Preface

The aim of this volume is to make available in convenient form those ancient Near Eastern documents which are important for an understanding of biblical peoples and their writings. For many centuries the Old Testament and a few Greek sources provided the sole witness to life in the ancient Near East. In comparatively recent years, however, the sources for the history of the peoples of the biblical world have been greatly augmented by archaeological discovery. Writings of Egyptians, Syrians, Hittites, Assyrians, Babylonians and other contemporary peoples have been recovered, deciphered, and reliably understood. In addition to the words of the ancient Near Eastern people, there has been amassed a significant additional documentation in art, architecture, and artifacts of daily life.

The selection offered here has been made from the point of view of relevance to the Old Testament, the most widely studied and the most significant legacy from the ancient Near East. Some suggested points of contact with specific biblical passages have been entered beside the texts; the wide margins provide space for others which may occur to the user of the volume.

Most of the translations are taken from Ancient Near Eastern Texts Relating to the Old Testament, edited by James B. Pritchard, 2nd edition, Princeton University Press, 1955 (abbreviated ANET). In the side margins the reader may find references to the pages of ANET, where these translations are accompanied by full bibliographical references and footnotes.

The more pertinent information about the photographs has been given in the captions. A full documentation for most of them may be had by referring to the Catalogue of The Ancient Near East in Pictures Relating to the Old Testament, by James B. Pritchard, Princeton University Press, 1954 (abbreviated ANEP), where details of size, provenience, publication, and present location of the object can be found. An account of the discovery and of the significance of some of the most important extra-biblical materials from the ancient Near East is given in the editor's Archaeology and the Old Testament, Princeton University Press, 1958.
Italics have been used in the translations to designate a doubtful translation of a known text or for transliterations. Square brackets have been employed for restorations in the text; round brackets (parentheses) have been put around interpolations made for a better understanding of the translation; obvious scribal omissions have been placed between triangular brackets. In the translations from Ugaritic, half square brackets have been used to designate a text which has been partly restored. A lacuna has been indicated by three dots; in case the lacuna comes before a final sentence dot, four dots appear. References to the tablets, columns, lines of the text have been given usually in parentheses either within the translation, as in prose, or in the right-hand margin, when the form is poetry. Capital Roman numerals indicate the number of the tablet or some other well-recognized division; lower-case Roman numerals have been used for columns; Arabic numerals indicate the line or lines.

In the difficult task of making a choice of the most relevant texts and pictures the editor has benefited from earlier collections, such works as those of Barton, Rogers, Gressmann, and Galling. Twenty-five teachers of graduate courses in the fields of Near Eastern and Old Testament history have given helpful opinions as to the most essential material to be included. The editor's thanks are due to those predecessors and colleagues who have helped in a measure to check his own judgment in the choice of the most relevant material.

With pleasure the editor of this volume acknowledges his great debt to Herbert S. Bailey, Jr., director of the Princeton University Press, who first suggested the making of this anthology from the larger and more expensive collections of texts and pictures. Helen Van Zandt's skill in solving many of the technical problems connected with the making of this book has constituted no small part of the undertaking. In addition to the translators listed opposite the title page, Dr. Edmund I. Gordon, of the University Museum, University of Pennsylvania, participated by supplying translations of important Sumerian proverbs.

I. Egyptian Myths and Tales

TRANSLATOR: JOHN A. WILSON

The Memphite Theology of Creation

When the First Dynasty established its capital at Memphis, it was necessary to justify the sudden emergence of this town to central importance. The Memphite god Ptah was therefore proclaimed to have been the First Principle, taking precedence over other recognized creator-gods. Mythological arguments were presented that the city of Memphis was the “place where the Two Lands are united” and that the Temple of Ptah was the “balance in which Upper and Lower Egypt have been weighed.”

The extracts presented here are particularly interesting, because creation is treated in an intellectual sense, whereas other creation stories (like ANET, pp. 3-4) are given in purely physical terms. Here the god Ptah conceives the elements of the universe with his mind (“heart”) and brings them into being by his commanding speech (“tongue”). Thus, at the beginning of Egyptian history, there was an approach to the Logos Doctrine.

The extant form of this document dates only to 700 B.C., but linguistic, philological, and geopolitical evidence is conclusive in support of its derivation from an original text more than two thousand years older.

(53) There came into being as the heart and there came into being as the tongue (something) in the form of Atum. The mighty Great One is Ptah, who transmitted [life to all gods], as well as (to) their kās, through this heart, by which Horus became Ptah, and through this tongue, by which Thoth became Ptah.

(Thus) it happened that the heart and tongue gained control over [every] (other) member of the body, by teaching that he is in every body and in every mouth of all gods, all men, [all] cattle, all creeping things, and (everything) that lives, by thinking and commanding everything that he wishes.

(55) His Ennead is before him in (the form of) teeth and lips. That is (the equivalent of) the semen and hands of Atum. Whereas the Ennead of Atum came into being by his semen and his fingers, the Ennead

1 Ptah thought of and created by speech the creator-god Atum (“Totality”), thus transmitting the divine power of Ptah to all other gods. The gods Horus and Thoth, a commonly associated pair, are equated with the organs of thought and speech.

2 Ptah, as heart and tongue.
(of Ptah), however, is the teeth and lips in this mouth, which pronounced the name of everything, from which Shu and Tefnut came forth, and which was the fashioner of the Ennead.

The sight of the eyes, the hearing of the ears, and the smelling the air by the nose, they report to the heart. It is this which causes every completed (concept) to come forth, and it is the tongue which announces what the heart thinks.

Thus all the gods were formed and his Ennead was completed. Indeed, all the divine order really came into being through what the heart thought and the tongue commanded. Thus the \(ka\)-spirits were made and the \(hemsut\)-spirits were appointed, they who make all provisions and all nourishment, by this speech. \((\text{Thus justice was given to})\) him who does what is liked, \((\text{and injustice to})\) him who does what is disliked. Thus life was given to him who has peace and death was given to him who has sin. Thus were made all work and all crafts, the action of the arms, the movement of the legs, and the activity of every member, in conformance with (this) command which the heart thought, which came forth through the tongue, and which gives value to everything.

\[(\text{Thus})\] it happened that it was said of Ptah: "He who made all and brought the gods into being." He is indeed Ta-tenen, who brought forth the gods, for everything came forth from him, nourishment and provisions, the offerings of the gods, and every good thing. Thus it was discovered and understood that his strength is greater than (that of the other) gods. And so Ptah was satisfied, after he had made everything, as well as all the divine order. He had formed the gods, he had made cities, he had founded nomes, he had put the gods in their shrines, (60) he had established their offerings, he had founded their shrines, he had made their bodies like that (with which) their hearts were satisfied. So the gods entered into their bodies of every (kind of) wood, of every (kind of) stone, of every (kind of) clay, or anything which might grow upon him, in which they had taken form. So all the gods, as well as their \(ka\)'s gathered themselves to him, content and associated with the Lord of the Two Lands.

Deliverance of Mankind from Destruction

The themes of this myth are the sin of mankind, the destructive disappointment of their creator, and the deliverance of mankind from annihilation. However, the setting of the present text shows that its purpose was magical protection rather than moral teaching. On the walls of three royal tombs of the Empire, it accompanies certain charms to protect the body of the dead ruler. This implies that the former deliverance of mankind from destruction will be valid also in this individual case.

It happened that . . . Re, the god who came into being by himself, when he was king of men and gods all together. Then mankind plotted something in the (very) presence of Re. Now then, his majesty—life, prosperity, health!—was old. His bones were of silver, his flesh of gold, and his hair of genuine lapis lazuli.

Then his majesty perceived the things which were being plotted against him by mankind. Then his majesty—life, prosperity, health! said to those who were in his retinue: “Pray, summon to me my Eye, Shu, Tefnut, Geb, and Nut, as well as the fathers and mothers who were with me when I was in Nun, as well as my god Nun also. He is to bring his court (5) with him. Thou shalt bring them secretly: let not mankind see; let not their hearts escape. Thou shalt come with them to the Great House, that they may tell their plans, since the [times] when I came from Nun to the place in which I came into being.”

Then these gods were brought in, and these gods [came] beside him, putting their heads to the ground in the presence of his majesty, so that he might make his statement in the presence of the father of the eldest, he who made mankind, the king of people. Then they said in the presence of his majesty: “Speak to us, so that we may hear it.”

Then Re said to Nun: “O eldest god, in whom I came into being, O ancestor gods, behold mankind, which came into being from my Eye—they have plotted things against me. Tell me what ye would do about it. Behold, I am seeking; I would not slay them until I had heard what (16) ye might say about it." Then the majesty of Nun said: "My son Re, the god greater than he who made him and mightier than they who created him, sitting upon thy throne, the fear of thee is great when thy Eye is (directed) against them who scheme against thee!" Then the majesty of Re said: "Behold, they have fled into the desert, their hearts being afraid because I might speak to them." Then they said in the presence of his majesty: "May thy Eye be sent, that it may catch for thee them who scheme with evil things. (But) the Eye is not (sufficiently) prominent therein to smite them for thee. It should go down as Hat-Hor."

So then this goddess came and slew mankind in the desert. Then the majesty of this god said: "Welcome, Hat-Hor, who hast done for me the deed for which I came!" Then this goddess said: "As thou livest for me, I have prevailed over mankind, and it is pleasant in my heart!" Then the majesty of Re said: "I shall prevail over them as a king (15) by diminishing them!" That is how Sekhmet came into being, the (beer)-mash of the night, to wade in their blood from Herakleopolis. 2

Then Re said: "Pray, summon to me swift and speedy messengers, so that they may run like the shadow of a body." Then these messengers were brought immediately. Then the majesty of this god said: "Go ye to Elephantine and bring me red ochre very abundantly." Then this red ochre was brought to him. Then the majesty of this great god caused . . . , [and He-With-the-Side-Lock who is in Heliopolis 3 ground up this red ochre. When further maidservants crushed barley to (make) beer, then this red ochre was added to this mash. Then (it) was like human blood. Then seven thousand jars of the beer were made. So then the majesty of the King of Upper and Lower Egypt: Re came, together with these gods, to see this beer.

Now when day broke for (20) the slaying of mankind by the goddess at their season of going upstream, then the majesty of Re said: "How good it is! I shall protect mankind with it!" Then Re said: "Pray, carry it to the place in which she expected to slay mankind." Then the majesty of the King of Upper and Lower Egypt: Re went to work early in the depth of the night to have this sleep-maker poured out. Then the fields were filled with liquid for three palms, through the power of the majesty of this god.

Then this goddess went at dawn, and she found this (place) flooded. Then her face (looked) beautiful therein. Then she drank, and it was good in her heart. She came (back) drunken, without having perceived mankind.

(The remainder of this story has to do with the origin of certain names and customs, such as the use of strong drink at the Feast of Hat-Hor.)

The Story of Sinuhe

A strong love of country was a dominant characteristic of the ancient Egyptian. Though he might feel the responsibilities of empire-building, he wished the assurance that he would close his days on the banks of the Nile. That sentiment made the following story one of the most popular classics of Egyptian literature. An Egyptian official of the Middle Kingdom went into voluntary exile in Asia. He was prosperous and well established there, but he continued to long for the land of his birth. Finally he received a royal invitation to return and join the court. This was his real success in life, and this was the popular point of the story. Much of the tale is pompous and over-styled in wording and phrasing, but the central narrative is a credible account, which fits the period as we know it. If this was fiction, it was based on realities and deserves a respected place in Egyptian literature.

The story opens with the death of Amen-em-het I (about 1960 B.C.) and continues in the reign of his successor, Sen-Usert I (about 1971-1928 B.C.). Manuscripts are plentiful and run from the late Twelfth Dynasty (about 1800 B.C.) to the Twenty-First Dynasty (about 1000 B.C.). There are five papyri and at least seventeen ostraca. The most important papyri are in Berlin.

(R1) The Hereditary Prince and Count, Judge and District Overseer of the domains of the Sovereign in the lands of the Asiatics, real acquaintance of the king, his beloved, the Attendant Sinuhe. He says:

I was an attendant who followed his lord, a servant of the royal harem (and of) the Hereditary Princess, the great of favor, the wife of King Sen-Usert in (the pyramid town) Khenem-sut, the daughter of King Amen-em-het (R5) in (the pyramid town) Qa-nefru, Nefru, the lady of reverence.

Year 30, Third Month of the First Season, Day 7.

1 Around 1960 Amen-em-het I's death would have fallen early in March.
The god ascended to his horizons; the King of Upper and Lower Egypt: Sehetep-ib-Re was taken up to heaven and united with the sun disc. The body of the god merged with him who made him. The Residence City was in silence, hearts were in mourning, the Great Double Doors were sealed shut. (R10) The courtiers (sat) head on lap, and the people were in grief.

Now his majesty had sent an army to the land of the Temeh-Libyans, with his eldest son as the commander thereof, the good god Sen-Usert, (R15) and even now he was returning and had carried off living captives of the Tehenu-Libyans and all (kinds of) cattle without number.

The courtiers of the palace sent to the western border to let the King’s Son know the events which had taken place at the court. The messengers met him on the road, (R20) and they reached him in the evening time. He did not delay a moment; the falcon flew away with his attendants, without letting his army know it. Now the royal children who had been following him in this army had been sent for, (B1) and one of them was summoned. While I was standing (near by) I heard his voice as he was speaking and I was a little way off. My heart was distraught, my arms spread out (in dismay), trembling fell upon all my limbs. I removed myself by leaps and bounds to seek a hiding place for myself. I placed (5) myself between two bushes, in order to cut (myself) off from the road and its travel.

I set out southward, (but) I did not plan to reach this Residence City, (for) I thought that there would be civil disorder, and I did not expect to live after him. I crossed Lake Ma’aty near Sycamore, and I came to Snfuru Island. I spent the day there on the edge of (10) the fields. I came into the open light, while it was (still) day, and I met a man standing near by. He stood in awe of me, for he was afraid. When the time of the evening meal came, I drew near to Ox-town. I crossed over in a barge without a rudder, by aid of the west wind. I passed by the east of the quarry (15) above Mistress-of-the-Red-Mountain. I gave (free) road to my feet going northward, and I came up to the Wall-of-the-Ruler, made to oppose the Asiatics and to crush the Sand-Crossers. I took a crouching position in a bush, for fear lest the watchmen upon the wall where their day’s (duty) was might see me.

I set out (20) at evening time, and when day broke I reached Peten. I halted at the Island of Kemb-wer. An attack of thirst overtook me. I was parched, and my throat was dusty. I said: “This is the taste of death!”
(But then) I lifted up my heart and collected myself, for I had heard the sound of the lowing of cattle, (25) and I spied Asiatics. The sheikh among them, who had been in Egypt, recognized me. Then he gave me water while he boiled milk for me. I went with him to his tribe. What they did (for me) was good.

One foreign country gave me to another. I set off for Byblos and approached Qedem, and spent (30) a year and a half there. Ammi-enshi — he was a ruler of Upper Retenu — took me and said to me: “Thou wilt do well with me, and thou wilt hear the speech of Egypt.” He said this, for he knew my character, he had heard of my wisdom, and the people of Egypt who were there with him² had borne witness for me...”

He set me at the head of his children. He married me to his eldest daughter. He let me choose for myself of his country, (80) of the choicest of that which was with him on his frontier with another country. It was a good land, named Yaa. Figs were in it, and grapes. It had more wine than water. Plentiful was its honey, abundant its olives. Every (kind of) fruit was on its trees. Barley was there, and emmer. There was no limit to any (kind of) cattle. (85) Moreover, great was that which accrued to me as a result of the love of me. He made me ruler of a tribe of the choicest of his country. Bread was made for me as daily fare, wine as daily provision, cooked meat and roast fowl, beside the wild beasts of the desert, for they hunted (90) for me and laid before me, beside the catch of my (own) hounds. Many... were made for me, and milk in every (kind of) cooking.

I spent many years, and my children grew up to be strong men, each man as the restrainer of his (own)

tribe. The messenger who went north or who went south to the Residence City (95) stopped over with me, (for) I used to make everybody stop over. I gave water to the thirsty. I put him who had strayed (back) on the road. I rescued him who had been robbed. When the Asiatics became so bold as to oppose the rulers of foreign countries, I counseled their movements. This ruler of (100) (Re)tenu had me spend many years as commander of his army. Every foreign country against which I went forth, when I had made my attack on it, was driven away from its pasturage and its wells. I plundered its cattle, carried off its inhabitants, took away their food, and slew people in it (105) by my strong arm, by my bow, by my movements, and by my successful plans. I found favor in his heart, he loved me, he recognized my valor, and he placed me at the head of his children, when he saw how my arms flourished.

A mighty man of Retenu came, that he might challenge me (110) in my (own) camp. He was a hero without his peer, and he had repelled all of it. He said that he would fight me, he intended to despise me, and he planned to plunder my cattle, on the advice of his tribe. That prince discussed (it) with me, and I said: "I do not know him. Certainly I am no confederate of his, (115) so that I might move freely in his encampment. Is it the case that I have (ever) opened his door or overthrown his fences? (Rather), it is hostility because he sees me carrying out thy commissions. I am really like a stray bull in the midst of another herd, and a bull of (these) cattle attacks him..."

During the night I strung my bow and shot my arrows, I gave free play to my dagger, and polished my weapons. When day broke, (Re)tenu was come. (130) It had whipped up its tribes and collected the countries of a (good) half of it. It had thought (only) of this fight. Then he came to me as I was waiting, (for) I had placed myself near him. Every heart burned for me; women and men groaned. Every heart was sick for me. They said: "Is there another strong man who could fight against him?" Then (he took) his shield, his battle-axe, (135) and his armful of javelins. Now after I had let his weapons issue forth, I made his arrows pass by me uselessly, one close to another. He charged me, and I shot him, my arrow sticking in his neck. He cried out and fell on his nose. (140) I felled him with his (own) battle-axe and raised my cry of victory over his back, while every Asiatic roared. I gave praise to Montu, while his adherents were mourning for him. This ruler Ammi-enishy took me into his embrace. Then I carried off his goods and plundered his cattle. What he had planned to do (145) to me I did to him. I took what was in his tent and stripped his encampment. I became great thereby, I became extensive in my wealth, I became abundant in my cattle.

Thus did God to show mercy to him upon whom he had laid blame, whom he had led astray to another country. (But) today his heart is assuaged.

Now when the majesty of the King of Upper and Lower Egypt: Kheper-ka-Re, the justified, was told about this situation in which I was, then his majesty kept sending (175) to me with presentations from the royal presence, that he might gladden the heart of this servant like the ruler of any foreign country. The royal children in his palace let me hear their commissions.

Then they came for this servant. . . I was permitted to spend a day in Yaa handing over my property to my children, my eldest son being responsible for my tribe.

(240) My tribe and all my property were in his charge: my serfs, all my cattle, my fruit, and every pleasant tree of mine.

Then this servant came southward. I halted at the "Ways of Horus." The commander there who was responsible for the patrol sent a message to the Residence to make (it) known. Then his majesty sent a capable overseer of peasants of the palace, with loaded ships in his train, (245) carrying presentations from the royal presence for the Asiatics who had followed me, escorting me to the "Ways of Horus." I called each of them by his name. Every butler was (busy) at his duties. When I started and set sail, the kneading and straining (of beer) was carried on beside me, until I had reached the town of Lisht.

When day had broken, very early, they came and summoned me, ten men coming and ten men going to usher me to the palace. I put my brow to the ground between the sphinxes, (250) while the royal children were waiting in a recess to meet me. The courtiers who ushered to the audience hall set me on the way to the private chambers. I found his majesty upon the Great Throne in a recess of fine gold. When I was stretched out upon my belly, I knew not myself in his presence, (although) this god greeted me pleasantly. I was like a man caught in the dark: (255) my soul departed, my body was powerless, my heart was not in my body, that I might know life from death.

Then his majesty said to one of these courtiers: "Lift him up. Let him speak to me." Then his majesty said: "Behold, thou art come. Thou hast trodden the foreign countries and made a flight. (But now) elderliness has attacked thee; thou hast reached old age. It is no small matter that thy corpse be (properly) buried; thou shouldst not be interred by bowmen. Do not, do not act thus any longer: (for) thou dost not speak (260) when thy name is pronounced!" Yet (I) was afraid to respond, and I answered it with the answer of one afraid: "What is it that my lord says to me? I should answer it, (but) there is nothing that I can do: it is really the hand of a god. It is a terror that is in my belly like that which produced the fated flight. Behold, I am before thee. Thine is life. May thy majesty do as he pleases."

Thereupon the royal children were ushered in. Then his majesty said to the Queen: "Here is Si-nuhe, (265) come as a Bedu, (in) the guise of the Asiatics." She gave a very great cry, and the royal children clamored all together. Then they said to his majesty: "It is not really he, O Sovereign, my lord!" Then his majesty said: "It is really he!" Now when they had brought with them their bead-necklaces, their rattles, and their sistra, then they presented them to his majesty. "... Loose the horn of thy bow and relax thy arrow! (275) Give breath to him that was stifled! Give us our goodly gift in this sheikh Si-Mehit, a Bowman born in Egypt. He made a flight through fear of thee; he left the land through terror of thee. (But) the face of him who beholds thy face shall not blench; the eye which looks at thee shall not be afraid!"
Then his majesty said: “He shall not fear. (280) He has no title to be in dread. He shall be a courtier among the nobles. He shall be put in the ranks of the courtiers. Proceed ye to the inner chambers of the morning (toilet), in order to make his position.”

So I went forth from the midst of the inner chambers, with the royal children giving me their hands. (285) Thereafter we went to the Great Double Door. I was put into the house of a royal son, in which were splendid things. A cool room was in it, and images of the horizon. Costly things of the Treasury were in it. Clothing of royal linen, myrrh, and prime oil of the king and of the nobles whom he loves were in every room. (290) Every butler was (busy) at his duties. Years were made to pass away from my body. I was plucked, and my hair was combed. A load (of dirt) was given to the desert, and my clothes (to) the Sand-Crossers. I was clad in fine linen and anointed with prime oil. I slept on a bed. I gave up the sand to them who are in it, (295) and wood oil to him who is anointed with it. I was given a house which had a garden, which had been in the possession of a courtier. Many craftsmen built it, and all its wood (work) was newly restored. Meals were brought to me from the palace three or four times a day, apart from that which the royal children gave, without ceasing a moment.

(300) There was constructed for me a pyramid-tomb of stone in the midst of the pyramid-tombs. The stonemasons who hew a pyramid-tomb took over its ground-area. The outline-draftsmen designed in it; the chief sculptors carved in it; and the overseers of works who are in the necropolis made it their concern. (305) Its necessary materials were made from all the outfittings which are placed at a tomb-shaft. Mortuary priests were given to me. There was made for me a necropolis garden, with fields in it formerly (extending) as far as the town, like that which is done for a chief courtier. My statue was overlaid with gold, and its skirt was of fine gold. It was his majesty who had it made. There is no poor man for whom the like has been done.

(310) I was under the favor of the king’s presence until the day of mooring had come.

3 Until the day of death.
This folk tale tells how a conscientious young man was falsely accused of a proposal of adultery by the wife of his elder brother, after he had actually rejected her advances. This part of the story has general similarity to the story of Joseph and Potiphar’s wife. The two chief characters are brothers named Anubis and Bata. These were the names of Egyptian gods, and the tale probably does have a mythological setting. However, it served for entertainment, rather than ecclesiastical or moral purpose. The story is colloquial and is so translated.

Papyrus D’Orbigny is now British Museum 10183. Facsimiled in Select Papyri in the Hieratic Character from the Collections of the British Museum, ii (London, 1860), Pls. ix-xix, and in G. Möller, Hieratische Lexestücke, ii (Leipzig, 1927), 1-20. The manuscript can be closely dated to about 1225 B.C. in the Nineteenth Dynasty. Transcription into hieroglyphic in A. H. Gardiner, Late-Egyptian Stories (Bibliotheca Aegyptiaca, 1, Brussels, 1932), 9-29. Translation in Erman, LAE, 150-61.

Now they say that (once) there were two brothers of one mother and one father. Anubis was the name of the elder, and Bata was the name of the younger. Now, as for Anubis, he [had] a house and had a wife, [and] his younger brother (lived) with him as a sort of minor. He was the one who made clothes for him and went to the fields driving his cattle. He was the one who did the plowing and who harvested for him. He was the one who did all (kinds of) work for him which are in the fields. Really, his younger [brother] was a good (grown) man. There was no one like him in the entire land. Why, the strength of a god was in him.

[Now] after many days after this, his younger brother (5) [was tending] his cattle in his custom of every [day], and he [left off] (to go) to his house every evening, loaded [with] all (kinds of) plants of the field, [with] milk, with wood, and [with] every [good thing of] the fields, and he laid them in front of his [elder brother], who was sitting with his wife. And he drank and he ate, and [he went out to sleep in] his stable among his cattle [by himself].

Now when it was dawn and a second day had come, [he prepared food], which was cooked, and laid it before his elder brother. [And he] gave him bread for the fields. And he drove his cattle out to let them feed in the fields. He went along after his cattle, [and] they would say to him: "The grass [of] such-and-such a place is good," and he would understand whatever they said and would take them to the place (ii 1) of good grass which they wanted. So the cattle which were before him became very, very fine. They doubled their calving very, very much.

Now at the time of plowing his [elder] brother said to him: "Get a yoke [of oxen] ready for us for plowing, for the fields have come out, and it is fine for plowing. Also come to the fields with seed, for we shall be busy (with) plowing [in] the morning." So he spoke to him. Then [his] (5) younger brother did all the things which his elder brother had told him to [do].

Now when it was dawn [and a second] day had come, they went to the fields with their [seed], and they were busy [with] plowing, and [their hearts] were very, very pleased with their activity at the beginning of [their] work.

Now [after] many [days] after this, they were in the fields and ran short of seed. Then he sent his younger brother, saying: "Go and fetch us seed from the village." And his younger brother found the wife of his elder brother sitting and doing her hair. Then he said to her: "Get up and give me (some) seed, (iii 1) for my younger\(^1\) brother is waiting for me. Don't delay!" Then she said to him: "Go and open the bin and take what you want! Don't make me leave my combing unfinished!" Then the lad went into his stable, and he took a big jar, for he wanted to carry off a lot of seed. So he loaded himself with barley and emmer and came out carrying them.

Then she said to him: "How much (is it) that is on your shoulder?" [And he] said to her: (5) "three sacks of emmer, two sacks of barley, five in all, is what is on your shoulder." So he spoke to her. Then she [talked with] him, saying "There is [great] strength in you! Now I see your energies every day!" And she wanted to know him as one knows a man.

Then she stood up and took hold of him and said to him: "Come, let's spend an [hour] sleeping (together)! This will do you good, because I shall make fine clothes for you!" Then the lad [became] like a leopard with [great] rage at the wicked suggestion which she had made to him, and she was very, very much frightened. Then he argued with her, saying: "See here—you are like a mother to me, and your husband is like a father to me! Because—being older than I—he was the one who brought me up. What (iv 1) is this great crime which you have said to me? Don't say it to me again! And I won't tell it to a single person, nor will I let it out of my mouth to any man!" And he lifted up his load, and he went to the fields. Then he reached his elder brother, and they were busy with activity (at) their work.

Now at the [time] of evening, then his elder brother left off (to go) to his house. And his younger brother tended his cattle, and [he] loaded himself with everything of the fields, and he took his cattle (5) in front of him, to let them sleep (in) their stable which was in the village.

But the wife of his elder brother was afraid (because of) the suggestion which she had made. Then she took fat and grease, and she became like one who has been criminally beaten, wanting to tell her husband: "It was your younger brother who did the beating!" And her husband left off in the evening, after his custom of every day, and he reached his house, and he found his wife lying down, terribly sick. She did not put water on his hands, after his custom, nor had she lit a light before him, and his house was in darkness, and she lay (there) vomiting. So her husband said to her: "Who has been talking with you?" Then she said to him: "Not one person has been talking with me except your (v 1) younger brother. But when he came [to] take the seed to you he found me sitting alone, and he said to me: 'Come, let's spend an hour sleeping (together)! Put on your curls!' So he spoke to me. But I wouldn't listen to him: 'Aren't I your mother?—for your elder brother is like a father to you!' So I spoke to him. But he was afraid, and he beat (me), so as not to let me tell you. Now, if you let him live, I'll kill myself! Look, when he comes, don't [let him speak], for, if I accuse (him of) this wicked suggestion, he will be ready to do it tomorrow (again)!

Then his elder brother became (5) like a leopard, and he made his lance sharp, and he put it in his hand. Then his elder (brother) stood behind the door (of) his stable to kill his younger brother when he came back in the evening to put his cattle in the stable.

Now when the sun was setting, he loaded himself (with) all plants of the fields, according to his custom of every day, and he came back. When the first cow came into the stable, she said to her herdsman: "Here's your elder brother waiting before you, carrying his lance to kill you! Run away from him!" Then he understood what his first cow had said. And (vi 1) another went in, and she said the same. So he looked under the door of his stable, and he saw the feet of [his] elder brother, as he was waiting behind the door, with his lance in his hand. So he laid his load on the ground, and he started to run away and escape. And his elder brother went after him, carrying his lance.

Then his younger brother prayed to the Re-Har-akhti, (5) saying: "O my good lord, thou art he who judges the wicked from the just!" Thereupon the Re heard all his pleas, and the Re made a great (body of) water appear between him and his elder (brother), and it was full of crocodiles. So one of them came to be on one side and the other on the other. And his elder brother struck his hand twice because of his not killing him. Then his younger brother called to him from the (other) side, saying: "Wait here until dawn. When the sun disc rises, I shall (vii 1) be judged with you in his presence, and he will turn the wicked over to the just, for I won't be with you ever [again]; I won't be in a place where you are—I shall go to the Valley of the Cedar!"

Now when it was dawn and a second day had come, the Re-Har-akhti arose, and one of them saw the other. Then the lad argued with his elder brother, saying: "What do you (mean by) coming after me to kill (me) falsely, when you wouldn't listen to what I had to say? Now I am still your younger brother, and (5) you are like a father to me, and your wife is like a mother to me! Isn't it so? When I was sent to fetch us (some) seed, your wife said to me: 'Come, let's spend an hour sleeping (together)! But, look, it is twisted for you into something else!' Then he let him know all that had happened to him and his wife. Then he swore to the Re-Har-akhti, saying "As for your killing (me) falsely, you carried your lance on the word of a filthy whore!" And he took a reed-knife, and he cut off his phallus, and he threw it into the water. And the shad swallowed (it). And he (viii 1) was faint and became weak. And his elder brother's heart was very, very sad, and he stood weeping aloud for him. He could not cross over to where his younger brother was because of the crocodiles.

THEN (the younger brother) went (7) off to the Valley of the Cedar, and his elder brother went off to his house, with his hand laid upon his head, and he was smeared with dust. So he reached his house, and he killed his wife, and he threw her out (to) the dogs. And he sat in mourning for his younger brother. . . .

(The story continues with a number of episodes).

1 The mutilation was a self-imposed ordeal to support his oath to the sun-god. There was a familiar element in the swallowing of the phallus by the fish. In the Plutarch account of the Osiris myths, it is related that Seth dismembered Osiris and scattered the pieces. Then Isis went about and buried each piece as she found it. However, she could not find the phallus, which had been thrown into the river and eaten by certain fishes, which thereby became forbidden food.

ANET, 23-29

When the Egyptian Empire disintegrated, it left a vacuum in its place for a generation or two. Egyptians, Asians, and Africans continued to think in terms of an authority which was no longer real. In the following tale Egypt had already become a "bruised reed" but was continuing to assert traditional expressions of dominance. The Asians were beginning to express their scepticism and their independence of their great neighbor to the south.

The story is almost picaresque in its atmosphere and must be classed as a narrative. Nevertheless, it deals at close range with actual individuals and situations and must have had a basis of fact, here exaggerated by the conscious and unconscious humor of the narrator. It does represent the situation in Hither Asia about 1100 B.C. more tellingly than a document of the historical-propagandistic category could do.

Wen-Amon, an official of the Temple of Amon at Karnak, tells how he was sent to Tyre on the Phoenician coast to procure lumber for the ceremonial barge of the god. Egypt had already split into small states and did not support his mission with adequate purchasing value, credentials, or armed force.

The papyrus, now in the Moscow Museum, comes from el-Hibe in Middle Egypt and dates to the early Twenty-first Dynasty (11th century B.C.), shortly after the events it relates.

YEAR 5, 4TH MONTH OF THE 3RD SEASON, DAY 16: the day on which Wen-Amon, the Senior of the Forecourt of the House of Amon, [Lord of the Thrones] of the
Two Lands, set out to fetch the woodwork for the great and august barque of Amon-Re, King of the Gods, which is on [the River and which is named:] "User-het-Amon." On the day when I reached Tanis, the place [where Ne-su-Ba-neb]-Ded and Ta-net-Amon were,¹ I gave them the letters of Amon-Re, King of the Gods, and they (5) had them read in their presence. And they said: "Yes, I will do as Amon-Re, King of the Gods, our [lord], has said!" I SPENT UP TO THE 4TH MONTH OF THE 3RD SEASON in Tanis. And Ne-su-Ba-neb-Ded and Ta-net-Amon sent me off with the ship captain Mengebet, and I embarked on the great Syrian sea IN THE 1ST MONTH OF THE 3RD SEASON, DAY 1.

I reached Dor, a town of the Tjeker, and Beder, its prince, had 50 loaves of bread, one jug of wine, (10) and one leg of beef brought to me. And a man of my ship ran away and stole one [vessel] of gold, [amounting] to 5 deben, four jars of silver, amounting to 20 deben, and a sack of 11 deben of silver. [Total of what] he [stole]: 5 deben of gold and 31 deben of silver.²

I got up in the morning, and I went to the place where the Prince was, and I said to him: "I have been robbed in your harbor. Now you are the prince of this land, and you are its investigator who should look for my silver. Now about this silver—it belongs to Amon-Re, (15) King of the Gods, the lord of the lands; it belongs to Ne-su-Ba-neb-Ded; it belongs to Heri-Hor, my lord, and the other great men of Egypt! It belongs to you; it belongs to Weret; it belongs to Mekmer; it belongs to Zakar-Baal, the Prince of Byblos!"³

And he said to me: "Whether you are important or whether you are eminent—look here, I do not recognize this accusation which you have made to me! Suppose it had been a thief who belonged to my land who went on your boat and stole your silver, I should have repaid it to you from my treasury, until they had (20) found this thief of yours—whoever he may be. Now about

² This value—about 450 grams (1.2 lb. Troy) of gold and about 2.8 kilograms (7.5 lb. Troy) of silver—was to pay for the lumber.
³ On the one hand, the gold and silver belong to the Egyptians who sent Wen-Amon. On the other hand, they belong to the Atlantics who would receive it. Beder thus has double responsibilities to recover them.
the thief who robbed you—he belongs to you! He belongs to your ship! Spend a few days here visiting me, so that I may look for him."

I spent nine days moored (in) his harbor, and I went (to) call on him, and I said to him: "Look, you have not found my silver. [Just let] me [go] with the ship captains and with those who go (to) seal!" But he said to me: "Be quiet!..."... I went out of Tyre at the break of dawn...Zakar-Baal, the Prince of Byblos,... (30) ship. I found 30 deben of silver in it, and I seized upon it.1 [And I said to the Tjeker: "I have seized upon] your silver, and it will stay with me [until] you find [my silver or the thief] who stole it! Even though you have not stolen, I shall take it. But as for you,..."

So they went away, and I enjoyed my triumph [in] a tent (on) the shore of the [sea], (in) the harbor of Byblos. And [I hid] Amon-of-the-Road, and I put his property inside him.2

And the [Prince] of Byblos sent to me, saying: "Get [out of (35) my] harbor!" And I sent to him, saying: "Where should [I go to]?... If [you have a ship] to carry me, have me taken to Egypt again!" So I spent twenty-nine days in his [harbor, while] he [spent] the time sending to me every day to say: "Get out (of) my harbor!"

Now while he was making offering to his gods, the god seized one of his youths and made him possessed. 3 And he said to him: "Bring up [the] god! Bring the messenger who is carrying him! (40) Amon is the one who sent him out! He is the one who made him come!"

And while the possessed (youth) was having his frenzy on this night, I had (already) found a ship headed for Egypt and had loaded everything that I had into it. While I was watching for the darkness, thinking that when it descended I would load the god (also), so that no other eye might see him, the harbor master came to me, saying: "Wait until morning—so says the Prince." So I said to him: "Aren’t you the one who spend the time coming to me every day to say: ‘Get out (of) my harbor’? Aren’t you saying ‘Wait’ tonight (45) in order to let the ship which I have found get away—and (then) you will come again (to) say: 'Go away!'?” So he went and told it to the Prince. And the Prince sent to the captain of the ship to say: “Wait until morning—so says the Prince!”

When morning came, he sent and brought me up, but the god stayed in the tent where he was, (on) the shore of the sea. And I found him sitting (in) his upper room, with his back turned to a window, so that the waves of the great Syrian sea broke against the back (50) of his head.¹

So I said to him: “May Amon favor you!” But he said to me “How long, up to today, since you came from the place where Amon is?” So I said to him: “Five months and one day up to now.” And he said to me: “Well, you're truthful! Where is the letter of Amon which (should be) in your hand? Where is the dispatch of the High Priest of Amon which (should be) in your hand?” And I told him: “I gave them to Ne-su-Ba-neb-Ded and Ta-net-Amon.” And he was very, very angry, and he said to me: “Now see—neither letters nor dispatches are in your hand! Where is the cedar ship which Ne-su-Ba-neb-Ded gave to you? Where is (55) its Syrian crew? Didn't he turn you over to this foreign ship captain to have him kill you and throw you into the sea? (Then) with whom would they have looked for the god? And you too—with whom would they have looked for you too?” So he spoke to me.

But I said to him: “Wasn’t it an Egyptian ship? Now it is Egyptian crews which sail under Ne-su-Ba-neb-Ded! He has no Syrian crews.” And he said to me: “Aren’t there twenty ships here in my harbor which are in commercial relations with Ne-su-Ba-neb-Ded? As to this Sidon, (ii 1) the other (place) which you have passed, aren’t there fifty more ships there which are in commercial relations with Werket-El, and which are drawn up to his house?” And I was silent in this great time.

And he answered and said to me: “On what business have you come?” So I told him: “I have come after the woodwork for the great and august barque of Amon-Re, King of the Gods. Your father did (it), (5) your grandfather did (it), and you will do it too!” So I spoke to him. But he said to me: “To be sure, they did it! And if you give me (something) for doing it, I will do it! Why, when my people carried out this commission, Pharaoh—life, prosperity, health!—sent six ships loaded with Egyptian goods, and they unloaded them into their storehouses! You—what is it that you’re bringing me—me also?” And he had the journal rolls of his fathers brought, and he had them read out in my presence, and they found a thousand deben of silver and all kinds of things in his scrolls.

(10) So he said to me: “If the ruler of Egypt were the lord of mine, and I were his servant also, he would not have to send silver and gold, saying: ‘Carry out the commisson of Amon!’ There would be no carrying of a royal-gift, such as they used to do for my father. As for me—me also—I am not your servant! I am not the servant of him who sent you either! If I cry out to the Lebanon, the heavens open up, and the logs are lying (on) the shore of the sea! Give (15) me the sails which you have brought to carry your ships which would hold the logs for (Egypt)! Give me the ropes [which] you have brought [to lash the cedar] logs which I am to cut down to make you... which I shall make for you (as) the sails of your boats, and the spars will be (too) heavy and will break, and you will die in the middle of the sea! See, Amon made thunder in the sky when he put Seth near him.1 Now when Amon (20) founded all lands, in founding them he founded first the land of Egypt, from which you come; for craftsmanship came out of it, to reach the place where I am, and learning came out of it, to reach the place where I am. What are these silly trips which they have had you make?”

And I said to him: “(That’s) not true! What I am on are no ‘silly trips’ at all! There is no ship upon the River which does not belong to Amon! The sea is his, and the Lebanon is his, of which you say: ‘It is mine!’ It forms (25) the nursery for User-het-Amon, the lord of [every] ship! Why, he spoke—Amon-Re, King of the Gods—and said to Heri-Hor, my master: ‘Send me forth!’ So he had me come, carrying this great god. But see, you have made this great god spend these twenty-nine days moored (in) your harbor, although you did not know (it). Isn’t he here? Isn’t he the (same) as he was? You are stationed (here) to carry on the commerce of the Lebanon with Amon, its lord. As for your saying that the former kings sent silver and gold—suppose that they had life and health; (then) they would not have had such things sent! (30) (But) they had such things sent to your fathers in place of life and health!¹ Now as for Amon-Re, King of the Gods—he is the lord of this life and health, and he was the lord of your fathers. They spent their lifetimes making offering to Amon. And you also—you are the servant of Amon! If you say to Amon: ‘Yes, I will do (it)!’ and you carry out his commission, you will live, you will be prosperous, you will be healthy, and you will be good to your entire land and your people! (But) don’t wish for yourself anything belonging to Amon-Re, (King of) the Gods. Why, a lion wants his own property! Have your secretary brought to me, so that (35) I may send him to Ne-su-Ba-neb-Ded and Ta-net-Amon, the officers whom Amon put in the north of his land, and they will have all kinds of things sent. I shall send him to them to say: ‘Let it be brought until I shall go (back again) to the south, and I shall (then) have every bit of the debt still (due to you) brought to you.’² So I spoke to him.

So he entrusted my letter to his messenger, and he loaded in the keel, the bow-post, the stern-post, along with four other hewn timbers—seven in all—and he had them taken to Egypt. And in the first month of the second season his messenger who had gone to Egypt came back to me in Syria. And Ne-su-Ba-neb-Ded and Ta-net-Amon sent: (40) 4 jars and 1 kak-men of gold; 5 jars of silver; 10 pieces of clothing in royal linen; 10 kherd of good Upper Egyptian linen; 500 (rolls of) finished papyrus; 500 cowhides; 500 ropes; 20 sacks of lentils; and 30 baskets of fish. And she sent to me (personally): 5 pieces of clothing in good Upper Egyptian linen; 5 kherd of good Upper Egyptian linen; 1 sack of lentils; and 5 baskets of fish.

And the Prince was glad, and he detailed three hundred men and three hundred cattle, and he put supervisors at their head, to have them cut down the timber.

So they cut them down, and they spent the second season lying there.

In the third month of the third season they dragged them (to) the shore of the sea, and the Prince came out and stood by them. And he sent to me, (45) saying: "Come!" Now when I presented myself near him, the shadow of his lotus-blossom fell upon me. And Pen-Amon, a butler who belonged to him, cut me off, saying: "The shadow of Pharaoh—life, prosperity, health!—your lord, has fallen on you!" But he was angry at him, saying: "Let him alone!"

So I presented myself near him, and he answered and said to me: "See, the commission which my fathers carried out formerly, I have carried it out (also), even though you have not done for me what your fathers would have done for me, and you too (should have done)! See, the last of your woodwork has arrived and is lying (here). Do as I wish, and come to load it in—for aren't they going to give it to you? (50) Don't come to look at the terror of the sea! If you look at the terror of the sea, you will see my own (too)! Why, I have not done to you what was done to the messengers of Kha-em-Waset, when they spent seventeen years in this land—they died (where) they were!" And he said to his butler: "Take him and show him their tomb in which they are lying."

But I said to him: "Don't show it to me! As for Kha-em-Waset—they were men whom he sent to you as messengers, and he was a man himself. You do not have one of his messengers (here in me), when you say: 'Go and see your companions!' Now, shouldn't you rejoice (55) and have a stela [made] for yourself and say on it: 'Amon-Re, King of the Gods, sent to me Amon-of-the-Road, his messenger—[life], prosperity, health!—and Wen-Amon, his human messenger, after the woodwork for the great and august barque of Amon-Re, King of the Gods. I cut it down. I loaded it in. I provided it (with) my ships and my crews. I caused them to reach Egypt, in order to ask fifty years of life from Amon for myself, over and above my fate.'

5 Seasoning in the mountains.
6 Perhaps we have to do with the blight of majesty. The butler's jest has point if the shadow of pharaoh was too intimate and holy to fall upon a commoner.
7 If you use wind or weather as excuses for delay, you will find me just as dangerous.
And it shall come to pass that, after another time, a messenger may come from the land of Egypt who knows writing, and he may read your name on the stela. And you will receive water (in) the West, like the gods who are (60) here!"

And he said to me: "This which you have said to me is a great testimony of words!" So I said to him: "As for the many things which you have said to me, if I reach the place where the High Priest of Amon is and he sees how you have (carried out this) commission, it is your (carrying out of this) commission (which) will draw out something for you."

And I went (to) the shore of the sea, to the place where the timber was lying, and I spied eleven ships belonging to the Tjeker coming in from the sea, in order to say: "Arrest him! Don't let a ship of his (go) to the land of Egypt!" Then I sat down and wept. And the letter scribe of the Prince came out to me, (65) and he said to me: "What's the matter with you?" And I said to him: "Haven't you seen the birds go down to Egypt a second time?" Look at them—how they travel to the cool pools! (But) how long shall I be left here! Now don't you see those who are coming again to arrest me?"

So he went and told it to the Prince. And the Prince began to weep because of the words which were said to him, for they were painful. And he sent out to me his letter scribe, and he brought to me two jugs of wine and one ram. And he sent to me Ta-net-Not, an Egyptian singer who was with him, saying: "Sing to him! Don't let his heart take on cares!" And he sent to me, (70) to say: "Eat and drink! Don't let your heart take on cares, for tomorrow you shall hear whatever I have to say."

When morning came, he had his assembly summoned, and he stood in their midst, and he said to the Tjeker: "What have you come (for)?" And they said to him: "We have come after the blasted ships which you are sending to Egypt with our opponents!" But he said to them: "I cannot arrest the messenger of Amon inside my land. Let me send him away, and you go after him to arrest him."

\(^3\) A libation to help maintain the dead.
\(^4\) We cannot be sure whether the irony was conscious or unconscious.
\(^5\) Wen-Amon had been away from Egypt for more than a year, seeing two flights of birds southward.
\(^6\) Egyptian women who entertained or participated in cult ceremonies in Asa are known in the inscriptions on the Megiddo ivories.
So he loaded me in, and he sent me away from there at the harbor of the sea. And the wind cast me on the land of (75) Alashiya. And they of the town came out against me to kill me, but I forced my way through them to the place where Heteb, the princess of the town, was. I met her as she was going out of one house of hers and going into another of hers.

So I greeted her, and I said to the people who were standing near her: "Isn't there one of you who understands Egyptian?" And one of them said: "I understand (it)." So I said to him: "Tell my lady that I have heard, as far away as Thebes, the place where Amon is, that injustice is done in every town but justice is done in the land of Alashiya. Yet injustice is done here every day!" And she said: "Why, what do you (mean) (80) by saying it?" So I told her: "If the sea is stormy and the wind casts me on the land where you are, you should not let them take me in charge to kill me. For I am a messenger of Amon. Look here—as for me, they will search for me all the time! As to this crew of the Prince of Byblos which they are bent on killing, won't its lord find ten crews of yours, and he also kill them?"

So she had the people summoned, and they stood (there). And she said to me: "Spend the night..."

(At this point the papyrus breaks off. Since the tale is told in the first person, it is fair to assume that Wen-Amon returned to Egypt to tell his story, in some measure of safety or success.)

The Tradition of Seven Lean Years in Egypt

The prosperity of Egypt depends upon the satisfactory flow of the Nile, particularly upon its annual inundation, and that river is antic and unpredictable. Ancient Egyptian texts have frequent references to hunger, "years of misery," "a year of low Nile," and so on. The text which follows tells of seven years of low Niles and famine. In its present form the text derives from the Ptolemaic period (perhaps around the end of the 2nd century B.C.). However, its stated setting is the reign of Djoser Vandler gives a previously unpublished text from the First Inter-mediate Period (21st-22nd dynasty R.C.), from a tomb some distance south of Thebes. "Where the entire Upper Egypt was dying because of hunger, with every man eating his own children, I never allowed death to occur from hunger in this nome. I gave a loan of grain to Upper Egypt. Moreover, I kept alive the domain of Elephantine and kept alive the 1st-nomen in these years, after the towns of Hefat and Hor-mer had been satisfied." He took care of his home districts first. of the Third Dynasty (about 28th century B.C.). It states the reasons why a stretch of Nile land south of Elephantine had been devoted to Khnum, god of Elephantine. It is a question whether it is a priestly forgery of some late period, justifying their claim to territorial privileges, or whether it correctly recounts an actual grant of land more than 2,500 years earlier. This question cannot be answered in final terms. We can only affirm that Egypt had a tradition of seven lean years, which, by a contractual arrangement between pharaoh and a god, were to be followed by years of plenty.

Year 18 of the Horus: Netjer-er-khet; the King of Upper and Lower Egypt: Netjer-er-khet; the Two Goddesses: Netjer-er-khet; the Horus of Gold: Djoser, and under the Count, Mayor, Royal Acquaintance, and Overseer of Nubians in Elephantine, Madir. There was brought to him this royal decree:

To let thee know. I was in distress on the Great Throne, and those who are in the palace were in heart's affliction from a very great evil, since the Nile had not come in my time for a space of seven years. Grain was scant, fruits were dried up, and everything which they eat was short. Every man robbed his companion. They moved without going (ahead). The infant was wailing; the youth was waiting; the heart of the old men was in sorrow, their legs were bent, crouching on the ground, their arms were folded. The courtiers were in need. The temples were shut up; the sanctuaries held nothing but air. Every thing was found empty.

I extended my heart back to the beginnings, and I asked him who was the Chamberlain, the Ibis, the Chief Lector Priest Li-em-(ho)tep, the son of Ptah, South-of-His-Wall: "What is the birthplace of the Nile? Who is... the god there? Who is the god?"

Then he answered (5) me: "I need the guidance of Him Who Presides over the House of the Fowling Net, for the heart's confidence of all men about what they should do. I shall enter into the House of Life and spread out the Souls of Re, (to see) if some guidance be in them."

So he went, and he returned to me immediately, that he might instruct me on the inundation of the Nile,...

1 To Madir, the Governor at Elephantine.
2 The famed minister of Djoser, whose reputation for wisdom later brought him deification.
3 Thoth of Hermopolis, the god of wisdom and of priestly lore.
4 The scriptorium in which the sacred and magic books "The Souls of Re," were kept.
and everything about which they had written. He uncovered for me the hidden spells thereof, to which the ancestors had taken (their) way, without their equal among kings since the limits of time. He said to me:

"There is a city in the midst of the waters [from which] the Nile rises, named Elephantine. It is the Beginning of the Beginning, the Beginning Nome, (facing) toward Wawat. It is the joining of the land, the primeval hillock of earth, the throne of Re, when he reckons to cast life beside everybody. 'Pleasant of Life' is the name of its dwelling. 'The Two Caverns' is the name of the water; they are the two breasts which pour forth all good things. It is the couch of the Nile, in which he becomes young (again). . . . He fecundates (the land) by mounting as the male, the bull, to the female; he renews (his) virility, assuaging his desire. He rushes twenty-eight cubits (high at Elephantine); he hastens at Diospolis seven cubits (high). Khnum is there as a god . . . ."

1 Kings 3:5

(18) . . . As I slept in life and satisfaction, I discovered the god standing over against me. I propitiated him with praise; I prayed to him in his presence. He revealed himself to me, his face being fresh. His words were:

"I am Khnum, thy fashioner. . . . I know the Nile. When he is introduced into the fields, his introduction gives life to every nostril, like the introduction (of life) to the fields. . . . The Nile will pour forth for thee, without a year of cessation or laxness for any land. Plants will grow, bowing down under the fruit. Renenut will be at the head of everything. . . . Dependents will fulfill the purposes in their hearts, (22) as well as the master. The starvation year will have gone, and (people's) borrowing from their granaries will have departed. Egypt will come into the fields, the banks will sparkle, . . . and contentment will be in their hearts more than that which was formerly."

Then I awoke quickly, my heart cutting off weariness. I made this decree beside my father Khnum:

"An offering which the King gives to Khnum, the Lord of the Cataract Region, Who Presides over Nubia, in recompense for these things which thou wilt do for me:

"I offer to thee thy west in Manu and thy east (in) twelve \textit{iters}\textsuperscript{2} on the east and west, whether arable land

(The remainder of the text continues Djoser’s promise to Khnum, the essence of which is that the land presented to the god shall be tithed for his temple. It is finally provided that the decree shall be inscribed on a stela in the temple of Khnum.)

II. Myths and Epics
from Mesopotamia

A Sumerian Myth

TRANSLATOR: S. N. KRAMER

THE DELUGE

This Sumerian myth concerning the flood, with its Sumerian counterpart of the antediluvian Noah, offers the closest and most striking parallel to biblical material as yet uncovered in Sumerian literature. Moreover, its introductory passages are of considerable significance for Mesopotamian cosmogony; they include a number of important statements concerning the creation of man, the origin of kingship, and the existence of at least five antediluvian cities.

After the . . . of kingship had been lowered from heaven,

1 There is some possibility that it is more than one deity who is speaking. Our interpretation of the text assumes that the speaking deity (or deities) plans to save mankind from destruction, but this is uncertain.

2 Nintu is the Sumerian mother goddess known also under the names Ninhumug and Nimnah.

3 Perhaps "of the houses of the (divine) ordinances."

4 The word "black-headed" usually refers to inhabitants of Sumer and Babylon; in the present context, it seems to refer to mankind as a whole.

* Nudimmud is a name for the water-god Enki.
* The sun-god, known as the tutelary deity of both Sippar and Larsa.
* The tutelary goddess of Shuruppak identified by the later Babylonian theologians with the goddess Ninlil, the wife of Enlil.

   (Remainder of the tablet, about 39 lines of text, destroyed.)

1 The Sumerian word twice rendered by "land" in this line may also be translated as "mountain" or "mountain-land."

2 Perhaps the crossing of the sun immediately upon his rising in the east; the Sumerian word used may also mean "of rule."

3 That is, probably Anu and Enlil.
The struggle between cosmic order and chaos was to the ancient Mesopotamians a fateful drama that was renewed at the turn of each new year. The epic which deals with these events was therefore the most significant expression of the religious literature of Mesopotamia. The work, consisting of seven tablets, was known in Akkadian as Enûma elîš "When on high," after its opening words. It was recited with due solemnity on the fourth day of the New Year's festival.

There is as yet no general agreement as regards the date of composition. None of the extant texts antedates the first millennium B.C. On the internal evidence, however, of the context and the linguistic criteria, the majority of the scholars would assign the epic to the Old Babylonian period, i.e. the early part of the second millennium B.C. There does not appear to be any convincing reason against this earlier dating.

(Tablets I-III recount the birth of the gods, who spring from the primordial Apsu and Tiamat, and the choice of Marduk as the champion of the younger gods in the battle against Tiamat.)

Tablet IV

They erected for him a princely throne.
Facing his fathers, he sat down, presiding.
"Thou art the most honored of the great gods, Thy decree is unrivaled, thy command is Anu."
Thou, Marduk, art the most honored of the great gods,
Thy decree is unrivaled, thy word is Anu.
From this day unchangeable shall be thy pronouncement.
To raise or bring low—these shall be (in) thy hand.
Thy utterance shall be true, thy command shall be unimpeachable.
No one among the gods shall transgress thy bounds!

*Adornment being wanted for the seats of the gods,*
Let the place of their shrines ever be in thy place.
O Marduk, thou art indeed our avenger.
We have granted thee kingship over the universe entire.

\[^{1}\text{i.e. it has the authority of the sky-god Anu.}\]
When in Assembly thou sittest, thy word shall be supreme.
Thy weapons shall not fail; they shall smash thy foes!
O lord, spare the life of him who trusts thee,
But pour out the life of the god who seized evil."

Having placed in their midst a piece of cloth,
They addressed themselves to Mardu, their first-born:
"Lord, truly thy decree is first among gods,
Say but to wreck or create; it shall be.
Open thy mouth: the cloth will vanish!
Speak again, and the cloth shall be whole!"
At the word of his mouth the cloth vanished.
He spoke again, and the cloth was restored.
When the gods, his fathers, saw the fruit of his word,
Joyfully they did homage: "Mardu is king!"
They conferred on him scepter, throne, and vestment;
They gave him matchless weapons that ward off the foes:
"Go and cut off the life of Tiamat.
May the winds bear her blood to places undisclosed."
Bel's destiny thus fixed, the gods, his fathers,
Caused him to go the way of success and attainment.
He constructed a bow, marked it as his weapon,
Attached thereto the arrow, fixed its bow-cord.
He raised the mace, made his right hand grasp it;
Bow and quiver he hung at his side.
In front of him he set the lightning,
With a blazing flame he filled his body.
He then made a net to enfold Tiamat therein.
The four winds he stationed that nothing of her might escape,
The South Wind, the North Wind, the East Wind, the West Wind.
Close to his side he held the net, the gift of his father, Anu.
He brought forth Imhullu "the Evil Wind," the Whirlwind, the Hurricane,
The Fourfold Wind, the Sevenfold Wind, the Cyclone, the Matchless Wind;
Then he sent forth the winds he had brought forth, the seven of them.
To stir up the inside of Tiamat they rose up behind him.
Then the lord raised up the flood-storm, his mighty weapon.
He mounted the storm-chariot irresistible
[and] terrifying.

He harnessed (and) yoked to it a team-of-four,
The Killer, the Relentless, the Trampler, the Swift.
Sharp were their teeth, bearing poison.
They were versed in ravage, in destruction skilled.
On his right he posted the Smiter, fearsome in battle,
On the left the Combat, which repels all the zealous.
For a cloak he was wrapped in an armor of terror;
With his fearsome halo his head was turbaned.
The lord went forth and followed his course,
Towards the raging Tiamat he set his face.

In his lips he held a spell;
A plant to put out poison was grasped in his hand.
Then they milled about him, the gods milled about him,
The gods, his fathers, milled about him, the gods milled about him.
The lord approached to scan the inside of Tiamat,
(And) of Kingu, her consort, the scheme to perceive.
As he looks on, his course becomes upset,
His will is distracted and his doings are confused.
And when the gods, his helpers, who marched at his side,
Saw the valiant hero, blurred became their vision.

Tiamat emitted [a cry], without turning her neck,
Framing savage\(^1\) defiance in her lips:\(^2\)
"Too [imp]ortant art thou [for] the lord of the gods to rise up against thee!
Is it in their place that they have gathered, (or) in thy place?"

Thereupon the lord, having [raised] the flood-storm, his mighty weapon,
[To'] enraged [Tiamat] he sent word as follows:
"Why art thou risen, art haughtily exalted,
Thou hast charged thine own heart to stir up conflict,
... sons reject their own fathers,
Whilst thou, who hast born them,
hast foresworn love!
Thou hast appointed Kingu as thy consort,
Conferring upon him the rank of Anu, not rightfully his,

\(^1\) "her incantation" is not impossible.
\(^2\) Tiamat's taunt, as recorded in the next two lines, is not clear.
Against Anshar, king of the gods, thou seest evil; [Against] the gods, my fathers, thou hast confirmed thy wickedness.

[Though] drawn up be thy forces, girded on thy weapons,
Stand thou up, that I and thou meet in single combat!”
When Tiamat heard this,
She was like one possessed; she took leave of her senses.
In fury Tiamat cried out aloud.
To the roots her legs shook both together.
She recites a charm, keeps casting her spell,
While the gods of battle sharpen their weapons.
Then joined issue Tiamat and Marduk, wisest of gods.
They strove in single combat, locked in battle.
The lord spread out his net to entwine her,
The Evil Wind, which followed behind, he let loose in her face.
When Tiamat opened her mouth to consume him,
He drove in the Evil Wind that she close not her lips.
As the fierce winds charged her belly,
Her body was distended and her mouth was wide open.
He released the arrow, it tore her belly,
It cut through her insides, splitting the heart.
Having thus subdued her, he extinguished her life.
He cast down her carcass to stand upon it.
After he had slain Tiamat, the leader,
Her hand was shattered, her troupe broken up;
And the gods, her helpers who marched at her side,
Trembling with terror, turned their backs about,
In order to save and preserve their lives.
Tightly encircled, they could not escape.
He made them captives and he smashed their weapons.
Thrown into the net, they found themselves ensnared;
Placed in cells, they were filled with wailing;
Bearing his wrath, they were held imprisoned.
And the eleven creatures which she had charged with awe,
The band of demons that marched [ . . . ] before her,
He cast into fetters, their hands [ . . . ].

For all their resistance, he trampled (them) underfoot.
And Kingu, who had been made chief among them,
He bound and accounted him to Uggae. ¹

He took from him the Tablets of Fate, not rightfully his,
Sealed (them) with a seal and fastened (them) on his breast.
When he had vanquished and subdued his adversaries,
Had ... the vainglorious foe,
Had wholly established Anshar’s triumph over the foe,
Nudimmud’s desire had achieved, valiant Marduk
Strengthened his hold on the vanquished gods,
And turned back to Tiamat whom he had bound.
The lord trod on the legs of Tiamat,
With his unsparing mace he crushed her skull. (130)
When the arteries of her blood he had severed,
The North Wind bore (it) to places undisclosed.
On seeing this, his fathers were joyful and jubilant,
They brought gifts of homage, they to him.
Then the lord paused to view her dead body,
That he might divide the monster and do artful works.
He split her like a shellfish into two parts:
Half of her he set up and ceiled it as sky,
Pulled down the bar and posted guards.
He bade them to allow not her waters to escape. (140)
He crossed the heavens and surveyed the regions.
He squared Apsu’s quarter, the abode of Nudimmud,
As the lord measured the dimensions of Apsu.
The Great Abode, its likeness, he fixed as Esharra,
The Great Abode, Esharra, which he made as the firmament.
Anu, Enlil, and Ea he made occupy their places. Figs. 167, 168

Tablet V

He constructed stations for the great gods,
Fixing their astral likenesses as constellations.
He determined the year by designating the zones:
He set up three constellations for each of the twelve months.
After defining the days of the year [by means] of (heavenly) figures,
He founded the station of Nebiru to determine their (heavenly) bands,
That none might transgress or fall short.

1 This was an essential act of attestation in Mesopotamian society.
2 i.e., the planet Jupiter. This station was taken to lie between the band of the north, which belonged to Enlil, and the band of the south, which belonged to Ea.
Alongside it he set up the stations of Enlil and Ea.
Having opened up the gates on both sides,
He strengthened the locks to the left and the right.
In her death he established the zenith.
The Moon he caused to shine, the night (to him) entrusting.
He appointed him a creature of the night to signify the days:
"Monthly, without cease, form designs with a crown.
At the month's very start, rising over the land,
Thou shalt have luminous horns to signify six days,
On the seventh day reaching a [half]-crown.
At full moon stand in opposition in mid-month.
When the sun [overtakes] thee at the base of heaven,
Diminish [thy crown] and retrogress in light. (20)
[At the time of disappearance] approach thou the course of the sun,
And [on the twenty-ninth] thou shalt again stand in opposition to the sun."
(The remainder of this tablet is broken away or too fragmentary for translation.)

Tablet VI

When Marduk hears the words of the gods,
His heart prompts (him) to fashion artful works.
Opening his mouth, he addresses Ea
To impart the plan he had conceived in his heart:
"Blood I will mass and cause bones to be.
I will establish a savage, 'man' shall be his name.
Verily, savage-man I will create.
He shall be charged with the service of the gods
That they might be at ease!
The ways of the gods I will artfully alter.
Though alike revered, into two (groups) they shall be divided."

Ea answered him, speaking a word to him,
Giving him another plan for the relief of the gods:
"Let but one of their brothers be handed over;
He alone shall perish that mankind may be fashioned.
Let the great gods be here in Assembly,

1 Ti'amati's.
2 Akkadian Isaputu, the prototype of the "Sabbath" in so far as the injunctions against all types of activity are concerned.
3 i.e. with regard to the sun. This verb was a technical term in Babylonian astronomy.
4 Out of his blood.
Let the guilty be handed over that they may endure."
Marduk summoned the great gods to Assembly;
Presiding graciously, he issues instructions.
To his utterance the gods pay heed.
The king addresses a word to the Anunnaki:
"If your former statement was true,
Do (now) the truth on oath by me declare!
Who was it that contrived the uprising,
And made Tiamat rebel, and joined battle?
Let him be handed over who contrived the uprising.
His guilt I will make him bear. You shall dwell in peace!"
The Igigi, the great gods, replied to him,
To Lugaldimmerankia, counselor of the gods, their lord:
"It was Kingu who contrived the uprising,
And made Tiamat rebel, and joined battle."
They bound him, holding him before Ea.
They imposed on him his guilt and severed his blood (vessels).
Out of his blood they fashioned mankind.
He imposed the service and let free the gods.
After Ea, the wise, had created mankind,
Had imposed upon it the service of the gods—
That work was beyond comprehension;
As artfully planned by Marduk, did Nudimmud create it—
Marduk, the king of the gods divided
All the Anunnaki above and below.²
He assigned (them) to Anu to guard his instructions.
Three hundred in the heavens he stationed as a guard.
In like manner the ways of the earth he defined.
In heaven and on earth six hundred (thus) he settled.
After he had ordered all the instructions,
To the Anunnaki of heaven and earth had allotted their portions,
The Anunnaki opened their mouths
And said to Marduk, their lord:
"Now, O lord, thou who hast caused our deliverance,
What shall be our homage to thee?"
Let us build a shrine whose name shall be called

¹ "The king of the gods of heaven and earth."
² Ex. Here and elsewhere in this epic the Anunnaki are understood to be the stellar gods (normally Igigi) as well as those of the lower regions.
³ Not "O Namtar," as translated by some.
Lo, a chamber for our nightly rest; let us repose in it!
Let us build a throne, a recess for his abode!
On the day that we arrive we shall repose in it."
When Marduk heard this,
Brightly glowed his features, like the day:
"Like that of lofty Babylon, whose building you have requested,
Let its brickwork be fashioned. You shall name it "The Sanctuary."
The Anunnaki applied the implement;
For one whole year they molded bricks.
When the second year arrived,
They raised high the head of Esagila equaling Apsu.
Having built a stage-tower as high as Apsu,
They set up in it an abode for Marduk, Enlil, (and) Ea
In their presence he adorned (it) in grandeur.
To the base of Esharra its horns look down.
After they had achieved the building of Esagila,
The Anunnaki themselves erected their shrines.
[... ] all of them gathered,
[... ] they had built as his dwelling.
The gods, his fathers, at his banquet he seated:
"This is Babylon, the place that is your home!
Make merry in its precincts, occupy its broad [places]."
The great gods took their seats,
They set up festive drink, sat down to a banquet.
After they had made merry within it,
In Esagila, the splendid, had performed their rites,
The norms had been fixed (and) all [their] portents,
All the gods apportioned the stations of heaven and earth.
The fifty great gods took their seats.
The seven gods of destiny set up the three hundred [in heaven].
Enlil raised the bow, his weapon, and laid (it)
before them.
The gods, his fathers, saw the net he had made.
When they beheld the bow, how skillful its shape,
His fathers praised the work he had wrought.
Raising (it), Anu spoke up in the Assembly of the gods,
As he kissed the bow: "This is my daughter!"
He named the names of the bow as follows:

1 For the New Year's festival.
2 Meaning apparently that the height of Esagila corresponded to the depth of Apsu's waters.
"Longwood is the first, the second is [...];
Its third name is Bow-Star, in heaven I have made it shine."
He fixed a place which the gods, its brothers, [...].
After Anu had decreed the fate of the Bow,
And had placed the exalted royal throne before the gods,
Anu seated it in the Assembly of the gods.
When the great gods had assembled,
And had [... ] the fate which Marduk had exalted,
They pronounced among themselves a curse,
Swearing by water and oil to place life in jeopardy.
When they had granted him the exercise of kingship of the gods,
They confirmed him in dominion over the gods of heaven and earth.
Anshar pronounced supreme his name Asar(u)luhi:
"Let us make humble obeisance at the mention of his name;
When he speaks, the gods shall pay heed to him.
Let his utterance be supreme above and below!"
"Most exalted be the Son, our avenger;
Let his sovereignty be surpassing, having no rival.
May he shepherd the black-headed ones,² his creatures.
To the end of days, without forgetting, let them acclaim his ways.
May he establish for his fathers the great food-offerings;
Their support they shall furnish, shall tend their sanctuaries.
May he cause incense to be smelled, ... their spells,
A likeness on earth of what he has wrought in heaven.
May he order the black-headed to re[vere him],
May the subjects ever bear in mind their god,
And may they at his word pay heed to the goddess.
May food-offerings be borne for their gods and goddesses.
Without fail let them support their gods!
Their lands let them improve, build their shrines,
Let the black-headed wait on their gods.
As for us, by however many names we pronounce, he is our god!
Let us then proclaim his fifty names....

³ Referring to the Bow.
⁴ A common Akkadian metaphor for "the human race."
The Epic of Gilgamesh

The theme of this epic is essentially a secular one. The poem deals with such earthy things as man and nature, love and adventure, friendship and combat—all masterfully blended into a background for the stark reality of death. The climactic struggle of the protagonist to change his eventual fate, by learning the secret of immortality from the hero of the Great Flood of long ago, ends in failure; but with the failure comes a sense of quiet resignation. For the first time in the history of the world a profound experience on such a heroic scale has found expression in a noble style. The scope and sweep of the epic, and its sheer poetic power, give it a timeless appeal. All but a few of the Akkadian texts come from the library of Ashurbanipal at Nineveh. Unlike the Creation Epic, however, the Gilgamesh Epic is known also from versions which antedate the first millennium B.C. From the middle of the second millennium have come down fragments of an Akkadian recension current in the Hittite Empire, and the same Bogazköy archives have yielded also important fragments of a Hittite translation, as well as a fragment of a Hurrian rendering of the epic. From the first half of the second millennium we possess representative portions of the Old Babylonian version of the epic, which pertain to Tablets I-III, and X. That this version was itself a copy of an earlier text is suggested by the internal evidence of the material. The original date of composition of the Akkadian work has to be placed at the turn of the second millennium, if not slightly earlier.

Tablet I (i)

He who saw everything [to the end]s of the land, [Who all thing]s experienced, [considered] all! [ ... ] together [ ... ], [... ] of wisdom, who all things. [ ... ].
The [hi]dden he saw, [laid bare] the undisclosed.
He brought report of before the Flood,
Achieved a long journey, weary and [w]orn.
All his toil he engraved on a stone stela.
Of ramparted Uruk the wall he built,
Of hallowed Eanna, the pure sanctuary.
Behold its outer wall, whose cornice is like copper,
Peel at the inner wall, which none can equal!
Seize upon the threshold, which is from of old!
Draw near to Eanna, the dwelling of Ishtar,
Which no future king, no man, can equal.
Go up and walk on the walls of Uruk,
Inspect the base terrace, examine the brickwork:
Is not its brickwork of burnt brick?
Did not the Seven [Sages] lay its foundations?

1 The temple of Anu and Ishtar in Uruk.
2 The seven sages, who brought civilization to seven of the oldest cities.
(Remainder of the column broken away. A Hittite fragment [cf. J. Friedrich, Z.A., xxxix (1929), 2-5] corresponds in part with the damaged initial portion of our column ii, and hence appears to contain some of the material from the end of the first column. We gather from this fragment that several gods had a hand in fashioning Gilgamesh, whom they endowed with superhuman size. At length, Gilgamesh arrives in Uruk.)

(ii)

Two-thirds of him is god, [one-third of him is human]. The form of his body [...]

(mutilated or missing) (3-7)

[...] like a wild ox lofty [...] (8)

The onslaught of his weapons verily has no equal.

By the drum are aroused [his] companions.

The nobles of Uruk are gloomy in [their chambers:

"Gilgamesh leaves not the son to [his] father;

[Day] and [night] is unbridled his arrogance.

[Is this Gilgamesh, [the shepherd of ramparted]

Uruk?

Is this [our] shepherd, [bold, stately, wise]? [Gilgamesh] leaves not [the maid to her mother],

The warrior's daughter, [the noble's spouse]!"

The [gods hearkened] to their plaint,

The gods of heaven Uruk's lord [they ... ];

"Did not [Anu] bring forth this strong wild ox?

[The onslaught of his weapons] verily has no equal.

By the drum are aroused his companions.

Gilgamesh leaves not the son to his father;

Day and night [is unbridled his arrogance].

Is this the shepherd of [ramparted] Uruk?

Is this their [ ... ] shepherd,

Bold, stately, (and) wise? ... .

Gilgamesh leaves not the maid to [her mother],

The warrior's daughter, the noble's spouse!"

When [Anu] had heard out their plaint,

The great Aruru they called:

"Thou, Aruru, didst create [the man];

Create now his double:

His stormy heart let him match.

Let them contend, that Uruk may have peace!"

When Aruru heard this,

1 Here perhaps the reference is to the abury for personal purposes of an instrument intended for civic or religious use.

2 A goddess.
A double of Anu she conceived within her.
Aruru washed her hands,
Pinched off clay and cast it on the steppe.
[On the step]pe she created valiant Enkidu,
Offspring of . . . , essence of Ninurta.
[Sha]ggy with hair is his whole body,
He is endowed with head hair like a woman.
The locks of his hair sprout like Nisaba.¹
He knows neither people nor land:
Garbed is he like Sumuqan.²
With the gazelles he feeds on grass,
With the wild beasts he jostles at the watering-place,
With the teeming creatures his heart delights in water.
(Now) a hunter, a trapping-man,
Faced him at the watering-place.
[One] day, a second, and a third
He faced him at the watering-place.
When the hunter saw him, his face became motionless.
He and his beasts went into his house,
[Sore a] fraid, still, without a sound,
(While) his heart [was disturbed], overclouded his face.
For woe had [entered] his belly;
His face was like that [of a wayfarer] from afar.

(iii)

The hunter opened [his mouth] to speak,
Saying to [his father]:
"My father, there is [a] fellow who [has come from the hills],
He is the mightiest in the land; strength he has,
[Like the essence] of Anu, so mighty his strength!
[Ever] he ranges over the hills,
[Ever] with the beasts [he feeds on grass].
[Ever sets he] his feet at the watering-place,
[I am so frightened that] I dare not approach him!
[He filled in] the pits that I had dug,
[He tore up] my traps which I had [set],
The beasts and creatures of the steppe
[He has made slip through my hands].³
[He does not allow] me to engage in fieldcraft!

[His father opened his mouth to speak],

¹ Goddess of grain. ² God of cattle. ³ Perhaps "he has made me forlorn."
Saying to the hunter:

"[My son], in Uruk [there lives] Gilgamesh.
[No one is there more mighty] than he.
[Like the essence of Anu, so mighty is his strength!]
[Go, then, toward Uruk set] thy face,
[Speak to him of] the power of the man.
[Let him give thee a harlot-lass]. Take (her) [with thee];
[Let her prevail against him] by dint of [greater] might. (20)
[When he waters the beasts at] the watering-place,
[She shall pull off] her cloth[ing], laying bare] her ripeness.
[As soon as he sees] her, he will draw near to her.
Reject him, will his beasts [that grew up on] his steppe!"

[Giving heed to] the advice of his father,
The hunter went forth [to Gilgamesh].
He took the road, in Uruk he set [his foot]:
"[. . .] Gilga[mesh . . . ],
There is a fellow [who has come from the hills],
He is the might[iest] in the land; strength
he has]. (30)
Like the essence of Anu, so mighty [his strength]! It [Ever] he ranges over the hills,
Ever with the beasts [he feeds on grass],
Ever [sets] he his feet at the watering-place.
I am so frightened that I dare not approach [him]!
He filled in the pits that [I] had dug,
He tore up my traps [which I had set],
The beasts and creatures [of the steppe]
He has made slip through my hands.
He does not allow me to engage in fieldcraft!"

Gilgamesh says to him, [to] the hunter:
"Go, my hunter, take with thee a harlot-lass.
When he waters the beasts at the watering-place,
She shall pull off her clothing, laying bare her ripeness.
As soon as he sees her, he will draw near to her.
Reject him will his beasts that grew up on his steppe!"
Forth went the hunter, taking with him a harlot-lass.
They took the road, going straight on the(ir) way.
On the third day at the appointed spot they arrived.
The hunter and the harlot sat down in their places.

1 Lit. "regard as stranger, deny."
One day, a second day, they sat by the watering-place.
The wild beasts came to the watering-place to drink.

(iv)
The creeping creatures came, their heart delighting in water.
But as for him, Enkidu, born in the hills—
With the gazelles he feeds on grass,
With the wild beasts he drinks at the watering-place,
With the creeping creatures his heart delights in water—
The lass beheld him, the savage-man,
The barbarous fellow from the depths of the steppe:
"There he is, O lass! Free thy breasts,
Bare thy bosom that he may possess thy ripeness!
Be not bashful! Welcome his ardor!
As soon as he sees thee, he will draw near to thee.
Lay aside thy cloth that he may rest upon thee.
Treat him, the savage, to a woman's task!
Reject him will his wild beasts that grew up on his steppe,
As his love is drawn unto thee."
The lass freed her breasts, bared her bosom,
And he possessed her ripeness.
She was not bashful as she welcomed his ardor.
She laid aside her cloth and he rested upon her.
She treated him, the savage, to a woman's task,
As his love was drawn unto her.
For six days and seven nights Enkidu comes forth,
Mating with the lass.
After he had had (his) fill of her charms,
He set his face toward his wild beasts.
On seeing him, Enkidu, the gazelles ran off.
The wild beasts of the steppe drew away from his body.
Startled was Enkidu, as his body became taut,
His knees were motionless—for his wild beasts had gone.
Enkidu had to slacken his pace—it was not as before;
But he now had [wi]sdom, [br]oader understanding.
Returning, he sits at the feet of the harlot.
He looks up at the face of the harlot,
His ears attentive, as the harlot speaks;
[The harlot] says to him, to Enkidu:
"Thou art [wi]se, Enkidu, art become like a god!
Why with the wild creatures dost thou roam over the steppe?
Come, let me lead thee [to] ramparted Uruk,
To the holy temple, abode of Anu and Ishtar,
Where lives Gilgamesh, accomplished in strength,
And like a wild ox lords it over the folk."
As she speaks to him, her words find favor,
His heart enlightened, he yearns for a friend.
Enkidu says to her, to the harlot:
"Up, lass, escort thou me,
To the pure sacred temple, abode of Anu and Ishtar,
Where lives Gilgamesh, accomplished in strength,
And like a wild ox lords it over the folk.
I will challenge him [and will boldly address him,

[I will] shout in Uruk: 'I am he who is mighty!
[I am the] one who can alter destinies,
[(He) who] was born on the steppe is mighty; strength
he has."
"[Up then, let us go, that he may see] thy face.
[I will show thee Gilgamesh; where] he is I know well.
Come then, O Enkidu, to ramparted [Uruk],
Where people are resplendent in festal attire,
(Where) each day is made a holiday,
Where [....] lads....
And la[ss]es [....] of figure.
Their ripeness [....] full of perfume,
They drive the great ones from their couches!
To thee, O Enkidu, who rejoicest in living,
I will show Gilgamesh, the joyful man!
Look thou at him, regard his face;
He is radiant with manhood, vigor he has.
With ripeness gorgeous is the whole of his body,
Mightier strength has he than thou,
Never resting by day or by night.
O Enkidu, renounce thy presumption!
Gilgamesh—of him Shamash is fond;
Anu, Enlil, and Ea have broadened his wisdom.
Before thou comest down from the hills,
Gilgamesh will see thee in (his) dreams in Uruk:....

(Remaining lines of the Assyrian Version of Tablet I are here omitted since the Old Babylonian Version of Tablet II takes up at this point.)
Gilgamesh arose to reveal the dream,
Saying to his mother:
"My mother, in the time of night
I felt joyful and I walked about
In the midst of the nobles.
The stars appeared in the heavens.
The essence of Anu descended towards me.
I sought to lift it; it was too heavy for me!
I sought to move it; move it I could not!
Uruk-land was gathered about it,
While the nobles kissed its feet.
As I set my forehead,¹
They gave me support,
I raised it and brought it to thee."

The mother of Gilgamesh, who knows all,
Says to Gilgamesh:
"Forsooth, Gilgamesh, one like thee
Was born on the steppe,
And the hills have reared him.
When thou seest him, [as (over) a woman]
thou wilt rejoice.
The nobles will kiss his feet;
Thou wilt embrace him and [...]. him;
Thou wilt lead him to me."

He lay down and saw another
[Dream]: he says to his mother:
[My mother], I saw another
[ ... ] in the confusion. In the street
[Of] broad-marted Uruk
There lay an axe, and
They were gathered round it.
That axe, strange was its shape.
As soon as I saw it, I rejoiced.
I loved it, and as though to a woman,
I was drawn to it.
I took it and placed it
At my side."

The mother of Gilgamesh, who knows all,
[Says to Gilgamesh]:

¹To press the carrying strap against it: this method, which is witnessed on the Ur Standard, is still practised in modern Iran.
"Because I made it vie with thee."
While Gilgamesh reveals his dream,
Enkidu sits before the harlot.
[ ... ] the two of them.
[Enkidu] forgot where he was born.
For six days and seven nights Enkidu came forth
Mating with the [ass].
Then the harlot opened her mouth,
Saying to Enkidu: (10)
"As I look at thee, Enkidu, thou art become like a god;
Wherefore with the wild creatures
Dost thou range over the steppe?
Up, I will lead thee
To broad-marted Uruk,
To the holy temple, the abode of Anu,
Enkidu, arise, I will lead thee
To Eanna, the abode of Anu,
Where lives [Gilgamesh, accomplished] in deeds,
And thou, like ... ,
Wilt love [him like] thyself.
Up, arise from the ground,
The shepherd's bed!
He hearkened to her words, approved her speech;
The woman's counsel
Fell upon his heart.
She pulled off (her) clothing;
With one (piece) she clothed him,
With the other garment
She clothed herself. (30)
Holding on to his hand,
She leads him like a mother
To the board of shepherds,
The place of the sheepfold.
Round him the shepherds gathered.

The milk of wild creatures
He was wont to suck.
Food they placed before him;
He gagged, he gaped
And he stared.
Nothing does Enkidu know
Of eating food;
To drink strong drink
He has not been taught.
The harlot opened her mouth,
Saying to Enkidu:
"Eat the food, Enkidu,
As is life's due;
Drink the strong drink, as is the custom of the land."
Enkidu ate the food,
Until he was sated;
Of strong drink he drank
Seven goblets.
Carefree became his mood (and) cheerful,
His heart exulted
And his face glowed.
He rubbed [the shaggy growth],
The hair of his body,
Anointed himself with oil,
Became human,
He put on clothing,
He is like a groom!
He took his weapon
To chase the lions,
That shepherds might rest at night.
He caught wolves,
He captured lions,
The chief cattlemen could lie down;
Enkidu is their watchman,
The bold man,
The unique hero!
To [ . . . ] he said: (several lines missing)

He made merry.
When he lifted his eyes,
He beheld a man.
He says to the harlot:
"Lass, fetch the man!
Why has he come hither?
His name let me hear."
The harlot called the man,
Going up to him and saying to him:
"Sir, whither hastenest thou?
What is this thy toilsome course?"
The man opened his mouth,
Saying to En[kidu]:
"Into the meeting-house he has [intruded],
Which is set aside for the people,
for wedlock.
On the city he has heaped desilement,
Imposing strange things on the hapless city.
For the king of broad-marted Uruk
The drum of the people is free for nuptial choice.
For Gilgamesh, king of broad-marted Uruk,
The drum of the people is free
For nuptial choice,
That with lawful wives he might mate!
He is the first,
The husband comes after.
By the counsel of the gods it has (so) been ordained.
With the cutting of his umbilical cord
It was decreed for him!
At the words of the man
His face grew pale.

[Enkidu] walks [in front]
And the lass behind him.
When he entered broad-marted Uruk,
The populace gathered about him.
As he stopped in the street
Of broad-marted Uruk,
The people were gathered,
Saying about him:
"He is like Gilgamesh to a hair!
Though shorter in stature,
He is stronger of bone.
[...]
[He is the strongest in the land]; strength he has.
The milk of wild creatures
He was wont to suck.
In Uruk (there will be) a constant (clatter of) arms."
The nobles rejoiced:
"A hero has appeared
For the man of proper mien!
For Gilgamesh, the godlike,
His equal has come forth."
For Ishhara[2] the bed
Is laid out.

Gilgamesh and Enkidu

As Gilgamesh bent the knee—
His foot on the ground—
His fury abated

Enkidu to him

Raised up above men is thy head.
Kingship over the people
Enlil has granted thee!"

Tablet III
OLD BABYLONIAN VERSION
(From fragments of text it is clear that Gilgamesh has decided on an expedition against monstrous Huwa-wa [Assyrian Ḫumbabā], who lives in the Cedar Forest. Enkidu tries to dissuade him, but Gilgamesh's determination is apparent from the following lines of the Old Babylonian Version:)

Gilgamesh opened his mouth, (3)
Saying to [Enkidu]:
'Who, my friend can scale he[aven]?
Only the gods [live] forever under the sun.
As for mankind, numbered are their days;
Whatever they achieve is but the wind!
Even here thou art afraid of death.
What of thy heroic might?
Let me go then before thee,
Let thy mouth call to me, 'Advance, fear not!!
Should I fall, I shall have made me a name:
'Gilgamesh'—they will say—against fierce Huwawa
Has fallen!' (Long) after
My offspring has been born in my house,"

(From the fragmentary text of Tablets IV and V it is clear that the hazardous expedition of the two heroes against Ḫuwawa is successful.)

Tablet VI

He " washed his grimy hair, polished his weapons,
The braid of his hair he shook out against his back.
He cast off his soiled (things), put on his clean ones,
Wrapped a fringed cloak about and fastened a sash.
When Gilgamesh had put on his tiara,
Glorious Ishtar raised an eye at the beauty of Gilgamesh:
"Come, Gilgamesh, be thou (my) lover!
Do but grant me of thy fruit.
Thou shalt be my husband and I will be thy wife.
I will harness for thee a chariot of lapis and gold, (10)
Whose wheels are gold and whose horns are brass.
Thou shalt have storm-demons to hitch on for mighty mules.
In the fragrance of cedars thou shalt enter our house.
When our house thou enterest,
Threshold (and) dais shall kiss thy feet!
Humbled before thee shall be kings, lords, and princes!
The yield of hills and plain they shall bring thee as tribute.
Thy goats shall cast triplets, thy sheep twins,

Gilgamesh.
Thy he-ass in lading shall surpass thy mule.
Thy chariot horses shall be famed for racing,
[Thine ox] under yoke shall not have a rival." (20)

[Gilgamesh] opened his mouth to speak,
[Saying] to glorious Ishtar:
["What am I to give] thee, that I may take thee in marriage?
[Should I give oil] for the body, and clothing?
[Should I give] bread and victuals?
[... ] food fit for divinity,
[... ] drink fit for royalty.

(mutilated) (29-31)

[... if I] take thee in marriage?
[Thou art but a brazier which goes out ] in the cold;
A back door [which does not] keep out blast and wind-storm;
A palace which crushes the valiant [ ... ];
A turban whose cover [ ... ];
Pitch which [soils] its bearers;
A waterskin which [soaks through] its bearer;
Limestone which [springs] the stone rampart;
Jasper [which ... ] enemy land;
A shoe which [pinches the foot ] of its owner!
Which lover didst thou love forever?
Which of thy shepherds pleased [thee for all time]?
Come, and I will na[me for thee] thy lovers:

Of ...[ ... ]...
For Tammuz, the lover of thy youth,
Thou hast ordained wailing year after year.
Having loved the dappled shepherd-bird,
Thou smotest him, breaking his wing.
In the groves he sits, crying 'My wing!' (50)
Then thou lovedst a lion, perfect in strength;
Seven pits and seven thou didst dig for him.
Then a stallion thou lovedst, famed in battle;
The whip, the spur, and the lash thou ordainedst fo him.
Thou decreedst for him to gallop seven leagues,
Thou decreedst for him the muddied to drink;
For his mother, Sillii, thou ordainedst wailing!
Then thou lovedst the keeper of the herd,

^ Akk. kappi, plainly a word play on the cry of the bird
Who ash-cakes ever did heap up for thee, Daily slaughtered kids for thee; Yet thou smolest him, turning him into a wolf, So that his own herd boys drive him off, And his dogs bite his thighs.

Then thou lovedst Ishullanu, thy father's gardener, Who baskets of dates ever did bring to thee, And daily did brighten thy table.

Thine eyes raised at him, thou didest go to him: 'O my Ishullanu, let us taste of thy vigor! Put forth thy "hand" and touch our "modesty"!' Ishullanu said to thee:

'What dost thou want with me? Has my mother not baked, have I not eaten, That I should taste the food of stench and foulness? Does reed-work afford cover against the cold?'

As thou didest hear this [his talk], Thou smolest him and turn[edst] him into a mole. Thou placedst him in the midst of . . . [ . . . ]; He cannot go up . . . nor can he come down . . . If thou shouldst love me, thou wouldst [treat me] like them."

When Ishtar heard this, Ishtar was enraged and [mounted] to heaven. Forth went Ishtar before Anu, her father, To Antum, her mother, she went and [said]: "My father, Gilgamesh has heaped insults upon me! Gilgamesh has recounted my stinking deeds, My stench and my foulness."

Anu opened his mouth to speak, Saying to glorious Ishtar: "But surely, thou didest invite . . . , And so Gilgamesh has recounted thy stinking deeds, Thy stench and [thy] foulness."

Ishtar opened her mouth to speak, Saying to [Anu, her father]: "My father, make me the Bull of Heaven [that he smite Gilgamesh], [And] fill Gil[gamesh . . . ]! If thou [dost not make] me [the Bull of Heaven], I will smash [the doors of the nether world], I will [ . . . ],

1 This appears to be a proverbial expression.
I will [raise up the dead eating (and) alive],
So that the dead shall outnumber the living!” (100)

Anu [opened his mouth to speak],
Saying [to glorious Ishtar]:
“[If I do what] thou askest [of me],
[There will be] seven years of (barren) husks.
Hast thou gathered [grain for the people]?
Hast thou grown grass [for the beasts]?”

[Ishtar opened her mouth] to speak,
[Saying to A]nu, her father:
“[Grain for the people] I have stored,
[Grass for the beasts] I have provided.
[If there should be seven] years of husks,
[I have gathered [grain for the people],
[I have grown] grass [for the beasts].” (110)

(Lines 114-28 are too fragmentary for translation. It is plain, however, that Anu did Ishtar’s bidding, for the Bull comes down and kills hundreds of men with his first two snorts.)

With [his] third snort [he sprang] at Enkidu.
Enkidu parried his onslaught. (130)
Up leaped Enkidu, seizing the Bull of Heaven by the horns.
The Bull of Heaven hurled [his] foam in [his] face,
Brushed him with the thick of his tail.

Enkidu opened his mouth to speak,
Saying [to Gilgamesh]:
“My friend, we have gloried [ . . . ].”

(Lines 137-51 mutilated, but the course of the battle is made plain by the following:)

Between neck and horns [he thrust] his sword. (152)
When they had slain the Bull, they tore out his heart,
Placing it before Shamash.
They drew back and did homage before Shamash.
The two brothers sat down.

Then Ishtar mounted the wall of ramparted Uruk,
Sprang on the battlements, uttering a curse:
“Woe unto Gilgamesh because he insulted me
By slaying the Bull of Heaven!”
When Enkidu heard this speech of Ishtar,
He tore loose the right thigh of the Bull of Heaven
And tossed it in her face:
"Could I but get thee, like unto him
I would do unto thee.
His entrails I would hang at thy side!"
(Thereupon) Ishtar assembled the votaries,
The (pleasure-)lasses and the (temple-)harlots.
Over the right thigh of the Bull of Heaven she set up a wait.
But Gilgamesh called the craftsmen, the armorers,
All (of them).
The artisans admire the thickness of his horns:
Each is cast from thirty minas of lapis;
The coating on each is two fingers (thick);
Six measures of oil, the capacity of the two,
He offered as ointment to his god, Lugalbanda.
He brought (them) and hung them in his princely bedchamber.

In the Euphrates they washed their hands,
They embraced each other as they went on,
Riding through the market-street of Uruk.
The people of Uruk are gathered to gaze [upon them].
Gilgamesh to the lyre maids [of Uruk]
Says (these) words:
"Who is most splendid among the heroes?
Who is most glorious among men?"
"Gilgamesh is most splendid among the heroes, Gilgamesh is most glorious among men."

(mutilated)

Gilgamesh in his palace holds a celebration.
Down lie the heroes on their beds of night.
Also Enkidu lies down, a dream beholding.
Up rose Enkidu to relate his dream,
Saying to his friend:
"My friend, why are the great gods in council?"

Tablet VII

The first two columns of this tablet, Enkidu's dream, are missing in the Assyrian Version.
"[...]... Then daylight came."
[And] Enkidu answered Gilgamesh:

1 The context calls clearly for musicians or singers, not servant girls.
"[He]ar the dream which I had last night:
Anu, Enlil, Ea, and heavenly Shamash
[Were in council].
And Anu said to Enlil:
'Because the Bull of Heaven they have slain, and Huwawa
They have slain, therefore'—said Anu—'the one of them
Who stripped the mountains of the cedar [Must die!]'
But Enlil said: 'Enkidu must die;
Gilgamesh, however, shall not die!' (10)

Then heavenly Shamash answered valiant Enlil:
'Was it not at my command
That they slew the Bull of Heaven and Huwawa?
Should now innocent
Enkidu die?' But Enlil turned
In anger to heavenly Shamash; 'Because, much like
One of their comrades, thou didst daily go down to them.'"
Enkidu lay down (ill) before Gilgamesh.
And as his tears were streaming down, (he said):
"O my brother, my dear brother! Me they would Clear at the expense of my brother!"
Furthermore:
"Must I by the spirit (of the dead)
Sit down, at the spirit's door,
Never again [to behold] my dear brother with (mine)
eyes?"
(The remainder is lost. In a deathbed review of his life, Enkidu seems to bemoan the events that had led up to this sorry state, cursing the successive steps in his fated life. One of his curses, preserved in an Assyrian fragment, is directed against the gate that lamed his hand.)
Enkidu [ . . . ] lifted up [his eyes], (36)
Speaking with the door as though [it were human]:
"Thou door of the woods, uncom[prehending],
Not endowed with understanding!
At twenty leagues away I found choice
thy wood,
(Long) before I beheld the lofty cedar.
There is no counterpart of thy wood [in the land].
Six dozen cubits is thy height, two dozen thy breadth
[ . . . ].

1 Referring to Gilgamesh.
Thy pole, thy pole-ferrule, and thy pole-knob [...].

A master-craftsman in Nippur built thee [...].

Had I known, O door, that this [would come to pass]
And that this [thy] beauty [...],
I would have lifted the axe, would have [...],
I would have set a reed frame upon [thee]!"

(A long gap follows. When the text sets in again, Enkidu—continuing his bitter survey—invokes the curse of Shamash upon the hunter.)

(iii)

"[...] destroy his wealth, diminish his power!
May his [way be repugnant] before thee.
May [the beasts he would trap] escape from before him.
[Let not] the hunter at[tain] the fullness of his heart!"
[Then his heart] prompted (him) to curse [the harlot-lass:

"Come, lass, I will decree (thy) [fa]te,
[A fa]te that shall not end for all eternity!
[I will] curse thee with a great curse,
[An oath,] whose curses shall soon overtake thee.
[...] surfeit of thy charms.

(mutilated) (10)

[...] shall cast into thy house.
[...] the road shall be thy dwelling place,
[The shadow of the wall] shall be thy station,
[...] thy feet,
[The besotted and the thirsty shall smite] thy cheek!

(mutilated) (20)

Because me [thou hast... ]
And because [...] upon me."
When Shamash heard [these words] of his mouth,
Forthwith he called down to him [from] heaven:
"Why, O Enkidu, cursest thou the harlot-lass,
Who made thee eat food fit for divinity,
And gave thee to drink wine fit for royalty,
Who clothed thee with noble garments,
And made thee have fair Gilgamesh for a comrade?
And has (not) now Gilgamesh, thy bosom friend,
Made thee lie on a noble couch?
He has made thee lie on a couch of honor,
Has placed thee on the seat of ease, the seat at the left,
That [the princes] of the earth may kiss thy feet!
He will make Uruk's people weep over thee (and) lament,
Will fill [joyful] people with woe over thee.
And, when thou art gone,
He will his body with uncut hair invest,
Will don a lion skin and roam over the steppe."

[When] Enkidu [heard] the words of valiant Shamash,
[... ] his vexed heart grew quiet.

(Short break. Relenting, Enkidu changes his curse into a blessing. He addresses himself once again to the girl:)

(iv)

"May [ ... ] return to thy palace,
[Kings, princes, and nobles shall love thee].
[None shall on account of thee] smite his thigh.¹
[Over thee shall the old man] shake his beard.
[ ... the young] shall unloose his girdle.
[ ... ] carnelian, lapis, and gold.
[May he be paid] back who defiled thee,
[May his home be emptied], his heaped-up storehouse.
[To the presence of] the gods [the priest] shall let thee enter,
[On thy account] shall be forsaken the wife,
(though) a mother of seven." (10)

[ ... Enki]du, whose mood is bitter,
[ ... ] lies down all alone.
That night [he pours out] his feelings to his friend:

We who [have conquered] all things, scaled
[the mountains],
Who seized the Bull [and slew him],
Brought affliction on Hubaba, who [dwelled in the Cedar Forest]!
What, now, is this sleep that has laid hold [on thee]?
Thou art benighted and canst not hear [me]!"
But he lifts not up [his eyes];
He touched his heart, but it does not beat.
Then he veiled (his) friend like a bride [. . .],
Storming over him like a lion,
Like a lioness deprived of [her] whelps.
He paces back and forth before [the couch],
Pulling out (his hair) and strewing [it . . .],
Tearing off and flinging down (his) finery,
[As though] unc[lean]!
With the first glow [of dawn], Gil[gamesh . . .].
Then Gilgamesh issued a call to the land: "O smith,
[. . .],
Coppersmith, goldsmith, lapidary! Make my friend
[. . .]!"
[Then] he fashioned a statue for his friend,
The friend whose stature [. . .]:
"[. . .], of lapis is thy breast, of gold thy body, [. . .]."

(III)

"On a couch [of honor I made thee lie],
I placed thee [on the seat of ease, the seat at the left],
That the princes of the earth [might kiss thy feet]!
Over thee I will make [Uruk's] people weep (and) [lament],
Joyful people [I will fill with woe over thee].
And, when thou art gone,
I shall invest my body with uncut hair,
And, clad in a [lion] skin, [I shall roam over the steppe]!"

With the first glow of dawn, [Gilgamesh]
Loosened his band [...].

(The remainder of the tablet is missing or too fragmentary for translation, with the exception of the following lines:)

(v)
With the first glow of dawn, Gilgamesh fashioned [...],
Brought out a large table of elammaqu wood,
Filled with honey a bowl of carnelian,
Filled with curds a bowl of lapis,
[...] he decorated and exposed to the sun.

_Tablet IX_

(i)
For Enkidu, his friend, Gilgamesh
Weeps bitterly, as he ranges over the steppe:
"When I die, shall I not be like Enkidu?
Woe has entered my belly.
Fearing death, I roam over the steppe.
To Utnapishtim," Ubar-Tutu’s son,
I have taken the road to proceed in all haste.
When arriving by night at mountain passes,
I saw lions and grew afraid,
I lifted my head to Sin" to pray.
To [...] of the gods went out my orisons.
[...] preserve thou me!"
[As at night] he lay, he awoke from a dream.
[There were ... ], rejoicing in life.
He raised his axe in his hand,
He drew [the dirk] from his belt.
Like an ar[row] he descended among them.
He smote [them] and hacked away at them.

(The remainder of Tablet IX gives the adventures of Gilgamesh as he passes successfully the darkness of the mountain range of Mashu guarded by scorpion-men.)

1 Mesopotamian hero of the Flood—Sumerian Ziusudra and Greek Xisouthros.

2 The moon-god.
Tablet X

This tablet, which traces further the successive stages in Gilgamesh's quest of immortality, happens to be represented by as many as four separate versions. Two of these, however, the Hittite and Hurrian, are extant only in fragments that are too slight for connected translation. Substantial portions are available, on the other hand, in the Old Babylonian and Assyrian recensions.

OLD BABYLONIAN VERSION

(i)

(top broken away)

"[......]...
With their skins [he clothes himself], as he eats flesh.
[......]... O Gilgamesh, which has not happened.
As long as my wind drives the waters."
Shamash was distraught, as he betook himself to him;
He says to Gilgamesh:
"Gilgamesh, whither rovest thou?
The life thou pursuest thou shalt not find."
Gilgamesh says to him, to valiant Shamash:
"After marching (and) roving over the steppe,
Must I lay my head in the heart of the earth
That I may sleep through all the years?
Let mine eyes behold the sun
That I may have my fill of the light!
Darkness withdraws when there is enough light.
May one who indeed is dead behold yet the radiance of the sun!"

(ii)

(Beginning lost. Gilgamesh is addressing Siduri, the ale-wife:)

"He who with me underwent all hard[ships]—
Enkidu, whom I loved dearly,
Who with me underwent all hardships—
Has now gone to the fate of mankind!
Day and night I have wept over him.
I would not give him up for burial—
In case my friend should rise at my plaint—
Seven days and seven nights,
Until a worm fell out of his nose.
Since his passing I have not found life,
I have roamed like a hunter in the midst of the steppe.
O ale-wife, now that I have seen thy face,
Let me not see the death which I ever dread."
The ale-wife said to him, to Gilgamesh:

(iii)

“Gilgamesh, whither rovest thou?
The life thou pursuest thou shalt not find.
When the gods created mankind,
Death for mankind they set aside,
Life in their own hands retaining.
Thou, Gilgamesh, let full be thy belly,
Make thou merry by day and by night.
Of each day make thou a feast of rejoicing,
Day and night dance thou and play!
Let thy garments be sparkling fresh,
Thy head be washed; bathe thou in water.
Pay heed to the little one that holds on to thy hand,
Let thy spouse delight in thy bosom!
For this is the task of [mankind]!”

(remainder of the column broken away)

(iv)

In his wrath he shatters them. 1
When he returned, he goes up to him. 2
Sursunabu 3 his eyes behold.
Sursunabu says to him, to Gilgamesh:
“Tell me, thou, what is thy name?
I am Sursunabu, (he) of Utanapishtim 4 the Faraway.”
Gilgamesh said to him, to Sursunabu:
“As for me, Gilgamesh is my name,
Who have come from Uruk-Eanna,
Who have traversed the mountains,
A distant journey, as the sun rises.
O Sursunabu, now that I have seen thy face,
Show me Utanapishtim the Faraway.”
Sursunabu [says] to him, to Gilgamesh.

(remainder broken away)

(The Assyrian Version of Tablet X gives the episodes of the meetings with Siduri and with Sursunabu|Urshanabi in the Assyrian Version| and an account of the crossing of the Waters of Death to the abode of Utanapishtim. The concluding part of Tablet X follows:)

1 Apparently the mysterious “Stone Things.”  2 To the boatman.
3 The Urshanabi of the Assyrian Version.  4 Assyrian Utanapishtim.
Gilgamesh also said to him, to Utnapishtim:

"That now I might come and behold Utnapishtim,
Whom they call the Faraway,
I ranged and wandered over all the lands,
I traversed difficult mountains,
I crossed all the seas!
My face was not sated with sweet sleep,
I fretted myself with wakefulness;
I filled my joints with misery.
I had not reached the ale-wife's house,
When my clothing was used up.
[I sl[e]w bear, hyena, lion, panther,
Tiger, stag, (and) ibex—
The wild beasts and creeping things of the steppe.
Their [flesh] I ate and their skins I wr[apped about me]."

(The remainder of this column is too mutilated for translation. The beginning of the last column is broken away, except for the conclusion of the sage observations of Utnapishtim.)

"Do we build a house for ever?
Do we seal (contracts) for ever?"
Eccles. 9:6
Do brothers divide shares for ever?
Does hatred persist for ever in [the land]?
Eccles. 1:11; 1:14;
Does the river for ever raise up (and) bring on floods?
The dragon-fly (leaves) (its) shell
Eccles. 2:16; 9:5; 3:19
That its face might (but) glance at the face of the sun.
Since the days of yore there has been no [permanence];
The resting and the dead, how alike [they are]!
Do they not compose a picture of death,
The commoner and the noble,
Once they are near to [their fate]?
The Anunnaki, the great gods, foregather;
Mammetum, maker of fate, with them the fate decrees:
Death and life they determine.
(But) of death, its days are not revealed."

Tablet XI

Gilgamesh said to him, to Utnapishtim the Faraway:
"As I look upon thee, Utnapishtim,
Thy features are not strange; even as I art thou.
Thou art not strange at all; even as I art thou.
My heart had regarded thee as resolved to do battle,
[Yet] thou liest indolent upon thy back!
[Tell me,] how joinedst thou the Assembly of the gods,
In thy quest of life?"

Utnapishtim said to him, to Gilgamesh:
"I will reveal to thee, Gilgamesh, a hidden matter
And a secret of the gods will I tell thee: (10)
Shurippak—a city which thou knowest,
[(And) which on Euphrates' [banks] is situate—
That city was ancient, (as were) the gods within it,
When their heart led the great gods to produce the flood.
[There] were Anu, their father,
Valiant Enlil, their counselor,
Ninurta, their assistant,
Ennuge, their irrigator."
Ninigiku-Ea was also present with them;
Their words he repeats to the reed-hut:
'Reed-hut, reed-hut! Wall, wall!
Reed-hut, hearken! Wall, reflect!
Man of Shuruppak, son of Ubar-Tutu,
Tear down (this) house, build a ship!
Give up possessions, seek thou life.
Forswear (worldly) goods and keep the soul alive!
Aboard the ship take thou the seed of all living things.
The ship that thou shalt build,
Her dimensions shall be to measure. (20)
Equal shall be her width and her length.
Like the Apsu thou shalt ceil her."

I understood, and I said to Ea, my lord:
"[Behold], my lord, what thou hast thus ordered,
I will be honored to carry out.
[But what] shall I answer the city, the people and elders?"

Ea opened his mouth to speak,
Saying to me, his servant:
"Thou shalt then thus speak unto them:
"I have learned that Enlil is hostile to me,
So that I cannot reside in your city,
Nor set my foot in Enlil's territory.
To the Deep I will therefore go down,
To dwell with my lord Ea.
[But upon] you he will shower down abundance,
[The choicest] birds, the rarest fishes.

² Presumably, the dwelling place of Utnapishtim. Ea addresses him through the barrier of the wall.
[The land shall have its fill] of harvest riches.
[He who at dusk orders] the husk-greens,
Will shower down upon you a rain of wheat."

With the first glow of dawn,
The land was gathered [about me].
  (too fragmentary for translation)  (50-53)
The little ones [carr] ied bitumen,
While the grown ones brought [all else] that was needful.
On the fifth day I laid her framework.
One (whole) acre was her floor space,
  Ten dozen cubits the height of each of her walls,
Ten dozen cubits each edge of the square deck.²
I laid out the contours (and) joined her together.
I provided her with six decks,
Dividing her (thus) into seven parts.
Her floor plan I divided into nine parts.
I hammered water-plugs into her.
I saw to the punting-poles and laid in supplies.
Six 'sar'²² (measures) of bitumen I poured into the furnace,
Three sar of asphalt [I also] poured inside.
Three sar of oil the basket-bearers carried,
Aside from the one sar of oil which the calking consumed,
And the two sar of oil [which] the boatman stowed away.
Bullocks I slaughtered for the [people],
And I killed sheep every day.
Must, red wine, oil, and white wine
[I gave the] workmen [to drink], as though river water,
That they might feast as on New Year’s Day.
I op[ened ... ] ointment, applying (it) to my hand.
[On the sev] enth [day] the ship was completed.
[The launching] was very difficult,
So that they had to shift the floor planks above and below,
[Until] two-thirds of [the structure] [had g]one [into the water].

¹ As has long been recognized, these lines feature word plays in that both kukku and kibbit may designate either food or misfortune; Wily Ea plays on this ambiguity: To the populace, the statement would be a promise of prosperity; to Utanshiputtum it would signalize the impending deluge.
² The ship was thus an exact cube.
³ The number 3,600. If the measure understood with it was the suru (seah), each suru designated about 3,000 gallons.
[Whatever I had] I laded upon her;
Whatever I had of silver I laded upon her;
Whatever I [had] of gold I laded upon her;
Whatever I had of all the living beings I [laded] upon her.

All my family and kin I made go aboard the ship.

The beasts of the field, the wild creatures of the field,
All the craftsmen I made go aboard.
Shamash had set for me a stated time:
'When he who orders unease at night,
Will shower down a rain of blight,
Board thou the ship and batten up the entrance!'
That stated time had arrived;
'He who orders unease at night, showers down a rain of blight.'

I watched the appearance of the weather.
The weather was awesome to behold.
I boarded the ship and batten up the entrance.
To batten down the (whole) ship, to Puzur-Amurri,
the boatman,
I handed over the structure together with its contents.

With the first glow of dawn,
A black cloud rose up from the horizon.
Inside it Adad thunders,
While Shullat and Hanish go in front,
Moving as heralds over hill and plain.
Erragal tears out the posts;
Forth comes Ninurta and causes the dikes to follow.
The Anunnaki lift up the torches,
Setting the land ablaze with their glare.
Consternation over Adad reaches to the heavens,
Who turned to blackness all that had been light.
[The wide] land was shattered like [a pot]!
For one day the south-storm [blew],
Gathering speed as it blew, [submerging the mountains],
Overtaking the [people] like a battle.
No one can see his fellow,
Nor can the people be recognized from heaven.
The gods were frightened by the deluge,
And, shrinking back, they ascended to the heaven of Anu.

1 Two heralds.  2 Nergal, god of the nether world.  3 Of the world dam.  4 The highest heaven in the Mesopotamian conception of the cosmos.
The gods cowered like dogs
Crouched against the outer wall.
Ishtar cried out like a woman in travail,
The sweet-voiced mistress of the [gods] moans aloud:
'The olden days are alas turned to clay,
Because I bespoke evil in the Assembly of the gods.
How could I bespeak evil in the Assembly of the gods,
Ordering battle for the destruction of my people,
When it is I myself who give birth to my people!
Like the spawn of the fishes they fill the sea!'
The Anunnaki gods weep with her,
The gods, all humbled, sit and weep,
Their lips drawn tight, [ ... ] one and all.
Six days and [six] nights
Blows the flood wind, as the south-storm sweeps the land.
When the seventh day arrived,
The flood (-carrying) south-storm subsided in the battle,
Which it had fought like an army.
The sea grew quiet, the tempest was still, the flood ceased.
I looked at the weather: stillness had set in,
And all of mankind had returned to clay.
The landscape was as level as a flat roof.
I opened a hatch, and light fell upon my face.
Bowing low, I sat and wept,
Tears running down on my face.
I looked about for coast lines in the expanse of the sea:
In each of fourteen (-regions)
There emerged a region (-mountain).
On Mount Nisir the ship came to a halt.
Mount Nisir held the ship fast,
Allowing no motion.
One day, a second day, Mount Nisir held the ship fast,
Allowing no motion.
A third day, a fourth day, Mount Nisir held the ship fast,
Allowing no motion.
A fifth, and a sixth (day), Mount Nisir held the ship fast,
Allowing no motion.
When the seventh day arrived,
I sent forth and set free a dove.
Gen. 8:8-10
The dove went forth, but came back;
Since no resting-place for it was visible, she turned round.
Then I sent forth and set free a swallow.
The swallow went forth, but came back;
Since no resting-place for it was visible, she turned round.

Gen. 8:7
Then I sent forth and set free a raven.
The raven went forth and, seeing that the waters had diminished,
He eats, circles, caws, and turns not round.
Then I let out (all) to the four winds
And offered a sacrifice.

Gen. 8:19-20
I poured out a libation on the top of the mountain.
Seven and seven cult-vessels I set up,
Upon their pot-stands I heaped cane, cedarwood, and myrtle.

Gen. 8:21
The gods smelled the savor,
The gods smelled the sweet savor,
The gods crowded like flies about the sacrificer.
When at length as the great goddess ⁵ arrived,
She lifted up the great jewels which Anu had fashioned to her liking:
‘Ye gods here, as surely as this lapis
Upon my neck I shall not forget,
I shall be mindful of these days, forgetting (them) never.
Let the gods come to the offering;
(But) let not Enlil come to the offering,
For he, unreasoning, brought on the deluge
And my people consigned to destruction.’
When at length as Enlil arrived,
And saw the ship, Enlil was wroth,
He was filled with wrath over the Igigi gods: ⁶
‘Has some living soul escaped?’
Ninurta opened his mouth to speak,
Saying to valiant Enlil:
‘Who, other than Ea, can devise plans? ⁷
It is Ea alone who knows every matter.’
Ea opened his mouth to speak,
Saying to valiant Enlil:
‘Thou wisest of gods, thou hero,
How couldst thou, unreasoning, bring on the deluge?’

¹ Ishtar.
² The heavenly gods.
⁵ An allusion to one of the common epithets of Ea.
On the sinner impose his sin,
   On the transgressor impose his transgression!
(Yet) be lenient, lest he be cut off,
Be patient, lest he be dis[lodged]!
Instead of thy bringing on the deluge,
   Would that a lion had risen up to diminish mankind!
Instead of thy bringing on the deluge,
   Would that a wolf had risen up to diminish mankind!
Instead of thy bringing on the deluge,
   Would that a famine had risen up to [lay low] mankind!
Instead of thy bringing on the deluge,
   Would that pestilence had risen up to smite down mankind!
It was not I who disclosed the secret of the great gods.
I let Atrahasis 1 see a dream,
   And he perceived the secret of the gods.
Now then take counsel in regard to him!
Thereupon Enlil went aboard the ship.
Holding me by the hand, he took me aboard,
   He took my wife aboard and made (her) kneel by my side.
Standing between us, he touched our foreheads to bless us:
   'Hitherto Utnapishtim has been but human.
Henceforth Utnapishtim and his wife shall be like unto us gods.
Utnapishtim shall reside far away, at the mouth of the rivers!'
Thus they took me and made me reside far away,
   At the mouth of the rivers.
But now, who will for thy sake call the gods to Assembly
That the life which thou sekest thou mayest find?
Up, lie not down to sleep
   For six days and seven nights."
As he sits there on his haunches,
   Sleep fans him like the whirlwind.
Utnapishtim says to her, to his spouse:
   "Behold this hero who seeks life!
Sleep fans him like a mist."
His spouse says to him, to Utnapishtim the Faraway:
   "Touch him that the man may awake,

---
1 "Exceeding Wise," an epithet of Utnapishtim.
That he may return safe on the way whence he came,
That through the gate by which he left he may return to his land."

Utnapishtim says to her, to his spouse:

"Since to deceive is human, he will seek to deceive thee."

Up, bake for him wafers, put (them) at his head,
And mark on the wall the days he sleeps."
She baked for him wafers, put (them) at his head,
And marked on the wall the days he slept.
His first wafer is dried out
The second is gone bad, the third is soggy;
The crust of the fourth has turned white;
The fifth has a moldy cast,
The sixth (still) is fresh-colored;
The seventh—just as he touched him the man awoke.

Gilgamesh says to him, to Utnapishtim the Faraway:
"Scarcely had sleep surged over me,
When straightway thou dost touch and rouse me!"

Utnapishtim [says to him], to Gilgamesh:
"[Go], Gilgamesh, count thy wafers, [That the days thou hast slept] may become known to thee:
Thy [first] wafer is dried out,
[The second is gone] bad, the third is soggy;
The crust of the fourth has turned white;
[The fifth] has a moldy cast,
The sixth (still) is fresh-colored.
[The seventh]—at this instant thou hast awakened."

Gilgamesh says to him, to Utnapishtim the Faraway:
"[What then] shall I do, Utnapishtim,
Whither shall I go,
[Now] that the Bereaver has laid hold on my [members]?
In my bedchamber lurks death,
And wherever I set my foot, there is death!"

Utnapishtim [says to him], to Urshanabi, the boatman:
"Urshanabi, may the landing-place not rejoice in thee,
May the place of crossing renounce thee!
To him who wanders on its shore, deny thou its shore!
The man thou hast led (hither), whose body is covered with grime,
The grace of whose members skins have distorted,

3 By asserting that he had not slept at all.
Take him, Urshanabi, and bring him to the washing-place.
Let him wash off his grime in water clean as snow,
Let him cast off his skins, let the sea carry (them) away,
That the fairness of his body may be seen.
Let him renew the band round his head,
Let him put on a cloak to clothe his nakedness,
That he may arrive in his city,
That he may achieve his journey.
Let not (his) cloak have a moldy cast,
Let it be wholly new."
Urshanabi took him and brought him to the washing-place.
He washed off his grime in water clean as snow.
He cast off his skins, the sea carried (them) away,
That the fairness of his body might be seen.
He renewed [the band] round his head,
He put on a cloak to clothe his nakedness,
That he might ar[rive in his city],
That he might achieve his journey.
[The cloak had not a moldy cast, but] was [wholly] new.
Gilgamesh and Urshanabi boarded the boat,
[They launch]ed the boat on the waves (and) they sailed away.
His spouse says to him, to Utnapishtim the Faraway:
"Gilgamesh has come hither, toiling and straining.
What wilt thou give (him) that he may return to his land?"
At that he, Gilgamesh, raised up (his) pole,
To bring the boat nigh to the shore.
Utnapishtim [says] to him, [to] Gilgamesh:
"Gilgamesh, thou hast come hither, toiling and straining.
What shall I give thee that thou mayest return to thy land?
I will disclose, O Gilgamesh, a hidden thing.
And [a secret of the gods I will] tell thee:
This plant, like the buckthorn is [its ... ].
Its thorns will pr[ick thy hands] just as does the rose.
If thy hands obtain the plant, [thou wilt find new life]."
No sooner had Gilgamesh heard this,
Than he opened the _wa[ter-pipe],_
He tied heavy stones [to his feet].
They pulled him down into the deep [and he saw the plant].
He took the plant, though it pr[icked his hands].
He cut the heavy stones [from his feet].
The [s]ea cast him up upon its shore.

Gilgamesh says to him, to Urshanabi, the boatman:
"Urshanabi, this plant is a plant _apart_,
Whereby a man may regain his _life's breath._
I will take it to ramparted Uruk,
Will cause [....] to eat the plant....!
Its name shall be 'Man Becomes Young in Old Age.'
I myself shall eat (it)
And thus return to the state of my youth."
After twenty leagues they broke off a morsel,
After thirty (further) leagues they prepared for the night.
Gilgamesh saw a well whose water was cool.
He went down into it to bathe in the water.
A serpent snuffed the fragrance of the plant;
It came up [from the water] and carried off the plant.
Going back it shed [its] slough.

Thereupon Gilgamesh sits down and weeps,
His tears running down over his face.
[He took the hand] of Urshanabi, the boatman:
"[For] whom, Urshanabi, have my hands toiled?
For whom is being spent the blood of my heart?
I have not obtained a boon for myself.
For the earth-lion have I effected a boon!
And now the tide will bear (it) twenty leagues away!
When I opened the _water-pipe_ and [....] the year,
I found that which has been placed as a sign for me:
I shall withdraw,
And leave the boat on the shore!"

After twenty leagues they broke off a morsel,
After thirty (further) leagues they prepared for the night.

1 Note that the process is one of rejuvenation, not immortality.
2 An allusion to the serpent?
3 The opening of the _ridu_ (normally "pipe, tube," apparently took place in connection with Gilgamesh's dive (cf. also L. 271). But the details remain obscure. In the _Eridu Creation Story_, it, the same term is used, perhaps for a pipe connecting with a source of sweet waters which would nourish the miraculous plant.
When they arrived in ramparted Uruk,
Gilgamesh says to him, to Urshanabi, the boatman:
"Go up, Urshanabi, walk on the ramparts of Uruk.
Inspect the base terrace, examine its brickwork,
If its brickwork is not of burnt brick,
And if the Seven Wise Ones laid not its foundation!
One 'sar' is city, one sar orchards,
One sar margin land; (further) the precinct of the Temple of Ishtar.
Three sar and the precinct comprise Uruk."

(Tablet XII has been omitted from this abridgment, since it is an inorganic appendage to the epic proper.)

A COSMOLOGICAL INCANTATION: THE WORM AND THE TOOTHACHE

Among the incantations which contain cosmological material, one of the best-known attributes toothache to a worm that had obtained the permission of the gods to dwell among the teeth and gums. The present text, which is designated ideographically as an "Incantation against Toothache," dates from Neo-Babylonian times and was published by R. Campbell Thompson in CT, xvii (1903), Pl. 50. But the colophon indicates that the copy had been made from an ancient text. And indeed, the Mari documents of the Old Babylonian period include a tablet with the Akkadian label li-pa-at tu-ul-tim "Toothache Incantation."
The text itself, however, is in Hurrian. But although it cites various deities of the Hurrian pantheon—and is thus clearly religious in nature—the context does not correspond to the Neo-Babylonian legend, to judge from the intelligible portions.

After Anu [had created heaven],
Heaven had created [the earth],
The earth had created the rivers,
The rivers had created the canals,
The canals had created the marsh,
(And) the marsh had created the worm—
The worm went, weeping, before Shamash,
His tears flowing before Ea:
"What wilt thou give for my food?
What wilt thou give me for my sucking?"
"I shall give thee the ripe fig,
(And) the apricot."
"Of what use are they to me, the ripe fig
And the apricot?
Lift me up and among the teeth
And the gums cause me to dwell!
The blood of the tooth I will suck,
And of the gum I will gnaw
Its roots!"

Fix the pin and seize its foot.
Because thou hast said this, O worm,
May Ea smite thee with the might
Of his hand!

This is the instruction to the dentist.

ADAPA

The story of Adapa shares with the Epic of Gilgamesh the motif of man’s squandered opportunity for gaining immortality. It is extant in four fragmentary accounts. The oldest and longest of these (B) comes from the El-Amarna archives (fourteenth century B.C.), whereas the other three (A, C, and D) derive from the library of Ashurbanipal. The order of presentation is contextual, except that C is roughly parallel to parts of B.

[Wis]dom...
His command was indeed...
Wide understanding he had perfected for him to disclose the designs of the land.
To him he had given wisdom; eternal life he had not given him.
In those days, in those years, the sage from Eridu, Ea, created him as the model of men.
The sage—his command no one can vitiate—The capable, the most wise among the Anunnaki is he;
The blameless, the clean of hands, the ointment priest, the observer of rites.
With the bakers he does the baking
With the bakers of Eridu he does the baking;
Bread and water for Eridu daily he provides,
With his clean hand(s) he arranges the offering table,
Without him the table cannot be cleared.
He steers the ship, he does the prescribed fishing for Eridu.
In those days Adapa, the one of Eridu,
While...Ea...upon the couch,
Daily did attend to the sanctuary of Eridu.
At the holy quay, the Quay of the New Moon, he boarded the sailboat;
Then a wind blew thither and his boat drifted;
[With the o]ar he steers his boat
(remainder destroyed)
The south wind blew and submerged him, causing him to go down to the home of the fish: "South wind, [ . . . ] me all thy venom . . . [ . . . ] I will break thy wing!" Just as he had said (this) with his mouth, the wing of the south wind was broken. For seven days the south wind blew not upon the land. Anu calls [to] Ilabrat, his vizier: "Why has the south wind not blown over the land these seven days?"

His vizier, Ilabrat, answered him: "My lord, Adapa, the son of Ea; the wing of the south wind has broken." When Anu heard this speech, he cried, "Mercy!" Rising from his throne: "[Let] them fetch him hither!"

At that, Ea, he who knows what pertains to heaven, took hold of him, Adapa, caused him to wear (his) unkempt, a mourning garb. He made him put on, and gave him (this) advice: "[Adapa], thou art going [before Anu], the king; The road to heaven thou wilt take. When to heaven Thou hast] go[ne up and] hast [approached the gate of Anu], [Tammuz and Gizzida] at the gate of Anu Will be standing. When they see thee, they will [as]k thee: 'Man, for whom dost thou look thus? Adapa, for whom Art thou clad with mourning garb?'

'From our land two gods have disappeared, Hence I am thus.' 'Who are the two gods who from the land Have disappeared?' 'Tammuz and Gizzida.' They will glance at each other and will smile. A good word they Will speak to Anu, (and) Anu's benign face. They will cause to be shown thee. As thou standest before Anu, when they offer thee bread of death,

It should be added that Adapa's purpose was plainly to catch fish for Ea's temple, hence that god's primary interest in Adapa. For the importance of fishing to the temple economy cf. the so-called Weidner Chronicle, which employs this motif as a reason for the rise and fall of dynasties (and, incidentally, mentions Adapa).
Thou shalt not eat (it). When they offer thee water of death,
Thou shalt not drink (it). When they offer thee a garment,
Put (it) on. When they offer thee oil, anoint thyself (therewith).
(This) advice that I have given thee, neglect not; the words
That I have spoken to thee, hold fast!" The messenger
Of Anu arrived there (saying as follows): "Adapa the south wind's Wing has broken, bring him before me!"

He made him take the road to heaven, and to heaven he went up.
When he had ascended to heaven and approached the gate of Anu,
Tammuz and Gizzida were standing at the gate of Anu.
When they saw Adapa, they cried, "Mercy!"
Man, for whom dost thou look thus? Adapa,
For whom art thou clad with mourning garb?"
"Two gods have disappeared from the land, therefore with mourning garb
I am clad." "Who are the two gods who from the land have disappeared?"
"Tammuz and Gizzida." They glanced at each other And smiled. As Adapa before Anu, the king, Drew near and Anu saw him, he called:
"Come now, Adapa, wherefore the south wind’s wing
Didst thou break?" Adapa replied to Anu: "My lord, For the household of my master, in the midst of the sea
I was catching fish. The sea was like a mirror.
But the south wind came blowing and submerged me,
Causing (me) to go down to the home of the fish. In the wrath of my heart
I cursed the [south wind]." Speaking up at [his] side, Tammuz
[And] Gizzida to Anu [a-g]ood word
Addressed. His heart quieted as he was ... "Why did Ea to a worthless human of the heaven
And of the earth the plan disclose,
Rendering him distinguished and making a name for him?

1 Apparently pleased because Adapa mourned their loss.
As for us, what shall we do about him? Bread of life

(60)

Fetch for him and he shall eat (it)." When the bread of life

They brought him, he did not eat; when the water of life

They brought him, he did not drink. When a garment

They brought him, he put (it) on; when oil

They brought him, he anointed himself (therewith).

As Anu looked at him, he laughed at him:

"Come now, Adapa! Why didst thou neither eat nor drink?

Thou shalt not have (eternal) life! Ah, per[ser]se mankind!"

"Ea, my master,

Commanded me: "Thou shalt not eat, thou shalt not drink."

"Take him away and return him to his earth."

DESCENT OF ISHTAR TO THE NETHER WORLD

ANET. 106-109 This myth has as its central theme the detention of the goddess of fertility—Sumerian Inanna, Akkadian Ishtar—in the realm of the dead and her eventual return to the land of the living.
The cuneiform material is extant in Sumerian and Akkadian formulations. The Sumerian version is obviously primary. But although the Semitic version has various points of contact with the older source, it is by no means a mere translation from the Sumerian.

(obverse)

To the Land of no Return, the realm of [Ereshkigal], Ishtar, the daughter of Sin, [set] her mind.
Yea, the daughter of Sin set [her] mind
To the dark house, the abode of Irkal[la],
To the house which none leave who have entered it,
To the road from which there is no way back,

2 Ereshkigal, Queen of the Nether World.
To the house wherein the entrants are bereft of light,
Where dust is their fare and clay their food,
(Where) they see no light, residing in darkness, (Where) they are clothed like birds, with wings
for garments,
(And where) over door and bolt is spread dust.
When Ishtar reached the gate of the Land of no Return,
She said (these) words to the gatekeeper:
"O gatekeeper, open thy gate,
Open thy gate that I may enter!
If thou openest not the gate so that I cannot enter,
I will smash the door, I will shatter the bolt,
I will smash the doorpost, I will move the doors,
I will raise up the dead, eating the living,
So that the dead will outnumber the living."
The gatekeeper opened his mouth to speak,
Saying to exalted Ishtar:
"Stop, my lady, do not throw it down!
I will go to announce thy name to Queen Ereshkigal."
The gatekeeper entered, saying [to] Ereshkigal:
"Behold, thy sister Ishtar is waiting at [the gate],
She who upholds the great festivals,
Who stirs up the deep before Ea, the king."
When Ereshkigal heard this,
Her face turned pale like a cut-down tamarisk,
While her lips turned dark like a bruised
kunīnu-reed,\(^2\)
"What drove her heart to me? What impelled her spirit hither?
Lo, should I drink water with the Anunnaki?
Should I eat clay for bread, drink muddied water for beer?
Should I bemoan the men who left their wives behind?
Should I bemoan the maidens who were wrenched from the laps of their lovers?
(Or) should I bemoan the tender little one who was sent off before his time?\(^3\)
Go, gatekeeper, open the gate for her,
Treat her in accordance with the ancient rules."
Forth went the gatekeeper (to) open the door for her:
"Enter, my lady, that Cutha\(^4\) may rejoice over thee, (40)

1 The door.
2 Word play išpar "bruised": išpar-š[a] "her lips."
3 i.e. Ereshkigal would have cause for weeping if all these occupants of the nether world should be liberated by Ishtar.
4 A name of the nether world, the Akkadian city-name Kušu.
That the palace of the Land of no Return may be glad at thy presence."
When the first door he had made her enter,
He stripped* and took away the great crown on her head.
"Why, O gatekeeper, didst thou take the great crown on my head?"
"Enter, my lady, thus are the rules of the Mistress of the Nether World."
When the second gate he had made her enter,
He stripped and took away the pendants on her ears.
"Why, O gatekeeper, didst thou take the pendants on my ears?"
"Enter, my lady, thus are the rules of the Mistress of the Nether World."
When the third gate he had made her enter,
He stripped and took away the chains round her neck.
"Why, O gatekeeper, didst thou take the chains round my neck?"
"Enter, my lady, thus are the rules of the Mistress of the Nether World." (50)
When the fourth gate he had made her enter,
He stripped and took away the ornaments on her breast.
"Why, O gatekeeper, didst thou take the ornaments on my breast?"
"Enter, my lady, thus are the rules of the Mistress of the Nether World."
When the fifth gate he had made her enter,
He stripped and took away the girdle of birthstones on her hips.
"Why, O gatekeeper, didst thou take the girdle of birthstones on my hips?"
"Enter, my lady, thus are the rules of the Mistress of the Nether World."
When the sixth gate he had made her enter,
He stripped and took away the clasps round
her hands and feet.
"Why, O gatekeeper, didst thou take the clasps round
my hands and feet?"
"Enter, my lady, thus are the rules of the Mistress of the Nether World."
When the seventh gate he had made her enter, (60)
He stripped and took away the breechcloth round her body.

"Why, O gatekeeper, didst thou take the breechcloth on my body?"

"Enter, my lady, thus are the rules of the Mistress of the Nether World."

As soon as Ishtar had descended to the Land of no Return, Ereshkigal saw her and burst out at her presence. Ishtar, unreflecting, flew at her. Ereshkigal opened her mouth to speak, saying (these) words to Namtar, her vizier:

"Go, Namtar, lock [her] up [in] my [palace]! Release against her, [against] Ishtar, the sixty mis[eries]: Misery of the eyes [against] her [eyes], Misery of the sides [against] her [sides], Misery of the heart [against] her heart, Misery of the feet [against] her [feet], Misery of the head [against] her head— Against every part of her, against [her whole body]!!"

After Lady Ishtar [had descended to the nether world], The bull springs not upon the cow, [the ass impregnates not the jenny], In the street [the man impregnates not] the maiden. The man lies [in his (own) chamber, the maiden lies on her side],

(reverse)

The countenance of Papsukkal, the vizier of the great gods, Was fallen, his face was [clouded]. He was clad in mourning, long hair he wore. Forth went Papsukkal before Sin his father, weeping, [His] tears flowing before Ea, the king: "Ishtar has gone down to the nether world, she has not come up. Since Ishtar has gone down to the Land of no Return, The bull springs not upon the cow, the ass impregnates not the jenny, In the street the man impregnates not the maiden, The man lies down in his (own) chamber, The maiden lies down on her side."

Ea in his wise heart conceived an image, And created Asushunamir, a eunuch: "Up, Asushunamir, set thy face to the gate of the Land of no Return;
The seven gates of the Land of no Return shall be opened for thee.
Ereshkigal shall see thee and rejoice at thy presence.
When her heart has calmed, her mood is happy,
Let her utter the oath of the great gods,
(Then) lift up thy head, paying mind to the life-water bag:
"Pray, Lady, let them give me the life-water bag
That water therefrom I may drink."
As soon as Ereshkigal heard this,
She smote her thigh, bit her finger:
"Thou didst request of me a thing that should not be requested.
Come, Asushunamir, I will curse thee with a mighty curse!"
The food of the city's gutters shall be thy food,
The sewers of the city shall be thy drink.
The shadow of the wall shall be thy station,
The threshold shall be thy habitation,
The besotted and the thirsty shall smite thy cheek!"
Ereshkigal opened her mouth to speak,
Saying (these) words to Namtar, her vizier:
"Up, Namtar, knock at Egalgina,
Adorn the thresholds with coral-stone,
Bring forth the Anunnaki and seat (them) on thrones of gold,
Sprinkle Ishtar with the water of life and take her from my presence!"
Forth went Namtar, knocked at Egalgina,
Adorned the thresholds with coral-stone,
Brought forth the Anunnaki, seated (them) on thrones of gold,
Sprinkled Ishtar with the water of life and took her from her presence.
When through the first gate he had made her go out,
He returned to her the breechcloth for her body.
When through the second gate he had made her go out,
He returned to her the clasps for her hands and feet.

1 The scheme evidently succeeds as Ereshkigal, distracted by the beauty of Ayúnamir "His Appearance is Brilliant," does not recover until too late.
2 A gesture of annoyance, or derision.
3 Or read "I will decree for thee a fate not to be forgotten,
   A fate will I decree for thee,
   Not to be forgotten throughout eternity."
4 "Palace of Justice."
When through the third gate he had made her go out,
He returned to her the birthstone girdle for her hips.
When through the fourth gate he had made her go out,
He returned to her the ornaments for her breasts.
When through the fifth gate he had made her go out,
He returned to her the chains for her neck.
When through the sixth gate he had made her go out,
He returned to her the pendants for her ears.
When through the seventh gate he had made her go out,
He returned to her the great crown for her head.
“If she does not give thee her ransom price, bring her back.”

As for Tammuz, the lover of her youth,
Wash him with pure water, anoint him with sweet oil;
Clothe him with a red garment, let him play on a flute of lapis.

Let courtesans turn [his] mood.”
[When Belili was string[ing] her jewelry,
[And her] lap was filled with “eye-stones,”
On hearing the sound of her brother, Belili struck the jewelry on [ . . . ]
So that the “eye-stones” filled the [ . . . ], . . .
“My only brother, bring no harm to me!”
On the day when Tammuz comes up to me,
When with him the lapis flute (and) the carnelian ring come up to me,
When with him the wailing men and the wailing women come up to me,
May the dead rise and smell the incense.”

Ezek. 8:14

1 This continuation of Ereshkigal’s instructions appears to be out of place here, as regards the N version. A speaks of the ransom before Ishtar is led away. The mention of Tammuz is likewise startling in this context. There is no indication in the Sumerian version—contrary to earlier assumptions—that Tammuz had gone down to the nether world. The concluding part of the myth, therefore, will remain obscure in its allusions so long as additional material is not available.

THE LEGEND OF SARGON

Sargon, the mighty king, king of Agade, am I.
My mother was a changeling, my father I knew not.
The brother(s) of my father loved the hills.
My city is Azupiranu, which is situated on the banks of the Euphrates.
My changeling mother conceived me, in secret she bore me.

Exod. 2:3

1 There is no indication as to whether the term refers to a change in the social, religious, or national status.
She set me in a basket of rushies, with bitumen she sealed my lid.

She cast me into the river which rose not (over) me.
The river bore me up and carried me to Akki, the drawer of water.
Akker, the drawer of water lifted me out as he dipped his [w]ater.
Akker, the drawer of water, [took me] as his son (and) reared me.

Akker, the drawer of water, appointed me as his gardener.
While I was a gardener, Ishtar granted me (her) love,
And for four and [ ... ] years I exercised kingship.
The black-headed [people] I ruled, I gov[erned];
Mighty [mountains] with chip-axes of bronze I conquered,
The upper ranges I scaled,
The lower ranges I [trav]ersed,
The sea [lan]ds three times I circled.
Dilmun my [hand] cap[tured],
[To] the great Der I [went up], I [ ... ],

III. A Hittite Myth

TRANSLATOR: ALBRECHT GOETZE

The Telepinus Myth

a. The God’s Anger, His Disappearance and Its Consequences

(The upper third of the tablet, about 20 lines, is broken off. It probably told the reasons for the god’s anger.)

(5) Mist seized the windows, vapor seized the house. In the fireplace the logs were stifled, at the altars the gods were stifled, in the fold the sheep were stifled, in the stable the cattle were stifled. The sheep neglected its lamb, the cow neglected its calf.

(10) Telepinus walked away and took grain, (fertile) breeze, . . . . . . and satiation to the country, the meadow, the steppes. Telepinus went and lost himself in the steppes; fatigue overcame him. So grain (and) spelt thrive no longer. So cattle, sheep and man no longer (15) breed. And even those with young cannot bring them forth.

The vegetation dried up; the trees dried up and would bring forth no fresh shoots. The pastures dried up, the springs dried up. In the land famine arose so that man and gods perished from hunger. The great Sun-god arranged for a feast and invited the thousand gods. They ate, (20) but they did not satisfy their hunger; they drank, but they did not quench their thirst.

b. The Search for the Vanished God

The Storm-god became anxious about Telepinus, his son: “Telepinus, my son, (he said) is not here. He has flown into a rage and taken (with him) every good thing.” The great gods and the lesser gods began to search for Telepinus. The Sun-god sent out the swift Eagle (saying): “Go! Search every high (25) mountain!”

“Search the deep valleys! Search the watery depth!” The Eagle went, but he could not find him. Back to the Sun-god he brought his message: “I could not find him, him, Telepinus, the noble god." The Storm-god said to Hannahannas: "What shall we do? (30) We shall die of hunger." Hannahannas said to the Storm-god: "Do something, O Storm-god! Go! Search for Telepinus thyself!"

The Storm-god began to search for Telepinus. In his city he [knock]s at the gate, but he is not there and opens not. He broke open his bolt and his lock, [but he has no luck], the Storm-god. So he gave up and sat down to rest. Hannahannas (35) sent [out the Bee]:
"Go! Search thou for Telepinus!"

[The Storm-god s]aid [to Hannahannas]: "The great gods (and) the lesser gods have searched for him, but [did not find] him. Shall then this [Bee] go out [and find him]? Its wings are small, it is small itself. Shall they admit that it is greater than they?"

Hannahannas said to the Storm-god: "Enough! It will go (and) find him." Hannahannas sent out the little Bee: "Go! Search thou for Telepinus! When thou find-est him, sting him on his hands (and) his feet! Bring him to his feet! Take wax and wipe his eyes and his feet, purify him and bring him before me!"

The Bee went away and searched ... the streaming rivers, and searched the murmuring springs. The honey within it gave out, [the wax within it] gave out. Then [it found] him in a meadow in the grove at Lihzina.
It stung him on his hands and his feet. It brought him to his feet, it took wax and wiped his eyes (and) his feet, [it purified him] and [ ... ].

[Telepinus ... ] declares: "For my part I had flown into a rage [and walked away. How dare] ye a[rouse me] from my sleep? How dare ye force me to talk when enraged?" He grew [still more infu]riated. [He stopped] the murmuring springs, he diverted the flowing rivers and made them flow over their banks. He [blocked off] the clay pits, he shattered [the windo]ws, he shattered the houses.

He had men perish, he had sheep and cattle perish.
[It came to] pass that the gods [despair]d (asking):
"Wh[y has Te]lepinus become [so infu]riated? [Wh]at shall we do? [What] shall we do?"

Let him [t]ake the spring Hattara on mount Ammuna

1 The name is ideographically written NIN.TU or NART; mother of the gods.
[as ... !] Let him (man) make him move! With the eagle’s wing let him make him move! Let man make him move! With the eagle’s wing [let man make him move]!

(A gap follows in which Kamrusepas, the goddess of magic and healing, is commissioned to pacify Telepinus and to bring him back.)

c. The Ritual

ENTREATY

(The beginning is mutilated.)

(ii) "O Telepinus! [Here lies] sweet and soothing [cedar essence. Just as it is ...], [even so let] the stifled [be set right] again!

"Here [I have] upthrusting sap [with which to purify thee]. (1o) Let it [invigorate] thy heart and thy soul, O Telepinus! Toward the king [turn] in favor!

"Here lies chaff. [Let his heart (and) soul] be segregated [like it]! Here lies an ear [of grain]. Let it attract his heart [(and) his soul]!

"(15) Here lies sesame. [Let his heart (and) his soul] be comforted by it. Here [lie] figs. Just as [figs] are sweet, even so let Telepinus’ heart (and) soul become sweet!

"Just as the olive [holds] oil within it, [as the grape] (20) holds wine within it, so hold thou, Telepinus, in (thy) heart (and thy) soul good feelings [toward the king]!

"Here lies ointment. Let it anoint Telepin[us' heart (and) soul]! Just as malt (and) malt-loaves are harmoniously fused, even so let thy soul be in harmony with the affairs of mankind! [Just as spelt] (25) is clean, even so let Telepinus' soul become clean! [Just as] honey is sweet, as cream is smooth, even so let Telepinus' soul become sweet and even so let him become smooth!

"See, O Telepinus! I have now sprinkled thy ways with fine oil. So walk thou, Telepinus, over these ways that are sprinkled with fine oil! (30) Let sahi wood and happurialai wood be at hand! Let us set thee right, O Telepinus, into whatever state of mind is the right one!"

Telepinus came in his fury. Lightning flashed, it thundered while the dark earth was in turmoil. (35) Kamrusepas saw him. The eagle’s wing made him move out there. It took off him (iii) the rage, it took off him the anger, it took off him [the ire], it took off him the fury.

1 A certain ritual.

KAMRUSEPAS' RITUAL OF PURIFICATION

Kamrusepas tells the gods: "Come ye, O gods! See! Hapantallis is shepherding the Sun-god's sheep. (5) Select ye twelve rams! I want to fix long days for Telepinus. I have taken death, one thousand eyes. I have strewn about the selected sheep of Kamrusepas.

"Over Telepinus I have swung them this way and that. (10) From Telepinus' body I have taken the evil, I have taken the malice. I have taken the rage, I have taken the anger, I have taken the ire, I have taken the fury.

"When Telepinus was angry, his heart (and) his soul were stifled (like) firebrands. (15) Just as they burned these brands, even so let Telepinus' rage, anger, malice (and) fury burn themselves out! Just as [malt] is barren, (as) people do not bring it to the field to use it for seed, (as) people do not make it into bread (or) put it in the storehouse, even so let Telepinus' rage, [anger], (20) malice (and) fury become barren!

"When Telepinus was angry, [his heart (and) his soul] were a burning fire. Just as this fire [is quenched], even so let (his) rage, anger (and) fury [be quenched] too!

"O Telepinus, give up thy rage, [give up] thine anger, (25) give up thy fury! Just as (water in) a pipe flows not upward, even so let Telepinus' [rage, anger (and)] fury not [come] back!

"The gods [were gathered] in assembly under the hatalkešnas tree. For the hatalkešnas tree I have fixed long [years]. (30) All gods are now present, (including) the [Irš]ustayas, the Good-women (and) the Mother-goddesses, the Grain-god, Miyatanzipas, Telepinus, the Patron-god, Hapantaliyas (and) the Patron of the field. For these gods I have fixed long years; I have purified him, [O Telepinus]!

(35) "[ ... ] I have taken the evil [from] Telepinus' body, I have taken away his [rage], [I have taken away] his an[ger], I have taken away his [ire], [I have taken away] his fury, I have taken away his malice, [I have taken away his] ev[il]."

(small gap)

MAN'S RITUAL

(The beginning is lost, but Telepinus is addressed:)
... (When) thou [departedst] from the haltakēšial tree on a summer day, the crop got smutted. (When) the ox departed [with thee], (iv) thou wastedst its shape. (When) the sheep departed with thee, thou wastedst its form. O Telepinus, stop rage, anger, malice (and) fury!

"(When) the Storm-god comes in his wrath, the Storm-god's priest (5) stops him. (When) a pot of food boils over, the (stirring) spoon stops it. Even so let the word of me, the mortal, stop Telepinus' rage, anger, and fury!

"Let Telepinus' rage, anger, malice, (and) fury depart! Let the house let them go, let the interior ... let them go, (10) let the window let them go! In the ... let the interior courtyard let them go, let the gate let them go, let the gateway let them go, let the road of the king let them go! Let it not go to the thriving field, garden (or) grove! Let it go the way of the Sun-god of the nether world!

"The doorkeeper has opened the seven doors, has unlocked the seven bolts. (15) Down in the dark earth there stand bronze cauldrons, their lids are of abaru-metal, their handles of iron. Whatever goes in there comes not out again; it perishes therein. Let them also receive Telepinus' rage, anger, malice (and) fury! Let them not come back!"

d. The God's Home-Coming

(20) Telepinus came home to his house and cared (again) for his land. The mist let go of the windows, the vapor let go of the house. The altars were set right for the gods, the hearth let go of the log. He let the sheep go to the fold, he let the cattle go to the pen. The mother tended her child, the ewe tended her lamb, (25) the cow tended her calf. Also Telepinus tended the king and the queen and provided them with enduring life and vigor.

Telepinus cared for the king. A pole was erected before Telepinus and from this pole the fleece of a sheep was suspended. It signifies fat of the sheep, it signifies grains of corn (and) (30) wine, it signifies cattle (and) sheep, it signifies long years and progeny.

It signifies the lamb's favorable message. It signifies ... . . . . It signifies fruitful breeze. It signifies ... satisfaction....

* Favorable omens when intestines of the sacrificial lamb are inspected.

Poems about Baal and Anath

Both large and small fragments of tablets containing poetic mythological texts in which the leading role is played by the rain- and fertility-god Baal and the next in importance by the warrior-goddess Anath came to light in the French excavations of Ras Shamra-Ugarit in the years 1930, 1931, and 1933, and at least one small fragment (which may be a duplicate of one of the others) in 1929. Because so many letters, words, lines, columns, and probably some whole tablets are missing, not all of the tablets can be declared, with certainty, to be parts of the great epic of Baal and arranged in their proper order within it. However, in the following translations, even small fragments whose pertinence to the larger epic is probable have, for the most part, been included (if only, in a few desperate cases, in the form of sketchy summaries) and assigned tentative positions within it. Tablets whose pertinence to the larger poem is doubtful have been added at the end by way of an appendix.

a. VI AB

Editions: Ch. Virolleaud, La déesse 'Anat (Paris, 1938), pp. 91-103 and the last photograph; C. H. Gordon, Ugaritic Handbook, 11, pp. 189-190, 'nt, pls. ix-x (transliteration only). Studies: A. Herdner, Syria, xxiii (1942-43), 283-285. Owing to the very poor state of preservation, connected translation is possible only for groups of lines which, because they are stereotyped, can be completed with the help of parallels; while just the crucial passages are very doubtful. It seems, however, that El, the head of the pantheon, (1) instructs the craftsman-god Kothar-wa-Khasis to build a palace on his (El's) grounds, the name of the latter being Khurshan-zur-kaš (col. iii), (2) announces that his (eldest? favorite?) son is to be known as El's Beloved Yamm (= Sea) and as Master (cf. iv 15, 20 with II AB ii 34-35, and iv 17 with III AB B 17, 33-34), and (3) perhaps authorizes Yamm to banish Baal from his throne (iii 22-25).

b. III AB C

Editions: Ch. Virolleaud, Syria, xxiv (1944-45), 1-12; C. H. Gordon, Ugaritic Handbook, 11, Text 129. This fragment comprises 24 very mutilated lines from the right-hand column on one of the sides of a tablet with two very broad columns on each side. Such a tablet is the one of whose col. i, III AB B is the lower part, and of whose col. iv, III AB A is the upper part; Virolleaud therefore surmises that III AB C is part of (the lower half of) col. iii of the same tablet. For its content, however, a position between III AB B and III AB A seems strange; so, perhaps, it belongs to a tablet which preceded, and in outward disposition resembled, the tablet of which III AB B-A is a remnant.
In it, El instructs Kothar to build a palace for Yamm. Ashtar complains of not being accorded the like favor.

[... There] he is off on his way
To El of the Sources [of the Floods,
In the midst of the headwaters of the Two Oceans.

He penetrates] E[l]'s field and enters
The [pa]vilion of King [Father Shunem,].
At El's feet he bows] and falls down,
Prostrates himself, doing [him] homage.
(..."... O) Kothar wa-Kha[sis!
Quic[kly bu(ild the h)ouse of Yamm,
[Ere]ct the palace of Judge Nahar.
...

Build the house of Prince Yamm,
[Ere]ct the pala[ce of Judge] Nahar,
In the midst of [...]
Quickly] his [house] shalt thou build,
Quickly eree[t his palace].

...(All that can be made out is that Ashtar is displeased.)
Quoth the Gods' Torch Shapsh,; Raising her voice and [crying:
"Heark]en, I pray thee!
Thy father Bull El favors
Prince Yamm [...].

[Sh]ould thy father Bull [E] hear thee,
He will pull out [the] pillars of thy dwelling!
Yea, overt]urn [the throne of thy] kingship!
Yea, break the sce[pter] of thy dominion!"

Quoth [Ashtar] of the [...]:
"Oh, my father Bull El!
I have no house [like] the gods,
[Nor] court like [the holy on]es.
...

(the rest obscure)

1 One of El's epithets; vocalization uncertain. Some render "Father of Years."
2 The sun-goddess.

c. III AB B-A

(2) Of III AB A: Ch. Virloleaud, Syria, xvi (1935), 29-45, with Pl. xi; H. L. Ginsberg, JPOS, xv (1935), 327-331; Kitbe Ugarit, 73-76; H. Bauer, AKTRSch, Ca. Studies; W. F. Albright, JPOS, xvi (1936), 17-20; T. H. Gaster, Iraq, 4 (1937), 21-23; J. Obermann, JAOS, lxv (1947), 195-208. See the paragraph preceding the translation of III AB C.
... [ ... Quoth] Puissant Baal:
"[May'st thou be driven from the throne of thy kingship,
From the seat of thy dominion!]

[... [ ... ]
Ayamur* upon thy head; [O Yamm;
   Upon thy back Yagrush,†] Judge Nahar.
May [Horon] break; [O Yamm,
   May Horon break] thy head,
Ashtoreth [Name of Baal thy pate.
... ] down may'st thou fall in ... [... ]
... [...]."
[Me]ssengers Yamm doth send.

(Two lines defective and unintelligible.)

"Depart ye, lad[s, don't tarry.
   There now, be off] on your way
Towards the Assembled Body*
   In the midst of the Mount of Lala.
At the feet of El] fall not down,
   Prostrate you not to the Assembled [Body.
Proudly standing] say ye your speech.
And say unto Bull [my] father [El,
   Declare unto the Assembled ] Body:
'Message of Yamm your lord,
   Of your master Judge Nahar].
Surrender the god with a following,
   Him whom the multitudes worship:
Give Baal [to me to lord over],
   Dagon's son whose spoil I'll possess."—
The lads depart, they delay not.
[There, they are off] on their way
   To the midst of the Mount of Lala,
Towards the Assembled Body.
Now, the gods were sitting to e[at],
The holy ones for to dine,
Baal attending upon El.
As soon as the gods espy them,
   Espy the messengers of Yamm,
The envoys of Judge Nahar,
The gods do drop their heads
   Down upon their knees

* Name of a bludgeon, meaning something like "Driver"; see episode (2).
* Name of a bludgeon, meaning "Chaser"; see episode (3).
* Evidently Kothar has already promised Baal the two cudgels which he wields so effectively in episode (2).
* The assembly of the gods.
And on the thrones of their princeship.
Their doth Baal rebuke:
"Why, O gods, have ye dropt
Your head[s] down upon your knees
And on your thrones of princeship?
I see the gods are cowed
With terror of the messengers of Yamm,
Of the envoys of Judge Naha[r].
Lift up, O gods, your heads
From upon your knees,
From upon the thrones of your princeship,
And I'll answer the messengers of Yamm,
The envoys of Judge Nahar."
The gods lift up their heads
From upon their knees,
From upon [their] thrones of prin[ceship].
Then come the messengers of Yamm,
The envoys of Judge Nahar.
At El's feet they do [not] fall down,
Prostrate them not to the Assembled Body.
Prou[dly] standing, [they] say their speech.
Fire, burning fire, doth flash;
A whetted sword [are their e]yes.
They say to Bull his father El:
"Message of Yamm your lord,
Of your master Judge Nahar.
Surrender the god with a following,
etc." (see 18-19)
[Quoth] Bull, his father, El:
"Thy slave is Baal, O Yamm,
Thy slave is Baal [for eve]r,
Dagon's Son is thy captive;
He shall be brought as thy tribute.
For the gods bring [thy gift],
The holy ones are thy tributaries."—
Now, Prince Baa[1] was wroth.
[Seizing [a cudgel] in his hand,
A bludgeon in his right hand,
He [reached] to strike the lads.
[His right hand Ashtore]th seizes,
"How [canst thou strike the messengers of Yamm,
The en]voys of Judge Nahar?"
A messenger ... [

1 Or, perhaps, humble.
... ] a messenger [bears];
Upon his shoulders the words of his lord,
And ... [ ... ]."
But Prince Baal was wroth.
The eudgel in ha[nd he ...]
   He con]fronts the messengers of Yamm,
The [en]voy of Judge Naha[r.

   [Your] ma[ster Judge Nahar]:

(2) III A B A

"...[ho]uses.
To the earth shall fall the strong,
   To the dust the mighty."—
Scarce had the word left[1] her mouth,
   Her speech left her lips,
As she uttered her ... voice
   Under the throne of Prince Yamm,
Quoth Kothar wa-Khasis:
   "I tell thee, O Prince Baal,
   I declare, O Rider of the Clouds.

Ps. 92:9
Now thine enemy, O Baal,
   Now thine enemy wilt thou smite,
   Now wilt thou cut off thine adversary.

Ps. 145:13
Thou’lt take thine eternal kingdom,
   Thine everlasting dominion."
Kothar brings down two clubs
   And gives them names.
   "Thou, thy name is Yagrush (‘Chaser’).
   Yagrush, chase Yamm!
Chase Yamm from his throne,
   [Na]har from his seat of dominion.
Do thou swoop in the hand of Baal,
   Like an eagle between his fingers;
Strike the back of Prince Yamm,
   Between the arms 1 of [J]udge Nahar."
The club swoops in the hand of Baal,
   Like an eagle between his [fi]ngers;
It strikes the back of Prince Yamm,
   Between the arms of Judge Nahar.
Yamm is firm, he is not bowed;
   His joints bend not,
Nor breaks his frame.—

1 I.e. on the back.
Kothar brings down two clubs
And gives them names.

"Thou, thy name is Ayamur ('Driver?).
Ayamur, drive Yamm!"

Drive Yamm from his throne,
Nahar from his seat of dominion.

Do thou swoop in the hand of Baal,
Like an eagle between his fingers;

Strike the pate of Prince Yamm,
Between the eyes of Judge Nahar.

Yamm shall collapse
And fall to the ground."

The club swoops in the hand of Baal,
[Like] an eagle between his fingers;

It strikes the pate of Prince [Yamm],
Between the eyes of Judge Nahar.

Yamm collapses,
He falls to the ground;

His joints bend,
His frame breaks.

Baal would rend, would smash Yamm,
Would annihilate Judge Nahar.

By name Ashtoreth rebukes [him].

"For shame, O Puissant [Baal];
For shame, O Rider of the Clouds!

For our captive is Prince Yamm,
Our captive is Judge Nahar."

As [the word] left [her mouth],
Puissant Baal was ashamed . . .
(The rest is too defective for any meaning to be extracted, except that Yamm seems to say twice "I am dying, Baal will reign." But apparently Yamm does not die, but is only confined to his proper sphere, the seas. Hence there is still talk of him, e.g. at the end of col. ii of episode e.)

d. Fragment b

"... Homage to Lady Asherah of [the Sea],
Obeisance to the Progenitress of the Gods,
(So) [she] will give a house to Baal like the [g]ods',
And a court like [A]sherah's sons'."

Loudly to his lads Baal cries:

"Look ye, Gapn and Ugar sons of Ghulmut,2
'Amamis twain, sons of Zulumat (Zlmt)'."2

1 On the front of the head.
2 Means "darkness." Ghulmut is also known as the name of a goddess.
The stately, win[g]-spreading,...;
Winged ones twain, flock of clouds,
'Neath [ ... ];
Birdlike ones twain, fl[ock] of ... snow.
...
(obliterate beginnings of 5 more lines)

e. II AB

At the beginning, Baal's messengers explain to Anath why a démarche before Asherah is indicated.
...
(some 20 lines missing, 3 obliterated)

But alas!
He cries unto Bull El [his father,
To E] the King [his begetter;
He cries] unto Asherah [her and her children],
To [E]lath [and the band of] her [kindred:
Look, no house has Baal like the gods,
Nor court like the children of Asherah].

The abode of El is the shelter of his son.
The abode of Lady Asherah of the Sea
Is the abode of the perfect brides:
'Tis the dwelling of Padriya daughter of Ar,
The shelter of Talliya(sly) the daughter of Rabb,
(And) the abode of Arsiya (arsy) the daughter of Ya'abdar.\(^a\)

And here's something more I would tell thee:
Just try doing homage to Lady Asherah of the Sea,
Obeisance to the Progenitress of the Gods.
Hayyn\(^b\) would go up to the bellows,
In Khasis' hands would be the tongs,
To melt silver,
To beat out gold.
He'd melt silver by the thousands (of shekels),
Gold he'd melt by the myriads.
He'd melt ... and ...
A gorgeous dais weighing twice ten thousand (shekels),
A gorgeous dais cast in silver,
Coated with a film of gold;
A gorgeous throne resting above
A gorgeous footstool o'erspread with a mat;
A gorgeous couch having a ...
He pours it over with gold;
A gorgeous table which is filled

\(^a\) The three names mean "Flashie (or, Lightningette) daughter of Light, Dewis daughter of Distillation, Earthis daughter of ..." They are Baal's wives or daughters, and Baal is the god of rain and dew and "the Prince, Lord of the Earth."
\(^b\) "Deft," another name of the craftsman-god.
With all manner of game from the foundations of the earth;
Gorgeous bowls shaped like small beasts like those of Amurru,
Stelae shaped like the wild beasts of Yam'an,
Wherein are wild oxen by the myriads.
(The first lines of the following scene perhaps show Asherah, "Lady Asherah of the Sea," presenting an offering of fish to El.)

(ii)

(Some 16 lines entirely missing, then 4 defective and obscure.)

Its skin, the covering of its flesh.
She flings its vestment into the sea,
Both its skins into the deeps.
She puts fire on the brazier,
A pot upon the coals,
(And) propitiates Bull El Benign,
Does obeisance to the Creator of Creatures.—
Lifting up her eyes she beholds.
The advance of Baal Asherah doth espy,
The advance of the Maiden Anath,
The onrush of Yabamat [Liimmim].
Thereat her feet [do stumble];
Her loins [do crack be]hind her,
Her [face breaks out in s]weat [above her].
Bent are the [joints of her loins],
Weakened those of [her] back.

She lifts up her voice and cries:
"Why is Puissant [Ba]al come?
And why the M[a]id[en] Anath?
Have my children slain [each other],
O[r the b]and of my kinsmen [destroyed one another]?"

[The work] of silver Asherah doth espy,
The work of silver and [... ] of gold.
Lady A[sherah] of the Sea rejoices;
Loudly unto her lad [she] doth [cry]:
"Look thou, Deft One, yea [give heed],
O fisherman of Lady Asher[ah of the Sea]."

1 If the translation is correct: rhyme, or vessels having the shape of animals.
2 Of some beast or fish.
3 Apparently, Lady Asherah of the Sea.
4 Because she fears the unexpected visitors bring bad news (cf. Ezek. 21:11-12). This is the standard reaction of a female character to an unexpected visit.
Take a net in thy hand,
A large [seine] on thy two hands.
[Cast it] into El's Beloved [Yamm]\(^1\)
Into the Sea of El Be[nign],
Into the De]ep of El ... [ ... ]. ..."
(Only the beginnings of 37-47 preserved, and no connected sense recoverable.)

(iii)

(about 12 lines missing, 9 lines defective)

C[ome]'s Puissant Baal,
Advances the Rider of the Clouds.

Lo, he takes his stand and cries defiance,
He stands erect and spits
In the midst of the as[sem]bly of the divine beings:

"Ab[omination] has been placed upon my table,
Filth in the cup I drink.

For two [kinds of] banquets Baal hates,
Three the Rider of the Clouds:

A banquet of shamefulness,
A banquet {banquet} of baseness,
And a banquet of handmaids' lewdness.
Yet herein is flagrant shamefulness,
And herein is handmaids' lewdness."——

After this goes Puissant Baal,
Also goes the Maiden Anath.

As they do homage to Lady Asherah of the Sea,
Obeisance to the Progenitress of the Gods,
Quoth Lady Asherah of the Sea:

"Why do ye homage to Lady Asherah of the Sea,
Obeisance to the Progenitress of the Gods?
Have ye done homage to Bull El Benign,
Or obeisance to the Creator of Creatures?"

Quoth the Maiden Anath:

"We do homage to [ch]ee, Lady Asherah of the Sea, [Obei]sance to the Progenitress of the Gods. ..."

(Rest of column badly damaged. It is clear that Asherah makes a feast for her visitors, and it may be inferred that they urge her to intercede for Baal with El, as she does in the next column.)

(iv-v)

(Some 10 lines missing; lines 1-2a too fragmentary to be restored.)

[Loudly unto her lad] Ashe[rah doth cry:

\(^1\) Yamm (= Sea) is apparently still El's Beloved, despite what he went through above, in episode iii AB A.
"Look thou, Qadesh wa-Amrur,
Fisherman of Lady] Asherah of the Sea!
[Saddle a donkey],
Harness a jackass.
[Attach trappings of] silver,
[A housing] of gol[d],
Put on the trappings of [thy] she-asses,"
Qad[esh] wa-Amrur obeys.
He saddles a donkey,
Harnesses a jackass.
He attaches trappings of silver,
A housing of gold,
Puts on the trappings of his she-asses.
Qadesh wa-Amrur embraces
And places Asherah on the donkey's back,
On the beautiful back of the jackass.
Qadesh proceeds to lead,
Amrur is like a star in front;
The Maiden Anath follows,
While Baal leaves for Zaphon's summit.—
There, she is off on her way
Towards El of the Sources of the Two Floods
In the midst of the headwaters of the Two Oceans.
She penetrates El's field and enters
The pavilion of King Father Shunem.
At El's feet she bows and falls down,
Prostrates her and does him reverence.
As soon as El espies her,
He parts his jaws and laughs.
His feet upon the footstool he puts
And doth twiddle his fingers.
He lifts up his voice and [cri]es:
"Why is come Lady Asher[ah of the S]ea?
Why hither the Progenitress of the G[ods]?"
Art thou become hungry and fa[int],
Or art become thirsty and pa[rched]?
Eat, pray, yea drink.
Ea[t] thou from the tables bread;
Drink from the flagons wine,
From the golden gob(lets) blood of vines.
See, El the King's love stirs thee,
Bull's affection arouses thee."
Quoth Lady Asherah of the Sea:
"Thy decree, O El, is wise:
Wisdom with ever-life thy portion."
Thy decree is: our king's Puissant Baal,
   Our sovereign second to none;
All of us must bear his gift,
   All of us [must bear his purse].¹
[But alas!]
He cries unto Bull El his father,
   To [El] the King his begetter;
He cries unto Asherah and her children,
   Elath and the band of her kin[dred]:
Look, no house has Baal like the gods,
   Nor court like the children of Asherah.
The abode of El is the shelter of his son.
The abode of Lady Asherah of the Sea
   Is the abode of the perfect brides;
The abode of Padriya daughter of Ar,
   The shelter of Talliya daughter of Rabb,
   (And) the abode of Arsiya daughter of Ya‘abdar.¹
Quoth the Kindly One El Ben[ign]:
"Am I a slave, an attendant of Asherah?
   Am I a slave, to handle...?
Or is Asherah a handmaid, to make bricks?
   (v)
Let a house be built for Baal like the gods',
   And a court like the children of Asherah’s!"²
Quoth Lady Asherah of the Sea:
"Art great indeed, O El, and wise,
   Thy beard's gray hair instructs thee,
   [... ] to thy breast.
Now, too, the seasons of his rains will Baal observe,
   The seasons of... with snow;
And (he will) peal his thunder in the clouds,
   Flashing his lightnings to the earth.
The house of cedar—let him burn it;
   Yea, the house of brick—remove it.
Be it told to Puissant Baal:
Summon weeds into thy house,
   Herbs into the midst of thy palace.²
The mountains shall bring thee much silver,
   The hills a treasure of gold;
   They'll bring thee god's grandeur aplenty.
So build thou a silver and gold house,
   A house of most pure lapis lazuli."³

¹ Must be tributary to him. But the translation is uncertain.
² This seems—if the sense is correctly guessed—to imply that Baal had some sort of habitation before, but that it was not one worthy of a "raking" god, such as Baal had become by vanquishing Yamm.
The Maiden Anath rejoices,

Stamps with her foot so the earth quakes:

There, she is off on her way,

_Unto Baal upon Zaphon’s summit,_

_O’er a thousand fields, ten thousand acres._

Laughing, the Maiden Anath

_Lifts up her voice and cries:

“Receive, Baal, the glad tidings I bring thee._

_They will build thee a house like thy brethren’s_

_And a court like unto thy kindred’s._

Summon weeds into thy house,

_Herbs* into the midst of thy palace.

The mountains shall bring thee much silver,

_The hills a treasure of gold;_

_They'll bring thee *god's grandeur aplenty._

So build thou a silver and gold house,

_A house of most pure lapis lazuli._

Puissant Baal rejoiced.

He summoned weeds into his house,

_Herbs* into the midst of his palace.

The mountains did bring him much silver,

_The hills a treasure of gold;_

_They brought him *god's grandeur aplenty._

_Then he (se)nt unto Kothar wa-Khasis._

(Direction to the reciter):

_Now turn to the account of the sending of the lads._

After this comes Kothar wa-Khasis.

Before him an ox is set,

_A fatted one at his disposal._

A throne is placed and he’s seated

_To the right of Puissant Baal._

So ate [the gods] and drank.

Then answered _Puiss[ant Baal,_

_Responded the R[;]d[er of the Clouds]:_

_" Quickly, a house, O K[o]thar,_

_Quickly raise up a pal[ace]._

Quickly the house shalt thou build,

_Quickly shalt raise up the pa[lace]_

_In the midst of the fastness of Zaphon._

A thousand fields the house shall cover,

_A myriad of acres the palace._

Quoth Kothar wa-Khasis:

1 No doubt refers to an earlier passage, lost to us, in which Baal dispatched Gaph and Ugar to Kothar. The reciter is directed simply to repeat that passage verbatim here.
"Hearken, O Puissant Baal:
    Give heed, O rider of the Clouds.
A window I'll make in the house,
    A casement within the palace."
But Puissant Baal replied:
"Make not a window in [the house],
    [A casement] within the pal[ace]."
(2 or 3 lines missing?)

(vi)
Quoth Ko[thar wa-Khas]is:
"Thou'lt heed [my words], O Baal."
Again spake Ko[thar wa]-Khasis:
"Hark, pray, Pu[is]sant Baal!
A wi[nd]ow I'll make in the house,
    A casement withi[n the pa]lace."
But Puissa[nt] Baal replied:
"Make not a w[ind]ow in the house,
    A casement withi[n the pa]lace.
Let not [Padriya] daughter of Ar [be seen]
Or T[alliya] daughter of Rabb be espied
By [....] El's Beloved Yammi!"
[....] cried defiance
And spat [....].
Quoth Ko[thar wa-Khasis]:
"Thou'lt heed my words, O Baal."
[As for Baal] his house is built,
    [As for Hadd]' his palace is raised.
They [....] from Lebanon and its trees,
From [Siri] on its precious cedars.
[....] [....] Le]banon and its trees,
    Si[r]ion its precious cedars.
Fire is set to the house,
    Flame to the palace.
Lo, a [d]ay and a second,
    Fire feeds on the house,
    Flame upon the palace:
A third, a fourth day,
    [Fi]re feeds on the house,
    Flam[e] upon the palace.
A fifth, a s[ix]th day,
    Fire feeds [on] the house,
    Flame u[pon] the palace.
There, on the seventh d[ay],

9 Another name of Baal.
The fire dies down in the house,
The fire dies down in the house,
The frame in the palace.
The silver turns into blocks,
The gold is turned into bricks.
Puissant Baal exults:
"My h(ouse) have I builded of silver;
My palace, indeed, of gold."
For (his) house preparations [Baal] makes,
[Preparations] makes Hadd for his palace.
He slaughters both neat [and] small cattle,
Fells bulls [together with] fatlings;
Rams (and) one-year-old calves;
Lambs... kids.
He summons his brethren to his house,
His kin[red] within his palace:
Summons Asherah's seventy children.
He sates the he-lamb gods with w[ine],
He sates the ewe-lamb goddesses [...?]
He sates the bull-gods with w[ine],
He sates the cow-goddesses [...?]
He sates the throne-gods with w[i]ne,
He sates the chair-goddesses [...?]
He sates the gods with jars of wine,
He sates the goddesses with pitchers.
So eat the gods and drink.
They sate them with fatness abundant,
With tender [fat]ling by bounteous knife;¹
While drinking the [wine] from flagoons,
From gold cups the blood of vines.

Isa. 60:16; 66:11
(some 9-10 lines missing)
(vii)

(The first 8 lines are very defective. El's Beloved Yam—see above vi 12—figures in lines 3-4. Since Baal's misgivings about a window are thereupon dispelled—ff.—perhaps Yam is here given his quietus.)

Sixty-six towns he took,
Seventy-seven hamlets;
Eighty (took) Baal of [Zaphon's] summit,
Ninety Baal of the summit.
Baal] dwells in his house,
Baal in the midst of the house.
Quoth Puissant Baal:

¹ Literally: They were sated with sucking of hensat; by milch knife, with fatling's text.
"I will make (one), Kothar, this day;
Kothar, this very hour.
A casement shall be opened in the house,
A window within the palace.

Yea, I'll open rifts in the clouds
At thy word, O Kothar wa-Khasis!

Kothar wa-Khasis laughs,
He lifts up his voice and cries:
"Said I not to thee, Puissant Baal,
'Thou'lt heed my words, O Baal?"—

He opens a casement in the house,
A window within the pa[lace].
Baal op[ens] rifts in [the cloud]s.

Baal gives forth his holy voice,
Baal discharges the ut[erance of his li]ps.

His h[oly] voice [convulses] the earth, ... the mountains quake,
A-tremble are ...

East and west, earth's high places reel.
Baal's enemies take to the woods,
Hadd's foes to the sides of the mountain.

Quoth Puissant Baal:
"Baal's enemies, why do you quake?
Why do you quake ... ?"

Baal's eye seeks out for his hand
When the yew-club swings in his right hand.
So Baal dwells in his house.

"Nor king nor commoner
The earth my dominion shall ...
Tribute I'll send not to Divine Mot;
Not dispatch to El's Darling Ghazir.

Mot calls out in his soul,
The Beloved thinks in his heart,
'I alone will have sway o'er the gods
So that gods and men may feed,
Who satisfies the multitudes of the earth.'"

Aloud unto [his l]ads Baal doth cry:
"Look ye, [Gapn and] Ugar so(ns) of Ghulumat,
["Amami"]s twain, sons of Zulumat
[The stately, wing]-spreading, ... ;
Winged ones twain, flock of clouds,
["Neath ... ;
Birdlike ones twain, flock of ... snow]."

1 God of the rainless season and, apparently, of the nether world.
There now, be off on your way
   Unto the Mount of Targhuzizza,
Unto the Mount of Tharumegi,
   Unto the Ridge of the Loam of the Earth.
Lift the mount on your hands,
   The elevation upon your palms,
And descend to the depth of the earth,
   Be of those who descend into earth.
There now, be off on your way
   Into his city Pit,
Low the throne that he sits on,
   Filth the land of his inheritance.
Yet beware, divine messengers,
   Approach not Divine Mot,
Lest he make you like a lamb in his mouth,
   Ye be crushed like a kid in his gullet.
Even the Gods' Torch Shapsh,
   Who wings over heaven's expanse,
Is in Mot El's Beloved's hand!
From a thousand fields, ten thousand acres,
   To Mot's feet bow and fall down,
Prostrate you and show him honor.
And say unto Divine Mot,
   Declare unto El's Darling Ghazir:
Message of Puissant Baal,
   Work of the Mighty Wa[rrior];
'My house I have builded [of silver,
   My palace, indeed, of gold.]

1 After Yam, this is the next favorite-and-bully of El that Baal has to vanquish. That is logical: first the earth—Baal's domain—must be made safe from the encroachments of the sea, then from the blight of sterility.

2 From a safe distance.

E. V AB

(For the provisional assignment of V AB to this position in the epic and for a translation of the preserved portions of the text, see ANET, pp. 135-138.)
Ps. 74:14; Isa. 27:1
If thou smite Lotan, the serpent slant,
Destroy the serpent tortuous,
Shalyat (Ilyf) of the seven heads,

(two couplets very obscure)

From the tomb of the Godly Mot,
From the pit of El's Belov'd Ghazir,
The gods twain depart, tarry not.

There, they are off on their way
To Baal of the Summit of Zaphon.
Then Gapn and Ugar declare:

"Message of Godly Mot,

2 Also occurs elsewhere in describing some ravenous creature opening its mouth.
3 Apparently a flat loaf of bread with olives, a common meal in ancient and modern times.
4 Said by Baal to Gapn and Ugar. A quotation without an introduction.
Into his city Hamriya,

   His filthy land of inheritance.
They lift up their voice and cry:
"Message of Puissant Son Baal,
   Word of the Powerful Hero:

The Godly Mot rejoices
   [And lifting] his voice he cries:
"How humbled is [ . . . ]."

Straightway Kindly El Benign
Descends from the throne,
Sits on the footstool;

Anath also goes and wanders

Prostrates her and does him honor.
She lifts up her voice and cries:
"Now let Asherah rejoice and her sons,
Elath and the band of her kinsmen;

Loudly El doth cry
To Lady Asherah of the Sea:
"Hark, Lady A[sherah of the S]ea,
Give one of thy s[ons] I'll make king."
Quoth Lady Asherah of the Sea:
"Why, let's make Yadi' Yalhan (yd' ylhm) king."
Answered Kindly One El Benign:
"Too weakly, He can't race with Baal,
Throw jav'lin with Dagon's Son Glory-Crown!"
Replied Lady Asherah of the Sea:
"Well, let's make it Ashtar the Tyrant;

Straightway Ashtar the Tyrant
Goes up to the Fastness of Zaphon
(And) sits on Baal Puissant's throne.
(But) his feet reach not down to the footstool,
Nor his head reaches up to the top.
So Ashtar the Tyrant declares:

Down from the throne of Baal Puissant,
And reigns in El's Earth, all of it. [...]

Responds the Godly Mot:
"What wouldst thou, O Maiden Anath?

A day, even days pass by,
From days unto months.
Then Anath the Lass draws nigh him.
Like the heart of a cow for her calf,
Like the heart of a ewe for her lamb,
So's the heart of Anath for Baal.
She seizes the Godly Mot—
With sword she doth cleave him.
With fan she doth winnow him—

APPENDIX. IV AB + RŠ 319

There exist a large (IV AB) and a very small piece (RŠ 319) of a tablet with three columns of writing on only one side. That they both belong to the same tablet is not certain but very probable. That only one side of the tablet is written on is probably due to the fact that it contained the whole of the composition in question, which was quite short. It has no colophon. It is distinct from the Baal epic which we have been following in the preceding pieces. RŠ 319, which is apparently the missing top right-hand corner of IV AB, contains a graphic account of sexual intercourse between Baal and Anath; and IV AB itself is suggestive of something more than platonic relations between the two. This is entirely at variance with the epic, as everyone will realize who has read the former herself.)

And so she goes up to Arar,
Up to Arar and Zaphon.
In the pleasance, the Mount of Possession,
She cries aloud to Baal:
"Receive, Baal, godly tidings,

Puissant Baal rejoices.

The Tale of Aqhat

The rich epigraphic harvests of the French excavations of 1930 and 1931 at the site of ancient Ugarit included large portions of three tablets, and a possible fragment of a fourth, belonging to an epic about a youth whose name is spelled a-q-h-t and conventionally vocalized Aqhat. The text was at first called the Epic of Daniel, or Danel, for Aqhat’s father; but on the one tablet of which the first line, containing the title of the composition to which the tablet belongs, is preserved, it reads “Pertaining to ‘Aqhat,” and closer study reveals that the text really tells about Daniel only what concerns Aqhat.

Kothar departs for his tent,
Hayyin departs for his tabernacle.
Straightway Daniel the Rapha-man,
Forthwith Ghazir the Harnamiyy-man,
The bow doth [...], upon Aqhat he doth [...].
"The choicest of thy game, O my son,
The choicest of thy game [...],
The game of thy [...]."* (some 12 lines missing)

(Some 19 lines missing. Then come 15 broken lines which tell about a feast and about the warrior-goddess Anath coveting Aqhat’s bow: Aqhat will have been entertaining her tête-à-tête.)
[She lifts up her voice and] cries:
"Hearken, I pray thee, [Aqhat the Youth!]
Ask for silver, and I’ll give it thee;
[For gold, and I’ll be] stow’t on thee;
But give thou thy bow [to me;
Let] Yabamat-Liimmim* take thy darts."
But Aqhat the Youth answers:
"I vow yew trees of Lebanon,
I vow sinews from wild oxen;
I vow horns from mountain goats,
Tendons from the hocks of a bull;
I vow from a cane-forest reeds:
Give (these) to Kothar wa-Khasis.

² Or “from,” if Daniel’s tent is meant rather than Kothar’s.
* Perhaps Daniel here impresses upon his son the duty of offering some of his game to the gods.
* Alternative designation of the Maiden Anath.
He'll make a bow for thee,
Darts for Yabamat-Liimmim."

Then quoth the Maiden Anath:
"Ask for life, O Aqhat the Youth.
Ask for life and I'll give it thee,
For deathlessness, and I'll bestow 't on thee.
I'll make thee count years with Baal,
With the sons of El shalt thou count months."

And Baal when he gives life gives a feast,
Gives a feast to the life-given and bids him drink;

Sings and chants over him,
Sweetly serenade[s] him:
So give I life to Aqhat the Youth."

But Aqhat the Youth answers:
"Fib not to me, O Maiden;
For to a Youth thy fibbing is loathsome."

Further life—how can mortal attain it?
How can mortal attain life enduring?
Glaze will be poured [on] my head,
Plaster upon my pate;
And I'll die as everyone dies,
I too shall assuredly die.

Moreover, this will I say:
My bow is [a weapon for] warriors.
Shall now females [with it] to the chase?"

—[Loudly]ly Anath doth laugh,
While forging [a plot] in her heart:
"Give heed to me, Aqhat the Youth,
Give heed to me for thine own good.

... I'll meet thee in the path of arrogance,
[Encounter thee] in the path of presumption,
Hurl thee down at [my feet and trample] thee,
My darling great big he-man!"—
[She stamps with her fe]et and traverses the earth.

There, [she is off on her w]ay
Towards El of the Source of the Floods
[In the midst of the headwaters] of the Two Oceans.

She penetrates El's field [and enters]
The pavilion of King Father Shunem.
[At El's feet she] bows and falls down,
Prostrates herself, doing him reverence.
She denounces Aqhat the Youth,
   [Damns the child of Dan]iel the Rapha-man.
Quoth [the Maiden Anath,
   Lifting up] her [voice] and crying:
   (In 54-55 only the word "Aqhat" can be made out. A to further 10 lines or so are missing. In them Anath may well have told a cock-and-bull story about the unaccom-modating youth. In any case, El declared he could, or would, do nothing against Aqhat.)
   (colophon on edge of tablet)
   [Dictated by Attani]-puruleni.¹

¹Known from the colophon at the end of the Baal epic to have been chief of priests in the reign of Niqmadd, king of Ugarit, second quarter of the 14th century B.C.

col. iv on the reverse, the surface of the obverse being

[... But the Maiden Anath] [replied]:
"[... ], O El!
   [...], rejoice not.
Re[joice] not [...,
   Exult] not [... .
With] the might [of my] lon[g hand,
   I'll verily smash] thy [pa]te,
Make [thy gray hair] flow [with blood,
   The gray hair of] thy [beard] with gore.
And [call] Aqhat and let him save thee,
The son [of Daniel] and let him deliver thee,
From the hand of the Maiden [Anath]!"
Answered the Kindly One El Be[nign):
"I ween'd, daughter mine, thou wast gentle,
   And goddesses fr[ee from] contumely.
On, then, perverse daughter;
   [Thou'llt ta]ke whatsoever thou wilt.
Thou'llt compass [whatever thou] list:
   Who hinders thee will be crushed."—
   [The Maid]en Anath [rejoices].
There, she is off [on her way
   Towards A]qhat the Youth,
   O'er thousand fi[elds, ten thousand a]gres.
Now laughs the Maiden [Anath,
   And lifts up] her voice and cries:
"Oh, hearken but, Aqhat the Youth,
Thou'rt my brother, and I [thy sister]..."

(Lines 25-35 too damaged to yield anything but the probable general sense that Anath offers to show Aqhat a particularly good place to hunt in, namely, the environs of the home-town of Yatpan [ypn], on whom see further on. Probably in the additional 20 lines of this column and in the whole of cols. ii-iii, which are missing altogether, the twain betook them thither; Aqhat had good luck, and Anath left him for a while.)

(iv)

(some 20 lines missing, 4 lines fragmentary)

The Maiden Anath [departs].
[There, she is off on her way]
Towards Yatpan [the Drunken] Soldier.
[She lifts up her voice] and cries:
(The sense of her imperfectly preserved utterance has not yet been determined, except that it shows that Yatpan dwelt in "the city of Abelim, Abelim the city of Prince Yarikh [ = Moon].")

Quoth Yatpan [the Drunken Soldier]:

"Hearken, O Maiden Anath.
Wouldst thou slay him [as his bow],
Slay him for his darts,
Him ma[ke live again]?
The darling Youth has set meat and [drink].
He is left in the fields and... [ ... ]."

Quoth the Maiden Anath:
"Give heed, Yatp, and [I'll tell] thee.
I'll make thee like a vulture in my girdle,
Like a swift flier in my pouch.
[As] Aqhat [sits] to eat,
The son of Daniel to [dine],
[Over him] vultures will soar,
[A flock of swift fliers will coast.
'Mong the vultures will I be soaring;
Above Aqhat will I pose thee.
Strike him twice on the crown,
Thrice above the ear;
Pour out his blood like sap,
Like juice to his knees.
Let his breath escape like wind,
His soul like vapor,

---

1 Aqhat. 2 Hypocoristion of, or mistake for, Yatpan.
Like smoke from his nostrils {from nostrils}. 30
His vigor! I will revive."
—She takes Yatpan the Drunken Soldier,
Makes him like a vulture in her girdle,
Like a swift flier in her pouch.
As Aqhat sits to eat,
The son of Daniel to dine,
Over him vulture[s] soar,
A flock of swift flier[s] coasts.
[Among] the vultures soars Anath;
Above [Aqhat] she poses him.
He smites him twice [on the crown],
Thrice above the ear;
Pour[rs out] his blood [like] sap,
Like juice to his knees.
His breath escapes like wind,
His soul [like vapor],
Like smoke [from his nostrils].
Anath, [seeing] his vigor extinguished—
The vigor of] Aqhat—doth weep.
"Woe! [Would] I could heal [thy corse]!
"Twas but for [thy bow I slew thee,
"Twas but for] thy darts.
But thou, would thou didst [ive.
... and perished ... [. . .]."

AQHT C
(i)

(In the first 13 lines, defective in various degrees, it is only clear that Anath figures there. She is apparently speaking; it is not known to whom.)

I smote him but for his bow,
I smote him for his darts.
So his bow has been given to me.
But through his death...
The [fruits of summer are withered,
The ear [in] its husk."
Straightway Daniel the Rapha-man,
Forthwith Ghazir [the Harna]miyy-[man],
Is upright, [sitting before the g]ate,
Under [a mighty tree on the threshing floor,
Judging] the cause [of the widow,
Adjudicating] the case [of the fatherless.
...]
(lines 25-28 almost entirely missing)
[Lift]ing her eyes she beholds:
[... ] on the threshing floors dries up;
[... ] droops;
Blasted are the buds [...].
O'er her father's house vultures are soaring
A flock of swift fliers is coasting.
Paghat weeps in her heart,
Cries in her inward parts.
She rends the garment of Daniel the Rapha-man,
The vest(ment) of Ghazir the Harnamiyy-man. 8
Straightway Daniel the Rapha-man,
... a cloud in the heat of the season;
... a cloud raining upon the figs,
Dew distilling upon the grapes. 9
"Seven years shall Baal fail,
Eight the Rider of the Clouds.
No dew,
No rain;
No welling-up of the deep, 9
No sweetness of Baal's voice. 9
For rent
Is the garment of Daniel the Rapha-man,
The vestment of Ghazir [the Harnamiyy-man]."—
Loudly to h[is] daughter he doth cry:

(ii)
"Hearken, Paghat who observes the wat[er],
Who studies the dew from the drip,
Who knows the course of the stars. 6
Saddle a donkey, harness a jackass.
Attach my trappings of silver,
My golden housing."—
She obeys, Paghat who observes the water,
Who studies the [dew [from the drip] 1,
Who knows the course of the stars. 1 1
See, she saddles a donkey;
See, she harnesses a ja[ck]ass.
See, she lifts up her father,
Places him on the donkey's back,

8 Daniel's daughter Paghat.
9 Because she realizes the blight upon the land must be due to the murder of some innocent person. She has the gift of divination; see below.
1 In Syria rain sometimes falls in September.
1 Through springs; What Daniel here either predicts or wishes, David wishes for Gilboa, the scene of Saul and Jonathan's death in battle.
7 Baal is the god of rain and thunder.
7 Apparently forms of weather-wisdom bordering on divination.
On the comely back of the jackass,—
Yadinêl1 turns to the vegetable-patch;
He sees a stalk in the vegetable-patch;
Seeing a stalk in the seedbeds,
He embraces the stalk and kisses it:
"Ah, if it may be, stalk,
Let the stalk grow in the vegetable-patch;
Let it grow in the beds of the plants.
May the hand of Aqhat the Youth gather thee,
Deposit thee in the granary."—
Yadinê[l] turns to the grainfields;
In the grainfield he sees a corn-ear;
Seeing an ear in the unwatered land,
He embraces the ear and kisses it:
"Ah, if it may be, corn-ear,
Let the corn-ear grow in the unwatered land;
Let it grow in the beds of the plants.
May the hand of Aqhat the Youth gather thee,
Deposit thee in the granary."—
Scarce hath the word left his mouth,
His speech left his lips,
When he lifts up his eyes and they behold:2
(Lines 77-89 rather mutilated and obscure. The gist of them is that somebody finds out what has happened to Aqhat; either because Paghat sees two supernatural beings act it out in dumb show, or because two attendants of Daniel hear the tale from the dying boy.)
[. . . .] they come.
They lift up [their] voice, [and cry]:
"Hearken, O Daniel the Rapha-man!
Aqhat the Youth is dead.
The Maiden Anath [has caused
His breath to escape] like [wind],
His soul like vapor."
Daniel's legs] tremble.
Abo[ve, his face sweats;
Behind, he is broken] in the loins.
The joints of his loins are bent],
Weakened [those of his back].
He lifts up his voice] and cri[es:
"Cursed be] the slayer [of my son].

1 Apparently variant of "Daniel."
2 Or "as she (Paghat) lifts up her eyes, she beholds."
3 He is overcome with dismay.
Lift[ing up his eyes he beholds:]

... vultures...

(iii)

He lifts up his voice] and cries:

"The vultures' wings may Baal bre(ak),
May Ba[al] br[eak the pinions of them]."

Let them fall down at my feet.

I'll spl[it their bellies and] gaze.

An there be fat,

An the[re be] bone,

I'll weep and inter it,

Lay't in the hollows of the earl' th'-ghosts.'

Scarce hath the word left his mouth,

The vultures' wings Baal doth break,

Baal doth break the pinions of them.

They do fall down at his feet,

He splits their bellies a[nd gazes]:

No fat is there,

No bone.

He lifts up his voice and cries:

"The vultures' wings may Baal mend,
May (Baal) mend the pinions of them.
Vultures, flutter and fly."

Lifting his eyes, he sees;

Beholds Hargab, the vultures' father.

He lifts up his voice and cries:

"The wings of Har[ga]b may Baal bre(ak),
May Baal br[eak] ak the pinions of [him]."

And let him fall down at my feet.

I'll split [his] b[elly] and gaze.

An there be fat,

An there be [bone],

I'll weep and inter it,

Lay't in the ho[llo] ws of [the earth-ghosts]."

[Scarce hath the word left his mouth],

Hargab's wings Baal doth [br] eak,

Baal doth break the pinions of him.

He doth fall down at his feet.

So he splits his belly and gazes:

No fat is there,

No bone.
He lifts up [his] voice and cries:
"The wings of Hargab may Baal [mend,
      May Ba]al mend the pinions of him.
Hargab, may'st flutter and fly."—
Lifting his eyes he sees,
Beholds Samal (sml), the vultures' mother.
He lifts up his voice and cries:
"The wings of Samal may Baal break,
      May Baal break the [pi]nions of her.
Let her fall down at my feet.
I'll split her belly and gaze.
An there be fat,
      An there be bone,
I'll weep and inter it,
      Lay't in the hollows of the earth-ghosts."
Scarce hath the word [left] his mouth,
His speech left his lips,
Samal's wings [Ba]a[l doth break],
Baal doth break the pinions of her.
She doth fa[ll down at] his feet.
So he splits her belly and gazes.
There is fat,
      There is bone.
Taking them for Aqhat he (we)eps,
      Weeps and inters him.
He inters him in . . . , in . . . ,
      Then lifts up his voice and cries:
"The wings of the vultures may Baal break,
      May Baal break the pinions of them,
An they fly over the grave of my son,
Rousing him from his sleep.”—
Qiru-mayim1 the king doth curse:
"Woe to thee, O Qiru-mayim,
O[n] which rests the blood-guilt of Aqhat the Youth!
. . . the dwellers of the house of El;
Now, tomorrow, and for evermore,
   From now unto all generations!"
Again he waves the staff of his hand,
   And comes to Marurat-taghuullal-banir.2
He lifts up his voice and cries:
"Woe to thee, Marurat-taghuullal-banir,
On which rests the blood-guilt of Aqhat the Youth!

1 Perhaps "Water-Sources." In any case a locality near the scene of the murder.
2 Perhaps "Blessed One Harnessed with a Yoke."
Thy root grow not in the earth;
In uprooter's hand droop thy head—

Now, tomorrow, and for evermore,
From now unto all generations!"

_Again he waves_ the staff of his hand,

(iv)

And comes to the city of Abelim,
Abelim the city of Prince Yarikh.

He lifts up his voice and cries:
"Woe to thee, city of Abelim,
On which rests the blood-guilt of Aqhat the Youth!

May Baal make thee blind
From now for evermore,
From now unto all generations!"

_Again he waves_ the staff of his hand.
Daniel goes to his house,
To his palace Daniel betakes him.

Into his palace come weeping-women,
Wailing-women into his court _pszgm gr._

He weeps for Aqhat the Youth,
Cries for the child, does Daniel the Rapha-man,

From days to months, from months to years,
Until seven years,

He weeps for Aqhat the Youth,
Cr[ie]s for the child, does Daniel the [Rapha]-man.

But after seven years,

[Daniel] the Rapha-[man] speaks up,
Ghazir [the Harnamiyy-man] makes answer.

[He] lifts up his voice and cries:
"De[part], weeping-women, from my pala[ce];
Wailing-women, from my court _pszgm gr._"

He ta[kes] a sacrifice for the gods,
Offers up a _clan-offering_ to heaven,
The _clan-offering_ of Harnamiyy to the stars.

(three and one-half lines mutilated)

Quoth Paghat who observes the _flowing_ water:

"Father has sacrificed to the gods,
Has offered up a _clan-offering_ to heaven,
The _clan-offering_ of Harnamiyy to the stars.

Do thou bless me, so I'll go blessed;
Beatify me, so I'll go beatified.

I'll slay the slayer of my brother,
[Destroy] the [de]stroyer of my [si]bling."

1 The actual home of the murderer; see B i end and B iv.
2 It has been suggested that this is the proper name of Daniel's court.
[Dani]e[1] the Ra[p]ha-man makes answer:
"With life-breath shall be quickened [Paghat],
She who observes the water,
Who studies the dew from the drip,
Who knows the courses of the stars.
With life-breath she is invigorated.
She'll slay the slayer [of her brother],
Destroy the destroyer of [her] sibling."

... in the sea she bat[hes],
And stains herself red with murex,
She emerges, dons a youth's raiment,
Puts a k[nife] in her sheath,
A sword she puts in her scabbard,
And o'er all dons woman's garb.

At the rising of Gods' Torch Shapsh, Paghat ...

At the set[ting] of Gods' Torch Shapsh,
Paghat arriv[es] at the tents.
Word [is b]rought to Yat[pan]:
"Our hired woman has entered thy fields,
[... ] has entered the t(e)nts."
And Yatpan the Drunken Soldier makes answer:
"Take her and let her give me wine to drink.
[Let her place] the cup in my hand,
The goblet in my right hand."
Paghat [t]akes and gives him drink:
P[laces the cup] in his hand,
The goblet in his right hand.

Then spake Yat[pa]n the Drunken [Sold]ier:
"The hand that slew [Aqha]t the Youth
Can slay thousands of foes."

(Two and one-half lines obscure, except that Paghat's "heart is like a serpent's," i.e. filled with fury.)
A second time she gives the mixture to him to drink,
Gives the [mi]xt[ure] to drink (Direction to the reciter, along the edge to the left of 172-186:) Here one proceeds to tell about the daughter.
(The story, continuing on one or more missing tablets, no doubt went on to relate that [a] Paghat killed Yatpan while he lay unconscious in the arms of Bacchus, and [b] between El's pity and Anath's remorse some modus was found for restoring Aqhat to his father, perhaps only for half—the fertile half—of the year.
The familiar Adonis-Tammuz theme.)

THE LAWS OF ESHNUNNA

TRANSLATOR: ALBRECHT GOETZE

Texts: Iraq Museum 51059 and 52614 excavated at Tell Abu Harmal¹ near Baghdad by the Iraq Directorate of Antiquities in Pre-Hammurabi layers.

1: 1 kor of barley is (priced) at 1 shekel of silver; 3 qa of "best oil" are (priced) at 1 shekel of silver; 1 seah (and) 2 qa of sesame oil are (priced) at 1 shekel of silver; 1 seah (and) 5 qa of lard are (priced) at 1 shekel of silver; 4 seah of "river oil" are (priced) at 1 shekel of silver; 6 minas of wool are (priced) at 1 shekel of silver; 2 kor of salt are (priced) at 1 shekel of silver; 1 kor . . . is (priced) at 1 shekel of silver; 3 minas of copper are (priced) at 1 shekel of silver; 2 minas of refined copper are (priced) at 1 shekel of silver.

2: 1 qa of sesame oil ša nisḫātim—its (value in) barley is 3 seah; 1 qa of lard ša nisḫātim—its (value in) barley is 2 seah and 5 qa; 1 qa of "river oil" ša nisḫātim—its (value in) barley is 8 qa.

3: The hire for a wagon together with its oxen and its driver is 1 pan (and) 4 seah of barley. If it is (paid in) silver, the hire is one third of a shekel. He shall drive it the whole day.

4: The hire for a boat is 2 qa per kor (of capacity), 1 seah 1 qa is the hire for the boatman. He shall drive it the whole day.

5: If the boatman is negligent and causes the sinking of the boat, he shall pay in full for everything the sinking of which he caused.

6: If a man . . .² takes possession of a boat (which is) not his, he shall pay 10 shekels of silver.

7: The wages of a harvester are 2 seah of barley; if they are (paid in) silver, his wages are 12 grain.

8: The wages of winnowers are 1 seah of barley.

¹ Abu Harmal formed part of the kingdom of Eshmunna—the Diyala region east of Baghdad—which flourished between the downfall of the Third Dynasty of Ur (about 2000 B.C.) and the irruption of Hammurabi's empire. Eshmunna was one of the numerous Amurrite-controlled states of the period. The city of Eshmunna itself is located at Tell Asmar which was excavated by the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago.
² Possibly "(who finds himself) in great peril."
9: Should a man pay 1 shekel of silver to a hired man for harvesting—if he (the hired man) does not place himself at his disposal and does not complete for him the harvest work everywhere, he shall pay 10 shekels of silver. Should he have received 1 seah (and) 5 qa (of barley) as wages and leave the rations of [barley], oil (and) cloth shall also be refunded.

10: The hire for a donkey is 1 seah of barley, and the wages for its driver are 1 seah of barley. He shall drive it the whole day.

11: The wages of a hired man are 1 shekel of silver; his provender is 1 pan of barley. He shall work for one month.

12: A man who is caught in the field of a muskēnum in the crop during daytime, shall pay 10 shekels of silver. He who is caught in the crop [at night], shall die, he shall not get away alive.

13: A man who is caught in the house of a muskēnum, in the house, during daytime, shall pay 10 shekels of silver. He who is caught in the house at night, shall die, he shall not get away alive.

14: The fee of a . . .—should he bring 5 shekels of silver the fee is 1 shekel of silver; should he bring 10 shekels of silver the fee is 2 shekels of silver.

15: The tamkarrum and the sabītum shall not receive silver, barley, wool (or) sesame oil from a slave or a slave-girl as an investment.

16: To a coparcener or a slave a mortgage cannot be furnished.

17: Should the son of a man bring bride-money to the house of (his) father-in-law—, if one of the two deceases, the money shall revert to its owner.

18: If he takes her (the girl) and she enters his house, but afterward the young woman should decease, he (the husband) can not obtain refunded that which he brought (to his father-in-law), but will retain the excess (in) his (hand).

18A: Per 1 shekel (of silver) there will accrue ½ shekel and 6 grain as interest; per 1 kor (of barley) there will accrue 1 pan and 4 seah as interest.

1The muskēnum is a member of a social class which at Eshmunna seems to be closely connected with the palace or the temple.
2The word must denote some kind of “money-lender” or “merchant.”
3This official “barley suffer” who has a state monopoly on certain commercial transactions.
4The woman to whom trade in liquor is entrusted.
19: The man who gives (a loan) in terms of his retake shall make (the debtor) pay on the threshing floor.

20: If a man gives a loan . . . expressing the value of the silver in barley, he shall at harvest time receive the barley and its interest, 1 pan (and) 4 (?) seah per kor.

21: If a man gives silver (as a loan) at face value, he shall receive the silver and its interest, one sixth (of a shekel) and [6 grain] per shekel.

22: If a man has no claim against a (other) man, but (nevertheless) distresses the (other) man's slave-girl, the owner of the slave-girl shall [declare under oath: “Thou hast no claim against me” and he shall pay (him) silver in full compensation for the slave-girl.

23: If a man has no claim against a (other) man, but (nevertheless) distresses the (other) man's slave-girl, detains the distrainee in his house and causes (her) death, he shall give two slave-girls to the owner of the slave-girl as a replacement.

24: If he has no claim against him, but (nevertheless) distresses the wife of a muškēnum (or) the child of a muškēnum and causes (their) death, it is a capital offence. The distrainer who distressed shall die.

25: If a man calls at the house of (his) father-in-law, and his father-in-law accepts him in servitude, but (nevertheless) gives his daughter to [another man], the father of the girl shall refund the bride-money which he received twofold.

26: If a man gives bride-money for a (other) man's daughter, but another man seizes her forcibly without asking the permission of her father and her mother and deprives her of her virginity, it is a capital offence and he shall die.

27: If a man takes a (other) man's daughter without asking the permission of her father and her mother and concludes no formal marriage contract with her father and her mother, even though she may live in his house for a year, she is not a housewife.

28: On the other hand, if he concludes a formal contract with her father and her mother and cohabits with her, she is a housewife. When she is caught with a (other) man, she shall die, she shall not get away alive.

29: If a man has been made prisoner during a raid or an invasion or (if) he has been carried off forcibly and [stayed in] a foreign [country] for a [long] time, (and if) another man has taken his wife and she has born him a son—when he returns, he shall [get] his wife back.

30: If a man hates his town and his lord and becomes a fugitive, (and if) another man takes his wife—when he returns, he shall have no right to claim his wife.

31: If a man deprives another man's slave-girl of her virginity, he shall pay one-third of a mina of silver; the slave-girl remains the property of her owner.

32: If a man gives his son (away) for having (him) nursed and brought up, but does not give (the nurse) rations of barley, oil (and) wool for three years, he shall pay (her) to minas (of silver) for bringing up his son and shall take back his son.

33: If a slave-girl by subterfuge gives her child to a(nother) man's daughter, (if) its lord sees it when it has become older, he may seize it and take it back.

34: If a slave-girl of the palace gives her son or her daughter to a mushēnum for bringing (him/her) up, the palace may take back the son or the daughter whom she gave.

35: Also the adoptant of the child of a slave-girl of the palace shall recompense the palace with its equivalent.

36: If a man gives property of his as a deposit to . . . and if the property he gives disappears without that the house was burglarized, the sippu1 broken down (or) the window forced, he (the depositary) will replace his (the depositor's) property.

37: If the man's (the depositary's) house either collapses or is burglarized and together with the (property of the) deposit(or) which he gave him loss on the part of the owner of the house is incurred, the owner of the house shall swear him an oath in the gate of Tishpak2 (saying): "Together with your property my property was lost; I have done nothing improper or fraudulent." If he swears him (such an oath), he shall have no claim against him.

38: If one of several brothers wants to sell his share (in a property common to them) and his brother wants to buy it, he shall pay . . . 3

39: If a man is hard up and sells his house, the owner of the house shall (be entitled to) redeem (it) whenever the purchaser (re)sells it.

The Code of Hammurabi

TRANSLATOR: THEOPHILE J. MEEK

Hammurabi (also spelled Hammurapi) was the sixth of eleven kings in the Old Babylonian (Amorite) Dynasty. He ruled for 43 years, from 1728 to 1686 according to the most recent calculations. The date-formula for his second year, "The year he enacted the law of the land," indicates that he promulgated his famous lawcode at the very beginning of his reign, but the copy which we have could not have been written so early, because the Prologue refers to events much later than this. Our copy was written on a diorite stela, topped by a bas-relief showing Hammurabi in the act of receiving the commission to write the lawbook from the god of justice, the sun-god Shamash. The stela was carried off to the old Elamite capital, Susa (the Shushan of Esther and Daniel), by some Elamite raiders (apparently Shutruk-Nahhunte, about 1207-1171 B.C.) as a trophy of war.
It was discovered there by French archaeologists in the winter of 1901-1902 and was carried off by them to the Louvre in Paris as a trophy of archaeology. All the laws from col. vii 77 to the end of the obverse (from the end of §65 to the beginning of §100) were chiseled off by the Elamites, but these have been preserved in large part on other copies of the Code.

The Laws

1: If a seignior accursed another seignior and brought a charge of murder against him, but has not proved it, his accuser shall be put to death.

2: If a seignior brought a charge of sorcery against another seignior, but has not proved it, the one against whom the charge of sorcery was brought, upon going to the river, shall throw himself into the river, and if the river has then overpowered him, his accuser shall take over his estate; if the river has shown that seignior to be innocent and he has accordingly come forth safe, the one who brought the charge of sorcery against him shall be put to death, while the one who threw himself into the river shall take over the estate of his accuser.

3: If a seignior came forward with false testimony in a case, and has not proved the word which he spoke, if that case was a case involving life, that seignior shall be put to death.

4: If he came forward with (false) testimony concerning grain or money, he shall bear the penalty of that case.

5: If a judge gave a judgment, rendered a decision, deposited a sealed document, but later has altered his judgment, they shall prove that that judge altered the judgment which he gave and he shall pay twelvefold the claim which holds in that case; furthermore, they shall expel him in the assembly from his seat of judgment and he shall never again sit with the judges in a case.

6: If a seignior stole the property of church or state, that seignior shall be put to death; also the one who received the stolen goods from his hand shall be put to death.

1 seignior seems to be used in at least three senses: (1) sometimes to indicate a man of the higher class, a noble; (2) sometimes a free man of any class, high or low; and (3) occasionally a man of any class, from king to slave. I follow the ambiguity of the original and use the rather general term "seignior," as employed in Italian and Spanish, to indicate any free man of standing.

2 The river (the Euphrates) as judge in the case was regarded as god.
7: If a seignior has purchased or he received for safe-keeping either silver or gold or a male slave or a female slave or an ox or a sheep or an ass or any sort of thing from the hand of a seignior’s son or a seignior’s slave without witnesses and contracts, since that seignior is a thief, he shall be put to death.

8: If a seignior stole either an ox or a sheep or an ass or a pig or a boat, if it belonged to the church (or) if it belonged to the state, he shall make thirtyfold restitution; if it belonged to a private citizen, he shall make good tenfold. If the thief does not have sufficient to make restitution, he shall be put to death.

9: When a seignior, (some of) whose property was lost, has found his lost property in the possession of another seignior, if the seignior in whose possession the lost property was found has declared, “A seller sold (it) to me; I made the purchase in the presence of witnesses,” and the owner of the lost property in turn has declared, “I will produce witnesses attesting to my lost property”; the purchaser having then produced the seller who made the sale to him and the witnesses in whose presence he made the purchase, and the owner of the lost property having also produced the witnesses attesting to his lost property, the judges shall consider their evidence, and the witnesses in whose presence the purchase was made, along with the witnesses attesting to the lost property, shall declare what they know in the presence of god, and since the seller was the thief, he shall be put to death, while the owner of the lost property shall take his lost property, with the purchaser obtaining from the estate of the seller the money that he paid out.

10: If the (professed) purchaser has not produced the seller who made the sale to him and the witnesses in whose presence he made the purchase, but the owner of the lost property has produced witnesses attesting to his lost property, since the (professed) purchaser was the thief, he shall be put to death, while the owner of the lost property shall take his lost property.

11: If the (professed) owner of the lost property has not produced witnesses attesting to his lost property,

1 Ordinarily indicates a man of the middle class, a commoner, but here it manifestly refers to a private citizen as distinct from the church and state.
2 In the time of Hammurabi coinage had of course not yet been invented and the money (usually silver, as here) was weighed out in shekels.
since he was a cheat and started a false report, he shall be put to death.

12: If the seller has gone to (his) fate, the purchaser shall take from the estate of the seller fivefold the claim for that case.

13: If the witnesses of that seignior were not at hand, the judges shall set a time-limit of six months for him, and if he did not produce his witnesses within six months, since that seignior was a cheat, he shall bear the penalty of that case.

14: If a seignior has stolen the young son of another seignior, he shall be put to death.

15: If a seignior has helped either a male slave of the state or a female slave of the state or a male slave of a private citizen or a female slave of a private citizen to escape through the city-gate, he shall be put to death.

16: If a seignior has harbored in his house either a fugitive male or female slave belonging to the state or to a private citizen and has not brought him forth at the summons of the police, that householder shall be put to death.

17: If a seignior caught a fugitive male or female slave in the open and has taken him to his owner, the owner of the slave shall pay him two shekels of silver.

18: If that slave has not named his owner, he shall take him to the palace in order that his record may be investigated, and they shall return him to his owner.

19: If he has kept that slave in his house (and) later the slave has been found in his possession, that seignior shall be put to death.

20: If the slave has escaped from the hand of his captor, that seignior shall (so) affirm by god to the owner of the slave and he shall then go free.

21: If a seignior made a breach in a house, they shall put him to death in front of that breach and wall him in.

22: If a seignior committed robbery and has been caught, that seignior shall be put to death.

23: If the robber has not been caught, the robbed seignior shall set forth the particulars regarding his lost property in the presence of god, and the city and governor, in whose territory and district the robbery was committed, shall make good to him his lost property.

Exod. 21:16; Deut. 24:7

Exod. 22:2-3

A weight of about 8 gr.
24: If it was a life (that was lost), the city and governor shall pay one mina\(^1\) of silver to his people.

25: If fire broke out in a seignior's house and a seignior, who went to extinguish (it), cast his eye on the goods of the owner of the house and has appropriated the goods of the owner of the house, that seignior shall be thrown into that fire.

26: If either a private soldier or a commissary,\(^2\) whose despatch on a campaign of the king was ordered, did not go or he hired a substitute and has sent (him) in his place, that soldier or commissary shall be put to death, while the one who was hired by him shall take over his estate.

27: In the case of either a private soldier or a commissary who was carried off while in the armed service of the king, if after his (disappearance) they gave his field and orchard to another and he has looked after his feudal obligations—if he has returned and reached his city, they shall restore his field and orchard to him and he shall himself look after his feudal obligations.

28: In the case of either a private soldier or a commissary, who was carried off while in the armed service of the king, if his son is able to look after the feudal obligations, the field and orchard shall be given to him and he shall look after the feudal obligations of his father.

29: If his son is so young that he is not able to look after the feudal obligations of his father, one-third of the field and orchard shall be given to his mother in order that his mother may rear him.

30: If either a private soldier or a commissary gave up his field, orchard and house on account of the feudal obligations and has then absented himself, (and) after his (departure) another took over his field, orchard and house and has looked after the feudal obligations for three years—if he has returned and demands his field, orchard and house, they shall not be given to him; the one who has taken over and looked after his feudal obligations shall himself become the feudatory.

31: If he has absented himself for only one year and has returned, his field, orchard and house shall be

\(^1\) About 500 gr., divided into 90 shekels.

\(^2\) The exact meaning of the two military terms used here, "soldier" and "seignior", is uncertain. The former means literally "follower" and is regularly used for the ordinary foot-soldier; the latter means literally "fher, hunter," hence "commissary" here.
given back to him and he shall look after his feudal obligations himself.

32: If a merchant has ransomed either a private soldier or a commissary, who was carried off in a campaign of the king, and has enabled him to reach his city, if there is sufficient to ransom (him) in his house, he himself shall ransom himself; if there is not sufficient to ransom him in his house, he shall be ransomed from the estate of his city-god; if there is not sufficient to ransom him in the estate of his city-god, the state shall ransom him, since his own field, orchard and house may not be ceded for his ransom.

33: If either a sergeant or a captain has obtained a soldier by conscription or he accepted and has sent a hired substitute for a campaign of the king, that sergeant or captain shall be put to death.

34: If either a sergeant or a captain has appropriated the household goods of a soldier, has wronged a soldier, has let a soldier for hire, has abandoned a soldier to a superior in a lawsuit, has appropriated the grant which the king gave to a soldier, that sergeant or captain shall be put to death.

35: If a seignior has bought from the hand of a soldier the cattle or sheep which the king gave to the soldier, he shall forfeit his money.

36: In no case is the field, orchard, or house belonging to a soldier, a commissary, or a feudatory salable.

37: If a seignior has purchased the field, orchard, or house belonging to a soldier, a commissary, or a feudatory, his contract-tablet shall be broken and he shall also forfeit his money, with the field, orchard, or house reverting to its owner.

38: In no case may a soldier, a commissary, or a feudatory deed any of his field, orchard, or house belonging to his fief to his wife or daughter, and in no case may he assign (them) for an obligation of his.

39: He may deed to his wife or daughter any of the field, orchard, or house which he purchases and accordingly owns, and he may assign (them) for an obligation of his.

40: A hierodule, a merchant, and a feudatory extraordinary may sell his field, orchard and house, with

1 Or, officers of some sort.
2 i.e. in fee simple and not as a fief.
3 The exact meaning of the term used here, audum, is unknown, but it indicates some kind of religious functionary.
the purchaser assuming the feudal obligations of the field, orchard and house which he purchases.

41: If a seignior acquired by barter the field, orchard, or house belonging to a soldier, a commissary, or a feudatory, and also made an additional payment, the soldier, commissary, or feudatory shall repossess his field, orchard, or house, and he shall also keep the additional payment that was made to him.

42: If a seignior rented a field for cultivation, but has not produced grain in the field, they shall prove that he did no work on the field and he shall give grain to the owner of the field on the basis of those adjoining it.

43: If he did not cultivate the field, but has neglected (it), he shall give grain to the owner of the field on the basis of those adjoining it; furthermore, the field which he neglected he shall break up with mattocks, harrow and return to the owner of the field.

44: If a seignior rented a fallow field for three years for development, but became so lazy that he has not developed the field, in the fourth year he shall break up the field with mattocks, plow and harrow (it), and he shall return (it) to the owner of the field; furthermore, he shall measure out ten \textit{kur}\textsuperscript{1} of grain per eighteen \textit{iku}\textsuperscript{2}.

45: If a seignior let his field to a tenant and has already received the rent of his field, (and) later Adad has inundated the field or a flood has ravaged (it), the loss shall be the tenant’s.

46: If he has not received the rent of the field, whether he let the field for one-half or one-third (the crop), the tenant and the owner of the field shall divide proportionately the grain which is produced in the field.

47: If the tenant has asked (another) to cultivate the field because he did not get back his investment in the previous year, the owner of the field shall not object; his (new) tenant shall cultivate his field and at harvest-time he shall take grain in accordance with his contracts.

48: If a debt is outstanding against a seignior and Adad has inundated his field or a flood has ravaged (it) or through lack of water grain has not been produced in the field, he shall not make any return of \textsuperscript{1} A measure equal to a little more than 1 bushels, divided into 300 qin.

\textsuperscript{2} A land measure equal to about \textsuperscript{1/2} of an acre.
grain to his creditor in that year; he shall cancel his contract-tablet and he shall pay no interest for that year.

49: When a seignior borrowed money from a merchant and pledged to the merchant a field prepared for grain or sesame, if he said to him, "Cultivate the field, then harvest (and) take the grain or sesame that is produced," if the tenant has produced grain or sesame in the field, the owner of the field at harvest-time shall himself take the grain or sesame that was produced in the field and he shall give to the merchant grain for his money, which he borrowed from the merchant, together with its interest, and also for the cost of cultivation.

50: If he pledged a field planted with (grain) or a field planted with sesame, the owner of the field shall himself take the grain or sesame that was produced in the field and he shall pay back the money with its interest to the merchant.

51: If he does not have the money to pay back, (grain or) sesame at their market value in accordance with the ratio fixed by the king he shall give to the merchant for his money, which he borrowed from the merchant, together with its interest.

52: If the tenant has not produced grain or sesame in the field, he may not change his contract.

53: If a seignior was too lazy to make [the dike of] his field strong and did not make his dike strong and a break has opened up in his dike and he has accordingly let the water ravage the farmland, the seignior in whose dike the break was opened shall make good the grain that he let get destroyed.

54: If he is not able to make good the grain, they shall sell him and his goods, and the farmers whose grain the water carried off shall divide (the proceeds).

55: If a seignior, upon opening his canal for irrigation, became so lazy that he has let the water ravage a field adjoining his, he shall measure out grain on the basis of those adjoining his.

56: If a seignior opened up the water and then has let the water carry off the work done on a field adjoining his, he shall measure out ten kur of grain per eighteen iku.

1 Lit., "he shall wash off."
2 In ancient Mesopotamia the ratio between silver (the money of the time) and various commodities was fixed by the state.
57: If a shepherd has not come to an agreement with the owner of a field to pasture sheep on the grass, but has pastured sheep on the field without the consent of the owner of the field, when the owner of the field harvests his field, the shepherd who pastured the sheep on the field without the consent of the owner of the field shall give in addition twenty kur of grain per eighteen iku to the owner of the field.

58: If after the sheep have gone up from the meadow, when the whole flock has been shut up within the city-gate, the shepherd drove the sheep into a field and has then pastured the sheep on the field, the shepherd shall look after the field on which he pastured and at harvest-time he shall measure out sixty kur of grain per eighteen iku to the owner of the field.

59: If a seignior cut down a tree in another seignior's orchard without the consent of the owner of the orchard, he shall pay one-half mina of silver.

60: If, when a seignior gave a field to a gardener to set out an orchard, the gardener set out the orchard, he shall develop the orchard for four years; in the fifth year the owner of the orchard and the gardener shall divide equally, with the owner of the orchard receiving his preferential share.

61: If the gardener did not set out the whole field, but left a portion bare, they shall assign the bare portion to him as his share.

62: If he did not set out the field that was given to him as an orchard, if it was a cultivated field, the gardener shall pay to the owner of the field rent for the field for the years that it was neglected on the basis of those adjoining it; also he shall do the (necessary) work on the field and return (it) to the owner of the field.

63: If it was fallow land, he shall do the (necessary) work on the field and return (it) to the owner of the field; also he shall measure out ten kur of grain per eighteen iku for each year.

64: If a seignior gave his orchard to a gardener to pollinate, the gardener shall give to the owner of the orchard two-thirds of the produce of the orchard as rent.

1 The reference to the city-gate evidently reflects the Near Eastern custom in both ancient and modern times of bringing the sheep into the shelter of the town or village at night.

of the orchard as long as the orchard is held, with himself taking one-third.

65: If the gardener did not pollinate the orchard and so has let the yield decline, the gardener [shall measure out] rent for the orchard on the basis of those adjoining it.

66: When a seignior borrowed money from a merchant and his merchant foreclosed on him and he has nothing to pay (it) back, if he gave his orchard after pollination to the merchant and said to him, "Take for your money as many dates as there are produced in the orchard," that merchant shall not be allowed; the owner of the orchard shall himself take the dates that were produced in the orchard and repay the merchant for the money and its interest in accordance with the wording of his tablet and the owner of the orchard shall in turn take the remaining dates that were produced in the orchard.

67: If a seignior built a house, his neighbor...

68: f.: (not preserved)

70: ... he shall give to him.

71: If he is giving grain, money, or goods for a fief estate belonging to an estate adjoining his, which he wishes to purchase, he shall forfeit whatever he paid, while the estate shall revert to its [owner]. If that estate does not carry feudal obligations, he may purchase (it), since he may give grain, money, or goods for such an estate.

72-77: (Only a few words preserved, having to do with house building.)

78: [If a seignior let a house to a(nother) seignior and] the seignior (who was) the tenant paid his rental money in full for the year to the owner of [the house] and the owner of the house has then said to the [tenant] while his term was (still) incomplete, "Move out," the owner of the house [shall forfeit] the money which the tenant paid to him [because] he made the tenant [move out] of his house while his term was (still) incomplete.

79-87: (not preserved)

88: If a merchant [lent] grain at interest, he shall receive sixty qu of grain per kur as interest.\(^1\) If he lent money at interest, he shall receive one-sixth (shekel)

six še (i.e. one-fifth shekel) per shekel of silver as interest.¹

89: If a seignior, who [incurred] a debt, does not have the money to pay (it) back, but has the grain, [the merchant] shall take grain for his money [with its interest] in accordance with the ratio fixed by the king.

90: If the merchant increased the interest beyond [sixty qu] per kur [of grain] (or) one-sixth (shekel) six še [per shekel of money] and has collected (it), he shall forfeit whatever he lent.

91: If a merchant [lent] grain at interest and has collected money [for the full interest] on the grain, the grain along with the money may not [be charged to the account].

92: (not preserved)

93: [If the merchant] ... or he has not had the full amount of grain [which he received] deducted and did not write a new contract, or he has added the interest to the principal, that merchant shall pay back double the full amount of grain that he received.

94: If a merchant lent grain or money at interest and when he lent (it) at interest he paid out the money by the small weight and the grain by the small measure, but when he got (it) back he got the money by the [large] weight (and) the grain by the large measure, [that merchant shall forfeit] whatever he lent.

95: If a [merchant lent grain or money] at interest and gave ..., he shall forfeit whatever he lent.

96: If a seignior borrowed grain or money from a merchant and does not have the grain or money to pay (it) back, but has (other) goods, he shall give to his merchant whatever there is in his possession, (affirming) before witnesses that he will bring (it), while the merchant shall accept (it) without making any objections.

97: ..., he shall be put to death.

98: If a seignior gave money to a(nother) seignior for a partnership, they shall divide equally in the presence of god the profit or loss which was incurred.

99: If a merchant lent money at interest to a trader² for the purpose of trading [and making purchases] and sent him out on the road, the trader shall ... on the road [the money which was entrusted] to him.

¹ Since there were 180 še in a shekel, the interest rate was again 20%.
² i.e. a traveling salesman peddling his wares.
100: If he has realized a profit where he went, he shall write down the interest on the full amount of money that he borrowed and they shall count up the days against him and he shall repay his merchant.

101: If he has not realized a profit where he went, the trader shall repay to the merchant double the money that he borrowed.

102: If a merchant has lent money to a trader as a favor and he has experienced a loss where he went, he shall pay back the principal of the money to the merchant.

103: If, when he went on the road, an enemy has made him give up whatever he was carrying, the trader shall (so) affirm by god and then he shall go free.

104: If a merchant lent grain, wool, oil, or any goods at all to a trader to retail, the trader shall write down the value and pay (it) back to the merchant, with the trader obtaining a sealed receipt for the money which he pays to the merchant.

105: If the trader has been careless and so has not obtained a sealed receipt for the money which he paid to the merchant, the money with no sealed receipt may not be credited to the account.

106: If a trader borrowed money from a merchant and has then disputed (the fact) with his merchant, that merchant in the presence of god and witnesses shall prove that the trader borrowed the money and the trader shall pay to the merchant threefold the full amount of money that he borrowed.

107: When a merchant entrusted (something) to a trader and the trader has returned to his merchant whatever the merchant gave him, if the merchant has then disputed with him whatever the trader gave him, that trader shall prove it against the merchant in the presence of god and witnesses and the merchant shall pay to the trader sixfold whatever he received because he had a dispute with his trader.

108: If a woman wine seller, instead of receiving grain for the price of a drink, has received money by the large weight and so has made the value of the drink less than the value of the grain, they shall prove it against that wine seller and throw her into the water.

109: If outlaws have congregated in the establishment of a woman wine seller and she has not arrested those outlaws and did not take them to the palace, that wine seller shall be put to death.

110: If a hierodule, a nun, who is not living in a convent, has opened (the door of) a wineshop or has entered a wineshop for a drink, they shall burn that woman.

111: If a woman wine seller gave one (flask) of pīhum-drink on credit, she shall receive fifty quī of grain at harvest-time.

112: When a seignior was engaged in a (trading) journey and gave silver, gold, (precious) stones, or (other) goods in his possession to a(nother) seignior and consigned (them) to him for transport, if that seignior did not deliver whatever was to be transported where it was to be transported, but has appropriated (it), the owner of the goods to be transported shall prove the charge against that seignior in the matter of whatever was to be transported, but which he did not deliver, and that seignior shall pay to the owner of the goods to be transported fivefold whatever was given to him.

113: If a seignior held (a debt of) grain or money against a(nother) seignior and he has then taken grain from the granary or threshing floor without the consent of the owner of the grain, they shall prove that that seignior took grain from the granary or threshing floor without the consent of the owner of the grain and he shall return the full amount of grain that he took and he shall also forfeit everything else that he lent.

114: If a seignior did not hold (a debt of) grain or money against a(nother) seignior, but has distrained (someone as) his pledge, he shall pay one-third mina of silver for each distrain.

115: If a seignior held (a debt of) grain or money against a(nother) seignior and distrained (someone as) his pledge and the pledge has then died a natural death in the house of his distrainer, that case is not subject to claim.

116: If the pledge has died from beating or abuse in the house of his distrainer, the owner of the pledge shall prove it against his merchant, and if it was the seignior’s son, they shall put his son to death; if it was the seignior’s slave, he shall pay one-third mina of silver and also forfeit everything else that he lent.

† The hierodule means literally “lady of a god.”
‡ A measure equal to a little more than ¾ of a quart, dry measure.
117: If an obligation came due against a seignior and he sold (the services of) his wife, his son, or his daughter, or he has been bound over to service, they shall work (in) the house of their purchaser or obligee for three years, with their freedom reestablished in the fourth year.

118: When a male slave or a female slave has been bound over to service, if the merchant foreclosed, he may sell (him), with no possibility of his being reclaimed.

119: If an obligation came due against a seignior and he has accordingly sold (the services of) his female slave who bore him children, the owner of the female slave may repay the money which the merchant paid out and thus redeem his female slave.

120: If a seignior deposited his grain in another seignior’s house for storage and a loss has then occurred at the granary or the owner of the house opened the storage-room and took grain or he has denied completely (the receipt of) the grain which was stored in his house, the owner of the grain shall set forth the particulars regarding his grain in the presence of god and the owner of the house shall give to the owner of the grain double the grain that he took.

121: If a seignior stored grain in another seignior’s house, he shall pay five qa of grain per kur of grain as the storage-charge per year.

122: If a seignior wishes to give silver, gold, or any sort of thing to another seignior for safekeeping, he shall show to witnesses the full amount that he wishes to give, arrange the contracts, and then commit (it) to safekeeping.

123: If he gave (it) for safekeeping without witnesses and contracts and they have denied (its receipt) to him at the place where he made the deposit, that case is not subject to claim.

124: If a seignior gave silver, gold, or any sort of thing for safekeeping to another seignior in the presence of witnesses and he has denied (the fact) to him, they shall prove it against that seignior and he shall pay double whatever he denied.

125: If a seignior deposited property of his for safekeeping and at the place where he made the deposit his property has disappeared along with the property of the owner of the house, either through breaking in or through scaling (the wall), the owner of the house, who was so careless that he let whatever was given to him for safekeeping get lost, shall make (it) good and make restitution to the owner of the goods, while the owner of the house shall make a thorough search for his lost property and take (it) from its thief.

Ruth 3:11, 4:10

126: If the seignior's property was not lost, but he has declared, "My property is lost," thus deceiving his city council, his city council shall set forth the facts regarding him in the presence of god, that his property was not lost, and he shall give to his city council double whatever he laid claim to.

Deut. 22:22

127: If a seignior pointed the finger at a nun or the wife of a(nother) seignior, but has proved nothing, they shall drag that seignior into the presence of the judges and also cut off half his (hair).

128: If a seignior acquired a wife, but did not draw up the contracts for her, that woman is no wife.

Deut. 22:23-27

129: If the wife of a seignior has been caught while lying with another man, they shall bind them and throw them into the water. If the husband of the woman wishes to spare his wife, then the king in turn may spare his subject.

130: If a seignior bound the (betrothed) wife of a(nother) seignior, who had had no intercourse with a male and was still living in her father's house, and he has lain in her bosom and they have caught him, that seignior shall be put to death, while that woman shall go free.

131: If a seignior's wife was accused by her husband, but she was not caught while lying with another man, she shall make affirmation by god and return to her house.

Num. 5:11-31

132: If the finger was pointed at the wife of a seignior because of another man, but she has not been caught while lying with the other man, she shall throw herself into the river for the sake of her husband.

133: If a seignior was taken captive, but there was sufficient to live on in his house, his wife [shall not leave her house, but she shall take care of her person by not] entering [the house of another].

1 i.e. submit to the water ordeal, with the river as divine judge.
2 i.e. in order to live there as another man's wife.
133: If that woman did not take care of her person, but has entered the house of another, they shall prove it against that woman and throw her into the water.

134: If the seignior was taken captive and there was not sufficient to live on in his house, his wife may enter the house of another, with that woman incurring no blame at all.

135: If, when a seignior was taken captive and there was not sufficient to live on in his house, his wife has then entered the house of another before his (return) and has borne children, (and) later her husband has returned and has reached his city, that woman shall return to her first husband, while the children shall go with their father.

136: If, when a seignior deserted his city and then ran away, his wife has entered the house of another after his (departure), if that seignior has returned and wishes to take back his wife, the wife of the fugitive shall not return to her husband because he scorned his city and ran away.

137: If a seignior has made up his mind to divorce a lay priestess, who bore him children, or a hierodule who provided him with children, they shall return her dowry to that woman and also give her half of the field, orchard and goods in order that she may rear her children; after she has brought up her children, from whatever was given to her children they shall give her a portion corresponding to (that of) an individual heir in order that the man of her choice may marry her.

138: If a seignior wishes to divorce his wife who did not bear him children, he shall give her money to the full amount of her marriage-price and he shall also make good to her the dowry which she brought from her father's house and then he may divorce her.

139: If there was no marriage-price, he shall give her one mina of silver as the divorce-settlement.

140: If he is a peasant, he shall give her one-third mina of silver.

141: If a seignior's wife, who was living in the house of the seignior, has made up her mind to leave in order that she may engage in business, thus neglecting her house (and) humiliating her husband, they shall prove it against her; and if her husband has then decided on her divorce, he may divorce her, with nothing to be given her as her divorce-settlement upon her departure. If her husband has not decided on her divorce, her husband may marry another woman, with the former woman living in the house of her husband like a maidservant.

142: If a woman so hated her husband that she has declared, "You may not have me," her record shall be investigated at her city council, and if she was careful and was not at fault, even though her husband has been going out and disparaging her greatly, that woman, without incurring any blame at all, may take her dowry and go off to her father's house.

143: If she was not careful, but was a gadabout, thus neglecting her house (and) humiliating her husband, they shall throw that woman into the water.

144: When a seignior married a hierodule and that hierodule gave a female slave to her husband and she has then produced children, if that seignior has made up his mind to marry a lay priestess, they may not allow that seignior, since he may not marry the lay priestess.

145: If a seignior married a hierodule and she did not provide him with children and he has made up his mind to marry a lay priestess, that seignior may marry the lay priestess, thus bringing her into his house, (but) with that lay priestess ranking in no way with the hierodule.

146: When a seignior married a hierodule and she gave a female slave to her husband and she has then borne children, if later that female slave has claimed equality with her mistress because she bore children, her mistress may not sell her; she may mark her with the slave-mark and count her among the slaves.

147: If she did not bear children, her mistress may sell her.

148: When a seignior married a woman and a fever has then seized her, if he has made up his mind to marry another, he may marry (her), without divorcing his wife whom the fever seized; she shall live in the house which he built and he shall continue to support her as long as she lives.

149: If that woman has refused to live in her husband's house, he shall make good her dowry to her which she brought from her father's house and then she may leave.

150: If a seignior, upon presenting a field, orchard, house, or goods to his wife, left a sealed document with her, her children may not enter a claim against her after (the death of) her husband, since the mother may give her inheritance to that son of hers whom she likes, (but) she may not give (it) to an outsider.

151: If a woman, who was living in a seignior's house, having made a contract with her husband that a creditor of her husband may not distress her, has then had (him) deliver a written statement;¹ if there was a debt against that seignior before he married that woman, his creditors may not distress his wife; also, if there was a debt against that woman before she entered the seignior's house, her creditors may not distress her husband.

152: If a debt has developed against them after that woman entered the seignior's house, both of them shall be answerable to the merchant.²

153: If a seignior's wife has brought about the death of her husband because of another man, they shall impale that woman on stakes.

154: If a seignior has had intercourse with his daughter, they shall make that seignior leave the city.

155: If a seignior chose a bride for his son and his son had intercourse with her, but later he himself has lain in her bosom and they have caught him, they shall bind that seignior and throw him into the water.

156: If a seignior chose a bride for his son and his son did not have intercourse with her, but he himself has lain in her bosom, he shall pay to her one-half mina of silver and he shall also make good to her whatever she brought from her father's house in order that the man of her choice may marry her.

157: If a seignior has lain in the bosom of his mother after (the death of) his father, they shall burn both of them.

158: If a seignior after (the death of) his father has been caught in the bosom of his foster mother who was the bearer of children, that seignior shall be cut off from the parental home.

159: If a seignior, who had the betrothal-gift brought to the house of his (prospective) father-in-law (and) paid the marriage-price, has then fallen in love with another woman and has said to his (prospective) father-

in-law, "I will not marry your daughter," the father of the daughter shall keep whatever was brought to him.

160: If a seignior had the betrothal-gift brought to the house of the (prospective) father-in-law (and) paid the marriage-price, and the father of the daughter has then said, "I will not give my daughter to you," he shall pay back double the full amount that was brought to him.

161: If a seignior had the betrothal-gift brought to the house of his (prospective) father-in-law (and) paid the marriage-price, and then a friend of his has so maligned him that his (prospective) father-in-law has said to the (prospective) husband, "You may not marry my daughter," he shall pay back double the full amount that was brought to him, but his friend may not marry his (intended) wife.

162: If, when a seignior acquired a wife, she bore him children and that woman has then gone to (her) fate, her father may not lay claim to her dowry, since her dowry belongs to her children.

163: If a seignior acquired a wife and that woman has gone to (her) fate without providing him with children, if his father-in-law has then returned to him the marriage-price which that seignior brought to the house of his father-in-law, her husband may not lay claim to the dowry of that woman, since her dowry belongs to her father's house.

164: If his father-in-law has not returned the marriage-price to him, he shall deduct the full amount of her marriage-price from her dowry and return (the rest of) her dowry to her father's house.

165: If a seignior, upon presenting a field, orchard, or house to his first-born, who is the favorite in his eye, wrote a sealed document for him, when the brothers divide after the father has gone to (his) fate, he shall keep the present which the father gave him, but otherwise they shall share equally in the goods of the paternal estate.

166: If a seignior, upon acquiring wives for the sons that he got, did not acquire a wife for his youngest son, when the brothers divide after the father has gone to (his) fate, to their youngest brother who did not acquire a wife, to him in addition to his share they shall assign money (enough) for the marriage-price from the goods of the paternal estate and thus enable him to acquire a wife.
167: If, when a seignior acquired a wife and she bore him children, that woman has gone to (her) fate (and) after her (death) he has then married another woman and she has borne children, when later the father has gone to (his) fate, the children shall not divide according to mothers; they shall take the dowries of their (respective) mothers and then divide equally the goods of the paternal estate.

168: If a seignior, having made up his mind to disinherit his son, has said to the judges, “I wish to disinherit my son,” the judges shall investigate his record, and if the son did not incur wrong grave (enough) to be disinherited, the father may not disinherit his son.

169: If he has incurred wrong against his father grave (enough) to be disinherited, they shall let him off the first time; if he has incurred grave wrong a second time, the father may disinherit his son.

170: When a seignior’s first wife bore him children and his female slave also bore him children, if the father during his lifetime has ever said “My children!” to the children whom the slave bore him, thus having counted them with the children of the first wife, after the father has gone to (his) fate, the children of the first wife and the children of the slave shall share equally in the goods of the paternal estate, with the first-born, the son of the first wife, receiving a preferential share.

171: However, if the father during his lifetime has never said “My children!” to the children whom the slave bore him, after the father has gone to (his) fate, the children of the slave may not share in the goods of the paternal estate along with the children of the first wife; freedom for the slave and her children shall be effected, with the children of the first wife having no claim at all against the children of the slave for service; the first wife shall take her dowry and the marriage-gift which her husband, upon giving (it) to her, wrote down on a tablet for her, and living in the home of her husband, she shall have the usufruct (of it) as long as she lives, without ever selling (it), since her heritage belongs to her children.

172: If her husband did not give her a marriage-gift, they shall make good her dowry to her and she shall obtain from the goods of her husband’s estate a portion corresponding to (that of) an individual heir; if her children keep plaguing her in order to make her leave the house, the judges shall investigate her record and place the blame on the children, so that woman need never leave her husband's house; if that woman has made up her mind to leave, she shall leave to her children the marriage-gift which her husband gave her (but) take the dowry from her father's house in order that the man of her choice may marry her.

173: If that woman has borne children to her later husband in the place that she entered, and afterwards that woman has died, the earlier with the later children shall divide the dowry.

174: If she has not borne children to her later husband, only the children of her first husband shall receive her dowry.

175: If either a palace slave or a private citizen's slave married the daughter of a seignior and she has borne children, the owner of the slave may not lay claim to the children of the seignior's daughter for service.

176: Furthermore, if a palace slave or a private citizen's slave married the daughter of a seignior and when he married her she entered the house of the palace slave or the private citizen's slave with the dowry from her father's house and after they were joined together they set up a household and so acquired goods, but later either the palace slave or the private citizen's slave has gone to (his) fate, the seignior's daughter shall take her dowry, but they shall divide into two parts whatever her husband and she acquired after they were joined together and the owner of the slave shall take one-half, with the seignior's daughter taking one-half for her children.

176a: If the seignior's daughter has no dowry, they shall divide into two parts whatever her husband and she acquired after they were joined together and the owner of the slave shall take one-half, with the seignior's daughter taking one-half for her children.

177: If a widow, whose children are minors, has made up her mind to enter the house of another, she may not enter without the consent of the judges; when she wishes to enter the house of another, the judges shall investigate the condition of her former husband's estate and they shall entrust her former husband's estate to her later husband and that woman and they shall have them deposit a tablet (to the effect that) they will look after the estate and also rear the young (children), without ever selling the household goods, since the purchaser who purchases the household goods of a widow’s children shall forfeit his money, with the goods reverting to their owner.

178: In the case of a nun, a hierodule, or a votary, whose father, upon presenting a dowry to her, wrote a tablet for her, if he did not write for her on the tablet which he wrote for her (permission) to give her heritage to whom she pleased and did not grant her full discretion, after the father has gone to (his) fate, her brothers shall take her field and orchard and they shall give her food, oil and clothing proportionate to the value of her share and thus make her comfortable; if her brothers have not given her food, oil and clothing proportionate to the value of her share and so have not made her comfortable, she may give her field and orchard to any tenant that she pleases and her tenant shall support her, since she shall have the usufruct of the field, orchard or whatever her father gave her as long as she lives, without selling (it or) willing (it) to another, since her patrimony belongs to her brothers.

179: In the case of a nun, a hierodule, or a votary, whose father, upon presenting a dowry to her, wrote a sealed document for her, if he wrote for her on the tablet which he wrote for her (permission) to give her heritage to whomever she pleased and has granted her full discretion, after her father has gone to (his) fate, she may give her heritage to whomever she pleases, with her brothers having no claim against her.

180: If a father did not present a dowry to his daughter, a hierodule in a convent or a votary, after the father has gone to (his) fate, she shall receive as her share in the goods of the paternal estate a portion like (that of) an individual heir, but she shall have only the usufruct of (it) as long as she lives, since her heritage belongs to her brothers.

181: If a father dedicated (his daughter) to deity as a hierodule, a sacred prostitute, or a devotee and did not present a dowry to her, after the father has gone to (his) fate, she shall receive as her share in the goods of the paternal estate her one-third patrimony, but she shall have only the usufruct of (it) as long as she lives, since her heritage belongs to her brothers.
182: If a father, since he did not present a dowry to his daughter, a hierodule of Marduk of Babylon, did not write a sealed document for her, after the father has gone to (his) fate, she shall share along with her brothers in the goods of the paternal estate to the extent of her one-third patrimony, but she shall not assume any feudal obligations, since a hierodule of Marduk may give her heritage to whomever she pleases.

183: If a father, upon presenting a dowry to his daughter, a lay priestess, when he gave her to a husband, wrote a sealed document for her, after the father has gone to (his) fate, she may not share in the goods of the paternal estate.

184: If a seignior did not present a dowry to his daughter, a lay priestess, since he did not give her to a husband, after the father has gone to (his) fate, her brothers shall present her with a dowry proportionate to the value of the father's estate and they shall give her to a husband.

185: If a seignior adopted a boy in his own name and has reared him, that foster child may never be reclaimed.

186: If a seignior, upon adopting a boy, seeks out his father and mother when he had taken him, that foster child may return to his father's house.

187: The (adopted) son of a chamberlain, a palace servant, or the (adopted) son of a votary, may never be reclaimed.

188: If a member of the artisan class took a son as a foster child and has taught him his handicraft, he may never be reclaimed.

189: If he has not taught him his handicraft, that foster child may return to his father's house.

190: If a seignior has not counted among his sons the boy that he adopted and reared, that foster child may return to his father's house.

191: If a seignior, who adopted a boy and reared him, set up a family of his own, has later acquired children and so has made up (his) mind to cut off the foster child, that son shall not go off empty-handed; his foster father shall give him from his goods his one-third patrimony and then he shall go off, since he may not give him any of the field, orchard, or house.

Lit. "the son of an artisan," where "son" is used in the technical sense of "belonging to the class of...species of..." common in the Semitic languages.
192: If the (adopted) son of a chamberlain or the (adopted) son of a votary has said to his foster father or his foster mother, "You are not my father," "You are not my mother," they shall cut out his tongue.
193: If the (adopted) son of a chamberlain or the (adopted) son of a votary found out his parentage and came to hate his foster father and his foster mother and so has gone off to his paternal home, they shall pluck out his eye.
194: When a seignior gave his son to a nurse and that son has died in the care of the nurse, if the nurse has then made a contract for another son without the knowledge of his father and mother, they shall prove it against her and they shall cut off her breast because she made a contract for another son without the knowledge of his father and mother.
195: If a son has struck his father, they shall cut off his hand.
196: If a seignior has destroyed the eye of a member of the aristocracy, they shall destroy his eye.
197: If he has broken a (nother) seignior's bone, they

233: If a builder constructed a house for a seignior and

\(^1\) “owner of the injury.” \(^2\) A measure equal to about 42 1/5 square yds.
has not done his work properly so that a wall has become unsafe, that builder shall strengthen that wall at his own expense.

234: If a boatman calked a boat of sixty kur for a seignior, he shall give him two shekels of silver as his remuneration.

235: If a boatman calked a boat for a seignior and did not do his work well with the result that that boat has sprung a leak in that very year, since it has developed a defect, the boatman shall dismantle that boat and strengthen (it) at his own expense and give the strengthened boat back to the owner of the boat.

236: If a seignior let his boat for hire to a boatman and the boatman was so careless that he has sunk or wrecked the boat, the boatman shall make good the boat to the owner of the boat.

237: When a seignior hired a boatman and a boat and loaded it with grain, wool, oil, dates, or any kind of freight, if that boatman was so careless that he has sunk the boat and lost what was in it as well, the boatman shall make good the boat which he sank and whatever he lost that was in it.

238: If a boatman sank the boat of a seignior and has then refloated it, he shall give one-half its value in silver.

239: If a seignior hired a boatman, he shall give him six kur of grain per year.

240: If a rowboat rammed a sailboat and has sunk (it), the owner of the boat whose boat was sunk shall in the presence of god set forth the particulars regarding whatever was lost in his boat and the one in charge of the rowboat which sank the sailboat shall make good to him his boat and his lost property.

241: If a seignior has distrained an ox as a pledge, he shall pay one-third mina of silver.

242, 243: If a seignior hired (it) for one year, he shall give to its owner four kur of grain as the hire of an ox in tandem, three kur of grain as that of a young lead-ox.

244: If a seignior hired an ox or an ass and a lion has killed it in the open, (the loss) shall be its owner's.

245: If a seignior hired an ox and has caused its death through carelessness or through beating, he shall make good ox for ox to the owner of the ox.

246: If a seignior hired an ox and has broken its foot or has cut its neck tendon, he shall make good ox for ox to the owner of the ox.
247: If a seignior hired an ox and has destroyed its eye, he shall give one-half its value in silver to the owner of the ox.

248: If a seignior hired an ox and has broken its horn, cut off its tail, or injured the flesh of its back, he shall give one-quarter its value in silver.

249: If a seignior hired an ox and god struck it and it has died, the seignior who hired the ox shall (so) affirm by god and then he shall go free.

250: If an ox, when it was walking along the street, gored a seignior to death, that case is not subject to claim.

251: If a seignior's ox was a gorer and his city council made it known to him that it was a gorer, but he did not pad its horns (or) tie up his ox, and that ox gored to death a member of the aristocracy, he shall give one-half mina of silver.

252: If it was a seignior's slave, he shall give one-third mina of silver.

253: If a seignior hired a (nother) seignior to oversee his field, and lending him seed-grain, entrusting him with oxen, contracted with him to cultivate the field, if that seignior stole the seed or fodder and it has been found in his possession, they shall cut off his hand.

254: If he appropriated the seed-grain and thus has starved the oxen, he shall make good twofold the grain which he received.

255: If he has let the seignior’s oxen out on hire or he stole the seed-grain and so has raised nothing in the field, they shall prove it against that seignior and at harvest-time he shall measure out sixty kur of grain per eighteen iku.

256: If he was not able to meet his obligation, they shall drag him through that field with the oxen.

257: If a seignior hired a cultivator, he shall give him eight kur of grain per year.

258: If a seignior hired a cattle-herder, he shall pay him six kur of grain per year.

259: If a seignior stole a plow from a field, he shall give five shekels of silver to the owner of the plow.

260: If he has stolen a seeder or a harrow, he shall give three shekels of silver.

261: If a seignior hired a shepherd to pasture cattle or sheep, he shall give him eight kur of grain per year.

262: If a seignior ... and ox or a sheep to...
263: If he has lost [the ox] or sheep which was committed to him, he shall make good ox for [ox], sheep for [sheep] to their owner.

264: If [a shepherd], to whom cattle or sheep were given to pasture, being in receipt of his wages in full, to his satisfaction, has then let the cattle decrease, has let the sheep decrease, thus lessening the birth rate, he shall give increase and profit in accordance with the terms of his contract.

265: If a shepherd, to whom cattle or sheep were given to pasture, became unfaithful and hence has altered the cattlemark or has sold (them), they shall prove it against him and he shall make good in cattle and sheep to their owner tenfold what he stole.

266: If a visitation of god has occurred in a sheepfold or a lion has made a kill, the shepherd shall prove himself innocent in the presence of god, but the owner of the sheepfold shall receive from him the animal stricken in the fold.

267: If the shepherd was careless and has let lameness develop in the fold, the shepherd shall make good in cattle and sheep the loss through the lameness which he let develop in the fold and give (them) to their owner.

268: If a seignior hired an ox to thresh, twenty qu of grain shall be its hire.

269: If he hired an ass to thresh, ten qu of grain shall be its hire.

270: If he hired a goat to thresh, one qu of grain shall be its hire.

271: If a seignior hired oxen, a wagon and a driver for it, he shall give 180 qu of grain per day.

272: If a seignior hired simply a wagon by itself, he shall give forty qu of grain per day.

273: If a seignior hired a laborer, he shall give six še of silver per day from the beginning of the year till the fifth month; from the sixth month till the end of the year he shall give five še of silver per day.

274: If a seignior wishes to hire an artisan, he shall pay per day as the wage of a . . . five [še] of silver; as the wage of a brickmaker five še of silver; [as the wage of] a linen-weaver . . . [še] of silver; [as the wage of] a seal-cutter . . . [še] of silver; [as the wage of] a jeweller . . . [še of] silver; [as the wage of] a smith . . . [še of] silver; [as the wage of] a carpenter four še of silver; as the wage of a leatherworker... še of silver; as the wage of a basketmaker... še of silver; [as the wage of] a builder... še of silver.

275: If a seignior hired a long-boat, its hire shall be three še of silver per day.

276: If a seignior hired a rowboat, he shall give two and one-half še of silver per day as its hire.

277: If a seignior hired a boat of sixty kur, he shall give one-sixth (shekel) of silver per day as its hire.

278: If a seignior purchased a male (or) female slave and when his month was not yet complete, epilepsy attacked him, he shall return (him) to his seller and the purchaser shall get back the money which he paid out.

279: If a seignior purchased a male (or) female slave and he has then received a claim (against him), his seller shall be responsible for the claim.

280: If a seignior has purchased in a foreign land the male (or) female slave of a (other) seignior and when he has arrived home the owner of the male or female slave has identified either his male or his female slave, if that male and female slave are natives of the land, their freedom shall be effected without any money (payment).

281: If they are natives of another land, the purchaser shall state in the presence of god what money he paid out and the owner of the male or female slave shall give to the merchant the money he paid out and thus redeem his male or female slave.

282: If a male slave has said to his master, "You are not my master," his master shall prove him to be his slave and cut off his ear.

NUZI AKKADIAN

(1) Sale-Adoption

The tablet of adoption belonging to Kuzu, the son of Karmishe: he adopted Tehip-tilla, the son of Puhshenni. As his share of the estate Kuzu gave Tehip-tilla 40 imers of land in the district of Iphushshi. If the land should have a claimant, Kuzu shall clear (it) and give (it) back to Tehip-tilla. Tehip-tilla in turn gave 1 mina of silver to Kuzu as his honorarium. Whoever defaults shall pay 2 minas of silver (and) 2 minas of gold.

(The names of fourteen persons and the scribe as witnesses, each preceded by the witness-sign.)

(The names of two of the witnesses, one other person, and the scribe, each preceded by "The seal of.")

(2) Sale-Adoption

The tablet of adoption belonging to Nashwi, the son of Ar-shenni: he adopted Wullu, the son of Puhi-shenni. As long as Nashwi is alive, Wullu shall provide food and clothing; when Nashwi dies, Wullu shall become the heir. If Nashwi has a son of his own, he shall divide (the estate) equally with Wullu, but the son of Nashwi shall take the gods of Nashwi. However, if Nashwi does not have a son of his own, then Wullu shall take the gods of Nashwi. Furthermore, he gave his daughter Nuhuya in marriage to Wullu, and if Wullu takes another wife he shall forfeit the lands and buildings of Nashwi. Whoever defaults shall make compensation with 1 mina of silver and 1 mina of gold.

(The names of five persons and the scribe as witnesses, each preceded by the witness-sign.)

(The names of four of the witnesses and the scribe, each preceded by "The seal of.")

(3) Real Adoption

The tablet of adoption belonging to [Zike], the son of Akkuya: he gave his son Shennima in adoption to Shuriha-iliu, and Shuriha-iliu, with reference to Shennima, (from) all the lands ... (and) his earnings of every sort gave to Shennima one (portion) of his property. If Shuriha-iliu should have a son of his own, as the principal (son) he shall take a double share; Shennima shall then be next in order (and) take his proper share. As long as Shuriha-iliu is alive, Shennima shall revere him. When Shuriha-iliu [dies], Shennima shall

* The word used here, sit'fa, means the double share of the first-born son.
* An acre was approximately 454 acres.
* Possession of the household gods marked a person as the legitimate heir, which explains Laban's anxiety to recover his household gods from Jacob. It is to be noted too that Laban binds Jacob in verse 39 to marry no other wives besides his daughters, just as Wullu is bound in our text.
become the heir. Furthermore, Kelim-ninu has been given in marriage to Shennima. If Kelim-ninu bears (children), Shennima shall not take another wife; but if Kelim-ninu does not bear, Kelim-ninu shall acquire a woman of the land of Lullu as wife for Shennima, and Kelim-ninu may not send the offspring away. Any sons that may be born to Shennima from the womb of Kelim-ninu, to (these) sons shall be given [all] the lands (and) buildings of every sort. [However], if she does not bear a son, [then] the daughter of Kelim-ninu from the lands (and) buildings shall take one (portion) of the property. Furthermore, Shuriha-ulu shall not adopt another son in addition to Shennima. Whoever among them defaults shall compensate with 1 mina of silver (and) 1 mina of gold.

Furthermore, Yalampa is given as a handmaid to Kelim-ninu and Shatim-ninu has been made co-parent. As long as she is alive, she (i.e. Yalampa) shall revere her and Shatim-ninu shall not annul the [agreement].

If Kelim-ninu bears (children) and Shennima takes another wife, she may take her dowry and leave.

(The names of nine persons and the scribe as witnesses, each preceded by the witness-sign.)

The remaining sons of Zike may not lay claim to the lands (and) buildings belonging to the (above) one (portion) of the property.

The tablet was written after the proclamation.

(Sealed by eight persons, seven of whom were already named as witnesses.)

(4) Lawsuit

Tarmiya, the son of Huya, appeared with Shukriya and Kula-hupi, with (these) two brothers of his, the sons of Huya, in a lawsuit before the judges of Nuzi with reference to the female slave [Sululi-Ishhtar], whereupon Tarmiya spoke thus before the judges, “My father, Huya, was sick and lay on a couch; then my father seized my hand and spoke thus to me, ‘My other sons, being older, have acquired wives, but you have not acquired a wife; so I give you herewith Sululi-Ishtar as your wife.’” Then the judges demanded the witnesses of Tarmiya [and Tarmiya] had his witnesses appear [before the judges]: . . ., the son of Hurshaya, . . ., the son of Ikkiya, . . ., the son of Itrusha, (and) . . ., the son of Hamanna. [These] witnesses of [Tarmiya] were examined before the judges, whereupon the judges spoke to Shukriya and Kula-hupī, “Go and take the oath of the gods against the witnesses of Tarmiya.” Shukriya and Kula-hupī shrank from the gods 1 so that Tarmiya prevailed in the lawsuit and the judges assigned the female slave, Sululi-Ishtar, to Tarmiya.

ARAMAIC PAPYRI FROM ELEPHANTINE

TRANSLATOR: H. L. GINSBERG

MIHTAHIAH'S FIRST MARRIAGE

On the 21st of Chisleu, that is the 1st of Mesore 1 , year 6 of King Artaxerxes, Mahseiah b. Yedoniah, a Jew of Elephantine, of the detachment of Haumada, said to Jezaniah b. Uriah of the said detachment as follows: There is the site of 1 house belonging to me, west of the house belonging to you, which I have given to your wife, my daughter Mihtahiah (Mḥtyḥh), and in respect of which I have written her a deed. The measurements of the house in question are 8 cubits and a handbreadth (5) by 11, by the measuring-rod. Now do I, Mahseiah, 1 Egyptian month-name.

say to you, Build and equip that site . . . and dwell thereon with your wife. But you may not sell that house or give it as a present to others; only your children by my daughter Mibtahiah shall have power over it after you two. If tomorrow or some other day you build upon this land, and then my daughter divorces you and leaves you, she shall have no power to take it or give it to others; only your children by (10) Mibtahiah shall have power over it, in return for the work which you shall have done. If, on the other hand, she recovers from you, she [may] take half of the house, and [the] othe[r] half shall be at your disposal in return for the building which you will have done on that house. And again as to that half, your children by Mibtahiah shall have power over it after you. If tomorrow or another day I should institute suit or process against you and say I did not give you this land to build on and did not draw up this deed for you, I (15) shall give you a sum of 10 karshin by royal weight, at the rate of 2 R² to the ten, and no suit or process shall lie. This deed was written by *Atharshuri b. Nabuzeribni in the fortress of Syene at the dictation of Mahseiah. Witnesses hereto (signatures):

² This must mean, "In the event of your divorcing her, in which case she does not forfeit all rights as when she divorces you." Perhaps there is a lacuna in the text.

² Probably stands for *rašrin "quarters" (of a shekel). Does 2/4 X 10 (±1/5) indicate the proportion of alloy?

IN LIQUIDATION OF MIBTAHIAH'S SECOND MARRIAGE

See the Aramaic letter, "Settlement of Claim by Oath," Chap. XII.

CONTRACT OF MIBTAHIAH'S THIRD MARRIAGE:

Text: Sayce-Cowley, G; Cowley, 15. Date: about 440 B.C.

On the 2[5]th of Tishri, that is the 6th day of the month Epiphi, [year . . . of] Kin[g Artaxers]es, said Ashor b. [Scho], builder to the king, to Mah[seiah, A]ramean of Syene, of the detachment of Varizata, as follows: I have [co]me to your house that you might give me your daughter Mipht(ah)iah in marriage. She is my wife and I am her husband from this day for ever. I have given you as the bride-price (5) of your daughter ¹ The name of Ashor's father (PA) is preserved in another document. Both he and his own are Egyptian, but he eventually adopted the Hebrew one of Nathan.

Miphtahiah (a sum of) 5 shekels, royal weight. It has been received by you and your heart is content therewith.¹ (Lines 6-16, Miphtahiah’s dowry.) (17) Should Ashor die tomorrow or another day having no child, male or female, by his wife Miphtahiah, Miphtahiah shall be entitled to the house, chattels and all worldly goods of Ashor. (20) Should Miphtahiah die tomorrow or another day having no child, male or female, by her husband Ashor, Ashor shall inherit her property and chattels. Should Miphtahiah, tomorrow or another day stand up in a congregation and say, I divorce my husband Ashor, the price of divorce shall be upon her head: she shall sit by the balance and weigh out to Ashor a sum of 7 shekels 2 R². But all that which she has brought in (25) with her she shall take out, shred and thread, and go whither she will, without suit or process. Should Ashor tomorrow or another day stand up in a congregation and say, I divorce my wife Miphtahiah, she shall forfeit her bride-price, and all that she has brought in with her she shall take out, shred and thread, on one day at one stroke, and shall go whither she will, without suit or process. And whoever arises against Miphtahiah (30) to drive her away from the house, possessions, and chattels of Ashor shall give her the sum of 20 karash,³ and the law of this deed shall [ . . . ] for her. And I shall have no right to say I have another wife besides Miphtahiah or other children besides any Miphtahiah may bear to me. If I say I have children and wife other than Miphtahiah and her children, I shall give to Miphtahiah a sum of 20 karash, royal weight. (35) Neither shall I have the right to [wre]st my property and chattels from Miphtahiah. If I take them away from her (erasure), I shall give to Miphtahiah a sum of 20 karash, royal weight. [This deed] was written by Nathan b. Ananiah [at the dictation of Ashor]. Witnesses: (signatures).

¹ The bride-price was regularly added to the bride’s dowry. In the following lines the value of each item of the dowry is given, and so is the total value; but the latter exceeds the value of the items by exactly the amount of the bride-price.
² This sum is exactly 1½ times the bride-price Ashor paid for her (line 5).
³ A karash is 10 heavy shekels or 30 light ones.

The Expulsion of the Hyksos

It is an irony of history that our best contemporaneous source on the expulsion of the Hyksos from Egypt comes from the biographical record of a relatively modest citizen of Upper Egypt, the captain of a Nile vessel. In relating his participation in the campaigns of Ah-mose I (about 1570-1545 B.C.) and of Thutmoses I (about 1525-1495), Ah-mose, son of the woman Eben, tells of the successive attacks on the Hyksos in Egypt and then of the follow-up campaigns into Asia:

The commander of a crew, Ah-mose, son of Eben, the triumphant, says:

I speak to you, all mankind, that I may let you know the favors which have come to me. I have been awarded gold seven times in the presence of the entire land, and male and female slaves in like manner, and I have been vested with very many fields.¹ The reputation of a valiant man is from what he has done, not being destroyed in this land forever.

He speaks thus:

I had my upbringing in the town of el-Kab, my father being a soldier of the King of Upper and Lower Egypt; Seqnen-Re, the triumphant;² his name being Bebe, (5) the son of (the woman) Ro-onet. Then I served as soldier in his place in the ship, "The Wild Bull," in the time of the Lord of the Two Lands: Neb-pehtu-Re, the triumphant,³ when I was (still) a boy, before I had taken a wife, (but) while I was (still) sleeping in a net hammock.⁴

But after I had set up a household, then I was taken on the ship, "Northern," because I was valiant. Thus I used to accompany the Sovereign—life, prosperity, health!—on foot, following his excursions in his chariot.⁵ When the town of Avaris was besieged, then I showed valor on foot in the presence of his majesty. Thereupon I was appointed to the ship, "Appearing in Memphis."

¹ In his tomb, Ah-mose gives a list of 9 male and 10 female slaves which were his booty. His grants of land from the king came to something like 70 acres.
² One of the pharaohs named Seqnen-Re in the 17th dynasty.
³ Ah-mose I.
⁴ Perhaps: "I was (still) sleeping with the phallic sheath attached"?
⁵ Note the first use of the horse and chariot by the Egyptians. The Hyksos had introduced this war force into Egypt.
Then there was fighting on the water in the canal Pa-Djedku of Avaris. Thereupon I made a capture, (10) and I carried away a hand. It was reported to the king's herald. Then the Gold of Valor was given to me. Thereupon there was fighting again in this place. Then I made a capture again there and brought away a hand. Then the Gold of Valor was given to me over again.

Then there was fighting in the Egypt which is south of this town. Thereupon I carried off a man (as) living prisoner. I went down into the water—now he was taken captive on the side of the town—and crossed over the water carrying him. Report was made to the king's herald. Thereupon I was awarded gold another time.

Then Avaris was despoiled. Then I carried off spoil from there: one man, three women, a total of four persons. Then his majesty gave them to me to be slaves.

Then (15) Sharuhen was besieged for three years. Then his majesty despoiled it. Thereupon I carried off spoil from there: two women and a hand. Then the Gold of Valor was given to me, and my spoil was given to me to be slaves.

Now after his majesty had killed the Asiatics, then he sailed southward to Khenti-hen-nefer, to destroy the Nubian nomads.

After this (Thut-mose I) went forth to Retenu, to assuage his heart throughout the foreign countries. His majesty reached Naharin; (37) and his majesty—life, prosperity, health!—found that enemy while he was marshaling the battle array. Then his majesty made a great slaughter among them. There was no number to the living prisoners whom his majesty carried off by his victory. Now I was in the van of our army, and his majesty saw how valiant I was. I carried off a chariot,

1 It was an Egyptian army custom to cut off the hand of a dead enemy as a proof of killing.
2 South of Avaris. This looks like a temporary retirement by the Egyptians.
3 Beside the town, but across a body of water from the Egyptian army.
4 In Ah-mose's "list of the male and female slaves of the spoil," most of the 19 names are good Egyptian. However, there appear a Pa-Aamt, "The Asiatic," a Ta'mtuji, which is a feminine name similar to Amos, and an Ishtar-unmil, "Ishtar is My Mother."
5 It lay in the extreme southwestern corner of the land of Canaan, in the territory of the tribe of Sim'en. Perhaps it was modern Tell el-Far'ah.
6 Syria-Palestine in general.
7 The Two Rivers, the area of the Euphrates bend.
8 "That fallen one," a frequent designation of a major enemy.
9 It has been pointed out that only in the stretch of patriotic enthusiasm of the first century of the 11th dynasty did the Egyptians speak of "our army," instead of sacrificing the troops to the pharaoh.
its horse, and him who was in it as a living prisoner. They were presented to his majesty. Then I was awarded gold another time.

1 In the quarries of Makhara is a record of the reopening of the quarries for stone to be used in certain temples. Part of the inscription runs: "The stone was dragged by the cattle which his [victories] throughout the lands of the Fenkius had carried off." The accompanying scene shows Asiatics driving the cattle. Djahl and Fenkius apply to the Phoenician coast running down into Palestine and including the hinterland—further north than southern Palestine.

Asiatic Campaign of Thut-mose III

THE BATTLE OF MEGIDDO

Thut-mose III (about 1490-1436 B.C.) was the conquering pharaoh who set the Egyptian Empire on a foundation firm for almost a century. For twenty years he led campaigns into Asia almost every year. Some of these campaigns involved serious fighting, others were parades of strength. We have detailed information on his first campaign (perhaps 1468 B.C.), which attacked the focus of Asiatic resistance in the Canaanite city of Megiddo.

The "Annals" of Thut-mose III's military campaigns are carved on the walls of the Temple of Karnak, in recognition of the fact that the god Amon-Re had given victory.

The Horus: Mighty Bull, Appearing in Thebes; ... (Thut-mose III).

His majesty commanded that [the victories which his father Amon had given to him] should be established [upon] a monument in the temple which his majesty had made for [his father Amon, in order to set down] (5) each individual campaign, together with the booty which [his majesty] carried [off from it, and the dues of] every [foreign country] which his father Re had given to him.

Year 22, 4th month of the second season, day 25. 1 [His majesty passed the fortress of] Sile; on the first campaign of victory [which his majesty made to extend] the frontiers of Egypt, in valor, [in victory, in power, and in justification]. Now this was a [long] time in years ... (10) plunder, while every man was tributary before ... But it happened in later times that the garrison which was there was in the town of Sharuhen, 6 while from Iursa to the outer ends of the earth 6 had become rebellious against his majesty.

1 Tentatively, April 16, 1468 B.C., for the battle of Megiddo. The precise date will depend upon what the ancient Egyptians meant by a "new moon."
2 Or Tjarn, the Egyptian frontier post, at or near modern Kantarah.
3 From southern Palestine to northern Syria.
Year 23, 1st month of the third season, day 4, the day of the feast of the king’s coronation—as far as the town of “That-Which-the-Ruler-Seized,” [of which the Syrian name is] Gaza.¹

[Year 23,] (15) 1st month of the third season, day 5—departure from this place, in valor, [in victory,] in power, and in justification, in order to overthrow that wretched enemy;² and to extend the frontiers of Egypt, according to the command of his father Amon-Re, the [valiant] and victorious, that he should capture.

Year 23, 1st month of the third season, day 16³—as far as the town of Yechem. [His majesty] ordered a conference with his victorious army, speaking as follows: “That [wretched] enemy (20) of Kadesh has come and has entered into Megiddo. He is [there] at this moment. He has gathered to him the princes of [every] foreign country [which had been] loyal to Egypt, as well as (those) as far as Naharin and M[ittanni], them of Hurru, them of Kode, their horses, their armies, [and their people], for he says—so it is reported—‘I shall wait [here] (25) in Megiddo [to fight against his majesty]. Will ye tell me [what is in your hearts]?’”⁴

They said in the presence of his majesty: “What is it like to go [on] this [road] which becomes (so) narrow? It is [reported] that the foe is there, waiting on [the outside, while they are] becoming (more) numerous. Will not horse (have to) go after [horse, and the army] (30) and the people similarly? Will the vanguard of us be fighting while the [rear guard] is waiting here in Aruna, unable to fight?⁵ Now two (other) roads are here. One of the roads—behold, it is [to the east of] us, so that it comes out at Taanach. The other—behold, it is to the (35) north side of Djefti,⁶and we will come out

¹ On Borchardt’s reckoning, the Egyptians reached Gaza on April 25, 1468, having traveled at the respectable rate of 150 miles in 9 or 10 days. As this date was the anniversary of Thut-mose III’s coronation, the year number changed from 22 to 23.
² The Prince of Kadesh was the leader of the coalition against Egypt.
³ May 3, 1468 (Borchardt). After leaving the Egyptian-held city of Gaza, the army’s rate was notably slower through territory which was actually or potentially rebellious. Perhaps 80 miles were covered in 11 or 12 days. Yechem (possibly Jalmah or similar) is tentatively located by Nelson at Yenina on the south side of the Carmel ridge.
⁴ It is probable from the nature of this coalition and from Thut-mose’s subsequent campaigns that this Kadesh was the city on the Orontes.
⁵ If they went straight ahead on the narrow track debouching just south of Megiddo, they had to go in single file and would be particularly vulnerable.
⁶ Two safer mountain tracks were offered as alternatives, one debouching at Taanach, 4 or 5 miles southeast of Megiddo, and one debouching at an unknown point north (west) of Megiddo.
to the north of Megiddo. Let our victorious lord proceed on the one of [them] which is [satisfactory to] his heart, (but) do not make us go on that difficult road!"

Then messages [were brought in about that wretched enemy, and discussion was continued] of [that] problem on which they had previously spoken. That which was said in the majesty of the Court—life, prosperity, health!—"I [swear], (49) as Re loves me, as my father Amon favors me, as my [nostrils] are rejuvenated with life and satisfaction, my majesty shall proceed upon this Aruna road! Let him of you who wishes go upon these roads of which you speak, and let him of you who wishes come in the following of my majesty! 'Behold,' they will say, these (45) enemies whom Re abominates, 'has his majesty set out on another road because he has become afraid of us?"—so they will speak."

They said in the presence of his majesty: "May thy father Amon, Lord of the Thrones of the Two Lands, Presiding over Karnak, act [according to thy desire]! Behold, we are following thy majesty everywhere that thy majesty goes, for a servant will be after [his] lord."

[Then his majesty laid a charge] (50) upon the entire army: "[Ye] shall [hold fast to the stride of your victorious lord on] that road which becomes (50) na[r-row. Behold, his majesty has taken] an oath, saying: 'I will not let [my victorious army] go forth ahead of my majesty in [this place!] Now his majesty had laid it in his heart] that he himself should go forth at the head of his army. [Every man] was made aware (55) of his order of march, horse following horse, while [his majesty] was at the head of his army.

Then [his] majesty issued forth⁴ [at the head of] his [army], which was [prepared] in many ranks. [He had

They are fallen! While that [wretched] enemy ... [May] ye [give praise] to (70) [him; may ye extol the might of] his majesty, because his arm is greater than (that of) [any king. It has indeed protected the rear of] his majesty's army in Aruna!"

Now while the rear of his majesty's victorious army was (still) at [the town] of Aruna, the vanguard had come out into the [Qi]na Valley, and they filled the mouth of this valley.

Then they said to his majesty—life, prosperity, health! —(75) "Behold, his majesty has come forth with his victorious army, and they have filled the valley. Let our victorious lord listen to us this time, and let our lord guard for us the rear of his army and his people. When the rear of the army comes forth for us into the open, then we shall fight against these foreigners, then we shall not trouble our hearts [about] the rear of (80) our army."

A halt was made by his majesty outside, [seated] there and guarding the rear of his victorious army. Now the [leaders] had just finished coming forth on this road when the shadow turned. His majesty reached the south of Megiddo on the bank of the Qina brook, when the seventh hour was in (its) course in the day.

Then a camp was pitched there for his majesty, and a charge was laid upon the entire army, [saying]: "Prepare ye! Make your weapons ready, since one will engage in combat with that wretched enemy in the morning, because one is ... !"

1 The Qina is still represented by a brook flowing south of Megiddo. When he said: "They are fallen!" he was anticipating the fall of the Asiatics, because they had failed to guard the pass.

A Campaign of Seti I in Northern Palestine

ANET, 253-254

Internally and externally the Amarna Revolution had dealt a serious blow to Egyptian empire. Domestic reorganization was the first need. Then, when Seti I (about 1318-1301 B.C.) became pharaoh, he returned to campaigning in Asia. This stela from Palestinian soil gives a brief statement of his energy in meeting an attempted coalition of Asiatic princes.

Year 1, 3rd month of the third season, day 10.\(^5\) Live the Horus: Mighty Bull, Appearing in Thebes, Making the Two Lands to Live; the Two Goddesses: Repeating Births, Mighty of Arm, Repelling the Nine Bows; the Horus of Gold: Repeating Appearances, Mighty of Bows in All Lands; the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Lord of the Two Lands: Men-maat-Re [Ir]-en-Re; the Son of Re, Lord of Diadems: Seti Mer-ne-Ptah, beloved of Re-Har-akhti, the great god. The good god, potent with his arm, heroic and valiant like Montu, rich in captives, (5) knowing (how to) place his hand, alert wherever he is; speaking with his mouth, acting with his hands, valiant leader of his army, valiant warrior in the very heart of the fray, a Baster\(^7\) terrible in combat, penetrating into a mass of Asiatics and making them prostrate, crushing the princes of Retenu, reaching the (very) ends of (10) him who transgresses against his way. He causes to retreat the princes of Syria,\(^3\) all the boastfulness of whose mouth was (so) great. Every foreign country of the ends of the earth, their princes say: "Where shall we go?" They spend the night giving testimony in his name, saying: "Behold it, behold it!" in their hearts. It is the strength of his father Amon that decreed to him valor and victory.

On this day\(^4\) one came to speak to his majesty, as follows: (15) "The wretched foe who is in the town of Hamath\(^6\) is gathering to himself many people, while he is seizing the town of Beth-Shan. Then there will be an alliance with them of Pahel. He does not permit the Prince of Rehob to go outside."

Thereupon his majesty sent the first army of Amon, (named) "Mighty of Bows," to the town of Hamath, the first army of the (20) Re, (named) "Plentiful of Valor," to the town of Beth-Shan, and the first army of Seth, (named) "Strong of Bows," to the town of Yanoam. When the space of a day had passed, they were overthrown to the glory of his majesty, the King of Upper and Lower Egypt: Men-maat-Re; the Son of Re: Seti Mer-ne-Ptah, given life.

1 Ancient Beth-Shan is modern Tell el-Husn, just northwest of modern Beisan. Hamath is almost certainly Tell el-Hammeh, about 10 mi. south of Beisan. Pahel or Pella is Khirbet Fahl, about 7 mi. southeast of Beisan and across the Jordan. Rehob is probably Tell el-Särem, about 3 mi. south of Beisan. These cities all seem to have lain within a small range. It would seem that Hamath and Pahel were acting against Beth-Shan and Rehob.

2 Seti's dispositions were rapid and effective. One problem here is the reason for sending a unit against Yanoam, which was apparently considerably north of the center of disaffection. Yanoam may be modern Tell en-Na'ameh, north of Lake Huleh and thus nearly 50 mi. north of Beisan. Perhaps the real opposition to Egypt lay to the north, in the territory dominated by the Hittites. By throwing a road-block against reinforcements from the north, Seti I would be able to deal with a localized rebellion around Beth-Shan, without outside interference.

The Report of a Frontier Official

In a group of letters which served as models for schoolboys, one communication presents the form in which an official on the eastern frontier of Egypt might report the passage of Asiatic tribes into the better pasturage of the Delta.

(51) The Scribe Inena communicating to his lord, the Scribe of the Treasury Qa-g[abu], ... —In life, prosperity, health! This is a letter [to] let [my lord] know: An[other communication to] my lord, to wit:

1 The location is the eastern end of the Wadi Tumilat, the "land of Goshen." The Fortress of Mer-ne-Ptah will have been a frontier fortress. Tjeku—or probably Taku—could only with difficulty be Succoth and seems to be a broad designation for the region. 2 The Semitic word berésh is used. 3 Per-Atum, "the House of Atum." Is probably biblical Pithom.

1 "The Birth of Seth" was the 3rd intercalary day at the end of the year. Around 1215 B.C. this would be after the middle of June.

A Syrian Interregnum

For an unknown number of years between the Nineteenth and Twentieth Dynasties Egypt was in a chaotic state and for a part of the time was under the rule of a Syrian. All that we know of this episode comes from the following text.

The Great Papyrus Harris comes from Thebes and dates to the end of the reign of Ramses III (about 1164 B.C.), forming a kind of last will and testament for him. The troubles which he here describes lay between the reign of the last king of the Nineteenth Dynasty (about 1205 B.C.) and the beginning of the reign of Ramses III's father, Setnakht (about 1197 B.C.).

Said King User-maat-Re Meri-Amon—life, prosperity, health!—the great god, to the officials and leaders of the land, the infantry, the chariots, the Sherden, the many bowmen, and all the souls of Egypt:

Hear ye, that I may make you aware of my benefactions which I accomplished while I was king of the people. The land of Egypt had been cast aside, with every man being his (own standard of) right. They had no chief spokesman for many years previously up to other times. The land of Egypt was officials and mayors, one slaying his fellow, both exalted and lowly. Other times came afterwards in the empty years, and a Syrian (5) with them, made himself prince. He set the entire land as tributary before him. One joined his companion that their property might be plundered. They treated the gods like the people, and no offerings were presented in the temples.

But when the gods reversed themselves to show mercy and to set the land right as was its normal state, they established their son, who had come forth from their body, to be Ruler—life, prosperity, health!—of every land, upon their great throne: User-kha-Re Setep-en-Re Meri-Amon—life, prosperity, health!—the Son of Re: Set-nakht Merer-Re Meri-Amon—life, prosperity, health! He was Khepri-Seth when he was enraged. He brought to order the entire land, which had been rebellious. He slew the disaffected of heart who had been in Egypt. He cleansed the great throne of Egypt.

The War Against the Peoples of the Sea

In the latter half of the second millennium B.C. there were extensive movements in the eastern Mediterranean area. Masses of homeless peoples moved slowly across the sea and its coasts, displacing or merging with the older populations. These migrations ended the Minoan civilization in Crete, contributed to the historical populations of Greece and Italy, wiped out the Hittite Empire, thrust the Philistines into Canaan, and washed up on the shores of Egypt. In Ramesses III’s eighth year (about 1188 B.C.) the pharaoh met and checked their attempt to push into the rich lands of the Nile. The victory was only a check, because the Egyptian Empire in Asia ended shortly after. The following accounts of this war come from Ramesses III’s temple of Medinet Habu at Thebes.

(1) Year 8 under the majesty of (Ramesses III)....
(16) ... The foreign countries made a conspiracy in their islands. All at once the lands were removed and scattered in the fray. No land could stand before their arms, from Hatti, Kode, Carchemish, Arzawa, and Alashiya on,² being cut off at [one time]. A camp [was set up] in one place in Amor.³ They desolated its people, and its land was like that which has never come into being. They were coming forward toward Egypt, while the flame was prepared before them. Their confederation was the Philistines, Tjeker, Shekelesh, Denye(n), and Weshesh,⁴ lands united. They laid their hands upon the lands as far as the circuit of the earth, their hearts confident and trusting: “Our plans will succeed!”

¹ Hatti was the Hittite Empire. Kode the coast of Cilicia and northern Syria, Carchemish the city on the Euphrates, Arzawa somewhere in or near Cilicia, and Alashiya probably Cyprus.
² Perhaps in the north Syrian plain or in Cœle-Syria.
Now the heart of this god, the Lord of the Gods, was prepared and ready to ensnare them like birds. ... I organized my frontier in Djahi, prepared before them: princes, commanders of garrisons, (20) and marayunu. I have the river-mouts prepared like a strong wall, with warships, galleys and coasters, (fully) equipped, for they were manned completely from bow to stern with valiant warriors carrying their weapons. The troops consisted of every picked man of Egypt. They were like lions roaring upon the mountain tops. The chariots consisted of runners, of picked men, of every good and capable chariot-warrior. The horses were quivering in every part of their bodies, prepared to crush the foreign countries under their hoofs. I was the valiant Montu, standing fast at their head, so that they might gaze upon the capturing of my hands. ...

Those who reached my frontier, their seed is not, their heart and their soul are finished forever and ever. Those who came forward together on the sea, the full flame was in front of them at the river-mouths, while a stockade of lances surrounded them on the shore. They were dragged in, enclosed, and prostrated on the beach, killed, and made into heaps from tail to head. Their ships and their goods were as if fallen into the water.

I have made the lands turn back from (even) mentioning Egypt; for when they pronounce my name in their land, then (25) they are burned up. Since I sat upon the throne of Har-akhthi and the Great-of-Magic was fixed upon my head like Re, I have not let foreign countries behold the frontier of Egypt, to boast thereof to the Nine Bows. I have taken away their land, their frontiers being added to mine. Their princes and their tribespeople are mine with praise, for I am on the ways of the plans of the All-Lord, my august, divine father, the Lord of the Gods.

1 The Phoenician coast, running down into Palestine. From what little we know of Ramses III's way, his defensive frontier was not north of Palestine. It is possible that the land battle against the Peoples of the Sea was in Asia, whereas the sea battle was on the coast of Egypt.

2 Normally used for the mouths of the branches of the Nile in the Delta. Hence probably the line of defense in Egypt. Just possibly, the word might have been extended to harborage on the Asiatic coast. 3 The god of war.

4 One body had to be met on land (in Djahi?), whereas another body had to be met on sea (in the Delta?). The scenes show the boats of the Peoples of the Sea and also a movement by land in ox-carts, with women, children, and goods.

The Megiddo Ivories

A large collection of "Phoenician ivories" was found by excavation in a palace at Megiddo in Palestine. The carved designs were cosmopolitanly derived from various culture areas of the ancient Near East. The excavator tentatively dates the manufacture of the pieces between 1350 and 1150 B.C. Among the ivories are five bearing Egyptian hieroglyphs. A model pen case of an Egyptian envoy to foreign countries bears the name of Ramses III (about 1185-1164 B.C.), setting the terminus ad quem for the collection.

Three plaques, which may have been used for inlay in furniture, bear the name of the Singer of Ptah, South-of-His-Wall, Lord of the Life of the Two Lands, and Great Prince of Ashkelon, Kerker.

The Campaign of Sheshonk I

Sheshonk I (about 945-924 B.C.) is the Shishak of the Old Testament. It is disappointing to find that the Egyptian texts do not enlarge our understanding of his campaign in Palestine in a sense which constitutes a real addition to the biblical account. To be sure, he has left us a listing of the Palestinian and Syrian towns which he claimed to have conquered, and this list may be reconstructed into a kind of itinerary. There is, however, no narrative account of the campaign by the pharaoh. The references in his inscriptions to "tribute of the land of Syria" or to his victories over the "Asiatics of distant foreign countries" are vague and generalized. How unhistorical his large claims were is clear from a statement to the pharaoh by the god Amon: "I have subjugated [for] thee the Asiatics of the armies of Mitanni." Mitanni as a nation had ceased to exist at least four centuries earlier.

In addition to the list of towns, we do possess two documents attesting the name of Sheshonk on Asiatic soil. At Megiddo in Palestine was found a fragment of a monumental stela bearing the name of Sheshonk I and permitting the conclusion that the pharaoh had set up a triumphal monument there. At Byblos in Phoenicia another fragment, this time the chair of a seated statue, bears his name, although this monument may well be a princely gift, rather than a symbol of conquest.

Finally, the Walters Art Gallery in Baltimore has a basalt statuette of an Egyptian, the "Envoy of the Canaan and of Palestine, Pa-di-Eset, the son of Apy," which may date to the Twenty-second Dynasty. This piece does not involve conquest, but rather diplomatic relations.¹

¹ G. Steindorff points out that the father's name may be Canaanite in origin.

ASHURNASIRPAL II (883-859): EXPEDITION TO THE LEBANON

From the annals inscribed on the large pavement slabs of the temple of Ninurta in Calah, the new royal residence built by Ashurnasirpal II.

At that time I seized the entire extent of the Lebanon mountain and reached the Great Sea of Amurru country. I cleaned my weapons in the deep sea and performed sheep-offerings to (all) the gods. I ascended the mountains of the Amanus (Hamani) and cut down (there) logs of cedars, stone-pines, cypresses (and) pines, and performed sheep-offerings to my gods. I (had) made a sculptured stela (commemorating) my heroic achievements and erected (it) there. SHALMANESER III (858-824): THE FIGHT AGAINST THE ARAMEAN COALITION

First Year according to the so-called "Monolith Inscriptions":

At that time, I paid homage to the greatness of (all) the great gods (and) extolled for posterity the heroic achievements of Ashur and Shamash by fashioning a (sculptured) stela with myself as king (depicted on it).
I wrote thereupon my heroic behavior, my deeds in combat and erected it beside the source of the Saluara river which is at the foot of the mountains of the Amanus. [their/his army] I scattered, I stormed and conquered the town... I carried away as booty..., his horses, broken to the yoke. I slew with the sword... During this battle I personally captured Bur-Anate from Iasbuq. I con[quered] the great cities (mahāzu) of Hattina... I overthrew the... of the Upper [Sea] of Amurru and of the Western Sea (so that they became) like ruin-hills (left by) the flood. I received tribute from the kings of the seashore. I marched straightaway, unopposed... throughout the wide seashore. I fashioned a stela with an image of myself as overlord in order to make my name/fame lasting forever and erected it near the sea. I ascended the mountains of the Amanus, I cut there cedar and pine timber. I went to the mountain region Atalur, where the statue of the god Hirbe is set up and erected (there) a (another) statue (of mine) beside his statue. I de[parted] from the sea; I conquered the towns Taia, Hazazu, Nulia (and) Butamu which (belong) to the country Hattina. I killed 2,900 of [their] battle-experienced soldiers; 14,600 I brought away as prisoners of war. I received the tribute of Arame, man of Gusi, (to wit): silver, gold, large [and small] cattle, wine, a couch of whittish gold.

Sixth Year according to the Monolith-Inscription.

(ii 78—102)

In the year of (the eponym) Daian-Ashur, in the month Aiaru, the 14th day, I departed from Nineveh. I crossed the Tigris and approached the towns of Giammu on the river Balin. They became afraid of the terror emanating from my position as overlord, as well as of the splendor of my fierce weapons, and killed their master Giammu with their own weapons. I entered the towns Sahlala and Til-sha-Turahi and brought my gods/ images into his palaces. I performed the tašiltu-festival in his (own) palaces. I opened (his) treasury, inspected what he had hidden; I carried away as booty his possessions; bringing (them) to my town Ashur. From Sahhala I departed and approached Kar-Shalmaneser. I crossed the Euphrates another time at its flood on rafts (made buoyant by means) of (inflated) goatskins. In Ina-Ashur-utir-asbat, which the people of Hattina call Pitru, on the other side of the Euphrates, on the river Sagur, I received tribute from the kings of the other side of the Euphrates—that is, of Sanagara from Carchemish, Kundashpi from Commagene, of Arame, man of Gusi, of Lalli from Melitene (Melid), of Haiani, son of Gabari, of Kalparuda from Hattina, (and) of Kalparuda of Gurgum—(consisting of): silver, gold, tin, copper (or bronze), copper containers. I departed from the banks of the Euphrates and approached Aleppo (Hal-mi-an). They (i.e., the inhabitants of A.) were afraid to fight and seized my feet (in submission). I received silver and gold as their tribute and offered sacrifices before the Adad of Aleppo. I departed from Aleppo and approached the two towns of Irhuleni from Hamath (Amar). I captured the towns Adennu, Barga (and) Argana his royal residence. I removed from them his booty (as well as) his personal (lit.: of his palaces) possessions. I set his palaces afire. I departed from Argana and approached Karkara. I destroyed, tore down and burned down Karkara, his (text: my) royal residence. He brought along to help him 1,200 chariots, 1,200 cavalrymen, 20,000 foot soldiers of Adad-idri (i.e. Hadadezer) of Damascus (Imēritu), 700 chariots, 700 cavalrymen, 10,000 foot soldiers of Irhuleni from Hamath, 2,000 chariots, 10,000 foot soldiers of Ahab, the Israelite (A-ha-ab-bu(m) Sir-i-la-a-a), 500 soldiers from Que, 1,000 soldiers from Musri, 10 chariots, 10,000 soldiers from Irqanata, 200 soldiers of Matinu-ba’lu from Arvad, 200 soldiers from Usanata, 30 chariots, 1[0?]0,000 soldiers of Adunu-ba’lu from Shian, 1,000 camel-(rider)s of Gindibu’, from Arabia, [ ... ]0,000 soldiers of Ba’ša, son of Ruhubi, from Ammon—all together these were twelve kings. They rose against me [for a] decisive battle. I fought with them with (the support of) the mighty forces of Ashur, which Ashur, my lord, has given to me, and the strong weapons which Nergal, my leader, has presented to me, (and) I did inflict a defeat upon them between the towns Karkara and Gilzau. I slew 14,000 of their soldiers with the sword, descending upon them like Adad when he makes a rainstorm pour down. I spread their corpses (everywhere), filling the entire plain with their widely scattered (fleeing) soldiers. During the battle I made their blood flow down the hur-pa-liu of the district. The plain was too small to let (all) their (text: his) souls descend (into the nether world), the vast field gave out (when it came) to bury them. With their (text: sing.) corpses I spanned the Orontes before there was a bridge. Even during the battle I took from them their chariots, their horses broken to the yoke.

This expression seems to indicate that the "souls" of the numerous dying soldiers were conceived as slipping down to the nether world through holes or cavities in the ground and that the massed corpses actually did cover the battlefield so completely as to make this descent difficult.

_Eighteenth Year_ according to the fragment of an annalistic text

In the eighteenth year of my rule I crossed the Euphrates for the sixteenth time. Hazael of Damascus (Imēritu) put his trust upon his numerous army and called up his troops in great number, making the mountain Senir (Sa-ni-ru), a mountain, facing the Lebanon, to his fortress. I fought with him and inflicted a defeat upon him, killing with the sword 16,000 of his experienced soldiers. I took away from him 1,121 chariots, 470 riding horses as well as his camp. He disappeared to save his life (but) I followed him and besieged him in Damascus (Di-mal-qi), his royal residence. (There) I cut down his gardens (outside of the city, and departed). I marched as far as the mountains of Hauran (sad₂ mašt Ha-ū-ra-ni), destroying, tearing down and burning innumerable towns, carrying booty away from them which was beyond counting. I (also) marched as far as the mountains of Ba’li-ra’i which is a promontory (lit.: at the side of the sea) and erected there a stela with my image as king. At that time I received the tribute of the inhabitants of Tyre, Sidon, and of Jehu, son of Omri (Ia-ū-a mār Ḥu-um-ri-i).

Inscription from a marble bead

The tribute of Jehu (Ia-ú-a), son of Omri (Hu-um-ri); I received from him silver, gold, a golden saplu-bowl, a golden vase with pointed bottom, golden tumblers, golden buckets, tin, a staff for a king, (and) wooden puruhtu.

ADAD-NIRARI III (810-783): EXPEDITION TO PALESTINE

ANET, 281

(1—14)

Property of Adad-nirari, great king, legitimate king, king of the world, king of Assyria—a king whom Ashur, the king of the Igigi (i.e. the dei superi) had chosen (already) when he was a youngster, entrusting him with the position of a prince without rival, (a king) whose shepherding they made as agreeable to the people of Assyria as (is the smell of) the Plant of Life, (a king) whose throne they established firmly; the holy high priest (and) tireless caretaker of the temple c.sá̄r.ta, who keeps up the rites of the sanctuary, who acts (only) upon the trust-inspiring oracles (given) by Ashur, his lord; who has made submit to his feet the princes within the four rims of the earth; conquering from the Siluna mountain of the Rising Sun, the countries Saban, Ellipi, Harhar, Arapiash, Mesu, the (country of the) Medians, Gizilbunda in its (full) extent, the countries Munna, Persia (Parsua), Allabria, Apdadana, Na’tri with all its regions, Andiu which lies far away in the pithu of the mountains with all its regions, as far as the Great Sea of the Rising Sun (and) from the banks of the Euphrates, the country of the Hittites, Amurru-country in its full extent, Tyre, Sidon, Israel ("Hu-um-ri"), Edom, Palestine (Pa-la-as-tu), as far as the shore of the Great Sea of the Setting Sun, I made them submit all to my feet, imposing upon them tribute.

TIGLATH-PILESER III (744-727): CAMPAIGNS AGAINST SYRIA AND PALESTINE

From a building inscription on clay preserved in various copies.

(56–63)

I installed Idi-bi’li as a Warden of Marches on the border of Musur. In all the countries which ... [I received] the tribute of Kushtashpi of Commagene (Kumuḫu), Uriq of Qu’e, Sibitti-be’l of Byblos, ... Enil of Hamath, Panammu of Sam’al, Tarhulara of Gumgum, Sululmal of Militene, ... 1 The term sēbaru (Sumerogram: 4.646) denotes a rarely used metal, probably magnesite. For unknown reasons, it has mostly been used for small objects and tools (spoon, ax, etc.) prescribed for ritual purposes.

Year Unknown.

(150–157)

I received tribute from Kushtashpi of Commagene (Kumuḫu), Rezon (Ra-ḫi-a-nu) of Damascus (Sa-imērišu), Menahem of Samaria (Me-ni-ḫi-im-me Ṣame-ri-na-a-a), Hiram (Hi-ru-um-mu) of Tyre, Sibitti-bi’li of Byblos, Uriqki of Qu’e, Pisiris of Carchemish, I'nil of Hamath, Panammu of Sam’al, Tarhulara of Gurgum, Sululmal of Militene, Dadilu of Kaska, Usas-

SARGON II (721-705): THE FALL OF SAMARIA

(a) Inscriptions of a General Nature

"Pavé des Portes," No. IV, lines 31-44.

(Property of Sargon, etc., king of Assyria, etc.) conqueror of Samaria (Sa-mir-i-na) and of the entire (country of) Israel (Bit-Hu-um-ri-a) who despoiled Ashdod (and) Shinuhti, who caught the Greeks who (live on islands) in the sea, like fish, who exterminated Kasku, all Tabali and Cilicia (Hilakku), who chased away Midas (Mi-ta-a) king of Musku, who defeated Musur (Mu-su-ri) in Rapihu, who declared Hanno, king of Gaza, as booty, who subdued the seven kings of the country La', a district on Cyprus (I-la-ad-na-na), (who) dwell (on an island) in the sea, at (a distance of) a seven-day journey.

(b) From Annalistic Reports

First Year, (10—17)

At the beginnning of my royal rule, I ... the town of the Sama'rians [I besieged, conquered] (2 lines destroyed) [for the god ... who let me achieve (this) my triumph. ... I led away as prisoners [27,290 inhabitants of it (and) [equipped] from among [them (soldiers to man)] 50 chariots for my royal corps, ... [The town I re[built] better than (it was) before and [settled] therein people from countries which [I] myself [had conquered]. I placed an officer of mine as governor over them and imposed upon them tribute as (is customary) for Assyrian citizens.

According to the Display Inscriptions, (23—26)

I besieged and conquered Samaria (Sa-me-ri-na), led away as booty 27,290 inhabitants of it. I formed from among them a contingent of 50 chariots and made remaining (inhabitants) assume their (social) positions. I installed over them an officer of mine and imposed upon them the tribute of the former king. Hanno, king of Gaza and also Sib'e, the turtan of Egypt (Mu-su-ri), set out from Rapihu against me to deliver a decisive battle. I defeated them; Sib'e ran away, afraid when he (only) heard the noise of my (approaching) army, and has not been seen again. Hanno, I captured personally. I received the tribute from Pir’u of Musuru, from Samsi, queen of Arabia (and) It’amar the Sabaeans, gold in dust-form, horses (and) camels.

According to the Annals of the Room XIV. (11—15)

Iamani from Ashdod, afraid of my armed force (lit.: weapons), left his wife and children and fled to the frontier of M[usuru] which belongs to Meluhha (i.e., Ethiopia) and hid (lit.: stayed) there like a thief. I installed an officer of mine as governor over his entire large country and its prosperous inhabitants, (thus) aggrandizing (again) the territory belonging to Ashur, the king of the gods. The terror(-inspiring) glamor of Ashur, my lord, overpowered (however) the king of Meluhha and he threw him (i.e., Iamani) in fetters on hands and feet, and sent him to me, to Assyria. I conquered and sacked the towns Shinuhtu (and) Samaria, and all Israel (lit.: “Omrī-Land” Bit Ḥu-um-ri-ia). I caught, like a fish, the Greek (Ionians) who live (on islands) amidst the Western Sea.

According to the Display Inscriptions. (33—37)

Ia’ubidi from Hamath, a commoner without claim to the throne, a cursed Hittite, schemed to become king of Hamath, induced the cities Arpad, Simirra, Damascus (Di-ma-li-qa”) and Samaria to desert me, made them collaborate and fitted out an army. I called up the masses of the soldiers of Ashur and besieged him and his warriors in Qarqar, his favorite city. I conquered (it) and burnt (it). Himself I flayed; the rebels I killed in their cities and established (again) peace and harmony. A contingent of 200 chariots and 600 men on horseback I formed from among the inhabitants of Hamath and added them to my royal corps.

Seventh Year. (120—125)

Upon a trust(-inspiring oracle given by) my lord Ashur, I crushed the tribes of Tamud, Ibadidi, Mar- simanu, and Haiapa, the Arabs who live, far away, in the desert (and) who know neither overseers nor official(s) and who had not (yet) brought their tribute to any king. I deported their survivors and settled (them) in Samaria.

From Pir’u, the king of Musru, Samsi, the queen of Arabia, It'amra, the Sabaeans,—the(se) are the kings of the seashore and from the desert—I received as their presents, gold in the form of dust, precious stones, ivory, ebony-seeds,¹ all kinds of aromatic substances, horses (and) camels. These are part of the Mesopotamian pharmacopoeia.

Eleventh Year. According to the Display Inscription

(90—112)

Azuri, king of Ashdod, had schemed not to deliver tribute any more and sent messages (full) of hostilities against Assyria, to the kings (living) in his neighborhood. On account of the(se) act(s) which he committed, I abolished his rule over the people of his country and made Ahimiti, his younger brother, king over them. But the(se) Hittites, always planning evil deeds, hated his reign and elevated to rule over them a Greek (Ia-ma-ni) who, without any claim to the throne, had no respect for authority—just as they themselves. In a sudden rage, I did not (wait to) assemble the full might of my army (or to) prepare the camp(ing equipment), but started out towards Ashdod (only) with those of my warriors who, even in friendly areas, never leave my side. But this Greek heard about the advance of my expedition, from afar, and he fled into the territory of Musru—which belongs (now) to Ethiopia —and his (hiding) place could not be detected. I besieged (and) conquered the cities Ashdod, Gath, Asdummu; I declared his images, his wife, his children, all the possessions and treasures of his palace as well as the inhabitants of his country as booty. I reorganized (the administration of) these cities (and) settled therein people from the [regions] of the East which I had conquered personally. I installed an officer of mine over them and declared them Assyrian citizens and they pulled (as such) the straps (of my yoke). The king of Ethiopia who [lives] in [a distant country], in an inapproachable region, the road [to which is . . .], whose fathers never—from remote days until now¹—had sent messengers to inquire after the health of my royal forefathers, he did hear, even (that) far away, of the might of Ashur, Nebo (and) Marduk. The awe-inspiring glamor of my kingship blinded him and terror overcame him. He threw him (i.e. the Greek) in fetters, shackles and iron bands, and they brought him to Assyria, a long journey.
(c) From Broken Prisms

According to the broken Prism A

[Aziru, king] of Ashdod (lacuna) on account of [this crime ... ] from ... Aliimiti ... his younger brother over [them ... ] I made (him) ruler ... tribute ... like (those of) the [former] kings, I imposed upon him. [But these] accursed [Hittites] conceived [the idea] of not delivering the tribute and [started] a rebellion against their ruler; they expelled him ... (Ia-ma-ni) a Greek, comm[oner without claim to the throne] to be king over them, they made sit down [on the very throne] of his (former) master and [they ... ] their city of (or: for) the at[tack] (lacuna of 3 lines) ... its neighborhood, a moat [they prepared] of a depth of 20 + x cubits ... it (even) reached the underground water, in order to ... Then [to] the rulers of Palestine (Pi-liš-te), Judah (Ia-ú-di), Ed[om], Moab (and) those who live (on islands) and bring tribute [and] tāmartu -gifts to my lord Ashur—[he spread] countless evil lies to alienate (them) from me, and (also) sent bribes to Pir'u, king of Musru—a potentate, incapable to save them—and asked him to be an ally. But I, Sargon, the rightful ruler, devoted to the pronouncements (uttered by) Nebo and Marduk, (carefully) observing the orders of Ashur, led my army over the Tigris and the Euphrates, at the peak of the(ir) flood, the spring flood, as (if it be) dry ground. This Greek, however, their king who had put his trust in his own power and (therefore) did not bow to my (divinely ordained) rulership, heard about the approach of my expedition (while I was still) far away, and the splendor of my lord Ashur overwhelmed him and ... he fled ....

Nimrud Inscription, (8)

(Property of Sargon, etc.) the subduer of the country Judah (Ia-ú-du) which is far away, the uprooter of Hamath, the ruler of which—Iau’bidi—he captured personally.†

† After his victory over Iau-bi’di at Qarqar, Sargon erected various stelae commemorating this event.
SENNACHERIB (704-681): THE SIEGE OF JERUSALEM

From the Prism of Sennacherib.

In my third campaign I marched against Hatti. Luli, king of Sidon, whom the terror-inspiring glamor of my lordship had overwhelmed, fled far overseas and perished. The awe-inspiring splendor of the "Weapon" of Ashur, my lord, overwhelmed his strong cities (such as) Great Sidon, Little Sidon, Bit-Zitti, Zaribtu, Mahalib, Ushu (i.e. the mainland settlement of Tyre), Akzib (and) Akko, (all) his fortress cities, walled (and well) provided with feed and water for his garrisons, and they bowed in submission to my feet. I installed Ethba' al (Tuba'lu) upon the throne to be their king and imposed upon him tribute (due) to me (as his) overlord (to be paid) annually without interruption.

As to all the kings of Amurru—Menahem (Mi-in-hi-im-mu) from Samsimuruna, Tuba'lu from Sidon, Abdili'ti from Arvad, Urumiliki from Byblos, Mitinti from Ashdod, Buduili from Beth-Ammon, Kammusunadbi from Moab (and) Aiarammu from Edom, they brought sumptuous gifts (igisù) and—fourfold—their heavy tāmaru -presents to me and kissed my feet. Sidqia, however, king of Ashkelon, who did not bow to my yoke, I deported and sent to Assyria, his family-gods, himself, his wife, his children, his brothers, all the male descendants of his family. I set Sharruludari, son of Rukibtu, their former king, over the inhabitants of Ashkelon and imposed upon him the payment of tribute (and of) katra -presents (due) to me (as) overlord—and he (now) pulls the straps (of my yoke)!

In the continuation of my campaign I besieged Beth-Dagon, Joppa, Banai-Barqa, Azuru, cities belonging to Sidqia who did not bow to my feet quickly (enough); I conquered (them) and carried their spoils away. The officials, the patricians and the (common) people of Ekron— who had thrown Padi, their king, into fetters (because he was) loyal to (his) solemn oath (sworn) by the god Ashur, and had handed him over to Hezekiah, the Jew (Ha-za-qi-i)ā-ā-u mī’īl-ī-dā-da-a-rī) (and) he (Hezekiah) held him in prison, unlawfully, as if he (Padi) be an enemy—had become afraid and had called (for help) upon the kings of Egypt (Muṣ(u)ri) (and) the bowmen, the chariot(-corps) and the cavalry of the king of Ethiopia (Meluḥḥa), an army beyond counting—and they (actually) had come to their assistance. In the plain of Eltekeh (Al-ta-qu-ū), their battle lines were drawn up against me and they sharpened their weapons. Upon a trust-(inspiring) oracle (given) by Ashur, my lord, I fought with them and inflicted a defeat upon them. In the mêlée of the battle, I personally captured alive the Egyptian charioteers with the(ir) princes and (also) the charioteers of the king of Ethiopia. I besieged Eltekeh (and) Timnah (Ta-am-na-a), conquered (them) and carried their spoils away. I assaulted Ekron and killed the officials and patricians who had committed the crime and hung their bodies on poles surrounding the city. The (common) citizens who were guilty of minor crimes, I considered prisoners of war. The rest of them, those who were not accused of crimes and misbehavior, I released. I made Padi, their king, come from Jerusalem (Ur-sa-li-im-mu) and set him as their lord on the throne, imposing upon him the tribute (due) to me (as) overlord.

As to Hezekiah, the Jew, he did not submit to my yoke, I laid siege to 46 of his strong cities, walled forts and to the countless small villages in their vicinity, and conquered (them) by means of well-stamped (earth-)ramps, and battering-rams brought (thus) near (to the walls) (combined with) the attack by foot soldiers, (using) mines, breeches as well as sapper work. I drove out (of them) 200,150 people, young and old, male and female, horses, mules, donkeys, camels, big and small cattle beyond counting, and considered (them) booty. Himself I made a prisoner in Jerusalem, his royal residence, like a bird in a cage. I surrounded him with earthwork in order to molest those who were leaving his city’s gate. His towns which I had plundered, I took away from his country and gave them (over) to Mitinti, king of Ashdod, Padi, king of Ekron, and Sillibel, king of Gaza. Thus I reduced his country, but I still increased the tribute and the kattrú -presents (due) to me (as his) overlord which I imposed (later) upon him beyond the former tribute, to be delivered annually. Hezekiah himself, whom the terror-inspiring splendor of my lordship had overwhelmed and whose irregular and elite troops which he had brought into Jerusalem, his royal residence, in order to strengthen (it), had deserted him, did send me, later, to Nineveh, my lordly city, together with 30 talents of gold, 800 talents of silver, precious stones, antimony; large cuts of red stone, couches (inlaid) with ivory, nimedu-chairs (inlaid) with ivory, elephant-hides, ebony-wood, box-wood (and) all kinds of valuable treasures, his (own) daughters, concubines, male and female musicians. In order to deliver the tribute and to do obeisance as a slave he sent his (personal) messenger.

This refers probably to stibnite, which might have been used as an eye paint (beside the cheaper and efficient substitute, burnt shells of almond and soot). Stibium is easily reduced and the metal is sporadically attested in Mesopotamia since the Neo-Sumerian period.

ESARHADDON (680-669): THE SYRO-PALESTINIAN CAMPAIGN

From the Prism B.

I called up the kings of the country Hatti and (of the region) on the other side of the river (Euphrates) (to wit): Ba’lu, king of Tyre, Manasseh (Me-na-si-i), king of Judah (Ia-û-di), Qausagabri, king of Edom, Musuri, king of Moab, Sil-Bel, king of Gaza, Metinti, king of Ashkelon, Ikausu, king of Ekron, Milkashapa, king of Byblos, Matanba’al, king of Arvad, Abiba’al, king of Samsimmuruna, Puduil, king of Beth-Ammon, Ahimilki, king of Ashdod—12 kings from the seacoast;

Ekiishtura, king of Edi’īl (Idalion), Pilagura (Pythagoras), king of Kistrusi (Chytros), Kisu, king of Sillu’ua (Soli), Ituandar, king of Pappa (Paphos), Erisu, king of Silli, Damasu, king of Kuri (Curium), Atmesu, king of Tamesi, Damusi, king of Qarti-hadasti (Carthage), Unasagusu, king of Lidir (Ledra), Bususu, king of Nuria,—10 kings from Cyprus (Iadnana) amidst the sea, together 22 kings of Hatti, the seashore and the islands; all these I sent out and made them transport under terrible difficulties, to Nineveh, the town (where I exercise) my rulership, as building material for my palace: big logs, long beams (and) thin boards from cedar and pine trees, products of the Sirara and Lebanon

He took much booty from it and sent (it) to Babylon.

THE FALL OF BABYLON

Eleventh year: The king (stayed) in Tema; the crown prince, the officials and his army (were) in Akkad. The king did not come to Babylon for the (ceremonies of the) month Nisanu, Nebo did not come to Babylon, Bel did not go out (from Esagila in procession), the festival of the New Year was omitted, (but) the offerings for the gods of Babylon and Borsippa were given according to the complete (ritual).

The gods from Borsippa, Kutha, . . . and Sippar (however) did not enter. In the month of Tashritu, when Cyrus attacked the army of Akkad in Opis on the Tigris, the inhabitants of Akkad revolted, but he (Nabonidus) massacred the confused inhabitants. The 14th day, Sippar was seized without battle. Nabonidus fled. The 16th day, Gobryas (Ugbaru), the governor of Gutium and the army of Cyrus entered Babylon without battle. Afterwards Nabonidus was arrested in Babylon when he returned (there). Till the end of the month, the shield(-carrying) Gutians were staying within Esagila (but) nobody carried arms in Esagila and its (pertinent) buildings, the correct time (for a ceremony) was not missed. In the month of Arahshamnu, the 3rd day, Cyrus entered Babylon, green twigs were spread in front of him—the state of "Peace" (Iulmu) was imposed upon the city. Cyrus sent greetings to all Babylon, Gobryas, his governor, installed (sub-)governors in Babylon. From the month of Kislimu to the month of Addaru, the gods of Akkad which Nabonidus had made come down to Babylon . . . returned to their sacred cities. (1) From administrative documents found in Babylon, some information concerning the fate of Jehoiachin, king of Judah, can now be gathered. These cuneiform tablets list deliveries of oil for the subsistence of individuals who are either prisoners of war or otherwise dependent upon the royal household. They are identified by name, profession, and/or nationality. The two tablets, so far published, also mention, beside Judeans, inhabitants of Ashkelon, Tyre, Byblos, Arvad, and, further, Egyptians, Medeans, Persians, Lydians, and Greeks.

... [r]ims (of the world) ... a weakling has been installed as the ensî of his country; [the correct images of the gods he removed from their thrones, imitations he ordered to place upon them. A replica of the temple Esagila he has ... for Ur and the other sacred cities inappropriate rituals ... daily he did blabber [incorrect prayers]. He (furthermore) interrupted in a fiendish way the regular offerings, he did ... he established within the sacred cities. The worship of Marduk, the king of the gods, he [changed into abomination, daily he used to do evil against his (i.e. Marduk's) city. ...

He [tormented] its [inhabitant]s with corvée-work (lit.: a yoke) without relief, he ruined them all.

Upon their complaints the lord of the gods became terribly angry and [he departed from] their region, (also) the (other) gods living among them left their mansions, wroth that he had brought (them) into Babylon (Šu. a n. n a'). (But) Marduk [who does care for] ... on account of (the fact that) the sanctuaries of all their settlements were in ruins and the inhabitants of Sumer and Akkad had become like (living) dead, turned back (his countenance) [his] an[ger] [abated] and he had mercy (upon them). He scanned and looked (through) all the countries, searching for a righteous ruler willing to lead him (i.e. Marduk) (in the annual procession). (Then) he pronounced the name of Cyrus (Ku-ra-š), king of Anshan, declared him (lit.: pronounced [his] name) to be (come) the ruler of all the world. He made the Guti country and all the Manda-hordes bow in submission to his (i.e. Cyrus') feet. And he (Cyrus) did always endeavour to treat according to justice the black-headed whom he (Marduk) has made him conquer. Marduk, the great lord, a protector of his people/worshipers, beheld with pleasure his (i.e. Cyrus') good deeds and his upright mind (lit.: heart) (and therefore) ordered him to march against his city Babylon (Ká.dîngir.ıra). He

1 The old Sumerian title appears here in a context which seems to indicate that the primitive concept concerning the intimate connection between the physical vitality of the ruler and the prosperity of the country, was still valid in the political speculations of the Babylonian clergy.
made him set out on the road to Babylon (\textit{din.tir}^{ki}) go ing at his side like a real friend. His widespread troops—their number, like that of the water of a river, could not be established—strolled along, their weapons packed away. Without any battle, he made him enter his town Babylon (\textit{Su ana}), sparing Babylon (\textit{Ka din gir ra}^{ki}) any calamity. He delivered into his (i.e. Cyrus') hands Nabonidus, the king who did not worship him (i.e. Marduk). All the inhabitants of Babylon (\textit{din.tir}^{ki}) as well as of the entire country of Sumer and Akkad, princes and governors (included), bowed to him (Cyrus) and kissed his feet, jubilant that he (had received) the kingship, and with shining faces. Happily they greeted him as a master through whose help they had come (again) to life from death
(and) had all been spared damage and disaster, and they worshiped his (very) name.

I am Cyrus, king of the world, great king, legitimate king, king of Babylon, king of Sumer and Akkad, kings of the four rims (of the earth), son of Cambyses (\textit{Ka-am-bu-zi-ia}), great king, king of Anshan, grandson of Cyrus, great king, king of Anshan, descendant of Teispes (\textit{Si-is-pi-is}), great king, king of Anshan, of a family (which) always (exercised) kingship; whose rule Bel and Nebo love, whom they want as king to please their hearts.

When I entered Babylon (\textit{din.tir}^{ki}) as a friend and (when) I established the seat of the government in the palace of the ruler under jubilation and rejoicing, Marduk, the great lord, [induced] the magnanimous inhabitants of Babylon (\textit{din.tir}^{ki}) [to love me], and I was daily endeavouring to worship him. My numerous troops walked around in Babylon (\textit{din.tir}^{ki}) in peace,
I did not allow anybody to terrorize (any place) of the [country of Sumer] and Akkad. I strove for peace in Babylon (\textit{Ka din gir ra}^{ki}) and in all his (other) sacred cities. As to the inhabitants of Babylon (\textit{din.tir}^{ki}), [who] against the will of the gods [had/were . . . , I abolished] the corvée (lit.: yoke) which was against their (social) standing. I brought relief to their dilapidated housing, putting (thus) an end to their (main) complaints. Marduk, the great lord, was well pleased with my deeds and sent friendly blessings to myself, Cyrus, the king who worships him, to Cambyses, my son, the offspring of [my] loins, as well as to all my troops, and we all [praised] his great [godhead] joyously, standing before him in peace.

All the kings of the entire world from the Upper to the Lower Sea, those who are seated in throne rooms, (those who) live in other [types of buildings as well as] all the kings of the West land living in tents, brought their heavy tributes and kissed my feet in Babylon (Šu.a.n.na). (As to the region) from ... as far as Ashur and Susa, Agade, Eshnunna, the towns Zamban, Me-Turnu,7 Der as well as the region of the Gutians, I returned to (these) sacred cities on the other side of the Tigris, the sanctuaries of which have been ruins for a long time, the images which (used) to live therein and established for them permanent sanctuaries. I (also) gathered all their (former) inhabitants and returned (to them) their habitations. Furthermore, I resettled upon the command of Marduk, the great lord, all the gods of Sumer and Akkad whom Nabonidus has brought into Babylon (Šu.a.n.našt) to the anger of the lord of the gods, unharmed, in their (former) chapels, the places which make them happy.

May all the gods whom I have resettled in their sacred cities ask daily Bel and Nebo for a long life for me and may they recommend me (to him); to Marduk, my lord, they may say this: "Cyrus, the king who worships you, and Cambyses, his son, ..." ... all of them I settled in a peaceful place ... ducks and doves, ... I endeavoured to fortify/repair their dwelling places. ... (six lines destroyed)

VIII. Palestinian Inscriptions

The Gezer Calendar

This little inscription was discovered at Gezer in 1908 by R. A. S. Macalister; it is on a school exercise tablet of soft limestone. For a number of years its date was uncertain, but recent discoveries establish its relative archaism and point to the second half of the tenth century or the very beginning of the ninth as its probable time. The writer would date it in or about the third quarter of the tenth century—about 925 B.C. in round numbers. The language is good biblical Hebrew, in a very early spelling; it is written in verse and seems to have been a kind of mnemonic ditty for children.

His two months are (olive) harvest,
(tricolon, 2:2:2)
His two months are planting (grain),
His two months are late planting;
His month is hoeing up of flax,
(tricolon, 3:3:3)
His month is harvest of barley,
His month is harvest and feasting;
His two months are vine-tending,
(bicolon, 2:2)
His month is summer fruit.

The Moabite Stone

This important inscription was discovered intact in 1869; it was subsequently broken by the Arabs and in 1873 it was taken to the Louvre.

The date of the Mesha Stone is roughly fixed by the reference to Mesha, king of Moab, in II Kings 3:4, after 849 B.C. However, since the contents of the stela point to a date toward the end of the king’s reign, it seems probable that it should be placed between 840 and 820, perhaps about 830 B.C. in round numbers.

I (am) Mesha, son of Chemosh-[ ... ], king of Moab, the Dibonite—my father (had) reigned over Moab thirty years, and I reigned after my father,—(who) made this high place for Chemosh in Qarhoh [ ... ] because he saved me from all the kings and caused me to triumph over all my adversaries. As for Omri, (5) king of Israel, he humbled Moab many years (lit., days), for Chemosh was angry at his land. And his son followed him and he also said, “I will humble Moab.” In my time he spoke (thus), but I have triumphed over him and over his house, while Israel hath perished for ever! (Now) Omri had occupied the land of Medeba, and (Israel) had dwelt there in his time and half the time of his son (Ahab), forty years; but Chemosh dwelt there in my time.

And I built Baal-meon, making a reservoir in it, and I built (10) Qaryaten. Now the men of Gad had always dwelt in the land of Ataroth, and the king of Israel had built Ataroth for them; but I fought against the town and took it and slew all the people of the town as satiation (intoxication) for Chemosh and Moab. And I brought back from there Arel (or Oriel), its chieftain, dragging him before Chemosh in Kerioth, and I settled there men of Sharon and men of Maharith. And Chemosh said to me, "Go, take Nebo from Israel!" (15) So I went by night and fought against it from the break of dawn until noon, taking it and slaying all, seven thousand men, boys, women, girls and maid-servants, for I had devoted them to destruction for (the god) Ashtar-Chemosh. And I took from there the [ ... ] of Yahweh, dragging them before Chemosh. And the king of Israel had built Jahaz, and he dwelt there while he was fighting against me, but Chemosh drove him out before me. And (20) I took from Moab two hundred men, all first class (warriors), and set them against Jahaz and took it in order to attach it to (the district of) Dibon.

It was I (who) built Qarhoh, the wall of the forests and the wall of the citadel; I also built its gates and I built its towers and I built the king's house, and I made both of its reservoirs for water inside the town. And there was no cistern inside the town at Qarhoh, so I said to all the people, "Let each of you make (25) a cistern for himself in his house!" And I cut beams for Qarhoh with Israelite captives. I built Aroer, and I made the highway in the Arnon (valley); I built Beth-bamoth, for it had been destroyed; I built Bezer—for it lay in ruins—with fifty men of Dibon, for all Dibon is (my) loyal dependency.

And I reigned [in peace] over the hundred towns which I had added to the land. And I built (30) [ ... ] Medeba and Beth-diblathen and Beth-baal-meon, and I set there the [ ... ] of the land. And as for Hauronen, there dwelt in it [ ... . And] Chemosh said to me, "Go down, fight against Hauronen. And I went down [and I fought against the town and I took it], and Chemosh dwelt there in my time. ...
The Ostraca of Samaria

This name is applied to a homogeneous group of 63 docketed Israelite potsherds which were found by G. A. Reisner in 1910, while excavating a floor-level from the first phase of the second period of palace construction at Samaria. Owing to a mistake in stratigraphy, which was subsequently corrected by J. W. Crowfoot and his associates, this level was first attributed to Ahab; it is now reasonably certain that it should be assigned to the reign of Jeroboam II (about 786-746 B.C.). The four regnal years mentioned on the Ostraca extend from the ninth to the seventeenth (about 778-770 B.C.). These documents, though jejune in themselves, are of great significance for the script, spelling, personal names, topography, religion, administrative system, and clan distribution of the period.

_An Order for Barley from Samaria_

In 1932 several ostraca were found at Samaria, and were published the following year by E. L. Sukenik. One of them is outstanding because of its length and relative completeness. The script belongs to the eighth century, probably to its third quarter;
it is characterized by extraordinarily long shafts of such letters as l, m, n, like other Israelite documents of this general period.
The text is difficult, and the rendering below is tentative.

of)] Yimnah (Imnah) barley (to the amount of)

The Siloam Inscription

Accidentally discovered in 1880 in the rock wall of the lower entrance to the tunnel of Hezekiah south of the temple area in Jerusalem, the inscription is now in the Museum of the Ancient Orient at Istanbul. Its six lines occupy the lower half of a prepared surface, the upper part of which was found bare of inscription. It is, accordingly, almost certain that the first half of the original document is missing. Its contents and script point to the reign of Hezekiah (about 715-687 B.C.), a dating confirmed by II Kings 20:20 and especially II Chron. 32:30.

[... when] (the tunnel) was driven through. And this was the way in which it was cut through:—While [...] (were) still [...] axe(s), each man toward his fellow, and while there were still three cubits to be cut through, [there was heard] the voice of a man calling to his fellow, for there was an overlap in the rock on the right [and on the left]. And when the tunnel was driven through, the quarrymen hewed (the rock), each man toward his fellow, axe against axe; and the water flowed from the spring toward the reservoir for 1,200 cubits, and the height of the rock above the head(s) of the quarrymen was 100 cubits.

The Lachish Ostraca

These ostraca were discovered in the ruins of the latest Israelite occupation at Tell ed-Duweir in southern Palestine, which unquestionably represents biblical Lachish. The first 18 were found by the late J. L. Starkey in 1933; three more (making 21 in all) were added during a supplementary campaign in 1938. Most of the ostraca were letters, while others were lists of names, etc., but only a third of the documents are preserved well enough to be reasonably intelligible throughout. Nearly all of the ostraca come from the latest occupation level of the Israelite gate-tower, and they are generally placed immediately before the beginning of the Chaldean siege of Lachish, perhaps in the autumn of 589 (or 588) B.C. Since they form the only known corpus of documents in classical Hebrew prose, they have unusual philological significance, quite aside from the light which they shed on the time of Jeremiah.

Lachish Ostraca II

To my lord Yaosh: May Yahweh cause my lord to hear tidings of peace this very day, this very day! Who is thy servant (but) a dog that my lord hath remembered his servant? May Yahweh afflict those who re[port] an (evil) rumor about which thou art not informed!

II Sam. 9:8
Lachish Ostracon III

Thy servant Hoshiaiah hath sent to inform my lord Yaosh: May Yahweh cause my lord to hear tidings of peace! And now thou hast sent a letter, but my lord did not enlighten thy servant concerning the letter which thou didst send to thy servant yesterday evening, though the heart of thy servant hath been sick since thou didst write to thy servant. And as for what my lord said, "Dost thou not understand?—call a scribe!", as Yahweh liveth no one hath ever undertaken to call a scribe for me; and as for any scribe who might have come to me, truly I did not call him nor would I give anything at all for him!

And it hath been reported to thy servant, saying, "The commander of the host, Coniah son of Elnathan, hath come down in order to go into Egypt; and unto Hodaviah son of Ahijah and his men hath he sent to obtain...from him."

And as for the letter of Tobiah, servant of the king, which came to Shallum son of Jaddua through the prophet, saying, "Beware!", thy servant hath sent it to my lord.

Lachish Ostracon IV

May Yahweh cause my lord to hear this very day tidings of good! And now according to everything that my lord hath written, so hath thy servant done; I have written on the door according to all that my lord hath written to me. And with respect to what my lord hath written about the matter of Beth-haraphid, there is no one there.

And as for Semachiah, Shemaiah hath taken him and hath brought him up to the city. And as for thy servant, I am not sending anyone thither [today(?), but I will send] tomorrow morning.

And let (my lord) know that we are watching for the signals of Lachish, according to all the indications which my lord hath given, for we cannot see Azekah.

Lachish Ostracon V

Now] thy servant hath returned the letters to my lord. May Yahweh cause thee to see [...]. How can thy servant benefit or injure the king?
Lachish Ostracon VI

To my lord Yaosh: May Yahweh cause my lord to see this season in good health! Who is thy servant (but) a dog that my lord hath sent the [let]ter of the king and the letters of the prince[s, say]ing, "Pray, read them!" And behold the words of the princes are not good, (but) to weaken our hands [and to sla]cken the hands of the m[en] who are informed about them [ ... And now] my lord, wilt thou not write to them, saying, "Why do ye thus [even] in Jerusalem? Behold unto the king and unto [his house] are ye doing this thing!" [And,] as Yahweh thy God liveth, truly since thy servant read the letters there hath been no [peace] for [thy ser]vant. ... .

Lachish Ostracon VIII

May Yahweh cause my lord to hear tidings of good this very day! [ ... ]. The Lord hath humbled me before thee. Nedabiah hath fled to the mountains [ ... ]. Truly I lie not—let my lord send thither!

Lachish Ostracon IX

Building Inscriptions

YEHIMILK OF BYBLOS

This inscription records the dedication of a new building, possibly a temple, and is now quite generally dated in the tenth century. It was found in Byblos in 1929.

A house built by Yehimilk, king of Byblos, who also has restored all the ruins of the houses here.

May Ba'ilshamem and the Lord of Byblos and the Assembly of the Holy Gods of Byblos prolong the days and years of Yehimilk in Byblos, for (he is) a righteous king and an upright king before the Holy Gods of Byblos!

1 A correction to "Lady of Byblos," a frequently mentioned deity, has been suggested.

AZITAWADDAA OF ADANA

This unusually long inscription comes from a locality called Karatepe situated about thirty-eight miles southwest of Marash beside the River Jeyhan. Three versions of the Phoenician text, together with some Hittite versions, were discovered in 1946-47. They contain an autobiographical account which king Azitawadda composed on the occasion of the dedication of a citadel and city founded by him. The exact date of the inscriptions is still uncertain and depends on a further study of the archaeological and historical evidence. The text seems to antedate events described in the inscription of Kilamuwa (see no. 3), but at present a much later, eighth-century date cannot be ruled out.

One version of the inscription is written in four columns on four sides of a statue. Another version starts on a gate lion and is continued on two orthostats. The third version consists of three columns distributed over four orthostats and continued on the bases of the fourth and adjacent orthostats to a gate lion.

I am Azitawadda, the blessed of Ba'il, the servant of Ba'il, whom Awrikku made powerful, king of the Danunites.

Ba'il made me a father and a mother to the Danunites. I have restored the Danunites. I have expanded the country of the Plain of Adana from the rising of the sun to its setting. In my days, the Danunites had everything good and plenty to eat and well-being. I have filled the storehouses of Pa‘r. I have added horse to horse, shield to shield, and army to army, by virtue of Ba‘l and the Gods (El). I shattered the wicked. I have removed all the evil that was in the country. I have set up my lordly houses in good shape and I have acted kindly toward the roots of my sovereignty. I have been sitting upon the throne of my father. I have made peace with every king. Yea, every king considered me his father because of my righteousness and my wisdom and the kindness of my heart.

2 Awrikku most probably was the father of Azitawadda.

I have built strongholds in all the outposts at the borders in places where there were evil men, gang-leaders, none of whom had been subservient to the House of Mupsh. I, Azitawadda, placed them underneat my feet. I have built strongholds in those places, so that the Danunites might dwell in peace of mind.

I have subdued powerful countries in the west which the kings who were before me had not been able to subdue. I, Azitawadda, subdued them. I have brought them (their inhabitants) down and established them at the eastern end of my borders, and I have established Danunites there (in the west). In my days, there was, within all the borders of the Plain of Adana, from the rising of the sun to its setting, even in places which had formerly been feared, where a man was afraid to walk on the road but where in my days a woman was able to stroll, peaceful activity, by virtue of Ba‘l and the Gods (El). And in all my days, the Danunites and the entire Plain of Adana had plenty to eat and well-being and a good situation and peace of mind.

I have built this city. I have given it the name of Azitawaddiya, for Ba‘l and Reshef-$prm commissioned me to build it. I have built it, by virtue of Ba‘l and by virtue of Reshef-$prm, with plenty to eat and well-being and in a good situation and in peace of mind to be a protection for the Plain of Adana and the House of Mupsh, for in my days, the country of the Plain of Adana had plenty to eat and well-being, and the Danunites never had any night in my days.

Having built this city and having given it the name of Azitawaddiya, I have established Ba‘l-$rnty / in it. A sacrifice (sial order) was established for all the molten images: for the yearly sacrifice an ox, at the [time of plowing a sheep, and at the time of harvesting a sheep.

May Ba'\l-K\textit{r}n\textit{r}y\textit{t} bless Azitawadda with life, peace, and mighty power over every king, so that Ba'\l-K\textit{r}n\textit{r}y\textit{t} and all the gods of the city may give Azitawadda length of days, a great number of years, good authority, and mighty power over every king! And may this city possess plenty to eat and wine (to drink), and may this people that dwells in it possess oxen and small cattle and plenty to eat and wine (to drink)! May they have many children, may they be strong numerically, may they serve Azitawadda and the House of Mupsh in large numbers, by virtue of Ba'\l and the Gods (\textit{El})!

If there be a king among kings and a prince among princes or a man who is (just) called a man who shall wipe out the name of Azitawadda from this gate and put down his own name, even if he has good intentions toward this city but removes this gate which was made by Azitawadda and makes for the (new) gate a (new) \textit{frame} and puts his name upon it, whether he removes this gate with good intentions or out of hatred and evil, let Ba'\l-shamem and El-the-Creator-of-the-Earth and the Eternal-Sun and the whole Group of the Children of the Gods (\textit{El}) wipe out that ruler and that king and that man who is (just) called a man! However, the name of Azitawadda shall endure forever like the name of sun and moon!

KILAMUWA OF Y'\textit{dy}-SAM'\textit{al}

This autobiographical account, composed in connection with the dedication of a palace, was discovered in 1903 in modern Zinjirli in northwest Syria. It dates from the second half of the ninth century B.C. The text consists of two parts. In the first part, king Kilamuwa boasts of his success in foreign policy, and in the second part, he praises his domestic accomplishments. He states that he improved the position of the \textit{m\textit{k}bm}, possibly an oppressed sedentary element of the population, on whose undisturbed relations with another group, the \textit{b'rmm}, possibly referring to "wild" Bedouins, peace in his realm depended.

\textit{Y'dy}, whose vocalization is uncertain, might be the capital of the realm, to be vocalized Yu'addiya or the like (cf. Azitawadda-Azitawaddiya), which later on came to be known as Sam'\textit{al}. The latter, however, might have been the name of a larger region or country.

I am Kilamuwa, the son of Hayya. Gabbar became king over \textit{Y'dy} but he was ineffective. There was \textit{Bmhm} but he was ineffective. There was my father Hayya but he was ineffective. There was my brother Sha'il but he was ineffective. But I, Kilamuwa, the son of Tm, what I achieved, the former (kings) did not achieve.

My father’s house was in the midst of mighty kings. Everybody stretched forth his hand to eat it. But I was in the hands of the kings like a fire that eats the beard, like a fire that eats the hand. The king of the Danunites (tried to) overpower me, but I hired against him the king of Assyria, (who) gave a maid for a lamb, a man for a garment.²

I, Kilamuwa, the son of Hayya, sat upon the throne of my father. Before the former kings, the mikbm went (cowed) like dogs. I, however, to some I was a father. To some I was a mother. To some I was a brother. Him who had never seen the face of a sheep, I made the possessor of a flock. Him who had never seen the face of an ox, I made the possessor of a herd of cattle and a possessor of silver and a possessor of gold. He who had not (even) seen linen since his youth, in my days he was covered with byssus. I took the mikbm by the hand. They were disposed (toward me) as an orphan is to his mother.

If one of my children who shall sit in my place should damage this inscription, may the mikbm not respect the brm, and may the brm not respect the mikbm!

He who smashes this inscription, may his head be smashed by Ba‘l-Samad who belongs to Gabbar, and may his head be smashed by Ba‘l-Hamman who belongs to Bmh, and by Rakabel, the Lord of the dynasty!

¹ Many suggestions have been made to explain these two letters but the one considering them the name of Kilamuwa’s mother—to be corrected to Tammat—remains the most plausible one for the time being.
² Kilamuwa apparently used a proverb in which a buyer boasts of a good bargain. He not only hired the mighty king of Assyria, but was able to do so cheaply.

BARRAKAB OF Y'DY-SAM'AL

This inscription of a remote successor of the afore-mentioned Kilamuwa was found in Zinjirli in 1891. It was set up about 730 B.C.

I am Barrakab, the son of Panamu, king of Sam'al, servant of Tiglath-pileser, the lord of the (four) quarters of the earth.

Because of the righteousness of my father and my own righteousness, I was seated by my Lord Rakabel and my Lord Tiglath-pileser upon the throne of my father. The house of my father has profited more than anybody else, and I have been running at the wheel of my Lord, the king of Assyria, in the midst of mighty kings, possessors of silver and possessors of gold. I took over the house of my father and made it more prosperous than the house of one of the mighty kings. My brethren, the kings, are envious because of all the prosperity of my house.

My fathers, the kings of Sam'al, had no good house. They had the house of Kilamu, which was their winter house and also their summer house. But I have built this house.

Cultic Inscriptions

BEN-HADAD OF DAMASCUS

The stela with this inscription was discovered, apparently in 1939, in an ancient cemetery about four miles north of Aleppo, probably not in situ. It may, however, have originally been set up somewhere in the neighborhood of Aleppo. It dates from about 860 B.C.

A stela set up by Barhadad, the son of T[abrimmon, the son of Hezion], king of Aram, for his Lord Melqart, which he vowed to him and he (then) heard his voice.

KILAMUWA OF Y'DY-SAM'AL

A gold sheath found in Zinjirli.

A smr (sheath, scepter?) fashioned by Kilamuwa, the son of Hayya, for Rakabel.

May Rakabel give him a long life!

ZAKIR OF HAMAT AND LU'ATH

This historical inscription, dating from the early years of the eighth century B.C., was composed in connection with the dedication of a statue of Ilu-Wer, an avatar of Hadad. It was found in 1904 in a place about twenty-five miles southeast of Aleppo which in modern times is called Assis and which appears to have been mentioned in this inscription as Apish.

A stela set up by Zakir, king of Hamat and Lu'ath, for Ilu-Wer, [his god].

I am Zakir, king of Hamat and Lu'ath. A humble man I am. Be'elshamayn [helped me] and stood by me. Be'elshamayn made me king over Hatarikka (Hadrach).
Barhadad, the son of Hazael, king of Aram, united [seven of] a group of ten kings against me; Barhadad and his army; Bargush and his army; the king of Cilicia and his army; the king of 'Umq and his army; the king of Gurgum and his army; the king of Sam'al and his army; the king of Milidh and his army. [All these kings whom Barhadad united against me] were seven kings and their armies. All these kings laid siege to Hatarikka. They made a wall higher than the wall of Hatarikka. They made a moat deeper than its moat. But I lifted up my hand to Be'elshamayn, and Be'elshamayn heard me. Be'elshamayn [spoke] to me through seers and through diviners. Be'elshamayn [said to me]: Do not fear, for I made you king, and I shall stand by you and deliver you from all [these kings who] set up a siege against you. [Be'elshamayn] said to me: [I shall destroy] all these kings who set up [a siege against you and made this moat] and this wall which [... ] charioteer and horseman [... ] its king in its midst [...]. I [enlarged] Hatarikka and added [to it] the entire district of [... ] and I made him ki[ng ...] all these strongholds everywhere within the bor[ders].

I built houses for the gods everywhere in my country. I built [... ] and Apish [... ] and the house of [... ].

I set up this stela before Ilu-Wer, and I wrote upon it my achievements [...]. Whoever shall remove (this record of) the achievements of Zakir, king of Hamat and Lu'ath, from this stela and whoever shall remove this stela from before Ilu-Wer and banish it from its [place] or whoever shall stretch forth his hand [to [... ], [may] Be'elshamayn and If[lu-Wer and ... ] and Shamash and Sahr [and ... ] and the Gods of Heaven [and the Gods] of Earth and Be'el'[... deprive him of h]ead and [... and] his root and [... and may] the name of Zakir and the name of [his house endure forever]!

YEHAWMILK OF BYBLOS

This ex-voto has been known since 1869, but a fragment completing most of its lower right-hand corner was found only sixty years later. It appears to date from the fifth or fourth century. The identity of the second of the three main objects which Yehawmilk here dedicates to his goddess has not yet been fully cleared up. Instead of an engraved object, it might have been a door.

I am Yehawmilk, king of Byblos, the son of Yeharb'al, the grandson of Urimilk, king of Byblos, whom the mistress, the Lady of Byblos, made king over Byblos. I have been calling my mistress, the Lady of Byblos, [and she heard my voice]. Therefore, I have made for my mistress, the Lady of Byblos, this altar of bronze which is in this [court yard], and this engraved object of gold which is in front of this inscription of mine, with the bird (?) of gold that is set in a (semiprecious) stone, which is upon this engraved object of gold, and this portico with its columns and the [capitals] which are upon them, and its roof: I, Yehawmilk, king of Byblos, have made (these things) for my mistress, the Lady of Byblos, as I called my mistress, the Lady of Byblos, and she heard my voice and treated me kindly.

May the Lady of Byblos bless and preserve Yehawmilk, king of Byblos, and prolong his days and years in Byblos, for he is a righteous king. And may [the mistress,] the Lady of Byblos, give [him] favor in the eyes of the gods and in the eyes of the people of this country and (that he be) pleased with the people of this country.

[Whoever you are,] ruler and (ordinary) man, who might [continue] to do work on this altar and this engraved work of gold and this portico, my name, Yehawmilk, king of Byblos, [you should put with] yours upon that work, and if you do not put my name with yours, or if you [remove] this [work and transfer this work from its foundation] upon this place and [ . . . , may] the mistress, the Lady of Byblos, [destroy] that man and his seed before all the Gods of Byblos.

THE MARSEILLES TARIFF

The two blocks of stone containing this inscription were found in Marseilles in 1845. The stone used for them is known to occur in the region of Carthage. Thus, it is possible that the document originally belonged to a temple in Carthage. However, the possibility that a similar kind of stone might also have been quarried in the neighborhood of Marseilles apparently has not yet been sufficiently explored. The date of the inscription is uncertain; it may date from the third century or the early part of the second century a.C. The text is carefully engraved. It is provided with a title, and each paragraph begins with a new line.

THE EXEСRACIÓN OF ASIATIC PRINCES

In the Middle Kingdom period the Egyptians practiced the magical cursing of their actual or potential enemies. In the Berlin Museum are fragments of pottery bowls which had been inscribed with the names of such foes and then smashed. In the Cairo and Brussels Museums inscribed figurines carry the same kind of curse. As they smashed such pottery, so they thought to break the power of their enemies. The exorcised elements were Nubians, Asians, Libyans, hostile Egyptians, and evil forces. The translation below, from the Berlin material, gives some Asians, some Egyptians, and the forces.

Asiatics

(1) The Ruler of Iy'-anaq, Erum, and all the retainers who are with him; the Ruler of Iy'-anaq, Abi-yamimu, and all the retainers who are with him; the Ruler of Iy'-anaq, 'Akirum, and all the retainers who are with him;

(4) the Ruler of Shutu, Ayyabum, and all the retainers who are with him; the Ruler of Shutu, Kushar, and all the retainers who are with him; the Ruler of Shutu, Zabulanu, and all the retainers who are with him;

(23) the Ruler of Asqanu, Khalu-kim, and all the retainers who are with him;

(27) the Ruler of Jerusalem, Yaqar-'Ammu, and all the retainers who are with him; the Ruler of Jerusalem, Setji-'Anu, and all the retainers who are with him;

(31) all the rulers of Iysüpi and all the retainers who are with them;

(31) all the Asiatics—of Byblos, of Ullaza, of Iy'-anaq, of Shutu, of Iymu'aru, of Qehermu, of Rehob, of Deut. 2:10

Num. 24:17

1 Many of the geographic names are unknown, and identifications for most of the others must be tentative. The present name has been related to the 'Asaqim "giants" who were in the land of Canaan at the time of the Conquest.

2 Taken as the Egyptian word for "trusted men." Perhaps the same word as the "kamch of Gen. 14:14.

3 Probably Momb.

4 Job; cuneiform Ayyab.

5 Similarly cuneiform, for Zebalon.

6 Ashkelon; cuneiform Ashqaluna.

7 The figurines in Brussels and Cairo have further identifiable names.

8 Probably any one of several Rehobs.
Yarimuta, of Inhia, of Aqhi, of 'Arqata, of Yarimuta, of Isinu, of Asqanu, of Demitiu, of Mut-ilu, of Jerusalem of Akhmut, of Iahenu, and of Iysipi;

(g 1) their strong men, their swift runners, their allies, their associates, and the Moun in Asia;

(h 1) who may rebel, who may plot, who may fight, who may talk of fighting, or who may talk of rebelling—in this entire land.

Egyptians

(m 1) All men, all people, all folk, all males, all eunuchs, all women, and all officials,

(n 1) who may rebel, who may plot, who may fight, who may talk of fighting, or who may talk of rebelling, and every rebel who talks of rebelling—in this entire land.

(o 1) Ameni shall die, the tutor of Sit-Bastet, the chancellor of Sit-Hat-Hor, (daughter of) Nefru.

Sen-Usert the younger, called Ketu, shall die, the tutor of Sit-Ipi, (daughter of) Sit-Hat-Hor, and tutor of Sit-Ipi, (daughter of) Sit-Ameni, the chancellor of li-menet, (daughter of) Sit-Hat-Hor....

(8) Ameni, born to Hetep and son of Sen-Usert, shall die.

Baneful Forces

(p 1) Every evil word, every evil speech, every evil slander, every evil thought, every evil plot, every evil fight, every evil quarrel, every evil plan, every evil thing, all evil dreams, and all evil slumber.

8 Or 'Iraqtum, another name for the same, in Phoenicia.
9 This has been compared to (Beth)-Shan.
10 The "Moun in Setet" is an old designation for Egypt's immediate neighbors to the northeast.
11 There are two significant factors about these specifically named Egyptians. First, the names are names characteristic of the 12th dynasty royal family. Second, several of them are functionaries of women who seem to be princesses or queens. One thinks of a harem conspiracy as the setting for such curses.

Egyptian Hymns

TRANSLATOR: JOHN A. WILSON

THE HYMN TO THE ATON

The Pharaoh Amen-hotep IV broke with the established religion of Egypt and instituted the worship of the Aton, the sun disc as the source of life. "The Amarna Revolution" attempted a distinct break with Egypt's traditional and static ways of life in religion, politics, art, and literature. Pharaoh changed his name to Akh-en-Aton (perhaps "He Who Is Serviceable to the Aton") and moved his capital from Thebes to Tell el-Amarna. Pharaoh's own attitude to the god is expressed in the famous hymn which follows. Beyond doubt, the hymn shows the universality and beneficence of the creating and re-creating sun disc. A similarity of spirit and wording to the 104th Psalm has often been noted, and a direct relation between the two has been argued. Because Akh-en-Aton was devoted to this god alone, the Amarna religion has been called monotheistic. This is a debatable question, and a reserved attitude would note that only Akh-en-Aton and his family worshiped the Aton, Akh-en-Aton's courtiers worshiped Akh-en-Aton himself, and the great majority of Egyptians was ignorant of or hostile to the new faith.

Praise of Re Har-akhti, Rejoicing on the Horizon, in His Name as Shu Who Is in the Aton-disc, living forever and ever; the living great Aton who is in jubilee, lord of all that the Aton encircles, lord of heaven, lord of earth, lord of the House of Aton in Akhet-Aton; (and praise of) the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, who lives on truth, the Lord of the Two Lands: Nefer-kheperu-Re Wa-en-Re; the Son of Re, who lives on truth, the Lord of Diadems: Akh-en-Aton, long in his lifetime; (and praise of) the Chief Wife of the King, his beloved, the Lady of the Two Lands: Nefer-neferu-Aton Nefert-iti, living, healthy, and youthful forever and ever; (by) the Fan-Bearer on the Right Hand of the King... Eye. He says:

Thou appearest beautifully on the horizon of heaven,
Thou living Aton, the beginning of life!
When thou art risen on the eastern horizon,
Thou hast filled every land with thy beauty.
Thou art gracious, great, glistening, and high over every land;
Thy rays encompass the lands to the limit of all that thou hast made:
As thou art Re, thou reachest to the end of them;
(Thou) subduest them (for) thy beloved son.
Though thou art far away, thy rays are on earth;
Though thou art in their faces, no one knows thy going.

When thou settest in the western horizon,
The land is in darkness, in the manner of death.

---

3 As in Breasted.

4 The Aton had a dogmatic name written within a royal cartouche and including the three old solar deities, Re, Har-of-the-Horizon, and Shu.
5 Akhet-Aton was the name of the capital at Tell el-Amarna.
6 Pup: Re "Re," and er-ra "to the end."
They sleep in a room, with heads wrapped up,
Nor sees one eye the other.
All their goods which are under their heads might be stolen,
(But) they would not perceive (it).
Every lion is come forth from his den;
All creeping things, they sting.
Darkness is a shroud, and the earth is in stillness,
For he who made them rests in his horizon.

Ps. 104:20-21

At daybreak, when thou arisest on the horizon,
When thou shinest as the Aton by day,
Thou drivest away the darkness and givest thy rays.
The Two Lands are in festivity every day,
Awake and standing upon (their) feet,
For thou hast raised them up.
Washing their bodies, taking (their) clothing.
Their arms are (raised) in praise at thy appearance.
All the world, they do their work.

Ps. 104:22-23

All beasts are content with their pasturage;
Trees and plants are flourishing.
The birds which fly from their nests,
Their wings are (stretched out) in praise to thy ka.
All beasts spring upon (their) feet.
Whatever flies and alights,
They live when thou hast risen (for) them.
The ships are sailing north and south as well,
For every way is open at thy appearance.
The fish in the river dart before thy face;
Thy rays are in the midst of the great green sea.

Ps. 104:11-14

Creator of seed in women,
Thou who makest fluid into man,
Who maintainest the son in the womb of his mother,
Who sootheest him with that which stills his weeping,
Thou nurse (even) in the womb,
Who givest breath to sustain all that he has made!
When he descends from the womb to breathe
On the day when he is born,
Thou openest his mouth completely,
Thou suppliest his necessities.
When the chick in the egg speaks within the shell,
Thou givest him breath within it to maintain him.
When thou hast made him his fulfillment within the egg, to break it,
He comes forth from the egg to speak at his completed (time);
He walks upon his legs when he comes forth from it.

How manifold it is, what thou hast made!
They are hidden from the face (of man).
O sole god, like whom there is no other!
Thou didst create the world according to thy desire,
 Whilst thou wert alone:
 All men, cattle, and wild beasts,
 Whatever is on earth, going upon (its) feet,
 And what is on high, flying with its wings.

The countries of Syria and Nubia, the land of Egypt,
Thou settest every man in his place,
Thou suppliest their necessities:
Everyone has his food, and his time of life is reckoned.

Their tongues are separate in speech,
And their natures as well;
Their skins are distinguished,
As thou distinguishest the foreign peoples.
Thou makest a Nile in the underworld,
Thou bringest it forth as thou desirest
To maintain the people (of Egypt)¹
According as thou madest them for thyself,
The lord of all of them, wearying (himself) with them,
The lord of every land, rising for them,
The Aton of the day, great of majesty.

All distant foreign countries, thou makest their life (also),
For thou hast set a Nile in heaven,
That it may descend for them and make waves upon the mountains,

Like the great green sea,
To water their fields in their towns.²

How effective they are, thy plans, O lord of eternity!
The Nile in heaven, it is for the foreign peoples
And for the beasts of every desert that go upon (their) feet;

¹ The Egyptians believed that their Nile came from the waters under the earth, called by them Nun.
² The rain of foreign countries is like the Nile of rainless Egypt.
(While the true) Nile comes from the underworld for Egypt.

Thy rays suckle every meadow.
When thou risest, they live, they grow for thee.
Ps. 104:19
Thou makest the seasons in order to rear all that thou hast made,
The winter to cool them,
And the heat that they may taste thee.
Thou hast made the distant sky in order to rise therein,
In order to see all that thou dost make.
Whilst thou wert alone,
Rising in thy form as the living Aton,
Appearing, shining, withdrawing or approaching,
Thou madest millions of forms of thyself alone.
Cities, towns, fields, road, and river—
Every eye beholds thee over against them,
For thou art the Aton of the day over the earth.

Thou art in my heart,
And there is no other that knows thee
Save thy son Nefer-kheperu-Re-Wa-en-Re,
For thou hast made him well-versed in thy plans and in thy strength.

The world came into being by thy hand,
According as thou hast made them.
Ps. 104:30
When thou hast risen they live,
Ps. 104:29
When thou settest they die.
Thou art lifetime thy own self,
For one lives (only) through thee.
Eyes are (fixed) on beauty until thou settest.
All work is laid aside when thou settest in the west.
(But) when (thou) risest (again),
[Everything is] made to flourish for the king,...
Since thou didst found the earth
And raise them up for thy son,
Who came forth from thy body:
the King of Upper and Lower Egypt,... Akh-en-Aton,... and the Chief Wife of the King.... Nefert-it, living and youthful forever and ever.

---
1 Even though the hymn was recited by the official Eyr, he states that Akh-en-Aton alone knows the Aton.
2 Pharaoh was the official intermediary between the Egyptians and their gods. The Amarna religion did not change this dogma.
HYMN OF VICTORY OF MER-NE-PTAH ("ISRAEL STELA")

The date of this commemorative hymn (or series of hymns) relates it to Mer-ne-Ptah’s victory over the Libyans in the spring of his fifth year (about 1230 B.C.). However, the text is not historical in the same sense as two other records of that victory, but is rather a poetic eulogy of a universally victorious pharaoh. Thus it was not out of place to introduce his real or figurative triumph over Asiatic peoples in the last poem of the hymn. In that context we meet the only instance of the name “Israel” in ancient Egyptian writing.

The princes are prostrate, saying: “Mercy!”
Not one raises his head among the Nine Bows.
Desolation is for Tehenu; Hatti is pacified;
Plundered is the Canaan with every evil;
Carried off is Ashkelon; seized upon is Gezer;
Yanoam is made as that which does not exist; 2
Israel is laid waste, his seed is not; 2
Hurruru is become a widow for Egypt! 4
All lands together, they are pacified;
Everyone who was restless, he has been bound by the King of Upper and Lower Egypt: Ba-en-Re Meri-Amon; the Son of Re: Mer-ne-Ptah Hotep-hir-Maat, given life like Re every day.

1 Of “Peace!” The Canaanite word šalaw is used here.
2 Hatti was the land of the Hittites. Yanoam was an important town of northern Palestine.
3 Much has been made of the fact that the word Israel is the only one of the names in this context which is written with the determinative of people rather than land. Thus we should seem to have the Children of Israel in or near Palestine, but not yet as a settled people. This would have important bearing on the date of the Conquest. This is a valid argument. Determinatives should have meaning, and a contrast between determinatives in the same context should be significant. This stela does give the country determinatives to settled peoples like the Rebu, Temeh, Hatti, Ashkelon, etc., and the determinative of people in unlocated groups like the Madjul, Nau, and Tekten. The argument is good, but not conclusive, because of the notorious carelessness of Late-Egyptian scribes and several blunders of writing in this stela.
4 The statement that the “seed,” i.e. offspring, of Israel had been wiped out is a conventional boast of power at this period.
5 The land of the biblical Horites, or Greater Palestine.

An Akkadian Hymn

TRANSLATOR: FERRIS J. STEPHENS

HYMN TO ISHTAR

After extolling the charms and virtues of the goddess, the hymn concludes by enumerating the blessings which she has bestowed upon the king, Ammuditana. While these are represented as accomplished facts, the statements should be taken as indications of the hope of the king for their eventual realization. The text publication does not indicate the provenience of the tablet. It was written in the latter part of the First Dynasty of Babylon, approximately 1600 B.C. Text: \textit{RA}, xxii, 170-1; translation: \textit{RA}, xxii, 174-7; metrical transcription: \textit{ZA}, xxxviii, 19-22.

Praise the goddess, the most awesome of the goddesses. Let one revere the mistress of the peoples, the greatest of the Igigi.\(^1\)

Praise Ishtar, the most awesome of the goddesses. Let one revere the queen of women, the greatest of the Igigi.

Song of Sol. 4:1-3

She is clothed with pleasure and love.
She is laden with vitality, charm, and voluptuousness.
Ishtar is clothed with pleasure and love.
She is laden with vitality, charm, and voluptuousness.

In lips she is sweet; life is in her mouth.
At her appearance rejoicing becomes full. \(^{(10)}\)
She is glorious; veils are thrown over her head.
Her figure is beautiful; her eyes are brilliant.

The goddess—with her there is counsel.
The fate of everything she holds in her hand.
At her glance there is created joy,
Power, magnificence, the protecting deity and guardian spirit.

She dwells in, she pays heed to compassion and friendliness.
Besides, agreeableness she truly possesses.
Be it slave, unattached girl, or mother, she preserves (hers).
One calls on her; among women one names
her name. \(^{(20)}\)

Who—to her greatness who can be equal?
Strong, exalted, splendid are her decrees.
Ishtar—to her greatness who can be equal?
Strong, exalted, splendid are her decrees.

She is sought after among the gods; extraordinary is her station.
Respected is her word; it is \textit{supreme} over them.

\(^1\) A collective name for the great gods of heaven.
Ishtar among the gods, extraordinary is her station.
Respected is her word; it is supreme over them.

She is their queen; they continually cause her commands to be executed.
All of them bow down before her.
They receive her light before her.
Women and men indeed revere her.

In their assembly her word is powerful; it is dominating.
Before Anum their king she fully supports them.
She rests in intelligence, cleverness, (and) wisdom.
They take counsel together, she and her lord.

Indeed they occupy the throne room together.
In the divine chamber, the dwelling of joy,
Before them the gods take their places.
To their utterances their attention is turned.

The king their favorite, beloved of their hearts,
Magnificently offers to them his pure sacrifices.
Ammiditana, as the pure offering of his hands,
Brings before them fat oxen and gazelles.

From Anum, her consort, she has been pleased to ask for him
An enduring, a long life.
Many years of living, to Ammiditana
She has granted, Ishtar has decided to give.

By her orders she has subjected to him
The four world regions at his feet;
And the total of all peoples
She has decided to attach them to his yoke.
XI. Wisdom, Prophecy, and Songs

Egyptian Instructions

TRANSLATOR: JOHN A. WILSON

THE INSTRUCTION OF THE VIZIER PTAH-HOTEP

ANET, 412-414

The Egyptians delighted in compilations of wise sayings, which were directive for a successful life. To them, this was "wisdom." One of the earliest of these compilations purports to come from Ptaḥ-hotep, the vizier of King Izezi of the Fifth Dynasty (about 2450 B.C.). The old councilor is supposed to be instructing his son and designated successor on the actions and attitudes which make a successful official of the state. Excerpts from the document follow.

. . . . Then he said to his son:

Let not thy heart be puffed-up because of thy knowledge; be not confident because thou art a wise man. Take counsel with the ignorant as well as with the wise. The (full) limits of skill cannot be attained, and there is no skilled man equipped to his (full) advantage.1 Good speech is more hidden than the emerald, but it may be found with maidservants at the grindstones . . .

If thou art a leader (85) commanding the affairs of the multitude, seek out for thyself every beneficial deed, until it may be that thy (own) affairs are without wrong. Justice is great, and its appropriateness is lasting; it has not been disturbed since the time of him who made it, (whereas) there is punishment for him who passes over its laws. It is the (right) path before him who knows nothing. Wrongdoing has never brought its undertaking into port. (It may be that) it is fraud that gains riches, (95) (but) the strength of justice is that it lasts, and a man may say: "It is the property of my father." . . .

If thou art one of those sitting (120) at the table of one greater than thyself, take what he may give, when it is set before thy nose. Thou shouldst gaze at what is before thee. Do not pierce him with many stares, (for such) an aggression against him is an abomination to the ka.2 Let thy face be cast down until he addresses thee, and thou shouldst speak (only) when he addresses thee. (130) Laugh after he laughs, and it will be very pleasing to his heart and what thou mayest

1 Ma'at "justice" or "truth," was an inheritable value.
2 The ka was the protecting and guiding vital force of a man, and thus his social mentor.
do will be pleasing to the heart. No one can know what is in the heart.

As for the great man when he is at meals, his purposes conform to the dictates of his ka. He will give to the one whom he favors. (140) The great man gives to the man whom he can reach, (but) it is the ka that lengthens out his arms. The eating of bread is under the planning of god—it is (only) a fool who would complain of it.

If thou art a man of intimacy, whom one great man sends to another, be thoroughly reliable when he sends thee. Carry out the errand for him as he has spoken. (150) Do not be reserved about what is said to thee, and beware of (any) act of forgetfulness. Grasp hold of truth, and do not exceed it. (Mere) gratification is by no means to be repeated. Struggle against making words worse, (thus) making one great man hostile to another through vulgar speech. (160) A great man, a little man—it is the ka's abomination.

(175) If thou art a poor fellow, following a man of distinction, one of good standing with the god, know thou not his former insignificance. Thou shouldst not be puffed-up against him because of what thou didst know of him formerly. Show regard for him in conformance with what has accrued to him—property does not come of itself. It is their law for him who wishes them. As for him who oversteps, he is feared. It is god who makes (a man's) quality, (185) and he defends him (even) while he is asleep.

If thou art one to whom petition is made, (265) be calm as thou listeneest to the petitioner's speech. Do not rebuff him before he has swept out his body or before he has said that for which he came. A petitioner likes attention to his words better than the fulfilling of that for which he came. He is rejoicing thereat more than any (other) petitioner, (even) before that which has been heard has come to pass. As for him who plays the rebuffer of a petitioner, men say: “Now why is he doing it?” (275) It is not (necessary) that everything about which he has petitioned should come to pass, (but) a good hearing is a soothing of the heart.

If thou desirest to make friendship last in a home to which thou hast access as master, as a brother, or as a friend, into any place where thou mightest enter, beware of approaching the women. It does not go well with the place where that is done. The face has no alertness by splitting it. A thousand men may be distracted from their own advantage. (285) One is made a fool by limbs of fayence, as she stands there), become (all) carnelian. A mere trifle, the likeness of a dream—and one attains death through knowing her. . . . Do not do it—it is really an abomination— (295) and thou shalt be free from sickness of heart every day. As for him who escapes from gluttony for it, all affairs will prosper with him. . . .

Do not be covetous at a division. Do not be greedy, unless (it be) for thy own portion. Do not be covetous against thy own kindred. Greater is the respect for the mild than (for) the strong. (320) He is a mean person who exposes his kinsfolk; he is empty of the fruits of conversation. It is (only) a little of that for which one is covetous that turns a calm man into a contentious man.

If thou art a man of standing, thou shouldst found thy household and love thy wife at home as is fitting. Fill her belly; clothe her back. Ointment is the prescription for her body. Make her heart glad as long as thou livest. (330) She is a profitable field for her lord. Thou shouldst not contend with her at law, and keep her far from gaining control. . . . Her eye is her stormwind. Let her heart be soothed through what may accrue to thee; it means keeping her long in thy house. . . .

If thou art (now) important after thy former unimportance, so that thou mayest do things after a neediness (430) formerly in the town which thou knowest, in contrast to what was thy lot before, do not be miserly with thy wealth, which has accrued to thee as the gift of god. Thou art not behind some other equal of thine to whom the same has happened. . . .

If a son accepts what his father says, (565) do project of his miscarries. He whom thou instructest as thy obedient son, who will stand well in the heart of the official, his speech is guided with respect to what has been said to him, one regarded as obedient. . . . (But)

1 Perhaps: He who has a wandering eye for the women cannot be keen.
2 "A mean person is he who goes out (from) under his kinsfolk.
3 The desire for children—particularly male children—was perennial in the orient.
4 Not behind or ahead of, but the same as?
the induction \(^1\) of him who does not hearken miscarries. The wise man rises early in the morning to establish himself, (but) the fool rises early in the morning (only) to agitate himself. . . .

\(^1\) Induction into the official service?

THE INSTRUCTION OF AMEN-EM-OPET

A general parallelism of thought or structure between Egyptian and Hebrew literature is common. It is, however, more difficult to establish a case of direct literary relation. For this reason, special attention is directed to the Instruction of Amen-em-Opet, son of Ka-nakht, and its very close relation to the Book of Proverbs, particularly Prov. 22:17-24:22. Amen-em-Opet differs from earlier Egyptian books of wisdom in its humbler, more resigned, and less materialistic outlook.\(^3\)

The hieratic text is found in British Museum Papyrus 10474 and (a portion only) on a writing tablet in Turin. The papyrus is said to have come from Thebes. The date of the papyrus manuscript is debated. It is certainly subsequent to the Egyptian Empire. A date anywhere between the 10th and 6th centuries B.C. is possible, with some weight of evidence for the 7th-6th centuries. Some introductory lines have been omitted here.

He says: FIRST CHAPTER:

Give thy ears, hear what is said,
Give thy heart to understand them. (10)
To put them in thy heart is worth while,
(But) it is damaging to him who neglects them.
Let them rest in the casket of thy belly,
That they may be a key in thy heart.
At a time when there is a whirlwind of words,
They shall be a mooring-stake for thy tongue.
If thou spendest thy time while this is in thy heart,
Thou wilt find it a success;
Thou wilt find my words a treasury of life, (iv.1)
And thy body will prosper upon earth.

SECOND CHAPTER:

Guard thyself against robbing the oppressed
And against overbearing the disabled. (5)
Stretch not forth thy hand against the approach of an old man,
Nor steal away the speech of the aged.
Let not thyself be sent on a dangerous errand,
Nor love him who carries it out.
Do not cry out against him whom thou hast attacked,
Nor return him answer on thy own behalf.

Prov. 22:17-18a
Prov. 22:18-19
Prov. 22:22
He who does evil, the (very) river-bank abandons him;
And his floodwaters carry him off.
The north wind comes down that it may end his hour;
It is joined to the tempest;
The thunder is loud, and the crocodiles are wicked.
Thou heated man, how art thou (now)?
He is crying out, and his voice (reaches) to heaven.
O moon, establish his crime (against him)!
So steer that we may bring the wicked man across,
For we shall not act like him—
Lift him up, give him thy hand;
Leave him (in) the arms of the god;
Fill his belly with bread of thine,
So that he may be sated and may be ashamed.
Another good deed in the heart of the god
Is to pause before speaking. ...

FOURTH CHAPTER:
As for the heated man of a temple,
He is like a tree growing in the open.
In the completion of a moment (comes) its loss of foliage,
And its end is reached in the shipyards;
(Or) it is floated far from its place,
And the flame is its burial shroud.
(But) the truly silent man holds himself apart.
He is like a tree growing in a garden.
It flourishes and doubles its yield;
It (stands) before its lord.
Its fruit is sweet; its shade is pleasant;
And its end is reached in the garden. ...

SIXTH CHAPTER:
Do not carry off the landmark at the boundaries of the arable land,
Nor disturb the position of the measuring-cord;
Be not greedy after a cubit of land,
Nor encroach upon the boundaries of a widow. ...
Guard against encroaching upon the boundaries of the fields,
1 The "hot" man is the passionate or impulsive man, in contrast to the "silent" or humbly pious man.
2 Thoth was the barbaster of the gods.
Lest a terror carry thee off. (viii 10)
One satisfies god with the will of the Lord,
Who determines the boundaries of the arable land. ... Prov. 23:11
Plow in the fields, that thou mayest find thy needs, (17)
That thou mayest receive bread of thy own threshing floor.
Better is a measure that the god gives thee
Than five thousand (taken) illegally.
They do not spend a day (in) the granary or barn; (ix 1)
They make no provisions for the beer-jar.
The completion of a moment is their lifetime in the storehouse;
At daybreak they are sunk (from sight).
Better is poverty in the hand of the god (5)
Than riches in a storehouse;
Better is bread, when the heart is happy,
Than riches with sorrow.

SEVENTH CHAPTER:
Cast not thy heart in pursuit of riches, (10)
(For) there is no ignoring Fate and Fortune.²
Place not thy heart upon externals,
(For) every man belongs to his (appointed) hour.
Do not strain to seek an excess,
When thy needs are safe for thee. (15)
If riches are brought to thee by robbery,
They will not spend the night with thee;
At daybreak they are not in thy house:
Their places may be seen, but they are not.
The ground has opened its mouth ... that it might swallow them up,
And might sink them into the underworld. (x 1)
(Or) they have made themselves a great breach of their (own) size
And are sunken down in the storehouse.
(Or) they have made themselves wings like geese
And are flown away to the heavens. (5)
Rejoice not thyself (over) riches (gained) by robbery,
Nor mourn because of poverty.
If an archer in the van advances (too far),
Then his squad abandons him.
The ship of the covetous is left (in) the mud, (10)
²The god Shu and the goddess Tefnut were two deified concepts, whose governing role was particularly strong at this time.
While the boat of the silent man (has) a fair breeze. Thou shouldst make prayer to the Aton when he rises,
Saying: "Give me prosperity and health."
He will give thee thy needs for this life,
And thou wilt be safe from terror. ...

NINTH CHAPTER:
Do not associate to thyself the heated man,
Nor visit him for conversation.
Preserve thy tongue from answering thy superior,
And guard thyself against reviling him.
Do not make him cast his speech to lasso thee,
Nor make (too) free with thy answer.
Thou shouldst discuss an answer (only) with a man of thy (own) size,
And guard thyself against plunging headlong into it.
Swifter is speech when the heart is hurt
Than wind of the head-waters. ...
Do not leap to hold to such a one,
Lest a terror carry thee off.

TENTH CHAPTER:
Do not greet thy heated (opponent) in thy violence,
Nor hurt thy own heart (thereby).
Do not say to him: "Hail to thee!" falsely,
When a terror is in thy belly.
Do not talk with a man falsely—The abomination of the god.
Do not cut off thy heart from thy tongue,
That all thy affairs may be successful.
Be sincere in the presence of the common people,
For one is safe in the hand of the god.
God hates him who falsifies words;
His great abomination is the contentious of belly.

ELEVENTH CHAPTER:
Be not greedy for the property of a poor man,
Nor hunger for his bread.
As for the property of a poor man, it (is) a blocking to the throat,
It makes a vomiting to the gullet.
If he has obtained it by false oaths,
His heart is perverted by his belly. ...
The mouthful of bread (too) great thou swallowest and vomitest up;
And art emptied of thy good. ...
THIRTEENTH CHAPTER:
Do not confuse a man with a pen upon papyrus—
(xv 20)
The abomination of the god,
Prov. 14:15
Do not bear witness with false words,
(xvi 1)
Nor support another person (thus) with thy tongue.
Do not take an accounting of him who has nothing,
Nor falsify thy pen.
If thou findest a large debt against a poor man,
Prov. 22:26-27
Make it into three parts,
Forgive two, and let one stand.
Thou wilt find it like the ways of life;
Thou wilt lie down and sleep (soundly); in the morning
Thou wilt find it (again) like good news.
(10)
Better is praise as one who loves men
Than riches in a storehouse;
Better is bread, when the heart is happy,
Thick riches with sorrow. . . .

SIXTEENTH CHAPTER:
Do not lean on the scales nor falsify the weights,
Nor damage the fractions of the measure.
Do not wish for a (common) country measure,
(xvii 20)
And neglect those of the treasury.
The ape\(^{1}\) sits beside the balance,
(xviii 1)
And his heart is the plummet.
Which god is as great as Thoth,
He that discovered these things, to make them?
Make not for thyself weights which are deficient;
They abound in grief through the will of god. . . .
Prov. 16:11

EIGHTEENTH CHAPTER:
(xix 10)
Do not spend the night fearful of the morrow.
At daybreak what is the morrow like?
Man knows not what the morrow is like.
God is (always) in his success,
Whereas man is in his failure;
One thing are the words which men say,
Another is that which the god does.
Say not: "I have no wrongdoing."
Nor (yet) strain to seek quarreling.
As for wrongdoing, it belongs to the god;
It is sealed with his finger.
There is no success in the hand of the god,
\(^{2}\)The animal sacred to Thoth, god of just measure.
But there is no failure before him.
If he pushes himself to seek success, (xx i)
In the completion of a moment he damages it.
Be steadfast in thy heart, make firm thy breast.
Steer not with thy tongue (alone).
If the tongue of a man (be) the rudder of a boat, (5)
The All-Lord is its pilot. . . .

TWENTIETH CHAPTER:
Do not confuse a man in the law court,
Nor divert the righteous man.
Give not thy attention (only) to him clothed in white, (xxi 1)
Nor give consideration to him that is unkempt.
Do not accept the bribe of a powerful man,
Nor oppress for him the disabled.
As for justice, the great reward of god,
He gives it to whom he will. . . .
Do not falsify the income on the records,
Nor damage the plans of god.
Do not discover for thy own self the will of god, (15)
Without (reference to) Fate and Fortune. . . .

TWENTY-FIRST CHAPTER:
Do not say: "I have found a strong superior, (xxii 1)
For a man in thy city has injured me."
Do not say: "I have found a patron,
For one who hates me has injured me."
For surely thou knowest not the plans of god,
Lest thou be ashamed on the morrow.
Sit thou down at the hands of the god,
And thy silence will cast them down. . . .
Empty not thy belly to everybody,
Nor damage (thus) the regard for thee.
Spread not thy words to the common people,
Nor associate to thyself one (too) outgoing of heart.
Better is a man whose talk (remains) in his belly (15)
Than he who speaks it out injuriously.
One does not run to reach success,
One does not throw to his (own) damage. . . .

TWENTY-THIRD CHAPTER:
Do not eat bread before a noble,
Nor lay on thy mouth at first.
If thou art satisfied with false chewings, (xxiii 15)
They are a pastime for thy spittle.
Look at the cup which is before thee,
And let it serve thy needs.
As a noble is great in his office,
He is as a well abounds (in) the drawing (of water). ...

TWENTY-FIFTH CHAPTER:
Do not laugh at a blind man nor tease a dwarf
Nor injure the affairs of the lame. (xxiv 10)
Do not tease a man who is in the hand of the god,
Nor be fierce of face against him if he errs.
For man is clay and straw,
And the god is his builder.
He is tearing down and building up every day. (15)
He makes a thousand poor men as he wishes,
(Or) he makes a thousand men as overseers,
When he is in his hour of life.
How joyful is he who reaches the West,
When he is safe in the hand of the god. ...

TWENTY-EIGHTH CHAPTER:
Do not recognize a widow if thou catchest her in the fields,
Nor fail to be indulgent to her reply. (xxvi 10)
Do not neglect a stranger (with) thy oil-jar,
That it be doubled before thy brethren.
God desires respect for the poor
More than the honoring of the exalted. ...

THIRTIETH CHAPTER:
See thou these thirty chapters:
They entertain; they instruct;
They are the foremost of all books;
They make the ignorant to know. (xxvii 10)
If they are read out before the ignorant,
Then he will be cleansed by them.
Fill thyself with them; put them in thy heart,
And be a man who can interpret them,
Who will interpret them as a teacher. (15)
As for the scribe who is experienced in his office,
He will find himself worthy (to be) a courtier.
(colophon:) It has come to its end
In the writing of Senu, son of the God's Father Pa-miu. (xxviii 1)

² Death releases a man from the helplessness of this world.
³ Literally: "Do not find a widow." The reference is to the poor gleaned in the fields.
⁴ Senu was the scribe who made this copy.

The following Sumerian proverbs appear on tablets dating to the Early Old Babylonian period which have been found at Nippur and Ur. The translations here provided are by Edmund I. Gordon, Research Associate, Babylonian Section, University Museum, University of Pennsylvania.
(1) A perverse child—his mother should never have given birth to him; his (personal) god should never have fashioned him! (2) The fox had a stick with him: "Whom shall I hit?" He carried a legal document with him: "What can I challenge?" (3) Upon my escaping from the wild-ox, the wild-cow confronted me! (4) As long as he is alive, he is his friend; on the day of (his) death, he is his greatest adversary! (5) He could not bring about an agreement; the women were all talking to one another! (6) Into an open mouth, a fly will enter! (7) Like a barren cow, you are looking for a calf of yours which does not exist! (8) The horse, after he had thrown off his rider, said: "If my burden is always to be this, I shall become weak!" (9) The dog understands "Take it!" He does not understand "Put it down!"

Aramaic Proverbs and Precepts
TRANSLATOR: H. L. GINSBERG
THE WORDS OF AHIQAR

The text is preserved as the more recent writing on eleven sheets of palimpsest papyrus of the late fifth century B.C. recovered by German excavators from the debris of Elephantine, Upper Egypt, in the years 1906-7. The first four papyri, with a total of five columns, contain the story of Ahiqar, which is in the first person; the remaining seven, with a total of nine columns, contain Ahiqar's sayings. The composition of the work may antedate the preserved copy by as much as a century.

Prior to the recovery of the old Aramaic text, several post-Christian recensions of the book of Ahiqar were known, the Syriac one being the oldest. The man Ahiqar is mentioned in the book of Tobit (3:12; 14:10; etc.).

(vi 79-94) [Wh]at is stronger than a braying ass? The l[o]ad. The son who is trained and taught and on [whose] feet the fetter is put [shall prosper]. With-hold not thy son from the rod, else thou wilt not be able to save [him from wickedness]. If I smite thee, my son, thou wilt not die, but if I leave thee to thine own heart [thou wilt not live]. A blow for a bondman, a reb[u]ke for a bondwoman, and for all thy slaves dis[cipline]. One who] buys a run[away] slave [or] a thievish handmaid squanders his fortune and disgraces] the name of his father and his offspring with the reputation of his wantonness.—The scorpion [finds] bread but is not p[ leased, and something b]ad and is more pleased than if one fed it... The lion will lie in wait for the stag in the concealment of the... and he... and will shed its blood and eat its flesh. Even so is the meeting of [me]n... a lion... An ass which leaves [its load] and does not carry it shall take a load from its companion and take the b[urden] which is not its [own with its own] and shall be made to bear a camel's load.—The ass bend[s down] to the she-ass [from love of her, and the birds...]. Two things [which] are meet, and the third pleasing to Shamash: one who drinks wine and gives it to drink, one who guards wisdom, and one who hears a word and does not tell.—Behold that is dear to Shamash. But he who drinks wine and does not [give it to drink], and one whose wisdom goes astray, [... is seen.—

[... Wisdom ...].

(vii 95-110) To gods also she is dear. F[or all time] the kingdom is [hers]. In he[aven] is she established, for the lord of holy ones has exalted [her].—My son, ch[arter] not overmuch so that thou speak out [every word] that comes to thy mind; for men's (eyes) and ears are everywhere (trained) u[pon] thy mouth. Beware lest it be [thy] undoing. More than all watchfulness watch thy mouth, and [over] what [thou] h[earest] harden thy heart. For a word is a bird: once released no man can [capture it]. First co[un]t the secrets of thy mouth; then bring out thy [words] by number. For the instruction of a mouth is stronger than the instruction of war. Treat not lightly the word of a king: let it be healing for thy [flesh]. Soft is the utterance of a king; (yet) it is sharper and stronger than a [two]-edged knife. Look before thee: a hard look [on the face of a king] (means) "Delay not!"

His wrath is swift as lightning: do thou take heed unto thyself that he disp[lay i]t not against thine ut[era]nces and thou perish [be]fore thy time. [The wrath] of a king, if thou be commanded, is a burning fire. Obey [it] at once. Let it not be kindled against thee and cover (read: burn) thy hands. [Cov]er up the word of a king with the veil of the heart.—Why should wood strive with fire, flesh with a knife, a man with [a king]?

I have tasted even the bitter medlar, and [I have eaten] endives; but there is naught which is more bitter than poverty. Soft is the tongue of a king, but it breaks a dragon's ribs; like a plague, which is not seen.—Let not thy heart rejoice over the multitude of children [nor grieve] over their fewness. A king is like the Merciful; his voice also is loud: who is there that can stand before him, except one with whom is God? Beautiful is a king to behold, and noble is his majesty to them that walk the earth as [free]men. A good vessel cove[rs] a word in its heart, and a broken one lets it out. The lion approached to [greet the ass]: "Peace be unto thee." The ass answered and said to the lion:

(viii 111-125) I have lifted sand, and I have carried salt; but there is naught which is heavier than [rage]. I have lifted bruised straw, and I have taken up bran; but there is naught which is lighter than a sojourner. War troubles calm waters between good friends. If a man be small and grow great, his words soar above him. For the opening of his mouth is an utterance of gods, and if he be beloved of gods they will put something good in his mouth to say. Many are [the st][ar[s of heaven wh]ose names no man knows. By the same token, no man knows mankind. There is [n]o lion in the sea, therefore they call a flood a lb'. The leopard met the goat when she was cold. The leopard answered and said to the goat, "Come, I will cover thee with my hide." The goat [answered] and said to the leopard, "What need have I for it, my lord? Take not my skin from me." For he does not greet the gazelle except to suck its blood.—The bear went to the lam[bs. "Give me one of you and I] will be content." The lam[bs] answered and said to him, "Take whichever thou wilt of us. We are [thy la][mbs]."

Truly, 'tis not in the power of m[e]n to l[i][ft u]p their feet or to put them down with[ou]t the gods. Truly, 'tis not in thy power to l[i][ft u]p thy foot [o]r to put it down.—If a good thing come forth from the mouths of m[e]n, it is well for them], and if an evil thing come [forth] from their mouths, the gods will do evil unto them.—If God's eyes are on men, a man may chop wood in the dark without seeing, like a thief, who demolishes a house and ... (ix 123-141) [Bend not] thy [b]ow and shoot not thine arrow at a righteous man, lest God come to his help and turn it back upon thee. to thy children. [If thou be]nd thy bow and shoot thine arrow at a righteous man, from thee is the arrow but from God the guidance. [If] thou [be needy], my son, borrow corn and wheat that thou mayest eat and be sated and give to thy children with thee. Take not a heavy loan, from an evil man. More[over, if] thou take a loan, give no rest to thyself until [thou repay the] loan. [A loan is sweet as [ ... ], but its repayment is grief. My [son, hearken not] with thine ears to [a lying man].]
For a man’s charm is his truthfulness; his repulsiveness, the lies of his lips. [At fi]rst a throne [is set up] for the liar, but in the [end they fi]nd out his lies and spit in his face. A liar’s neck is cut [i.e. he speaks very softly?] like a ... virgin that [is hidden] from sight, like a man who causes misfortune which does not proceed from God.—[Despise not] that which is in thy lot, nor covet a wealth which is denied thee. [Multiply not] riches and make not great thy heart. [Whosoever] takes no pride in the names of his father and mother, may the s[un] not shine [upon him]; for he is a wicked man. [From myself] has my misfortune proceeded: with whom shall I be justified?—The son of my body has spied out my house; [wh]at can I say to strangers? [My son has] been a false witness against me: who, then, has justified me?—From my house has gone forth wrath: with whom shall I strive? Reveal not thy [secrets] before thy [fri]ends, lest thy name become despised of them. (x 142-158) With him who is more exalted than thou, quarrel not. With him who is ... and stronger than thou, [content not; for he will take] of thy portion and [add it to] his. Behold even so is a small man (who strives) with [a great one]. Remove not wisdom from thee [ ... ]. Gaze not overmuch [les]t thy vi[sion] be dimmed. Be not (too) sweet, lest they [swallow] thee: be not (too) bitter [lest they spit thee out]. If thou wouldst be [exalted], my son, [humble thyself before God], who humbles an [exalted] man and [exalts a lowly man]. What me[n’s] l[i]ps curse, God does n[ot] curse. (lines 152-5 badly damaged and omitted here) God shall twist the twister’s mouth and tear out [his] tongue. Let not good [ey]es be darkened, nor [good] ears [be stopped, and let a good mouth love] the truth and speak it. (xi 159-172) A man of [beco]ming conduct whose heart is good is like a mighty c[ity which is si]tuated upon a m[ountain]. There is [none that can bring him down.
Except] a man dwell with God, how can he be guarded by his own refuge? ..., but he with whom God is, who ca[n cas]t him down? (line 162 difficult and omitted here) A man [knows not] what is in his fellow's heart.
So when a good man [se]es a wi[cked] man [let him beware of him]. Let him [not] join with him on a journey or be a neighbor to him—a good man [with a ba[d] m[an]. The [bram]ble sent to [the] pomegranate tree [saying], "The bramble to the pomegranate: Wherefore the mul[titude] of (thy) thorns [to him that] touches thy [fru]it?" ... The [pomegranate tree] answered and said to the bramble, "Thou art al[l] thorns to him that touches thee." All that come in contact with a righteous man are on his side. [A city] of wicked men shall on a gusty day be pulled apart, and in ... its gates be brought low; for the spoil [of the righteous are they].—Mine eyes which I lifted up unto thee and my heart which I gave thee in wisdom [hast thou scorned, and thou hast brought my name into disg[race]. If the wicked man seize the corner of thy garment, leave it in his hand. Then approach Shamash: he will [t]ake his and give it to thee.

(xii 173-190) (Ends of all lines and beginnings of some missing. Only the point of line 188 is entirely clear: "Hunger makes bitterness sweet, and thirst [sourness]." In column xiii 191-207, only of a few sayings is enough preserved for making out the point.)

... If thy master entrust to thee water to keep [and thou do it faithfully, he may] leave gold with thee ... [A man] one [day said] to the wild ass, "[Let me ride] upon thee, and I will maintain thee ..." Said the wild ass, "Keep] thy maintenance and thy fodder, and let me not see thy riding."—Let not the rich man say, "In my riches I am glorious."

(Column xiv 208-223 has only shreds preserved; the point of the first one can be guessed: "[Do not sh]ow an Arab the sea nor a Sidonian the de[sert]; for their work is different.")

A PESSIMISTIC DIALOGUE BETWEEN MASTER AND SERVANT

ANET, 437-438

(1) [“Servant, obey me.” Yes, my lord, yes. [“Bring me at once the] chariot, hitch it up. I will ride to the palace.” [Ride, my lord, ride! All your wishes] will be realized for you. The king] will be gracious to you. (5) [*“No, servant,] I shall not ride [to] the palace.” [Do not ride], my lord, do not ride. [To a place . . . ] he will send you. [In a land which] you know [not] he will let you be captured. [Day and] night he will let you see trouble.

(II) (10) “Servant, obey me.” Yes, my lord, yes. [*“Bring me at] once water for my hands, and give it to me: I wish to dine.” [Dine,] my lord, dine. To dine regularly is the opening of the heart (i.e. brings joy). [To a dinner] eaten in happiness and with washed hands (the sun-god) Shamash comes. “No, [servant,] I shall not dine.” (15) Do not dine, my lord, do not dine. To be hungry and eat, to be thirsty and drink, comes upon (every) man.

(III) “Servant, obey me.” Yes, my lord, yes. “Bring me at once the chariot, hitch it up. I will ride to the wilderness.” Ride, my lord, ride. The fugitive’s stomach is full. (20) The hunting dog will break a bone; the fugitive hahur bird will build its nest; the wild ass running to and fro will . . . . “No, servant, to the wilderness I will not ride.” Do not ride, my lord, do not ride. (25) The fugitive’s mind is variable. The hunting dog’s teeth will break; the house of the fugitive hahur bird is in [a hole] of the wall; and the abode of the wild ass running to and fro is the desert.

(V) . . . “I will not build a house.” You will not build it.

(VI) [*“Servant, obey me.” Yes, my lord, yes.] “At the [word of my adversary I shall remain silent.”] (40) Remain silent, my lord, remain [silent. Silence is better than speech.] “No, servant, at the [word of my adversary I shall not remain silent.”] Do not remain silent, my lord, [do not remain silent.] If you do not speak with your mouth …… Your adversary will be angry with you ……

(VII) (45) “Servant, obey me.” Yes, my lord, yes. “I intend to start a rebellion.” Do (it), my lord, [do (it)]. If you do not start a rebellion what becomes of your clay? Who will give you (something) to fill your stomach? “No, servant, I shall not do something violent.” (50) [Do (it) not, my lord, do (it) not.] The man doing something violent is killed or [ill-treated], or he is maimed, or captured and cast into prison.

(VIII) “Servant, obey me.” Yes, my lord, yes. (55) “A woman will I love.” Yes, love, my lord, love. The man who loves a woman forgets pain and trouble. “No, servant, a woman I shall not love.” [Do not love,] my lord, do not [love]. Woman is a well, (60) woman is an iron dagger—a sharp one!—which cuts a man’s neck.

(IX) “Servant, obey me.” Yes, my lord, yes. “Bring me at once water for my hands, and give it to me: I will offer a sacrifice to my god.” Offer, my lord, offer. A man offering sacrifice to his god is happy, loan upon loan he makes. “No, servant, a sacrifice to my god will I not offer.” Do not offer (it), my lord, do not offer (it). You may teach a god to trot after you like a dog when he requires of you, (saying), “(Celebrate) my ritual” or “do not inquire (by requesting an oracle)” or anything else.

(X) [“Servant,] obey me.” Yes, my lord, yes. (70) “I shall give food to our country.” Give it, my lord, give it! [The man who] gives food [to his country]—his barley (remains) his own but his receipts from interest (payments) become immense. [“No, servant,] food to my country I shall not give.” [Do not give, my lord,] do not give. Giving is like loving…… giving birth to a son, (75) they will curse you. [They will eat] your barley and destroy you.

(XI) “Servant, obey me.” Yes, my lord, yes. “I will do something helpful for my country.” Do (it), my lord, do (it). The man who does something helpful for his country,—his helpful deed is placed in the bowl of Marduk. (80) "No, servant, I will not do something helpful for my country." Do it not, my lord, do it not. Climb the mounds of ancient ruins and walk about: look at the skulls of late and early (men); who (among them) is an evildoer, who a public benefactor?

(XII) "Servant, obey me." Yes, my lord, yes. "Now, what is good? (85) To break my neck, your neck, throw (both) into the river—(that) is good." Who is tall enough to ascend to heaven? Who is broad enough to embrace the earth? "No, servant, I shall kill you and send you ahead of me." (Then) would my lord (wish to) live even three days after me? (Colophon) Written according to the original and collated.

Egyptian Prophecy

TRANSLATOR: JOHN A. WILSON

THE PROPHECY OF NEFER-ROHU

The Middle Kingdom delivered Egypt from the civil war and anarchy which had followed the Old Kingdom. These troubles and their ultimate resolution produced a sense of messianic salvation, a feeling which the early pharaohs of the Middle Kingdom probably fostered in their own interests. The following text was apparently composed at that time of happy deliverance, although the earliest extant copies happen to date from the Eighteenth Dynasty, about five centuries later. The text purports to relate how King Snefru of the Fourth Dynasty sought entertainment and how a prophet foretold the downfall of the Old Kingdom and the reestablishment of order by Amen-em-het I, the first king of the Twelfth Dynasty.

Now it happened that the majesty of the King of Upper and Lower Egypt: Snefru, the triumphant, was the beneficent king in this entire land. On one of these days it happened that the official council of the Residence City entered into the Great House—life, [prosperity], health!—to offer greeting. Then they went out, that they might offer greetings (elsewhere), according to their daily procedure. Then his majesty—life, prosperity, health!—said to the seal-bearer who was at his side: "Go and bring me (back) the official council of the Residence City, which has gone forth hence to offer greetings on this [day]." (Thereupon they) were ushered in to him (5) immediately. Then they were on their bellies in the presence of his majesty a second time.

Then his majesty—life, prosperity, health!—said to them: "(My) people, behold, I have caused you to be called to have you seek out for me a son of yours who is wise, or a brother of yours who is competent, or a friend of yours who has performed a good deed, one who may say to me a few fine words or choice speeches, at the hearing of which my [majesty] may be entertained."

Then they put (themselves) upon their bellies in the presence of his majesty—life, prosperity, health!—once more. Then they said before his majesty—life, prosperity, health!: "A great lector-priest of Bastet, O sovereign, our lord, (10) whose name is Nefer-rohu—he is a commoner valiant [with] his arm, a scribe competent with his fingers; he is a man of rank, who has more property than any peer of his. Would that he [might be permitted] to see his majesty!" Then his majesty—life, prosperity, health!—said: "Go and [bring] him to me!"

Then he was ushered in to him immediately. Then he was on his belly in the presence of his majesty—life, prosperity, health! Then his majesty—life, prosperity, health!—said: "Come, pray, Nefer-rohu, my friend, that thou mayest say to me a few fine words or choice speeches, at the hearing of which my majesty may be entertained!" Then the lector-priest Nefer-rohu said: "Of what has (already) happened or of what is going to happen, O Sovereign—life, prosperity, health!—[my] lord?" (15) Then his majesty—life, prosperity, health!—said: "Rather of what is going to happen. If it has taken place by today, pass it [by]." Then he stretched forth his hand for the box of writing equipment; then he drew forth a scroll of papyrus and a palette; thereupon he put (it) into writing.

What the lector-[priest] Nefer-rohu said, that wise man of the east, he who belonged to Bastet at her appearances, that child of the Heliopolitan nome, as he brooded over what (was to) happen in the land, as he

2 The lector-priest (literally, "he who carries the ritual") was initiated into the sacred writings and thus was priest, seer, and magician. Bastet was the cat-goddess of Bubastis in the eastern half of the Delta.

8 This must be the general sense, although the wording is obscure. An Egyptian interest in the future, rather than the past, was not normal, but a prophecy which promised that the future would reverse the past would be acceptable.

4 The pharaoh himself wrote down the prophecy. The Egyptian texts treat Snefru as a friendly and approachable ruler.

9 Although now serving in Bubastis, he was born in the Heliopolitan nome.
called to mind the state of the east, when the Asiatics would move about with their strong arms, would disturb the hearts [of] those who are at the harvest, and would take away the spans of cattle at the plowing. (20) He said:

_Reconstruct, O my heart, (how) thou bewailest this land in which thou didst begin! To be silent is repression. Behold, there is something about which men speak as terrifying, for, behold, the great man is a thing passed away (in the land) where thou didst begin. Be not lax; behold, it is before thy face! Mayest thou rise up against what is before thee, for, behold, although great men are concerned with the land, what has been done is as what is not done. Re must begin the foundation of the earth over again. The land is completely perished, (so that) no remainder exists, (so that) not (even) the black of the nail survives from what was fated._

_This land is (so) damaged (that) there is no one who is concerned with it, no one who speaks, no eye that weeps. How is this land? The sun disc is covered over. (25) It will not shine (so that) people may see. No one can live when clouds cover over (the sun). Then everybody is deaf for lack of it._

_I shall speak of what is before my face; I cannot foretell what has not (yet) come._

_The rivers of Egypt are empty, (so that) the water is crossed on foot. Men seek for water for the ships to sail on it. Its course is [become] a sandbank. The sandbank is against the flood; the place of water is against the [flood]—(both) the place of water and the sandbank._

2 The south wind will oppose the north wind; the skies are no (longer) in a single wind. A foreign bird will be born in the marshes of the Northland. It has made a nest beside (30) men, and people have let it approach through want of it._

_Damaged indeed are those good things, those fish-ponds, (where there were) those who clean fish, overflowing with fish and fowl. Everything good is disappeared, and the land is 1 Not so much of the "Black Land" of Egypt survives as might be under a fingernail.

2 Perhaps mistranslated, but attempting to hold the idea that neither the banks nor the bed of the stream would receive the life-giving inundation.

3 The pleasant north wind is the normal wind of Egypt.

prostrate because of woes from that food, the Asiatics who are throughout the land.

Foes have arisen in the east, and Asiatics have come down into Egypt. . . . No protector will listen. . . . Men will enter into the fortresses. Sleep will be banished from my eyes, (35) as I spend the night wakeful. The wild beasts of the desert will drink at the rivers of Egypt and be at their ease on their banks for lack of some one to scare them away.

This land is helter-skelter, and no one knows the result which will come about, which is hidden from speech, sight, or hearing. The face is deaf, for silence confronts. I show thee the land topsy-turvy. That which never happened has happened. Men will take up weapons of warfare, (so that) the land lives in (40) confusion. Men will make arrows of metal, beg for the bread of blood, and laugh with the laughter of sickness. There is no one who weeps because of death; there is no one who spends the night fasting because of death; (but) a man’s heart pursues himself (alone). (Dishevelled) mourning is no (longer) carried out today, (for) the heart is completely separated from it. A man sits in his corner, (turning) his back while one man kills another. I show thee the son as a foe, the brother as an enemy, and a man (45) killing his (own) father.

Every mouth is full of “Love me!” and everything good has disappeared. The land is perished, (as though) laws were destined for it: the damaging of what had been done, the emptiness of what had been found, and the doing of what had not been done. Men take a man’s property away from him, and it is given to him who is from outside. I show thee the possessor in need and the outsider satisfied. He who never filled for himself (now) empties. Men will [treat] (fellow) citizens as hateful, in order to silence the mouth that speaks. If a statement is answered, an arm goes out with a stick, and men speak with: “Kill him!” The utterance

8 Hysteria.
A piou obligation resting upon the Egyptians was to restore the inscriptions of the ancestors which were “found empty,” i.e., damaged or containing lacunae. Under the present unsettled conditions what was found empty was left empty.
Perhaps: he who never had to insist on full measure for himself now scrapes the bottom.
OF SPEECH IN THE HEART is like a fire. (50) Men cannot suffer what issues from a man's mouth.

The land is diminished, (but) its administrators are many; bare, (but) its taxes are great; little in grain, (but) the measure is large, and it is measured to overflowing.

Re separates himself (from) mankind. If he shines forth, it is (but) an hour. No one knows when midday falls, for his shadow cannot be distinguished. There is no one bright of face when seeing [him]; the eyes are not moist with water, when he is in the sky like the moon. His prescribed time does not fail. His rays are indeed in (men's) faces in his former way.

I SHOW THEE THE LAND TOPSY-TURVY. The weak of arm is (now) the possessor of an arm. Men (55) salute (respectfully) him who (formerly) saluted. I show thee the undermost on top, turned about in proportion to the turning about of my belly. Men live in the necropolis. The poor man will make wealth.... It is the paupers who eat the offering-bread, while the servants jubilate. The Heliopolitan nome, the birthplace of every god, will no (longer) be on earth.

(Then) IT IS THAT A KING WILL COME, BELONGING TO THE SOUTH, Ameni, the triumphant, his name. He is the son of a woman of the land of Nubia; he is one born in Upper Egypt.* He will take the [White] Crown; he will wear the Red Crown; (60) he will unite the Two Mighty Ones; * he will satisfy the Two Lords,* with what they desire. The encircler-of-the-fields (will be) in his grasp, the oar...

REJOICE, ye people of his time! The son of a man will make his name forever and ever. They who incline toward evil and who plot rebellion have subdued their speech for fear of him. The Asiatics will fall to his sword, and the Libyans will fall to his flame. The rebels belong to his wrath, and the treacherous of heart to (65) the awe of him. The uraeus-serpent which is on his brow stills for him the treacherous of heart.

LOVE SONGS

The later Egyptian Empire (1300-1100 B.C.) has provided us with several collections of love songs. They were apparently intended to be sung to the accompaniment of some musical instrument. They express an enjoyment of nature and the out-of-doors. As in the Song of Songs, the lovers are called "my brother" and "my sister."

The voice of the swallow speaks and says:
"The land has brightened—What is thy road?" 1
Thou shalt not, O bird, disturb me!
I have found my brother in his bed,
And my heart is still more glad,
(When he) said to me:
"I shall not go afar off.
My hand is in thy hand,
I shall stroll about,
And I shall be with thee in every pleasant place."
He makes me the foremost of maidens.
He injures not my heart.
THE END.

1 Where are you walking in the early morning?

SEVENTH STANZA. 2

Seven (days) to yesterday I have not seen the sister,
And a sickness has invaded me.
My body has become heavy,
Forgetful of my own self. 2

1 Here the word "seven" is employed to place of a pun.
2 Often in the sense of losing consciousness.

Song of Sol. 2:12-13

Song of Sol. 2:5; 5:8
If the chief of physicians come to me,
    My heart is not content (with) their remedies;
The lector priests, no way (out) is in them:—
    My sickness will not be probed.
To say to me: "Here she is!" is what will revive me;
    Her name is what will lift me up;
The going in and out of her messengers
    Is what will revive my heart.
More beneficial to me is the sister than any remedies;
    She is more to me than the collected writings.
My health is her coming in from outside:
    When (I) see her, then (I) am well.
If she opens her eye, my body is young (again);
    If she speaks, then I am strong (again);
When I embrace her, she drives evil away from me—
    But she has gone forth from me for seven days!

Song of Sol. 1:9

Would that thou wouldst come (to the sister speedily),
    Like a horse of the king,
Picked from a thousand of all steeds,
    The foremost of the stables!
It is distinguished in its food,
    And its master knows its paces.
If it hears the sound of the whip,
    It knows no delay,
And there is no foremost of the chasseurs
    Who can stay before it (to hold it).
How well the sister’s heart knows
    That he is not far from the sister! THE END.

IN PRAISE OF THE CITY RAMSES

The pharaohs of the Nineteenth Dynasty established their residence city, the biblical Ramses or Raamases, in the northeastern Delta. The glories of this new capital were celebrated in poetical compositions like the following.

The Scribe Pai-Bes communicating to his lord, the Scribe Amen-em-Opet: In life, prosperity, health! It is a letter to let [my] lord know. Another communication to my lord, to wit:

I have reached Per-Ramases, and have found (ii r) it in [very, very] good condition, a beautiful district, without its like, after the pattern of Thebes. It was [Re] himself [who founded it.]
The Residence is pleasant in life; its field is full of everything good; it is (full) of supplies and food every day, its ponds with fish, and its lakes with birds. Its meadows are verdant with grass; its banks bear dates; its melons are abundant on the sands.... Its granaries are (so) full of barley and emmer (that) they come near to the sky. Onions and leeks (5) are for food, and lettuce of the garden, pomegranates, apples, and olives, figs of the orchard, sweet wine of Ka-of-Egypt, surpassing honey, red wedj-fish of the canal of the Residence City, which live on lotus-flowers, bedin-fish of the Hari-waters....

The Shi-Hor has salt, and the Her canal has natron. Its ships go out and come (back) to mooring, (so that) supplies (10) and food are in it every day. One rejoices to dwell within it, and there is none who says: “Would that!” to it. The small in it are like the great.

Come, let us celebrate for it its feasts of the sky, as well as its feasts at the beginning of the seasons.

The reed-thicker* comes to it with papyrus; the Shi-Hor with rushes.... (iii 1) The young men of "Great of Victories" are dressed up every day, with sweet oil upon their heads and newly dressed hair. They stand beside their doors, their hands bowed down with flowers, with greenery of the House of Hat-Hor and flax of the Her canal, on the day when User-maat-Re Setep-en-Re—life, prosperity, health!—Montu-in-the-Two-Lands enters in, on the morning of the Feast of Khoiakh. (5) Every man is like his fellow in uttering their petitions.

The ale of "Great of Victories" is sweet;... beer of Kode* from the harbor, and wine of the vineyards. The ointment of the Segbeyen waters is sweet, and the garlands of the garden. The singers of "Great of Victories" are sweet, being instructed in Memphis.

1 A well-known vineyard of the Delta.
2 The biblical "the Shihor (which is before Egypt)," or "the Waters of Horus," Presumably the Tanitic branch of the Nile, with its salt-flats.
3 No one feels a lack in the city Ramses.
4 The "feasts of the sky" were those astronomically set, such as those of the phases of the moon. The seasonal feasts included the Coronation Feast, the Rising of the Dog-Star, the Feast of Opet, etc.
5 The word used appears also in Hebrew in "the Sea of Reeds" (conventionally translated "Red Sea").
6 Kade or Qedi was the north Phoenician coast, carrying into Cilicia.

THE MARI LETTERS:

In 1935-38 André Parrot excavated the palace of king Zimri-Lim (about 1730-1700 B.C.) at Tell el-Hariri, ancient Mari on the Middle Euphrates. Among nearly 20,000 cuneiform tablets found in this palace were some 5,000 letters, mostly written by native Amorites (Northwestern Semites) in a Babylonian full of West-Semitic words and grammatical usages. Personal names, language and customs reflect the culture of the Patriarchal Age in Genesis.

Published and translated by G. Dossin in RA, xxxv (1938), pp. 178 f.

To my lord say: Thus Bannum, thy servant. Yesterday, (5) I departed from Mari, and spent the night at Zuruban. All the Benjaminites raised fire-signals. (10) From Samanum to Illum-Muluk, from Illum-Muluk to Mishlan, all the cities of the Benjaminites (15) of the Terqa district raised fire signals in response, and so far I have not ascertained the meaning of those signals. Now, I shall (20) determine the meaning, and I shall write to my lord whether it is thus or not. Let the guard of the city of Mari be strengthened, (25) and let my lord not go outside the gate.

Published by C. F. Jean in Archives royales de Mari, ii, No. 22. For his preliminary translation see RA, xxxix, pp. 64 ff.; the following is fully revised.

To my lord say: Thus Ibal-pi-Il, thy servant. (5) Hammurabi spoke to me as follows: "A heavily armed force had gone out to raid the enemy column, but there was no suitable base to be found, so that force has returned empty-handed and the column of the enemy is proceeding in good order without panic. Now let a light armed force go to raid the enemy column and capture informers."

Thus Hammurabi spoke to me. I am sending Sakirum with three hundred troops to Shabazum, (20) and the troops which I have sent are one hundred fifty [Hanu], fifty Suhu, and one hundred troops from the bank of the Euphrates River; and there are three hundred troops of Babylon. In the van of the troops of my lord there goes Ilu-nasir, the seer,¹ the subject of my lord, (25) and one Babylonian seer goes with the troops of Babylon. These six hundred troops are based in Shabazum, and the seer assembles the omens. When the appearance of their (30) omens is favorable, one hundred fifty go out and one hundred fifty come in. May my lord know this. The troops of my lord are well.

To my lord say: Thus Ibal-II, thy servant. The tablet of Ibal-Adad from Aslakka (5) reached me and I went to Aslakka to “kill an ass”² between the Hanu and Idamaras. A “puppy and lettuce” they brought, but I obeyed my lord and (10) I did not give the “puppy and lettuce.” I caused the foal of an ass to be slaughtered. I established peace between the Hanu and Idamaras. (15) In Hurra, in all of Idamaras, the Hanu are victorious, as a victor who has no enemy.³ May my lord be pleased. This tablet of mine (20) I will have delivered to my lord in Rataspumat. I will reach my lord by the third day after this tablet of mine. (25) The camp and the Banu-Sim'al⁴ are well.

To my lord say: Thus Mashum, thy servant. (5) Sintiri wrote to me for help, and I reached him with troops at Shubat-Shamash. The next day word of the enemy (10) came as follows: “ Yapah-Adad has made ready the settlement Zallul on this side on the bank of the Euphrates River, and with two thousand troops

² This expression is always in Amorite, transcribed in cuneiform bāyōrum qatlum (Heb. qatal ‘śir’); it means simply “make a treaty,” which was solemnized by the sacrifice of a young ass. Much as the later Saracens of St. Nilus’ time sacrificed a camel.
³ The cuneiform text must be read lāhu’tum gerem um ilu, obviously referring to the bloodless victory of the Hanu (the most important tribe of Mari) over their former foes in the southeastern marches.
of the Hapiru of the land (15), is dwelling in that city." This word came to me, and from Shubat-Shamash, with troops of my command and with troops of the command of (20) Sintiri, I hurried, and made ready the town of Himush over against the town of Zallul. Between the two (25) cities (there is a distance of) thirty "fields." When I had made ready the city of Himush over against him, and he saw that the land was hastening to (my) aid, (30) he raised a fire signal, and all the cities of the land of Ursum on the other side acknowledged it. The security forces which are stationed within the brick-enclosure are numerous, and, lest they (35) wipe out the troops, I did not draw near the city. This tablet of mine I send to my lord from the bank of the Euphrates River. The troops and cattle are well.

ANET, 483-490: THE AMARNA LETTERS

In 1887 an Egyptian peasant woman discovered a collection of cuneiform tablets at Tell el-Amarna in Middle Egypt, the site of Akh-en-Aton’s capital in the early fourteenth century B.C. These tablets were sold to European museums and private dealers; some of them escaped attention for nearly thirty years. Subsequently excavation disclosed enough additional tablets to bring the total collection up to about 377 numbers. Almost all of them are letters belonging to the royal archives of Amenhotep III and his son Akh-en-Aton. Nearly 300 letters were written by Canaanite (or rarely Egyptian) scribes in Palestine, Phoenicia, and southern Syria, about half of them in Palestine proper. These letters are written in a conventional vulgar Akkadian, full of canaanittisms in grammar and vocabulary. Occasionally we find a letter written mostly in Canaanite with scattered Akkadian formulas and ideograms. They date from the last years of Amen-hotep III and the reign of his successor; a very few may date from the ephemeral reign of Akh-en-Aton’s son-in-law and successor, Smenkhkare.

The translations offered below represent the combined work of W. F. Albright and George E. Mendenhall, with a few corrections by W. L. Moran, S. J.—En.

EA, No. 234

To the king, my lord, the Sun-god from heaven: Thus Zatatna, prince of Accho, thy servant, the servant of the king, and (5) the dirt (under) his two feet, the ground which he treads. At the two feet of the king, my lord, the Sun-god from heaven, seven times,

This letter comes from the time of Akh-en-Aton. Shuta (pronounce Suta) was an Egyptian officer, probably the great-grandfather of Ramses II; Biryawaza (whose name was formerly read erroneously Namjoseann) was prince of Damascus under Egyptian suzerainty. All personal names (except Shuta) are Indo-Aryan.
seven times I fall, both prone and supine. (10) Let the king, my lord, hear the word of his servant! [Zir]dam-yashda has withdrawn from Biryawaza. [He was] with Shuta, the [servant] of the (15) king in the city of [.....] He did not say anything to him. The army of the king, my lord, has departed. He was with it in Megiddo. (20) I said nothing to him, but he deserted to me, and now Shuta has written to me: "Give (25) Zirdam-yashda to Biryawaza!" But I did not consent to give him up. Behold, Accho is (as Egyptian) as Magdal (30) in Egypt, but the king, my lord, has not heard that [Shuta] has turned against me. Now let the king, my lord, send (35) his commissioner and fetch him.

EA, No. 244

To the king, my lord, and my Sun-god, say: Thus Biridiya, the faithful servant of the (5) king. At the two feet of the king, my lord, and my Sun-god, seven and seven times I fall. Let the king know that (10) ever since the archers returned (to Egypt?), Lab'ayu has carried on hostilities against me, and we are not able to pluck the wool, and we are not able to go outside the gate in the presence of Lab'ayu, since he learned that thou hast not given (20) archers; and now his face is set to take Megiddo, (25) but let the king protect his city, lest Lab'ayu seize it. (30) Verily, the city is destroyed by death from pestilence and disease. Let the king give (35) one hundred garrison troops to guard the city lest Lab'ayu seize it. Verily, there is no other purpose in (41) Lab'ayu. He seeks to destroy Megiddo.

EA, No. 245

Further, I said to my brethren, "If the gods of the king, our lord, grant (5) that we capture Lab'ayu, then we will bring him alive to the king, our lord"; but my mare was felled by an arrow, and I alighted (10) afterwards and rode with Yashdata, but before my arrival, they had slain him. (15) Verily, Yashdata is thy servant, and he entered the battle with me. And

---

* Biridiya was prince of Megiddo at the end of the reign of Amen-hotep III and the beginning of the reign of Akh-en-Aton; his name is Indo-Aryan like most other princely names of northern Palestine at that time. Lab'ayu (whose name meant approximately "Son-like" in Canaanite) was prince of Shechem in the central hill-country and was constantly raiding the territory and caravans of his neighbors on all sides.

 This is the latter part (all that is preserved) of a continued letter from Biridiya of Megiddo. Zurata, whom Biridiya accuses of treachery, was prince of Acche (biblical Accho).
verily, [...] (20) the life of the king, my lord [and] [...] all in [...] of the king, my lord, [...] and Zurata (25) removed Lab'ayu from Megiddo, saying to me: "I will send him by ship (30) to the king," and Zurata took him and sent him home from Hannathon, for Zurata had received his ransom money (35) in his hand.

Further, what have I done to the king, my lord, that he should despise me and honor (40) my younger brothers? Zurata has sent Lab'ayu, and Zurata has sent Ba'lu-mihir to their homes, and let the king, my lord, be informed!

RA, xix, p. 97.

To the king, my lord, and my Sun-god say: Thus Biridiya, the true servant of the king. (5) At the feet of the king, my lord, and my Sun-god, seven times and seven times I fall. Let the king be informed concerning his servant and concerning his city. (10) Behold, I am working in the town of Shunama, and I bring men of the corvée, (15) but behold, the governors who are with me do not as I (do): they do not (20) work in the town of Shunama, and they do not bring men for the corvée, but I alone (25) bring men for the corvée from the town of Yapu. They come from Shunama, and likewise from the town of Nuribda. (30) So let the king be informed concerning his city!

EA, No. 250.

'To the king, my lord, say: Thus Ba'lu-UR.SAC, thy servant. At the feet of the king, my lord, seven times, seven times, I fall. Let the king, my lord, know that (5) the two sons of a rebel against the king my lord, the two sons of Lab'ayu, have determined to destroy the land of the king, my lord, after their father's death. And let the king, my lord, know that (10) many days the two sons of Lab'ayu have accused me (saying): "Why hast thou given the town of Giti-padda into the hand of the king, thy lord—the city which Lab'ayu, our

1 This letter from the prince of Megiddo is very instructive because of the light it throws on forced labor for the king in the Plain of Esdraelon, several of whose towns and villages are mentioned. The word for "corvée" is the Hebrew ma'am, which is employed a little later of the tribe of Issachar in this very region.

2 The prince from whom this letter comes was in control of a district in the northern coastal plain of Palestine, south of Carmel. Here Lab'ayu's sons are described as continuing their father's activities. Birya'awa, whose help is wanted to subdue the retaliating tribes, was prince of Damascus. Milku was prince of Gezer, whose territory adjoined the territory of Ba'lu-UR.SAC ("Baal is a warrior") on the south.
father, captured?” (15) So thus the two sons of Lab’ayu spoke to me: “Declare war against the people of the land of Qena, because they slew our father; and if you do not declare war, then we are hostile to you.”

But I answered them: (20) “May the god of the king, my lord, preserve me from making war against the people of the land of Qena, the servants of the king, my lord!” Now may it be agreeable to the king, my lord, to send one of his officers to Biryawaza (25) and let him say to him: “Wilt thou march against the two sons of Lab’ayu, or art thou a rebel against the king?” And after him, let the king, my lord, send to me [. . . ] the deed (30) ‘of the king,’ thy ‘lord’, against the two sons of Lab’ayu [. . . ] Milkilu has gone in to them[. . . ] (35) . . . ‘land of the king, my lord, with them after Milkilu and Lab’ayu died.’ (40) And thus the two sons of Lab’ayu spoke: “Be hostile to the king, thy lord, like our father, when he attacked Shunuma and Burguna and Harabu, and (45) destroyed them/smote them. And he took Giti-rimuni, and he betrayed the helpers of the king, thy lord.”

But I answered them: “The god of the king, my lord, preserve me from making (50) war against the king, my lord. The king, my lord, I serve, and my brothers who hearken to me.” But the courier of Milkilu does not move from the two sons of Lab’ayu (55) a (single) day. Behold, Milkilu seeks to destroy the land of the king, my lord. But there is no other intention with me—I serve the king, my lord, and the word which the king, my lord, speaks do I hear.

EA, No. 252

To the king, my lord, say: Thus Lab’ayu, thy servant. At the feet of my lord I fall. (5) As for what thou hast written, “Are the people strong who have captured the town? How can the men be arrested?” (I reply) “By fighting was the town captured, (10) in spite of the fact that I had taken an oath of conciliation and that, when I took the oath, an (Egyptian) officer took the oath with me! The city as well as my god are captured. I am slandered/blamed (15) before the king, my lord.”

1 This letter is written in almost pure Canaanite and was not understood until very recently. Lab’ayu virtuously protests that he was only repelling aggressors who had attacked his native town (not Shechem, which was his capital) in spite of a previous treaty sworn in the presence of an Egyptian official.
Further, when (even) ants are smitten, they do not accept it (passively), but they bite the hand of the man who smites them. (20) How could I hesitate this day when two of my towns are taken?

Further, even if thou shouldst say: "(25) Fall beneath them, and let them smite thee," I should still repel my foe, the men who seized the town and (30) my god, the despoilers of my father, (yea) I would repel them.

EA, No. 254

To the king, my lord and my Sun-god: Thus Lab'ayu, thy servant, and the dirt on which thou dost tread. At the feet of the king, my lord, (5) and my Sun-god, seven times and seven times I fall.

I have heard the words which the king wrote to me, and who am I that the king should lose his land (10) because of me? Behold, I am a faithful servant of the king, and I have not rebelled and I have not sinned, and I do not withhold my tribute, and I do not refuse (15) the requests of my commissioner. Now they wickedly slander me, but let the king, my lord, not impute rebellion to me!

Further, (20) my crime is namely that I entered Gezer and said publicly: (25) "Shall the king take my property, and not likewise the property of Milkilu?" I know the deeds which Milkilu has done against me.

(30) Further, the king wrote concerning my son. I did not know that my son associates with the 'Apiru (36), and I have verily delivered him into the hand of Addaya.

Further, if the king should write for my wife, (40) how could I withhold her? If the king should write to me, "Plunge a bronze dagger into thy heart and (45) die!", how could I refuse to carry out the command of the king?

EA, No. 256

To Yanhamu, my lord say: Thus Mut-ba'lu, thy servant. At the two feet of my lord I fall. How is it said (5)

1 In this letter Lab'ayu protests his innocence of all charges against him and assures the king (Amen-hotep III) that he is more loyal than the neighbors who complain against him.

2 Mut-ba'lu (literally "Man of Baal") was prince of Pella in the northern Jordan Valley, opposite Beth-Shan; Aysah (Aysah, Hebrew Job) was prince of Ashtarlu (biblical Ashtaroth) in Bashan. The land of Gare lay in southern Golan between Pella and Ashtarlu. Yanhamu, to whom the letter is addressed, was a high Egyptian official of Canaanite (possibly of Hebrew) origin, who seems to have been the Egyptian governor of Palestine at the beginning of the reign of Akh-en-Aton.
before thee, "Mut-ba'lu has fled, Ayab has hidden himself?" How can the prince of Pella flee from the face of the commissioner (10) of the king, his lord? As the king my lord lives, as the king my lord lives, Ayab is not in Pella. Behold, he has not been (here) for two months(?). (15) Indeed, ask Ben-ilima, ask Taduwa, ask Yashuya. Again, at the instance of (20) the house of Shulum-Marduk, the city of Ashtartu came to (my) help, when all the cities of the land of Garu were hostile, (namely) Udumu, Aduru, (25) Araru, Meshqu, Magdalu, Eni-anabu and Zarqu, and when Hayanu and Yabilima were captured.

Further, behold—after (30) thy writing a tablet to me, I wrote to him. Before thou dost arrive with thy caravan, behold, he will have reached Pella, and he will hear (thy) words. EA, No. 270

To the king, my lord, my pantheon, my Sun-god, say: Thus Milkilu, thy servant, (5) the dirt (under) thy feet. At the feet of the king, my lord, my pantheon, my Sun-god, seven times, seven times I fall. Let the king, my lord, know (10) the deed which Yanhamu did to me after I left the presence of the king, my lord. Now he seeks (15) two thousand (shekels) of silver from my hand, saying to me: "Give me thy wife and (20) thy children, or I will smite!" Let the king know this deed, and let my lord send to me (26) chariots, and let him take me to himself lest I perish!

EA, No. 271

To the king, my lord, my pantheon, my Sun-god, say: Thus Milkilu, thy servant, (5) the dirt (under) thy feet. At the feet of the king, my lord, my pantheon, my Sun-god, seven times, seven times, I fall. Let the king know (10) that powerful is the hostility against me and against Shuwardata. Let the king, my lord, protect his land (15) from the hand of the 'Apiru. If not, (then) let the king, my lord, send chariots (20) to fetch us, lest our servants smite us.

1 Milkilu (Heb. Malchiel) was prince of Gessen. For Yanhamu see the previous letter.
2 For Milkilu see the previous letter. Shuwardata (with an Indo-Aryan name) was prince of the Hebron region in the southern hill-country, and frequently appears in association with Milkilu. The 'Apiru (formerly called Habiru) were a strong semi-nomadic people, or rather class of population in Syria and Palestine. While there is much reason to identify them with the Hebrews of the Patriarchal Age, the combination still remains uncertain and cannot be made the basis for any historical inferences.
Further, let the king, my lord, ask (25) Yanhamu, his servant, concerning that which is done in his land.

RA, xxxi, pp. 125-136

To Milkiitu, prince of Gezer. Thus the king. Now I have sent thee this tablet to say to thee: Behold, (5) I am sending to thee Hanya, the commissioner of the archers, together with goods, in order to procure fine concubines (i.e.) weaving women: silver, gold, (linen) garments, (10) turquoise, all (sorts of) precious stones, chairs of ebony, as well as every good thing, totalling 160 deben. Total: 40 concubines: the price of each concubine is 40 (shekels) of silver. (15) So send very fine concubines in whom there is no blemish. (19) And let the king, thy lord, say to thee, "This is good. To thee life has been decreed." And mayest thou know that (25) the king is well, like the Sun-god. His troops, his chariots, his horses are very well. Behold, the god Amon has placed the upper land, (30) the lower land, the rising of the sun, and the setting of the sun under the two feet of the king.

EA, No. 280

To the king, my lord, my pantheon, my Sun-god, say: Thus Shuwardata, (5) thy servant, the dirt (under) thy feet! At the feet of the king, my lord, my pantheon, my Sun-god, seven times, seven times, I fall! (9) The king, my lord, sent me to make war against Keilah. I have made war (and) I was successful; my town has been restored (15) to me. Why did 'Abdu-Heba write to the people of Keilah (saying): "Take (my) silver and (20) follow me!" And let the king, my lord, know that 'Abdu-Heba had taken the town from my hand.

Further, (25) let the king, my lord, investigate; if I have taken a man or a single ox or an ass from him, then he is in the right! (30)

Further, Lab'ayu is dead, who seized our towns; but behold, 'Abdu-Heba is another Lab'ayu, and (35) he (also) seizes our towns! So let the king take thought

1 This letter from pharaoh to Milkiitu of Gezer throws an interesting light on the rôle of the Canaanite princes in organizing royal commerce in Asia; Egyptian products and manufactured articles are to be exchanged for the best quality of slave-girls.

2 Shuwardata, prince of the Hebron district, here protests to pharaoh (Akh-en-Aton) that 'Abdu-Heba, prince of Jerusalem, is just as aggressive as the unlaconicute Lab'ayu (see the previous letters).
for his servant because of this deed! And I will not do anything until the king sends back a message to his servant.

RA, xix, p. 106

To the king, my lord, my Sun-god, my pantheon say: Thus Shuwardata, thy servant, servant of the king (5) and the dirt (under) his two feet, the ground (on) which thou dost tread! At the feet of the king, my lord, the Sun-god from heaven, seven times, seven times I fall, both (10) prone and supine.

Let the king, my lord, learn that the chief of the Apiru has risen (in arms) against the lands which the god of the king, my lord, gave me; (16) but I have smitten him. Also let the king, my lord, know that all my brethren have abandoned me, and (20) it is I and 'Abdu-Heba (who) fight against the chief of the 'Apiru. And Zurata, prince of Accho, and Indaruta, prince of Achshaph, it was they (who) hastened (25) with fifty chariots—for I had been robbed (by the 'Apiru)—to my help; but behold, they are fighting against me, so let it be agreeable to the king, my lord, and (30) let him send Yanhamu, and let us make war in earnest, and let the lands of the king, my lord, be restored to their (former) limits!

EA, No. 286

To the king, my lord, say: Thus 'Abdu-Heba, thy servant. At the two feet of my lord, the king, seven times and seven times I fall. (5) What have I done to the king, my lord? They blame me before the king, my lord (saying): "'Abdu-Heba has rebelled against the king, his lord." Behold, as for me, (it was) not my father (10) and not my mother (who) set me in this

1 This letter, from the beginning of Akh-en-Atot's reign, is an extraordinarily illuminating illustration of the situation in Palestine at that time. Just who this redoubtable 'Apiru chieftain was we do not learn, since the proud feudal princes disdained even to mention names of the semi-nomadic 'Apiru. However, he was sufficiently dangerous to unite the arch-foes, 'Abdu-Heba and Shuwardata, and to induce them to offer fifty chariots (a very considerable offer for Palestinian chieftains) to the princes of Accho and Achshaph in the Plain of Acre, far to the north. One suspects that Milkiu of Gezer and Lab'ayu of Shechem, who are not mentioned at all, were—either or both—involved with the 'Apiru.

2 This letter is characteristic of the continuous requests of 'Abdu-Heba, prince of Jerusalem, for Egyptian assistance in his chronic struggle with the 'Apiru. However, it seems certain from other letters that he was inclined to lump his enemies among the "governors" (i.e. the native princes) with the 'Apiru. It is uncertain whether the Hilmiku (Elimelech) of lines 35 ff. was an 'Apiru chieftain, was one of the sons of Lab'ayu, or was even Milkiu of Gezer (whose name might have been transposed accidentally by the scribe).
place; the arm of the mighty king brought me into the house of my father! Why should I commit (15) transgression against the king, my lord? As long as the king, my lord, lives, I will say to the commissioner of the king, my lord, "Why do ye favor the 'Apiru and oppose the governors?"—And thus (21) I am blamed in the presence of the king, my lord. Because it is said, "Lost are the lands of the king, my lord," thus am I blamed to the king, my lord! (25) But let the king, my lord, know that (when) the king had established a garrison, Yanhamu took [it all] away, [and . . . ] 'the troops' (30) [of archers(?) . . . ] the land of Egypt [ . . . ] O king, my lord, there are no garrison troops (here)! [So] let the king take care of his land! (35) Let the king take care of his land! [The land]s of the king have all rebelled; Ilimitku is causing the loss of all the king's land. So let the king take care of his land! I keep saying, "Let me enter (40) into the presence of the king, my lord, and let me see the two eyes of the king, my lord." But the hostility against me is strong, so I cannot enter into the presence of the king, my lord. So may it please the king (45) to send me garrison troops in order that I may enter and see the two eyes of the king, my lord. As truly as the king, my lord, lives, when the commis[sioners] go forth I will say, "Lost are the lands of the king! (50) Do you not hearken unto me? All the governors are lost; the king, my lord, does not have a (single) governor (left)!

Let the king turn his attention to the archers, and let the king, my lord, send out (55) troops of archers, (for) the king has no lands (left)! The 'Apiru plunder all the lands of the king. If there are archers (here) in this year, the lands of the king, my lord, will remain [intact]; but if there are no archers (here) (60) the lands of the king, my lord, will be lost!

To the scribe of the king, my lord: Thus 'Abdu-Heba, thy servant. Present eloquent words to the king, my lord.—All the lands of the king, my lord, are lost!

EA, No. 287†

[To the king], my lord, [say:] [Thus] 'Abdu-Heba, thy servant, [At the feet] of my lord seven [times and seven times I fall.] [Let my king] [know (?) this]

† In this letter, the prince of Jerusalem complains about a number of events which recur in other letters. In the first place he exorcises Mililu of Gezer and Tamar of the northern Coastal Plain of Palestine for their matter! [Milkili and Tagu (?)] (5) have caused [their troops (?)] to enter [the town of Rubutu (?)] [Behold] the deed which [Milkilu (?)] has done; [bows] (and) copper arrows [... he has given (?) ...] word [... (10) ...] into the town of [Rubutu (?)] they brought in. Let my king know that all the lands are at peace (but that) there is war against me. So let my king take care of his land!

Behold the land of Gezer, the land of Ashkelon, (15) and 'Lachish,' they have given them grain, oil, and all their requirements; and let the king (thus) take care of his archers! Let him send archers against the men who transgress against the king, my lord. (20) If there are archers (here) in this year, then the lands and the governor(s) will (still) belong to the king, my lord; [but] if there are no archers, the lands and the governors will (no longer) belong to the king!

(25) Behold this land of Jerusalem: (It was) not my father (and) not my mother (who) gave (it) to me, (but) the arm of the mighty king (which) gave (it) to me.

Behold, this deed is the deed of Milkilu (30) and the deed of the sons of Lab'ayu who have given the land of the king to the 'Apiru. Behold, O king, my lord, I am right!

With reference to the Nubians, let my king ask the commissioners whether my house is (not) very strong! (35) Yet they attempted a very great crime; they took their implements and breached ... of the roof. [If] they send into the land [of Jerusalem] troops, let them come up with [an (Egyptian) officer (40) for] (regular) service. Let [my king] take heed for them—for [all] the lands are impoverished by them—and let my king requisition for them much grain, much oil, (and) much clothing, (45) until Pawure, the royal commissioner, comes up to the land of Jerusalem.

Addaya has left, together with the garrison (and) aggression against Rubutu, which lay somewhere in the region southwest of Megiddo and Taanach. In the second place he urges the king to instruct his officers to supply the Egyptian archers from the towns of the Philistine Plain and Sharon (in order to avert heavy drain on the scanty supplies of Jerusalem). He goes on to complain that the Nubians, (biblical Cushite) slave-troops (or mercenaries) of Egypt, stationed in Jerusalem, had harangued the residence of 'Abdu-Heba himself, nearly killing the prince in his own house. He finally complains that his last caravan containing tribute and captives for the king was attacked and robbed near Ajalon, presumably by the men of Milkilu of Gezer and the sons of Lab'ayu.

the (Egyptian) officer which my king had given (me). Let the king know! Addaya spoke to me, (saying,) (50) [Loo]k, let me go, (but) do not thou leave it (the city)! So send me a garrison this [year], and send me a commissioner likewise, O my king. I have sent [gifts (?)] to the king, my lord: [. . . ] captives, five thousand [silver (shekels)] (55) and eight porters for the caravans of the king, my lord; (but) they were captured in the plain of Ajalon. Let the king, my lord, know that I cannot send a caravan to the king, my lord. For thy information!

(60) Behold, the king has set his name in the land of Jerusalem for ever; so he cannot abandon the lands of Jerusalem!

To the scribe of the king, my lord, (65) say: Thus 'Abdu-Heba, thy servant. At thy two feet I fall—thy servant am I! Present eloquent words to the king, my lord. I am (only) a petty officer of the king; (70) I am more insignificant (?) than thou!

But the men of the land of Nubia have committed an evil deed against (me); I was almost killed by the men of the land of Nubia (75) in my own house. Let the king [call] them to (account). Seven times and seven times let the [king,] my lord, [avenge (?)] me!

EA, No. 288

To the king, my lord, my Sun-god, say: Thus 'Abdu-Heba, thy servant. At the two feet of the king, my lord, seven times and seven times I fall. (5) Behold the king my lord, has set his name at the rising of the sun, and at the setting of the sun! (It is) vile what they have done against me. Behold, I am not a governor (10) (nor even a) petty officer of the king, my lord; behold, I am a shepherd of the king, and a bearer of the royal tribute am I. It was not my father (and) not my mother, (but) the arm of the mighty king (15) (which) placed me in the house of my father. [. . . ] came to me [. . . ] I delivered ten slaves [into his] hand. Shuta, the royal commissioner, came (20) to me. Twenty-one maidens (and) eighty captives I delivered into the hand of Shuta as a gift for the king, my lord. Let my king take thought for his land! The land of the 3 This letter continues the complaints of the previous letter, and incidentally paints a vivid picture of the anarchic condition of the country early in the reign of Akh-en-Aton. The references to "the very gate of Sile (Zihu)" mean that the outrages against the Copt Egyptians extend to the frontiers of Egypt itself, near modern Qantara.

king is lost; in its entirety (25) it is taken from me; there is war against me, as far as the lands of Seir (and) as far as Gath-carmel! All the governors are at peace, but there is war against me. I have become like an 'Apiru (30) and do not see the two eyes of the king, my lord, for there is war against me. I have become like a ship in the midst of the sea! The arm of the mighty king (35) conquers the land of Naharaim and the land of Cush, but now the 'Apiru capture the cities of the king. There is not a single governor (remaining) (40) to the king, my lord—all have perished! Behold, Turbazu has been slain in the (very) gate of Sile, (yet) the king holds his peace. Behold Zimreda, the townsman of Lachish have smitten him, slaves who had become 'Apiru. (45) Yapthih-Hadad has been slain [in] the (very) gate of Sile, (yet) the king holds his peace. [Wherefore] does not [the king] call them to account? [So] let the king take care of his land; [and I]et the king decide, and let the king send (50) archers to his land! [But] if there are no archers (here) this year, all the lands of the king, my lord, will be lost. They shall not say to the king, my lord, (55) that the land of the king, my lord, has been lost, and (that) all of the governors have perished! If there are no archers (here) this year, let the king send a commissioner, and let him take me (60) to himself (!) together with (my) brothers, and we shall die near the king, our lord!

[To] the scribe of the king, my lord: [Thus] 'Abdu-Heba, (thy) servant. At [thy (?)] two feet I fall. Present eloquent words (65) [ . . . ] to the king, [my lord! Thy] servant [and] thy son am I.

EA, No. 289

To the king, my lord, [say]: Thus 'Abdu-Heba, thy servant. At the two feet of my lord, the king, seven times and seven times I [fall.] (5) Behold, Milkilu does not break (his alliance) with the sons of Lab'ayu and with the sons of Arzayu in order to covet the land of the king for themselves. As for a governor who does (such a) deed (as) this, (10) why does not my king call him to account? Behold Milkilu and Tagu! The deed which they have done is this, that they(!) have taken it, the town of Rubutu. And now as for Jerusalem—(15) Behold this land belongs to the king, or 3 Addaya was the Egyptian resident governor of Palestine, with his seat at Gaza.

why like the town of Gaza is it loyal to the king? Behold the land of the town of Gath-carmel, it belongs to Tagu, and the men of Gath (20) have a garrison in Beth-Shan. Or shall we do like Lab'ayu, who gave the land of Shechem to the 'Apiru? (25) Milkiliu has written to Tagu and the sons of (Lab'ayu), (saying) "Ye are (members of) my house. Yield all of their demands to the men of Keilah, and let us break our alliance (with) Jerusalem!" (30) The garrison which thou didst send through Haya, son of Miyare, Addaya has taken (and) has put into his residence in Gaza, [and] twenty men to Egypt (35) he has sent. Let my king know (that) there is no royal garrison with me. So now, as my king lives, truly the commissioner, Puwure, has taken leave of me (40) and is in Gaza; and let my king look out for him! And let the king send fifty men as a garrison to guard the land! The entire land of the king has revolted. (45) Send me Yanhamu and let him take care of the land of the king!

To the scribe of the king, [my lord]: Thus 'Abdu-Heba, [thy] servant. Present eloquent words (50) to the king. I am much more insignificant than thou; I am thy servant.

EA, No. 290

[To] the king, my lord, say: Thus ['Abdu]-Heba, thy servant. At the two feet of the [king,] my lord, seven times and seven times I fall. (5) Behold the deed which Milkiliu and Shuwardata did to the land of the king, my lord! They rushed troops of Gezer, troops of Gath (10) and troops of Keilah; they took the land of Rubutu; the land of the king went over to the 'Apiru people. But now even (15) a town of the land of Jerusalem, Bit-Lahmi by name, a town belonging to the king, has gone over to the side of the people of Keilah. Let my king hearken to 'Abdu-Heba, thy servant, (20) and let him send archers to recover the royal land for the king! But if there are no archers, the land of the king will pass over to the 'Apiru people. (25) This was done at the command of Milkiliu [and at] the command of Shuwardata (?). . . . So let my king (30) take care of [his] land!

1 In lines 15 ff. there is an almost certain reference to the town of Bethlehem, which thus appears for the first time in history. Keilah may have been the home of Shuwardata, prince of the Hebron district.
To the king, my lord, my pantheon, my Sun-god say: Thus Ba’lu-shipti, thy servant, the dirt (under) thy two feet. (5) At the feet of the king, my lord, my pantheon, my Sun-god, seven times, seven times I fall, I have looked this way, and I have looked that way, (10) but it was not bright. I looked toward the king, my lord, and it was bright. A brick may move from beneath its companions, (15) but I will not move from beneath the two feet of the king, my lord. I have heard the words, which the king, my lord, wrote to his servant: (20) “Guard thy commissioner, and guard the cities of the king, thy lord.” Behold, I guard, and behold, I hearken day (25) and night to the words of the king, my lord. But let the king, my lord, learn concerning his servant, (that) there is hostility against me from the mountains, so I have built (30) a house—Manhatu is its name—in order to make ready before the archers of the king, my lord; but Maya took it from my hands, and installed (35) his commissioner within it. So command Reanap, my commissioner, to restore the city to my hands, that I may make ready for (40) the archers of the king, my lord.

Further, behold the deed of Peya, the son of Gulate, against Gezer, the maidservant of the king, my lord, how many days he plundered it, so that it has become an empty cauldron because of him. From the mountains (50) people are ransomed for thirty (shekels) of silver, but from Peya for one hundred (shekels) of silver; so know these words of thy servant!

Exod. 21:32

EA, No. 297

To the king, my lord, my pantheon, my Sun-god, say: Thus Yapahu, thy servant, the dirt (under) thy two feet. (5) At the feet of the king, my lord, my pantheon, my Sun-god, seven times, seven times, I fall. Everything which the king, my lord, said to me (10) I have heard most attentively.

1 Ba’lu-shipti was prince of Gezer in the period following the death of Milikhu, and this letter comes from the middle of the reign of Akhi-en-Aton. Maya was a high Egyptian official at the court of the latter, then acting as commander of the Egyptian forces in Palestine. Peya bears an Egyptian name, in spite of the Canaanite name of his mother(?), and he was probably a minor Egyptian officer.

2 Yapahu was prince of Gezer after the death of Milikhu. By Sata is meant the nomadic tribesmen of Semitic origin who were in Egyptian service, as we know from other documents.
Further: I have become like an empty bronze cauldron (because of) the debt (15) at the hands of the Sutu, but now I have heard the sweet breath of the king, and it goes out (20) to me, and my heart is very serene.

EA, No. 298

To the king, my lord, my pantheon, my Sun-god, the Sun-god of heaven. Thus Yapahu, the prince of (5) Gezer, the dirt (under) thy two feet, the groom of thy horse. At the two feet of the king, my lord (10) the Sun-god of heaven, seven times and seven times I fall, both prone and supine; and everything (15) which the king, my lord, commands me I hear very attentively. A servant of the king am I, and the dirt of thy two feet. (20) Let the king my lord know that my youngest brother is estranged from me, and has entered (25) Muhhazu, and has given his two hands to the chief of the 'Apiru. And now the [land of ...]anna is hostile to me. (30) Have concern for thy land! Let my lord write to his commissioner concerning this deed.

EA, No. 3201

To the king, my lord, my pantheon, my Sun-god, the Sun-god of heaven: Thus (5) Widia, the prince of Ashkelon, thy servant, the dirt (under) thy feet, the groom of thy horse. (10) At the feet of the king, my lord, seven times and seven times verily I fall, both prone and (15) supine.

Now I am guarding the place of the king which is with me, and whatever the king, my lord, has sent to me (20) I have heard very attentively. Who is the dog that does not hearken to the words of the king, his lord, (25) the son of the Sun-god?

Letter from Tell el-Hesi2

[To] the (Egyptian) officer say: [Thus P]a'pu. At thy feet I fall. Thou shouldst know that (5) Shipti-ba'lu

1 Note the Indo-Aryan name of the prince of Ashkelon, whose servile words illustrate the impotence to which he was condemned by his nearness to the Egyptian residence at Gaza, as well as by the smallness of his territory.

2 This letter vividly characterizes the atmosphere of mutual suspicion and treachery which prevailed in Palestine in the early part of Akh-en-Aton's reign. Zimreka was prince of Lachish (Tell ed-Duweir) and Shipti-Ba'lu was to succeed him in that capacity. As shown by his name, Pa'pu was an Egyptian official, perhaps the local commissier at Lachish.
and Zimreda have plotted publicly and Shipti-ba'lu said to Zimreda: ["The prince of Yaramu wrote to me:
'Give me six' bows, and three daggers, and three swords. (15) Verily I am going out against the land of the king, and thou art my ally!'"] And yet he returns (the charge of) (20) lēše-majestē (saying):
"The one who plots against the king is Pa'pu! And send him to (confront) me!" And [now] I have sent Rabi-ilu
(25) to bring him (to thee) [because of] this matter.

_Shechem Letter_

To Birashshena say: Thus Baniti-[...]. From three years ago until now (5) thou hast caused me to be paid.
Is there no grain nor oil nor wine which thou canst send? What is my offense that thou hast not paid me?
(10) The children who are with me continue to learn.
I am their father and their mother every day alike [... (15) ...]. Now [behold] whatever [there is] beneath the feet [of my lord] let him [send] to me (20)
and let him infor[m me].

_Taanach, No. 1_

To Rewashsha say: Thus Guli-Adad. Live well! (5)
May the gods take note of thy welfare, the welfare of thy house, of thy children! Thou hast written to me concerning silver (10) and behold I will give fifty (shekels) of silver, truly I will do (so)!

Further, and if (20) there is a wizard of Asherah, let him _tell our fortunes_ and let me hear _quickly_, and the omen and the interpretation send to me. (25)

As for thy daughter who is in the town of Rubutu, let me know concerning her welfare; and if she grows up thou shalt give her to become _a singer, _ (30) or to a husband.

_I Kings 18:19 ff._

1 This letter and the other letters found by Ernst Sellin at Taanach, five miles southeast of Megiddo in northern Palestine, unquestionably belong to the fifteenth century B.C., and they may be dated roughly about three generations before the bulk of the Amarna Tablets. Rewashsha was the prince of Taanach; his Egyptian name illustrates the extent of Egyptian penetration about a century after the initial conquest. The word here rendered "wizard" is Akkadian _ummuma_, which passed into Hebrew as _ummim_ and into later Phoenician as _ummim_, always with the general sense of "learned, skilled man, expert." The diviners of Asherah appear in the time of Elijah as "prophets of Asherah"; they also figure in the Baal Epic of Ugarit.

LETTERS OF THE JEWS IN ELEPHANTINE

"THE PASSOVER PAPYRUS"

A very defective strip of papyrus with writing on both sides. Text: Sachau, 6; Ungnad, 6; Cowley, 21. Date: 419 B.C.

[To] my [brethren Yedo]niah¹ and his colleagues the [J]ewish gar[rison], your brother Hanan[iah].² The welfare of my brothers may God [seek at all times]. Now, this year, the fifth year of King Darius, word was sent from the king to Arsa[mes]³ saying, "Authorize a festival of unleavened bread for the Jewish [garri-son]." So do you count fou[rteen days of the month of Nisan and] obs[erve the passover],⁴ and from the 15th to the 21st day of [Nisan observe the festival of un-leavened bread]. Be (ritually) clean and take heed. [Do not work [on the 15th or the 21st day, no]r drink [beer, nor eat] anything [in] which the[re is] leaven [from the 14th at] sundown until the 21st of Nis[an]. For seven days it shall not be seen among you. Do not bring it into your dwellings but seal (it) up between these date[s. By order of King Darius. To] my brethren Yedoniah and the Jewish garrison, your brother Hanani[ah].

² Apparently a secretary for Jewish affairs to Arsanias.
³ Saitra of Egypt from 434/3 to at least 407.
⁴ The word 'yish' in two ostraca from Elephantine may mean "passover (offering)."
⁵ This restoration is only correct if Hamannah's tradition, like rabbinic law, included under "leaven" fermented corn but not fermented fruit (wine). The Samaritans take a more rigorous view.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE CULT OF YAHOO

A very broad sheet of papyrus with 7 columns of Aramaic; traces of palimpsest, Text: Sachau, 17-19; Ungnad, 19; Cowley, 22. Date: 419 or 400 B.C.² See the special study of U. Cassuto in Kedem, 1, pp. 47-52.

On the 3rd of Phamenoth,² year 5. This is (sic!) the names of the Jewish garrison which (sic!) gave money to the God Yaho, [2 shekels] each.

(Lines 2-119, 126-135 name 123 contributors of both sexes.)

¹ Depending on whether the fifth year is that of Darius II or of the native Egyptian king Amyrtaceus.
² A month in the Egyptian calendar.
(120-125) Cash on hand with Yedonia the son of Gemariah on the said day of the month of Phamenoth: 31 karash, 8 shekels. Comprising: for Yaho 12 ½, 6 sh.; 1 for Ishumbethel 2 7 ½; for Anathbethel 3 12 ½.

1 Since 1 karash = 20 (light) shekels, this is the correct total for 123 contributions of 2 shekels each. The mummies for the other two deities were doubtless contributed by non-Jews. Yedonia (see n.1) acting as treasurer or banker for all the Arameans of Elephantine.
2 Male deity.
3 Probably female deity.

SETTLEMENT OF CLAIM BY OATH

Text: Sayce-Cowley, F; Cowley, 14. Date: 440 B.C.

The Jewess Mibthiah (Mibthyh) had apparently married the Egyptian Pi' and then the marriage had been dissolved. The marriage had meant Mibthiah's exit from the Jewish community and adoption into the Egyptian. Even its liquidation necessitated her swearing by an Egyptian deity. The witnesses to this document are neither Jewish nor Egyptian.

On the 14th of Ab, being the 19th day of Pahons, in the year 25 of King Artaxerxes, Pi' the son of Pahi (Phy), builder, of the fortress of Syene, said to Mibthiah, daughter of Mahseiah the son of Yedonia, an Aramean of Syene of the detachment of Varizata (as follows): In accordance with the action which we took at Syene, let us make a division of the silver, grain, raiment, bronze, iron, and all goods and possessions and marriage contract. Then an oath was imposed upon you, and you swore to me concerning them by the goddess Sati. I was satisfied with the oath which you took to me concerning your goods, and I renounce all claim on you from this day for ever.

PETITION FOR AUTHORIZATION TO REBUILD THE TEMPLE OF YAH0

A well-preserved papyrus with writing on both sides, apparently a copy of one sent to Jerusalem. Text: Sachau, 1-2; Ungnad, 1; Cowley 30. Date: 407 B.C. (Another, defective copy, with some variants: Sachau, 3; Ungnad, 2; Cowley 31.)

To our lord Bagoas, governor of Judah, your servants Yedoniah and his colleagues, the priests who are in the fortress of Elephantine. May the God of Heaven seek after the welfare of our lord exceedingly at all times and give you favor before King Darius and the nobles a thousand times more than now. May you be happy and healthy at all times. Now, your servant Yedoniah and his colleagues depose as follows: In the month of Tammuz in the 14th year of King Darius, when Arsames (5) departed and went to the king, the priests of the god Khnub, who is in the fortress of Elephantine, conspired with Vidaranag, who was commander-in-chief here, to wipe out the temple of the god Yaho from the fortress of Elephantine. So that wretch Vidaranag sent to his son Nefayan, who was in command of the garrison of the fortress of Syene, this order, "The temple of the god Yaho in the fortress of Yebo is to be destroyed." Nefayan thereupon led the Egyptians with the other troops. Coming with their weapons to the fortress of Elephantine, they entered that temple and razed it to the ground. The stone pillars that were there they smashed. Five (10) "great" gateways built with hewn blocks of stone which were in that temple they demolished, but their doors are standing, and the hinges of those doors are of bronze; and their roof of cedar-wood, all of it, with the...and whatever else was there, everything they burnt with fire. As for the basins of gold and silver and other articles that were in that temple, they carried all of them off and made them their own.—Now, our forefathers built this temple in the fortress of Elephantine back in the days of the kingdom of Egypt, and when Cambyses came to Egypt he found it built. They knocked down all the temples of the gods of Egypt, but no one did any damage to this temple. (15) But when this happened, we and our wives and our children wore sackcloth, and fasted, and prayed to Yaho the Lord of Heaven, who has let us see our desire upon that Vidaranag. The dogs took the fetter out of his feet, and any property he had gained was lost; and any men who have sought to do evil to this temple have all been killed and we have seen our desire upon them.—We have also sent a letter before now, when this evil was done to us, to our lord and to the high priest Johanan and his colleagues the priests in Jerusalem and to Ostanes the brother of Anani and the nobles of the Jews. Never a letter have they sent to us. Also, from the month of Tammuz, year 14 of King Darius, (20) to this day, we have been wearing sackcloth and fasting, making our wives as widows, not anointing ourselves with oil or drinking wine. Also, from then to now, in the year 17 of King Darius, no meal-offering, in[cen]se, nor burnt offering

Neh. 12:22-23

1 Chron. 3:24
have been offered in this temple. Now your servants Yedoniah, and his colleagues, and the Jews, the citizens of Elephantine, all say thus: If it please our lord, take thought of this temple to rebuild it, since they do not let us rebuild it. Look to your well-wishers and friends here in Egypt. Let a letter be sent from you to them concerning the temple of the god Yaho (25) to build it in the fortress of Elephantine as it was built before; and the meal-offering, incense, and burnt offering will be offered in your name, and we shall pray for you at all times, we, and our wives, and our children, and the Jews who are here, all of them, if you do thus, so that that temple is rebuilt. And you shall have a merit before Yaho the God of Heaven more than a man who offers to him burnt offering and sacrifices worth a thousand talents of silver and (because of) gold. Because of this we have written to inform you. We have also set the whole matter forth in a letter in our name to Delaiah and Shelemiah, the sons of Sanballat the governor of Samaria. (30) Also, Arsames knew nothing of all that was done to us. On the 20th of Marsehwan, year 17 of King Darius.

Neh. 2:19

ADVICE OF THE GOVERNORS OF JUDAH AND SAMARIA TO THE JEWS OF ELEPHANTINE

Text: Sachau, 4; Ungnad, 3; Cowley, 32.

Memorandum of what Bagoas and Delaiah said to me: Let this be an instruction to you in Egypt to say before Arsames about the house of offering of the God of Heaven which had been in existence in the fortress of Elephantine (5) since ancient times, before Cambyses, and was destroyed by that wretch Vidaranag in the year 14 of King Darius: to rebuild it on its site as it was before, and the meal-offering and incense to be made on (10) that altar as it used to be.

The Persian Arsames was likely to react more favorably if no mention was made of burnt offering, since it involved the profaning of fire by contact with dead bodies.

PETITION BY ELEPHANTINE JEWS, PERHAPS TO ARSAMES

Text: Sachau, 4; Ungnad, 4; Cowley, 33.

Your servants Yedoniah the son of Ge[mariah] by name 1, Ma'uzi the son of Nathan by name [1], Shemaiah the son of Haggai by name 1, Hosea the son of Yatom by name 1, (5) Hosea the son of Nathun by name 1, 5 men in all, Syenians who [hold proper]ty in the fortress of Elephantine, say as follows: If your lordship is [favor]able, and the temple of ou[r] God Yaho [is rebuilt] in the fortress of Elephantine as it was for[merly built], (10) and n[o] sheep, ox, or goat are offered there as burnt offering, but (only) incense, meal-offering, [and drink-offering], and (if) your lordship giv[es] orders [to that effect, then] we shall pay into your lordship’s house the s[um of ... and] a thou[sand] ardabs of barley.
