Great Revolution in China under leadership of Dr. Sun Yat Sen), has changed all this, and has compelled China to imitate her invaders in many respects and place soldier on a level with or even higher than scholar; and financier also has become almost equally important.

Brahma-rājanyābhyām, shūḍrāya, cha aryāya, svāya cha arañāya cha.
(Yajur-Vēda, 18. 48 ; 26. 2)

Priyam mām, Īarbha !, krūṇu, brahmarājanyābhyām, shūḍrāya cha, aryāya cha; Yasmāi cha kāmayāmahē
sarvasmai cha vipashyate.

(Athravā-Vēda, 19. 32, 8.)

Ā Brahmaṃ Brahmāṇaḥ Brahma-varchasvī jāya-tām; Ā rāṣṭrē Rājanyah shūrah ishavyah aṭi-vyāḍhī mahāraṭhī jāyaṭām; doghrārī dhēnuḥ, vodhā anadvān, āshuh saptih, purandhīh yoshā, jishñuh raṭhēshtāh, sabhēyah yuvā vīrah, nikāmē nikāmē nah parjanyah varṣhaṭu, phalavaṭyāh nah oshaḍhayāh pachyaṇṭām, yoga-kṣhēmah nah kalpaṭām. (Yajuh, 22. 22.)

(What was the head of this Great Cosmic Man,
Humanity? What were its arms, its trunk
And thighs, and what did constitute its legs?
The man who had Brahm'-wisdom was its head;
Who shone with guarding valour was its arms;
The settler and food-grower was the trunk;
Who ran at bidding, docilely, was legs.)¹

¹ Interpretation in these four lines, of the four familiar, and now much misused, names is in strict accord with etymology of the four words, brāhmaṇa, rājanya (kṣaṭṭrīya), vaishya, shūdra. Arya and ārya are synonyms.
This Cosmic Man, the whole vast Human Race,
Embodied Principle of Consciousness,
Is everything that was, is, is to be;
Its universal mind includeth all.
With its ten organs, sensor, motor too,
And the ten fingers of its two strong hands,
Compassing all, it overspreads the earth.
O Lord of All! give mutual pleasantness
And love to all of us, our brāhmaṇas,
Our kṣaṭṭriyas, our vaishyas, shūḍras, all.
May we speak pleasing words unto each other,
Always, we brāhmaṇas and rājanyas,
We gentle shūḍras, and we aryā-vaishyas
Who are the refuge of us all for food.
Thou Who articulatest all the parts
Of all this world, and organisest them!
Bind us in the strong bonds of love with all,
Our brāhmaṇas, rājanyas, shūḍras, aryas,
And all we like; turn our foes into friends.
May our brāhmaṇas have round their faces,
The aura of benevolence and wisdom;
May kṣaṭṭriyas be valorous and able
To speed strong shaft and true 'gainst evil-doers;
May our matrons be most honor-worthy,
Surrounded by children and children's children;
May our cows flow with milk and bulls be pow'rful
To bear great loads; our horses swift and loyal;
Our young men all fit to take part in council,
Brave, able to drive chariots 'gainst all robbers;
May rains come to us at the times we need them;
May our trees bear fruit for us abundant;
May all prosperity be ours and plenty!)

Different countries, peoples, civilisations, have varied in ranking of classes; in attaching of greater importance to one or another; in forbidding or allowing of transfer of persons from one to another.¹ Competition for higher rank, status,

¹ "In the life of a nation, it seems to me possible to make a clear distinction between three important forms of activity—(1) the cultural, (2) the economic, (3) the political. They form the basis for the three higher castes in India, and to some extent for the three classes of freemen in Plato's Republic; and they are commonly recognised in Germany as (1) the Lehrstand, (2) the Wehrstand, and (3) the Nahrstand. The cultural aspect is generally regarded as the highest, and the economic as the lowest. In some form or other, these three main types of activity would seem to be necessary for any independent group of human beings, and to discover the right relations between them is one of the most fundamental problems of social and political theory. In recent times there have been some attempts to separate out the three aspects and to give each of them its importance. From the point of view of social theory what is chiefly important is that the special problems of these three main functions in human life should be carefully separated out." art. on 'The present problem in Social Philosophy' by Prof. J. S. Mackenzie, in The Journal of Philosophical Studies, Vol. I, no. 1, for January, 1926. See also his book, Fundamental Problems of Life, (1928, Library of Philosophy Series) Pt. II, Ch. V.
power, has generally lain between 'medicine-man' of tribe and its 'chief'; 'magic-lord' and 'war-lord'; 'priest'-pope and 'soldier'-king; 'civil (temporal, military) power' and 'spiritual power'; 'scientific knowledge', and 'valorous fighting prowess'. But, in modern times, finance power seems to have reduced both to service of itself; and, in turn, is now threatened with subversion and submersion by 'labor-power'. All which means only lack of just balance between the four powers. Also, in India, for many hundreds of years now, the principle of 'mutation' has been thrust aside by 'vested interests', and the four types, or 'castes', have been made rigidly 'hereditary', as nowhere else. A peculiar result has followed. Human nature being

Dr. G. H. Mees, in his book, Dharma and Society (1935), p. 81, writes: "An interesting modern doctrine of four classes is presented by Adam Muller. His classes also correspond somewhat to varna-s. They are: 1. the Clergy, including the teaching classes, the Lehrstand. 2. The Nobility, the Wehrstand, consisting of landed proprietor and military men. 3. The class of those occupied in Business, Traffic, and Intercourse [Commerce]. This is the Verkehrstand. 4. The class of those occupied in Industry and Productive Labor. This is the Nahrstand. It is clear that these classes are based upon the traditional classes of the German Reich."

Dr. Ram Manohar Lohia (an office-bearer of the Indian Socialist Association), who holds a German doctorate degree, told me in August, 1946, that Arbeiterstand is also used as equivalent to Verkehrstand.
what it is, ‘mis-alliances’ have been always occurring; and new sub-castes have been always forming, in ever increasing numbers. This has created a social agglomeration of a unique kind, an incoherent jumble of castes, sub-castes, and sub-sub-sub-castes; each ‘hereditary’, all mutually exclusive in respect of dining and marrying, and consequently, of fellow-feeling; which, still, are all, though very loosely and more and more ineffectively, tied together by the name ‘Hindū’, (i.e., Sinḍhu-an, Sinḍh-ian, Hinḍhu-an, Hinḍh-ian, ‘Hind-ian’, ‘Ind-ian’ all derived from name of river Sinḍhu, changed into Indus by Greeks during Alexander’s futile raid) and by something which may be called remnants of a common culture.1 ‘Caste’, or rather ‘sub-sub-sub-caste’,

1 Indian Census Report, for 1891, stated total number of ‘castes’ as 2378. Census Report for 1931 says that work of making a new and complete list was abandoned, and population-figures of only more important ones given, because there was constant fluctuation going on in the thousands of minor sub-castes (especially among so-called ‘untouchables’), by fissions, on one hand, and coalescences of small groups, on another. Enc. Brit., (14th. edn., 1929), iv. 979, says: Caste “has resulted in the creation of some three or four thousand social units, many of which are, however, not altogether homogeneous, so that these figures do not represent all its ramifications.” But the disastrous absurdity of this insanely endless and utterly irrational fissiparousness, its destructive effect on social cohesion, co-operation, solidarity, is being realised more and more, by the at all thoughtful and public-spirited members of the community; new means today nothing more than a group of families, whose members dine and marry among themselves, and not with members of any other group; and will not take food which has been 'touched' by persons of other castes. Whatever may have been the causes, in past times, (many speculations have been advanced as to these, fear of poisoning, among other causes), there is no sense left in the practice, now.

The very sound scientific reason for avoidance of indiscriminate interdining and intermarrying is, of course, obvious. If we are to preserve and promote individual and racial health, we must eat pure food, drink pure drink, breathe pure air, in company with clean-living sympathetic friendly persons of similar habits; and marry with persons of parity of temperament and compatibility of tastes, interests, likes and dislikes. But what is obvious to dispassionate reason, is made very obscure by perverse passion. "Time makes ancient good uncouth"; time meaning, forces, ideas, ideals, are working in the 'collective Hindu mind'; a movement is growing stronger, every day, for a reversion to the original four main 'caste-classes', in the first place, and, secondly, for placing them on the basis of personal temperament and actual profession, instead of mere birth; and bills for validating inter-caste marriages are being repeatedly introduced in the legislature, with greater and greater success each time. A somewhat radical one was introduced by the present writer, in the Indian Central Legislature, of which he was then a member, in 1936; but could not be carried through as that time.
here, growth, on one hand, of cunning vested interests and tyrannical selfishness, wishful to grab all powers and avoid all responsibilities, and on another, of weakness, superstition, gullibility. 'Good customs by excess corrupt themselves'; excess, here, being excess of effort to specialise, differentiate, fix, under the impulsion, not of reasonable far-sight, but of very interested, very selfish, short-sight. Other countries evolved only 'divine right by birth of kings and patricians'. India evolved 'divine right of superiority, of whole classes of priests, as well as of fighters, by birth'; and 'God-ordained duty of inferiority by birth', of other whole classes of traders, agriculturists, 'untouchables', (like that of negro-slaves in America until the Civil War between North and South). Insurmountable barriers were created by forbiddal of interdining and intermarriage. Very remarkable fact is that, instead of fulfilling scientific laws of healthy dietetics and eugenics (not only physical, but even more, psychical), present practice, in regard to these matters, only too often causes gross violation of those fundamental laws. Unclean food cooked by dirty and diseased persons, is often eaten, because the cook bears same caste-name as the eaters. Disastrous mismatings are often perpetrated, because parties bear same caste-name. Such marriages are called sa-varṇa, i.e., of 'persons of same varṇa'. In reality they are -extremely a-sa-varṇa, i.e., are marriages of persons of not same varṇa. Varṇa, (roots varṇ and vr) means (1) 'that which describes' (the position of a person in Society, viz., his occupation, his means of living), (2) 'that which he chooses' for himself, (again, his profession), (3) 'that which envelopes and covers him', (his color, his complexion). In no way does it mean what it is at present made to mean, i.e., a separate 'birth-caste'. That it continues to show, even in its perversion, the impress of its original and etymological sense, is proved by the fact that a very large number of caste-names are names of occupations. Followers of each little limited 'occupation' became converted into rigidly hereditary 'castes'. Probably, they served the purposes of close trade-guilds, at one time. But, before long, it seems, purpose became confined to inter-dining and inter-marrying. Persons whose caste-name indicated a certain occupation, began to follow quite other occupations. At present, all sorts of 'castes' are following all sorts of 'occupations', excepting the 'priestly'. This last continues to be a jealous monopoly, but is beginning to be encroached upon.¹

¹ Whole subject has been fully discussed in my speech on the Bill mentioned in preceding f.n.; it has been reproduced in Vol. III, pp. 767-869, of The Science of Social Organisation.
All this gross perversion and de-rationalisation of 'caste' is coming to be seen more and more clearly by the new generation, under the tremendous stress of the times and world-movements; and they are breaking through the trammels in increasing numbers. But, as usual, there is danger of going to the opposite extreme, of 'license' and 'licentiousness'.

What has been said above does not necessarily mean that 'hunger' and 'sex' are much worse mismanaged in the east than in the west. Competent eastern as well as western observant travellers have recorded that family life, on the whole, is not more unhappy in the east than in the west. Sex-slave traffic, prostitution, adultery, assault, violation, rape, group-rape, orgy, the horrors of life in brothels managed by brothel-keepers who trade in woman's flesh more ruthlessly than butchers in animal flesh, are to be found in every country, in varying forms. If one aspect is worse in any country, another is better. There are 'Nature's compensations'. The safe conclusion is that there is much need and room for improvement, in both these respects, of every country. Such improvement is possible in these, as in all other respects, only by careful wise testing and training of temperaments and vocational aptitudes, by competent educators; and by providing of suitable occupations and livelihoods to all; within the setting of a comprehensive ‘Planning’, a systematic Social Organisation. Hunger and Sex are at the very roots of life. We cannot be too careful in regulating and refining their satisfaction. The subject has been referred to before pp. (358-397). Sinning against laws of food and marriage, which are laws of religious science and scientific religion, and observance of which laws alone fully ‘sanctifies’ both—such sinning is parent of all sins and crimes, is cause of all manias, wars, perishings of great civilisations. Manu’s solemn warning, of how such sins are visited upon generation after generation, has been quoted before (pp. 248-249). Indeed these sins and crimes become aggravated with each succeeding generation, until the end in disaster, unless strong checks and remedies are applied from outside. It is certain that the community which allows that holy of holies, the mother-heart and the mother-body, to be polluted, corrupted, perverted, tortured, murdered, ‘that community is blasted by the thunder-bolts of God,’ (so Manu declares expressly, iii. 58). These thunder-bolts take plainly visible shape of ‘rot’ of body and mind, epidemics of infections and contagious virulent diseases, and mutual butcheries of war-madness; not to speak of floods, famines, plagues of many sorts (of animals as well as of epidemics), volcanic eruptions, earthquakes, and even more gigantic cataclysms of Nature.
Direct connection of these last with human sin is not plainly visible, but ‘religious beliefs’ (and ‘occult science’) assert it; and it need not be brushed aside too brusquely, for the chain of causation is very subtle, and all-pervading.¹

The stern warning in Bible to same effect, is well-known, and may be reproduced here, with some comment.

“Thou shalt have no other gods before Me . . . Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or the earth beneath, or the water under the earth. Thou shalt not bow down thyself to them, nor serve them: for I, the Lord thy God, am a jealous God,

¹ Annāt bhavanṭi bhūtāni, parjanyāṭ anna-sambhavah,
Yajñāṭ bhavaṭi prajanyah, yajñah karma-sambūdhavah.
. . . Śankarāh narakāya ēva, kula-ghnānām kulasya cha. (G.)

(Good conduct and self-sacrifice bring rain;
Thence food; thence nourishment of living things.
. . . Adultery leads all concerned to hell.)

Abr n-āyaḍ az payé mana’ē zakāṭ,
W-az zinā uftaḍ balā anḍar jehāṭ. (S., Rūmi.)
(Clouds do not come where charity has ceased; Misfortunes crowd all round on lawless lust.)

Can it be that ‘psyche’ and ‘(p)sex(chs), are connected with each other and with Skt. shakṭi, energy and shikṣh, to instil?
visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate Me; and showing mercy unto thousands of them that love Me, and keep my commandments". (B., Exodus, 20).

Results (in stultification of intelligence, weakening of self-reliant will, growth of irrational blind superstition) of excessive image-worship; and some nature-facts connected therewith; we have noted before (pp. 638-9, 603-5; and 259 et seq.,) ; also how intense faith of a devotee may actually 'vitalise' the 'image', created by his 'imagi'-nation, (as a statue by a sculptor), make of it a focus, attract into it a ray of the all-pervading Life, or, perhaps, an already individualised denizen of another plane of matter, (as a person enters into an actor's dress or a soldier's accoutrements) ; and convert it into a (for the time being) real angel (or devil, according to the quality and desire of the devotee). But 'graven images and likenesses' do not exhaust the list of 'other gods', mentioned in first part of the verse of Bible, quoted above. Nor are commandments, alluded to in last, only these, viz., against images and likenesses. Far worse than any other gods are Bacchus and Priapus, 'god-devils,' of 'evil eating' and 'evil mating'. The terrible consequences of sins involved in worship of these two, are much more glaringly patent, not only unto the third or fourth generation', but very many more, in shape of awful hereditary venereal diseases, and alcoholism, piles, asthma, phthisis, insanity; strictly speaking, all possible diseases that are due to congenital defects and weaknesses of bodily organs and of mind; but some more glaringly manifest and painful, some less. Therefore, God has given commandments in respect of these two appetites in all religions; and full commentary upon those commandments, (which, if what has been said above be correct, are perhaps the most far-reaching and important), is supplied by spiritual, psychological, physiological, medical, science. We may rightly regard every well-proven Law of Nature, (and Nature is God's Nature), as one of God's Commandments. Such of these laws as are more directly and intimately concerned with healthy conducting of human life, are regarded as God's Commandments more particularly; and have been prominently embodied in the Scriptures of all races. To love or hate 'Me', is to love or hate the Supreme Self and is to obey or break the Commandments of that Self "in Whom all things live and move and have their being".1

1 In Bible-text quoted above, "Me" should be understood to mean the Supreme Self in all living beings; and "I, the Lord thy God..." to mean 'the I in thee and in all is jealous of all sin, and ordains, by It's Nature's Laws, that sin shall be punished by recoil'.
Philosophy and psycho-physical science, applied to administration of human affairs, give us the complete Scheme of Social Organisation sketched above. Each of the quartettes is important and inseparably related to all the others. But most important is that of Four Types of human beings. Birth of these is governed by two laws, of (1) Heredity, and (2) Spontaneous Variation or Mutation. Former arises from Oneness of Self, Spirit; latter, from Manyness of Not-Self, Matter. Metaphysically, mutation is included in heredity; since the Many is included in, indeed created by, the Ideation, Will-and-Imagination, of the One. All possible sorts of children are included in the parent; because each parent is the child of an infinite number of ancestors. There can be no effect which is not pre-existent, in seed-form, in the cause. ‘All is everywhere and always’, because the One which contains all, is omni-present.\(^1\)

In latest terms of biology, we may say that all sorts of ‘genes’, ‘potencies’, are present in every germ. The idea of ‘id-s’ (biophor-id-s, ‘determinants’, composing the ‘biophore’, the unit of life) put forward by Weismann, some decades ago, seems to have been somewhat similar. Western scientists say they do not yet know why there is any mutation; (Julian Huxley, We Europeans, ch. iii). Indian works on Āyur-Vēda, Medicine, suggest that the psychophysical moods and conditions of the parents, and the surrounding circumstances, the 'environment', stimulate some of these 'potencies' more than the others, at every conception; whence the peculiar character of each child. These potencies are countless, because of the countlessness of possible 'combinations' of countless possible 'quantities', 'amounts', 'degree' of the three guṇa-s, 'attributes' of God's Nature, saṭṭva-rajās-tāmas; (see pp. 116 and 349 supra). If circumstances are similar, and similar 'potencies' (or 'genes') are stimulated, at a number of conceptions, resulting children, of same pair of parents, will be similar in face, figure, mentality, character. Therefore, twins are climax of similarity, and illustrate best what is commonly understood by 'heredity'. If differing circumstances stimulate differing 'genes', resulting children, of same pair, will be dissimilar; these illustrate 'spontaneous variation'. Indian Jyoṭisha, Astrological Astronomy, fully supports and supplements these statements of Āyur-Vēda, 'Science and Art of Long Life', and states what conditions, times, etc., of conception will produce what kind of progeny.¹

Thus, then, from transcendental standpoint, all 'mutations' also are covered by 'heredity' in the 'infinite' sense, for all possible potencies are pre-existent in the One Universal Parent; or, in the infinite multitude of particular parents from whom each germ is derived and each child is born; since each child has two parents; each of these parents, two; and so on, ad infinitum; and there is nothing really new, in any birth; but only a greater development of some potencies in some cases, and of others in others. Atavisms, regressions, dominants, recessives, mutations, modifications, of present-day biology; indeed, origin and evolution of all possible species; seem to be possible to explain only in this way. But, for practical purposes of every-day usage, from empirical standpoint, it is best to regard the two laws, of heredity and of spontaneous variation, as distinct, and even competitive; now one prevailing over the other, in one case; and again, the other prevailing over the one, in another case.

All civilisations have instinctively endeavoured to organise their societies in accordance with the natural fact of these four types and the two laws of their manifestation. They have succeeded and prospered in proportion to the degree of their assimilation, even though unconscious, of these principles. Ancient Indian civilization recognised, enunciated, and essayed to apply, the principles, consciously, clearly, deliberately. It has had, perhaps, a longer life than any other civilisation (except, perhaps, the Chinese). But ever since its classes of Educators and Protectors, or Spiritual Scientists and Benevolent Rulers, began to degenerate, to develop excessive selfishness, to push specialisation and differentiation beyond the bounds of human nature, for their own exclusive purposes; began to call themselves 'higher' and others 'lower'; to exaggerate the principle of 'heredity' in favour of 'higher' castes and against 'lower' castes, and to ignore and suppress the principle of 'mutation'; since then, Indian civilisation began to decay. That it has not died out altogether, is due, probably, to the continued presence therein, of some remnants and memories of 'Spiritual Science', 'Essential Religion'

It should be added here that, though the element of 'heredity' has been grossly exaggerated and made rigid in India, it has not been possible to suppress the working of 'spontaneous variation' altogether. Changes of caste, even from 'lower', to 'higher' have been going on, all the time; surreptitiously, of individuals; and, openly, now and then, of whole groups, which have decided to give themselves the name of a 'higher' caste, (brāhmaṇa or kṣaṭ-ṛiya), which name cannot be snatched away from them, particularly in present conditions. Yet the solidarising, articulating virtue of the truly scientific socialism of the old scheme has disappeared completely, and, instead, vicious consequences of endless separatism and exclusiveness are rampant.

While, in Indian practice, 'heredity' has swamped 'variation'; in western systems of social 'structure' (not yet 'organization'), 'variation' and blind competition are too much to the fore; though heredity is necessarily at work also, all the time, and large numbers of persons naturally follow the family occupation, generation after generation. It is a very hopeful sign that in more advanced western countries, educationists are making efforts to ascertain, in good time, the vocational aptitudes of their pupils, and some countries have begun to even appoint 'career-masters' in their schools. In a proper Social Organisation, based on psychological and physiological science, both laws, of heredity and of mutation, would be taken into account duly; but the latter would be made the deciding factor, whenever unmistakeable, for the purpose of assignment to a vocation. One law reflects the Unity, Wahdat Eka-tā, of Self; the other, the Diversity, Kasrat, An-eka-tā, of Self's Nature, i.e., Matter, Not-Self, which is garment of Self or Spirit.

As in the politico-economical life of nations, 'trustees' are always making themeselves 'beneficiaries'; leaders are always becoming mis-leaders; protectors, oppressors; feeders, devourers; public servants, public masters; and are, thereby, perennially causing rebellions and revolutions, and appointment of new 'trustees' by the real 'beneficiaries', i.e., the People at large; so, in socio-religious life, 'spiritual power' is always trying to absorb 'temporal power' (and vice versa); 'presbyter,' 'priest,' 'elder' is ever degenerating into deceiver: confessor is ever becoming seducer, hypnotiser, swindler, thief, intriguer, blackmailer; saint, sinner; ascetic, debauched and debauching voluptuary, even orgiast and sadist; and is causing repeated secessions, revolts, re-formations. (See Ranke's History of the Popes for vivid illustrations.) In fact, every religious re-form is, in origin and in issue, a social, economic, and political revolution also; and, therefore, invariably gives rise to a new civilisation. When a man's body falls sick, a physician is needed to cure it; when the oversoul of a whole people falls sick, it requires, as history shows, a fresh influx of Divine Spirit, a new advent of a new Son of God, an A v a ṭ ā r a , a Messiah, a R a s ū l , to cure it and give it a fresh birth in a new body, of 're-established Law' and 're-constructed society'; (pp. 284-295 supra). Without right social structure, noblest religio-ethical principles and exhortations have no chance; neither in a theo-cracy (ecclesiasticism, sacerdotalism), nor a timo-cracy (feudalism, militarism), nor a pluto-cracy (capitalism), nor a mobo-(or 'demo-') cracy (proletarianism). The four 'powers', 'four estates of the realm', must be duly balanced for ethical teachings to have a chance.

Buddha and Mahā-vīra Jīna endeavoured to shift, and largely succeeded in shifting back, the basis of Indian Social Organisation, from crass artificialised 'heredity', to elastic, rational, natural 'spontaneous variation' in respect of vocational temperament; thereby gave, to the Indian People and their civilisation, a new period of re-generation, a new lease of life, for about twelve centuries; and gave rise to an astonishing efflorescence of varied science, fine art, and noble literature, (due to generous emulation between Vaiḍikas and Bauḍhājas), and to great empires rivalling the more or less contemporary Carthaginian, Grecian, Roman, Macedonian, Persian and Chinese empires. Unhappily, the evil in human nature, forces of a-viḍyā, selfish erring, de-generation, again succeeded in resuming their sway; and changed generous emulation into deadly rivalry and conflict.

A whole chapter of Buddhist Dhamma-pāda, named 'Brāhmaṇa-vaggo', is devoted to exposition of nature of true brāhmaṇa.

Na jatāhi, na goṭṭe hi,
na jachchā hoṭi brāhmaṇo;
Yam hi sachchan cha, dhhammo cha,
So suchī, so cha brāhmaṇo.
Yassa kāyena, vācchāya,
manasā, naṭṭhi dūkkatam,
Samvuṭam tihi ṭhānēhi,
ṭam aham brūmi brāhmaṇam.
Na-ch-āham brāhmaṇam brūmi
Yoni-jam maṭṭi-sambhavam;
A-kinchanam an-ādānam
ṭam aham brūmi brāhmaṇam.
Divā ṭapati ādichcho,
raṭṭim ābhāṭi chandimā,
Sannaṭṭho-khaṭṭiyo ṭapati,
Jhāyī ṭapati brāhmaṇo.
Akkosan, baḍha-bandham cha,
a-duṭṭho, yo tiṭikkhaṭi,
Khanṭi-balam bal-āṅkam,
ṭam aham brūmi brāhmaṇam. (Ph).

Na jachchā vusalo hoṭi,
na jachchā hoṭi brāhmaṇo,
Kammaṇā vusalo hoṭi
Kammaṇā hoṭi brāhmaṇo.

(Bu., Vusala-suṭṭa of Sutta-nipāṭa).

(Not matted locks, nor birth in any clan,
Or family, or from some mother’s womb,
Can make a man a real brāhmaṇa.
He who is true, pure, dutiful; sins not
In deed, word, thought; gathers not worldly goods;
Bears patiently hard words, bonds, beatings too,
And lets not anger rise within his mind,
Strong with the strength of all-forgivingness;
Him do I call a real brāhmaṇa.
Mere birth makes not a real brāhmaṇa;
Nor makes a shūdra; deeds and ways of living,
Appropriate, make either one or th’ other.
The sun doth make the day; the moon the night;
Courageous chivalry, the kṣaṭṭriya;
Wisdom and thoughtfulness, the brāhmaṇa.)

Buddha not only clearly recognises and supports the four types or classes, but is full of praise of the true brāhmaṇa, in many other verses of the chapter. But he does not believe in ‘caste by birth’.
Instead, he very strongly condemns it, and all pretensions based on it. He recommends vocational classes by worth, i.e., by suitable character, mental and moral constitution, and occupational disposition.

Jainism is, if possible, even more explicit.

Manushya-jātiḥ ēkā ēva,  jāti-nām-oḍay-oḍbhavā;
Vṛttī-bhéḍād hi ṭaḍ-bhéḍāt  chātur-vidhyam iha ashnuṭē.
Brāhmaṇāḥ vraṭa-samskārāḥ;  Kshaṭṭriyāḥ shastra-ḍhāraṇāṭ, Vāṇijah arth-ārjanat nyāyāt, shūdrēh nyag-vṛtti-samshrayāt.

(Quoted in Jaina Dharmā kā Mahatīvā, a work in Hindi.)

Kammuṇā bambhaṇo hoi, kammuṇā hoi khaṭṭiyo,
Kammuṇā vaiso hoi.
Suḍḍo hawai kammuṇā.
Sakkham khu ḍisai tavo-visēso,
Na ḍisai jāi-visēsa kōi.

(J., Uttar-ādhyayana Sūtra.)

(The Human Race is one, though 'tis made up
Of many tribes with many names. Class-names,
'Caste'-names, of many kinds arise therein,
Because of different means of life. But four

1 From Ravi-shēna's Padma-Charīṭa, written in fifth century A.C., which is the Jaina version, in a very different form, of Vālmīki's Rāmāyaṇa; and from Jina-sēna's Ādi Purāṇa, Parva 38, verses 45-46, written in seventh century A.C.

* In Skt.: Sākṣat khalu dhṛṣṭaḥ tāpo-viśēshah,
Na dhṛṣṭaḥ jāti-viśēshah kah api.

See also Mahāvīra-Vāṇi, a compilation, by Shānti-lāl Vanamālī Sheth, of verses uttered, from time to time, by Mahāvīra Jina; published by Sāsta-Sāhiṭya-Mandal; New Delhi, in 1942. Also, Tirthankara Varṇhamāna, Jīvāna aur Pravachana, by Shrirchand Rāmpuria, pp. 444 et seq.; published in Sujāngarh, Bīkāner, pub: 1953.
Broad classes may be plainly seen therein,
Caused by the differences of ways of living.
The men of studious vows are brāhmaṇas;
Who practise use of arms are kṣaṭṭriyas;
Who gather wealth by lawful merchantry
Are vaishyas; those who live by service-wage
Are śūḍras. By their occupations only,
The four are thus marked of; no otherwise.
The ‘birth’ of any one cannot be seen
Upon his face; his actions can be seen.)

Only one or two well-known verses of Vedic scripture need be quoted here.¹

Na vishéshah aṣṭi varṇānām,
Sarvam brāhmaṁ iḍam jagaṭ, Brahmaṇaḥ pūrva-sṛṣṭam hi,
karmabhīḥ varṇātāṁ gaṭam.
(Mbh., Shānti-parva, ch. 186.)

Éka-varṇam iḍam sarvam pūrvaṁ āsīt, Yuḍhishthira l, Kriyā-karma-vibhāgéna
chāṭur-varṇyam vy-ava-sṭhiṭam.
(Ibid., Anushāsana-parva.)

Chāṭur-varṇyam Mayā sṛṣṭam
guṇa-karma-vibhāgashah;

¹ See this writer’s Science of Religion, and Māna-Dharma-sārah (in Skt verse) for hundreds of ancient texts asserting ‘caste’ by worth and work.
Karmāṇi pra-vibhaktāni
sva-bhāva-prabhavaih guṇaih. (G.)
Sāṭṭvikah brāhmaṇah proktah, ksaṭṭriyah tu rajo-guṇah,
Ṭamo-guṇah tathā vaishyayah,
guṇa-sāmyāt tu shūḍraṭā.

(Bhavishya Purāṇa, III, iv, ch. 23.)

(Children of Brahmā all, brāhmaṇas all,
And brothers, since created by One Father.
No rooted difference is there 'twixt them.
All had one occupation formerly.
Slowly-developing diverging ways
Of living have created four class-types.
God’s Nature-plasm has three chief attributes,
Saṭṭva, rajas, and ṭamas—principles
Of knowledge, action, wish, respectively;
Inseparable all, always, and everywhere.
Whichever one prevails in any one,

1 See pp. 113-'8 and pp. 650-'1 supra; and App. A, ‘Skt. and Ar.-P. equivalents’, infra. A long Note appended to ch. xi of The Science of Peace, discusses this all-important triad, and several others corresponding with them, in great detail. Dr. Tārā Chand (then Vice-Chancellor of Allahabad University, now Ambassador for India in Irān) suggested in Vishva-vāni (Hindi monthly of Allahabad) for May 1943, p. 267; ‘Al-Ghazzālī’s (1) idrāk, (2) qudrat, (3) shahwat-o-ghasab, correspond to (1) saṭṭva, (2) rajas, (3) ṭamas, respectively.’ Shahwat-o-ghasab (or khashm), ordinarily, by the dictionary, are love-and-hate, parent of which is ṭamas; (see pp. 113-'8 and 349, 358, 428 supra).
That sets his type or class. Thus, in accord
With natural qualities, this four-fold scheme
Of Social Structure has been made by God.
Sațțva prevailing, makes the brāhmaṇa;
Rajas predominant, the kshaṭṭriya;
Tamas, desire to gain, does mark the vaishya;
Unspecialised and inchoate is śūḍra).

So long as the human body has the shape it now has, of head, arms, trunk, legs; is constituted as it is, of nervous, muscular, vascular, osseous systems;
so long as the human mind works in three clearly distinguishable functions with sub-consciousness, or instinct, as a fourth—so long every community of such human beings will inevitably tend to become organised, more or less definitely, on the lines of these four main classes. The community which organises itself on them deliberately, with just and equitable partition of rights-and-duties, as indicated in the many tetrads described above, will be organised for peace, will prosper exceedingly and be in no danger from others; because it will automatically include a strong defensive military organisation. Also, and far better, it will set a beneficent example to other less advanced communities, and will help to organise them all for peace, in the same way. By creating a just balance of ‘the four powers’ within each nation, such an organisation automatically creates a balance of all kinds of powers between all nations. By making each people self-supporting and self-complete, it minimises causes for aggression by one on another; and instead, maximises inducements for intelligent, active, sympathetic co-operation of all four classes of all nations, for deliberate promotion of the good of all.

It should be re-iterated here that, for successful balancing of the powers aforesaid, an indispensable requisite is balancing of production of consumable goods, especially 'necessaries of life', and consumption, i.e., number of consumers. If there is disproportion here, if former is small and latter large, no other balancing will be possible peacefully. Fish multiply too fast; they cannot but devour one another. If men multiply beyond power of the land (even wisely and scientifically cultivated) to support them, they will not be able to help looting and murdering one another; or being destroyed wholesale by epidemics and famines. Inordinate lust will inevitably breed inordinate hate; (see pp. 497-78, supra). Self-control, or scientific medical birth control, is the foundation of all other control. To control death, we must control birth. Brahma-charya, 'continence', (within scientific limits), is the way to strengthen and prolong individual as well as racial life. Kāma-Eros unbridled, is our worst enemy. To war against and subdue it, (not destroy, until the third and fourth stage of life), is best and most truly \textit{moral} equivalent of war. Battling against \textit{forces of nature}, to utilise them as far as possible, and against predeceasans, is the rest of the moral equivalent. To the extent that \textit{moral war} succeeds, \textit{physical wars and crimes} will diminish. For \textit{some} war there must be. It is a law and fact of Nature; as much as Love and Peace are. But it may be waged \textit{within each} of us. Otherwise, it will have to be waged \textit{without}, between \textit{all} of us, more or less. Of course, complete abolition of all evil is obviously impossible; but reduction in a given place and time is possible. Because \textit{evil} is unabolishable, therefore shall \textit{those who know better} deliberately foster it? Because snakes and wolves and tigers are inevitable, therefore shall we deliberately breed and multiply them? Social Organisation and \textit{Moral War} help each other, in a virtuous circle. Former promotes balancing of production and consumption and inducement for self-control and birth control, and these, in turn, strengthen and stabilise it.\footnote{Birth-control is means to death-control, in many senses. In the sociological sense, whichever nation has a low birth-rate, has also a low death-rate. Physiologically, who conserves the seed of life, is not a \textit{waster and wastrel}, he retains vital vigor and can keep off death for long, almost at will, till he himself \textit{tires} of his body, as he is sure to do some day; tires of the very monotony of} Such a Social Organisation achieves the Golden Mean in all respects. It gives duly regulated opportunity for venting and purging egoistic instinct, the six (or seven) 'deadly sins' and 'manias' (see pp. 426-8, supra); because it provides them with appropriate objects and occasions; and thus transmutes and sublimates them from wrongful into righteous; e.g., lust into conjugal passion of love between spouses, 'sanctified' by parity of temper and compatibility of temperament between them, and therefore by public recognition and law and religion; hate into just indignation against wrong-doers; jealousy into laudable zeal in guarding public rights against private encroachments. We have seen before (pp. 98, 413, 424-5, 504 supra) that "to everything there is a season." Anything and everything it. In Mahābhārata, 'Grandfather' Bhishma has the gift of ichchhā-mṛtyu, 'death by his own wish only', because of his perfectly continent celibacy. Superphysically, conserved energy, transmuted by yoga-processes into subtle 'mental' matter, can shape out subtle astro-mental body and separate it during life. 'Die before you die'; (see pp. 272-7 supra). Psychologically, it can be transmuted into intellectual works, of art (which includes literature), or science, which may bring 'immortality of name and fame'; always comparative, never literal, obviously. Oldest historical 'immortals', known today, are barely a few thousand years old. Absolute Immortality of Eternity is very different. It will be clear to the reader that the 'birth-control' which ensures life till oneself tires of it, is not by 'contraceptives, etc., but by perfect continence.
is right, if placed or done in right time, right place, right manner; wrong, in wrong. The Scheme provides a solidarising mould into which can be poured, into appropriate parts and places, harmoniously, all individuals of all the countless tribes, clans, families, 'castes', races, nations, dialects, religions, of the whole Human Family. Its tetrads are not in conflict with any particular creed or science. Instead, it is based upon and utilises all best established principles of all such sciences as psychology, physiology, biology, anthropology, sociology, eugenics, politics, economics, pedagogics. The Scheme tells us right times, places, manners, for anything and everything, in great broad principles and outlines. By ordaining retirement of older generation from competitive bread-winning or money-making into honorary public service, after second quarter of life, it abates all conflict between it and younger generation; and at same time ensures a constant supply of experienced, disinterested, benevolent, advisers and public workers. It fulfils all that is reasonable in the requirements of Marxian and other Socialists and Freudian and other Psycho-analysts. It makes unnecessary, premature tragic retirement of the very young into the refuge of ascetic 'orders', monasteries, etc., which is, only 'A western scientist has defined 'dirt' as 'matter mis-placed'.

[CH. IV]
too often, no refuge at all, but, instead, a falling from frying pan into fire. It secures active, unrepressed, but regulated, self-expression for youth; and also honorable, desirable, and fitting repose for age. It tells us the Meaning of Life, reconciles heart and head, harmonises emotion and intellect, heat and light, and makes it possible for us all to fulfil all Life's purposes and realise all its aims and ends.\

Dr. Lin Yutang, "combining immense learning with a shrewd eye and lively humanity", also a brilliant and at times exceedingly witty style, has produced "the truest, profoundest, most complete, most important book yet written about China," (as Nobel laureate Pearl Buck and others say), in the shape of My Country and My People (pub. 1938). He writes (pp. 93-102, 119):

"Still the question comes back eternally, like seawaves lapping upon the shore: What is the Meaning of Life... The question has perplexed western philosophers, and it has never been solved... There are moments in our lives... when a sense of death and futility overcomes us, when we live more than the life of the senses and look over the visible world to the Great Beyond... Confucius was a realist, positivist, humanist. (Asked about death) he said: "Don't know life, how know death?" Confucianism, strictly speaking, was not a religion. It really never quite satisfied the Chinese... That deficiency was made up for, by a Taoist or Buddhist supernaturalism... In times of national disorder, as during the change of dynasties, a great number of scholars shaved their heads and took monastic orders, as much for personal protection as out of feeling for the helpless chaos of the world... Many beautiful and talented girls at the end of the Ming dynasty took the monastic vow through disappointment in love caused by these catastrophic changes..."
If representative, large-hearted, broad-minded, Elders of all countries would only sit together in a genuine 'League of All Nations and Religions' and seriously consider the principles and outlines of the Asceticism has been practised in all known times and climes, but, "Throughout the first and second centuries A.D., there was an almost world-wide resort to such repudiations of life, a universal search for 'salvation' from the distresses of the time. . . Amidst the prevailing slavery, cruelty, fear, anxiety, waste, display and hectic self-indulgence, went this epidemic of self-disgust and mental insecurity, this agonised search for peace even at price of renunciation and voluntary suffering:" H. G. Wells, A Short History of the World, ch. xxxvi; (pub. 1938).

In India, there have been great 'revivals' of bhākṛtī-cults, whenever times have become more than usually hard, e.g., in 15th and 16th centuries A. C. This only illustrates that 'the broken heart is the true home of God'.

C. G. Jung, leading psycho-analyst, writes: "Among my patients from many countries, all of them educated persons, there is a considerable number who came to see me, not because they were suffering from a neurosis, but because they could find no Meaning in Life or were torturing themselves with questions which neither present-day philosophy nor religion could answer . . . I too had no answer to give": Modern Man in Search of a Soul, pp. 266-267.

Yoga-Vēdānta gives the answer; very simple too, and easy to understand; if the fact of the Supreme Self is realised. The 'Meaning' of Life is Līlā, play, Past-time, Will to pass through all possible kinds of experience of pleasure and pain and slumber, in endless Time—Space—Motion; also four puruṣhārtas, for the individual (see pp. 296-'7, 514-'6 supra).
Vedic Scheme of Organisation of the Whole Human Race; and either realise and endorse its virtue, and take steps to saturate minds of younger generation with those principles and outlines, and thus effectively commence bringing it into universal practice at once; or think out a better one, if they can; —if they would only do so, Humanity would win Peace and Happiness and establish heaven on earth; not otherwise.¹

21. Similarity in Perversity also.

21. Finally, we may note one more point of similarity between all living religions; it is matter for deep reflection, upon that human egoism which insists on venting itself in religions also. All have split up into scores, some into hundreds, of sects and sub-sects; because of opinionatedness and personal quarrels. This is bad enough; but there is worse. Every shine must have a deep shadow also somewhere. Within the pale of every religion there have grown up secret sects of 'black magic', jāḍā, yāṭu, vāma-mārga, dreadful 'left-hand path' ¹

¹ Whole subject of Socio-Individual Organisation has been expounded in detail in The Science of Social Organisation or The Laws of Manu, and in Ancient vs. Modern Scientific Socialism, which may be regarded as a supplement. All main ideas have been stated, fairly adequately though very briefly, in The Science of the Self.
of fiend-worship, wherein foulest rites and practices are indulged in, down to sex-orgies and murderous human sacrifices of innocent children. Such sects and practices have to be constantly watched and warred against; even as foul excretions produced by fairest living organisms, or ashes, refuse, dirt, thrown up by best machinery, have to be continuously wiped, swept, washed away. Agreement of all religions, fallen from their high estate into the evil hands of false priests and cruelly selfish mis-leaders, is so great that mis-guided followers of the several religions all agree in the disastrous error also, of saying: 'My religion is the only true and wholly original one; or, at least, is far better than all others; and all others are heathen, pagan, kāfir, mlēchēhā, and must be suppressed!' And religions, and sects of same religion, to prove their superior excellence, have made war upon one another, and zealously maimed, mutilated, racked, tortured, burnt and buried alive, hundreds, thousands, millions of men, women, and children. Yet it is patent that all beings are 'matter of the same Matter and spirit of the same Spirit'.

1 Every earnest student of Religion would profit if he reads, with discriminate alertness, some such books as J. M. Robertson's A Short History of Christianity and Macleod Yearsley's The Story of the Bible, (Thinker's Library Series, successor of the Rationalist Press Series). They are small yet comprehensive, very informing, full Yet underneath this so disastrous error is profoundest Truth hidden immediately. Interpret 'My religion' as 'Religion of the Me, the I, the Universal Self,' and we pass at once from most violent turmoil into most blissful peace.¹ 'My of historical facts; and convincingly show the elements of falsehood, ugliness, and evil, that grow up in the practice of every religion, because of egoistic passions inherent in human nature. They describe evolution of Christian religion specially, and the extraordinary turns and twists it has taken, advances and retreats it has made, under influence of changing political and economical conditions and needs; i.e., now promoting conversion by fair as well as foul means, and again, preventing all conversion. Incidentally, they indicate occurrences of similar perversions, and progresses and regresses, in other religions also. Defect of such books is that the evil 'priest-craft' aspect is almost exclusively presented (and, no doubt convincingly); while the essential Spiritual and good aspect, necessarily present also, as life in the most diseased but not yet quite dead organism, is almost wholly ignored. History of a religion, by Law of Analogy, is similar to biography of an individual, with its recurrent ups and downs, alternate periods of health and illness. A Short History of Christianity provides many apt illustrations of the Law of Dual Polarity or Di-alectic; how everything, by excess, passes over or yields place to its opposite. Ranke's History of the Popes and A. Holm's History of Greece, much larger books, provide many other illustrations of the same, in other ways.

¹ Also another truth, which too is important, though less so, may be discerned beneath the excessively worded claim. Each religion, besides general value, has a special value, i.e., emphasises some one aspect of the truth, religion is the only true religion, what I believe is the only right belief, what I do is the only correct practice—this amazing self-conceit, outrageous self-importance, enormous megalomania, infatuation, madness, of the false, illusory, most petty and paltry, individual egoistic self, is only reversed reflection of the wondrous conception, infinite import, boundless greatness, infallible beneficence and Saviourship, of the perfect Truth, Beauty, Goodness and Guidance of eternal, immortal all-embracing Universal Self. The Religion of that Me is indeed the One some one virtue, some one kind of pious work, more than other aspects, virtues, works, though all are needed. It does so, because of the special conditions, peculiar time, place, and circumstance, in which it arises. Thus, it may be said, Vaidika Dharma emphasises All-Pervading Self, Duty, all-comprehending Order, and Balancing of all Duties; Hebrew religion, strict Justice of God, and His special Protection of those who place their faith in Him; Zoroastrianism, Rectitude and Purity; Buddhism, Renunciation and Compassion; Christianity, Non-Resistance of evil, Resignation, submission to God's will, self-sacrifice for others; Islam, Brotherly Equality and Resistance of Wrong; and so on. But, in later developments of the civilisation belonging to each religion, the original ideas generally become so transformed as to be almost unrecognisable; mediatorship, between God and man, of the particular founder of that religion, is especially regarded as indispensable for all human beings; and no other person is allowed to be such mediator or guide at all.

Truth, Beauty, Goodness or Benignity, correspond respectively to (constructive) Science, (fine) Art, (actively good and beneficent) Religion. Truth is the object of and on(e)ly Religion, but it runs through all religions, and gives to each, whatever value of helpfulness to men it has; it makes peace between them all, when otherwise they would destroy each other. Who is greater than the Universal I which contains the whole universe? What is smaller than the individual I which is contained within a few pounds of flesh and blood and bone, and is perpetual slave to their caprices of birth, youth, age, death, their incessant swings between health and disease? Yet this so small self apes the measureless greatness of the Great Self! It does so because it is that Self in essence; it

Science, Beauty of Art, Goodness of Religion. Destructive Science, vile Art, soul-enslaving superstitious maleficent Religion correspond to Falsehood, Ugliness, Evilness or Malignity. Philosophy-Vēdānta, as Science-Art-Religion of the Infinite, is summation of all finite sciences-arts-religions. In section 145 of Plato's Phaedrus, Socrates distinguishes 'philo-sopher', 'lover of wisdom', from 'sophist', (pseudo-) 'wise'; thus indicating indirectly that he is only a modest lover and pursuer of wisdom, and not one of those who called themselves sophists, and brazenly vaunted their skill in controversy. (Philos, lover; sophia, wisdom). But 'philosophy' is now synonymous with 'meta-physic', 'beyond physics'.

As observed before, on p. 71, this is proved, if by nothing else, then by this single simple indubitable fact that any individual can change his particular creed for any other creed at will, can transfer his faith from any one religion to any other, thereby proving that there is Something in him which is superior to all particular does so in grievously and ludicrously wrong fashion, because it has imposed upon itself the Error of imagining it-self to be limited to that same handful of flesh and blood and bone. Having made the Limitless limited, it tries to make the limited Unlimited! Demon est Deus inversus. Satan is God inverted. Khudī is reversed image of Khudā. Jīva is denial of Brahma. Untruth is tinsel imitation of Truth. The finite is negation, inkār, nāṣṭika-ṭā, 'denial', 'nihil-ism' of the Infinite!

religions, and which can assert itself at will; even if the mind, through which it so asserts itself, be not educated, be even illiterate.

'It has been said by a western writer, that "the unique character of a religion is to be judged, not by the material it possesses in common with others, but by the special stamp it impresses upon it." This is very true, indeed obvious. If we want to see whatever 'uniqueness' there may be in any religion, we must, of course, 'differentiate', separate, must stress the 'different', not the common, elements. But do we, should we, want to? Is it useful, desirable? Will it help the world? Every individual differs from every other, in appearance, tricks of manner, etc., and in mind also; so does every family, clan, tribe, race, nation, from every other, in some respects. But is it useful or necessary to accentuate these 'distinguishing' features? Is it not enough simply to recognise and allow their existence? Every human being has a 'unique' voice, by which he can be recognised in the dark; therefore, when two persons utter the same words, shall we refuse to recognise that they mean the same thing, simply because they have uttered them in their different voices? Is it not desirable, in present condition of the world, to soften all differences
We have seen the danger on the Path of Knowledge, of the great error of taking one's own small self for Universal Self; also similar error on the Path of Devotion, of regarding any one personal deity as the whole of that same All-pervading, Impersonal, All-personal, Self. Corresponding error on the Path of Works, of ritual, of observances, is to cling tooth and nail to any one particular set of forms as the only good and right set, in all times, all places, all circumstances, for all persons; and to insist upon their being observed by all, always, everywhere. It will be seen that all three errors are only aspects of one another, all are manifestations of egoism, the one prince of all d'evils.

as much as possible; without trying or even wishing and hoping to abolish them—which would be to abolish Nature's Law of Diversity (amidst Unity)? Have not Individualism, Familism, Clanism, Tribalism, Nationalism, Racialism, gone too far, much too far, already? Is it not desirable to emphasise now, Humanism, common features, Law of Unity (amidst Diversity), which alone makes society, socialised existence, genuine Socialism, and Brotherhood possible? (See pp. 90-2, supra).

Ke rā kufr-ē Haqīqī shud piḏḏar,
Ze Islām-ē majāzī gashṭ bēzār. (S.)
(He who True In-fidelity hath seen—
The Dis-belief in the small lower self—Disgusted with the Outer faith hath been.)

1 Pp. 177, 468, 522.
Forced conversion, fanatical tablīgh, shuḍāḥi, murderous persecutions of heretics, horrors of inquisitions, religious wars, (wars and religious!) utter corruption of the moral atmosphere of whole countries, and debasement and enslavement of mind and body of whole nations, are consequence.¹ Solemn ritual, intended to draw minds of all to God, becomes cause of drawing of swords against one another and of mutual butchery; even though use of force in matters of religion is expressly forbidden by the religion supposed to be most energetic and successful in proselytising.

Thus, Qurān says:

Lā ekrāhā f-iḍ-ḏīn. La-kum ḍīnu-kum walē yaḏīm. Uḏū’ elā sabīli Rabbekā b-il-hikmatē w-al-mauezzaṭil hasanatē. (Q.)

(There must be no compulsion exercised
In matters of religion. Unto you
Your faith be welcome; so my faith to me.

¹ "According to the calculation of Voltaire, no less than ten million 'heretics' were burned to death 'at the request of the Church' . . ." : Henry Thomas, The Story of the Human Race, p. 246, (pub.; 1935). This is the work done in the name of one religion; no similar calculations are available for similar work done, no doubt, in names of other religions. But always more numerous new births compensate slaughters, and 'battles in Valhalla' are renewed perpetually. 'History repeats itself', everywhere, in all departments of Nature.
Let those who know not God, be led to Him
By those who know, with words of gentleness
And wholesome and wise counsel, in kind ways.)
And again,
Li kullin ja’lna min-kum shira’an wa minhāja,
wa lau sha-Allāho la ja’alakum ummaṭan-wāhiḍah, wa lākin leyabal-lowakum fī mā āṭa-kum fāṣṭabequ-l-khairaṭo. Yā ayyoh-allazīna āmanu lāyaskhar qaumun min qaumin. A’sa aṅakupū kḥairam minhum. (Q.)

(To every people have we given a law
And a way whereby they may reach to God.
If God had wished it so, He would have made
You all one people. He has not done so.
Wherefore let every people, on the way
Prescribed for it, press forward to good deeds.
And let none laugh at any other men;
Perchance they may be better than themselves.)

Great is the Māyā of words, their power for good or for evil. Riots, pogroms, serious and widespread social disturbances, wars, misleading of whole nations for generations, in all departments of life, may be, have been, caused by vicious propaganda of false catch-words and catch-phrases; or by use of different words by different persons, who all mean the same thing, but do not properly understand one another’s words. Almost all disputes and wrangles are due to unwillingness or inability to look behind and through word to meaning; and, as said before, (p. 382), almost all benevolent diplomacy and successful composition of differences and peacemaking mean only industrious explaining of the meaning of the parties concerned to one another.
Not to understand is to misunderstand; to misderstand is to be hostile; every stranger, whose language is at all strange, must be an enemy.

Thus, e.g., in physician's science and art of physical healing, which ought to be as philanthropic and beneficent to body as priests' science and art of spiritual ministration ought to be to mind, medical practitioners of different schools hold each other in contempt. They disagree, firstly, because they have more _amour propre_, of various kinds, than earnest wish to cure the patient; and, secondly, because each uses a special set of technical words, of the sounds of which he becomes so enamoured that he has no inclination and no power left to see that other sets mean very much the same thing. But while doctors know and choose their respective words and drugs, the layman knows and chooses his doctors, knows who cures most and who kills most, and he can sense common ideas behind different sets of technicalities. He feels that _vājya_'s three _prākṛti-s, corresponding to three functions of mind (see p. 116 supra), _hākim_'s _mizāj-es, old Galen's and new homeopath's 'temperaments', and up-to-date 'scientific doctor's' (as yet inchoate and unclassified) 'personal idiosyncracies' and 'allergies' and 'diatheses' (under cover of which newly invented expressions he now accepts what he tried long to reject, viz., peculiarities of psycho-physical temperament or constitution, which result in the fact, proverbially known to common sense, but not always recognized by 'scientific' practitioners, that what is food for one is poison for another)—the layman feels that these all at bottom mean the same thing. He also knows, in a general way, which system or method of treatment most suits a particular kind of constitution or disease; and is thus able to utilise all systems. The layman is, after all, parent of the expert, and rears and feeds and clothes him and keeps him going. Even so in matters religious, while word-blinded pandits and mauvais and clerics may dispute endlessly, in exclusive praise of their own respective 'unique' books, rites, ceremonies, and Masters, impress and power of the One Supreme Spirit are so strong in the heart of even the most unlearned, that he decides and chooses at will which outer religion to doff and which to don, even as clothes.

Seeing this potency for mischief in excessive clinging to words and outer forms, Teachers of all religions have warned us again and again not to attach undue importance to them. Protestant revolt against Roman Catholicism may, in one way, be regarded as at least partly a revolt against misuse of religious terminology and degradation of ritual into mummmery by self-seeking or ignorant priests. Similar movements for reform within the folds of Vaiśīka Dharma (such as Buḍḍhism; Jainism; Shankara's Advaitism; Rāmānaṇḍa's, Chaitanya's, Ṭulasī-ḍāsa's Bhaktism; Kabīr's Irenean Mysticism, Nānak's Sikhism; Dayānanda's Aryanism, Brāhma Samāj etc.); and within Islām (e.g., Sūfism of many schools and shades of view and methods of yogic practice; Sunnism, Shīā-ism, Ahli-i-Haḍisism or Wahābism, Bābism, Bahāism, Āghā-khānism, and, latest, Qādiyānī Ahmaḏism); which have been started from time to time, may also be regarded in same light.

"The development of all new religions follows much the same general course. In all cases the times are more or less out of joint; older faiths are losing their hold upon the masses. At such times, let a personality appear, strong in itself, and made to appear still stronger by association with some supposed transcendent miracle, and it will be easy to raise a Lo here! that will attract many followers. If there be a single great and apparently well-authenticated miracle, others will accrete round it; then, in all religions that have so originated, there will follow temples, priests, rites, sincere believers, and unscrupulous exploiters of public credulity": p. 195, Samuel Butler's Erewhon, (Everyman's Library). In other words, the same cycle of reform and de-form, 'regeneration and degeneration', over and over again. See also pp. 264 et seq. supra.
Yoga makes it even an important part of soul's discipline to discriminate between śabda, 'words, artha, 'thing meant,' and jñāna, 'cognition or perception' of it, which involves the element of personal factor that requires adjustment and equation.

The whole, and most valuable, work and wisdom of Socrates consisted in this discipline, viz., that he compelled persons, by close cross-examination, to make their own minds clear as to what exactly they meant by the words which they so glibly used, but which, in the mouths of most of them were, and are, only catch-words, without any precise, or sometimes even any, meaning.

Scriptural writings counsel us: "Do not cling to the letter which killeth, but to the spirit which giveth life eternal." "Look at the things of the flesh with the eyes of the Spirit, not at the things of the Spirit with the eyes of the flesh." Following this counsel, we will avoid hate and cultivate and promote love universal, which is the whole and sole practical or actional object of religion.

1 Yoga-sūtra, 1, 42.

2 One very effective and useful way to get behind sound to sense, to distinguish between word and thought, to over-come letter-worship, to transcend Vēdo-latry, Qurāno-latry, Biblo-latry (more subtle fetters upon soul than idol-latry), is to study many languages, and compare parallel passages; and so learn to recognise with resolute and unafflicted intelligence, same thought,
In the glass of things temporal,
See the image of things spiritual.

As preliminary preparation for that final renunciation of all egoism, Great Teachers advise us to begin by offering up all our actions to God. Pray for light, for guidance, and then do everything in name, for sake, as if by command, of God. So, the mood, the prayer, "Thy will be done, not mine," will gradually become a permanent part, and then same familiar friendly face, behind many masks of many languages, (see pp. 90-92, supra). Correspondingly, way to get on with others, is to 'Do in Rome as the Romans do,' within due limits, i.e., so far as no strongly held principle is sacrificed; thus a vegetarian may go so far as to sit at the same table with non-vegetarians, but must not eat animal food. He may follow outer customs of the people, without changing his inner convictions.

Qurān says:
Wa man ṭashabbeḥā ba qaumin fa ho-wā minhum.
(Who imitates a people is as one of them.)

English saying is, 'Imitation is the sincerest flattery'.
Dēsh-āchārān, samayān jātī- dharmān,
Bubhūshatē yah ū par-āvara-jñāb,
Sah yaṭrā-taṭra adhigātah, saḍā ēva
Mahā-janasya ādhipaṭyam karoṭī. (Mbḥ., Viḍura-niṭī).

(Who goes not 'gainst conventions, customs, laws,
Of tribes and countries—wheresoe'er he go,
As leader will the public honor him.)
very essence, of our life and being; and thus, identity of ourself with the Supreme Self, of tu, tvam, thou, with Haq, Taṭ. That, will become realized by and in Works through and in Devotion, up to and in Illumination.

Wa ytēmūn at-ṭa’ma alā hubbehī miskīnau wa yāṭīmau wa asirā. Innama nuta’ma-kum le wajh-Ilāhi lā nurīḍo min-kum jaza-an wa lā shukūra. (Q).

(The poor, the orphan, and the captive—feed
For love of God, for sake of Him alone, Desiring no reward, nor even thanks.)

Quṭ inna salāṭi wa nosoki wa mahiyāya wa mamāṭe l-Ilāhi Rabb-il-ālamīn. (Q.)

(My prayer, my sacrifice, my life, my death,
Are all for God, the Lord of all the worlds.)

Alaihi tawakkalṭo wa hua ne’m al-Wakīl. (Q.)
(On Him do we rely with our whole heart,
He is our only refuge, safest, best.)

Man-manā bhava, Mad-bhaktāh
Mad-yājī, Mām namas-kuru:
Aham tvāṁ sarva-pāpēbhyaḥ mokshayishyāmi, mā shuchah.
Kaunteya ḫ, praṭi-jāṇīhi,
na Mē bhaktāḥ pra-ṇashyaṭī. (G.)
(Turn mind to me, love Me with all thy heart,
Do acts of sacrifice for my sole sake,
Bend thy whole soul to Me, the Self of all,
And I shall wash thee clean of all thy sins.
Listen and know and trust, I promise thee,
No votary of Mine can e'er be lost.)

Yaḥ karoshi, yaḥ ashnāsi, yaḥ juhoshi, ḍaḍāsi yaḥ,
Yaḥ ṭapasyasi, Kaunṭeṣya !,
ṭaṭ kurushva Maḍ-arpaṇam. (G.)

(Whate'er thou dost, eating, or giving alms,
Ascetic discipline, or sacrifice,
Do it for My sake, offer it to Me.)

"Come unto Me, all ye that are weary and heavyleden, and I will give you rest." (B.)  "Love God with all your heart. Whether we live, we live unto the Lord; and whether we die, we die unto the Lord; whether we live, therefore, or die, we are the Lord's. Whether, then, you are eating or drinking, or whatever you are doing, let everything be done to the glory of God." (B.) "Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the king-dom. For I was an-hungered, and ye gave me meat; I was thirsty and ye gave me drink, naked and ye clothed me."
(B., Mat. xxv.)

Lào-tse says:

"It is the way of Tao not to act from any personal motive, to conduct affairs without worrying about results, to taste without being aware of the flavor, to account the small as great and the great as small, to recompense injury with kindness." (T., Tao-Te-King.)

Karmani eva adhikarah té, mā phalēshu kaḍā-chana. (G.)

(Thy righteous duty and thy duteous right Is but to do that duty which is right, And not to crave reward of any kind; Fruit of thy act, leave thou to God's high Mind.)

Zaraṭhusṭro tanvas chīṭ khakhyāo ushtanēm daḍā-iṭī paurvātātēm mananghas chā wangeḥush Mazadhāi. Arojjī huḍā-onghaho wispāiṣh Mazadhā kshmāvasū savo. (Z. Gāthā, 33. 14; 34. 3.)

(Yea! Zaraṭhusṭra dedicates to Thee, Lord Mazadhā!, his body and his soul. In everything the righteous worker doth, He sacrificeth unto thee, O Lord!)

(Each step that my feet take is but a part Of circumambulation of the All;)

¹ This teaching is primarily for the Renunciant; secondarily for the Pursuant. The latter should do his law-ordained duty; but it is premissible for him to desire reward; if he does not get it, then he too must console himself with thinking that it has been withheld by God for some good reason; and he should try to do better next time.
Each act of service, at His bidding done;
Each lying down, for sleep, is at His feet
Prostration worshipful, and utter mergence
Of my small self in Him; each utterance
Voices His praise and Him; each meal, each drink,
Is offering of food and drink to Him;
He eats, drinks, sleeps, speaks, walks, acts,
_lives in me._ (KABIR).

"Let the Osiris go;" ye see he is without fault.
He lived on truth, he fed on truth. The God has welcomed him as he desired. He has given food to My hungry, drink to My thirsty ones, clothes to My naked." (Egyptian _Book of the Dead_, quoted in H. P. Blavatsky’s _Isis Unveiled_, II. 548.)

_Pāṭrē-ḍānām, anna-ḍānām, viḍyā-ḍānām_, giving of physical food, and mental food, _i.e._, knowledge, to the _deserving_, is eulogised and enjoined in Indian scriptures over and over again. "Sacrifice", study, charity, _i j yā, a ḍ h y-ay a n a, ḍā n a_, are three permanent duties of all three ‘regenerate’ classes. (_M.; G._).

The _soul_, found blameless, after death, by Osiris, Egyptian Lord of Truth, (_same as Vēdic Yama_, and Islamic Al-Qābīz and Al-Muḥsiy, Lord of Death and Judgment), is given by Deity, same status and name as
His own, because blameless.
We have to bear in mind that emotional enjoyment of self-surrender and devotion to the Supreme, wholly legitimate as it is, is not enough. 'Freed' man has to slave for 'slaves' who are yet 'fettered' by doubts and fears and worldly desires. He has to realise, in his actions, that all mankind, nay, all living things, are one Infinite Brotherhood. Right knowledge and devotion, wedded to one another, are both sterile if they give not birth to good works. Faith and reason without works are worse than useless. Works witness faith. Our innermost heart-conviction is that according to which we act. Deeds, not words, prove real faith. Blood of martyrs is proof, and therefore seed, of their faith.

"By their fruits shall ye know them." (B.)

Śthāṇuḥ ayam bhāra-hārah kila abhūṭ
Aḍhītya Vēḍam na vijāṇāti yah arṇham;
Arṭha-jñāh ī ṭ sakalam bhaḍram ashnuṭe,
Nākam ēti Jāana-viḍhūṭa-pāpmā. (Nirukṭā.)

Āchāra-hīnam na punaṇti Vēḍāh
Yaḍy-api aḍhīṭāh saha shadbhiḥ angaiḥ;
Chhandāmsi ēnam mṛṭyu-kālē ṭyajanṭi,
Nidam shakunṭāh iva jāṭa-pakṣāḥ.
(Vasishṭha-Smṛti.)
Évam pravarṣītam chakram
na anu-varṣayaṭi iha yah,
Agh-āyuh indriy-ārāmah,
mogham, Pārtha !, sah jīvaṭi. (G.)
(But block of wood, supporting a dead weight,
Is he who knows the Vēda all by heart,
And yet knows not its sacred secret sense.
He who knows that, and also does good works
In keeping with that knowledge, he avoids
Down-dragging binding sins and gaineth heaven.
All Vēdas cannot help, however hard
They have been studied, and with all their six Subservient sciences, the man of vice;
They leave him at the moment of his death,
As fledglings that have grown wings leave fouled nest.
This Wheel of Life that I have set a-whirl—
He who helps not to keep it cycling on,
In the fixed ways of virtue, he does fail
In duty, living sinful life in vain.)
Bahum pi chē samhiṭam bhāsa-māno,
Na ūk(t-)karo hoṭi naro pamaṭṭo,
Gopo va gāvo gaṇayam parēsam,
Na bhāgavā(n) sāmānyassa hoṭi. (Dh.)
(Who talks much, learnedly, but acts not right,
That senseless man is like one who should count
The cows of others o'er and o'er again,
But cannot have a sip of milk from them.)
Ṛgveda 1:64

Āchāraḥ paramah dharmaḥ, shrutiḥ-uktah, smarṭah ēva cha;
Tasmā t asmin sadā yuktah
niṣṭam syāt Āṭma-vān ēdi-jah.
Āchāraḥ vichyutah vipraḥ
na Veda-phalam ashnuṭe;
Āchāreṇa tū sam-yuktah
sam-purṇa-phala-bhāk bhāvēt. (M.)

(Right conduct and good deed—this is the highest Dharma; so all the Vedaś, Smṛtis, teach.
The wise man, therefore, having seen the Self, Acts gently and performs good works amain.
Who fails in conduct, Vedaś reads in vain;
Who does not fail, all life’s just ends will gain.)

Pathakāḥ, pāthakāḥ cha ēva, yē cha anyē śāśtra-chintakāḥ,
Śarvē vyasaninah mūrkāḥ,
yah kriyāvān sah pandītah.
(Mbh., Vana-parva, ch. 314.)

(Students and teachers, and all others, who Read the mere words of ponderous books, know naught,
But only waste their time in vain pursuit Of words; who acteth righteusly is wise.)

I’lm chanḍān ke bēśhtar khwānī,
Gar a’mal ēdar tū n-īst, nāḍān-ī,

46
Chār-pāy-ē bar ū kiṭāb-ē chand,
Na muhaqqiq buwaḏ na dānish-mand. (Sā’īl.)

(However great thy knowledge, if good deed
Is not thine also, then thou knowest naught;
But beast of burden thou, loaded with books,
Strutting along, and knowing not their sense,
Lacking all wisdom ignorant of truth.)

Sayyāḏ-ul-qaum khaḏim-ul-qaum. (H.)
(The leader of the tribe—who serves it most.)

(“Those who aspire to greatness must humble themselves.”) (T., Tao Teh King.)

“The meek shall inherit the earth, and theirs is the kingdom of heaven. Whosoever will be a chief among you, let him be your servant; whosoever will be great among you, let him be your minister.
Whosoever shall exalt himself, shall be abased; and he who shall humble himself, shall be exalted.” (B.)

“He that is greatest among you shall be your servant.” (B.) “He that is greatest among you, let him be as the youngest; and he that is chief, as he

Inna akramakum inḏ Allāhe aṯqākum. (Q.)
(Nearest to God and greatest in His eyes
Is he who is most good amongst you all.)

Sam-māṇāṭ brāhmaṇah niṭyam uḏ-vijēta vishāṭ iva,
Ava-māṇasya cha ākāṅkṣēṭ amṛtasya iva sarvaḏā. (M.)
(The man of God doth ever shrink and flee
From marks of honour, as from poison-sting,
And welcometh indignity and task
Of lowliness as if 'twere nectar-draught.)

Ba ehsān āsūḍa karḍan ḍilé
Beh az alf rakaʿt ba har manzile. (Sāʿī.)
Ḍil ba ḍaṣṭ āwār, ke hajjé-akbar ast;
Az hazārān Kāba yak ḍil beḥṭar ast.
Ḍil guzar-ḡāh-e Jalīl-e Akbar ast,
Kāba bun-ḡāh-e Khālīl-e āzir ast. (S.)

(To bring joy to one heart, by loving help,
Is better than a thousand litanies.
To reach and clasp a human heart with love—
This is the Greater Pilgrimage; the other,
To the stone Kāba, is the smaller one.
Better far is one living human heart
Than a whole thousand Kābas built of stone;
Within the former God’s own life doth shine,
The latter built by Abra’m is dead shrine.)

Ṭāpah tīṛṭham, kshamā tīṛṭham, tīṛṭham inḍriya-nigrāhah,
Sarva-bhūta-ḍayā tīṛṭham,
Ḍhyānam tīṛṭham an-uṭṭamam,
Eṭāni panch tīṛṭhānī,
saṭyam shasṭham pra-kīṛṭiṭam,
Ḍēḥé tishtanṭi sarvasya;
ṭēṣhu snānam sam-ācharēṭ.
Dānam tīrtham, damah tīrtham, sanṭosah tīrtham uchayté,
Brahma-charyam param tīrtham,
tīrtham cha priya-vāditā,
Jñānam tīrtham, dhṛtih tīrtham
Tapah tīrtham ud-āhṛtam
Tīrthānām api ṭat tīrtham
Vi-shuddhīh manasah parā. (Mbī.)

(The glow of self-denial, sense-control, Forgivingness, and gentleness to all, Dwelling on God in mind, and truthfulness, Contentment, charity, and chastity. Soft words of friendliness, and fortitude, Enlightenment, and purity of heart, And knowledge that the Self is All in All — Most blessed shrines, holiest of waters, these; And All within thy being, ever near; Bathe in these sacred waters, worship here!)

(Dh.)

1 (In Skt.: Na nagna-charyā, na jatā, na pankām, Na anāshakah, sṭhandila-shāyikā va, (Nude endurance of sun, rain, heat and cold,
Long tangled hair, smearing with earth and ashes,
Fasting, sleeping on stone, tormenting postures,
And self-inflicted pains of every sort,
Can purify thee not, friend!, until thou
Wash clean thy heart of all unclean desire,
Thy outside too of all this dirt and mire.
What is the use of matted hair, and what
Of raiment made out of the wild goat's skin?
Within thee there is ravening and sin!
Only the outside dost thou try to clean;
Diff'rent the way from sin thy heart to wean.)

Na vi mundiyēṇa samaṇo, no Om-kārēṇa
bambhaṇo,
Na munī raṇṇa-vāsēṇam, kusa-chīrēṇa ṇa ṭāvaso,
Samayāyē samaṇo bhavaṭi, bambha-chīrēṇa
bambhaṇo,
Nāṇēṇa munī hoi, ṭavēṇa hoi ṭāvaso,¹

(M.-Vāṇi, ch. 22.)

Rajo-jalīyam uṭkutika-pradāhānam
Shoḍhyānti purusham a-vi-ṭirṇa-kāṅkṣham,
Kin ū jatābhīḥ, durmedēḥa ī, kin ū ajīna-shāṭya ī Abhyanṭaram ū gahanam, bāhyam pari-māṛjasi ī)

* (In Skt.: Na mundanēṇa shramaṇah, na Om-kārēṇa
brāhmaṇah,
Na munih aranyā-vāsēṇa, kusha-chīrēṇa na ṭāpasaḥ.
Samaṭayā shramaṇah bhavaṭi, brahma-chāryēṇa
brāhmaṇah,
Jnāṇēṇa munih bhavaṭi, ṭapaśā bhavati ṭāpasaḥ.)
(By shaving head, no Shramaṇa is made; Nor, Brāhmaṇ’ by loud utterance of AUM; Nor, by life in a forest, is a Muni; Nor, by grass-wrappings, is a Ṭapasvī. Same-sightedness doth make a shramaṇa, And continence doth make a brāhmaṇa, And search for Brahma, following Brahma’s way; Knowledge of the high Truth doth make a Muni; And true austerity, a Ṭapasvī.)

“Now do ye Pharisees make clean the outside of the cup and the platter, but your inward part is full of ravening and wickedness.” (B.)

Vēdāh, ṭyāgah cha, yajñāh cha, niyamāh cha, ṭapāmsi cha,
Na vi-pra-ḍushtā-bhāvasya
       siddhīm gachchhanṭi karhi-chiṭ. (M.)

(Study of scripture and ascetic life,
Ritual and sacrificial offerings,
Observances of rules and practices
Of orthodox religion, even gifts—
Avail him not at all whose heart is bad).

“Blessed is the man that endureth temptation; for when he is tried he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love Him . . . Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this: To visit the fatherless and the widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world . . . What doth it profit, my brethren! though he say he hath faith and have not works? Can faith save him? . . . By works was faith made perfect? For as the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead also." (B., James.)

"Circumcision is nothing, and uncircumcision is nothing; but the keeping of the commandments of God" (is everything). (B., Corinthians.)

"The good that I would, I do not; but the evil which I would not, that I do." (B., Rom.)

Jānāmi aḍharmam, na cha mé ni-vṛṭṭih;
Jānāmi śhṛṣṭīḥ, na cha mé pravṛṭṭih;
Kēna api ṛṣevēna, hṛdi śṭhitēna,
Yaṭhā ni-yuktah asmi taṭhā ācharāmi. (Mbh.)

(I know the right, yet cannot do the right;
I know the wrong, and yet I do the wrong.
It is as if some god dwells in my heart,
And drives me, and I helplessly obey.)

1 See pp. 431-2 and 444 supra also. Oft-mentioned so-phrased ‘Conflict between head and heart’ is not countenanced by either the Skt. text on this page and p. 444, or Bible-text on this page, or Persian text on p. 431. ‘Head’ knows quite well what is right and what is wrong, in the situation before it; but ‘heart’ is drawn in opposite directions by ‘the conflict between two wishes.’ It is a conflict between two halves of one heart, so to say; between good heart and bad heart,
"Have we not all one Father? Hath not one God created us? Why do we deal treacherously every man against his brother?" (B., Malachi.) "One is your Master, even Christ, and all ye are brethren." (B.) "There is one Body and one Spirit." (B., Ephesians.)

"As the body is one and hath many members, and all the members of that one body, being many, unselﬁsh wish and selﬁsh wish, shubham manas and ashubham manas, nafs-i-lawwāmā and nafs-i-ammārā, the angel in us and the beast in us. It is true that whichever of two ﬁghting desires gains victory—it throws a glamour, thereafter, upon the knowledge of the 'head' also. "The wish is father to the thought". Person concerned deceives himself into belief that what he decided, and acted upon, was right. Soon or lat, evil consequences of his action bring remorse, and glamour passes away. Yet what follows may be said in defence of the current phrase: When a person has advanced to stage of knowing, re-cognising, distinction between right desire and wrong desire; of introspectively seeing that both are working within him; and yet feels that the wrong one cannot be checked by him, though he is trying hard to check it; then conﬂict is changed, from one between two desires, into one between the wrong desire (bad half of the heart) and the knowledge (head) that it is wrong. Plato's Phaedrus (sections 74-75) has an apt simile: A charioteer is driving a pair of horses. One of the pair is vicious, and very strong; the other, good but weak. Former takes the bit between its teeth and bolts, dragging its yoke-fellow, chariot, charioteer, all, into misery. Katha Upanishat uses the simile of horses, chariot, charioteer, warrior (jīva), for a different purpose.
are one body, so also is Christ. For, by one spirit are we all baptised into one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be bond or free... We have many members in one body, and all members have not the same office... There are diversities of gifts, ... of administrations, ... of operations, but it is the same God, the same Spirit, Lord, which worketh all in all... And whether one member suffer, all the members suffer with it; or one member be honored, all the members rejoice with it.” (B., Corinthians, viii; Romans, xii.) “And this commandment have we from Him: That he who loveth God love his brother also.” (B., John.)

(He who permitteth his left-hand to be Defiled with dirt and doth not wipe it clean With his right hand, will make his body soon Unclean in all its parts. What makes the whole But parts? And what the human bodies? Limbs. Let each limb care for every other, then.) (Bu.)

“In life we should be of use to others.” (C., Liki.)

“In seeking a foothold for self, love finds a foothold for others; seeking light for itself, it enlightens others also.” (C., Analects.)

1 Prof. Tan Yun Shan, in his Modern Chinese History (1938), on pp. 81-82, writes: “It is laid down as a sort of rule in one Chinese Classical Book, ‘The Ancients, wishing to order well their States, studied things; their knowledge being perfect, their volitions Brāhmaṇaḥ asya mukham āsīt, bāhū rājanyah kṛṭah,
Ūrū taṭ Asya yaṭ vaishyah,
padbhyām shūdraḥ ajāyatā. (V.)

(The men of knowledge constitute the head
Of Macrocosmic Man, the Oversoul;
The men of action are His mighty arms;
Men of desire, His chest and abdomen,
And men of labor, all-supporting legs;
Thus are all human beings parts of One Whole.)

were purified, their minds were rectified, their persons were cultivated, their families were regulated; their States were then well-ordered; the Whole World could then be made tranquil and happy. In the progression of the Great Natural Process, the whole world is free and common to all. The wise and able should be chosen to rule. This is called Ta Tung or the Great Harmonisation.' The sublime end of Ta Tung does not stop with the Great Harmonisation of Humanity only, but also aims at the unification of the entire Universe and every being. In old Chinese classical books we find various maxims of this teaching, 'All men are our brethren, and all beings our friends', 'Heaven and earth co-exist with man, and all beings are one'. Chinese religion may be called the 'Teaching of Ethics', or 'Teaching of Humanism', and it may be called the 'teaching of Ta Tung or Great Harmonisation' or 'Universalism'...

All this only states, in other words, the essential teaching of all religions, regarding Right Knowledge, Right Desire, Right Action; regarding inter-dependence of individual virtue and well-ordered Individual Life, with social welfare and right Social Order; and, finally, regarding inter-dependence of all parts of the Universe through and in One Supreme Self.
Bani Ādam ā'zāē yak dīgar and,
Ke ḍar āfrīnīsh ze yak jauhar and.
Chu u'zwē ba ḍard āwaraḍ rozgār,
Dīgar u'zwā-hā rā na mānaḍ qarār.
Tu k-az miṁnatē dīgar-ān bē-gham-ī?
Na shāyaḍ ke nām-aṭ nihand ādamī! (Ṣā'īḍ.)

(The progeny of Adam are all limbs
Of but one body, since in origin
And essence they are all identical.
If one limb of the body suffer pain
Can th' others ever rest in painless ease?
If thou art careless of thy brother's pain,
The name of 'man' thou oughtest not to gain.)

Sāhab-dilē, ba maḍrasah āmaḍ, ze khāneqāh,
Ba shikasṭe a'hāde suhbatē ahl-ē-ṭariq rā.

Guftam: Miyanē ā'lim wa ā'biḍ che farq būḍ,
Ṭā ikhtiyār kardī, az-ān, in fariq rā?
Guft: U gilim-e khwēsh ba ḍar mī barad ze mauj,
W-iṅ jeḥd mī kunaḍ ke bi-gīraḍ ghariq rā. (Ṣā'īḍ.)

(A hermit broke his vow of hermitage,
And joined a school of teachers, good and wise.
As-kaṭē asked why he chose the latter's company
Above that of 'the men of practices',
He said: The hermit thinks to save his own
Rag-blanket from the inundating wave;
The teacher tries the drowning man to save.)

As-sayyo minni wa ʾtmāmo min Allah. (H.)
(Effort is mine, to grant success is God's.
Man should propose, God only can dispose.)

Ṭariqaṭ ba-juz ḥāḍmaṭe-khalq n-īṣṭ.
Ba ṭasbīh o sajjāda o ḍalq n-īṣṭ. (Ṣādī.)

(None other Path to God is anywhere
Than the whole-hearted service of His world.
Repeating God's names, turning o'er and o'er
The rosary of beads, the prayer-mat,
The wrap of rags—these do not make the Path.)

Fravareṭā vāṣṭrim no īt, Mazaḍā !, a-vāṣṭrayo ḍa vāṁschīnā hūmērōtoish bakshṭā. (Z., Gāthā, 31. 10.)

(Choose ye the path of Action Dutiful;
For the deluded one who giveth up
All action—he forfeiteth welfare too.)

Ashēma dérēdyāī ūta moī dāo Armaṭī rāyo ashīsh wangḥeush gaēm manangho. (Ibid. 43. 1.)

(Give me, Lord Mazaḍā! the Activism
Of Duty on the path of Conscience straight,
Which only can uphold the Rectitude
Through which alone come blessings to the world.)

' Not learning but doing is the chief thing.'

(Ju., Mishna, Aboth, ii. 17.)

' He that turneth away his ear from the law, even his prayer shall be abomination.' (B., Proverbs.)

' When ye spread forth your hands, I will hide mine eyes from you; yea, when ye make many prayers, I will not hear; your hands are full of blood. (B., Isaiah).

Ruḍrāksham, ṭulasi-kāśṭham,
tri-pundram, bhasma-ḍhāraṇam,
Yāṭrāḥ, snānāni, homāḥ cha,
japāḥ, vā ḍeva-ḍarshanam,
Na ēte punanīṭī manujam
yaṭhā bhūṭa-hiṭe raṭiḥ. (Purāṇa.)

(Bead-necklaces and many rosaries,
And triple paint on forehead, ash on skin,
Wand'ring to shrines and off'ring into fire,
Mechanical recital of God's names,
Gazing on eikons—all these help not man,
As service of our fellow-creatures can.)

Sva-ḍharma-karma-vi-mukhāḥ,
Kṛṣṇa-Kṛṣṇa-iti rāvināḥ,
Tē Harēḥ dvēśhiṇah mūḍhāḥ,
Ḍharm-ārtham janma yat Harēḥ.

(Viṣṇu-Purāṇa.)

(Who shirk their duty, and, for all to hear,
Cry loudly, Kṛṣṇa! Kṛṣṇa! they are cheats;
They are not devotees but foes of God;
For the High God Himself doth incarnate
To make men do their duties and not prate.)

"Not every one that sayeth, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. I will profess unto them. I never knew you; depart from Me, ye that work iniquity." (B., Mat. vii.)

Na mīn goyam ke az ḍunyā juḍā bāsh,
Ba har kārē ke bāshī bā Khuḍā bāsh. (S.)

Cho mīn bīnam ke nā-bīnā ba chāh āṣṭ,
W-agar khāmosh mī bāsham gunāh āṣṭ. (S).

(I do not say: Go and give up the world.
I say: Be near God in whate'er thou dost.
If I should see a blind man with his stick
Wending towards a well, and warn him not,
Then I am surely guilty of his death.)

“To share one’s wisdom with others is called true wisdom; to share one’s wealth with others is reckoned meritorious.” (T., KWANG TZU.)

Brāhmaṇah sama-ḍrk, shāntah, ḍīnānām an-apēkshakah,
Sravaṭē Brahma ṭasya api,
bhīnna-bhāndāṭ payah yaṭhā. (Bh.)

(Even a saintly and impartial man,
Free from all selfish loves and hates—if even
Such should stand by, and see the poor oppressed,
And do naught to befriend them any way,
Then from him shall depart unfailingly
All learning and all virtue, as milk flows
From vessel leaking through a crack, and goes.)
Prāyashah munayah lokē
svārth-aik-ānt-odyamāh hi ṭē;
Dvaipāyanah ū bhagavān
sarva-bhūṭa-hītē raṭah. (Bh.)

Na karmāṇāṁ an-ārambhāt
naish-karmyam purushah ashnuṭē,
Na cha san-nyasanāḥ ēva
siḍṭhim sam-aḍhi-gachchhaṭi.
Labhanṭē Brahma-nirvāṇam
sarva-bhūṭa-hītē raṭāh. (G.)

(Most anchorets strive only for themselves,
And therefore fail; but those who truly know,
Engage themselves in service of the world.
Not by avoidance of activity,
Nor by renunciation either, may
Freedom of soul be gained, or perfectness;
Only by constant service of the world:
May the great peace of Brahma be attained.)

Uṭṭamā sahaj-āvasṭhā, ḍvīṭiyā, ḍhyāna-ḍhāraṇā,
Ṭriṭīyā prāṭīmā-pūjā, homa-yāṭrā vidambana.

(Agni Purāṇa.)

(The natural state is best, the feel of self
At one with the Eternal Self of all,
In tune with the Immortal Infinite;
The labored contemplation of the One
Is next; lower, is fixing of the mind
On some material image; ritualism,
Offerings and sacrifices, pilgrimage,
And movings up and down of hands and feet,
Are self-deception, mummerly, or pastime,

Karmani eva adhikarah te,
ma phaleshu kadā-chana.
Tasmāt asaktah satātām
kāryam karma sam-āchara. (G.)

Tena tyaktena bhunjīthāh, mā grāhah kasya-svid dhanam. (U.)

Brāhmaṇe cha shva-pāke cha
Panditāh sama-darshinah. (G.)

(To do thy duty is thy only right;
Thou hast no right to crave reward or fruit.
Do all thy work with a detached mind.
Enjoy the goods thy fortune may bring thee,
But with aloofness, ready to give up.
Behold all, great and small, same-sightedly.)

"If I have committed any sin against the law of brotherhood in relation to my father, mother, sister, brother, mate, or children; in relation to my leader, my next-of-kin, and acquaintances; my co-citizens, partners, neighbours, my own townsmen, and my servants—then I repent and pray for pardon.
(Z., Paṭet Pashēmāni.)
The beautiful poem, Abu bin Aḏ-ham, must be brought in here with loving hands:

Abū bin Aḏ-ham—may his tribe increase—
Awoke one night from a deep dream of peace,
And saw within the moonlight in his room,
Making it rich, like lily in full bloom,
An Angel writing in a book of gold.
Exceeding peace had made bin Aḏ-ham bold,
And to the Presence in the room he said,
"What writest thou?" The Vision raised its head,
And with a look made all of sweet accord,
Answered, "The names of those who love the Lord."

"And is mine there?" asked Abū. "Nay, not so."
Replied the Angel. Abū spoke more low,
But cheerily still, and said, "I pray thee, then,
Write me as one who loves his fellow-men."
The Angel wrote and vanished. The next night,
He came again with a great wakening light.
And showed the names which love of God had blest.

And, lo!, bin Aḏ-ham's name led all the rest!.

(Anon.)

Follow the Spirit, not the Letter.

Warnings against false interpretations of scripture texts by selfish and interested or ignorant persons, desirous of promoting ritualism and formalism, for gain, or through mere superstition, are also given by all Teachers:

Yām imām pushpiṭām vācham
pra-vaḍanṭi a-vipashchitah,
Vēda-vāda-raṭāh, Pārtha!
na anyaṭ asti iti vādinah. (G.)

(They lack all sense who prate perpetually.
About the Vēda's ritual, and assert,
Naught else is worth while—they indeed know naught.)

Ṭam ēva ṛhīrah vijñāya
prajñām kurvīṭa brāhmaṇaḥ,
Na anu-ḍhyāyēt bahūn shabdān, vāchaḥ viglāpanam hi ṭaṭ, (U.)

(The One Truth which bestoweth wisdom seek,
And think not many words, 'tis waste of speech.)

Shāstrāṇi abhyasya, mōḍhāvī, jñāna-vijñāna-ṭaṭ-parah,
Palālam īva dhāny-ārthī,
ṛyaṇeṣṭ granṭhān a-shēsha-ṭah. (U.)

(Study the linked words, no doubt, but look
Behind them to the thought they indicate,
And having found it, throw the words away
As chaff when you have sifted out the grain.
Study the sciences; master their heart;
Having done so, cling not to many books.)
Gar ze sirrē mā'rifāt āgah shawī
Lafz bu-guzārī, suyē mā'ni rawī. (S.)

(If thou wouldst learn the secret of the True, Let pass the word, the thought, the thought, pursue.)

Iṭīhāsa-Purāṇābhyām
Vēḍam sam-upa-bṛmhayēt,
Bibhēti alpa-shruṭāt Vēḍah
mām ayam pra-ṭarishyaṭi. (M.)

Paḍa-jñaih na aṭi-nir-bandhah
kartavyah muni-bhāshīṭe,
Arṭha-smarana-ṭāṭparyāṭ
na ṣādriyante hi lakṣaṇam.

(Read Vēda in the light of History;
The Hist'ry of the Universe and Man;
For Vēda fears the man who knows not much:
‘He will deprive me of my rightful sense.’)

(Let not grammarians scrutinise
Too close the language of the wise;
For seers think more of the thought
Than of the words in which 'tis caught.)

Ṭū Qurān gar bar īn nawa' kḥwānī,
Be-būrī raunaqē Musalmānī. (S.)

(If thou interprettest the Qurān thus, Thou murderest the beauty of Islām.)
We are told repeatedly that the real source of all true knowledge is within our-Self. Only he who has found that source will be able to understand Scriptures rightly. Praṭi-bhā, divya-dṛṣṭi, yoga-ja-jñāna, praty-aksha-darshana, aparoksha-anu-bhava, intuition, ishrāq, ilm-i-huzūrī, kashf, is recognised by all religions, as distinguished from tarka, anumāna, mashīyaṭ, ilm-i-husūlī, intellectual argument, inference, reasoning. Various states and degrees of 'inner illumination', 'divine revelation', antah-prakāsha, divya-dṛṣṭi, mantra-darshana, raushan-zamiri, chashmi-bāṭini, ilhām, are distinguished.

Dar ramz o kanāyā na tawān yāft Khuḍā rā, Masahaf-i-dil bīn, ke kitābē beh az in n-īṣt. (S.)
(In books and signs thou never wilt find God! Read thine own heart with reverence and heed, No holier writ is owned by any creed.)

Saḍ kitāb-o saḍ waraq dar nār kun, Jān o dīl rā jānīb-ē-Dīlār kun. (S.)
(Give thousand-pagéd tomes unto the fire, Give life and heart to the One Heart's Desire.)
Dar haqīqaṭ khuḍ ṭu i Umm-ul-kitāb, Khuḍ ze Khuḍ āyat-e Khuḍ rā bāz yāb. Lauh-e Mahfūz āst dar mā'ni dīl-āt, Har che mī khwāhī shawaq z-ū hāsil-āt, Jo i'lm-o-hikmat kā Wo hai dānā,
   ā i'lm-o-hikmat ke ham haiń mújīd;
Hai apne sinē men us sé zāyaḍ
   jo bāṭ wā'ez kitāb mēn hai.  (S.) (Since He knows all art and science,
we too can invent and know;
In the human heart is hidden more than all the Scriptures show.) (Thy-Self the parent of all Go[d]-spel[1] thou;
All scriptures thine own heart will give enow.
The Sacred Guarded Tablet—thine own heart;
Whate'er thou wishest, ask; it will impart.)
Sarvam Āṭmani sam-pashyēt, saṭ cha, asaṭ cha, sam-āhiṭah.
Sarvam Āṭmani sam-pashyān,
na aḍharmē kuruṭē manah,
Āṭmā ēva dévaṭāh sarvāh,
   Sarvam Āṭmani ava-sṭhiṭam.  (M.)
Sarvāsām viḍyānām hṛḍayam ēk-āyanam.  (U.)
(Behold all truth, all error, in thy-Self;
The Self is all the gods; all's in the Self.
Who thus beholds the Great Self in him-Self,
He cannot set his heart again on sin.
The one storehouse of all the sciences,
Known and unknown, is thine own heart within.)
By such realisation of Unity of All life in and through Action, by service of fellow-creatures, is completed threefold realisation of Secondless and Otherless Oneness, Shuddha-advaśtam, Taḥhid-i-zāti, Bāv-advaśtam, Taḥhid-i-sifāti, Kriy-advaśtam, Taḥhid-i-afāli.

Laḥ-i-Mahfūz, 'Guarded or Preserved Tablet,' is Ḥāfizā, Omniscient 'Memory', of God, in which all past, present, and future is eternally contained and preserved. Corresponding Samskr̥t word is C hiṭragupta, 'Hidden and Preserved Picture', Ākāśhic Record. God as Yama, Anṭar-yāmī, 'Judge', 'Inner Ruler,' As-Shakūr and Al-Qābīz, 'Giver of rewards and punishments', Al-Muhsiy, 'Recorder', Al-Muḥāsib', 'Accountant', has for Recording Angel, Chiṭragupta, G upṭa-Chiṭra, 'Secret Wonderful Picturer', 'Photographer'; and the Record is His own Memory, Ḥāfizā, Laḥ-i-Mahfūz, Smṛti. One of the names of Brahmā, Mahat-Buddhi, Aql-i-kul, 'Total Universal Mind', is Smṛti, Divine Memory, Nous-Demiurgos of Greeks; also Chiṭ 'in which everything is stored up, collected', (chi, to gather); also Samvit, that 'all-pervading Consciousness, Awareness', (viḍ, to know), which is Changeless Eternal Witness, knower of all past, present, future. Human knowledge is only successive manifestation of what is ever-present in the Eternal Now of Omniscience. We can know and invent, only because all art and science is already ever-present in our Self. We borrow and bring to light infinitesimal portions of it in succession. Source of all true knowledge being such, quintessence of religion of Works, which is inseparable consequence of religion of Devotion and of Illumination, is:

1 Modern science, with its marvels of radio-gram, television, rays of light perpetually conveying pictures of every momentary state to ever greater and greater distances, turning past into future and future into past and both into present, supplies commentary on the ancient words.

Ashraf-ul-îmâni un yamanak an-naso, wa afzal-ul-Islâmi un yaslâm an-naso mil-lessaneka wa yağeka.

(Q.)

(Noblest religion this—That others may
Feel safe from thee; the loftiest Islâm—
That all may feel safe from thy tongue and hands.)

“Perfect love casteth out fear.” (B.)

Yah daṭvâ sarva-bhūtēbhyah, pra-vrajaṭi, abhayam, grhât,
Yasmâṭ, ânu api bhūṭānām,
ďvijâṭ na ut-padyâṭē bhayam,
Kuṭâsh-chana bhayam na aṣṭi
ţasya vai Brahma-vādinaî. (Mamu, vi, 39-40.)

Yasmâṭ na ud-vijâṭē lokah,
lokâṭ na ud-vijâṭē cha yah,
Harsh-âmarsha-bhay-ôd-végaih
mukṭah yah sah cha Mê priyah. (G.)
(Who giveth up the world, taking the vow,
That he will cause no fear to any one,
Nothing can cause fear to him any more;
All glorious worlds stand open unto him:
Who causes no disquiet to the world,
Nor is himself perturbèd by the world,
Who has won real Freedom, by being free
Of all excitements and disturbances
Of proud elations, fears, intolerances,
—Yea, such an one is ever dear to Me !) ¹

Namāzē zāhidān qaḍḍ o sujūḍ aṣṭ,
Namāzē āšiqān ṭark-é-wujūḍ aṣṭ. (S.)

(The formal prayer is—sitting up and down;
The real—our own egoism to drown.)

"And when thou prayest, thou shalt not be as the hypocrites are; for they love to pray standing in the synagogues and in the corners of the streets, that they may be seen of men . . . When ye pray, use not vain repetitions, as the heathens do, for they think that they shall be heard for their much a speaking . . .

¹ The Book of the Dead, chief available sacred writing of the dead religion of ancient Egypt, contains directions for the soul, when it appears before the Judge of the Dead. It should be able to say: "I have made no one weep". A grand claim; but can any soul make it? The words, 'by any wrong action of mine', are to be understood in any case. Otherwise no judge could ever punish a criminal, particularly if the latter has relatives or friends who love and will weep for him.
Enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Farher which is in secret." (B.)

"Circumcision is nothing, and uncircumcision is nothing; but the keeping of the commandments of God" (is everything). (B.)

Ḏilā! ṭawāf-i-ḏilān kun, ke Kā'ba-ē-makhfi-st, Ke ān Kḥalil binā karḍ, wa ān Khuḍā kḥuḍ sākhṭ! (S.)

(O! circumambulate thy-Self, my heart!
Thou art the secret Kā'ba! yea, thou art!
That outer Kā'ba Abraham designed,
Thou wast created by High God’s own Mind!)

Hajj che bāšahad? Ze khuḍ safar kardan.
Bā kujā? Jānibé Hidāyaṭ-kār. (S.)

(What is true Pilgrimage? To run away
From the small self. And travel whitherward?
To the Great Self, whence all true guidance comes.)

Na hi am-mayāni ṭīṛṭhāni,
na ḍēvāh mṛṭ-shilā-mayāh;
Ṭē punanṭi uru-kālēna,
ḍarshanāṭ ēva sāḍhavah. (Bḥāg.)

(Sanctums are not made of waters,
Nor gods of wood, clay, or stone;
Very long they take to cleanse thee;
Saintly heart is God’s own throne.
See the saints, and they will lead thee
To the Blissful Self, thine own.)
Aṭṭā hi Aṭṭano nāṭho, ko hi nāṭho paro siyā?
Aṭṭanāhi su-ḍantaṇēna nāṭham labhaṭi ḍullabham.

(The Self is the protector of the self.
Who else than Self can be the Lord of self?
Who has encompassed and achieved him-Self, Has gained That than which there's no higher gain.)

Ava-jānanṭi Mām mūdhāḥ, mānushīṁ tānum āshriṭam,
Param bhāvam ajānanṭah
Mama bhūṭa-Mah-Ēshvaram. (G.)

(Men slight Me, hidden in the human frame,
Thinking, benighted, I must be far off, Unwitting of Me as the Lord in all.)

Uḍḍharēṭ Āṭmanā āṭmānām
na āṭmānām ava-sāḍayēṭ;
Āṭmā ēva ḍēvaṭāḥ sarvāḥ,
sarvam Āṭmanī ava-sthitam. (G. and M.)

(Uplift thy smaller self by the Great Self,
And do not drag the High down to the low.
The Self is all the gods, all's in the Self.)

Āṭṭa-ḍipā vi-haraṭha,
Āṭṭa-saraṇā, an-aṇṇa-saraṇā,
Vyaya-ḍhammā sankhārā,
Ap-pamāḍēna sampāḍēṭha.

(Buddha's last words.)
(Be to your-Self the one and only Light;
Be to your-Self the one and only Refuge;
Seek not for help from other-than-your-Self;
All composites, all made-up things, are transient;
Remembering this, find watchfully th' Immortal.)

Yā nishā sarva-bhūtānām
ṭasyām jāgarṭi sam-yamī,
Yasyām jāgraṭi bhūtānī
sā nishā pashyaṭāḥ munēḥ. (G.)

(That which is night for others, therein wake
The careful; while that which is day for all
Is night for him who sees the Inner world.)

Har ke bēḍār astū ḍar khwāb-ṭar,
Hasṭ bēḍārī-ṣh az khwāb-ash baṭar;
Har ke ḍar khwāb-ast bēḍārī-ṣh beh,
Hasṭ ghaslaṭ a'yn hushyārī-ṣh beh,
Mahramē in hosh juz bōhosh n-īṣṭ,
Mar zabān rā mushtārī juz gosh n-īṣṭ. (Rūmī.)

(Who seems awake now, he is in deep dream,
And he who seems asleep doth truly wake.
The true sleep's better than such wakefulness.
Only th' Unconscious knows this Consciousness;
The tongue's speech but the speechless ear can guess.)

Sālahā ḍil ṭalabē jām-i-Jam az mā mī karḍ,
Un-che khud ḍāshṭ ze bēgānah ṭamannā mī karḍ. (S.)
(Long years my heart for Jamshëd’s wondrous Grail,
That mirrors all, begged others—all in vain;
And then at last it found that what it hoped To gain from others, it-Self did contain!)

Bhūtānām prāṇinah shrēshtāh, prāṇinām buḍḍhī-jīvinah,
Kṛṣṭa-buḍḍhīshu kartārah,
kartṛshu Brahma-vēḍinah. (M.)

Na Mō, Pārtha!, aṣṭi kartavyam
trishu lokēshu kinchana,
Na an-av-āptam av-āptavyam,
varṭē ēva cha karmanī. (G.)

(Breathers of air are higher ’mongst living things;
’Mongst them, they that live by intelligence;
’Mongst them, again, they who have seen the Self;
Highest are they who act accordingly.
Naught have I left to do in all the worlds,

Legend says that Jamshëd, emperor of Irān, had a wonderful bowl, which showed to him whatever was happening, at the time he looked at it, in any part of the earth. A simple explanation is that it was a ‘globe’ (-map) of the earth. A more wonderful explanation is that it was some sort of instrument like the modern ‘tele-vision’ (radio) contrivance. A still more marvellous theory is that it was a ‘mystical’, super-sensitive, surface of specially prepared material, which automatically reflected all that was going on anywhere on earth. See The Mahatma Letters, pp. 455-56.
Nor is there aught which I have not attained,
Yet am I working for the world alway.)

Kasó marđé ťamâm asţ az ťamâmi
Kunaḍ bā kẖwājāgi kāre gẖulāmi. (S.)

(He is the perfect man who, being lord,
Can still to serve the lowliest afford.)

Afzal-ul-ashghāl khidmaṭ-ul-unnās. (H.)

(Finest of orisons—Service of Man.)

All religions put us on our guard against deceiving ourselves into indolence or carelessness or self-indulgence in vice, under cover of a false self-surrender to God, and of the pretence that whatever we do, even obviously immoral or evil, in done under impulsion from God; that we are helpless puppets, and ‘therefore’ cannot be held to punishment. In this ‘therefore’ is the great fallacy. The true ‘therefore’ runs thus: Since you regard yourself as helpless to avoid doing of evil, ‘therefore’ you must regard yourself as helpless also to avoid receiving of punishment. Causes and effects must be equated.
Since we feel our-self able to act either one way or the other, at will, therefore we should feel will-ing to bear consequences also, of either.

“Take no thought for the morrow (but) whatsoever (duty) thy hand findeth to do, do it with all thy might.” (B.)
Iśhvarah sarva-bhūtānām hrdd-ṛēšē, Arjuna l, ṭīsthaṭi, Bhrāmayan sarva-bhūtāṇī
yantr-ārūdhāṇī Māyayā.
Mā karma-phala-hēṭūḥ bhūḥ
mā ṭē sangah āṣṭu a-karmaṇī. (G.)

(God sits within the heart of every one,
Twirling all by His Magic, round and round,
As if bound firmly to a vast machine;
Yet thou must not avoid a single duty;
Only the wish for fruit must thou avoid.)

Qurān holds same language:
Qulūb-ul-khalāyaq lī ḡābe ir-Rahmān. (Q.)

(The hearts of living creatures are all fixed Upon the fingers of Almighty God.)

Yet ordained duties must not be neglected.
Al sayyo minni w-al ḍītmāmo min Allah. (H.)
(Effort is mine, to grant success is God’s.)

Ḍāryā ba wujūd-e khwēsh maujē ḍāraḍ,
Kḥas pīṇḍāraḍ ke kashā-kash bā ŭ-st. (S.)
(The ocean heaves in surges of its being,
And the vast billows toss the straw about—
The straw thinks it is heaving up the waves !)

Prakṛṭēh kriya-māṇāṇī
guṇaiḥ karmāṇī sarvashah,
Aham-kāra-vimūdh-ātmā
kartā aham iti manyaṭē. (G.)

(Nature is operating everywhere,
Her forces cause all motions of the world,
But man, deluded by false ego-ism,
Imagines, 'I am doing all these things'.)

Kār-kun ḍar kār-gah bāshaḍ nihān,
Ṭū bi-rau ḍar kārgah bīn-ash ayān,
Kār-sāz-ē mā ḍurūn-ē kār-e mā,
Fikr-i mā ḍar kār-e mā azār-e mā. (S.)

(The Moving Force is hid in the machine,
Yet canst thou see Him working plain to view;
Thou the machine and He the moving force.
He is the guiding motive of 'my' work,
'My' worry o'er 'my' work is 'my' disease.)

Nahi kash-chiṭ kshanam api jātu tishthaṭi a-karma-kṛt.
Kāryaṭē hi-avashah karma
sarvah Prakṛti-jaih guṇaih.
Niyaṭam kuru karma tvam...
mukta-sangah sam-āchāra,
Nimiṭṭa-māṭram (bhūtvā cha)...
Param āpnoṭi pūrushah. (G.)

(None can stay still a moment actionless;
Nature drives all resistlessly to act;
Thy fixed duty do unfailingly,
But with detachment, knowing that thou art
But instrument; and so shalt thou attain
The One and Only Doer of all deeds.)

All religions tell us that God, Universal Self, is the one True, Beautiful, Good. We know the True, the Real, that which is; we desire the Beautiful, the Lovely; we do the Good, the Right. Great Self al-One is, is known to be veriest Real, utter-most True; that Self al-One is most desired, best Be-lov-ed, Supremely Beautiful; that Self al-One,
all-pervading, all-uniting, is final cause, motive, source, of all and any doing, any activity, that is benevolent, beneficent, wholly Good. (It is also the opposite of these). Self is Saṭyaṃ, lā mau-jūḍah illā Hū, ‘nothing else than It Is’; It is Priyām, lā maqsūḍah illā hū, ‘nothing else than
It is Be-lov-ed’; It is Hiṭam, lā mābūḍah illā
Hū, ‘nothing else than It is Good and to-be-Served’.

Thus may we see that all religions are in essence exactly the same; and that that

Mystic, Gnostic,
Yoga or Suluk,
Disciplines.

essence comes from God, and is intended, in all religions, to lead back to God by the same processes of Yoga or Sulāk. Seeds of such ‘mystic’, spiritual and 1 See pp. 38,'9, 351, 704, and 324, supra. That the Self ‘posits’, ideates, carries within It-Self, the ‘oppossites’ of these glories also, is only to make these shine the brighter, through contrast, by inescapable Law of Duality.

psychical, eight-fold exercise are sown in sanḍhyopāsana, namās, prayer, and its accompaniments. These are: yama, niyama, (ṭapas, chiṭṭa-prasāḍana, chiṭṭa-pari-karma), āsana, prāṇāyāma, pratyāhāra, dhyāna, dhāraṇā, (nirvikalpa or sa-vikalpa, nir-bīja or sa-bīja) samā-ḍhi; i.e., tahlžibun-nafs, tasfiya-i-nil (nafs-kushī, ṁarḥez, ṁārsāī, riyaṣat, tanqiya-i-ḥalb, zikr, fikr), mujāhidā (ashghāl), habs-i-dam, murāqibā, mukāshifā (khāli-uz-zehn etc.) mushāhidā (hāl, diḍār, wājd, muā’yinā); i.e., vows of abstinences, and of observances, restraint of limbs, control of breath, abstraction of mind from senses, concentration, contemplation, absorption (rapt trance, ecstacy, beatific vision), respectively.¹

¹Ch’ān and Zen are, respectively, names of dhyāna, meditation, in Chinese and Japanese Buddhism. They are probably the same word, (or also ānā), with pronunciation modified. Yoga is aḥt-āṅga, has eight parts, steps, stages.

To each name of God, ism, nāma, corresponds one bhāva, khaṭrā, emotion, mood, force. Dwelling on a name, by means of japa, zikr, litany, opens up a whole world wherein that particular form of His Energy or aspect of His Nature, which is indicated by that name, is predominant.

Taj-japah taḍ-artha-bhāvanam; ... Yathā taḍ-vishayā māṭhīḥ; ... Yaḍ ichchhaṭī taḍ bhavaṭi. (Yoga Sutra; Bh.; U.)

(To dwell upon a name is but to dwell
Upon the meaning; and a man becomes
What he dwells on and wishes; mind is man.)
All religions finally declare that He is all, Hama Ū-st, Sarvam khalu idam Brahma, 'All is God, the Universe is I'; from which it follows, in all religions, that since Man is in essence God, service of fellow-men is service of God.

"In as much as ye have done it unto the least of these, ye have done it unto Me." (B.)

Prāyashah loka-tāpēna
ṭapyantē sādhavah janāh
Yena kēna prakārēṇa,
yasya kasya api jaṇṭunah, Sanṭosham janayēd dhīmān;
ṭat ēva Ishvara-pūjanam;
Param ārādhanam ṭat hi
Purushasya akhil-Āṭmanah. (Bh.)

(Give joy to any living thing—ye give Service and worship to the Life of God.
The good feel all the distress of the world
To be their own distress; this is best service
Of Him who is the Soul of all the world.)

Gar taṇḍalī kḥās khwāhī, sūraṭe insān bi bin,
Zāṭ-i-Haq rā āshkārā andarūn khandaṇ bi bin. (S.)

Aṭha khalu kraṭu-mayah purushah. (Chh. U., 3. 14. 1.)

Kraṭuḥ, asuh, kāmāḥ, vashah, iṭi. (Aṭ. U., 5. 2.)

(Will is the man; will, élan vital [asuh] too.)

Desire, and Wish [vashah], all these words mean the same. See pp. 115-'6 supra; also 268-'70 and 468-'70.
(Wouldst thou behold God wholly manifest?
Look at thy brother's kindly face awhile!
Wouldst see Divinity at its sweet best?
Then call forth on that brother's face a smile!

Shakle-Insān men Khudā ṭhā,
mujhe mālūm na ṭhā;
Chānd bāḍal men chhipā ṭhā,
mujhe mālūm na ṭhā. (S.)

(Behind the mask of every human face
He hid, God, very God—I knew it not!
The Glory of the perfect moon was screened Behind the fleeting clouds—I saw it not!)

Srṣhtvā purāṇi viviḍhāni Ajayā Āṭma-shakṭyā,
Vṛkṣān, sarīsṛpa-pashūn, khaga-damsha-matsyān,
Ṭaiḥ ṭaiḥ a-ṭuṣṭa-hṛdayah, manujam viḍhāya,
Brahm-āvaboḍha-dhishaṇam, muḍam āpa Dévah.

(Bh.)

(House after house did God make for Himself,
Mineral, plant, insect, fish, reptile, and bird,
And mammal too. But yet was He not pleased.
At last he made Himself the form of Man,
Wherein He knew Himself, the Self of all,
And then the Lord of All was satisfied.)

Gauhar-é juz khud-śhināsī
n-ist dar bahr-é wujūd;
Mā ba girḍ-é khwēsh mī
gardām chūn girḍāb-ha. (S.)
(Like whirlpools round our-self we whirl
    In incessant strife;
Self-knowledge is the only pearl
    In the sea of life.)

Dāryā ṭan aṣṭ, wa ā'il saḍaf,
    wa Haq ḍar ā ḍur aṣṭ;
Ziū bahr har ke ḍur baḍar
    āraḍ bahāḍur aṣṭ. (S.)

(This body is the sea, the heart therein
The pearl-containing shell, the priceless pearl
Is God Him-Self; he who can dive down deep
And find that pearl—a hero true is he.)

Lab bi band o chashm band o gosh band,
Gar na bīnī rūy-e-Haq, bar mā bi khand. (S).

(Shut lips and eyes and ears completely; then
If thou see not the face of Truth, of God,
Of the Great Mystery of thine own Self,
Then tell me that I said what was not true.
Shut off the noises of the outer world,
And seek Him in the silence of your hearts,
And ye will find Him and commune with Him.)

Sva-vishay-ā-sam-pra-yogé chiṭṭasya Sva-rūp-ānu-kārah iva indriyānām prāty-āhārah... Kaivalyam sva-rūpa-praṭishṭhā vā Chiṭṭi-shaktih... Yogah chiṭṭa-vṛti-nirodhaḥ... Taḍā Drashtuh Sva-rūpē ava-sthānam. (Yoga-Sūtra.)
(When all the senses are withdrawn away
From all their outer objects, then the mind
Behind them all doth turn upon it-Self,
And takes the form of Self. Or, rather, say,
The Self itself, when movements of the mind
Are hushed, stilled utterly, beholds It-Self,
Feels Its own Sole and On(e)ly Being, wherein Nor space, nor time, nor any motion is,
And in at-one-ment with It-Self It rests.)

Siṭam aṣṭ gar hawas-aṭ kashaḍ,
Ke ba sair-i-sarw-o-saman ḍar ā!
Ṭū ze ḡuncha kam na ḍamīḍa-i,
Ḍar-e-dīl kushā, ba chaman ḍar ā,
Pay-ē nāfa-hā-e ḍamīḍa-bū,
Ma pasanḍ zahmaṭ-i-just-o-jā,
Ba ḍhayāl-e halqa-e zulf-i Ū,
Girah-ē khur o ba Khuṭan ḍar ā! (S.)

(Calamity it is if these low forms
Of appetite should draw thee on to roam
Amidst these outer flow'rs and fruits of earth!
Thyself art finer flow'r-and-fruit, in one,
Than any thou canst find among all these!
Do but the door-leaves of thy heart push open,
And then behold the wondrous park within!
Why undergo the worries of the chase
After the musk-deer, when the very Fount
Of Fragrance, the High Mountain where is born
The musk deer, is within thee, all en-wrap't
In every one of all the countless curls
Of every cycle of His Being, Thy Being!

1 Cf. Rhodes' poem on p. 619 supra. Khuţan is Chinese-Tatár name of those flower-covered and snow-covered mountains on which musk-deer are found.
CHAPTER V

THE ONE WAY TO PEACE ON EARTH AND GOOD WILL AMONG MEN

The one purpose of Religion (legere, to bind) is to bind the hearts of human beings to each other and to God. Realisation of Self in all as God in all, and consequent service of all as service of God, is perfection and completion of Religion.

"Love God (thy Self) with all thy heart and love thy neighbour as thy-Self." (B.)

But, laws of duality, polarity, ambivalence, and of cyclic swing between two opposite extremes, inherently condition manifestation of the One in the Many, Ėka in An-ēka, Wahdat in Kasrat.\(^1\) Perversity becomes inseparable from Diversity; Egoism and Error become necessary to throw into relief Universalism and Truth; Sorrow, Joy; Hate, Love; proud Satan, meek son of God; Ahrimān,

\(^1\) Wahdat ēdar sat, Kasrat-ēdar-sifat! Ėka-ṭā in Parama-Ṭaṭṭva, Supreme Saṭ, One Vishēshya, Dharmī; An-ēka-ṭā, Nānā-ṭva, Bahu-ṭva, in Guna-s; Vishēsha-s, Dharma-s; Unity in Essence, Multiplicity in Attributes.
Spiṭama; Daityas, Devas; Asuras, Suras; Sinners, Saints; Titans, Gods; Iblīs, Malāyak; Māra, Buḍḍha; Death, Life; Other-than-Self (Iṣṭa ṛa, Ghair, Not-self), Self (Ātma, Svā, Anā). Therefore Religion also falls from its high estate, becomes utterly perverted away from essentials into non-essentials, and then into gross and cruel superstitions; separates hearts of men instead of uniting them; and instigates mutual torture and murder instead of peace on earth and good-will among men. It does so, for a time, to rise again, by re-action, re-pen-tance, re-generation, re-formation, to a higher station. Paradise is 'lost', in order that it may be 'regained' with fuller and firmer appreciation. Adam falls into sin, āsāri, banḍha, prison-house of fleshly matter, sin and fetters of limiting satanic ego-ism, carnal lust, pride, khudī, ahām-kāra, damnation, in order to rise again, through self-crucifixion, to salvation, nājāt, mokṣha, deliverance, restoration, sol-ution and dissol-ution into Ab-sol-ute God, ab-solv-ed from all limitations, Fanā-f-Illāh, Brahma-nirvāna, annihilation into God; which is also, at the same time, Baqa-f-Illāh, 'remaining evermore in God', limitless divine universalism and loving tenderness, and Peace beyond all loves and hates.

Within purview of available history, Medieval Ages, in east and west alike, have been full of religious conflicts. Wars between Christians and Muslims, during and after Crusades, and doings of the triple Inquisition, have been particularly horrible. Europe has now, for some time, freed itself from entanglements of Catholic-Protestant religious strife. But scarcely quite, yet; and mostly nominally.¹ And in the whole of Europe, the evil spirit has changed its form from communal to even worse politico-economic strife. The fires of hate, burning underneath this, are still same as of old. Outer manifestation has taken on the shape of a conflict between excessively avaricious, ruthless, and sensuous individualism masquerading as patriotic nationalism, on one hand; and, on another, a communism or socialism which, wishing to share-and-share-alike, is truly spiritual and religious at bottom, but is so, very sub-consciously and is groping in the dark, and making many experiments and grievous mistakes; because it is looking in a wrong direction and not finding the secret of true social organisation; because it does not realise that politics is rooted in economics, economics in ‘domestics’, ‘domestics’ in psycho-physics, and that in metaphysics, which, in its fullness, is nothing else than Spiritual Religion, Spiritual Science of the Infinite, which includes, as parts, all sciences of all finites.

¹ Breaking away of Irish Free State from Britain, in 1921-1922, was largely due to same religious conflicts.
But in India, religious and secular, communal and politico-economic, conflicts and problems continue to be inseparably interwoven. It is perhaps India’s destiny to either perish or provide one solution for both at once. Asia has given birth to all the great living religions. East and West, ancient and modern, have met here in a special way. First All-Asia Education Conference took place in Banaras, in India, in December-January, 1930-1931. India stands in the middle of Asia. Look at a map. She stretches out one arm to embrace Buddhist-Taoist-Confucian-Shintoist Burma, China, Japan; another, to embrace Islāmic Afghānistān, Persia, Turkey, Arabia, Egypt, Africa, and also Hebrew and Christian Palestine and Europe; and she bears Buddhāhist Thibet and Islāmic Türkistān on her two shoulders. Bulk of now very small Pārsi population of the world, following Zoroastrian faith, has had its home in south-west of this country for nearly thirteen centuries; also, it is undisputed that Ġāthās of Zoroaster are a branch of Vēda, written in what may be regarded as another form of Vēdic Sanskrit. There is a very remarkable colony of Indian Jews too, numbering some thousands of souls, in Cochin, in south. Tradition says that St. Thomas, one of Jesus Christ’s twelve apostles, came and planted seed of Christianity on India’s south-east coast, shortly after Christ's ascension; and Christian community of India numbers some seven millions today. Hindus, Jainas, Sikhs, barring a comparative handful of emigrants, have no other home than India; which is Motherland to over seventy million Muslims also; besides being birthplace of Budhism and containing all the first and earliest sacred places of that religion. Confucianism, Lao-tseism, and Shin- toism have practically all merged into an amalgam with Budhism. Thus are all living religions of

At Sār-nāth, where Buddha preached his first sermon, 2500 years ago, in Banaras, centre of Vedism, a great new temple of Buddha, has been built, by Dharmapāla (of Ceylon), in third decade of 20th cen. A.C., close to old Ashokan stūpa and ruins. It has been adorned with mural paintings by Japanese painters. Another great temple has been built by a Chinese benefactor, in fourth decade. Dharma-shālās, free rest-houses and guest-houses, have been and are being built by Hindu and Burmese donors. A colony of Buddhist bhikshus and students is growing up. Also, in Banaras, besides many old Hindu temples, there are many Muslim mosques, a number of Jaina temples, Christian churches, and Sikh sanghaṣ.

A fine temple, dedicated to Bhāraṭa Māṭā, 'Mother India', represented by a Relief Map of India in white marble, 30 feet by 30 feet, has also been builded in this same town, by late Shri Shiva Prasād Gupta, who gave large donations to many useful public institutions. It was consecrated and opened by Mahātmā Gāndhi in 1936, in presence of representatives of all religions now nourished by Mother India. That map is spread on the floor, and is composed of 900 pieces of hard marble from Makrānā mines of Rājpuṭānā; each the world gathered in this land. Therefore India's mission seems to be to inaugurate a new Re-form, a Re-incarnation, of the Eternal Universal Religion, in shape of Scientific Religion. In that Religion, Consciousness, Self-Consciousness, Principle of the Conscious and the Unconscious (as two aspects of Self), is the common meeting-ground, nay, the one loved and loving parent, of both Science and Religion. These can be nothing else than two halves, or, better, only two aspects, of same One Whole Truth.

This is an elemental fact which has to be taken to heart, especially by Hindus and Muslims in India.

Krṣhṇa has said:
Mama vartma anu-varṭanṭe
manushyāḥ, Pārṣṭha l, sarvashah. (G.)
(The roads men follow—they all lead to Me,
At last; though some are thorny and some fair.)

piece one foot cube; mountains, rivers, lakes, ocean-depths, etc., all to scale (which differs for mountains and ocean-depths). It was chiselled out by local stone-masons under constant supervision and direction of late Shri Durgā Prasad, a person of many gifts and very versatile talents, musician, mechanician, maker of life-like singing-birds and other toys, painter, numismatist, and epigraphist; and very public-spirited withal. He helped to build up, and worked for many years as honorary Joint Secretary of, Central Hindu College of Banaras; and designed the fine buildings, in stone, of C.H.C. Library in 1906, and of Bhārata Māṭa Temple in 1936.
Muhammad has said:

\[\text{Aṭ-ṭurku il Allāhi kan nufūsu bani Ādama. (H.)}\]
(There are as many roads to God as souls.)

"There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, neither male nor female, for ye are all one in Christ Jesus." (B., Paul.)

\[\text{(Na varṇāh, na varṇ-āshram-āchāra-ḍharmāh, \ldots \ Tāḍ Ėkah ava-shishtah Shivah Kēvalah Aham. (SHANKAR-ĀCHĀRYA.)}\]
(The soul hath no caste, neither any creed; It is one with the Universal Life.)

\[\text{Na ēva stṛi na pumān,ēshah, na cha ēva ayam na-pumsakah; \ldots \ Yaṭ yaṭ sharīram ā-ḍaṭṭē ṭena ṭena sah yuyyaṭē. (Śvēṭa. U.)}\]
(Not female, male, or neuter is the soul; Whate'er the body that it putteth on, For the time be-ing it becometh that.)

Hakim Sanāī says:

\[\text{Rūḥ bā a'qr o īlm ḍānaḍ zīst, \ldots \ Rūḥ rā Pārsī wa Tāzī n-īst. (S.)}\]

Maulānā Rūm paraphrases him:

\[\text{Rūḥ bā a'qr āst o bā īlm āst, yār, \ldots \ Rūḥ rā bā Tāzī o Türkī che kār. (S.)}\]

The reverence in which Maulānā Jālal-ud-dīn Rūmī is held among Muslims, has been mentioned before, (on p. 68), Another well-known saying about him is:
By a slight further paraphrase, we may read:
Rūh rā bā Hindū o Muslim che kār.
(Persian or Turk or Arab are not known,
Or Hindū, Christian, Muslim, to the soul;
Wisdom and virtuous deed make the soul’s life,
Not racial names and not communal strife.)

Religion should be worn as a winning smile, as a beautiful ornament, out of the gladness of one’s own heart, to gladden hearts of all others who behold it; not as a repelling frown, or as menacing weapons, out of fear and cruelty, and stimulating fear and cruelty all round. It should be worn principally in heart, as philanthropic love and piety; not flaunted like signboards and labels, upon face and forehead, in separative ways of wearing hair on head or lip or chin, or as differentiating paints or badges or clothes, for self-display and religion-advertisement, with purpose to emphasise separateness.

Masnavī-ē Maulavi-ē Ma’navī
Hašt Qur-ān dar zabānē Pahlavi,
(The Masnavi of the great Maulavi,
Full of profoundest truths, of greatest value,
Is the Qurān itself in Pahlavi.)

Masnavi is name of Maulānā’s chief work. Pahlavi is older name of Persian language, now called Fārsī, in India. A famous Indian poet, (in Urdu and Persian), late Sir Muhammad Iqbal, has also written of Maulānā:
Ke ū ba harf-e Pahlavi Qurān navishṭ.
(He wrote the Qurān in the Persian tongue.)
Humanity, insāniyat, manushya-ṭā—nay, divinity—is stamped by Nature, God’s Nature, on face of every human new-born infant; not any mark to show that it is Hindu or Muslim, Pārsī, Christian, or Jew. Such distinctive marks are artificially created by men themselves afterwards. They may have had their uses in special times and places and circumstances. To continue to insist upon them today, is disastrous short-sightedness.

Muhammad says:
Kulla mauḍīn yulaḍu alā fitrat-ul-Islām. (H.)
(Yea, every child is born acknowledging, ‘Making submission’ unto, the One God.)

Vyāsa says:
Brahmaṇā pūrva-sṛṣhtam hi sarvam Brāhmaṁ iḍam jagat. (Mbh.)
(Since Brahma has created all this world,
All beings are His children obviously.)

Inn-Allāha khalaqa Ādama alā sūraṭihī.
Fa innahū alā sūraṭihī.

Khalaq al insāna alā sūraṭ-ir-Rahmān. (H.)

These three sentences of Hadis are almost literal translations of the Biblical saying,

1 See p. 73 supra. It is a ‘curious coincidence’ that that Qurānic Sālm, Biblical ‘Psalm’, and Vedic Sāma, have similar sound and meaning.
"God created man in His own image." (B.)

Jivah Brahma éva na aparah. (U.)
(The individual soul is nothing else
In essence than the Universal Soul.)

Fiṭraṭ Allāh illāṭi faṭar annāsa alaiha. (Q.)
(On God's own nature has been moulded man's.)

A nobly worded remonstrance, in Hindustānī verse, embodying some deep truths common to all religions, has been addressed by a recent Musalmān poet and lover of humanity, to all concerned, with special reference to the communal riots that have been breaking out every now and then between Hindus and Musalmans in India, during last few decades, and, latterly, much too frequently, because of special wholly artificial economico-political misleading.

It should be given a place of honor here, as it should be given in the courses of every Indian (and now Pākistāni also) School and College. Chief cure for Politico-Economic Conflict is to teach to all, and to carry on in practice, the principles of Scientific Social Organisation, whereby all just appetites and interests of all can be satisfied. Chief remedy for Communal Strife is to teach the new generation that All Religions are One in Essentials, as the poem indicates in a few pregnant words:
Ya Ram kaho, ya Rahim kaho;
Donon ki gharaz Allah se hai;
Ya Ishq kaho, ya Prema kaho,
Maqlab to Usi ki chah se hai;
Ya Dharma kaho, ya Din kaho,
Maqsaad to Usi ki rah se hai;
Ya Slik ho, ya Yog ho,
Mansha to dil agah se hai.

Kyon ladta hai, mura kh bande!,
Yah teri kham-khayali hai,
Hai ped ki jad to Ek Wah,
Har mazhab ek ek dalie hai.
Banwao Shivala yah Masji,
Hai int wah, chuna hai wahi,
Memar wahi, mazdur wahi,
Mitti hai wahi, gara hai wahi.

Tabir ka jo kuch maqlab hai,
Naus kah bi mansha hai wahi.
Yah jinko namazain kahte hain,
Hai unke liye pujai hi wahi.

Phir ladne se kya hasil hai!
Zi-fahm ho tum, nadin nahin!
Jo bhai pe daudem ghurra kar
Wah ho sakte insan nahin!

Kyaa qatil wa gharaat, khaun-rezi—
Tairif yahie iman ki hai?
Kyaa apas mein lad kar marna—
Talim yahie Qur-ain ki hai?
Insāf karo, ṭafsīr yahi:
kyā Vēdaṅ kē farmān ki hai?
Kyā sach-much yah kẖūṁ-kẖwārī hi
ā'la kẖāslaṭ insān ki hai?
Ṭum aisē burē ā'māl pe apné
kuchh to Kẖudā sē sharm karo!
Paṭṭhar jo banā rakkhā ūm nēn,
is āl ko zarā ṭo narm karo!

(Say Rām, or say Rahīm, both mean but Him;
Say Prēm, or Ishq, both mean the Love of Him;
Say Ḍharm ʿ, or Ḍīn, both mean the Way to Him.
Yogi, or Sālik, both are pure Heart filled with Him;
God—the One Root; religions—each a shoot!
Why will ye fight, then, like the mindless brute!
Build mosque or temple—stone, brick, lime—the same;
Workmen and master-builder—all the same;
The a[zān] and the conch both call to Prayer,
Name it Namāz or Pūjā as ye please.
Why will ye fight! Has not God given ye mind!
Scarce e'en the animals are so purblind!
Murder and rapine—is this meant by Faith!
Qurān—does it teach you to loot, burn, slay;
Or does Vēda command you to do this!
Is this the noblest conduct in a man!
Brothers! soften your stony hearts, take shame
A little, and foul not His holy name!.)
NOTE.—All efforts, since 1920 a.c., of the best-intentioned leaders, of both Hindus and Muslims, failed to reconcile them; because they neglected the only means, if any, of allaying conflict, viz., diligently proving to them, by texts from their scriptures, that both religions are identical in essentials. All my efforts, during twenty-seven years after 1920, to induce them to try this way, went in vain. The two communities and their religions have been degenerating ever more and more, in practice, under the mis-leadership of fanatical mullas and pandits, helped by the short-sighted policy (divide et impera) of foreign governors. Their 1200 years old mutual hatred—now flaring up, and subsiding into embers, never dying out quite, culminated in the vivisection of India, by Muslim leaders, with help of the foreign Government, on 15th-16th August, 1947, into two or rather three parts, viz., India proper or Bhārata, and a western and an eastern Pakistan. See Preface to this fourth edition.
CHAPTER VI

EDUCATION AND EDUCATIONIST

Such is a brief, survey, of the vast subject of the Essential Unity of All Religions. Endeavour has been made here to place before reader only what seemed to be core of the whole subject. It is desirable that something should be said, at close, about its bearing on Education; as has been said at beginning.¹

Education is seed and root, civilization is flower and fruit. If cultivator sows good and wholesome seed, his community will reap sweet and wholesome fruit; if bitter and poisonous, then bitter and poisonous. Our cultivator, our culture-maker, is the teacher. That he may cultivate well and wisely, he should be a ‘Man of God,’ Brāhmaṇa, Maula-vī, ‘Divi-ine,’ Rabb-i. These characteristic words of four religions, all mean exactly the same, ‘Man of God, Brahma, Maulā, Deus, Rabb’. He should be a missionary of God; not a mercenary of Satan, opposite, opponent, Enemy, of God.

If educationists, priests, scientists, of Europe, its brāhmaṇas, maulavis, rabbis, divines, men of

¹ Pp. 37-'9 supra.
all learned professions, whose clear duty it was, had brought up younger generations along right and righteous lines, occasion would never have arisen for the two World-Wars. If after it had arisen, they had resolutely refused to surrender their souls and prostitute their learning, religion, science, law, to Satan-driven militarist-śrauta-s and mammonist-vāishyās of those countries; if they had acted as true bṛāhmaṇas; if they had concerted together and risen as one man, in their might of Spirit and of Science, against those false śrauta-s and false vāishyās; if they had proclaimed and led conscientious objection in all belligerent countries¹; then Satan would surely have been defeated, tremendous mischief would have been nipped in bud, earth saved from vast, sordid, senseless butchery, agony, devastation; which originated in whole-sale despiritualisation and demoralisation, by bad educators and false education, of great nations; and entailed world-wide misery, pauperisation, and, far worse, demoralisation.²

¹ There were honorable exceptions f.i., Mr. Bertrand Russell, scientist philosopher, in Britain. He became a conscientious objector and suffered the penalty of imprisonment for a while. There were others also, in other countries; some were even 'judicially murdered'; but their names are not so well known.

² Conscience, higher mind, better judgment, of scientist-bṛāhmaṇas of Europe is beginning to awake, too late. Famous Dr. Einstein took steps (in High ethical quality, fatherly heart, is far more needed in educator, also in legislator, administrator, head of every family, firm, business, industry, concern, department, institution, 1932), to start an anti-war association. (He is, since 1939, a fugitive and exile from home, because of anti-Jew drive in Germany and Austria). Prof. H. E. Armstrong wrote in Nature, with purpose of awakening scientists to a sense of their duty: "A century of science seems to have brought us to a wonderful understanding of things that do not matter, while telling us little that will help to fill our bellies and suffer one another with equanimity, let alone gladly and with Christian amity. . . . In future, the scientific worker, to be worthy of the name, must justify himself through social service, in the first instance." In other words, he must be a true b r a h m a n a; not only an intellectual and scientific lecturer and researcher, but also a spiritual, moral, domestic, civic, political, and economic guide, philosopher, and friend; or indeed, as a benevolent parent, to his pupils and his people, counselling them wisely for their good in all departments of their life. Prof. Crew of Edinburgh, in an address on 'Science and Society', (in Dec., 1931) said: "Science has been prostituted through man's greed . . . to serve his lusts. . . . The greatest problems of the day relate to spiritual as opposed to material adjustment. . . . In this world there is the knowledge and there is power to refashion society. But there is not the will to do so, and we have NO IDEAL toward which to aim. We know a little of the methods of supporting life . . . but not how to live, nor what to live for. . . . Science has become the servant of man's lust for power and is now the tool of the tyrant. We need to discover what is good for mankind and then see to it that the power that knowledge gives is used for that end. Knowledge without affection . . . has set the world alight in a blaze of hatred and misery.
where many are subordinate to one, than any amount of intellectual cleverness. A good heart will take itself and also others very far on right road, even without help of a very clever

... A new moral outlook is demanded. Whence will it come?" Prof. Crew does not say. It can come only from that One Scientific Universal Religion which is very Essence of Religions; which tells us 'WHAT IS GOOD FOR MANKIND', 'WHAT TO LIVE FOR', what is the 'IDEAL TOWARD WHICH TO AIM', what is the Meaning, Purpose, End and Aim of Life, and also tells us 'HOW TO LIVE', how scientific worker can 'justify himself through social service'. It does all this by means of its Scheme of Social Organisation. Why is righteous will absent? Because new generations are being born in lustful sensual materialistic carnal passion, not in loving spiritual affection; because they are being grievously mis-educated; because sources of life are poisoned. 'Moral Equivalent of War' is war against inner lower nature first, and outer Nature-forces next; Right Education would saturate Collective Mind of Human Race with this exceedingly Practical Truth.

Above text and foot-note were written in 1932. Since then, many peace-movements have been set afoot. A prominent one is the World-Fellowship of Faiths, which started work in Chicago, in 1933. "People of All Faiths, Races, and Countries (attended) ... seeking spiritual solutions for man's Present Problems—such as War, Persecution, Prejudice, Poverty-amidst-Plenty, (Un-employment), Antagonistic Nationalisms, Ignorance, Hatred, Fear." Theosophical Society was founded very much earlier, in 1875, in New York; with three unquestionably laudable objects: (1) "To form a nucleus of the Universal Brotherhood of Humanity, without distinction of race, creed, caste, colour, or sex; (2) to encourage the study of Comparative Religion, head. A clever head, directed by a bad heart, will mislead itself and others very soon into inferno; the cleverer, the sooner. It is much more important that education should build up a strong and good Philosophy, and Science; (3) to investigate unexplained laws of Nature, and the powers latent in man." These objects work towards same end, viz., World-Peace and World-Prosperity. T.S. has its head-quarters now at Adyar, Madras, in India; and branches in more than fifty countries. Parliaments of Religions have been held in important towns of several countries, since 1893, when the first was held in Chicago; also to promote Peace. The League of Nations was instituted in 1920, "to promote international Co-operation and achieve International Peace". Associations of scientists have been formed in several countries, which are now beginning to give attention directly to the 'human' aspect of science, i.e., bearing of science on corporate human life. 'Science has far outrun morals', is an idea which is frequently expressed in public writings. 'The International Council of Scientific Unions', which has a special 'Committee on Science and its Social Relations', has its headquarters in Delft, Holland.

ALL IN VAIN, so far. Scientists' awakening has come too late. More: it seems that even yet they do not realise that the greatest and most wonderful discoveries of physical science, merely, will not avail to stem the tide of evil, will only worsen its rush and violence, unless they first think out a TECHNIQUE FOR THE WORKING OF THE GOLDEN RULE, A COMPREHENSIVE SCHEME OF SOCIAL ORGANISATION, which would not only make it possible to apply, but would offer effective psychic inducement to every one to help in applying, those discoveries, for promotion of general welfare of all mankind, instead of welfare of any one nation, or any one class or group of persons in that nation.
character in the educand, than impart lots of information and develop mere intellectual cleverness or even talent. And this can be done much better by example than by precept; though precept also is necessary. Words of those who do not Every 'Great Power' began increasing its armaments more desperately, madly, after the first World War; talking of peace all the time. Over fifty-five million men were, in 1939, under arms, as standing armies and reserves, in the 'human' world. Expenditure on them, in 1938, was reported to have been just over thirty-five hundred million pounds. Out of this, share of the seven Great Powers, viz., (in the order of amounts, Russia, Germany, Britain, France, U.S.A. Japan, Italy, came to just under thirty-two hundred million pounds. Huge new loans were taken by the Governments of all. Every day brought the Great Horror, the Doom of Armageddon, nearer. Awful history of the world during second World War, and since its nominal endings, with atom-bombs, in Europe and in Asia, need not be recounted here.

If only this vast human energy of millions of men prepared for slaughter of combatants and butchery of non-combatants, and the energy of many more scores of millions, engaged in manufacturing munitions and small and huge implements for carrying on war by land, sea, and air: if all this vast human labor, represented by many thousand million pounds a year; if half or even a fourth of all this were spent on scientifically promoting general human welfare, instead of general massacre; whole surface of Earth could be made to bloom and blossom and fruit, like one vast corn-field and orchard, garden and park. Madness of 'original sin', Māyā, a-viḍyā, glamour, takabbur, hirs, blind greed and pride, lust and hate, prevents. Each 'Great Power' is themselves follow their own advice are not believed; because it is seen that they do not believe them themselves. True educationist, brahmaṇa, maulavi, 'divine', is he who possesses both vidyā and ṭapas, ilm and sohd, knowledge and self-denial. Wisdom is science plus philanthropy.

Consoling, ennobling, all-uniting, spiritual religion has everywhere degenerated into selfish, superstition-breeding, deceiving, dividing priestcraft; protective and promotive administration has become grabbing and tyrannising state-craft; benevolent adjudication has turned into rapacious lawyercraft; healing medication behaves as avaricious leechcraft; all-nourishing trade-and-commerce has been metamorphosed into all-ruining 'frenzied finance,' stock-jobbing, share-gambling, currency-juggling, debasing trying to increase its 'man-power,' by offering inducements to its people to 'increase and multiply'. What for? That there may be more 'fodder for cannon'! What more horrible blindness and Satan-worship can there be!

The Great Teachers and Lovers of Mankind cry in vain: 'Love one another'; 'Do unto each other as ye would be done unto.' Forces of Darkness have gained steadily on Forces of Light. Such vast armies cannot be supported by nations very long. Earth is groaning in agony under the intolerable burden, moral and material, of Hate-Fear and Economic Drain. The great Disarmament must come some day, either by a final mutual slaughter or by mutual agreement. Only a Divine Miracle of the most gigantic proportions, a Psychic Cataclysm, can now bring about disarmament by mutual agreement. May that Miracle happen!
demonetising and devaluating of current coin at governmental will, printing instead of minting money without any metal backing, utterly artificial forced inflating and deflating of prices, irrational 'rationing' and uncontrolled 'controlling', and consequent 'blackmarketing', combines, 'corners,' 'associations' and 'companies' for wholesale swindling, brazenly false 'puffing' and 'booming', reckless pennywise pound-foolish speculation-craft. Lifesweetening, life-creating, life-fostering conjugal domesticity has been converted into lust-craft. All-helping, all-loving, labor has become all-obstructing trade-unionism and strike-craft. All because all-guiding Education has itself become greatly misguided; because Educator has forgotten his true mission, gone astray, lost compelling moral force and spiritual power of ascetic self-denial; has begun to submit to militarist and capitalist, instead of directing and correcting them; has degraded his great function into herd-teaching, mechanical, bureaucratic, indirectly and not unoften directly cruel pedagogue-craft. A vicious circle has been set up. From bad seed, bad fruit; thence worse seed, worse fruit; until end in Armageddon.

Khisht-i-awwal gar nihad mě'mär kaj,
Tā Suraiyā mī rawād dīwār kaj. (Ṣādi.)
(Should the first bricks the mason lay awry, The wall shall rise awry, e'en to the sky.)
Whole life of the most civilised human communities today, is pervaded by excess of egoism, appurtenant individualistic desire for high and fast living, indulgence of lusts, and of unavoidably consequent hates. Modern Civilization has indeed become a veritable and most reckless 'Rake's Progress' in every department of life, individual, social, national, domestic, financial, economic, political. States have been piling up national debts and armaments, with an extravagant thriftlessness and utter disregard of consequences, which would be considered stark suicidal and homicidal madness in an individual. A more and more excessively large proportion of available human energy and labor is being forced into occupations which produce and distribute, not primal necessaries and comforts of life for all, but (1) luxuries, things of sport, pastime, amusement (often obscene), and sensuous enjoyment for the few; or even for many; and, far worse, (2) vast quantities of implements of war by land, sea, and air, whose one insane object is destruction of life, labor, and property. Yet no one can gainsay that the only 1 See pp. 293-294, supra. The 'six internal enemies,' when they go beyond all bounds, turn into the six main kinds of mania, respectively, eroto-, cido-, avaritio-(or klepto-), phobo-, megalo-, and zelo-mania. In mass-form, they become sensualism, militarism, capitalism, (mutual) terrorism, imperialism, nationalist diplomacy, respectively.

sane purpose of government is promotion and construction of life, labor, property, and production and distribution of necessaries, comforts, luxuries, for general welfare. Such is the awful waste, turmoil, agony, caused by statesmen of to-day, who think themselves so clever and so practical. ¹

But the Educationist-Scientist, careless of his duty, does nothing to check it. Instead, he truckles to Satan

¹ 'PRACTICALITY—FALSE AND TRUE'. Of many false ideals, mischievous catchwords, and ruinous ways of living, which have been created by western civilisation, (together with many great and good things also, undoubtedly, especially such applications of physical science as are really benevolent), few are more deceptive and dangerous than the catchwords 'practical' and
'practicality'.

Most of us are enamoured of these words and use them frequently, especially when it suits us, to describe ourselves as 'practical' and opponent as 'unpractical'.
Formerly, when Religion was in power, it used to be:
'My doxy is orthodoxy, your doxy is heterodoxy.' To-day when Politics is all-absorbing, all-devouring, it is: 'My view, my opinion, my suggestion, my scheme, is practical, yours is unpractical.' In 'other words, 'What suits me is practical, what suits you is unpractical'. Though we see daily that what was wholly unpractical, chimerical, yesterday, is very practical, nay, utterly familiar, to-day:
steam, gas, electricity, radio, aeroplane, submarine, Soviet Russia, Fascist Italy, Nazi Germany, Republic in India, etc. But 'by their fruits shall they be judged'.
Behold the results of the great 'practicality' of the very clever and very 'practical' statesmen and politicians of the west, in all main concerns of life, Religion, Education, Domesticity, Economics, Politics. Will makes practicality.
and his agents. 'Eat, drink, and be merry to-day—those few who can; tomorrow will take care of itself; why should the present generation stint itself for the sake of the next? Let us leave them debts instead

Spiritual Religion, of which Good Morals are fruit, has been 'practically' abolished from the life of 'advanced' nations, and 'Morals have been revolutionised', in various ways; and licensed Sensualism and Free Love, on one side, and Self-control and Family Life, on another, are at death-grips.

In Politics, 'practical' Legislatures, where not abolished, have become homes of rapacious personal and sectional selfishness, bitter quarrels, endless intrigues, smart self-display, clap-trap orations, instead of earnest philanthropic consultation for the good of all. Seeds of class war and civil war within each nation have been nourished by vicious, haphazard, short-sighted, hand-to-mouth legislation. Standing armies of the Powers, which totalled about twenty million men, costing about five hundred million pounds annually, before the World-Wars, 'the wars to end war', to-day, after those Butcheries of hundreds of millions of men, women, and children, and destruction of perhaps a million million pounds worth of human labor mis-spent on production of devilish war-material, and consequent mortgaging and enslaving, for long generations, of the labor of whole nations of weaker and poorer peoples—to-day, armies are larger in numbers and heavier in cost; and preparation for a third World-War is being talked of in 'high' official civil as well as military quarters; with U. S. A. and Britain on one side, and Soviet Russia on another, as leading opponents. Fangs, claws, beaks, talons, and sharks' teeth, for fighting and murdering on land, in air, in water, and hates, greeds, lusts, prides, fears, and distrusts, which are the motive power behind these weapons, are sharper and fiercer than ever. These of assets.' Such seem to be the current philosophy of life and moral atmosphere, with govern and pervade politics, economics, and 'domestics' of this gigantic Rake's Progress called violent and virulent egoistic passions are the real ultimate and most frightful psychical explosives. Physical explosives are only their creations.

In Economics, these 'practical' wise persons have brought about World-Bankruptcy after the World-Wars, and have raised armies of Un-employed to a total of some thirty (?) millions in the west, (those in the east, uncounted, being probably five times as many), side by side with above-mentioned armies of those Mis-employed in preparing for Devil's own infernal work of world-wide Butchery—all because they find that the old maxims, 'Honesty is the best Policy,' and 'No trading on Credit unbacked by equal Cash Deposit,' are no longer 'practical'; that 'Trading on reputation only, on Credit without Cash or Kind,' is much more 'practical'; and that such ideas as that of the best and wisest and genuinely philanthropic representatives of nations, consulting together and co-operating, to spend even a tenth of the vast sums now being spent annually on the Mis-employed and Un-employed, for settling these millions of the two kinds, gradually, year by year, on the immense unoccupied reclaimable and cultivable areas of Canada, Australia, South America, Africa, and thereby solving the tremendous problems of Disarmament and Unemployment at once, are 'unpractical' and 'impossibly idealistic'. It must be borne in mind that most of the modern problems are due, ultimately, to excessive populations, especially in the Old World.

In 'Domestics', western 'practicality' has so arranged matters that the number of divorces has, in some of the big towns of the west, come to be quite half that of the marriages, annually, and period between marriage and,
Western Civilisation—or, at least, of that class in it which has power in its hands, power of purse and of sword. Signs of reaction are, no doubt, appearing, here, there, everywhere. A vast unrest is shaking divorce is shortening down from years to months and even weeks. 'Morals have been revolutionised' by contraceptives; yet population is multiplying unmanageably, embittering struggle for bread, and making wars inevitable in absence of systematic colonisation. Percentage of births outside of wedlock is increasing immensely. So too is increasing the percentage of the insane and the venereally diseased. We have noted before, the insane rivalry, between national governments of the west, for increase of 'man-power'. All the while, that very un-common commodity, 'common sense', keeps crying, in vain: 'Cut your coat according to your cloth', 'Balance your family budget', 'Live within your means', 'All Heads of the Great Families called Nations!', concert together rationally, to make your populations self-sufficient for necessaries, to keep them within the capacity of your respective lands, (or, of the total surface of the earth, co-operatively and scientifically managed), to feed and clothe and house'.

In Education, 'High and Fast Living', 'Thrilling Excitements of perpetual Rushing', 'Civilisation is the multiplication of wants and of means to satisfy them', is the ideal inculcated; in place of the 'unpractical' old 'goody-goody' 'Plain Living, High Thinking', and 'the peaceful Joys of Repose'. Science has outrun philanthropy by far. It is being prostituted to personal and national vices and hatreds; and is perfecting atom- and hydrogen-bombs which, rained by aeroplanes, will asphyxiate and destroy, in a few hours, whole of the vast popoulations of huge capitals like London, New York, Paris, Berlin, Moscow (as they did those of Nagasaki and Hiroshima). Vivisectonal experiments in hospitals, whole human world. In Russia, and now in China, too, a tremendous revolution has been effected. It cannot be wholly for good; nor wholly for bad; how far each, it is not yet possible to say.

on human infants and adults are now and then reported in the papers. The press has become extensive and intensive means, on a vast scale, of false propaganda, lying advertisements, and public deception, instead of enlightenment. The view of life, viz., that it is, and ought to be, an incessant struggle for existence, holds the field, and the opposite view, viz., that life is made possible only by alliance for existence, and by perpetual self-sacrifice of older generation for younger, (instead of leaving them vast national debts to repay or repudiate as they can), is vainly struggling to make itself seen and heard. Results are visible in all departments of life.

In Art and Recreation, 'meals, movies, motors,' the 'night-side' of huge towns, 'wine, women, wealth,' have become, and are becoming more and more, sole ends of life; finer and more delicate ethereal spiritual forms of enjoyment, and 'communion with Nature,' are being forgotten.

Such are the consequences, in its own home, of the cleverness of modern West, whose greatest 'practicality' is endeavour to maintain its 'glorious civilisation' by ruthless economic and political exploitation of weaker classes and peoples.

It may be that the condition of mankind was, on the whole, no better in the past, any time; or was even much worse, often; during the four or five thousand years of 'civilisation' of which the history is now known. It may be that present times are the best, at least in some important respects, that Humanity has known so far. But that is all the more reason why greater effort should be made, to combat and eradicate the great evils that Grave psychological defects of it have been mentioned before. Excess naturally defeats itself. But there is likely to be a worse Armageddon before reaction completes itself. And more. There is danger that when it has successfully asserted itself, humanity may swing round from one extreme to another; from autocratic and tyrannous despotism, through aristocratic feudalism and militarism, and are patent, with the help of Universal Scientific (1) Religion-Philosophy, and (2) Social Organisation founded in it.

Duty of publicists to-day is to be, not only nationalist, but also HUMANIST, and to think out and place before the public, diligently, balanced ideals, outlooks, ‘long’ views, comprehensive and consistent schemes, for social reorganisation and reconstruction. These should be based on HUMAN PSYCHOLOGY, and should deal with all main concerns of human life, individual and collective. They should enable the Peoples of the World to avoid deceptive catch-words, blind imitation, short-viewed haphazard temporising patchwork and opportunism; help them to find the Virtuous Golden Mean between the two Vicious Excesses and Extremes of eastern degeneracy and western non-re-generacy; show them how to avoid the evil and secure the good in each of the two, Ancient East and Modern West, to the utmost extent possible; and thereby prove that the action of Providence in bringing East and West together was not wholly a mistake, not a devil’s work but an angel’s. The only true Practicality is that which is based on a sound, far-sighted, comprehensive Theory, and constantly bears in mind, and strives to approximate, a high Ideal. All other patch-work and snatch-work ‘practicality’ is supremely unpractical.
plutocratic capitalism and mammonism, and misconceived and mishandled socialism and communism, back to mobocratic anarchism and the law of the jungle; and thence, over again to autocratic, ‘monarchic’, despotic rule of strongest jaw and maw, sharpest fang and claw, cunningest and most ruthless dictator-brain—the old, old, vicious circle and cycle of history. ‘Demo’-cracy is tending towards ‘demon’-cracy, as some one in the west has recently observed caustically; perhaps in Soviet Russia also; at least so some U.S.A. writers say, on professed first-hand knowledge.¹

¹ Signs are plain, at the close of 1954, that U.S.A. and Britain on one side and Russia on another, are preparing for a third World War; but neither desires to begin, for fear of atom- and hydrogen-bombs. Yet a War has been going on in Korea for some four years, which might, any moment, become a global conflagration. About middle of 1954, began a war between Chiang-Kai-Shek’s Nationalist China with Government seated in Formosa, and Red China of Mao, with U.S.A. and Britain helping Chiang and Russia helping Mao. India’s Prime Minister J. L. Nehru is endeavouring hard to make peace between all. Immense changes and disturbances, taking place in India since Partition, are also matter of current history; but here also, signs of better relations between Pakistan and India are beginning to appear.

Rail, steam-ship, aeroplane, radio, having abolished all artificial political boundaries, the best minds of all nations see, and say, that a World-Organisation is the only way of escape from imminent disaster, and is, indeed, inevitable. Thus: "Separate sovereignty has become impossible": (H. G. Wells, A Short History of the World, p. 309; revised edn., 1938). Yet the men in power seem determined to have a bout of yet another global war, first.
Obviously this is not desirable. And it is possible to avoid, only if the Educationist will do his duty resolutely, combining scientist and priest in himself.

To illustrate how the human world is increasingly recognising the need for the True Practicality of a World-wide Organisation, under the new name of ‘Planning’, following extracts are taken from the address of Dean Curtis W. Reese, D. D., given to the assemblage of the World Fellowship of Faiths, at Chicago, in 1933. The address is titled “Introduction to a Planned Society” and is printed on pp. 97-102 of World Fellowship, edited by Charles F. Weller, (pub. 1935). The volume is a full report of Proceedings of Sessions (extending over 83 meetings) of the Fellowship, and includes “242 addresses, significant statements, by 199 leading spokesmen of practically All Faiths, Races, and Countries”. Dean Reese says:

“The idea of planning on a nation-wide and long-run basis has made great headway alike in the theory of monarchical, democratic, and communistic countries”. Then the speaker goes on to illustrate how it has been working in Japan, Germany, France, Russia, England, Italy, Spain, America. “Russia, of course, is the outstanding example of national planning. The plan involves —what to produce, how much, when, where, and at what price... It is not surprising that Russia is making great headway, for with a philosophy of social control, ... a general plan, ... and detailed planning, ... success... is practically assured. It is not too much to say that in Russia national planning takes on religious significance.” The speaker, expressing his own view, says, towards the close, “The social goal is a classless
From the long past instinctive group-life and primitive communism of 'uncivilised' tribes, through the present phase of intensely competitive, separative, egoist individualism, back to deliberate, conscious, scientifically planned co-operative socialism on a society... The goal of a classless world is far more powerful than the bitterness of class struggle."

We may add: 'Classless, yes, if you are thinking of only the two classes, Rich and Poor, or of rigid birthcastes; and not of the four natural Types, which cannot be abolished; non-recognition of which, and of corollaries, is a very serious flaw in the Russian Experiment, and is inevitably causing mistakes, disturbances, bloody purges, and, fortunately, also great modifications in the whole policy, from time to time, though the bureau-cracy aspect of State-Socialism focussed in a dictator, is an increasing danger. Two articles in N. Y. Reader's Digest for April, 1947, (pp. 140-146), based on alleged personal tours and experience in the labor-camps, say that the urgency of the successive five year Plans whose completion is necessary to make Russia feel safe from foreign invasion, or strong enough to attack others, has compelled the Soviet government to force at least fourteen million men and women into actual slavery. A Russian officer, going with a British M. P. and the then Polish Premier on a trip through the camps, put the total at twenty million; fourteen of these were Russians, either sentenced criminals or suspected of anti-Soviet views; rest were foreigners and refugees of sorts. This is frightful, no doubt; but which other country today has not its 'wage-slaves'? The conditions of 'living', however, of these Russian 'slaves', were not of 'living' but of 'dying'. Another article, in the same monthly, for May, 1947, entitled The Soviet Spies, is a condensation of a book, by Richard Hirsch, which details the Story of Russian Espionage in Canada, and also U.S.A. and higher level; not the unnatural, mechanical or 'machinist', 'equalitarian', 'authoritarian', and therefore necessarily unstable, 'communism', now being experimented with in the west; but a natural 'socialism', based on psychological laws and facts, a 'socialism' of individuo-social organization by temperamental aptitudes and vocations and equitable partition of means of livelihood and prizes of life, as outlined before; such seems to be the desirable course of human progress. The artificial, in-effective, or rather positively harmful, and very expensive Britain. This espionage was primarily directed to discover the secret of the atom-bomb. Again, it all reads very atrocious; but which 'Great Power' today has not its own System of Espionage; at least as subtle, as 'good' (or 'bad', as you may like to call it), as the Russian Soviet's? Are not spies of these 'Great Powers' behaving in exactly the same way as those of the Soviet? And are they not, all of these 'Great Powers', including the Soviet, trying frantically to get hold of each other's military secrets? And are not the presses of all of them, conducting blatant 'nationalist' propaganda? The press, in all countries today, has unfortunately become so venal, so full of half-truths i.e., falsehoods, so sensationalist, so self-advertising, so brazenly partisan, that the would-be impartial and humanist reader does not know whom to believe and what to believe.

"It is the goal of commerce to organise all the resources of the earth for the supply of the wants of mankind; it is the goal of science to diffuse one system of knowledge; it is the goal of politics to combine all countries in one harmony of justice, peace, and progress. Similarly it is the goal of religion to inspire one faith:"

current system of education; which inculcates wrong ideals and views and aims of life; swamps the end under the means; suffocates vital principles under loads of showy but really very paltry details; requires costly buildings, heavy salaries, great quantities of furniture and apparatus of many kinds, all utterly disproportionate to the resources of the (at least eastern) people; which, withal, neglects nature, and artificialises even so-called nature-study; prepares mostly only for the learned professions, and does not test, ascertain, develope, and train the various vocational aptitudes and temperaments—such education needs, cryingly, to be replaced by

If we add to the above: 'It is the goal of labor to give the help indispensably needed for achievement of the other goals'; and that 'These goals can be respectively achieved by organised co-operation of vaishyas, tājirs, men of acquisitive desire and wealth-management, brāhmaṇas, ālims, men of knowledge, kṣaṭṭriyas, aṁils, men of action, and śūḍras, mazdūrs, men of labor, of all countries, races, nations'; also that 'Faith and Knowledge go together, being but aspects of one another, unshakeably founded on the One Science of the Infinite which includes and supports and synthesises all the sciences of the Finite'—if we add this, then we would see that that which Mr. J. E. Carpenter visualises, is just what the Varṇa-Aśrama-Dharma of Manu endeavours to realise. Be it noted that that scheme does not conflict with the right and reasonable use of machinery; instead, it will help greatly to make such use, and only such use, possible.
a more natural, useful, and comparatively inexpensive system, which would educate each person for an appropriate specific occupation; would inculcate right ideals; and would thereby change the whole moral and spiritual atmosphere of all civilisation before long.

A modern educationist, Edouard Seguin, after a whole lifetime of work, came to the conclusion that "The common things of daily life have even greater educational value when the hands can use them ... In such matters, the means and instruments are more easily remembered than the philosophy of their application; whilst that philosophy is the very thing which is above all not to be forgotten". This non-comprehension or forgetting of the philosophy, the principles, is consequence either of self-seeking or of intellectual incapacity, and leads to prevalence of catchwords and degenerations into the "crafts" mentioned above.

The same educationist says, again, that "The great agency for socialising all pupils is love. To develop their sense of affection, as were developed their senses of sight, of hearing, and others, does not

1 Western educationists have begun to give attention to this, now. The subject has been dealt with at length, in The Science of Social Organisation, especially its second and third volumes.

* See Fyne, Montessori and her Inspiners, pp. 162, 169, (pub. 1924).
demand new instruments or new teachers, but the extension of the same action upon their feelings. To make the child feel that he is loved, and to make him eager to love in his turn, is the end of our teaching as it has been its beginning . . . For our pupils, science, literature, medicine, philosophy, each may do something; but love alone can truly socialise them; those who love them are their true rescuers". Such love, together with certain other psychological principles, constitutes the only basis of true socialism. Therefore the greatest educationists are those greatest lovers of mankind, the Founders of the Religions which bind the hearts of human beings into One and give birth to new civilizations.

Trust all to love, it is a God
That knows the outlets of the sky. (EMERSON.)

Civilization is justified of its name only when it is permeated by good-will, nay, loving active sympathy, self-restraint, moderation, courage, forbearance, strong sense of duty; when these preponderate definitely over sensuality, arrogance, hate, greed, jealousy, selfish fear. Only the former qualities of heart can establish the longed-for millennium of true socialism; as distinguished from artificial and forced communism, on one hand, and, on another, from oppressive individualism, manifesting as heartless capitalism and ruthless militarism, which vast masses of men are now suffering from, because of permeation of society by the latter evil qualities. No mere cleverness of metallic machinery or official machinery, no 'technocracy' or any other 'cracy', no administrative 'efficiency' or diplomatic skill in coining oily or pompous phrases with shifty meaning, will avail. The heart must be filled with the 'religious' emotion of 'benevolence', 'sympathy', first. True Socialism can be founded only upon sense of the Oneness of all Life, which means realization of the Supreme Self. To be able to help humanity to such civilization, the teacher should obviously have realized that Oneness in himself; should have assimilated all that body of right thought and right feeling which flows from it; and should diligently give education accordingly, 'leading the younger generation to the same realization.' Then only will the educationist be able to justly and truly socialize civilization. Such is the great significance and value of Religious Education; or, let us say, Spiritual Instruction; since the word religion repels many, to-day, because of its associations of priestcraft. Rightly understood, the R' of Religion is, indeed, the greatest and most important of the four R's of Education.

'This is the etymological and philosophical significance of upa-nayana, the Vedic ceremony corresponding to modern 'leading of a child to, and his admission in, a school.'
Scriptures speak of the kingdom of heaven on earth. This kingdom is obviously a Self-government wherein the Higher Self reigns and legislates. The Higher Self lives in souls which have realized their oneness with all other selves, and are therefore (lower-) self-denying and wise, philanthropic as well as experienced.\(^1\) In this simple fact is to be found the only key to all human problems. If the Higher Self brood over the family, domestic life will be happy; because then ‘joy will be duty and love will be law.’ If it govern the field of economics, distribution of necessaries and comforts will be equitable, for there will be no accumulation of wealth for greedy selfish purposes, but only for promotion of public welfare, through proprietors who will regard themselves as trustees, and will find their heart-nourishment and ample recompense and satisfaction in the mere fact of being channels of public good and recipients of public appreciation. If it regulate politics, none will be for ‘party’, and all will be for ‘State’, because administration of all affairs will

\(^1\) Sarva-bhūtēshu cha Ātmānaṁ, sarva-bhūtāni cha Ātmanī, Samam pashyāt, Ātma-yāji Sūvā-rājyam aḍhi-gachchhati. (M.)

(Who sees one-Self in all, and all in Self;
His life is one long sacrifice to Self;
With just eyes he sees all impartially;
He finds the inner true Self-government
First; then the outer, for himself and all.)
be just, upright, benevolent and protective of all right interests; and therefore no 'parties' will be needed or formed at all, on lines of conflicting religious creeds or clashing economic interests. If it reign in shop, market-place, factory, business-concern, police-station, army-organisation, law-court, town council, hospital, ship, railway train, wherever human beings have to deal with each other, there all duties will be discharged honestly, promptly, courteously, sympathetically, ministering to the happiness of all concerned. If it inspire legislation, laws will be good and wise, far-sighted, and beneficent to all sections of the people, of all temperaments and vocations, and the just interests of all will be duly secured and promoted. If it guide education, all affairs of the People will be righted through the rightly-educated new generation. Wherever the Higher Self, as embodied and manifest in wise, selfless, philanthropic men and women, trusted and honored select and 'elect' of the people, 'representative' of all that is best in the people, reigns, rules, legislates, directs, guides, advises—there is the kingdom of heaven, for there is reign and rule and influence of righteousness. Most of all is it necessary that the Higher Self should reign in Home of Education and Hall of Legislation. To inculcate this noble meaning of Sva-rāj, Self-government, (i.e., Rāj of the Higher Sva, government by the Higher Self, of the People), in the collective and the individual intelligence of mankind, to fill the hearts of all, men and women, young and old, with this great truth, is the only way to achieve, and then to maintain, true Self-government. Such inculcation can be most effectively done in the 'Home of Education', which should be the noblest 'House of God.' In the next degree, it can be done by an enlightened, spiritual, genuinely 'religious' Press.

The person to be entrusted with the very responsible task of education, (of the young in a school or a college, and of the general public by means of a journal) should therefore be a 'man of God', by apt temperament, and not by birth; he should be full of ṭāpās, zohā, pietas, self-denial, and of viḍyā, pra-jāna, irfān, gnosis, all-including 'spiritual' knowledge, as well as of vi-jñāna, i'lm, detailed 'material' knowledge. Himself having realized true 'spiritual' equality, fraternity, and liberty, he will be able to give the education which will necessarily give rise to the civilization of true equality, i.e., equity, equitability, (and not false, forced, unstable, impossible 'material' equality); of loving fraternity, and paternity and filiety also; and ordered liberty. This is not the place to enter into the details thereof; they have been dealt with elsewhere.¹

4 See p. 772, supra.

Briefly, the educationist must be a self-dependent, independent, yet humble-hearted and all-loving missionary, whose example and whose moral force, soul-force, may daunt and deter wrong-doers however high-placed, and whose very presence may spread benevolence. He must not take any help, even honoraria, from the evil-minded. Scriptures utter strong warning against this.

Arthasya purushah dāsah na arthaḥ dāsah tu kasya-chiṭ. (Mbh.)

Sarvēśhām ēva shauchānām artha-shaucham vishishyatē.

¹ In The Science of Social Organisation. "The Supreme produces all things. Its virtue nourishes them. Its nature gives them form. Its force perfects them. The Supreme, engendering all things, nourishes, develops, fosters, perfects, ripens, tends, and protects them. Production without possession, action without self-assertion, development without domination—this is Its mysterious operation. It loves and nourishes all things, but does not act as master." (Tao Teh King.)

In this brief extract from the writing of the sage, Lao-tse, may be found the quintessence of the spirit of the expression of the Higher Self in all types of dutiful men. 'Production without possession' is for the wealth-making 'man of desire'; 'action without self-assertion' is for the 'man of action'; 'development without domination' is for the benevolent man of wisdom, the patriarchal educator.
Yah artha shuchih sa hi shuchih;
na mṛḍ-vāri-shuchih shuchih. (M.)

(Slave of his economic interest
Is man; and not his interest his slave.
Of all the purities, the purity
Of means of livelihood is the most high.
Whose gains are gotten without taint of sin,
He only is pure truly—not the man
Who washes hands with earth and water oft.)

Chūn gharaz āmaḍ hunar ranjīḍah shud,
Chūn khudī āmaḍ Khudā poshidah shud,
Saḍ hijāb az ċil ba sū-ē didah shud. (S.)

(Where greed comes forth, there probity retires;
When the small self intrudes, the Great Self hides;
A hundred veils the heart fings o'er the eyes).

In terms of Vēdāṇṭa, Māyā-Desire has two principal powers or functions; (1) ā-varaṇa, which 'veils' the eye of reason, 'blinds' it to all but the immediate object of the particular desire, shuts it off from all sense of proportion, of balance, of 'the truth in the mean'; (2) vi-kṣhopa, which 'flings', 'drives', 'pushes', the whole soul in pursuit of the desired object, to the neglect of all duties. The counteracting, neutralising, opponents of these two forces are, respectively, the force of vai-rāgya, 'dis-illusionment', 'dis-passionate desirelessness', ‘com-passionate passionlessness’, ‘dis-taste’, ‘disgust’ with the world, mujānibat, born of sensitive experience of one’s own and, much more, of other’s miseries; and abhyāsa, ‘perseverent pursuit’, munāzilat, of the Truth.¹

Therefore let the revered and loved ‘preceptor’
‘teacher’, ‘master’, guru, acharya, upādhyāya, pir-i-murshiḏ, mua‘lim, ātāliq, diligently preserve his disinterested benevolence, his dispassionate yet compassionate desirelessness, his perseverent and ‘independent” gaze upon the Truth, at all costs. Economic bias is all-vitiating. A person cannot but side with, and wish well to, and support, what nourishes him, however evil it may be. Quality of intellectual fruit is determined by quality of economic root.² Therefore:

Yah rājñah praṭi-grhnāti lubdhasya uch-chhāṣṭra-varṭinah,
Sah paryāyena yāti imān
narakān ēka-vimshaṭim. (M.)

(The educationist who doth accept Money from evil, greedy, lawless kings,

¹ See pp. 439-440, supra.

² The Educational System of a State should never be fed with revenues from any such sinful sources as Excise Duties on intoxicating drugs and drinks. Manu condemns very strongly rulers who draw any revenue from any such vicious and sinful trades.
Can no more reprimand and chastise them,
But will support them in their evil deeds;
And must pass with them through hell after hell.)
Chūn dīhāḏ qāzī ba ḏīl rishwat qarār,
Kai shināṣāḏ zālim az mazlūm-ī-zār. (S.)
(The judge who findeth room within his heart
For bribes, no longer can discriminate
The criminal from the victim of his crime.)

By promotion of such evil-doing, the Educator vitiates the education of the whole younger generation, and thereby ruins the whole civilisation and the whole State. Let him do nothing which will lead insidiously to selling of his independence, his conscience, his soul. His responsibility is the greatest in the whole of the body politic. He is in charge of the new generation. He makes or mars the whole State, whole civilisation, whole people, by the way in which he brings up the new generation.

Ezā fasaḏ al-ā’lim, fasaḏ al-ālam. (H.)
Zallaṭ al-ā’lim, zallaṭ al-ālam. (Q.)
(Yea, when the learned and intelligent Err from the right path, all the world goes wrong.)
Yaṭ yaṭ ācharāṭi shrēshthah ṭaṭ ṭaṭ ēva iṭarah janah.
Sa yaṭ pramāṇam kuriṭe,
lakah ṭaṭ anu-varṭaṭe. (G.)
(As doth conduct himself the honored man
So will behave the others, copying him.)

"Can the blind lead the blind? Shall they not both fall into the ditch?" (B.)

Avidyāyām anātara varṣa-mānāh,
Svayam-ḍhīrāh pandiṭam-manya-mānāh,
Janghanya-mānāh pari-yaṇti mūdhāh,
apāhena iva niya-mānāh yaṭhā anādhāh. (U.)

(Wise in their own conceit, sunk deep in error,
Into pit after pit, stumbling, they go,
The luckless ones, blind followers of the blind.)

Annāso a lā ḍīn-e-mulūkēhim. (H.)
(Men imitate the faith and ways of kings.)

Yaṭhā rājā taṭhā prajāh. (Skt. proverb.)
(As the king is, such are the people too.)

"Knowledge is power." The Educationist has knowledge. He has power to influence the soul, the mind, for good or for evil. The soldier, who has only the sword, can at most compel only the body. The priest is more powerful than the king.
Priestcraft is more disastrous than kingcraft. Without its help, more or less, direct or indirect, king-craft is not possible. Church and State in alliance for human welfare, can make a heaven of earth;
in alliance for human enslavement and exploitation, they make a hell of it. And Spiritual power can and ought to control and curb erring Temporal power.

Viḍyā ha vai brāhmaṇam ājagāma:
Gopāya mām; śevaḍhīh ṭē aham asmi;
Asūyakāya an-ṛjavē a-yāṭāya,
Mām mā ḍāh; vīrya-vaṭī taṭhā syām! (V.)

(Science came to the 'Man of Knowledge', said;
'Take me and guard me as a sacred trust:
And give me not unto the crooked ones,
Impure, evil of mind, un-Self-controlled,
Jealous, proud, cruel, full of greed and lust.
Impart me only to the good and pure,
The gentle-minded and benevolent;
Then shall I grow in power to help the world.)

Na a-brahma kshaṭṭram ṛdhnoṭi, na a-kshaṭṭram brahma varḍhatē;
Kshaṭṭrasya aṭi pra-vṛḍhhasya,
brāhmaṇān praṭi sarvashah,
Brahma ēva san-niyanṭr syāt;
kshaṭṭram hi brahma-sambhayam. (M.)

(The spiritual and the temporal powers,
Both need each other; neither can maintain
Itself and prosper, if not helped by th' other.
But should the Militarist grow perverse,
And try to overbear the Scientist,
It is the latter's duty to restrain
And curb the former; and he can do so;
For Science is the parent of the Sword;
Knowledge, which makes, can break the things of war.)

Brāhmaṇam tu sva-ṛāhama-ṛāham dṛṣṭvā bibhyati cha iṭāre,
Na anyāthā kṣaṭṭriyādyāḥ tu;
viprah tasmaṁ tapah charē. (Shukra-nīti.)

(When kṣaṭṭriyas, entrusted with the sword,
Behold the brāhmaṇa deviating not
From virtuous duty, then are they afraid,
Not otherwise, and stray not from their own.
The man of God should, then, deny himself,
To keep the balance of the human world.)

A western poet has described such a person:
And prophet-like the lone one stood
With dauntless words and high,
That shook the sere leaves from the wood
As if a storm passed by.

Western history tells us that the Church, when manned by good and genuine priests, has often checked the tyranny of despots and saved the people from cruel oppression. On the other hand, when manned by devils incarnate in human shape, like the Inquisitors, it has allied itself with cruel depots

\(^1\) See Ranke's History of the Popes.
and made the earth groan, and the cry of agony of whole nations has risen to Heaven to bring down the avenging sword of God upon the heads of the tyrant priests and kings. In ancient Indian tradition, rṣis have directly punished and blasted wicked kings. In the history of Islām also, saintly and learned men have often checked the oppression of rulers, sultāns and pādishāhs. Christianity also has had many heroic reformers and martyrs who faced the wrath of the mighty. Judaism has nourished great prophets like Jeremiah who strongly reproved the iniquitous of their day.

Let the Educationist rise then to the height of his mission. Let him not hanker after money and sense-enjoyments. The price of benevolent wisdom, of philanthropic learning, is not money, but love and reverence and obedience. Are parents to be paid with cash for cherishing their children and making perpetual sacrifices for them?

Inna akrama-kum ind-Allāhā aṭqā-kum. (Q.,) (Give highest place of reverence unto those Who are God-fearing and God-loving men; For the most good are nearest unto God.)

Let him be content with the bare necessaries of life. Let him live in voluntary poverty. So the fire of his ṭaḥāṣ, zohd, soul-force, will grow ever greater, brighter, mightier. All good men will love and revere him. All evil men will stand in awe of him, and, seeing him stand steadfast in virtue, will gradually turn to good ways. Greedy sense-seekers will be shamed into self-restraint, beholding him so reverend, so talented, so able to seize, yet refraining. All will request him to make good and wise laws, which others will execute under his guidance. The good and wise alone can make good and wise laws; and good and wise laws alone can promote general welfare. Indeed, when men of God are abroad, men of law need be very few. Moral laws, implanted in the heart, make legal laws, imposed from without, largely unnecessary. Impulsion from within is far better, far more effective, than compulsion from without. As prevention is better than cure, even so education is better than legislation. Thus high is the value and purpose of Education. Thus high is the mission of the Educationist. Only the man of Brahma, of Maulā, of Rabb, of God, (not by birth, but by worth, by high qualification), the man who has realized that the Great Self lives in all selves, should be entrusted with the high task of Education, and of Legislation.

1 See Ranke's History of the Popes.

The People are happy who produce amidst themselves a fair number of such brāhmaṇas, maulāvis, divines, rabbis, true educators of the people in the best and largest sense, by precept and by example; not professional religion-mongers, sowers of hatreds and dissensions, or pedagogues, pedants, spreaders of false and vicious ideals and useless and misleading knowledge. Such a people will be sure to possess a justly socialized civilization, where the golden mean will reign, and which will give 'the greatest happiness to the greatest number'. Realising that "No man liveth unto himself... we are all parts of one another", that God "hath made of one blood all nations that dwell upon the face of the earth", (B.), that 'Human beings (of different types and classes) are as head, arms, trunk, and legs unto one another', (V.), that 'All creatures are members of the one family of God' (Q.), that 'The children of Adam are members and limbs of one another' (Sādi), they will reconcile स्व-र्थाता and सर्व-र्थाता, खुद-ग्हराचि and मिला-ग्हरासि, Individualism and Socialism, (known to ancient philosophers of China as the principles of Yāng Chu, 'each for him-self', and Mih Țeih, 'loving all equally'), in a rational Social Organisation. They will build the strongest and surest, nay the only, foundations for World-Peace on earth, by, and because of, spreading Good-Will among men. Their 'men of God' will be able to create such Good-Will among men, by (1) establishing Peace between the Creeds, through exposition of the Unity, as well as the philosophical and scientific rationality, of them all in Essence, and by
(2) explaining to them, as part of that Essence, the principles of a complete Social Organisation which will fulfil the just, reasonable, and natural requirements of each and all; which will provide every person with suitable work-and-wage, and every work-and-wage with the right person; and will ensure that machinery, metallic as well as administrative, is so used that, while human drudgery is steadily reduced more and more, human starvation is not increased, and that there is a real and wide spread of general welfare.

Scientists of the World! The heaviest responsibility rests upon you! For you discover and spread the Knowledge, which ought to be used for Good, but is being used for Evil! Therefore, illuminate Material Science with Spiritual Science! Transfigure it thereby into Holy Wisdom! Add determined Philanthropy to your Science! And Unite! Confer Together! Decide Upon, and show to Mankind, the Right Way of Organisation. For Humanity has everything to lose, it Perishes, If you Don't! Whereas, If you do, It is saved, It lives, It Finds Peace and Happiness for all!
CHAPTER VII

CONCLUSION

Let us conclude with three very small but very beautiful stories, illustrative of the Essential Unity of all Religions; one from Vedic, one from Islāmic, one from Chinese, writings.

Once upon a time, six blind men happened to come near a standing elephant. They felt, with their hands, different parts of the huge animal, and began disputing about its nature. One caught the end of the tail, and said it was a big broom or brush. Another felt the trunk, and declared it was a huge python. A third found an ear, and affirmed that it was a very large winnowing-fan. A fourth touched the abdomen, and maintained it was a vast drum. A fifth stroked a leg, and asserted it was a thick column. A sixth grasped a tusk, and insisted it was a powerful pestle. A seventh person happened to pass, and saw them disputing. He had eyes, was a man of vision, a man of wisdom. He explained to them what it was; a compound of all their 'opinions'; and not a mechanical but a living composite; and owner and user of them all. Each one of the different material sciences, views one facet of the Universe of Matter; each one of the several religions emphasises one aspect of the Spirit; the Science of Religion, the Religion of Science, Metaphysic, Tasawwuf, Gnosis, Vedānta, synthesises them all.

Once upon another time, a Rūmī, an Arab, a Persian, and a Turk, happened to become Fellow-Travellers on the Road of Life. Long trudging on the dusty, sandy, stony, thorny, now ice-cold, now burning-hot, tracks, made them hungry and thirsty for the Nourishment that brings Strength and Peace. They did not know one another's mother-tongues. By signs they communicated, and brought out all the coins they had, to purchase food. What should they buy? The Arab said, Enāb; the Turk growled, Uzām; the Persian shouted, Angūr; the Rūmī roared, Aṣṭāfīl. Faces frowned; eyes reddened; fists clenched; blows began. An itinerant Fruit-Vendor passed along. Such blessed Vendors of Vital Nourishment know the few all-important sympathy-creating life-preserving words of many tongues. They have to deal with many customers of many sorts. He rushed in between, and placed before them his basket full of the Fruit of Life. Fists unclenched, voices sweetened, eyes softened, faces smiled. Each one found the Self-Same Object of his Heart's Desire in that basket. Arabic enāb, Turkish uzam, Irānī angūr, Rūmī aṣṭāfil, Pahlavi dākh, Sanskrit drākshā, English grape, all mean one and the same fruit, and very sweet fruit.

Ancient Wisdom in China says that once, long ago, “There ensued great disorder in the world. The Tao and its characteristics ceased to be regarded as uniform. Many in different places got one glimpse of it, and plumed themselves on possessing it as a whole. They might be compared to the ear, the eye, the nose, or the mouth. Each sense has its own faculty; but their different faculties cannot be interchanged. So it was with the many branches of the various schools. Each has its peculiar excellence; and there is a time for the use of it; but none covers or extends over the whole range of Truth;” (BB. 421, 'Texts of Taoism', Writings of Kwang Tze, Pt. II, 216-217.)

Yaṭhā indriyaih prthag-dvāraiḥ, arthah, bahu-guṇ-āshrayah, Ėkah, nānā iyaṭē, taḍ-vaṭ Bhagavān śāstra-varṭmabhīḥ. (Bhāg., 3. 32. 33.)

(One thing, possessed of many properties, Only through many senses can it be In all its fullness apprehended. Even Thus can the Lord’s infinite glories be Glimpsed with the help of many sciences.)
A western poet has said well:
Each drew a circle to shut others out,
As heretics, rebels, things to flout;
But Loving Wisdom knew how to win,
It drew a Circle that took all in!
Faqat tafawat hae namo hii ka,
Dar asli sab eka hii hai, yaro!
Jo ab-i-safi ke mauj mein hai,
Usi ka jalwa habbaa mein hai! (S.)

(Only names differ, Beloved!
All forsooth are but the same.
Both the ocean and the dew-drop
But one living liquid frame!)

Dear brothers and sisters! we have met here on the Road of Life, coming from far and near, and all are Hungry and Thirsty for the Bread and the Water of Life, which is Love born of the sense of the all-Pervading Unity of the Supreme Spirit. We have begged, from the abounding vineyards, of the large-hearted, most generous, most charitable, growers of the Fruit of Life, the great authors of the Sacred Scriptures, who brood anxiously and lovingly over mankind, as mothers over their little children, a little of their Fruit, that we may share it equally here; and that, when we wander out to other places, or back to our respective homes, we may bear its sweet taste in our mouths, and carry its good seeds of Unity and Love, for planting there and everywhere.

So many castes, so many creeds
So many paths that wind and wind,
When just the art of being kind,
Is all the sad world needs! (Ella W. Wilcox.)

And the one and only sure art of being kind is to bear diligently in mind the Great Truth of the Unity of our-self with the One Eternal, Infinite, Universal Self, and therefore with all selves. God is Love, Love is God, because God is the Universal Self, and the sensing, the feeling, of this Unity, is the Love Divine, Bhākṭi, Ishqi-Haqīqī.

Yaḍā charma-vaṭ ākāsham vēshtayishyanṭi māṇavāh,
Taḍā Ṛēvam a-vijñāya,
duḥkhasya anṭah bhavishyaṭi. (U.)

(Yea, men shall roll the sky up like a mat,
Sooner, than put an end to suffering
Without the Vision of the Self in All.)

Shāḍ bāsh, ai Ishq-i-khush-sauḍā-i-mā!
Ai ḍawā-ē jumla illaṭ-hā-i-mā!
Ai ilāj-ē nakḥwāṭ o nāmūs-i-mā!
Ai ū tu Aflāṭūn o Jālīnūs-i-mā! (S.)

Vēḍ ', Āvestā, al-Qurān, Injil niz,
Kā'ba o Buṭ-khāna o Āṭash-kadā,
Qalb-i-man maqbul karada jumla chiz,
Chun ma-ra juz Ishq nai digar Khuda! (S.)
(Thrive, thrive, O Love Divine!, thy happy madness,
Sole remedy of all life's ills and sadness,
Prime antidote of pride and prudery,
Art, Science, Scripture—all art thou to me!
Veda, Avesta, Bible, Al-Quran,
Temple, Pagoda, Church, and Ka'ba- Stone,
All these and more my heart doth close embrace,
Since my Religion now is Love alone.)

(Tao, when nursed within one's Self,
His vigor will make true;
And where the family It rules,
What riches will accrue!
The neighbourhood, where It prevails,
In thriving will abound;
And when 'Tis seen throughout the State,
Good Fortune will be found.
Employ it all the kingdom o'er,
And men will thrive all round.)

Ta bi-amokhtem abjad-e-ishq,
Raqame ghair az in na min danem,
Ke ba chashman-i-dil ma bin juz Dost,
Har che binin be-dan ke mazhar-i-U-st.
Chūn ke ṯaqif shudem ze para-e-Rāz,
Ḍam ba ḏam iņ ṭarāna mī goyēm,
Ke ba čhashmān-i-qil ma bīn juz Dost,
Har che bīnī be-ḍān ke mazhar-i-Ū-stį

(S., Wesālī, Mā Muqīmān.)

(Since we have learnt the Alphabet of Love,
None other text than this can we repeat:
‘With the heart’s eyes, wide-opened now, behold, Whate’er thou see-est, as but form of His!’
Since we have seen the Secret past the Screen,
With every breath the song springs to our lips:
‘Whate’er thou see-est now with the heart’s eye
Thou know’st is but a form of the Divine.’)

One Cosmic Brotherhood,
One Universal Good,
One Source, One Sway,
One Law be-holding Us,
One Purpose moulding Us,
One Life en-folding Us,
In Love alway.

Lust, Greed, Fear, Pride, Envy, and Hate,
Long made us Desolate.
Their reign is done.
Race, Color, Creed, and Caste,
Fade with the Nightmare Past,
Man wakes to learn at last,
All Life is One!
May Peace and Prosperity return among Men,
May Co-operation unite them, Love bind them,
Brotherhood enfold them, Patience possess them,
Self-control strengthen them,
The Past be forgiven them,
The Future be sanctified for them,
May Peace and Prosperity return to them!

(Fellowship of Faiths' Prayer for Peace.)

Ehđin-as-Sirāt-ul-musta‘qim. (Q.)
(May we be taught the Righteous way to Peace!)

Sarvah tara'fu durgānī,
Sarvah bhaḍrānī pashyaṭu,
Sarvah saḍ-buḍhīm āpnoṭu
Sarvah sarvaṭra nandaṭu. (Mbh.)
(May all attain the Mind of Righteousness.
May all cross safe beyond th' abysms of Life,
May all see loving eyes, good days, good nights,
May all behold the Face of Happiness!
May all fare very well, fare ever well!)

AUM! ĀMĪN! AMEN!
APPENDIX

(to pp. 649-661)

Samskrit and Arabic-Persian equivalents for tetrads of Vedic Social Organisation.

Samskrit and Arabic-Persian equivalents for terms of the tetrads mentioned on pp. 649-661, are given below. This book is intended, among other purposes, to be of service to workers who may have occasion to address public audiences, in India, of Hindus as well as Muslims, in order to draw their attention to thoughts already common to the two religions, and such more as can be adopted by followers of both, to the benefit of all, without in any way hurting any cherished belief of either. To be readily understood by members of the two denominations and cultures, the speaker should, obviously, be able to use words which are familiar to, and will, therefore, readily 'come home' to them. Hence, Samskrit and Arabic-Persian equivalents have been given throughout the book, side by side with corresponding English words. But the following could not be conveniently incorporated in the text. Hence they are gathered here. The value of seeing the same thought through the medium of several languages, of recognising the same truth in different garbs, has been dwelt on before, at pp. 85-92 and 713.

Such equivalents, in the following, as are not established by traditional usage, but are offered newly, are, of course, tentative, and ought to be replaced by better ones, as necessary, by those who may have occasion to use them.

(1) Skt. Four prakṛti-s: (a) Shikshaka; (b) Raksaka; (c) Poshaka; (d) Sahāyaka; or, (a) Viḍvān; (b) Vīra; (c) Pālaka; (d) Dhāraka: or, (a) Jñānādhiya; (b) Kriyādhiya; (c) Ichchhādhiya; (d) A-vyanjita. Or, (a) Sāttvika; (b) Rājasa; (c) Tāmasa; (d) A-vyakta or An-uḍ-buddha.

(Well-known traditional words are, of course, (a) brāhmaṇa; (b) kṣatṛiya; (c) vaishya; (d) shūdra. But they have now completely lost their very vital functional, occupational, or vocational, (which is also their etymological) significance; have become irredeemably permeated by the notion of 'hereditary caste'; and hence are, now, much more misleading than useful, where problems of effective social organisation, rational division of social labor, training for and choosing or assigning to temperamentally suitable occupations and means of living, and efficient exercise-and-discharge of corresponding rights-and duties, are concerned. Therefore, use of one or more new sets of terms has become necessary, which will bring out the functional import unmistakably. There is no such difficulty involved in Arabic-Persian equivalents. A number of other sets of terms, Skt. and also A.-P., are suggested on pp. 104-106 of the present writer's book, Ancient vs. Modern Scientific Socialism.

Arab.-Per. Four šīrat-s: (a) Ālim; (b) Āmil; (c) Ṭajir; (d) Mazdūr.

(2) S. Four vṛtti-s: (a) vidyā-vṛtti; (b) shāsana-vṛtti; (c) vārtā-vṛtti; (d) vṛāta-vṛtti or shrama-vṛtti.

A.-P. Four pēshā-s: (a) i'lmī; (b) a'malī; (c) tijāraṭī; (d) mazdūrī.

(3) S. Four jīvikā-s: (a) dakshinā, upāyana, puraskāra, prati-graha; (b) kara, vēṭana, bhāga; (c) vṛddhī, kusīda; (d) karmanyā, bhṛti.

A.-P. Four māsh-es: (a) nazr, pēsh-kash; (b) khirāj, mushāhirā; (c) munāfa'; (d) mazdūrī, tan-khwāh.

(4) S. Four āshramas: (a) brahma-chāri, or viḍyā-ārthī; (b) grha-sthā; (c) vāna-praṣṭha, or vana-sthā; (d) san-nyāṣī.

A.-P. Four manāzil-i-umr, or, briefly, manzil-s, (staging-places of life); (a) muṭa'llim; (b) khāna-dār; (c) gosha-nashīn; (d) faqīr, ḍurwēsh.
(5) S. Four shārīra-ēshaṇā-s: (a) āhār-ēchchha; (b) ḍhan-ēchchha; (c) dāmpatya-ēchchha, or raṭāchchha; (d) vinoḍ-ēchchha, vishrām-ēchchha, svāsṭhy-ēchchha.

A.-P. Four jismānī-khwāhishāt: (a) khwāhish-i-ghiza, or ishtiḥā; (b) khwāhish-i-māl; (c) khwāhish-i-zaujiyaṭ, or khwāhish-i-aulāḍ; (d) khwāhish-i-ṭafsīrīh, or khwāhish-i-ārām, or khwāhish-i-ṭanḍurustī.

(6) S. Four mānasā ēshaṇā-s: (a) lok-āishaṇā, or sammān-ēchchha; (b) viṭṭ-āishaṇā, or sampaḍ-ēchchha; (c) aishvary-āishaṇā, or aḍhi-kār-ēchchha, or īshīṭv-ēchchha, or prabhuṭv-ēchchha; (d) mokṣh-ēchchha.

A.-P. Four zehnī or nafasi khwāhishāt, or tāmā-s, or tāmānā-s, or ārzū-s, or hirs-es: (a) hirs-i-izzaṭ; (b) hirs-i-daulaṭ; (c) hirs-i-hukūmaṭ; (d) ārzu-i-najāṭ.

(7) S. Four. purush-ārtha-s: (a) dharma; (b) artha; (c) kāma; (d) moksha, or Brahm-ānanda.

A.-P. Four maqāsid-i-zinḍagī, or maqṣad-s; (a) dayānaṭ, or dīn; (b) daulaṭ; (c) lazzaṭ-ud-duṇyā; (d) najāṭ, or lazzaṭ-ul-ilāhiyā.

(8) S. Four maryāḍā-s, viḍhi-s, or samsṭhā-s: (a) upā-sanā; (b) pari-graha, or sva-tva, or rikṭha; (c) kula, or dāmpatya, or gārhasṭhya, or vivāha-pāḍḍhaṭi; (d) rāshtra, or rājya, or shāsana-pāḍḍhaṭi.
A.-P. Four ḍastūr-s, or zābiṭā-s: (a) mazhab; (b) milkiyat; (c) kẖāna-ḏārī, or kẖāndān, or kunbā; (d) siyāsat, nizāmaṭ, salṭanaṭ, nazm-i-mulk.

(9) S. Four bala-s: (a) shāstra-bala, or vidyā-bala, or jnāna-bala; (b) shāstra-bala, or āyuḍha-bala, or shaurya-bala, or vīrya-bala; (c) dhana-ḏhānya-bala, or anna-bala, or arṯha-bala; (d) shrama-bala.

A.-P. Four qūwat-s or ṭaqāṭś: (a) qūwat-i-ilmī; (b) quwat-i-aslahā, or qūwat-i-ʿilārī; (c) qūwat-i-mālī; qūwat-i-mashaqqāṭ.

(10) S. Four sets of (duties-and-rights) kartāvyas-and-aḍḥḥi-kāra-s: (a) sat-jnāna-sangraha-and-prachāra, and sammāna-prāṛṭi; (b) rakshā-shakti-sangraha-and-rakshā-prasāra, and īshvara-bhāva-prāṛṭi or īshīṭva-lābha or ājñā-shakti-labha; (c) jivana-sāmagri-uptoolsana-and-prasāraṇa, and vṛddhi-yukta-mūlyā-lābha; (d) sēvā, and bhṛṭi-and-vinoḍha-prāṛṭi.

A.-P. Four sets of farz-es-and-haq-s: (a) ṭalifwa-taqṣīm-i-ulūm-i-nēk, and izzaṭ; (b) ṭahsīl-i-zarāya-i-hifāzaṭ wa hifāzaṭ-i-awām, and hukūmaṭ; (c) paidā - karḍan - wa-ṭaqṣīm-karḍan-i-sāmān-i-zindagi, and munāfa'; khīḍmaṭ, and mazḏūri wa ṭafriḥ.

(11) S. Four kartāvyas-s of vṛddha-s, and of the rāshaṭra: (a) shikṣā; (b) rakshā; (c) poshā; (d) sēvā.

A.-P. Four farāyaz of buzurg-s, and of the siyāsat: (a) ṭāʾlīm; (b) ṭahaffuz; (c) ṭāʾm; (d) khīḍmaṭ or imḍāḍ.
(12) S. Four vyūhas: (a) shikshā-vyūha; (b) rakshā-vyūha; (c) vārṭa-vyūha; (d) sēvā-vyūha.

A.-P. Four ūtanžīm-s: (a) ūtanžīn-i-ṭālim; (b) ūtanžīm-i-ṭahaffuz; (c) ūtanžīm-i-ṭām (or rizq); ūtanžīm-i-khidmaṭ.

(13) S. Four ṛṇa-s: (a) ḍēva-ṛṇa; (b) ṛṣhi-ṛṇa; (c) pīṭṛ-ṛṇa; (d) Āṭma-ṛṇa.

A.-P. Four qarz-es: (a) qarz-i-malāyak (or anāsir); (b) qarz-i-ānbiā (or a'rīfān, or ālimān); (c) qarz-i-mūrisān; (d) qarz-i-Allāh, (or -Ruh-ul-awāh, or -Rūḥ-i-Ā'zam).

(14) S. Four ṛṇa-nir-mochana-s (or nir-yāṭana-s, or nis-ṭāraṇa-s): (a) ijjā (or yajña, or isht-apūrṭa); (b) āpāṭya-pālana; (c) aḍhyāpāna; (d) san-nyāsa (or nirvāṇa, or Brahma-laya).

A.-P. Four aḍā-i-qarz-es; (a) zakāṭ (or khaṭirāt); (b) parwarish-i-aulād; (c) ūṭālim; (d) ṭark-i-ḍunyā (or fuqr, or sukn, or fanā-f-illāh).

(a) Necessaries, (b) comforts, (c) luxuries, may be equated with: S. (a) āvashyakiya-s; (b) ni-kāmiya-s; (c) ānandaniya-s, or vilāsiya-s; and A.-P, (a) zurūri-yāṭ, (b) āśāishāṭ, (c) ishraṭiyāṭ.

Social organisation: S. samāja-vyavasṭhā; A.-P. ūtanžīm-i-jamāaṭ.

English equivalents will be found on pp. 649-661 supra.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>INDEX OF BOOKS AND WRITINGS REFERRED TO</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>PAGE</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Abū bin Aḥ-ḥam</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Āchāra-ānga-Sūtra</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ādi Purāṇa, by Jinasena and Guṇabhadra</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Agni Purāṇa 101, 605, 735</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ām-i-Akbarī, by Abul Fazl</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Analects, The, of Confucius</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>385, 399, 406-7, 420, 729</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Aitārēya Aranyaka</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>228</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Aitārēya Upanishat</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ancient versus Modern</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Scientific Socialism,</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>by Bhagavan Das 37, 451, 651</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Anu-Gītā</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>287</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Anguṭṭara Nikāya</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Title</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>----------------------------------------------------------------------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bible of Bibles, (BB.), by Dr. F. L. Riley</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Book of the Dead, The Egyptian</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Book of the Dead, The Tibetan, by Evans-Wentz</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Brahma-Sūtra</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Brhad-Āranyakā Upaniṣad</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Brhad-Vishnu Purāṇa</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Buddha's Last Words</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Buddhism, (H. U. L.) Series, by Mrs. Rhys Davids</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bundehesh</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chandī Charitra, by Guru Govinda Sinha</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Charaka, (a work on Medicine)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chhāndogya-Upaniṣad</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chhāndogya Upaniṣad-Bhāṣya, by Shankarāchārya</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chinese History, Modern, by Tan Yun Shan</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chinese Philosophy, History of, by Suzuki</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chinese Philosophy, History of, by Y. L. Fung</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chips from a German Workshop, by Max Muller</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Classic of Filial Piety, by Confucius</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Collected Works of G. B. Shaw</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Confucian Writings, (C.) Throughout</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Creative Evolution, by H. Bergson</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Crito, by Plato</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Daśa-Vaiśākha Sūtra or Daśa-vyakha-liyā</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>De Bello Judaico, by Josephus</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, by Gibbon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Devā Bhāgavata Purāṇa</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dhamma-pāda, (Dh.) Throughout</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dharma and Society, by Dr. G. H. Mees</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dharma-Saṁskāra-Abhūdaya, by Harish-Chandra</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Title</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>----------------------------------------------------------------------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dictionary of Philosophy, by Baldwin</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Digging up the Past, by Sir Leonard Woolley</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dīgha-Nikāya</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Divina Comedia, by Dante</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Doctor's Dilemma, by G. B. Shaw</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Doctrine of the Mean, by Confucius</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ṇūrga-saṭṭa-śaṭṭi</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

E

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Title</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Education, On, by Bertrand Russell</td>
<td>152</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Encyclopedia Britannica 22, 95, 102, 130, 213, 257, 260, 666, 673</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Encyclopedia of Islam 264</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Encyclopedia of Religion and Ethics, (ERE)</td>
<td>127, 264</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Erewhon, by Samuel Butler</td>
<td>712</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Essays, by Julian Huxley</td>
<td>295</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Essays, by T. H. Huxley</td>
<td>295</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Essays on the Pārsis, by Dr. Haug</td>
<td>147, 231, 631</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Evolution and Ethics, by Huxley</td>
<td>230</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

G

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Title</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Faust, by Goethe</td>
<td>62</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>First Principles, by Herbert Spencer</td>
<td>25</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>From the Caves and Jungles of Hindustān, by H. P. Blavatsky</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fundamental Values of Life, by Prof J. S. Mackenzie</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Garuda Purāṇa</td>
<td>236</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gāthā, Throughout.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gāthā, or the Hymns of Atharvan Zara-ṇustra, edited with translations in Sanskrit, English, and Gujeratī, by J. M. Chatterjee and A. N. Bilimoria</td>
<td>57, 504</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gāṭha Ahunavaitī, First three Chapters of (Article by Dr. I. J. S. Taraporewala, in the Bombay Theosophical Bulletin)</td>
<td>586</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gāthā, The Ethical Conceptions of the,</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PAGE</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>------</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gāyatrī 575</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gītā, (G.). Throughout. Gītā, Persian translation of, by Faizi 286</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Granthā, or Guru Granthā Sāhab 5, 403, 624</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Great Design, The, edited by F. Mason 24, 26, 29</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Great Learning, by Confucius 407</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gulshan-i-Rāz 114, 257, 429</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Guptavaṭī Tikā on Durgā-saṣṭa-shaṭṭī 189</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Guru Gītā 215, 535</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>H</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hadīs, or the Sayings of Muḥammat, (H.) Throughout</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hadīs, collected by Abu Daūd 288</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hadīs, collected by Daīlamī 289</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hadīs, collected by Tirmīzī 99</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hari-Vamsa Purāṇa, by Jīna-sēna Achārya 529</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>History of Chinese Philosophy, by Su-zǖkī 61, 195, 349, 452</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>History of Chinese Philosophy, by Y. L. Fung 420</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>History of Christianity, A Short, by J. M. Robertson 350, 420, 576, 702</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>History of Philosophy in Islam, by Dr. T. J. de Boer 190</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>History of Philosophy, by Schwégler 63</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>History of the Popes, by Ranke 533, 604, 703</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>History of the Jews, by Hosmer 540</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>History of the Jews, by Goodman 541</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>History of Civilisation in Palestine, by Ma-calister 541</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>History of Greece, by A. Holm 541, 703</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>History of Our Times, art., in, by John Ross 592</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>History, Outline of, by H. G. Wells 661</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>History of the World, A Short, by H. G. Wells 659, 700</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hīt-opadēsha 388, 404, 520</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hsiao King (Classic of Filial Piety), by Confucius 396</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PAGE</td>
<td>PAGE</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>------</td>
<td>------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>217</td>
<td>K</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>34</td>
<td>KABALA, see Qabbālā.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>508</td>
<td>Kāma-Sūtra, by Vāt-</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>282</td>
<td>syāyana</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>461</td>
<td>Katha Upanishaṭ</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>513</td>
<td>282,</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>728</td>
<td>461, 513, 728</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>205</td>
<td>Kaushtāki Upanishaṭ</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>146</td>
<td>Kēvattā Sutta</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>192</td>
<td>146, 192</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>295</td>
<td>Kṛṣṇa, a Study in</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>the Theory of Ava-</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>ūtāras, by Bhagavan</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Das</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>691</td>
<td>J</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>164</td>
<td>Jain Dharmākā</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>636</td>
<td>Mahāṭṭvā</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>505</td>
<td>Jāp, by Guru Govinda</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Sinha</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>30</td>
<td>Japan, by Dr. Inazo</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Nitobe 11, 47, 55, 61,</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>95, 213, 505</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>30</td>
<td>Japanese Philosophy,</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>by Tētsujirō Inouye</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Jewish Mysticism, by</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>J. Abelson 130, 260,</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>268, 284, 328</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>30</td>
<td>Jews under Roman</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Rule, by Morrison</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>541, 547, 604</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>362</td>
<td>Jūn-ārṇava, by Shu-</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>bha Chandra 304, 362</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>671</td>
<td>Journal of Philo-</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>spheric Studies, art.,</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>in, by Prof. J. S.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Mackenzie</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>30</td>
<td>Leader, The, (daily, of</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Allahabad)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>774</td>
<td>Lecture on Science and</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Society, by Prof. Crew</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>General F. P. Croz-</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Zier</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Sir James Jeans</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Miss Muriel Lester 35</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Sir Oliver Lodge 22</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Sir William Ro-</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>bertson 33</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Viscount H. Sam-</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>uel 39</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>360</td>
<td>Light of Asia, The, by</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Sir Edwin Arnold 360,</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>591, 633</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>178</td>
<td>Light on the Path</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>375</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Page</td>
<td>Title</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-------</td>
<td>----------------------------------------------------------------------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Li-ki</td>
<td>45, 243, 598, 729</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Limitations of Science, by J.W.N. Sullivan</td>
<td>23</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lives, by Plutarch</td>
<td>524</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>M</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Madhyamika-Karika, by Nagarjuna</td>
<td>160, 161</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mahabharata (Mbh.) Throughout</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mahavira-Vanti</td>
<td>691, 725</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mahamangala-Sutta</td>
<td>391</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mahapurana, (Jaina)</td>
<td>362</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mahatma Letters, The 28, 466, 616, 748</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mahavagga</td>
<td>244</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Maitriya Up.</td>
<td>166</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ma Muqimah, by We-sali</td>
<td>162, 306, 345</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Man-lagan, by Bahr</td>
<td>476</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Manuel-Smrti (M.) Throughout</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Man, the Unknown, by Alexis Carrel</td>
<td>577</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Marcus, the Epicurean, by Walter Pater</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Martyrdom of Man, by Winwood Reade</td>
<td>533</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>MatakabhattaJataka</td>
<td>403</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Maxim, Nyaya</td>
<td>153</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot;   Scholastic</td>
<td>153</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Maxim, Arabian Philosophical</td>
<td>138, 142</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot; Greek</td>
<td>482</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot; Hinduista</td>
<td>381</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot; Kabbalist</td>
<td>281</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot; Jaina</td>
<td>644</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot; Persian Philosophical</td>
<td>63</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot; Latin Philosophical 63, 156, 200, 339, 537</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot; Egyptian</td>
<td>328</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot; Chinese</td>
<td>341</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot; Vedaanta 165, 282, 443</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Metaphysics, by Sir William Hamilton</td>
<td>340</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Midrash Rabba</td>
<td>130</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mimamsa Shloka-Varti, by Kumara</td>
<td>165</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mishna Aboth</td>
<td>732</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Modern Book of Knowledge</td>
<td>13</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Modern Man in Search of a Soul, by C.G. Jung</td>
<td>700</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Modern Review, The (monthly, of Calcutta)</td>
<td>27, 253</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mohammedanism, by Hurgronje</td>
<td>524</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Montessori and her Inspirers, by R.J. Fynne</td>
<td>792</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mowrer in China</td>
<td>667</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mukti Upanishat</td>
<td>454</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>My Country and My People, by Lin</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Book/Author</td>
<td>Page(s)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>---------------------------------------------------------------------------</td>
<td>---------------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>INDEX OF BOOKS AND WRITINGS</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PAGE</td>
<td>PAGE</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Yutang 44, 123, 222, 267, 396, 666</td>
<td>Philosophy of Mind, by Hegel 566</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mysterious Universe, by Sir James Jeans 24</td>
<td>Philosophy of Islām, by Khājā Khān 279, 281, 322, 351</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>N</td>
<td>Phaedrus, by Plato 705, 728</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Naishāḍha, by Śrī-Harsha 91</td>
<td>Place of Christianity in the Religions of the World, The, by J. E. Carpenter 85, 93, 96, 286, 791</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>New Background of Science, by Sir James Jeans 23</td>
<td>Poem, by Aṭṭār 86</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nīrūkṭā, by Yāśka 280, 606, 719</td>
<td>W</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nītī-vākyā, by Soma-dēva Sūri 528</td>
<td>William Blake 54</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>O</td>
<td>Bhartṛ-hari 338, 432</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ode to Immortality, by Wordsworth 152</td>
<td>Browning 397</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Outline of Science 13</td>
<td>Robert Burns 411</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>P</td>
<td>Mūnūddīn Chishti 557</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Parā-Pūjā 617</td>
<td>Coleridge 596, 597</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pāḍmā-Chariṭā, by Ravishēna 691</td>
<td>Hāfiz 391, 536</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Paradise Lost and Regained, by Milton 456</td>
<td>George Herbert 342</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Paṭeṭ Pashēmāṇī 736</td>
<td>St. John of the Cross 519</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Philosophy, art. in, by Dean Inge 27</td>
<td>Omar Khayyām 251, 559</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>P</td>
<td>Khūsrau 309</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W</td>
<td>Longfellow 431</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mīrā 356</td>
<td>Mīrā 356</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>N</td>
<td>Nazīr 310</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W</td>
<td>Cardinal Newman 518, 594</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W</td>
<td>Niyāz 311</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W</td>
<td>Pope 323, 432</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W</td>
<td>Proclus 594</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PAGE</td>
<td>PAGE</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>------</td>
<td>------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Poem, James Rhodes 619</td>
<td>Quest for God in China, by F. W. S. O’Neill 616</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot; Rūmī, Maulānā 86</td>
<td>&quot; Qurān, (Q.). Throughout</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot; Sarmād 560-565</td>
<td>R</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot; Scheffler 456</td>
<td>Ramāyaṇa, by Tulasi Pās 215, 608</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot; Sir Walter Scott 475, 596</td>
<td>Ramāyaṇa, by Vālmiki 481, 691</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot; Shelley 474</td>
<td>Raṭna-Karanda-Shrāvaka, Āchāra, by Samanta-bhadra 528</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot; Sūr Pās 475</td>
<td>Reader’s Digest, New York 536, 789</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot; Shams Ṭabarz 149, 558</td>
<td>Religions of Ancient China, The, by H.D. Gibbs 213</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot; Tennyson 95, 339, 431, 456, 606</td>
<td>Religions of the World, The 112, 620</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot; Francis Thompson 490</td>
<td>Revelations of Divine Love, by Mother Juliana 510</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot; Unknown (or Anon.) 195-6, 241, 463-4, 487, 597, 804, 812</td>
<td>Ṛg Veda 156, 159, 301, 525, 668</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot; Ella Wheeler Wilcox 813</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Prayer for Peace 816</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Prefaces, by G. B. Shaw 15</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Psychological Types, by C. G. Jung 62, 111, 141, 198</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Purāṇas 230, 268, 280, 453, 502, 733</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

\[ Q \]

Qaḥ ḍālāh (or Kabbala) 59, 229, 231
Quantitative Study of Trance-Personalities, by W Carrington 254

\[ S \]

Sacred Books of the East, (SBE.) 163
Samādhi-shataka 622
Samanvaya, by Bhagavān Pās 417
INDEX OF BOOKS AND WRITINGS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Title</th>
<th>Page Numbers</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Sāmāyika Pātha, by Amiṭagaṭi</td>
<td>194, 276</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sānāṭana Vaiḍika Dharma, The Principles of, by Bhagavan Das</td>
<td>107, 692</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sānkhya-Kārikā</td>
<td>298, 482</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sānkhya-Yoga</td>
<td>256</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sankshēpa-Shāriraka, by Sarvajña Muni</td>
<td>156</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sartor Resartus, by Carlyle</td>
<td>153</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sayings of All 143, 552, 637</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot; &quot; Solon</td>
<td>314</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Science and Psychical Phenomena, by G. N. M. Tyrell</td>
<td>22</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Science of Life, by H. G. Wells, Julian Huxley, and G. P. Wells</td>
<td>234</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Science of Emotions, by Bhagavan Das</td>
<td>438, 447</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Science of Peace, by Bhagavan Das</td>
<td>24, 32, 64, 128, 280, 326, 345, 682, 693</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Science of the Sacred Word, or Prāṇava-Vāḍa of Gārgyāyana, by Bhagavan Das</td>
<td>144, 345</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Science of the Self, by Bhagavan Das</td>
<td>24, 32, 40, 64, 128, 144, 278</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Science of Social Organisation, or The Laws of Manu, by Bhagavan Das</td>
<td>37, 74, 120, 232, 297, 426, 595, 650, 683, 701</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Secret Doctrine, The, by H. P. Blavatsky</td>
<td>430</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Secret of the Golden Flower, a Chinese Book of Life, by Wilhelm and Jung</td>
<td>61, 266, 277</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Seven Baskets</td>
<td>291</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Shakunṭalā, by Kālidāsa</td>
<td>139</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Shao Yung</td>
<td>213</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Shape of Things to Come, by H. G. Wells</td>
<td>659</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Shāriraka-Bhāṣyā, (on Brahma Sūtra of Bādārāyaṇa), by Shankarāchārya</td>
<td>207, 373, 427</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Shaṭa-pāṭha Brahma-na</td>
<td>147, 480, 500</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Shat-pāṭi, by Shankarāchārya</td>
<td>214</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Shi-King, by Confucius</td>
<td>45</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Title</td>
<td>Page</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>----------------------------------------------------------------------</td>
<td>------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Shin’ō Ōmura, by Haya-ishi Razan</td>
<td>213</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Shin’ōist writings, (Sh.) Throughout</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Shiva-Mahima-Sūṭi 76</td>
<td>200</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Shiva Purāṇa</td>
<td>101</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Short Studies in Great Subjects, by Froude</td>
<td>10</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Shu-King, by Confucius</td>
<td>84, 138, 244, 449, 503, 598</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Shukra-Nīti</td>
<td>804</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Śvēt-āśvatara Upanishat</td>
<td>115, 187</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sikh Writings, (Si.) Throughout</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Simpleton of the Unexpected Isles, by G.B. Shaw</td>
<td>15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Smṛtis</td>
<td>280</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Social Environment and Moral Progress, by A.R. Wallace</td>
<td>25</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Social Reconstruction, Psychological Principles of, by Bhagavan Das</td>
<td>37</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Soviet Spies</td>
<td>789</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sohar. See Zohar</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Story of the Human Race, by Henry Thomas</td>
<td>708</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Story of the Bible, by Macleod Yearsley</td>
<td>148, 391, 547</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Story of Philosophy, by Will Durant</td>
<td>48</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Śuṭra</td>
<td>517</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Studies in Islamic Mysticism, by R.A. Nicholson</td>
<td>273</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Studies in Ṭaṣawwuf, by Khājā Kānān</td>
<td>322</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sūfī Writings, (S.). Throughout</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sushruta</td>
<td>44</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Suṭṭa Nipāṭa, Vusalah-suṭṭa</td>
<td>689</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sūḍ-vāḍa</td>
<td>160</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>T</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tai Shang Kan Ying Pien</td>
<td>244, 405, 599</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Taiṣṭṭiriya Brāhmaṇa</td>
<td>525</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Talisman, by Sir Walter Scott</td>
<td>475</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Talmiḍ</td>
<td>282, 283</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ṭantra</td>
<td>195</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Taoist Writings, (T.)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Throughout</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tao-Teh-King</td>
<td>45, 62, 111, 124, 151, 162, 305, 479, 484, 717, 722, 798, 814</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tārīkh-i-Hamdām, by Ḍailami</td>
<td>289</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tatṛv-artha Sūtra, by Uṃā-Svāmi</td>
<td>114</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Theosophical Bulletin, Bombay</td>
<td>586</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Theosophist, (monthly, of Adyar, Madras)</td>
<td>254, 260</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Title</td>
<td>Page</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>---------------------------------------------------------------------</td>
<td>-------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Thibetan Book of the Dead, by Evans-Wentz</td>
<td>277</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Three Essays on Consciousness, by W. Carrington</td>
<td>254</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Trāi-varṇika-āchāra, by Soma-sēna Bhatāraka</td>
<td>529</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Travels in Thibet, by Abbé Huc</td>
<td>642</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Treasure-House of Living Religions, (THR.), by R.E. Hume. Throughout.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tripāḍ-Vibhūti-Mahā-Nārāyaṇa-Upanishat</td>
<td>228</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Uudāna-vagga</td>
<td>78, 146, 410</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Universal Text-Book of Religion and Morals, by Annie Besant</td>
<td>232, 259, 447</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Union in Common Worship</td>
<td>585, 590</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Upanishats, (U.). Throughout</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Uttar-ādhyayana-Sūtra</td>
<td>691</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>V</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vaisheshika-Sūtra, by Kaṇāda</td>
<td>68, 583</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vāsishtha Smṛti</td>
<td>719</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vāyu Purāṇa</td>
<td>232, 283</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Veda, (V.). Throughout</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Veniḍāḍa</td>
<td>630</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Viṣṇu-Niti</td>
<td>414, 714</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vichiṭṭa Nātaka, by Guru Govinda Simha</td>
<td>592</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vinaya Paṭrikā, by Ṭulasi Dās</td>
<td>215</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vishṇu Purāṇa</td>
<td>473, 733</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vīśńūṣp</td>
<td>471</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Vusala-Sutta</td>
<td>689</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>We Europeans, by Julian Huxley</td>
<td>682</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Willows, The, by Algernon Blackwood</td>
<td>515</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>With Mystics and Magicians in Thibet, by Mme. Alexandra Neel</td>
<td>610</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>World-Fellowship, edited by Charles F. Weller</td>
<td>788, 816</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>World War and Its Only Cure—World Order and World Religion, by Bhagavan Das</td>
<td>37, 645, 660</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Writings of Amiṭṭa-gaṭṭi194</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot; Amiṭṭa Chanḍra Sūri</td>
<td>47, 363</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot; Aristotle</td>
<td>73</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot; Asanga</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot; St. Augustine</td>
<td>156</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Writings of Ausonias 190
" Bhāga Chandra 209
" Bhūdhara 162
" Compton, A. H. 28
" Eddington, Sir A. S. 28
" Faizl 286
" St. Francis of Assissi 482
" Haldane, J.B.S. 27
" Hēma Chandra 263, 264
" Heraclitus 63, 176
" Inge, Dean 27, 176
" Jeans, Sir James 253
" Kabīr 459, 635, 718
" Kwang (or Chwang or Chuang) Tze (or Tsu, or Tse or Tzu) 163, 243, 409, 418, 420, 734, 811
" Kwān-yin-tse 195
" Mather, K.F. 28
" Maisky, M. 43
" Millikan, R.A. 28
" Mencius 409, 420, 505
" Nakae, Tāju 198
" Plotinus 282
" Sā'dī 127, 238, 292, 378, 575, 731
" Samanṭa-Bhādṛa 104, 361

Writings of Shankarāchārya 66, 207, 314, 319, 373, 385, 472, 479, 557, 765
" Shubha Chandra 362, 363, 364
" Soma-đēva 361
" Sunderland, J.F. 27
" Wang Yang Ming 141
" Dr. Westcott 554

Y
Yajur-Vēda 669
Yashī, (Or muzd or Hurmuṇḍ) (Z.) 147, 351
Yasna 78, 118, 318, 489
Yoga-Sūtra, by Pātanjali 174, 198, 277, 370, 373, 482, 713, 753, 756
Yoga-Sūtra-Bhāṣṭya, by Vyāsa 50, 174, 331, 513, 618
Yoga-Vāsisṛtha 149, 189, 206, 315, 345, 552
Zend-Avestā, (Z.) Throughout.

Z
Zohar (or Sohar), 217, 231, 260, 280, 305, 327
Zoroastrian Writings. (Z.) Throughout.
INDEX OF SANSKR̥T WORDS

(English equivalents will be found beside the words on pages referred to. Hyphen indicates junction-point between a prefix and main word, or between two words in a compound word. See also Appendix for words not included here.)

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>PAGE</th>
<th>A-dvitiya</th>
<th>150, 156</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Agama</td>
<td>141</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Agha</td>
<td>474</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Agni</td>
<td>301, 351</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Agni-agara</td>
<td>606</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Agni-hostra</td>
<td>606</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Agni-shomiyam jagaṭ</td>
<td>61</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Aham</td>
<td>143, 195, 196, 345</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Aham-Eṣṭaṭ-Na</td>
<td>144, 345</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Aham-kāra</td>
<td>184, 428, 432, 450, 472, 511, 760</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Aham-Sah</td>
<td>192</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ahāra-ichchhā</td>
<td>433</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ahāra-sanjñā</td>
<td>433</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>A-himsā</td>
<td>401, 423, 437, 493</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Aishvarya</td>
<td>58, 86, 352, 531</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Aiti-hāsika</td>
<td>280</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ajapa-Gāyaṭri</td>
<td>192,575,595</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>A-jñāna</td>
<td>439</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>A-kāma</td>
<td>57</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Akāraṇam</td>
<td>190</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Akāra-nirā-karaṇa</td>
<td>325</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Akāsha</td>
<td>192</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Page</td>
<td>Page</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>------</td>
<td>------</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Alpa-ātmā</td>
<td>A-prati-dvam-dvah</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Amara-vāruṇi</td>
<td>A-prati-pakshah</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(A.-P., Ab-i-hayāt)</td>
<td>Āpsarā</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Amit-ābha</td>
<td>Ārambha-vāda</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Amsha</td>
<td>Ārdha-nāri-Ishvara</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>100, 285</td>
<td>59</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Amsh-avatāra</td>
<td>Arhaṭ</td>
<td>7, 188, 285, 468</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>265, 322</td>
<td>Āroha</td>
<td>122, 220, 332, 477</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>An-āhaṭa nāḍa</td>
<td>(mārga 332, paṭha)</td>
<td>375</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(A.-P., Sauṭ-i-sarmaḍḍ)</td>
<td>Artha (= meaning)</td>
<td>134,</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>192</td>
<td>713 ; (= wealth)</td>
<td>296,</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>An-amivasya</td>
<td>435, 526, 527</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>381</td>
<td>Artha-charyā</td>
<td>402</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ānandha</td>
<td>Ārya</td>
<td>96</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>198</td>
<td>Ārya-Dharma</td>
<td>109</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ānandha-maya-kosha</td>
<td>A-sahāyah</td>
<td>60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>263</td>
<td>Āsana (= prayer-mat)</td>
<td>640 ; (= Yoga-posture) 753</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>An-anṭa</td>
<td>A-saṭnāh</td>
<td>60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>327</td>
<td>A-saṭ</td>
<td>89, 328, 333, 429</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>An-Anyah</td>
<td>A-saṭtvam</td>
<td>122</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>60</td>
<td>A-sarvaṇa</td>
<td>676</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>An-ēka</td>
<td>Asht-āṅgā-Ārya-Mārga</td>
<td>109</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>759</td>
<td>Āshaya</td>
<td>434</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>An-ēka-ānta-vāḍa</td>
<td>Asmi</td>
<td>147, 148, 193</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>47</td>
<td>Asmiṭā</td>
<td>184, 135, 428, 473</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>An-ēka-tā</td>
<td>(nirōḍha)</td>
<td>631</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>450, 686</td>
<td>(tyāga)</td>
<td>110</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Anna-dānam</td>
<td>Asṭi</td>
<td>167</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>718</td>
<td>Asu-rah (= God) 60 ;</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Anna-maya-kosha</td>
<td>(= tītan)</td>
<td>267, 760</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>263</td>
<td>Asura-Mahād-dhā</td>
<td>86</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Annam-Brahma</td>
<td>Āṭi-vāhika</td>
<td>273, 276</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>382</td>
<td>Āṭmā (Āṭmani) 110, 140,</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Anna-paṭē</td>
<td>219, 263, 299; (etymology of) 436; (as seventh principle in Theosophy)</td>
<td>516, 760</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>381</td>
<td>Anṭa</td>
<td>57</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Aṇṭah-prakāśha</td>
<td>Aṇṭar-ṛṣṭhi</td>
<td>211, 444</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>740</td>
<td>Aṇṭar-hṛdaye</td>
<td>143</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Aṇṭar-yāmi</td>
<td>139, 271, 742</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>740</td>
<td>Aṇṭa</td>
<td>57</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Aṇṭu</td>
<td>Aṇṭu-graha</td>
<td>397, 486</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>167</td>
<td>Aṇṭu-māna</td>
<td>740</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Aṇṭu-graha</td>
<td>Aṇṭu-rāga</td>
<td>546</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>397, 486</td>
<td>Aṇṭaṇaḥ</td>
<td>157, 345</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Aṇṭhah-prakāśha</td>
<td>Aṇṭih-vidyā</td>
<td>134</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>740</td>
<td>Aṇṭih-vidyā</td>
<td>134</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Aṇṭhah-prakāśa</td>
<td>Aṇṭhah-prakāśha</td>
<td>740</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Aṇṭar-ṛṣṭhi</td>
<td>211, 444</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Antar-ṛṣṭhi</td>
<td>Aṇṭar-hṛdaye</td>
<td>143</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>139, 271, 742</td>
<td>Aṇṭar-ṛṣṭhi</td>
<td>211, 444</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Aṇṭu</td>
<td>Aṇṭu-graha</td>
<td>397, 486</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>167</td>
<td>Aṇṭu-māna</td>
<td>740</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Aṇṭu-graha</td>
<td>Aṇṭu-rāga</td>
<td>546</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>397, 486</td>
<td>Aṇṭaṇaḥ</td>
<td>157, 345</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Aṇṭaṇaḥ</td>
<td>Aṇṭih-vidyā</td>
<td>134</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>157, 345</td>
<td>Aṇṭih-vidyā</td>
<td>134</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Aṇṭaṇaḥ</td>
<td>Aṇṭih-vidyā</td>
<td>134</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>157, 345</td>
<td>Aṇṭih-vidyā</td>
<td>134</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Aṇṭaṇaḥ</td>
<td>Aṇṭih-vidyā</td>
<td>134</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>157, 345</td>
<td>Aṇṭih-vidyā</td>
<td>134</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>SANSKRIT WORDS</td>
<td>PAGE</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>----------------</td>
<td>------</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ātmānanda</td>
<td>303</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ātmādvaita-saśā</td>
<td>89</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ātma-jñāna</td>
<td>526</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-lābha</td>
<td>303</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-raśī</td>
<td>303</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-tāptah</td>
<td>60</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-tāpti</td>
<td>303</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-tushti</td>
<td>603</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-vidyā</td>
<td>40</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Āty-anṭ-āṭ-iṭa</td>
<td>326</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Aum</td>
<td>1, 192, 585, 589</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Āvaraṇa</td>
<td>328, 438, 439, 769</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Av-āroha</td>
<td>122, 220, 332, 477</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-mārga</td>
<td>332</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-paṭha</td>
<td>375</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ava-sarpinī</td>
<td>123</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Avasīya</td>
<td>92, 614</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Avaṭāra</td>
<td>7, 26, 134, 170, 265, 285, 294, 319, 353, 546, 646, 687</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Āvēsha</td>
<td>26, 322</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-vidyā</td>
<td>123, 188, 189, 335, 428, 431, 436, 472, 473, 688, 777</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-vyakta</td>
<td>57, 651</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>B</th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>BADDHA</td>
<td>431</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bahuṭva</td>
<td>759</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bahu syām</td>
<td>433</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bahu-dhā syām</td>
<td>433</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bali-dāna</td>
<td>627</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bandha</td>
<td>123, 760</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bandha-dharma</td>
<td>109</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bhaga</td>
<td>86</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SANSKRIT WORDS</th>
<th>PAGE</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Bhagavat-bhakṭi</td>
<td>357</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bhaga-vān</td>
<td>86</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bhagavat-kīrṇā. See Ishvara-anugraha.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bhakṛta</td>
<td>134</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bhakti</td>
<td>114</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bhakti-mārga</td>
<td>113</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bhakti-rasa</td>
<td>303</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bhāshya</td>
<td>603</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bhava</td>
<td>57</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bhāva</td>
<td>753</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bhāvād-vaiśam</td>
<td>742</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bhava-tṛṣṇā</td>
<td>433</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bhēḍa</td>
<td>166, 430</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-buddhi</td>
<td>171, 185, 450</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bhikṣhu</td>
<td>78, 134, 368, 533, 641</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-sangha</td>
<td>78</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bhīma-guṇas</td>
<td>59</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bhoja</td>
<td>640</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bhūh</td>
<td>272</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bhūmā</td>
<td>303</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bhūmi</td>
<td>270</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bhuvah</td>
<td>272</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bhuvana</td>
<td>266, 272</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bodhi-sattva</td>
<td>285</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Brahma-bhūṭa</td>
<td>452</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-bhāva</td>
<td>298</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-bhūya</td>
<td>450</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PAGE</td>
<td>Chiṣṭa-parikarma</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>------------</td>
<td>----------------------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Brahmacharya 437, 494, 695</td>
<td>-līna-ṭā 298, 302</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Brāhmaṇa 111, 135, 664</td>
<td>685, 688, 689, 690, 691, 692, 693, 694, 772, 773, 778, 806</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Brahm-ānanda 298, 357</td>
<td>526</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Brahm-ānda 271</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Brahma-nirvāṇa 760</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-nishthā 293</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-purī 610</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-raṇḍhra 522</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-(a) smi 147</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-ṣṭhā-ṭā 298</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-vāḍī 743</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-vākya 602</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-vidyā 40</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-viṣ 531</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Buḍḍhas 7, 189, 285</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Buḍḍhi 109, 263, 298, 516, 538</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>C</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CHAIṬANYAM</th>
<th>PAGE</th>
<th>DEVA 1, 3, 86, 101, 179, 267, 352, 471, 472, 546, 581, 632, 760</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Chaṅya-sāmānya</td>
<td>300</td>
<td>Dév-ālaya 639</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chakra</td>
<td>523</td>
<td>Dévarshi 468</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chāndra-masa-jyōṭih</td>
<td>58</td>
<td>Déva-shāyanī 171</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chāritṛya</td>
<td>114</td>
<td>Dévaṭā 101</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chaṭuṛ-dhāma</td>
<td>611</td>
<td>Dévātra 642</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chiṭ 59, 172, 190, 300, 349, 742</td>
<td></td>
<td>Dév-ottāna 171</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chiti</td>
<td>172</td>
<td>Déya 504</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chin (ṭ)-mayah</td>
<td>60</td>
<td>Dhanam 435</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chitra-gupta</td>
<td>172, 742</td>
<td>Dhana-ichchhā 433</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chiṣṭa</td>
<td>190, 300, 469</td>
<td>Dharma 68, 98, 104, 105, 108, 109, 112, 113</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PAGE</td>
<td>INDEX OF SAMSKRT WORDS</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>------</td>
<td>-------------------------</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>170, 171, 291, 296, 435, 526, 528, 759</td>
<td>Dvitiya-janma 630</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>641</td>
<td>Dyaur-nishā 585</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dharma-ādhikārī</td>
<td>E</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dharma-dāya</td>
<td>EKĀ-PASHI 170, 627</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dharma-kāya</td>
<td>Ekah 60, 205</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dharma-rakshā</td>
<td>Ėkam 150, 759</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dharma-shālā</td>
<td>Eka-tī 450, 686, 759</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dharma-shūratā</td>
<td>Eka-varṇa-tā 75</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dharma-āṭmā</td>
<td>Ekt-bhāva 303</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dharmaṭra</td>
<td>Eśaṇā 433</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dharmi</td>
<td>Etaṭ 144</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>205, 759</td>
<td>G</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dhatā</td>
<td>GANĀ 267</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>59, 530</td>
<td>Gandharvas 267</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dhauṭi</td>
<td>Gauṇa 100</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>614</td>
<td>Gaurī 350</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>614</td>
<td>Gaurī-Kāli 344</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>753</td>
<td>Gāyaṭri 192</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>131</td>
<td>Ghantā 640</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>268</td>
<td>Ghora 58</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>134</td>
<td>Goalmedha 632</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>171</td>
<td>Gopa 640</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>249</td>
<td>Gṛha-ṣṭha 134</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>471</td>
<td>Guhya 134</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>585</td>
<td>Guṇa 54, 58, 280, 326, 349, 450, 683, 759</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>135</td>
<td>Guṇa-vaṭ 63</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>319</td>
<td>Gupta 134</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-dṛṣṭi</td>
<td>Gupta-chitra 742</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>740</td>
<td>Gupta-vidyā 135</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>263</td>
<td>Guptaḥ 123</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>63, 450</td>
<td>Guṇa-vaṭ 63</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>63</td>
<td>Gupta 134</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>811</td>
<td>Gupta-chitra 742</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>182</td>
<td>Gupta-vidyā 135</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>322</td>
<td>Gupti 123</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>60</td>
<td>Guṇa-vaṭ 63</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>89</td>
<td>Guru 215, 523, 535, 800</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>322</td>
<td>-kṛpā 486</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>473</td>
<td>Dvēsha 182, 198, 473</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>430</td>
<td>Dvitiya 430</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Essential Unity of All Religions

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>HARA</th>
<th>PAGE</th>
<th>JAGARANA</th>
<th>PAGE</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>HARA</td>
<td>57</td>
<td>JAGARAN</td>
<td>631</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hatha-yogi</td>
<td>131</td>
<td>JAGAT</td>
<td>49, 333, 391</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>HAYI-HAYI</td>
<td>193</td>
<td>JAGRAH</td>
<td>272</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>HOLI</td>
<td>171</td>
<td>JANAH</td>
<td>272</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>HUVAA-HAYI</td>
<td>193</td>
<td>JAPA</td>
<td>631, 753</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>HUVAA-HOYI</td>
<td>193</td>
<td>JIVA</td>
<td>62, 122, 281, 391, 431, 439, 463, 509, 528, 706</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>HIMSAA</td>
<td>424, 425</td>
<td>JIV-ATMA</td>
<td>122, 180, 198, 214, 299, 431</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>HINDU-DRAMA</td>
<td>139</td>
<td>JIVAN-MUKTA</td>
<td>319, 332, 452</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>HIRANYA-GARBHA</td>
<td>271</td>
<td>JNA</td>
<td>67, 114, 116, 355, 569, 713, 753</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>HITAM</td>
<td>752</td>
<td>-DEHA</td>
<td>276</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>HRDAY-ABHY-ANU-JNA</td>
<td>603</td>
<td>-KANDA</td>
<td>121</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>HRDAYA-GRANTHI</td>
<td>434</td>
<td>-MARGA</td>
<td>113, 570</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>HRDAYAM</td>
<td>143</td>
<td>JNAH - BHAKTA</td>
<td>134</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ICHCHHA</td>
<td>114, 116, 182, 569</td>
<td>JNAAT</td>
<td>60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>IDAM</td>
<td>147</td>
<td>JYESHTHATH</td>
<td>514</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>IJYA</td>
<td>718</td>
<td>JOYOTIR-LINGA</td>
<td>615</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>INTRA</td>
<td>351</td>
<td>JYOISHAM-JYOITIH</td>
<td>101</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>INDRIYA-NIGRAHA</td>
<td>631</td>
<td>K</td>
<td>123</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ISHTA</td>
<td>504</td>
<td>KAIVALYA</td>
<td>153, 187, 189</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ISHTA-DÉVA</td>
<td>546, 575</td>
<td>KALA</td>
<td>627</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ISHVARA</td>
<td>56, 58, 62, 86, 189, 391, 463</td>
<td>KALA-KSHEPA</td>
<td>285</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-PRASAD</td>
<td>486</td>
<td>KALASHA</td>
<td>640</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-PRA-NI-DHANA</td>
<td>...</td>
<td>KALA-VAETARA</td>
<td>323</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ITARA, ITARAT</td>
<td>157, 430, 760</td>
<td>KALPA</td>
<td>265</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ITARA-TA</td>
<td>122, 299</td>
<td>KALYANA (KALANOS, PROPER NAME)</td>
<td>90; (=EXCELLENT) 530</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ITAR-ABHASA</td>
<td>89</td>
<td>-ATMA</td>
<td>180</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

J

| JADA-DEHA | 276 | K | 123 |
| JAGAD-ATMA | 238 | KALA | 627 |
| KALASHA | 640 | KALPA | 265 |
| KALAVAETARA | 323 | KALYANA (KALANOS, PROPER NAME) | 90; (=EXCELLENT) 530 |
| KALPA | 265 | -ATMA | 180 |
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>PAGE</th>
<th>PAGE</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Kalyāṇa-guṇas (≡ benevolent attributes) 59, 535</td>
<td>Kriyā 114, 117, 569</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kāma 179, 296, 428, 435, 437, 468, 494, 522, 524, 525, 526, 527, 528, 529</td>
<td>- (a)-dvaitam 742</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kāma-jatā 434</td>
<td>Kroḍha 428, 437, 494</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-rūpa 263</td>
<td>Kṛpana 542</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-sankalpa 122, 335, 439</td>
<td>Kṛṣṇa-līlā 627</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-tṛṣṇā 433</td>
<td>Kṛṣṭha 146</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kāmi (Japanese word) 110</td>
<td>Kṛṣṭya 505</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kāmya 97</td>
<td>Krūraṭā 174</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kanda 523</td>
<td>Khamā-vān 58</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kānta 58</td>
<td>Kḥapaṇa 533</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kāraṇa 263, 271</td>
<td>Khaṭṭriya 664, 665, 685, 690; (Khaṭṭiyā) 691, 693, 694, 773</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Karma 117, 189, 237; (the word) 238, 250, 257, 277</td>
<td>Kṣhema-sādhana 397</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Karma (Law of) 170, 237, 241</td>
<td>Kṣhema-sādhaka 397</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Karma-kānda 573</td>
<td>Kshiti 351</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Karma-kāndī 134</td>
<td>Kshobha 469</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Karma-mārga 113, 570</td>
<td>Kṣudra-virāt 271, 278</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kārmaṇa-sharīra 271</td>
<td>Kumāra 285</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kartā 189</td>
<td>Kūta-śtha 244</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Karuṇā 173, 438, 530</td>
<td>LĀBHA 351</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kashyapa 471</td>
<td>Lakshmi 350</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kaṭha (Recitation and expounding of scriptural legends) 627</td>
<td>Lilā 123, 330, 332, 333, 436, 439</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kēvalah 137</td>
<td>Linga-sharīra 263</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Khē-chaṇa 273</td>
<td>Lobha 427, 494</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kṛṣṭi 434</td>
<td>Loka 266, 272</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Klēsha 123, 225, 330, 473</td>
<td>Loka-hiṣṭ-ēhā 293</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kosha 273</td>
<td>Loka-ēshanā 433, 494</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kraṭu 59</td>
<td>Loka-māṭā 390</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Krīdā 90, 333</td>
<td>Loka-pāla 268</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>MAḌA 427</td>
<td>MAḌHU 58</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PAGE</td>
<td>PAGE</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>------</td>
<td>------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Madhura</td>
<td>Manushya-ta</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Madhurya</td>
<td>Marga</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Madhyam</td>
<td>Maru-marichika</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Madhyama paripati</td>
<td>Matha</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Madhyamika</td>
<td>Mathara</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mahaa-atma</td>
<td>Maya</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mahaa-bhava</td>
<td>330, 333, 344, 391,</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mahaa-deva</td>
<td>-lila</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mahah</td>
<td>Mayavi</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mahaa-kala</td>
<td>Mayavic</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-yuga</td>
<td>Maitri</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mahaa-karan</td>
<td>Mithmasa</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-karunaa-chittam</td>
<td>Mithyaa-itarata</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-Mangala-Sutta</td>
<td>Mlecchha</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Maharshi</td>
<td>Moha</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mahaat</td>
<td>Moksha</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-buddhi</td>
<td>296, 355, 526, 527,</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-dhaa</td>
<td>Mukta</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mahaa-vakya</td>
<td>Mukti</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mahaa-virat</td>
<td>Mulaa</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mahayam</td>
<td>Mula-prakriti</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Maithuna-sanjaa</td>
<td>Muni</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Makara-sana</td>
<td>N</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mamsa-varjana</td>
<td>NA</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Manah, Manas</td>
<td>Naishthika - brahma-</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Manasaputra</td>
<td>Nama</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Manavadharm</td>
<td>Namah</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Manavaprema</td>
<td>Namamama</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mandira</td>
<td>Namarupa</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Manju-shri</td>
<td>Apalapa</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Manomaya-kosha</td>
<td>Namas-kara</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Manovak-karma</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mantra</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-darshana</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Manu</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Manushya</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nānap-ṛva</td>
<td>759</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Naraka</td>
<td>266</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nāram</td>
<td>179</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nashvara</td>
<td>333</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nāṣṭika-ṛā</td>
<td>706</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nigrha</td>
<td>397</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nir-aham-kāra</td>
<td>176</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nir-aham-kāri-ṛā</td>
<td>438, 493</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nir-karaṇa</td>
<td>332</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nir-anjana</td>
<td>219, 326</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nir-ava-ch hhinna</td>
<td>159</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nir-bija</td>
<td>753</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nir-guṇa</td>
<td>159, 326</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nir-jalā</td>
<td>171</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nir-mala</td>
<td>326</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nir-māṇa-kāya</td>
<td>271, 276</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ni-roḍha</td>
<td>123, 469</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ni-roḍha-chiṭṭam</td>
<td>469</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nir-vāna</td>
<td>272, 297</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nir-vēda</td>
<td>173, 177</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nir-vikalpa</td>
<td>753</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nir-vishēsha</td>
<td>159, 326</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nishēḍha</td>
<td>319, 358, 469</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ni-shēḍha-chiṭṭam</td>
<td>469</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nish-śikhaṇa-ṛā</td>
<td>486</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nis-shreyās</td>
<td>104, 123, 296, 520</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nis-svarṭha-ṛā</td>
<td>176</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nitya</td>
<td>1, 60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-Ānanda</td>
<td>520</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nitya-nārakī</td>
<td>499</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nitya-svaṛgī</td>
<td>499</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ni-vṛtṛti</td>
<td>122, 512</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ni-yama</td>
<td>368, 370, 437, 753</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pashyaka</td>
<td>471</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-------------------</td>
<td>-----</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pātāla</td>
<td>272</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pātré-dāna</td>
<td>602</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Paushtika</td>
<td>397</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pāvana</td>
<td>629</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Paviṭra-puri</td>
<td>610</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pind-ānda</td>
<td>271</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pishācha</td>
<td>269</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Piṭṛ-loka</td>
<td>261</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Piṭṛ-paksha</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Praṇa</td>
<td>271</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Praṇa-maya-kosha</td>
<td>263</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Praṇ-āyāma</td>
<td>753</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Praṇa-prāṭishthā</td>
<td>571</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Praṇi-dhāna</td>
<td>107</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pra-paṭṭi</td>
<td>73, 493</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pra-sava</td>
<td>123</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pra-shama-chiṭṭam</td>
<td>469</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pra-ṭāpa</td>
<td>531</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Praṭibhā</td>
<td>182, 740</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Praṭi-bhā-chiṭṭam</td>
<td>469</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Praṭibha-Śūnāna</td>
<td>182</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Praṭi-prasava</td>
<td>123</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>SANSKRIT WORDS</td>
<td>PAGE</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>---------------</td>
<td>------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rāja-yogi</td>
<td>131</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rājanya</td>
<td>665</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rāma-lilā</td>
<td>627</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rāsa-lilā</td>
<td>90</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Raṭi-ichchhā</td>
<td>433</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rshi</td>
<td>80, 134, 179, 276, 285, 468, 575, 632, 646</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rāta</td>
<td>112, 188</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rudra</td>
<td>58</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SANSKRIT WORDS</th>
<th>PAGE</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Sā-Bīja</td>
<td>753</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Saḍā</td>
<td>137, 714</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Saḍ-āchāra</td>
<td>603</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sādhāraṇa-jñāna</td>
<td>142</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sāḍhu</td>
<td>533, 641</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Saha-ḍharma-chāra</td>
<td>393</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sakṛt</td>
<td>137</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sālokya</td>
<td>322</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sama-ḍarshi-tā</td>
<td>277</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sam-ā-ḍhāna</td>
<td>426</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sam-ā-ḍhi</td>
<td>142, 753</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Samān-āṭma-tā</td>
<td>402</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sāmāṣika-ḍharma</td>
<td>358</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sama-tā</td>
<td>174, 283</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sambhoga-kāya</td>
<td>271</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sam-hartā</td>
<td>57</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sāmpya</td>
<td>322</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Samiti</td>
<td>123</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sammāna-ichchhā</td>
<td>433</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sampaṭṭi-ichchhā</td>
<td>433</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sam-pra-ḍāya</td>
<td>643</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>̲āchārya</td>
<td>641</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sam-sāra</td>
<td>62</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sam-sāra-chakra</td>
<td>220</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SANSKRIT WORDS</th>
<th>PAGE</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Sams-kāra</td>
<td>629</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sam-viṭ</td>
<td>742</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Samyak-ājiva</td>
<td>109</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Samyak-ḍṛṣṭi</td>
<td>109</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-karmāṇṭa</td>
<td>109</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-samāḍhi</td>
<td>109</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-smṛti</td>
<td>109</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-saṇ-kalpa</td>
<td>109</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-vāk</td>
<td>109</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-vyāyāma</td>
<td>109</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sanāṭana</td>
<td>58</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sanchara</td>
<td>123</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sandhyā</td>
<td>170</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sandhyā-upāsanā</td>
<td>573, 640, 753</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sangraha</td>
<td>397</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>San-kalpa</td>
<td>439</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sankara</td>
<td>430</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>San-nyāsa</td>
<td>402</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>San-nyāsi</td>
<td>402</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sanṭāna-ichchhā</td>
<td>433</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>San-ṭosha</td>
<td>371</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sā-nā ḍ</td>
<td>174</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sārah</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sāranga-nāṭha</td>
<td>611</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sāranga-vana</td>
<td>611</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sarasvaṭi</td>
<td>350</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sarga</td>
<td>123</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sārī or sāḍī (Hinḍī for Skt. shāṭī)</td>
<td>91</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sārūpya</td>
<td>322</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sarva-bhuṭa-hiṭa</td>
<td>440</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sarva-ḍā</td>
<td>283</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sarvah</td>
<td>60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sarva-jñāna</td>
<td>271</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sarva-kāma</td>
<td>57</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sarvam</td>
<td>283</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sanskrit Word</td>
<td>Page 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-------------------------------------</td>
<td>--------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sthūla-sharīra</td>
<td>263, 276</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Śūpa</td>
<td>763</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sūkṣhma</td>
<td>263, 271</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sūkṣhma-sharīra</td>
<td>263, 271, 273, 276, 299</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sunḍara</td>
<td>58</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sura</td>
<td>760</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sūrya</td>
<td>351, 471</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Su-shupti</td>
<td>272</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sūtr-āṭmā</td>
<td>238, 253, 271</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Svah</td>
<td>272</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sva-bhāva</td>
<td>112, 187</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Svābhāvikī</td>
<td>115</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sva-chitta-parikshā</td>
<td>526</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sva-ñāḥ</td>
<td>196</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Svapna</td>
<td>272, 333</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Svā-rāj</td>
<td>469, 796</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Svarga</td>
<td>266</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Svarga-loka</td>
<td>261</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sv-ārtha</td>
<td>450, 511</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sv-ārtha-tā</td>
<td>807</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sva-rupa-pratishthā</td>
<td>123</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Svasya priyam</td>
<td>603</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sva-tantra</td>
<td>249</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Syām</td>
<td>433</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>TAIJASA</td>
<td>271</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tamas</td>
<td>116</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tāṇḍrika</td>
<td>269</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tapah (heaven-world)</td>
<td>272</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tapas</td>
<td>20, 87, 188, 189, 293, 532, 753, 778, 797, 805</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tapo-loka</td>
<td>272</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tāraka</td>
<td>58</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tarka</td>
<td>740</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Taḥ</td>
<td>715</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Taṭṭvam</td>
<td>122</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Taṭṭvā-mātra</td>
<td>326</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tējas</td>
<td>204</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tīrtha-yāṭrā</td>
<td>170</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tīrthan-kara</td>
<td>7, 285, 468, 622</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tiṭṭkṣhā</td>
<td>426</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Trāṭā</td>
<td>59</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Trṣṇā</td>
<td>303, 335</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Trṣṇā-chiṭṭam</td>
<td>469</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Trṣṇā-tyāga</td>
<td>631</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tūlā</td>
<td>431</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Turīya</td>
<td>272</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tury-āṭṭha</td>
<td>272</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tvam</td>
<td>715</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tyāga</td>
<td>440, 493, 494, 546</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>UCHIṬA</td>
<td>504</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Udāna</td>
<td>146</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Udyoga</td>
<td>249</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Upa-ṛeva</td>
<td>267</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Upādhi</td>
<td>328</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Up-āḍhyāya</td>
<td>800</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Upa-nayana</td>
<td>630, 794</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Upa-raṭi</td>
<td>426</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Upāsaka</td>
<td>134</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Upa-vāsa</td>
<td>631</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Urḍhva-gaṭi</td>
<td>477</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Urḍhva-mārga</td>
<td>375</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ut-sarpini</td>
<td>123</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Uṭṭama</td>
<td>431</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Uṭṭariya</td>
<td>91, 614</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sanskrit Word</td>
<td>Page(s)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-------------------------------</td>
<td>---------------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Yama</td>
<td>58, 170, 172, 210, 718, 742</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(=Yoga-abstinences)</td>
<td>358, 368, 372, 437, 753</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Yantra</td>
<td>638</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Yashah</td>
<td>434</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Yas-ṭvam-asi so-(a)ham asmi</td>
<td>147</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Yaṭi</td>
<td>533</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Yaṭrā</td>
<td>615, 627</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Yāṭu</td>
<td>269, 701</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Yāṭu-ḍhāna</td>
<td>270</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Yoga</td>
<td>142, 263, 270, 273, 276, 355, 358, 753</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
INDEX OF ARABIC-PERSIAN WORDS

(English and Sanskrit equivalents will be found, beside the word, on the pages referred to. Some words, not used in the text, have also been included here, with their English and Sanskrit equivalents. See also Appendix.)

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Page</th>
<th>A</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>91</td>
<td>Ādām-i-Qaḍīm,</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Adam-Kadmon)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>159,190</td>
<td>Ahad</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>134</td>
<td>Ahl-i-daul</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>134</td>
<td>Ahl-i-dīl</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>664</td>
<td>Ahl-i-qalam</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ahurā-Mazaḍa. (Throughout. Z.)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A'iniyat, (a'yniyaṭ or a 'iniyat),</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(S., ṭaṭ-tva, 'thatness', essence)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>86</td>
<td>Akbar</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>285</td>
<td>Akhyār</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>468</td>
<td>Akmal</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>57</td>
<td>Al-Ākhir</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>294,350</td>
<td>Al-'Alim</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>272</td>
<td>Ālam-i-hāḥūṭ</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>272</td>
<td>Ālam-i-jabrūṭ</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>271</td>
<td>Ālam-i-Kabīr</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>272</td>
<td>Ālam-i-lāḥūṭ</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>272</td>
<td>Ālam-i-mā'ān</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>272</td>
<td>Ālam-i-misāl</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>272</td>
<td>Ālam-i-malakūṭ</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

A'BĀ
Abaḍ, unending; endlessness; (S., anzāta)
Ābā-i-Ulavī
Abbā
A'bd
A'bdīyaṭ
A'bd-ul-Qādir
Āb-i-hayāṭ, 'water of life', 'elixir of life'; (S., m a r a-vāruṇī, amṛta).
Abrār
A'dām
Aḍab, submission, (S., prapaṭṭī).
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Arabic Term</th>
<th>English Translation</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Ālam-i-shahāda</td>
<td>(or -mulk or -nāsūt)</td>
<td>272</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ālam-i-sagḥir</td>
<td>271</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-Awwal</td>
<td>57</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-Bādī</td>
<td>57, 294</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-Baṭīn</td>
<td>57</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-Ghaffār</td>
<td>58</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-Ghazzāb</td>
<td>58</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-Hāḍī</td>
<td>58</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-Hāfiz, God the 'Protector' or 'Preserver'.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-Haqq, God the 'True'.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-Hayy, God the 'Living' or 'Life-giving'.</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ālim</td>
<td>664</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Allāh, Al-ilāh, 'the to-be-worshipped'; Lā ilāh illā Al-ilāh; 'there is no one worthy of worship excepting the One who is worthy of worship'; briefly, 'there is no god but the One 'God'. Throughout. (See f.n. on p. 334)</td>
<td>86, 122, 211, 219</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-Jabbār</td>
<td>58, 210</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-Jālil</td>
<td>58</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-Jāmī</td>
<td>57</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-Jamīl</td>
<td>58</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-Karim</td>
<td>58</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-Kul</td>
<td>60</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Page

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>English Term</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Al-Latif, the Super-subtle</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Allāh-Akbar</td>
<td>86</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Allāh-i-aR-Rahmān-AR-Rahīm</td>
<td>190</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-Malik</td>
<td>350</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-Muhāsib</td>
<td>742</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-Muhaimin</td>
<td>57, 58</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-Muhiyy</td>
<td>58</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-Muhsiy</td>
<td>172, 718, 742</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-Mumīt</td>
<td>58, 210</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-Muzil</td>
<td>58, 204, 210</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-Qābīz</td>
<td>172, 718, 742</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-Qādir</td>
<td>86</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-Qādīm, the Ancient</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-Qahhār</td>
<td>58, 210</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-Qayyum</td>
<td>60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-Razzāq</td>
<td>58, 350</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Al-Samaḍ</td>
<td>57</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A'mal</td>
<td>116</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Amesha-spentās</td>
<td>267, (Z.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A'mīl</td>
<td>664</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Āmīr</td>
<td>664</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Amīr</td>
<td>664</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Amr</td>
<td>664</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Anā</td>
<td>132</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>An-al-Haq</td>
<td>143</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Anāniyat-i-ādnā</td>
<td>299</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Anāniyat-i-ālā</td>
<td>300</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Angra</td>
<td>180 (Z.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Angūr</td>
<td>811</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Aqāyaḍ</td>
<td>113, 121</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Aql-i-a'shara, the ten Primal Intelligences; (S., dāsha mānasā-puṭra-s, prajāpaṭi-s, ādi-mahā-rshi-s).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A'ql-i-awwal, the First Intelligence, Primal Mind, (Skt., Ądi-taṭṭva, Buddhī-taṭṭva).</td>
<td>Page 271, 742. (English translation: Omniscience; Intellectus Mundi; (S., Sarva-jña, Jñānātmā, Īsha, or Jñānasamashhti).)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A'ql-i-mā'sh, ordinary reason; (S., vyakta-buddhi, vyashti-budāḍhi).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Arḍ</td>
<td>266</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A'rif (or u'rif)</td>
<td>116</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ā'rīf</td>
<td>531</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ar-Rahmān</td>
<td>386</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ar-Razzāq 58, 350, 381,</td>
<td>386</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Arsh</td>
<td>266</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ārzū</td>
<td>335</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ārzū-i-tawalluḍ</td>
<td>494</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Asahāb</td>
<td>533</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Āsēb</td>
<td>269</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ashghāl</td>
<td>753</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Asīr</td>
<td>431</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Asfīr</td>
<td>760</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Asl (pl. usūl)</td>
<td>100</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Asmā-i-Ilāhi</td>
<td>281</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ā-i-Kiyānī</td>
<td>281</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>As-Shakūr</td>
<td>742</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Astāfīl</td>
<td>810</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Asūl (=usūl)</td>
<td>100</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Aṭāliq</td>
<td>800</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Auliyyā</td>
<td>641</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ayān, manifest. (S., vyakta). A'yān-i-sābiṭa, 'things manifest'.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Āyaṭ</td>
<td>603</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A'yn-Sāf</td>
<td>327</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A'yn-Suf</td>
<td>327</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A'yniyat-(or a'iniyat)-i-haqqīqī</td>
<td>122</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Āzād</td>
<td>431</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A z a l, beginningless. (S., anādi). (See Aba'd).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ā'zama</td>
<td>156</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A'zāz-i-El</td>
<td>178</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A'zān</td>
<td>640</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Azkār</td>
<td>631</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Az-Zāhīr</td>
<td>57</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>B</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

BAḌAL 285
Bāḍī 390
Bahishṭ 266
Bait-ullāh 639
Banda, (same as a'bḍ, servant).
Baiṭ-ur-Rahmān 143
Baqā, persisting; remaining behind; S., shēshī, a-vināshī); opposite of fanā, extinction, (S., laya).
Baqā-f-illāh 298, 760
Barza-garān 664
Barzakh 546
Bāṭila 334
Bātīn 574
Bātīnī 603
Bāzār-gānān 664
Bē-għarazi 450
Bē-khudi 176, 438
Bē-zārī 173
Burūz 322
Burz 664
Buṭ 619

C
CHASHM-i-BASĪRAṬ 211
Chashm-i-bātīnī 740
Chehlum 649
Chogḥā 91

D
DĀD 504
Dahr, Time, Emptiness. (S., Kāla, Shūnya).
Dabriya, one who believes in emptiness, i.e., nothing. (S. shūnya-vādī, nāṣīka).
Daqūyaq 121, 134
Dargāh 642
Darvand 267. (Z.)
Darvēsha 641
Daulāt 296, 435
Dayānaṯ 296
Dēv 267
Dīdah 451
Dīdar 753
Dil 271
Dil-bar-dāshṭagī 173
Dīn 435
Dozakh 266

E
EHRĀM 614
Enab 810
En-Sof 327. (Z.)
Eṭābār 439
Eṭtaraf 597

F
FAIZ, 'grace', 'kindness'. (S., prasāda, anu-graha).
Fāl 116, 117, 569
Falak, 'heaven', 'space'. (S., ākāsha, loka).
Fal-safā 327
Fānā-f-illāh 298, 760
Faqīr 134, 368, 424, 641
Farīshta 267, 352
Farq, 'separateness'. (S., bhēda-bhāva)
Farshār 267. (Z.)
Farz 505
Fashkh 236
Fasi, or fesāl or infesāl, 'distance', 'separate-ness'; opposite of wasl (q. v.) or wesāl. (S., bhēda).
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Arabic-Persian Words</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Fāṣīhā</td>
<td>640</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fazāel</td>
<td>450</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fikr</td>
<td>753</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fiqah</td>
<td>603</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Firqā</td>
<td>643</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fisāl (=fesāl)</td>
<td>123</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fisānāa</td>
<td>334, 344</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fiṣna</td>
<td>334</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Frāvarshi</td>
<td>267, (Z.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fūqr</td>
<td>371, 402, 437, 489, 494</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Furqān</td>
<td>355</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Furū'</td>
<td>100</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

G

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Word</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Ghaffār</td>
<td>344</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ghaib-ul-gḥuyūb</td>
<td>326</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ghaib-i-Muṭlaq</td>
<td>326</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ghaib</td>
<td>430, 760</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ghaib-az-Khudā</td>
<td>157</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gaṭriyat</td>
<td>299, 450</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gaṭriyat-i-ṭabārī</td>
<td>89, 122</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gharrah</td>
<td>174</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gharz</td>
<td>511</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ghaur</td>
<td>570</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ghaus</td>
<td>285</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ghazzāb</td>
<td>344</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gumbaḍ</td>
<td>640</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

H

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Term</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Habs-i-ḍam</td>
<td>753</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hāḍī, 'guide', 'teacher', 'preceptor'. (S., nēṭā; guru).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hadīs</td>
<td>603</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hadīsun</td>
<td>334</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hāhzā</td>
<td>172</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hajj</td>
<td>170, 613, 614, 627</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hajr-ul-aswād</td>
<td>609, 613, 614</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hajr-ul-yamān</td>
<td>613, 614</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hakīm</td>
<td>710</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hāl</td>
<td>753</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hālikun</td>
<td>334</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hama-Andar-Ūst, or hama-ba-Ūst</td>
<td>324</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hama-az-Ūst</td>
<td>324</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hama-Ūst</td>
<td>324, 754</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Haq</td>
<td>151, 437, 715</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Haqāyaq</td>
<td>121</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Haqīqaṭ</td>
<td>67, 117, 430, 570</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Haqīr</td>
<td>542</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Haq-shinās</td>
<td>531</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Haq-Tu-I</td>
<td>143</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Haq-ul-Yaqīn</td>
<td>154</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hastī-i-muṭlaq</td>
<td>167</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hawas (=havas)</td>
<td>335</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hawās-i-bāṭini</td>
<td>372</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hawas-i-zinḍāgi</td>
<td>494</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hazz-i-ā’lā</td>
<td>296</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Helāl</td>
<td>638</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hijāb, veil, screen. (S., āvarana)</td>
<td>439</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hilm</td>
<td>174</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hīrs</td>
<td>303, 335, 433, 777</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hīrs-i-dunyā</td>
<td>494</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hulūl</td>
<td>322</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

I

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Term</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Ibādat</td>
<td>113, 368</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Iblīs</td>
<td>267</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Index of Arabic-Persian Words</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-------------------------------</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PAGE</td>
<td>PAGE</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>J</td>
<td>Kalemā 131, 137, 144, 324</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jabr</td>
<td>Kamāl</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jādū</td>
<td>Kāmil</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jāh</td>
<td>Kāmi-no-michi.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Sh. Jap.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jāhān, 'the moving', 'the rushing', 'the world-process', 'the whirling', 'the whirled'. (S., jagaṭ, samsāra).</td>
<td>333</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jannahum</td>
<td>Kasraṭ</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jā'ī</td>
<td>Kasraṭ-ḍar-sifāṭ</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jā'el</td>
<td>Kasraṭ-ḍar-Wahḍat, multiplicity-in-Unity.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jalālī</td>
<td>Kāyanāṭ</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jamālī</td>
<td>Ḫair-i-mahaz</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jannaṭ</td>
<td>Ḫhalifā</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jazbā</td>
<td>Ḫalīq</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jehād</td>
<td>Ḫalif-uz-zehn</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jinnāṭ</td>
<td>Ḫalq</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jins-i-ā'lā</td>
<td>Ḫāneqāh</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jism-i-kasīf</td>
<td>Ḫashm</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jism-i-kul, Omni-presence, Corpus Mundī. (S., Vaishvā-nara, Sarva-vyāpi, Déha-samashti, Jagad-āṭmā.)</td>
<td>Ḫaṭim and Ḫaṭam 82</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jism-i-latīf</td>
<td>Ḫafar</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jism-i-misāl</td>
<td>Ḫaṭrah; 'fear', 'danger', 'anxiety', 'heart-experience', 'psychical experience'.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jism-i-shahāda</td>
<td>(S., kshobha, vikshēpo, abhyantar-ānu-bhava.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>K</td>
<td>469</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kā'ba</td>
<td>609, 613, 723</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kaffārā</td>
<td>597</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kāfir</td>
<td>702</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kalām-Ullāh</td>
<td>602</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PAGE</td>
<td>PAGE</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>------</td>
<td>------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>K hudā 180, 196, 219, 300, 431, 450, 468, 706</td>
<td>Lā-intihā 327</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-i-Murakkab 122</td>
<td>Lā-mā'būdah-illā-Hū 324, 752</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>K hudā-i-mua'yyan 122</td>
<td>Lā-maqsūdah-illā-Hū 324, 752</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>K hud-gharazi 450, 807</td>
<td>Lā-mashahūdah-illā-Hū 324</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>K hudhisābī, (keeping account of one-self's thinking, feelings, doings) 526</td>
<td>Lā-mauju'dah-illā-Hū 324, 345, 752</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>K hudī 180, 184, 300, 428, 431, 433, 450, 468, 511, 706, 760</td>
<td>Lā-mū-siwā-Allāh 345</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Khwäb 344</td>
<td>Lā-sānī 156</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Khwäb-i-K hudā 334</td>
<td>Lā-ta'iyan 326</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Khwäkish 116, 439, 569</td>
<td>Lätā'yaf-i-sītta, 'plexuses', 'ganglia'. (S., chakra-s, kanda-s, pitha-s.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kish 664</td>
<td>Lauh 266</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kishā (or kushā)-warzān 664</td>
<td>Lauh-i-mahfūz 172, 742</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kitāb-ul-Mubin, 'the open book'; Lauh-i- mahfūz (q. v.) made plain, or in detailed manifestation.</td>
<td>Lazzaṭ-ul-dunyā 296, 298</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kufr 429, 436</td>
<td>Lazzaṭ-ul-ilāhiyyā 296, 298</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kun 319</td>
<td>Luṭf 430</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

L

Lā-ba-Shart-i-shay

159, 326

Lā-qaq

429

Lahw

90, 332, 334

Lāhwun

333

Laib

90

Laibun

334

Lā īlāh il-Allāh

132, 144

Lā īlāh īlā Anā

132, 144, 345

M

Mainyu

180. (Z.)

Majhūl-un-na's, 'Indescribable'. (S., a-nirvachaniya.)

326

Majbūr

249

Majma'a-i-Zi'ddain

157

Malāyak

267, 575, 760

Mālik

290

Mālum-i-mā'dum, 'the known (as) non-existent'. (S., nishēdha-jnāta. a-bhāva-jnāta.

See Aham-Eṣṭāt-Na.)
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Arabic Word</th>
<th>Page</th>
<th>Arabic Word</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Mā'milāt</td>
<td>113</td>
<td>Mubārizān</td>
<td>664</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mana'</td>
<td>319</td>
<td>Mufti</td>
<td>641</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Manqūlāt</td>
<td>142</td>
<td>Muhabba</td>
<td>546</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Maqāmāt</td>
<td>270</td>
<td>Muḥarram</td>
<td>170, 627</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Maqāṣīḏ-i-zindagī</td>
<td>296</td>
<td>Muḥāhidā</td>
<td>440, 753</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Māqūlāt</td>
<td>142</td>
<td>Muḥāniibat</td>
<td>173, 440, 483, 800</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mard-i-ṭamām</td>
<td>320</td>
<td>Mujāwir</td>
<td>641</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mārīfāt</td>
<td>77, 121, 355, 570</td>
<td>Mujṭahid</td>
<td>641</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mashīya</td>
<td>740</td>
<td>Mukāshifā</td>
<td>753</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mā-siwiw-Allāh</td>
<td>157, 429</td>
<td>Mukhtar</td>
<td>249</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Masjiḍ</td>
<td>640</td>
<td>Mulk. (See ālam-i-mulk.)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Maskh</td>
<td>236</td>
<td>Mullāh</td>
<td>641</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Masmū</td>
<td>142</td>
<td>Mumkin-ul-wujūd, 'possible of existence'.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Maṭbu</td>
<td>142</td>
<td>(S., sambhāvy-saṭ.)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Maulā</td>
<td>219, 772</td>
<td>Munāra</td>
<td>640</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Maulavi 711, 772, 778, 806</td>
<td></td>
<td>Munāzilat</td>
<td>440, 483, 800</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Maulūd</td>
<td>627</td>
<td>Munqaṭa-ul-ishārāt</td>
<td>159, 326</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mawāzinah</td>
<td>255</td>
<td>Muqaddamah</td>
<td>664</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mazdūr</td>
<td>664, 791</td>
<td>Murāqibā</td>
<td>753</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mazhar-i-aṭamm</td>
<td>294, 320, 322</td>
<td>Murid, 'the orderable', 'pupil', 'disciple'. (S., shishya, 'the orderable', 'the teachable'). (See Pīr-murid).</td>
<td>640</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Murshid</td>
<td>276, 523, 531, 461</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Mushābihāt</td>
<td>97</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Mushāhidā</td>
<td>753</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Mushrik, 'one who joins another with God.' (S., bhēda-ḍar-shī, ḍvaitī, bahu-ḍeva-vāḍl). (See Shirk).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Millaţ-gharazi</td>
<td>807</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miskīn</td>
<td>134, 641</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mizāj</td>
<td>710</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mōhkamāt</td>
<td>67</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mo'jizah</td>
<td>264</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mokammal</td>
<td>468</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Momin</td>
<td>533</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mu'a'llim</td>
<td>800</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mu'a'ynā</td>
<td>753</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mu'a'azzin</td>
<td>626, 641</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Muṭawallī 641
Muṭrib 559
Muwashhīd, 'monist', 'unitarian'. (S., a-dvaitī).
Muzd-war (correct form of mazdūr, q. v.)

N

Nabī 134, 285, 546, 646
Nāḏm 597
Nafs 271, 273, 429
Nafs-i-ammarā 273,
450, 468, 728
Nafs-i-jārī 273, 275
Nafs-i-kul 271
Nafs-i-lawwāmā 271,
469, 728
Nafs-i-mulhimā 271, 469
Nafs-i-muqīm 273, 275
Nafs-i-muṭmainnā 273,
469
Nafs-i-Rahmānī 273,
450, 469
Nafs-i-nāṭiqā 271
Nafs-kushī 631, 753
Nā-haq 429
Najāt 277; 296, 298,
355, 656, 760
Namāz 170, 573, 576,
640, 753, 770
Namūd, appearance;
phenomenon. (S.,
praṭi-bhāsa, ā-bhāsa; opposed to būd, noumenon, being, param-ārtha,

ṭāṭvika, saṭ).

Nām-wařī 434
Nāriyān 499
Naskh 236
Nāsūṭ 272. (See ālam-
i-nāsūṭ).

Nawāḥī 358
Nazūl 220, 512
Nefesh 271. (Ju.,
Heb.);
Nē'maṭi-dunyawī 296
Neschāmah 271 (Ju.,
Heb.);

Nīḥān, hidden, unmani-fest. (S., a-vyakta, gūḍha, gupta).

Nūr 349
Nūr-i-Qāhīr 101, 349
Nūriyān 499
Nūsmā 271

O

ORMAZD (or Hurmuzd,
i.e., Ahura Mazda)
147. (Z.).

P

Pādischāh 805
Paighām-bar 80
Pāl-dāmanī 494
Parhéz 494, 753
Parī 267
Pārsān 753
Pēshā-warān 664
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Arabic Word</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Peshé-imam</td>
<td>533</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pir</td>
<td>523, 531, 575, 641</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pir-i-mughân</td>
<td>276</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pir-murid</td>
<td>640</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pir-i-murshiđ</td>
<td>800</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Qūdīr</td>
<td>86</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Qabilah</td>
<td>262</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Qadr</td>
<td>249</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Qahhar</td>
<td>210</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Qalb, heart. (S., hrdaya)</td>
<td>469</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Qalb-ul-insan</td>
<td>143</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Qaul</td>
<td>117</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Qaus-i-nazul</td>
<td>122, 123, 176, 332, 375, 477</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Qaus-i-urūj</td>
<td>122, 123, 176, 332, 375, 477</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Qayāmaṭ, 'the static state'; 'the state of rest'; the Last Day; the Day of Judgment. (S., pralaya; 'the Sleep of God').</td>
<td>603</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Qayās</td>
<td>603</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Qudrat</td>
<td>86</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Qurān. Throughout.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Qurbānī</td>
<td>106, 627</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Qurb-i-farāyaz</td>
<td>322</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Qurb-i-nawāfil</td>
<td>322</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Qutub</td>
<td>285</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Arabic Word</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Rahim</td>
<td>86</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rahm</td>
<td>173, 438</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rahmān</td>
<td>86, 344, 386, 633</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ramzan</td>
<td>627</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Raskh</td>
<td>236</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rsaul</td>
<td>80, 134, 285, 546, 564, 646, 687</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Raushan-zamīr</td>
<td>264, 740</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Razāel</td>
<td>450</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Razzāq</td>
<td>386</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rija'ṭ</td>
<td>236</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Riyaḍaṭ</td>
<td>368, 753</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rizq</td>
<td>381</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rozā</td>
<td>170, 631</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rūh</td>
<td>214, 271, 272, 463, 509</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rūh-i-ālam</td>
<td>238</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rūh-i-ā'zam</td>
<td>238, 509</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rūh-i-jārī. (See nafs-i-jārī).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rūh-i-kul</td>
<td>271</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rūh-i-muqīm. (See nafs-i-muqīm).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rūh-ul-rūh, (or Rūh-ul-arwāḥ)</td>
<td>214, 238, 463, 509</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Arabic Word</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Safā</td>
<td>327, 476</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Safar-i-a'bād</td>
<td>176</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Safar-i-Haq</td>
<td>176</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PAGE</td>
<td>PAGE</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>------</td>
<td>------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>123</td>
<td>267</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>123</td>
<td>300</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>300</td>
<td>271</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>211, 445</td>
<td>146</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>640</td>
<td>451</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>641</td>
<td>134</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>113, 430, 570, 573</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>523, 531, 641</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>429, 430</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>434</td>
<td>322, 349</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>322</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>146</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>352, 393</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>638</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>180 (Z.)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>146</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>327</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>327</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>134</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>712</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>327</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>371, 489, 494</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>752</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>805</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>603</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>520</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Arabic-Persian Word</td>
<td>Page</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>---------------------</td>
<td>------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ta'rum</td>
<td>640</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ta'iyun, limitation.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(S., av-chhe'da, pari-mi'ti).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tabaq</td>
<td>266</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tabiya-t-i-kul, Omnipotence; Animar Mundi. (S., Sut-r-attma, Pra-nasamashti, Hira-nya-garbha, Sarva-shak'tih).</td>
<td>271</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tabligh</td>
<td>708</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tafraqâ</td>
<td>450</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tafsir</td>
<td>603</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tahzib-un-nafs</td>
<td>753</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tajir</td>
<td>664, 791</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tajríd</td>
<td>437</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Takabbur</td>
<td>174, 777</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Takiyâ</td>
<td>642</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Takiyâ-dar</td>
<td>533, 641</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tajallî, illumination. (S., prakâsha).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tama</td>
<td>303, 433</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tama-i-zar</td>
<td>494</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tamannâ</td>
<td>335</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tanâsukh</td>
<td>220</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tanazzulat, 'descents', in-volution, de-volution; falling deeper and deeper into Matter. (S., av-åroha).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tanqiya-i-qalb</td>
<td>753</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tanzîh</td>
<td>326, 332</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tao</td>
<td>111. (T. Chinese).</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Tāziā 627
Ţū 715

U

U'LĒMĀ 641
Ul-ul-albāb 664
Ul-ul-amr 664
Ul-ul-i'lm 664
Ummuhāt-i-sīflī 393
Umm-ul-kitāb, 'the mother of books'; Lauh-i-mahfūz (q. v.)

Umūr 358
U'rf 116
Urūj 220, 512
Uzam 811

W

WAHḌAṬ 2, 255, 303, 344, 450, 686, 759
Wahḍat-dar-zāt 759
Wajd 428
Wajd 322, 753
Wājib-ul-wujūd 'Necessarily existent'. (S., aṭyaṁta-sat; kūtaṣṭha-sat).
Walhum 334
Wali 285
Waqf 642
Wasi or wesāl, or wisāl, iṭṭī-sāl, (opposite of fasl or fesāl)

Wataḏ 123, 322
Wujūḏ 285
Wujūḏ-i-bahat 322, 349
Wujūḏ-i-muṭlaq, 'pure Being', 'absolute existence'. (S., satṭā-mātra, san-mātra, shuddha-sat, ĕkānta-saṭṭā, aṭyaṁta-saṭṭā).
Wujūdiyaḥ 322, 338
Wuzū, ablution before prayer. (S., mārjana, prakshālana, snāna).

Y

Y ASHT, 147. (Z.)

Yazḏ 267

Z

Z ABṬ-I-NAFS 437
Zakāţ 170, 602
Zamīn 433
Zan 433
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Word</th>
<th>Page</th>
<th>Definition</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Zar</td>
<td>433</td>
<td>Zindiq, free thinker,</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zarrā</td>
<td>167</td>
<td>sceptic, unbeliever,</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zāt</td>
<td>393</td>
<td>atheist; (opposite of</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zāt-i-lā-sifāt</td>
<td>326</td>
<td>Siddiq). (S., n-ās-</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zāt-i-muṭlaq</td>
<td>159</td>
<td>ūka).</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zāt-i-sādij</td>
<td>159, 326</td>
<td>Zohd</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zaujain</td>
<td>211, 498</td>
<td>Zunnār</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ziddain</td>
<td>211, 498</td>
<td>Zurrā</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zikr</td>
<td>753</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
GENERAL INDEX OF SUBJECTS

Note: In previous edition, prefaces and other preliminary matter, paged with roman numerals, were printed off before Subjects Index was made up; hence references to them were also given. It has not been found possible to do this in present edition; therefore dots . . . have been substituted. Thus, "Absolute has no beginning or ending . . ." (instead of xvii), "Accidents . . ." (instead of xix). Readers, if they think it worth while, can write in, those numerals, in this edition.—B. D.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>A</th>
<th>PAGE</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>AB- SOLU-TE, Absolute-</td>
<td>Interaction and</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ness, Absolution</td>
<td>counteraction</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>159, 208, 297, 326, 760</td>
<td>61</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>etymological meaning of</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>has no beginning or</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ending . . .</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Accidents, historical</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>economic, geograph-</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ic, physiograph-</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ic, etc., why and</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>how . . .</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Acquisitiveness</td>
<td>433,</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>494,</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>651</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Action and Reaction,</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Law of 61, 237, 255, 499</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>PAGE</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Action reveals heart-</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>conviction</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>719</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Activism</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Adam and Eve</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A-dvaitism</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Agha-khanism</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Agreement, universal,</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>test of the Essential</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>and Universal</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Religion . . .;</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>expands</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>of all Religions, dec-</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>lared by all Found-</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ers themselves</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>joy of</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
ESSENTIAL UNITY OF ALL RELIGIONS

Ahl-i-Haḍīṣism 712
Ahmādiyānism or Ahmaḏism 712
Allegories 136
Alliance for Existence 434, 785
All in All 283
All-Self-Consciousness 304
Also, not Only but 550-551
Altruism . . .; 173, 174, 407, 452
(See Egoism and Universalism).
Ambivalence 759
(See Duality and Law of Duality).
Amen, Āmīn, AUM, the same 589
Analogy, Law of 173, 277, 278; why of uniformity and analogy 282-283; 466 between Sleep and Death 466
Anchorites 641
Anger, to be given up 416
Angels 179, 182, meaning of names of 268
Anima Mundi 192.
(See Mundi.)
Animal-in-man, Sacrifice of 631
Animal sacrifice, disapproved by all religions 631-638
Answer, the Final 515
Appetites, of Eating, Mating, Speaking, and Hunger, Sex, Acquisitiveness 382-383 egoistic root, and their sublimated forms 433-435 altruistic or counter-three cures for three 494
four physical and four psychological 650-654
Arrows of Descent and Ascent of Soul 122-123, 176, 220, 332, 369, 375, 477, 512. (See Ascent).
Art, and Religion 627-628 perverted 628
Ārya, meaning of 96, 139
Aryanism, or Ārya Samājism, Dayānānda's, as reform within Vēdism 712
Asiatic Thought, colored by Religion 9
Ascent, stages of 322-324, 375, 462, 512. (See Arrows and Descent).
Asceticism 372, 700
Associations. (See Philanthropic).
Astrological Astronomy 683-
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Subject</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Atheism</td>
<td>706</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Atlantean Race</td>
<td>270</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Atom</td>
<td>283</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Attributes (and Substratum)</td>
<td>205, 281</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>of the Attributeless</td>
<td>326</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Awful and Beautiful</td>
<td>332</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Azaziel, fall of the archangel</td>
<td>178-179</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>meaning of</td>
<td>178-179</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>B</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bāb-ism</td>
<td>712</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bacchanalia</td>
<td>632</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Babā-ism</td>
<td>712</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Balance (steadfastness or equableness) of mind, how achieved</td>
<td>52-53</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>of Pleasure and Pain</td>
<td>498-503</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>in life</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Battle, internal (See Conflict)</td>
<td>444</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Be, to be known is to</td>
<td>186</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Beatitude</td>
<td>299</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Beautiful, the 58, 59, 352, 530, 752</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>the Supremely</td>
<td>351</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Beauty 39, 58, 351, 704, 752</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>an aspect of God 530</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>desires to be admired 348. (See Truth)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bene-ficence, Bene-science, Bene-volence</td>
<td>358</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Being, and Non-Being</td>
<td>150-153, 159-161</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>planes of</td>
<td>258-268</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>types of</td>
<td>230</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Universal</td>
<td>167</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Beloved, the One, of all</td>
<td>91-92</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bhaktism, (Rāmānanda's, Chaitanya's, Tulasī-dāsa's)</td>
<td>712</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Birth-control, means to</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>death-control</td>
<td>696</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Birth and death, freedom from involuntary, how gained</td>
<td>276, 277</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Blessed are the pure in heart</td>
<td>485</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Blessedness, Bliss, Divine names of 302-303,</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>509, 520</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bodies, three, of man and God 270-272</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Body, macrocosmic 271</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>triple</td>
<td>271</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>and soul</td>
<td>273</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bondage</td>
<td>299</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Brāhma Samājism (reform movement within Vedism)</td>
<td>712</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Bread, Spiritual and Material 18, 381-384, 448, 629</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sacredness of the daily</td>
<td>384, 583</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Bridge, between Egoism and Altruism, hair's-breadth 469
the Chinva\(\text{t}\) 470-471
the sword-edge 470
Brotherhood 33. (See Fraternity).
Universal 8, 775
Buddhism . . ., . . .,
...; 145. Throughout, in China and J\(\text{a}\)\(\text{p}\)\(\text{n}\) 94, 110 identical with V\(\text{e}\)\(\text{d}\)\(\text{a}\)\(\text{n}\)- ta and Jainism ré
Supreme Self 145-146
as reform within V\(\text{e}\)\(\text{d}\)\(\text{i}\)\(\text{m}\) 712

CASTE, dissensions 17 soul has no 86
curse of hereditary 179
true meaning of 643-644 not by birth, but by worth 690
Caste-system, as Social Organisation
643-676; 697-699
degeneration of 672-674
Catchwords 709, 781
Cause and Effect, Law of 237
Causation 237-245
three views of 322-338
Chance (is Unknown Cause or God) 195,241

Change and Change-
lessness 64,151,195,
255-257, 345-346
Chaos, Deep Sleep of 345
Cosmos in 345
Character and Occupation 690
building of good and strong 776-777 degeneration of, in all departments of life 778-781 Charity 39
to be discriminate 602
Child-mind stage 65
not to be disturbed 202-203; 211, 252 be tender to the 605, 620-621
Christianity . . .
(Throughout).
'Christ liveth in me'. 459 Circumstances. (See Accidents, and Duty).
Civilisation, threefold 118-119, 662 relation of, to threefold education 119-120
V\(\text{e}\)\(\text{d}\)\(\text{i}\)\(\text{s}\)t, founded on three main factors, the Mother, the Educator, the Defender 539
tetrad of 662
Indian social organisation and 688
false and true 780-798
Modern, a vast
Rake's Progress 783-784

Cleanliness, triple in thought, word, deed 116-118 next to godliness 630
how mis-interpreted in Hinduism 630

Comedy and Tragedy of World-process
211, 344. (See
Play, and World-process)

Commandments, Five additional 368-374
Communism 73 ; (Spiritual) 503 ; 761; (False)
Compassion, passionate Complexes, 434. (See Psycho-analysis).
Conditions, accidental.
(See Accidents).
Confession 465, 596-600
Conflict, internal 62, 444,471,511,762-771;
no real, between great teachings 59 ; of duties 417
Confucianism.
(Throughout)
Confucius 429-430
Conscience 139,250,408,
446, 539

Consciousness, Universal
Principle of indefeasible immort-ality of 151-152
as partless, breakless, unique, Self- 159-170
Spiritual, or Super-mind 174
in Everything, and
Everything in 283
God’s, the Universal
Self’s, all-pervading, all-including the one Maintainer, of the Universe 212
the Ultimate Mystery, our very Self 216-218

Continuum of, and
Nature of 253-254
Universality of 254
three states of 271
All-Self-, as Universal
Mind 742
of the Universal Self,
i.e., the Principle of Consciousness,
includes the human Conscious as well
as Unconscious 764.
(See God and Self).
Consequences, reward
and punishment,
sure, of good deeds
and sins 237-257.
(See Karma).
| Continuum, Continuity of Nature, due to Unity of Self | 253 |
| Continence | 494, 695 |
| Contraception, unregulated | 396 |
| Control, of tongue, secret of all | 377-378 |
| of mind, for introspection | 442 |
| of birth and death | 695-696 |
| Conversion, forced, in religion | 708 |
| forbidden in Qurān | 708-709 |
| Correspondences | 277 |
| Cosmic Mind, Creative | 281 |
| Cosmos, Solar | 281; 345 |
| Creations and destructions, countless repeated | 223 |
| nature and cause of | 344 |
| Creed, dissensions | 17 |
| Creed-marks | 638-639 |
| Cyclicity, Law of | 220, 318 |

PAGE

| of eroticism, and of excessive dependence, in devotional cults | 522-524 |
| of black magic | 701-702 |
| of fanatic belief that one’s own religion is the best for all | 702 |
| of excessive clinging to outer forms and words | 707-713 |
| of self-indulgence under pretence of God’s Will | 749 |
| Death, how conquered, by yoga-methods, in super-physical sense | 275-276 |
| how, in metaphysical sense | 277, 295-316, 449-450, 467 |
| flash of panoramic memory at | 466 |
| preparation for, (euthanasia) | 465-467 |
| gateway to larger life | 559-560 |
| judgment on soul after | 718 |
| Deathlessness, desire for | 443 |
| Debts, four congenital, social | 520-1, 656 |
| Decay, periodic | 292 |
| Deeds, good and dutiful, indispensable | 719 |

D

DANGER, great, of self-deception, by believing one’s own individual self to be the Supreme Self | 177-185

of mistaking personal love for Universal Love | 468
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>PAGE</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>prove real faith</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>720-721, 750-751</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Degeneration of religions 10, 19-20, 760</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Deism</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>322</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Deity in image and shrine</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>604-618</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Deliverance 297, 355, 455, 760</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Democracy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>73</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Democracy, method of, in religion</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>...</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>20, 69, 75</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Descent 332, 375, 462, 672. (See Arcs and Ascent).</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Desire, one of the three Functions of mind</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>113-118</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>corresponds to the Way of Devotion 113</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Divine 344-348; for Līlā, Play</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>439</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>subtle self-deceiving 374</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>the Primal Force or Energy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>464</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>men are what they and Desirelessness, proper time for each</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>513</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>the Root-Cause of the Universe 524-525</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>the Self-same Heart's, of All</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>810</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Destiny and Free-Will</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>249-250, 507-508</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PAGE</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Determinism. (See Destiny).</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Devil 456 (See Satan and God inverted).</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Devils</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>267</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Devilish men</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>536</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Devotee, becomes identified at last with Object of his devotion</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>318</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Devotees, visions of</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>606-609</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Devotion, safest form of</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>531</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Way of one of three integral Constituents of Religion 113, 357, 570 mutual, of each to all, all to each 509 personal and impersonal, sterile without virtuous and dutiful acts 719 dangers of excessive. (See Danger).</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pharma, meaning of</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>105, 108-109</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot;Die before you die.&quot; 275</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dietetics. See Food. Difference 17, 85; superficial 88; contracts 171; in names only of the Self-same 187-190. (See Diversity, and Agreement).</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Disarmament, moral, must come first 37
Disciple and Master 640
Disciplines. (See Virtues).
Discord, spirit of 17
Discourse, speechless 215
Discovery, the Great 309, 312
Dis-gust with the world, dis-illusionment, dis-passion, dis-taste for life, 173-177, 330, 440, 442, 483, 800. (See World-weariness).
Dissolution (into God and Bliss of God) 298, 760
Diversity. (See Difference).
Divine, Bliss. (See Blessedness).
Fire, periodic renewal of 292-293
Heartache 317
Man is 213
Supra-mental 174
Union 516
Will-and-Imagination 553
Will. (See Will).
Harp, the human body 559-560
"Doctors disagree" 14, 710-711

Doctrine of the Eye 134 of the Heart 134
of the Page 134
'Domestics' 783-784
Dreams may be purified and beautified by prayer before sleep 467
Duality, of God's Nature, in all aspects of the World-Process 49-64 how transcended 53
of attributes and names of God 57-63 of Sex 60-61
of Souls, minds, higher and lower, altruist and egoist, in each person 62, 431-432, Law of 106, 637
of the ends of life 296, 759-760
(See Opposites)
Duty, varies with circumstance 97-98, 413, 423-424 is neither sin nor merit 250 the Whole, of Man, in brief 358 difference of 372 to rear up virtuous progeny 385 conflict of 417
Duty, reconciliation of all views 421 general and special 424
meaning of the word 504
need to ascertain carefully 504 means to equability and tranquillity 505 devotion to 503
becomes joy 447, 512 necessity to know what the exact duty is, in any given situation 646
the only right 736 active performance of indispensable 732-733, 751-752
E
EAST and West 9-16
Economics which has caused World-Bankruptcy 783
Ecstatic utterances of Mystics 146-152
Eden, Garden of 472
Education, relation of to civilisation 772 consequences of wrong 773 wrong and right 788-792
Education and Educationist 772-808
Educationists, duty of 33-41 to teach Universal Religion 69-70 should combine austerity and wisdom 797-798 pure livelihood necessary for 798-801 make or mar State and Civilisation 801 right and duty of, to guide direct, correct, reprove, rulers and public servants 891-896
Ego, Universal 463
(See Self), individual 463
Egoism . . . . . ; and Altruism, interdependent 106 as sense of separateness 171, 298, 433, 438, 511 emotional and intellectual 174; 180, 760 freedom from boudage to 112 hardens the heart 176 must be dissolved, to see God 176-177 the real Satan 184-185
and 'personality' 198
the measure of Altruism 407
the single root of all sins 428 and Altruism, the only two 'moral'
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Topic</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>principles</td>
<td>451-452, 511. (See Altruism and Universalism).</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Egyptian religion, views ré' soul in</td>
<td>271</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Elephant, and six blind men, story of</td>
<td>809</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Elixir of Life</td>
<td>560</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Emancipation</td>
<td>297</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Emotions, chief</td>
<td>426-428</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Empires and Religion</td>
<td>688</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Empty show</td>
<td>334</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>End, the Permanent and the temporary . . . . .</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ends of Life. (See Values).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Energism</td>
<td>113, 325</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Energy, Conservation of</td>
<td>255</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Enlightenment, meaning of</td>
<td>124</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>En-sof (or En-soph)</td>
<td>225</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Epicureanism. (See Stoicism).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Equality</td>
<td>282</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>and Fraternity and Liberty</td>
<td>797</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Equilibrium, Equability</td>
<td>53-54, 255</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Eros, as Love-Lust</td>
<td>179</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>the Prime Creator</td>
<td>525</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>unbridled, the worst enemy</td>
<td>495</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Erotic language of Mysticism</td>
<td>522-524. (See Danger).</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Error, always in extremes</td>
<td>44-49</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Primal</td>
<td>428-431</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>five 'phalanges', 'joints', successive stages of</td>
<td>473</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Esoteric teachings</td>
<td>129-130, 603</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Essenes</td>
<td>129-130</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Essence vs. Form</td>
<td>71-72</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Essential and Non-Essential . . . . .</td>
<td>10, 41, 97-102</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>religion in orthodox Islam and in Védism</td>
<td>71, 397-411, 170-171</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Eternal Masquerader</td>
<td>352</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miracle, the</td>
<td>334</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Now</td>
<td>743</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Peace 2; the one way to, on earth 16; methods of 34; eternal fount of 303; everlasting 329; who gaineth 2, 502; beyond all loves and hates 760</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Truth, Same, taught by all great Teachers</td>
<td>51-60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ethics, noble</td>
<td>357</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Eugenics, psychical as well as physical</td>
<td>675</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
European thought, modern, colored by Science 9 Evil, Good and 60; 180; 211 is No-Thing 329
of nationalism 36. (See Good).
Evolution, psychical, and physical . . . ; 29, 220, 230; 257; 755 ladder of 224-225
Evolutionary Chain of Life 294
Excess, the one Sin of Sins 44
Experiences, all, must be passed through by all souls 499, 545-546
Expiation 597-600
Explosives, psychical, the most terrible . . .
Extremes 41-47

F

FACULTY, Extensions of 265
Faith, blind 522
without Works is dead 727
Fall and Rise, arcs of 123. (See Arcs of Descent and Ascent).

FALSEHOOD, (Primal) 428
Familiarity breeds Contempt 180
Family, life of, an End 296
the Divine Happy 393
the whole world, God's 393
Fascism 73
Fasts 631
Fate 250
Father-hood. (See Paternity).
Faults, see your own, more then others' 410-411
Female, duality of Male and 60-61
Final Judge 543
Food, far-reaching effects of pure and impure 383-384 animal, disapproved by all religions 631-634 four main types of 651
Forced conversion forbidden 708-709
Form, transformations of 255
Forms, ceremonials, dresses, similarity in 640
Fraternity 292, 797. (See Brotherhood).
| Freedom from fears, doubts, sorrow | very easy, also very difficult, to find | 112, 297-299 | 127 |
| Free-Will, Supreme Self's | forgets Himself into Man | 436. (See Destiny) | 122 |
| Fullest Reality | Nature, and Man | 334 | 121, 122, 391-393, 767 |
| Funerals | universal I, Supreme Self, No-Thing-Else | 640 | 156-157 |
| Fruit-vendor, four strangers and, story of | and Satan both within us | 561-562 | 185 |
| Fruit of Life | names of | 810 | 186-198 |
| G | creates both Good and Evil | &quot;GENES&quot; | 204, 208, 210 |
| 'Gentleman', meaning of 96. (See Ærya). | and Son of 214, 300; liberty of Sons of | 682-683 | 299 |
| Ghosts | becoming like, merging into, becoming | 269 | 296-297, 356 |
| Glands. (See Plexuses). | kingdom of (Heaven i.e.) | 113, 325, 797 | 299, 471, 480 |
| Gnosis, Gnosticism | whole Universe, family of | 200, 295-300, 308, 332, 355-6, 515, 654. (See Values). | 392-394 |
| God. (See Self). indefinite need for | and Mammon | 113 etc. | 125, 486 |
| | becoming like, merging into, becoming | 35-36 | 492-493 |
| A(l)one, | inverted is Satan | 335-336 | 178, 492, 706, 778 |
| Universal, Infinite, Eternal, Immortal, Supreme Self 107, 113 etc. | kingdom of, taken by storm | 43 | 483 |
| in man 43, 184, 197, 212-214, 449-463, 767-768 | replaces Man | Will of 73. (See Will). | 457, 463-464 |
| shows himself to the deserving | 484 |
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>PAGE</th>
<th>PAGE</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>God, (See Self).</td>
<td>Golden Mean</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>'grace' of</td>
<td>achieved by Right Social Organisation</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Inspiration by</td>
<td>True Good, right education</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>broken heart, true</td>
<td>foundation of all</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>home of 487-489, 700</td>
<td>like Evil, is Nothing</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>give up all to find</td>
<td>the, and the Pleasant reconciled</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>love of, the only Way</td>
<td>and Evil 60,180-182,</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>submission to and</td>
<td>both created by God</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>utter trust in 493, 505</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Surrender, absolute, of self to</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>is Love, Love is</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>who knows not Love knows not</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Himself tastes and suffers all weals and woes, compassion and cruelties, beauties and horrors</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>545</td>
<td>404, 407</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Homes, Houses, of</td>
<td>corollaries of</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>all forms His</td>
<td>reason for</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>the pure in heart see</td>
<td>difficulties ré</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Word of</td>
<td>how difficulties ré, may be solved</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>608</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>living temple of</td>
<td>Social Organisation indispensable for working</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>618</td>
<td>647-648, 776</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>desires mercy, not murder</td>
<td>Good, right education</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>633</td>
<td>like Evil, is Nothing</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>live and die for</td>
<td>the, and the Pleasant reconciled</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>716</td>
<td>and Evil 60,180-182,</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>moveth all, yet Duty must be done 750.</td>
<td>both created by God</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(See Consciousness, I, Self).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
both in every one 210-211, 328-329, 471
Good-will among men 39
Goodness, Truth
Beauty 39. (See Truth).
Grades of evolutionary types 233-235
Greed, one of three gateways into hell 35
Guru, quality of true 800

H
Hair's breadth line between Selfishness and Un-selfishness 469
Happiness, here and hereafter, the One Way to . . . ; 112, 481-482, 519-520
Harmony, how secured 551
Hate 35-36 extinguished by Love, not by Hate 410, 414-416, 441 as the Un-Truth of Separateness 447 Heart, large and small 95-96 human throne of God 143 change of, needed to see God 174-175 cleansing of parental, more needed in teacher than clever head 476-477 778
Heartache, Divine 317, 342, 395
Heaven 5, 266, 469
Heaven, Way of 222, 243, 267 kingdom of, on earth, 5 its meaning and nature 795-797 Hebrew Vēdānta 327-328
Hell 266, 469
Helper needed by young Soul 549
Here, the Infinite 65
Heredity 682-686
Hierarchy, Spiritual 7, 284-295
Hinduism. (See Vēdism).
Holy of Holies, in the heart 724
Home 397 return to the Treasury in the 305 315
Humanism 36-37
Human beings, all, limbs, members, of each other 505-6
Humility, crowning virtue 477-498 a form of Truth and Non-Egoism 493 feel, not show, always 495
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Hunger</th>
<th>382, 433, 677</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Husband-Wife, Primal</td>
<td>393</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>make or mar one another</td>
<td>394-395</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

'I'

(See Self, God, Consciousness),

the, is All | 146-150, 168-169 |

'I am that (what, he who) I am' | 147-148, 256 |

'I am' | 147, 196 |

'I am hath sent me' | 148 |

"before Abraham was' | 148 |

"all This" | 147 |

"Infinite" | 147 |

alone is wholly True, Real | 151 |

senses the senses | 144 |

all the most baffling, elusive, contradictory, unintelligible despcritions of God, the Absolute, become suddenly lighted up and perfectly intelligible when applied to 'I' | 157-173 |

contains all Good and all Evil | 210 |

nearest and dearest name of God

is | 196, 219 |

wears, bears, every name and form, and knows, desires, does everything that is known, desired, done | 219 |

is the Ultimate Mystery | 218 |

the Universal, in All, cause of Law of Karma, and reason for Golden Rule | 237-238, 411-412 |

Religion of the | 703 |

Ideation | 334. (See Imagination). |

Identification of soul and God, purpose of Love-Devotion | 463 |

Idol-worship | 430 |

'Id-s' | 682. (See Genes). |

Illusion, (Māyā) | 61, 122, 166, 332-334, 341, 438 |

Illumination | 113, 570, 715 |

grades of inner | 740 |

Image-worship | 609 |

Imagination, miracle of | 334 |

Imagination and Will | 335; Divine 353, 553. (See Will). |

Immortal, buy the, with the Mortal | 315-316, 461 |
Immortality, meaning of, and how gained 112, 460

Impersonal 462

Impostors 538-541

Incarnations 286-295, (as Avasāras) 353

Indescribable, the 165

India, her mission 664

Mother of Religions 762

Jews in 762

Individual, not to be over-valued ... becomes Universal 296, 300-301 liberty 73-74

and Society 643-701

Individualism, sensuous 761

Infinite, the 296, 300;

becomes 'as if' finite 436; 485.

(See Self).

Infinitesimal 296

Initiates 134

Inner eye 211

Inquisition and Inquisitors 492, 708, 761

Instincts, primal 433,

(appetites) 494,

(four main) 651

Institutions, four fundamental social 654

Intellect and Intuition 142

Inter-dependence of all 658

Interpretation of Scriptures, many ways of 280

Inter-nationalism 38-39

Inter-religionism 38

Introspection, self-conscious 211, 442-445

Intuition 139

Invocation of the Spirit of Unity 1-8

Involuntary-and-Evolution. (See Evolution) 220

Islam ... ; 145.

(Throughout)

As reform within

Vēdism 712

Jaina Temples 622

Jealousy, racial, national, political 17, 44, 524

Jen, the Higher Self

452. (C.).

Jews, in India 527

Joy becomes Duty 447, 512

Eternal

Judaism (or Hebraism), 2

the Jewish
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Subject</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Judge, all-seeing, within us</td>
<td>250</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Just, Ruler's prime duty to be</td>
<td>422</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Justice 250; is also greatest Mercy</td>
<td>250</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Known, to be is to be, and vice versa</td>
<td>186</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>LANGUAGE, difference between religions, only of</td>
<td>85-86</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Laotsism. (See Taoism).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Law of, Action and Reaction</td>
<td>237, 255</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ambivalence. (See Duality).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cause and Effect</td>
<td>237, 255</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Conservation of Energy</td>
<td>255</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cyclicity</td>
<td>318</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Duality 106. (See Ambivalence).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Heredity</td>
<td>682-686</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Indestructibility of Matter</td>
<td>255</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Karma. (See Karma, Law of).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mutation or Spontaneous Variation</td>
<td>682-686</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nature, God's Commandment as</td>
<td>681</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Polarity. (See Duality).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sacrifice</td>
<td>105-107</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Unity, of Universal Self</td>
<td>105</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Law, Religion-inspired, an End of Life</td>
<td>296</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Page</td>
<td>Page</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>------</td>
<td>------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>League of Nations of Religions needed</td>
<td>Life, a perpetual choice between rival 'ills' and 'goods'</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8, 21, 33</td>
<td>64, 532</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Legends, ré Founders and Reformers of Religions, exaggerated</td>
<td>endless Evolutionary Chain of Life 294-295</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Legislation, by only the Good and Wise, can establish kingdom of heaven on earth</td>
<td>dual, sub-divided into quadruple, end, aim, goal, purpose, object, fundamental value, of</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(See Self-government).</td>
<td>three aspects of new regenerate</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Letter vs. Spirit. (See Spirit).</td>
<td>Elixir (Persian, al-aksir) of</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Liberty, in non-essentials for the young, in education, how far desirable</td>
<td>four stages of</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>89</td>
<td>Meaning of 122, 699-700</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>meaning of individual 73-74</td>
<td>repudiations of</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>in changing from one religion to another 71</td>
<td>Living beings, types of</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>glorious, of the Sons of God 299</td>
<td>. . .; 230, 267-268</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>given by Christ 299</td>
<td>vast paternity of all 292</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>final 297</td>
<td>Litanies 631</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Liberty vs. Necessity 249-220. (See Destiny).</td>
<td>Logion, Logia, Logos-words (Great Sayings), of religions</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>. . .; 131, 143-151</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Love, beneficent</td>
<td>Fatherly Power 22</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>and Hate 53</td>
<td>Divine and Human 357</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>as an aspect of the One Truth 447</td>
<td>the one way to know</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>God 509</td>
<td>lower and higher 510-511</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table> personal precedes its grades and degrees 523 impersonal succeeds 523 physical, superphysical, Spiritual 524 perfect, casteth out fear 743 is God becomes Law 447, 572
Love-chase vs. love-capture 340
Lust 35; of senses 377; and Hate 438

MACRO-COSM 271, 730
Triple, as Intellectus Mundi, Anima
Mundi, and Corpus Mundi 271-272, 278-280, 669-670
(See Mundi).
Madness of the Nations 780-781
Magic 269-270
black 269-270 701
Ma-gokoro, Japanese doctrine of Middle Course or Moderation 46-47. (Sh.).
Male and Female, duality of 60-61
Mammon 125, 486
Manias, six chief 780
Man, God in. (See God in Man). is Trinity-in-Unity 72 remembers himself into God 122
Satan as well as God, both in 185 Consciousness of makes God in his own image 200 crown of creation, why 235 is, in essence, God 200, 212-218 becomes God 360
part beast, part angel 431
image of God 767-768 becomes God, or dust, as he desires 318 of God 772, 804 four types of 650
of godly science 806-807
Macrocosmic 730
Mankind, all one, like organs of same organism 729-731
Marks, external, of religions 638-639
Marriage, one righteous aim 393, 396-397 higher aim of 396-397 as Wish-to-Multiply 435 purpose of Love 463
four kinds of 652
between persons of parity of temperament 674 right, promotive of racial health 674
Martyr, blood of 355
Material Bread. (See Bread).
Masquerader, the Eternal 352
Maternity, 396. (See Motherhood).
Matter 24, 212, 220
indestructibility of and Spirit 31-32
Māyā, two glamourpowers of, and their counteractives 332, 334, 438, 799 Meaning, sameness of, beneath difference of words 88-97 of Life. (See Life).
Mean, Golden, enjoined in all religions 41-49, 109, 448-449
Mechanism vs. Vitalism 249
Mediators, and Mediums 546-547 prayers to 575
Meditation, aids to 630-631
Mercy, Justice is also greatest 250
Merit, reward for 240-244
Memory, Consciousness, omniscient, eternal, of God 166-169 source of all successive individual knowledge 743 panoramic, rapid, at death 466
Metaphysic, . . ., . . .; concepts of at roots of, all sciences 12, 498 same as Spiritual Religion 761
Metempsychosis 258-268
Micro-cosm 271, 278-279
(See Macro-cosm).
Middle Path 109
Middle course. (See Mean, Golden).
Mind, creator and governor of Matter 22-24, 31-32 first and most direct thing in our experience 25
the Universal Reality 27-28
Supreme 29
eminent physical scientists' views on 22-30 three functions of 54
mind-force 73
child- and sage-. (See Child-mind, and Sage-mind), good and bad 181-182
triad of Mind-Force-Matter 350
Universal 172, 218, 353, 742. (See Consciousness, and Macro-cosm).
Miracle, psychic 128-129
the eternal 334
Mis-education, consequences of 773, 775, 791
Mis-employment, cause of Unemployment 777, 783
Mismanagement, gross, in Religion, Politics, Economics, Domestics, Pedagogics, Art, Recreation, all departments of life 778-787
Missionary vs. Mercenary 772
Moderation, the one virtue 45. (See Middle Course, Middle Path, Golden Mean; also Excess).
Modern Science, and Religion 31 and psychical research 30-31
Monasteries 641-642
Monism 323
Monotony 61
Moral disarmament must precede physical 37
Moral Equivalent of War 696
Moral Principles, only two basic 451-452
Morals revolutionised 782
Motherhood 385-397
mother-love is heaven 385-386 mother-image is guardian-angel 387 mother greater than father or teacher 389 woman created to be mother 394-395 is educator's function, while father-justice is ruler's 504 is Beauty-aspect of God, and Ministrant function of State, while father-justice is Majesty-aspect of God and Constituent function of State 530-531 paradox of mother-love 512 worship of mother and babe, in all religions 616 Multiplicity 16, 106, 195, 253; as Diversity 686, 759. (See
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Unity, and Diversity)</th>
<th>91</th>
<th>sweetest</th>
<th>390-391</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Multi-tony</td>
<td>91</td>
<td>best and dearest is 'I'</td>
<td>219</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mundi, anima, (intellectus or spiritus, and corpus)</td>
<td>...</td>
<td>Nationalism 36; patriotic</td>
<td>761</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>271-272</td>
<td>Music in the soul</td>
<td>306</td>
<td>Nations, rise and fall of</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mutation, or Spontaneous Variation, law of</td>
<td>682</td>
<td>Nature, is God's Nature as compeller</td>
<td>68, 122, 253</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>cause of</td>
<td>682-683</td>
<td>a continuity</td>
<td>252</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mystery clears, when lower self is subdued</td>
<td>559-560</td>
<td>kingdoms of</td>
<td>225-229</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ultimate</td>
<td>194, 218</td>
<td>three attributes of God's</td>
<td>683</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mysteries in every religion</td>
<td>102, 128-137</td>
<td>Necessity vs. Liberty. (See Destiny).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Eleusinian</td>
<td>102</td>
<td>Negations, Self described by</td>
<td>326</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mysticism</td>
<td>113, 214, 254, 325</td>
<td>New Dawn and New Eve</td>
<td>311</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kabir's Irenian</td>
<td>712</td>
<td>Night and Day, the true</td>
<td>747</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mystic voluptuousness</td>
<td></td>
<td>Nihilism, finite is, of Infinite</td>
<td>706</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mystic meaning of name of street in Banaras</td>
<td>523</td>
<td>Non-dualism</td>
<td>221</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mystics, Spiritual Race of</td>
<td>591</td>
<td>Non-extremism, Why of</td>
<td>47</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>N</td>
<td>562</td>
<td>Non-essentials change</td>
<td>100</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>NAMES, of God, dual in many Scriptures</td>
<td>56-63, 185-212, 219</td>
<td>Non-resistance</td>
<td>371</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Un-Uttered Name</td>
<td>192</td>
<td>Not-Self 147; (Matter)</td>
<td>325</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>indicate powers and attributes</td>
<td>351-352</td>
<td>Not-This</td>
<td>164</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Now, Eternal</td>
<td>65</td>
<td>Numbers of species of living forms</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Objections, some, to teaching of Religion 69-74
Object-World, 'I' is cause of all 'This' or 147
Obligatory and optional duties 97
Occupation, i.e., vocation 74, 651; character and 690 perverted into 'hereditary caste' 676
Odioms, two 14
Omni-potence, of Self 349, 436
Omni-presence, of Self 65, 349, 436
Omni-science 349, 436, 743
One, the 1-7. (See Self).
Oneness, otherless secondless, in thought, feeling, 741-742 action
(See Duality).
Optional actions 97
Organic unity of all humans 505-6

PAGE
232-233; of other things 232-233

Organs, organs of sense 10-15
Organisation. (See Social Organisation).
Organisation for Peace, the Permanent Problem . . .; 629, 647, 694 military, for War, passing problem 629, 694
Orgic tendencies 637
Originality, craving for . . .
Original sin 472, 777
Other-worldliness, of India, how far exaggerated 11-12
Oversoul of Human Race 20

P
Pain 493-502. (See Pleasure).
Pairs of Opposites. (See Opposites).
Palingenesis 218
Pantheism 322
Parables 136
Para-Brahma 365
Parental responsibility, wish to avoid 396-397
Parents, Teachers, Elders, reverence due to 384-397
Paternity 395
Pastime, World-Drama 439
Passion, any, in excess, drives mad 439
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Subject</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Powers higher or super-physical of God, indicated by psychic, not to be coveted</td>
<td>372</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
| Practicalism Practicality, false and true Prayer Vedic Islamic Christian Hebrew Zoroastrian Buddhist Sikh for Light, in all religions meaning of opens up spiritual sight congregational and solitary Un-uttered, perpetual, self-displaying benefits of for the departed ritualistic for right Will and Wisdom, in all religions calls to Pride goeth before destruction Priests, corrupt Priestcraft and kingcraft Priesthoods, merits and demerits of organised Problem, the One, of human life Property, and artistic possessions, an End of Life focus of egoistic separatism means self-expansion Prophets false, and (false) Christ judge over all, man in the street killed by those for whom they labored true, must curb rulers Psychic, Miracle Psychical Research, Society for Psycho-analysis analysts, analystser analytic treatment
| Punishment, righteous, distinguished from Violence | 424-425. (See Sin). |
| Purity. (See Cleanliness). |
| Q |
| QUESTION, Final 715 |
| R |
| R', fourth, of Universal Religion 69 |
| Rage, anger, restraint of 417 |
| Real, True, the 151. (See Unreal). |
| Reality, fullest 334, 351 |
| Rebirth 218-268 |
| involuntary 276-277 |
| involuntary 277, 318 |
| Reciprocity 273 |
| Reconciliation of all views by Philosophy 15-16 |
| principles of 421 |
| Record, Hidden Eternal 742 |
| Recreation, Art and, gross forms of 785 |
| Re-education 601 |
| Reform movements in every religion 712 |
| Regeneration 601 |
| Reincarnation. (See Re-birth). |
| Islamic views ré 236-237 |
| kinds of, in Sufism 236 |
| believed in by famous European writers 258-260. (See Transmigration of souls). |
| Relations, all possible, between Spirit and Matter 324-325 |
| Religion, governing all life in all communities 9-10 |
| degenerates, why 10, 628, 761 |
| and Civilisation 19-20 |
| is one 29-20 |
| a Tri-une Way 515 |
| and Science are one 19 |
| well-planned instruction in potent instrument for peace 38 |
| indispensable 39-41 |
| excess of, suicidal 42 |
| Perfect Religion transcends 65-66 |
| ineradicable conviction ré Essence of 67 |
| in fulness is whole of Science, is Larger Science 67-68 |
| Universal, nature of 69-70 |
| imperative Duty to teach 69-70 |
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>PAGE</th>
<th>PAGE</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>indefeasible power of soul to judge any, and change from it to any other</td>
<td>need for graded series of text-books of Universal; comparative study of superphysical or occult side of Religions, Eleven Living; Parliaments of</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>71, 643</td>
<td>7-9</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Agreement of all religions, proclaimed by all Founders of all</td>
<td>————</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>72-88</td>
<td>72-88</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Meaning of</td>
<td>79, 103</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>All Founders of, only re-form and re-proclaim, say nothing new</td>
<td>80-82</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nature of threefold character, three interests, aspects, constituents, of</td>
<td>113-119</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>103-113</td>
<td>103-113</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>an End of Life</td>
<td>296-297</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>is that which secures Happiness, here and hereafter</td>
<td>68, 583</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>and the Arts</td>
<td>627-628</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Democratic and Socialist</td>
<td>645</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Revolts and Reforms in</td>
<td>712</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ultimate practical lesson of</td>
<td>505</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Righteous Action end and aim of</td>
<td>747-750</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Essential</td>
<td>39, 685</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Evils of</td>
<td>701-711</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>a Disastrous Error common to all</td>
<td>701-702</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>distinguishing peculiarities of have religions copied from one another?</td>
<td>706-707</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>uniqueness of each, insisted on by some degenerate, why</td>
<td>5, 550, 706, 711</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>all, gathered and</td>
<td>10, 761</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table> represented in India 762-764
Religiosity, easy, is sin 733-734
Religious Law, four-fold source of, in all religions 603
Science 9, 19
Wars 709-710
Renunciants, additional duties of 368-369
Renunciation, Path of 369, 402; who is qualified to enter 520-527 complete, of individualised existence 372; 369-372 purpose of, Buddha's and Christ's preaching of 402, 452-468; 488-489 four stages of 453-454
Repentance 597
Rescript, Imperial, of Japan 307
Rest, in God 341-342
Resumé 569, 644
Revelation 603
'Revivalist' sects 522, 537
Revolution, Cyclic 220
Reverence for parents 384-385
Reward. (see Merit).
Right Action 357, 520; Way of Works or 569-758
Right Knowledge, Way of 121-356
Right Knowledge—Desire-Action, all indispensable 357-358
Right Love or Devotion, Way of 357-568
Right Path 3-7, 330
Right Thought-Word-Act 116-118
Riots, communal . . . 768
Rites and Ceremonies 640
Rishis 7; Qur'anic 582; Vedic 583
Rule, simple, needs comment 496. (See Golden Rule).
Rule of Three 121
Rulers, Benevolent 685
Russia, the Great Experiment in, its merits, and its great all-vitiating demerit . . . 788-789 religion in 41-42, 582

S

Sacrifices, Law of 629-630
Sacrifices, Law of 105-107
Sacrificial, Law of of the smaller, lower self 105, 631-633
Sacrifice, Law of 631-634
Sacrifice, Law of all Scriptures disapprove of animal-
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Subject</th>
<th>Page(s)</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>all life, one long, of</td>
<td>714-718</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Perfected Men and Women</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Safeguard, the One</td>
<td>472</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sage-mind. (See Child-mind)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Saints and Disciples</td>
<td>443</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Saints and Sinners</td>
<td>687</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Salvation, Beatitude of</td>
<td>299</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Same-sighted, the wise</td>
<td>278</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sarmad, the swan-song of</td>
<td>560-565</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Satan, God-ordained function, and joys</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>and sorrows, of 178-179; within us</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>185; highest angel becomes 472; is God</td>
<td>706</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>inverted</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sayings Great... (See Logion)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Scholar, ink of</td>
<td>355</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Science</td>
<td>14, 19, 67-68, 774-776</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>odium theologicum in 14</td>
<td>19</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>is one</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>and Religion, reconciled by Philosophy</td>
<td>15, 22-23, 32</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>and Religion are one 764</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>physical, is partial and imperfect</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>religion</td>
<td>68</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Spiritual</td>
<td>685</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Spirituoo-Material</td>
<td>646</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Scientific Materialism is dead</td>
<td>185</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Scientific Religion</td>
<td>19-20, 33, 64, 108, 764</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Scientists' views of, ré</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Spirit and Mind governing Matter</td>
<td>21-31</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>conscience of, awakening</td>
<td>773-775</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fnilure of</td>
<td>775</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>confessions of</td>
<td>773-775</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>heaviest Responsibility rests upon</td>
<td>808</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Scriptures, in all religions, described</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>by words having the same meaning</td>
<td>602-603</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Season, a, for everything</td>
<td>99, 697</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sects, multifarious, in each religion</td>
<td>643, 701</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Seek, many, few find</td>
<td>125</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Seeking, the Joyous Ache of</td>
<td>339</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>&quot;Seek the Seeker &quot;,</td>
<td>624</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Self, or God, the Universal, Eternal,</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Infinite, Supreme, All-pervading, All-</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>binding, All-uniting One</td>
<td>6, 813</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mysterious Something behind everything</td>
<td>194, 218</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Science of, Final Synthesis</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table> of Philosophy, Science, Religion 39-40
Larger 106-108
Identity of Individual with Universal 112, 122, 146-148, 216-218, 515 distinction between them 214
'I Al(l)-One', to be pondered on 138, 151
Self-Luminous and all other il-luminating 143, 154 abode of God, heart of man 143 basis of 'This', 'Not-Self' 147
One, Not-a-Second 150, 156-157
Changeless, Beginningless, Endless, Moveless, Causeless, Yet Cause of All 151-153
Ever-Full 256
Sensor of the Senses, Unknown to knower 154-156 yet most Knowable and Known 155-156
Known to the Ignorant 156
First and Last 157-158, 195
Not Being, nor Non-Being, nor Both, nor free from Both 159-173
'Not-This', 'Not-This' 164
Indescribable, but indefeasibly Self-known 165 as Universal Being and also minutest in-divisible Indi-vidu-al 167
Unique, Vaster than Vastest, Smaller than Smallest 167
All-Enveloping, 'I is All', 'All is I' 168
Dual Names of many names of the Self-Same 185-196 un-uttered Name of 192-193, 559-560
Living Breath, the Great Ultimate 193
Supreme, the Ultimate Mystery 196, 218
Greatest Gain, Summum Bonum, Heart's Desire, of All 198
Most Beautiful, Most Terrible too 202-211
all moods belong to 206 creates Good and also Evil 210-211. (See Good; also Evil).
impossible to doubt 212
Supreme and Final Judge between religions, prophets, teachers 217-218, 249-250, 543, 643
' I ' in all 219
Friend, also Enemy 246-248
Inner, Inescapable, Witness and Judge 250
the One Sole Wearer of Countless Dresses 256-257 Eternal Fount of Peace 303
the One Goal 308
Nature of, described by countless Negations 326-327
Changelessness of, simultaneously including and negating all possible Changes 346
Desire arose in 347
Trinity of Aspects in the Unity of Self 349-351
the One Sure Guide 448-449
Higher 450, 485, 796
the Friend in All 306, 475-476 lower and Higher . . . ; 558 the One Lord and Master 622
the small and the Great 705
Alone True-Beautiful-Good 520. (See Consciousness, God, ' I '). how found 484
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Punishment by Nature for Sins of generation after generation</th>
<th>PAGE</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>necessary to work Golden Rule 426, 496, 776</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>indispensable for Moral War 696</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Society and individual 647-648</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Son of God, God and, Distinction between 214; 300; 459</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Soul, three stages in Progress of how separable from Body during Life 209</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>a piece of Divinity 767</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Souls, two, in each person have no creed, caste, colour, race, sex 62, 431</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>all, desire ‘mirrors’ 90</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>soul-education 625</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-force compels sword-force 802-804</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-repose 375</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Speechless Discourse 215</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Speed-lust vs. Soul-repose</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Spentā and Āngra 474.(Z.)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Spirit-Matter 24, 31-32, 212, 322-323, 702</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Spirits, good and evil, of many types, planes, worlds 267-270</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

| Sheaths 263, 271-273 |
| dense and subtile 273 |
| Shīa-ism 712 |
| Shintoism ..., ..., 11, 94, 112, 213, (Throughout). |
| Show, Empty 334 |
| Sikhsism, ..., ..., 712, (Throughout). |
| Silence, Song of the 559 |
| Simplexes 434, (See Complexes). |
| Sinners-Saints 687, 760 |
| Sin, Original 472-473 |
| punishment for 237-252 |
| sexual, punished generation after generation 248-249, 678 |
| Sins 207, 427-428, 678 |
| Seven ‘Deadly’ single seed of two root- 428 |
| Sleeping, the real Spiritual 336-337, 747 |
| Slaves self-sold, Perfected Souls 321, 353 |
| Socialism 503, 761, 789, 793 |
| State- 789 |
| Social Organisation 18, 426, 532, 643-701 |
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SUBJECT</th>
<th>PAGE</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Spirit versus Letter</td>
<td>713, 738-739</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Spiritual, Bread ...; 18. (See Bread). Entity, the universe, a</td>
<td>22, 27</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Consciousness</td>
<td>174</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Education</td>
<td>625</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hierarchy</td>
<td>7, 284-294</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Power</td>
<td>38, 803</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>relationship</td>
<td>640</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Science</td>
<td>108, 685, 761</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Scientists</td>
<td>685</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Will</td>
<td>178</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>emotions and affections</td>
<td>179</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fire</td>
<td>606</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Stages, in each life, four successive</td>
<td>521, 651</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>State, dual functions of, arising from the Golden Rule</td>
<td>397</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>States of Consciousness or moods of soul</td>
<td>272</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Stoicism</td>
<td>511-512</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Strife, religious and politico-economic</td>
<td>762</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>chief Remedy for</td>
<td>768</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Struggle for Existence</td>
<td>434, 785</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sufi, kalema, logion, the real</td>
<td>132, 144</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>meaning of the word</td>
<td>327</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sufism, as reform in Islam</td>
<td>712. (Throughout).</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Summum Bonum</td>
<td>198, 295-356, 520</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>genus</td>
<td>167</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>or parvum or parvulum or minutum individuum</td>
<td>167</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sunnism</td>
<td>712</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Super-Men</td>
<td>285-292, 646</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Super-Mind</td>
<td>174</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Supra-Conscious</td>
<td>238</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Surrender, of small self to Great Self or God</td>
<td>107, 508</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sva-rāj</td>
<td>796. (See Self-government).</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sympathy, meaning of</td>
<td>173</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Synthesis, the Final, of Philosophy, Science, Law, Art, Religion, by God-Science</td>
<td>39-40</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

T

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SUBJECT</th>
<th>PAGE</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>TAO, (or Lao-tsim)</td>
<td>111</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>..., ..., 9, 285</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Taoism. (Throughout).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tasawwuf, 10, 327. (See Sufism).</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Teachers, Great, given to all races</td>
<td>7, 288</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Teachings, 'regard the, not the Teachers'</td>
<td>552</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Temperaments, Different, and Different</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Page</td>
<td>Page</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>------</td>
<td>------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kinds of Education and of Religious Practices for 120, 570-572, 655-656</td>
<td>of pathological temperaments, treatments, crimes and criminals, punishments 658-659</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
| Testing of and Vocational Classes 179 | Texts, used in this book, Note on ... ...
| Temples, living, of God 618 | of Védism ...
| Temple-towns 611, 622 | Zoroastrianism ...
| Temporal Power 38, 803 | Islam ...
| Tests of intelligence devised in the west, not yet of temperaments 120 | Shintoism, Taoism, and Confucianism ...
| Tetrads 650-671 | Buddhaism ...
| of human types, vocations, livelihoods 650-671 | Jainism ...
| of stages of life, physical appetites, kinds of food, special possessions, marriages 651-652 | Sikhism ...
| of recreations, psychical appetites 652-654 | Treasure-House of Living Religions by B. R. Hume; other works ...
| of duties, subordinate organisations, social debts 655-656 | Theosophical Society 775, 776 |
| of repayments 656-657 | Thirty-six counsels 33-34 |
| | 'This', 'Other-than-I,' the Object-World 147 |
| | This-worldliness, in India also, as well as the west 11-12 |
| | Thought, this World is 126 |
| | Three, Rule of 121 |
| | Tongue, control of, secret of all control 376-381 |
| | what goeth in at, and out from 376 |
| | Theism, Dualistic 322 |
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>PAGE</th>
<th>PAGE</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Total World-Body-Intelligence-Vitality 272</td>
<td>of Oneness of all selves in Universal Self, Ultimate 493</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tragedy and Comedy, of the Universe 211, 220, 344</td>
<td>helpful though harsh 480-481</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tranquil mind, how gained 503</td>
<td>hidden in Error 703, 706</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Transmigration. (See Rebirth). views of, in Islam 236-237</td>
<td>as Love 447</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Trinity in Unity 121, 270-272, 349</td>
<td>as non-egoism 493</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Triple Civilisation 118-120</td>
<td>Truth-Beauty-Goodness 38, 39, 351, 704, 752</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Triplexity 118-120</td>
<td>Same Eternal proclaimed by all successive Great Teachers 51-60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tri-une Way called Religion 515</td>
<td>Two souls in each person 62</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>True, only the Changeless is the 151, 752. (See Real).</td>
<td>Types, of living beings 230, 267</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Truth, Impersonal, All-personal 21; 491; 707</td>
<td>or temperaments, four, recognised in different religions 650, 664-673</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>always in the Mean between Extremes 46-47</td>
<td>all possible, and characters, in God’s Imagination 334</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>all co-ordinating 67</td>
<td>U</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>of Truths, Fundamental 218</td>
<td>Ultimate Fact 193, 219, 327, 349</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>not easy to put in words 215</td>
<td>Mystery 188, 194, 196, 219</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>of truths, the one basic 122</td>
<td>Unconscious, the Collective 238, 574</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>four noble Truths of Buddhism 392</td>
<td>may become conscious by prayer 574</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>of the One Self, Source of all Virtues 438</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Understanding is partial realisation 450, 451
Unemployment 783
Unity, Invocation of the Supreme Spirit of Spirit of 6, 15-18 in Multiplicity 195
in Trinity 349
Union, Divine, the One Cure for all sorrows 516
Unique, individually vs. universally 516
Universalism, 107, 174, 178, 184, 449-450, 729
Universe 6, 22
meaning of the word 218
Universal Name of all 169, 219
Consciousness 300
Being 300
Will-Life-Intelligence 300
Universal Mind . . .
56, 218, 742
Universal Religion,
Test of 75.
(Throughout).
Universal Self. (See Self).
Universal, the, not to be undervalued . . .
Universities, should compile text-books of, and teach, Universal Religion

Unreal, the 151
Unrest vs. Rest 341-342
Untruth, the First as Hate 447
Urge, inner, to know the Self 313

VAIĐIKA Dharma and its many names 109, 631
Values of life 296, (as end or goal) 615;
(as Dharma-Artha-Kāma-Moksha 526-529, 654
Vanity of Vanities 331, 333, 335, 344
Variation. (See Mutation).
Vēdānta-Tasawwuf (-Gnosis) 10, 72, 147
Vēdānta-Yoga 10
Vēdic religion 9
Vēdism (or Hinduism) . . .; 520. (See Vaiđika Dharma).
. systematises all life 520.
(Throughout).
Vice, single seed of.
(See Egoism +38).
Views, hasty and one-sided, regarding East and West 13
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Subject</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>unbearable burden of Expenditure</td>
<td>777</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Preparation for</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-mentality</td>
<td>448</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>, religious</td>
<td>708</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>moral equivalent of</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>, Moral</td>
<td>696</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Way of Devotion</td>
<td>113</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>; (or Right Desire; or Worship)</td>
<td>570</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>of Heaven</td>
<td>243</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Danger on</td>
<td>177</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>of Knowledge</td>
<td>113,</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>; (of Right Knowledge)</td>
<td>357</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>of Works</td>
<td>113,</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>; (or Right-Action)</td>
<td>357</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Way, Truth, Life</td>
<td>178</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Three-fold</td>
<td>570-575</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>West and East</td>
<td>13, 16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wheel of Joy and Sorrow</td>
<td>255</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Whisper, Sacred Knowledge conveyed in</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>a</td>
<td>128</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Will-and-Imagination</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>...; (Māyāvic)</td>
<td>122,</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>; (333-338, 353, 439, 553)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Will-Life-Intelligence, Universal</td>
<td>300</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Will, the Divine, of God, i.e., the</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Universal Self, how ascertain 108, 519-520, 646-647

Wisdom, the Sun of Scriptural, ever shining ...

Ancient 133-137

is choosing the lesser evil 532 is Science plus Philanthropy 778 must guide Valour 802-804

Word and Meaning, to be distinguished 709-711

World-Drama 257, 329, 492, 553

Words, Māyā of 709

World-Fellowship of Faiths 7, 775

'World,' meaning of 333

World-Illusion 332

World-Teacher 552

World-Process 6, 53, 147, 211, 218, 330, 492

an Interplay of Opposites 210-211

a Tragi-Comic Drama 211

Worlds, other than the physical 259-277

universal belief in 259

the soul's journey through many planes or 260-263

World-weariness, sadness 173.

(See Disgust).

Worship, Places of 604, 639-640

of Mother and Babe 616

Wrongs have ultimately to be righted by the People themselves 534-535

YEARNING, sweetness of 339, 343

Yoga, or Sulūk, physisco-psychical disciplines 276, 522-533

Z

ZOROASTRIANISM . . . .

(Throughout).
OPINIONS AND REVIEWS

OF

"THE ESSENTIAL UNITY OF ALL RELIGIONS"

BY

DR. BHAGAVĀN ṍĀŚ

Extract from letters D/27-3-1940 and 13-4-1940 from the (late) Right Honorable SIR AKBAR HYḌARĪ, P.C. Prime Minister to H. E. H. the Nizām, Hyḍarābāḍ (Deccan):

(a) ... I can only say that such books ought to be popularised by all means possible, and I wonder if you could not try in the different Provinces to get it adopted either as a text-book or for the purpose of prize-giving in Schools and Colleges. We have already taken 324 copies of the first edition: this second edition is an improvement in many ways, and your "Letter to the Reader" is in itself a contribution. For that reason, I hope you will be able to send about 100 copies to the Constitutional Affairs Secretary, H. E. H. the Nizam's Government ... so that I may be able to get the Education Department here to supply a few copies to different libraries and to utilise the rest for prize-giving purposes.

(b) ... I agree that ... in these fundamental matters ... the States could be induced to take an interest... Your own life and ideals make you a perfect exponent of Hindu-Muslim unity, and it is refreshing to find you still so keenly interested in bringing it about through a study of the fundamentals of the two religions. I hope your book will inspire similar fervour in others, and that Indian States will in this respect, as in many others, follow a path of their own... and establish an example worthy of both their past traditions and their future greatness.

Extract from letter D/ 11-11-1940, of HON'BLE SIR MUHAMMAĐ ZAFRULLĀ KHĀN, (then) Law Member of Council, Govt. of India:

I value your book, The Essential Unity of All Religions, very highly. I read the first edition some years ago. I send you my sincere congratulations and thanks for the new much enlarged edition. I have dipped into it in several places, and derived both profit and pleasure from my excursions. I am looking forward to a more leisurely enjoyment of it after the present extremely busy session is over. I consider that your labor of love deserves a rich reward in bringing all those people closer together who value spiritual truth above everything else. I wish our politicians could also realise the Essential Unity of Mankind.

Extract from letter D/ 2-9-1940, of Pandit AMARANĀTHA JHA, (then) Vice-Chancellor of University of Allahabad:

Every Hostel in the University has now, in its library, a copy of your Essential Unity of All Religions. In some Hostels it is being used in their Study Circles.
Extract from letter of Dr. SACHCHIDANAND SINHA, Vice-Chancellor of Patna University, D/19-9-1940:

... I have read your book with not only pleasure but profit, and respectfully congratulate you on its production. ... I am asking the Registrar ... to take necessary action ... so that a copy of it should be available in every hostel attached to different Colleges, not only in Patna, but elsewhere also in Bihar and Orissa.

(Dr. S. Sinha was elected president of first session of the newly elected members of Central Legislature who met to frame a Constitution for the Republic of India on 9-12-1946.)

PETER FREEMAN, Esq., ex-M.P. (British House of Commons), wrote from Cardiff, Wales, on 16-4-1940:

Dr. Bhagavan Das has rendered a great service to the world in compiling this compendium of Religious knowledge. For a world, stricken with misunderstanding, suffering, and sorrow, to show the essential teachings of all the great Religions to be identical, by direct first-hand evidence and quotations, is a service to humanity of outstanding importance. He deserves the sincere gratitude of all who are striving to bring about a new World Order, based on justice and reason, where all may live in peace and harmony. This can only be achieved when human beings realise their Common Brotherhood and that their respective Religions all inculcate the same fundamental ideals. Our sincere congratulations are offered to Dr. Das and our grateful thanks for this timely book.
Mrs. Jean Allen, Edinburgh, 29-4-1940:

I . . . feel sure it will be of immense value, especially at the present difficult times when a basis of unity must be brought home to all peoples. My very best wishes for the success of your book . . .

A. F. Knudsen, Esq., Palace Hotel, Shanghai, 19-4-1940:

Your book is an exceedingly valuable contribution to the work of bringing Peace to the world. So long as any religion wares on other religions, there can be no peace of God on Earth . . .

Review in Mysore Economic Journal, for October, 1940, (Bangalore City):

It would be difficult to speak too highly of this book, whether as to its contents, the scholarship it displays, its aims and objects, or the selfless labours of the author who is responsible for it. It exhibits, in a word, the work of a lifetime. It is written too in a manner that is bound to carry conviction to everyone who keeps an open mind. India has attained, as no sub-continent situated like itself can be said to have attained, a unity which is unique in the history of mankind. Dr. Bhagavân ṇas shows the way how this unity can be further strengthened in the interests not only of this country but of the whole world, . . . of mankind itself. Proving the essential unity of all religions, he proves what has for long been thought to be impossible of proof, the possibility of bringing together all religions of the world, which seem to be at war, as it were, with one another. The doctrine of Samanvaya (Reconciliation) is here applied with patient labour and evident success to the teachings of different religions. It is a great achievement. This book should be distributed by active philanthropists amongst all classes and creeds of people, so that its fundamental ideas might soak into their minds and become part and parcel of their mental and physical make-up. This is not a book either for criticism or for examination. It is one that should be read and reread, and, what is more, acted upon. Those who read it should become—they are bound to become of their own accord—propagandists in its favour... As an advanced course in the teaching of Universal Religion, it ought to find a place in every University in which the teaching of religion as such finds a place, either for a degree course or for merely cultural purposes. Similar redactions of it ought to be useful as text-books for the teaching of Universal Religion in all Schools and Colleges, perhaps, modelled on a graduated scale...

Review, by Prof. SUSHIL KUMAR MAITRA, of Calcutta University, in Calcutta Review, for August 1940:

The work, has a primarily practical aim, and is written with the express purpose of preparing individuals and nations for the building up of a better, more spiritual, world, based on fellowship, sympathy, and understanding. The author's purpose is to prove the Essential Identity of All Religions by exhaustive quotations from the sacred books of the world, and thereby to make good this long-standing deficiency in the extent literature on Comparative Religion. His main thesis throughout... is to prove, by texts from the sacred writings, that every religion is essentially an experience of unity, an experience which shows itself in the feeling of love and fellowship, and which gives itself practical shape in compassion, sympathy, and goodwill to creatures. He undertakes to establish his thesis by an exhaustive analysis of the intellectual, emotional, and volitional constituents of our religious experience, as set forth in the sacred books—an undertaking which he pursues with great thoroughness, through Chapters II, III and IV, and which the reader will find both instructive and interesting.

While it may be possible to disagree with the author's view that the identities are more essential that the differences...it cannot be denied that his view of religion as a synthetic, integrative, experience, branching out into diverse forms, is not one to be lightly brushed aside, either as not agreeing with the facts or failing as a practical remedy. He is certainly to be congratulated for having contributed something which is not merely of theoretical interest, but also promises practical results of a far-reaching character. His proposed counteractive to present-day intolerance, through a higher spiritual approach based on fellowship and understanding sympathy, may not prove as availing as an optimistic view of human nature may be disposed to assume, but it is certainly worth a more serious trial than Marxism, Socialism, and many of the other 'isms' that we hear of now-a-days.

Review in READERS' DIGEST, Bombay, for September 1940:
At a time when nations are at war with one another, when there is endless conflict going on between diverse creeds, works of the kind which prove that religion has its roots in unity and not strife are indispensable. Dr. Bhagavān Dās has brought to light the great identities of thought in all the great religions of the world, and has drawn freely from the writings of such Masters as Manu, Kṛṣṇa, Vyāsa, Zoroāster, Moses, Confucius, Buḍḍha, Christ, Muhammad, and Nānak. One great difficulty met with, in the introduction of religious teaching in schools, is apprehension of a likely clash between pupils pursuing diverse faiths. This difficulty can be easily overcome by publication of textbooks of the kind suggested by Dr. Bhagavān Dās. There are numerous parallel texts from Scriptures of the several religions, and he lays stress on the resemblances, rather than on the differences which cover non-essentials.

Review in Theosophical News and Notes, for July-August, 1940, (50, Gloucester Place, London, W. 1):

Those who know the scholarly work of Dr. Bhagavān Dās will welcome this new edition of his book, first published in 1932 and now greatly enlarged. Dr. Dās shows, by copious extracts, that in essentials all the great faiths are united. He points out that it is a mark of youth to wish to be peculiar and to claim to be the sole repository of truth. He considers that the hope of the future lies in the choice of teachers who are imbued with love of God and of humanity, and his chapter on Education should be carefully read and applied. Extracts are taken from the sacred books of the eleven living religions, and they are given in the original languages as well as in English. It would be impertinent to congratulate the compiler on this valuable book: a storehouse of information which should be studied by all who wish to understand the real basis of our belief in the Universal Brotherhood of Humanity.

Review in LEADER, D/ Allahabad, 28-5-1940:
Religion has been and shall remain one of the most potent forces that have elevated and ennobled the human mind. Throughout the ages it has inspired the noblest of deeds characterised by love, sacrifice, and service, while it has also been the greatest sustaining force in the dark hours of struggle, sorrow, and disappointment. It is religion, more than anything else, that has lifted man from the plane of animals and enabled the great progress that he has made. But there is also another side of the picture. Man's devotion to his religion has not always been as tolerant as it should have been. Its narrow conception has often made its votary forget that his religion is only one of the different ways of realizing God and serving his fellow human beings. Result has been degeneration of religion into fanaticism and shedding of innocent blood. Thinkers in different countries, owing allegiance to different creeds, have therefore been feeling that something must be done to bring out the Fundamental Unity of all Religions, that may help in promoting the idea of the Brotherhood of Man, which, emanating from the Fatherhood of God, is the highest truth of religion, and without an active realization of which, humanity cannot achieve the bright future which is in store for it.

Dr. Bhagavān Ṛṣas has long been interested in this important subject, and has never missed an opportunity to push forward the idea of the unity of religions. Recently, he has brought out the second and greatly enlarged edition of his book, The Essential Unity of All Religions, dealing with this most important subject. It is the result of laborious study and cool thinking spread over a long period, and brings together 1150 parallel texts, from the sacred writings of the eleven great living religions of the world, in the original, with their English translations. A running commentary systematises, interweaves, expounds and elucidates them all.

The book, which has been spoken of highly by distinguished men like Dr. Rabinḍranāth Tāgore, Sir S. Rādhākrishṇan, and Sir Muhammad Iqbāl, to name only a few, should serve a very useful purpose in this age of materialism, specially in this country, which has given shelter to followers of several creeds, and which is often the scene of bad blood due to communal conflicts which are generally attributed to religious differences.

Review in Hindū Outlook, New Delhi,

D/27-4-1940:

Modern India requires no sort of literature more than the one under review, dealing with the oft-repeated, but as often neglected, subject of Fundamental Unity in spite of Apparent Diversity of the Religions of the world.
In the seven chapters of the book, the author describes Religious Science and Scientific Religion, the Intellectual, Emotional, and Volitional Constituents of Religion, the One Way to Peace on Earth and Goodwill among Men, and the bearing of Religion on Education.

Dr. Bhagavān Īās has dived deep into the teachings of the great masters of all the living religions. To meet the contention of some scholars, that religions of later birth have copied from the earlier, he says; "Is it not because there is one Eternal Truth for all to copy? New generations are born from old, new nations grow out of colonies from old, new lamps are lighted from old, but the Life, the Light, the Might, which is only embodied in and expressed by the ever-changing forms, is beyond them all, is originated by none of them, but originates them all. It is an honour and a duty to copy if what is copied is truth; it were a disgrace to be original if what is originated is false ". To any fanatics who are labouring to believe that their religion is superior to that of others, a perusal of the book cannot but bring a change of heart.

The book is very inspiring in its ideals and the method of presentation quite delightful. It is replete with quotations from all the Scriptures of the world, which makes the work a valuable asset to religious scholars.

Review in Hīnḍū (Madras), D/10·3·1940:

This is a valuable book which contains the mellow views of a great scholar on the greatest of all themes. Dr. Bhagavān Īās says well in his Foreword: "Asiatic thought is deeply tinged with religion. Asia has given birth to all the great living religions". His attempt is to bring together parallel texts from the various Scriptures and to prove identities and similarities therein.

The truth is that Philosophy is the mediator between Religion and Science. Philosophy will teach us to realise the harmony of all religions, and the harmony of religion and science. The author says in noble words: "Here comes the use of well-planned religious instruction as the most potent instrument for the moral regeneration of mankind. Humanism, internationalism, inter-religionism go together, and are only aspects of each other".

The author then proceeds to discuss the Way of Knowledge or the Intellectual constituent of religion, the Way of Devotion or the Emotional constituent of religion and the Way of Works or the Volitional constituent of religion.

The author asks Educationists to work for soul-force, and Scientists to combine Spiritual Science with Material Science. He says aptly in conclusion: "The one purpose of religion is to bind the hearts of human beings to each other and to God: and the realisation of the Self in all as the God in all, and the consequent service of all as the service of God, is the Perfection and Completion of Religion".

Review in Theosophist (Adyar, Madras), for November, 1940:

Friends of the learned author all the world over will welcome another book, stamped with his inimitable seal of mellow wisdom, occasional gentle satire, and supreme sanity of common sense. As a compendium of apposite excerpts from world-famed Scriptures and poems, this would be invaluable for any lecturer who is trying to spread the healing message of which the stricken world is most in need just now, namely, Knowledge of the Unity and Spiritual Purpose of Life, and its identity of expression in all great religions. The dominant note throughout is the urgent need for strengthening of religion, not by emphasis on creeds and technical differences but by recognition of the underlying unity, and by mystic realization of essential truths. . . .

Senor U. M. Saenz Mora (of San Jose, Costa Rica), 16-5-1940:

... It is a great pleasure to have this volume among our books, and it will be a great help in our studies. We are certain that all our members will derive great pleasure and learning from it. . . .

Miss Etha Snodgrass (of Wheaton, Illinois), 27-5-1940:

... We are genuinely glad to have this book added to our shelves to be made available to all who will seek its wisdom. . . . I also thank you for the spirit of unselfish service . . . in which you release the book (from copyright) so freely to all the world. . . .

Mme. Eugenia Vasilescu (of Bucharest, Rumania), 17-4-1940:

... Your book meets a serious need for us. Often members have complained of not having sufficient material for study of Comparative Religion. Your work is a splendid answer to this need.
Mme. Jeanne Sylvie Lefevre (of Lisbon, Portugal) writes on 13-5-1940:

... My heartiest congratulations for your work...

"This compilation of texts from all great religions is a work of rare scholarship and tireless research. It is one the long awaited books of the world, and one of overwhelming importance, in the present crisis confronting mankind. ... I regard it at most valuable to the U.S. and the world at large. ... It is the most infinitely precious on the earth." Captain Russell Lloyd Jones (late R. F. A.; Higganaum, Middlesex County, Connecticut, U. S. A.).

"Once more I am reading your E. U. of All Rel.s and my thanks go flowing to you so often. ... You have put in my hands the key to so much greater beauty, wisdom, and depth in our own Bible. ... You have opened many doors that otherwise would have remained closed to me. Again and again I go back to this book and to The Science of Peace, and, through them, see points of deep unity in all I now read and study. In the past year your Science of Emotions and Science of Peace helped to dissolve so many 'thought barriers' and also helped me to find points of co-operation with very dissimilar people. ... Your habit of breaking words into syllables makes them leap into new life and new and clearer meaning. These may all seem little things ... but they have spread illumination on so many things for myself and also, I believe, for others."

Mrs. Emma S. King, (letter of 4-8-1955, 108, Victoria Avenue, Albert Park, S. C. 6, Victoria, Australia) : "My friend Dr. Percy A. Bona, M. D., 80 years of age, told me that if he had to live on a desert island for the rest of his life and could only have three books, The Science of Peace would be one of them". Do: letter of 29-9-1954.

Outside the great books of the world, by which men have tried to live, no more persuasive or heart-stirring plea for unitive living is known to me than this massive volume, and none more scholarly or documented... The author's vast learning and deep knowledge of the Scriptures of mankind make of his book itself Scripture: Henry James Forman, The New York Times.

Sir Rabindranath Tagore; "Your work on Universal Religion has a profound significance for suffering humanity to-day... It was greatly needed to reveal the fundamental plane of unity where the human mind meets in its diverse realisation and to manifest the kinship of the great founders of religions who in different ages and countries have come with the message of the Divine Spirit of Man. I am deeply grateful to you for your book."

Sir S. Radhakrishnan (then Vice-Chancellor, Banaras Hindu University): "... I shall certainly ask my students to read The Essential Unity of All Religions... A book like this should be made accessible to all interested in the religious future of our country."

Maulavi Wahid Husain (Advocate, High Court, Calcutta; Law Examiner, and ex-Extension Lecturer, Calcutta University; Secretary, Bengal Presidency Muhammadan Educational Conference): "I have read and re-read The Essential Unity of All Religions... It is a remarkable contribution to a more reasonable and intelligent method of arriving at the truth and unity of religious ideals. The quotations of numerous texts... are very apt and exact... The fascinating pages of the book tend to arrest the attention at every turn and clearly bring out the important fact that the religious minds of all ages revolve in the same spiritual grooves,... that the essence of all religions is the same. To the student of religious history... this unique book will be especially useful. It should be widely read... The Universities of India will do well if they recommend and prescribe such books for higher study.

Ācharya Dr. Sir P. C. Ray: "The author... has shown that the fundamentals of all religions are one and the same... A book like this was greatly needed at present when our unfortunate country is torn asunder by bigotry and communalism. I hope it will be included in the curriculum of our Colleges".

"Gives the essence of Qurān, Bible, Gītā... I read it with as much care and reverence as the other three... A marvellous book": (late Sir Ahmaḍ Husain, M.A., LL.D., K.C.I.E., C.S.I., formerly Private Secretary to preceding and present Nizāms of Hydārābād for over 40 years; in letter d. 30-12-1943.

Dr. Sir MOHAMMAD IQBĀL, M.A., Ph.D., Bar-at-Law "I read... extracts from your Essential Unity of All Religions and found them extremely interesting and instructive. I have no doubt that the book will be welcome as a real contribution to the religious thought of our country".
Syed İBRĀHİM _DHĀRĀ (in _Trivēnti_, May-June, 1933: “This book... cannot be adequately praised. It is an inspired psychic plea for the unity of all religions... poetic in its expression like a Süfi song, which, while expressing deep philosophical truth, has the capacity of taking the reader unawares by Beauty and giving some rare touch of the soul’s inner rapture... In a clear lucid style the author discloses to us the real aims of all our various conflicting religious strivings, and finally convinces the reader of their ultimate essential unity... Replete with apt and carefully chosen quotations from almost all the Scriptures of the world, and the sayings of great religious masters and poets... of rarest charm and beauty and greatest spiritual wisdom. From beginning to end, the book is delightful, captivating, inspiring.”

SCIENCE OF THE SELF, (pub. 1938; new edn. 1954)

A perusal of this book will be of immense benefit, not only to philosophers, but also to present-day reformers and politicians who have placed upon themselves the heavy responsibility of leading humanity from ignorance to knowledge, from serfdom to freedom, from miseries to peace and prosperity: Prof A.C. Mukerji. Professor of Philosophy, Allahabad University, (in _Leader_, daily of Allahabad).

One of the most scholarly and suggestive works that I have read on the subject of “The Self” in English. There is considerable freshness and originality in the presentation of the different aspects of the subject, particularly these bearing on action and ethics: Prof. V. Subramanya Iyer, President of the Board of Samskṛt Studies and Examinations, Mysore.

Illuminating presentation of Vedicā-yaYoga, not merely as a Metaphysic of the Self, but also in its concrete application to the ordering of human life in both its individual and social aspects... The reader will be struck by the author's erudition as also by the architectonic skill and masterly grasp with which he handles a bewildering mass of scientific facts and theories. Particularly note-worthy is his criticism of the psycho-analytical school in psychology, and of communism and socialism in political theory, the merits as well as weaknesses whereof are noted with great accuracy and penetration... The work is unique in a way, expounding as it does, Vedicāntic principles in their concrete operation. In this respect, it will compare favourably with Hegel's writings, though illustrative of a fundamentally different conception of the Self. The author's observations on the essentials of Social Organisation deserve serious consideration by workers in the social and political field: Dr. S. K. Maitra, Professor of Philosophy, Calcutta University, (in Calcutta Review).

The searching and fundamental little book, on "The Science of the Self", goes directly to the centre of all metaphysical thought. I think it is important for our time to have the philosophy of India kept alive for us by such vital and living statements... It is a valuable addition to the article in Muirhead's book: Dr. W. E. Hocking, Professor of Philosophy, Harvard University.
Dr. Bhagavān Dās may well be regarded as the leading authority on Hindū Psychology. Thus in writing on ‘Āṭma-Vidyā, or the Science of the Self,’ he is dealing with a subject concerning which he is unusually well informed. From the standpoint of that particular character of its contents, the whole essay needs to be studied: Dr. A. G. Widgery, reviewing in The Philosophical Review, January, 1938, the volume on Contemporary Indian Philosophy, in which an outline of the ideas of the book first appeared.

Dr. Bhagavān Dās’ essay on ‘Āṭma-Vidyā or the Science of the Self’ is longer and more technical, but his account of Hindu social ideas is extremely interesting: Dr. A. T. Shillinglaw, (reviewing the same work in Mind, vol. 46).

SCIENCE OF EMOTIONS

(4th edn. 1953; translations of earlier editions, of 1900 and 1908, have appeared in Dutch, French, Spanish, Norwegian).

Has for the first time introduced order into this confused region of consciousness. A lucid treatise which reduces the chaos of the Emotions into a cosmos, and shapes therein an ordered morality: Dr. Annie Besant, (in her book, A Study in Consciousness, 1st edn., p. 352).

The correspondence and transmutation of the Emotions and the method of practical application, come as a revelation. A pathway in the formerly trackless region of our intimate feelings, and a practical help in many familiar and difficult situations in life: Ernest Wood. (Theosophist, April, 1909).

SCIENCE OF PEACE, (2nd edn., 1921; 3rd edn., 1948)

The student should carefully study Bhagavān Ṣāṣṭrī's Science of Peace in which the metaphysical questions involved are expounded with rare acumen and felicity: Annie Besant (A Study in Consciousness, p. 6).

In her Foreword to her booklet, An Introduction to the Science of Peace, (1912), Dr. Annie Besant says: One of the most valuable books issued under the inspiration of Theosophy (Brahma-Vidya) is The Science of Peace, by Bhagavān Ṣāṣṭrī. Those who seek a lasting intellectual foundation for their thinking will find much help from this valuable and original work.

The view that is here indicated seems to approximate rather closely to the views that have been more or less definitely suggested by some of the Oriental philosophers. See, for instance, The Science of Peace, by Bhagavān Ṣāṣṭrī: Professor J. S. Mackenzie, LL.D., Litt. D., Co-editor of International Journal of Ethics, (in Theosophist for May, 1919).

". . . I felt an intensification of the urge for a greater and deeper search after reading your books, specially *The Science of Peace... I wish to present my earnest thanks for the help, the inspiration, the clarification that I found in your works... You pointed me the way": Senhor Murillo Nunes de Azevedo (Rua Almirante Baltazar 581, Rio de Janeiro; (D. F., Brazil); in letter d/- 1-2-1955.

SCIENCE OF SOCIAL ORGANISATION;
OR THE LAWS OF MANU, 3 VOLS.

A rare combination of deep learning and felicitous phrasing: ANNIE BESANT, (Theosophy in India, 1910).

This book, like others from the same pen, has the indefinable quality of distinction: subtlety and precision of thought, scholarly culture and urbanity of expression, all mingling to produce something eminently readable and provocative of reflection. A great subject has been presented in a clear and pleasant way... We are shown, with admirable skill and lucidity, what Dharma meant to the age in which it was given. For those who look forward to a great revival of Indian spirituality, The Science of Social Organisation by Bhagavân Dâs is rich in instruction... An admirable organon of the new idealism, which, though new in its hopes and aspirations, is yet eonion in its sources, and which, through the cyclic process of the Āryan race, must eventually bring back all the scattered members of the race to the level of thought and aspiration from which, many thousands of years ago, they started on their long journey... A book of the highest excellence and value... which is clearly the outcome of long years of thought and study, but which has also, just as clearly, been a labour of love: Prof. E. A. Wodehouse, M.A., (Oxon.): (C. H. C. Magazine, October, 1910).

Among the most illuminative contributions to the study and understanding of the all-important subject it treats of: Dr. Sir S. Subramanya Iyer, ex-Chief Justice of the Madras High Court.

It is a marvellous book... Deserves to be placed with the classics on social polity, and should find a place in every home which has any pretence to Hindū culture: Prabuddha Bharatā, August, 1933, (chief organ of the Rāmakrishṇa Mission, Calcutta), in a review of Vol I. of the new edn.

A revelation of the scientific principles which underlie our old social organisation... It has been a delight and an instruction to read the work: Mahā-maho-pāḍhyāya Pāṇdiṭ Āḍiṭyatārāṁ Bhattāchārya, M.A., F.A.U., Vice-Principal, Central Hindu College, Banaras, ex-Prof, of Samskṛt, Muir College, Allahabad; Pro-Vice-Chancellor, Banaras Hindū University.

The Manu is simply grand: Rāi Bahādur Lālā Baijnath, (ex-Judge.)

PRAṆAVA-VĀDA; OR THE SCIENCE OF THE SACRED WORD

A summarised reproduction in English of the original Samskṛt work of Gārgyāyaṇa, 3 Vols.

The author’s labours of many years are yielding fruit by the rendering into English of the very technical and abstruse contents of this unique treatise. His elucidation of the many statements in the text, by ample and interesting annotations full of research, surpass in their value his work which gave to the world two highly important works, _The Science of the Emotions_ and _The Science of Peace_. A perusal of this translation has enhanced my admiration for the translator's ability, learning, and grasp of philosophic principles: SIR S. SUBRAMANYA IYER: ex-Chief Justice of the Madras High Court.)

THE SCIENCE OF RELIGION, OR SANĀṬANA VAIṆĪKA ṆHARMA

Worthy of careful study by the younger generation of Hindūs: Sir GOOROO DAS BANERJEE, ex-Judge of the Calcutta High Court. I have again read it with great profit and pleasure, with admiration for the learning, earnestness of spirit, and elevated enthusiasm of the author... The presentation of the principles is very attractive to the English-educated mind: Sir P. S. SIVASWĀMY AIYER, ex-Executive Councillor of the Madras Government, and ex-Vice-Chancellor of Madras and Banāras Hindū Universities. Has given me much pleasure... Ancient learning formally presented in a way intelligible and attractive to modern modes of thinking. Sir John G. Woodroffe, (then) Judge of Calcutta High Court, author of many publications on Ṭanṭra Shāstra, A production of striking excellence... The fine poetic language is as noteworthy as the profound learning, the clear analysis, the vigorous logic, and the broad humanity of the book... I am astonished at the felicity of expression and beautiful turn of phrasing in some places: Prof. P. Seshadri, M.A., (then) Professor of English, Central Hindu College, Banaras. "I have read your articles and book with interest and deep respect. They remind me strongly of Ruskin's view on social and national organisation... I feel deep sympathy with the purpose which you and Ruskin had in view in your writings": Sir Michael E. Sadler, (1918), Vice-Chancellor of the University of Manchester, ex-President of the Calcutta University Commission.

ANCIENT PSYCHO-SYNTHESIS vs.
MODERN PSYCHO-ANALYSIS

(Pub: 1949, T. P. House, Adyar, Madras, India): "I received the book on Ancient Psycho-Synthesis vs. Modern Psycho-Analysis kindly sent by Principal Grover and have found Bhagavân, Dāś' book most enlightening. He has read deeply and combines eastern and western knowledge on this very difficult and important subject": Right Revd Bishop George Barne, Rectory, Harthill, near Sheffield, in a letter D/- 12. ix. 1252, to an Indian friend. Bishop Barne was formerly Bishop of Lahore in 1935-'38.

"I have finished at one sitting your most suggestive book on Ancient Psycho-Synthesis vs. Modern Psycho-Analysis. The origin of the over-worked theories and the lopsided doctrines of Freud, Adler, and Jung is very aptly outlined and I particularly appreciated your scathing remarks on 'sex' in modern civilisation. The anecdotes that you have included relating to Anatole France, and H. G. Wells, as well as the episodes of D'Annunzio and Isadora Duncan, form a good introduction to Chapter VI relating to the development of Psycho-Analysis. You have done a real service to world-thought by advertting to the pre-figuration in the Yoga Sūtras of what is so often mis-called the 'unconscious', and it is well that the modern world should realise the full implications of the evolution of all grades of consciousness (or Chēṭanā) from deep slumber to active memory. The gradual development of Freud's own theories and the recognition of the validity of other than sex instincts like those of aggressiveness and death are instances of the essentially 'groping' "character of modern psycho-analyses. I am deeply indebted to you for furnishing me with an intellectual feast": Sir C. P. RAMASWAMI AIYAR K.C.I.E., K.C.S.I., Vice-Chancellor, Banaras Hindu University, in letter to author, d/- 21.3.1955. "I have been an earnest reader of your publications and hold them in the highest esteem":—in letter d/- 4.2.1955.

WORLD WAR AND ITS ONLY CURE—WORLD ORDERS AND WORLD RELIGION

"Your book is just to hand. It seems to me extraordinarily alive and sympathetic and I'm proud to find how large a part I play in your discussion... India has to save itself. I hope to have a book out by May 1st called Phoenix which takes up your administrative questions and I think answers them: "H. G. Wells, in letter, to author, d/- Feb. 23, 1942.

A mine of information: (late) C. Jinarājaḍāsa, President, Theosophical Society.

MYSTIC EXPERIENCES, OR TALES FROM YOGA-VĀSISHTHA

2nd edn. 1944, revised, with additions; Indian Book Shop, Banāras, India. Mme. Engenie Vanden Houten published, in Brussels, in October, 1938, a French translation of this book. Her opinion is:—"This work is of great interest, especially for those who like to have an intellectual representation, vivid and pictorial, of the states of consciousness on the different planes."

M. Pierre d'Angkor, author of many books, in a letter to the translator, says: "Let me tell you how thankful I am to you for making me acquainted... with this wonderful work, an inexhaustively rich mine for those who have long meditated upon the essential problems which are there expounded, discussed, resolved with all the subtlety and profundity of the metaphysical genius of Hindūs, joined to the abundant wealth of their poetic imagination and fine sensibility. I cannot understand how this work was not so long translated and published, with a view to enabling every theosophist in our country to find in his own library, as a most precious and rare gem of Sanskrit literature, to be treated as a trusted friend which is really to be placed by the side of The Voice of the Silence, Light on the Path, Bhagavaḍ-Gītā. Upanishats, etc."
Printed by D. V. Syamala Rau, at the Vasanta Press,
The Theosophical Society, Adyar, Madras 20, India
CENTRAL ARCHAEOLOGICAL LIBRARY,
NEW DELHI

Catalogue No. 202/Bha - 15386.

Author— Bhagavan Das.

Title— Essential unity of all religions.
(5th edn.).

“A book that is shut is but a block”

CENTRAL ARCHAEOLOGICAL LIBRARY

GOVT. OF INDIA
Department of Archaeology
NEW DELHI.

Please help us to keep the book clean and moving.