Transliteration of Oriental Alphabets adopted for the Translations of the Sacred Books of the East ........ 381
INTRODUCTION.

The present volume contains a translation of the Siròzahs and Yàsts, and of the Nyàyís. This part of the Avesta treats chiefly of the mythical and legendary lore of Zoroastrianism.

For a satisfactory translation of these texts, the etymological and comparative method is generally considered as the best or as the only possible one, on account of the entire absence of any traditional interpretation. I have tried, however, to reduce the sphere of etymological guesswork to its narrowest limits, with the help of different Pahlavi, Persian, and Sanskrit translations, which are as yet unpublished, and have been neglected by former translators. I found such translations for the Siròzahs, for Yàsts I, VI, VII, XI, XXIII, XXIV, and for the Nyàyís¹ (besides the already published translations of Yàsts XXI and XXII).

Of the remaining Yàsts, which are mostly of an epical character, there is no direct translation available; but a close comparison of the legends in Firdausi's Shâh Nàmah seems to throw some light, even as regards philological points, on not a few obscure and important passages. This has enabled me, I believe, to restore a few myths to their original form, and to frame a more correct idea of others².

In this volume, as in the preceding one, I have to thank Mr. West for his kind assistance in making my translation more readable, as well as for valuable hints in the interpretation of several passages.

YASTS AND SÎRÔZAHLS.
YASTS AND SĪRŌZAHS.

The word yast, in Zend yāsti, means properly 'the act of worshipping,' the performance of the yasna; and it is often used in Parsi tradition as synonymous with yasna. But it has also been particularly applied to a certain number of writings in which the several Izeds are praised and magnified. These writings are generally of a higher poetical and epical character than the rest of the Avesta, and are most valuable records of the old mythology and historical legends of Iran.

The Parsis believe that formerly every Amshaspand and every Ized had his particular Yast, but we now possess only twenty Yasts and fragments of another. The writings known as Yast fragments, the Âfrîn Zartust, and Vîstâsp Yast (printed as Yasts XXI, XXII, XXIII, XXIV in Westergaard's edition), are not proper Yasts, and have no liturgical character; they are not devoted to the praise of any Ized.

The order in which the Yasts have been arranged by the Parsis follows exactly the order of the Sîrôzah, which is the proper introduction to the Yasts.

SĪRŌZAH.

Sîrôzah means 'thirty days:' it is the name of a prayer composed of thirty invocations addressed to the several Izeds who preside over the thirty days of the month.

There are two Sîrôzahs, but the only difference between them is that the formulas in the former are shorter, and there is also, occasionally, some difference in the epithets, which are fuller in the latter.

1 The Bahman Yast (see Yt. I, §§ 24 and following).
2 In the greater Sîrôzah the names of the gods invoked are introduced with the word yazamaidē, 'we sacrifice to;' in the lesser Sîrôzah there is no introductory word, the word khshnaoria, 'propitiation,' being understood, as can be seen from the introductory formulas to the several Yasts.

In India the Sirôzah is recited in honour of the dead, on the thirtieth day after the death, on the thirtieth day of the sixth month, on the thirtieth day of the twelfth month, and then every year on the thirtieth day from the anniversary day (Anquetil, Zend-Avesta, II, 315).

The correspondence between the formulas of the Sirôzah and the Yasts is as follows:

1. Ormazd.
   Ormazd Yast (I, 1-23).
2. Bahman.
   Bahman Yast (I, 24-33).
3. Ardibehest.
   Ardibehest Yast (III).
4. Shahrêvar.

10. Åbån.
    Åbån Yast (V).
    Khorshêd Yast (VI).
12. Mâh.
    Mâh Yast (VII).
13. Tîr.
    Tîr Yast (VIII).
    Gôr Yast (IX).
15. Dai pa Mîhir.
    Mîhir Yast (X).
17. Srôsh.
    Srôsh Yast (XI).
18. Rashn.
    Rashn Yast (XII).
19. Farvardîn.
    Farvardîn Yast (XIII).
20. Bahrâm.
    Bahrâm Yast (XIV).
    Râm Yast (XV).
22. Bâd.
23. Dai pa Dîn.
24. Dîn.
    Dîn Yast (XVI).
25. Ard.
    Ashi Yast (XVII).
26. Âstâd.
    Âstâd Yast (XVIII).
27. Åsmân.
    Zemyâd Yast (XIX).
29. Mahraspand.
30. Anêrân.

The Yasts that have been lost are, therefore, those of Khsha-thra-vairya, Spenta-Ârmaiti, Ameretâf, Åtar, Vâta, Asman, Mâthra-Spenta, and Anaghra raôâzu. The second Yast, or Yast of the seven Amshaspands, appears to have been no independent Yast: it was common to all the seven Yasts devoted to the several Amshaspands, and, accordingly, it is recited on the first seven days of the month. One might suppose that it was originally a part of the Ormazd Yast, as the Amesha-Spentas are invoked in company with Ahura Mazda (Sirózah i, 8, 15, 23). There may, indeed, have been several Yasts for one and the same formula of the Sirózah, as in all of these formulas more than one Ized are invoked: this would apply not only to the Yast of the seven Amshaspands, but also to the Vananê Yast (Yast XX), which, in that case, ought to follow the Tîr Yast (see Sirózah i3).

Not every Yast, however, is devoted to the Ized whose name it bears: thus the Ardibehest Yast is mostly devoted to Airyaman; the Râm-Yast and the Zemyânê-Yast are devoted to Vayu and to the Hvarenô: but Airyaman, Vayu, and the Hvarenô are invoked in the same Sirózah formulas as Ardibehest, Râm, and Zemyânê, and a Yast is named from the opening name in the correspondent Sirózah formula.

The systematic order so apparent in the Sirózah pervades the rest of the liturgy to a great extent: the enumeration of Izeds in Yasna XVII, 12-42 (XVI, 3-6) follows exactly the order of the Sirózah, except that it gives only the first name of each formula; and the question may be raised whether this passage in the Yasna is taken from the Sirózah, or whether the Sirózah is developed from the Yasna.

The very idea of the Sirózah, that is to say the attribution of each of the thirty days of the month to certain gods, seems to have been borrowed from the Semites: the tablets found in the library of Assurbanipal contain an Assyrian Sirózah, that is, a complete list of the Assyrian gods that preside over the thirty days of the month.

⁵ Āṣnya khratu, the inborn intellect, intuition, contrasted with gaoshō-srūta khratu, the knowledge acquired by hearing and learning. There is between the two nearly the same relation as between the parāvidyā and aparāvidyā in Brahmanism, the former reaching Brahma in se (parabrahma), the latter sabdabrahma, the word-Brahma (Brahma as taught and revealed). The Mobeds of later times interpreted their name Magūs, مغوش, as meaning, 'men without ears,' Ma-goosh, 'pour insinuer que leur Docteur avait puisé toute sa science dans le ciel et qu'il ne l'avait pas apprise par l'ouïe comme les autres hommes' (Chardin, III, 130; ed. 1 Literally 'the Son of the Waters;' he was originally the Fire of lightning, as born in the clouds (like the Vedic Apām napāt); he still appears in that character, Yt. VIII, 34; he is for that reason 'the lord of the females' because the waters were considered as females (cf. Yasna XXXVIII, 1 [2]). But, as napāt means also 'navel' (the same words having often the two meanings of 'navel' and 'offspring;' cf. nābhi in the Vedas and the Zend nāfyō, 'offspring, from nāfa 'navel'), Apām Nāpāt was interpreted as 'the spring of the waters, the navel of the waters,' which was supposed to be at the source of the Arvand (the Tigris; Neriosengh ad Yasna I, 5 [15]); cf. ² Or ‘the awful kingly glory’: Kavi means a king, but it is particularly used of the kings belonging to the second and most celebrated of the two mythical dynasties of Iran. The Kavis succeeded the Paradhāta or Pēshdādians, and Darius Codomanes was supposed to be the last of them. For an enumeration of the principal Kavis, see Yt. XIII, 132 seq. The Hvarenō alluded to in this clause is the Hvarenō of the priest; ‘it is the fire known as Ådaraprā [Ådar Frobā]; or better Ådar Farnbag: see Études Iraniennes, II, 84; its object is the science of the priests; by its help priests become learned and clever’ (Sanskrit transl. to the Ātash Nyāyish).

I. ORMAZD YAST.

The Ormazd Yast, properly so called, ends with § 23. The rest of the Yast, from § 24 to the end, is wanting in several manuscripts, and is supposed by the Parsis to be a fragment of the Bahman Yast.

The Ormazd Yast is exclusively devoted to an enumeration of the names of Ahura and to a laudation of their virtues and efficacy: the recitation of these names is the best defence against all dangers. §§ 1–6. The names of Ahura Mazda are the most powerful part of the Holy Word.

§§ 7–8. The twenty names of Ahura Mazda are enumerated.
§§ 9–11. Efficacy of these names.
§§ 12–15. Another list of names.

As may be seen from this summary, the subject has been treated twice over, first in §§ 1–11, and then in §§ 12–19; yet it does not appear that this Yast was formed out of two independent treatises, and it is more likely that the vague and indefinite enumeration in §§ 12–15, which interrupts so clumsily the train of ideas, is due either to an interpolation or simply to the literary deficiency of the writer himself.

The Ormazd Yast is recited every day at the Hávan Gáh, after the morning prayer (Anquetil, Zend-Avesta, II, 143): it is well also to recite it when going to sleep and when changing one’s residence (§ 17).

Speculations on the mystical powers of God’s names have always been common among Orientals. The number of these names went on increasing: Dastúr Nôshîrvân wrote on the 101 names of God; Dastúr Marzbân on his 125 names. With the Musulmans, Allah had 1001 names. On the names of God among the Jews, see Zeitschrift der Deutschen Morgenländischen Gesellschaft, XXXV, pp. 162, 532.

We have three native translations of this Yast; one in Pahlavi (East India Office, XII, 39, and St. Petersburg, XCIX, 39; edited by Carl Salemann), one in Persian (East India Office, XXII, 43), and one in Sanskrit (Paris, fonds Burnouf, V, 66); the last two edited in our Études Iraniennes, II, 255).
The second part of the Yast, the so-called Bahman Yast fragment, is in a state of the utmost corruption. It is difficult to trace any connection in the ideas, yet §§ 28, 29, 30 seem to point rather clearly to the final struggle between Ormazd and Ahriman and to the annihilation of the Daêvas, and, thereby, some connection is established between this fragment and the Pahlavi Bahman Yast¹, which deals with the same subject. If that correspondence be real, § 26 might refer to the beginning of the Pahlavi Bahman Yast, in which Zarathustra is shown by Ahura the times to come and the end of the world.

Of this fragment we have only a bad Pahlavi translation in the St. Petersburg manuscript mentioned above.

o². May Ahura Mazda be rejoiced! May Angra Mainyu be destroyed! by those who do truly what is the foremost wish (of God³).

I praise well-thought, well-spoken, and well-done thoughts, words, and deeds. I embrace all good thoughts, good words, and good deeds; I reject all evil thoughts, evil words, and evil deeds.

I give sacrifice and prayer unto you, O Amesha-Spentas! even with the fulness of my thoughts, of my words, of my deeds, and of my heart: I give unto you even my own life⁴.

I recite the ‘Praise of Holiness⁵:’

‘Ashem Vohû: Holiness is the best of all good. Well is it for it, well is it for that holiness which is perfection of holiness!’

I confess myself a worshipper of Mazda, a follower of Zarathustra, one who hates the Daêvas and obeys the laws of Ahura⁶;

² The formulas of this section serve as an introduction to all Yasts.
³ The last clause of this sentence is imitated from Yasna XLVI [XLV], 19: ‘he who does truly in holiness what was the foremost wish of Zarathustra’ (that is, what he ordered most earnestly; Pahl. Comm.).
⁴ ‘If I must give up my life for the sake of my soul, I give it up’ (Pahl. Comm.). The two sentences, ‘I praise . . . ’, ‘I give unto you . . . ’, are taken from Yasna XI, 17, 18 [XII].
⁵ The Ashem Vohû, one of the holiest and most frequently recited prayers.
⁶ The Fravărânê or profession of faith of the Zoroastrian (Yasna I, 23 [65–68]).
For sacrifice\textsuperscript{1}, prayer, propitiation, and glorification unto [Hâvanī]\textsuperscript{2}, the holy and master of holiness;

For sacrifice, prayer, propitiation, and glorification unto [Sâvan-ghi and Vîsya]\textsuperscript{3}, the holy and masters of holiness;

For sacrifice, prayer, propitiation, and glorification unto the Masters of the days, of the periods of the day, of the months, of the seasons, and of the years\textsuperscript{4};

Unto Ahura Mazda, bright and glorious, be propitiation, with sacrifice, prayer, propitiation, and glorification.

Yathâ ahû vairyô: The will of the Lord is the law of holiness: the riches of Vohû-Manô shall be given to him who works in this world for Mazda, and wields according to the will of Ahura the power he gave him to relieve the poor.

1. Zarathustra asked Ahura Mazda: ‘O Ahura Mazda, most beneficent Spirit, Maker of the material world, thou Holy One!

‘What of the Holy Word is the strongest? What is the most victorious? What is the most glorious? What is the most effective?

2. ‘What is the most fiend-smiting? What is the best-healing? What destroyeth best the malice of Daêvas and Men? What maketh the material world best come to the fulfilment of its wishes\textsuperscript{5}? What freeth the material world best from the anxieties of the heart\textsuperscript{6}? ’

\textsuperscript{1} He shows himself a Zoroastrian by offering sacrifice . . . .

\textsuperscript{2} The actual Gâh during which the Yast is being recited must be mentioned here. Hâvanî is the first Gâh (see Gâhs).

\textsuperscript{3} The Genii who co-operate with Hâvanî, his hamkârs; for each Gâh the names of its proper hamkârs should be mentioned (see Gâhs).

3. Ahura Mazda answered: 'Our Name, O Spītama Zarathustra! who are the Amesha-Spēntas, that is the strongest part of the Holy Word; that is the most victorious; that is the most glorious; that is the most effective;

4. 'That is the most fiend-smiting; that is the best-healing; that destroyeth best the malice of Daēvas and Men; that maketh the material world best come to the fulfilment of its wishes; that freeth the material world best from the anxieties of the heart.'

5. Then Zarathustra said: 'Reveal unto me that name of thine, O Ahura Mazda! that is the greatest, the best, the fairest, the most effective, the most fiend-smiting, the best-healing, that destroyeth best the malice of Daēvas and Men;

6. 'That I may afflict all Daēvas and Men; that I may afflict all Yātus and Pairikas¹; that neither Daēvas nor Men may be able to afflict me; neither Yātus nor Pairikas.'

7. Ahura Mazda replied unto him: 'My name is the One of whom questions are asked², O holy Zarathustra!

'My second name is the Herd-giver³.

'My third name is the Strong One⁴.

³ 'That is, I give herds of men and cattle' (Phl. tr.).
⁴ 'Strong, that is, I have strength for the works of the law' (Phl. tr.); the Sanskrit translation has, 'powerful, that is, I have power to create.'
'My fourth name is Perfect Holiness\(^1\).
'My fifth name is All good things created by Mazda, the offspring of the holy principle.
'My sixth name is Understanding\(^2\);
'My seventh name is the One with understanding.
'My eighth name is Knowledge;
'My ninth name is the One with Knowledge.
8. 'My tenth name is Weal;
'My eleventh name is He who produces weal.
'My twelfth name is Ahura (the Lord)\(^3\).
'My thirteenth name is the most Beneficent.
'My fourteenth name is He in whom there is no harm\(^4\).
'My fifteenth name is the unconquerable One.
'My sixteenth name is He who makes the true account\(^5\).
'My seventeenth name is the All-seeing One.
'My eighteenth name is the healing One.
'My nineteenth name is the Creator.
'My twentieth name is Mazda (the All-knowing One).
9. 'Worship me, O Zarathustra, by day and by

\(^1\) Asha-Vahista, which is the name of the second Amesha-Spenta too. The commentary has: 'That is, my own being is all holiness.'

\(^2\) Literally: 'My sixth name is that I am Understanding.' The same construction is used with regard to the eighth, the tenth, and the nineteenth names.

\(^3\) 'It follows from this passage that a man is not fit to be a king, unless he possesses twelve virtues' (Phl. tr.).

\(^4\) 'Some say: I keep harm from man' (Phl. tr.).

\(^5\) 'That is, I make the account of good works and sins' (Phl. tr.); prakaśam gamanākaras kila punyapāpayos saṅkhyaṁ aham karomi (Sansk. tr.). Cf. Yasna XXXII, 6, b. night, with offerings of libations well accepted. I will come unto thee for help and joy, I, Ahura Mazda; the good, holy Sraosha will come unto thee for help and joy; the waters, the plants, and the Fravashis of the holy ones will come unto thee for help and joy.

10. 'If thou wantest, O Zarathustra, to destroy the malice of Daêvas and Men, of the Yâtus and Pârikas, of the oppressors, of the blind and of the deaf, of the two-legged ruffians, of the two-legged Ashemaoghas, of the four-legged wolves;

11. 'And of the hordes with the wide front, with the many spears, with the straight spears, with the spears uplifted, bearing the spear of havock; then, recite thou these my names every day and every night.

1 Yasô-bereta: práptena dânena; يافت ذهش نرر.
2 The Kavis and the Karapans, the blind and the deaf, are those 'who cannot see nor hear anything of God.' Those terms were current in the theological language of the Sasanian times to designate the unbelievers. An edict, promulgated by king Yazdgard III (fifth century A.C.) to make Zoroastrianism the state religion in Armenia, had the following words: 'You must know that any man who does not follow the religion of Mazda is deaf, blind, and deceived by Ahriman's devas' (Eliseaus, The War of Vartan).
3 Or murderers (mairya); according to the Parsis highwaymen (نر جات).
4 The heretics. Casuists distinguish three kinds of Ashemaogha: the deceiver (frîftâr), the self-willed (khôt dôshak), and the deceived (frîftak). The first and worst is one who knowingly leads people astray, making forbidden what is lawful, and lawful what is forbidden; the second is one who follows his own will and reason, instead of applying to a Dâstûr (a spiritual guide) for direction; the third is one who has been led astray by another.
5 Drafsa means also banner: the Persian دراشم, derived from drafsa, has preserved the two meanings. The Sanskrit translation has Sàstra, the Persian has سلاخ.
12. 'I am the Keeper; I am the Creator and the Maintainer; I am the Discerner; I am the most beneficent Spirit.

'My name is the bestower of health; my name is the best bestower of health.

'My name is the Ἀθραβαν; my name is the most Ἀθραβαν-like of all Ἀθραβάνσ.

'My name is Ahura (the Lord).

'My name is Mazdāu (the all-knowing).

'My name is the Holy; my name is the most Holy.

'My name is the Glorious; my name is the most Glorious.

'My name is the Full-seeing; my name is the Fullest-seeing.

'My name is the Far-seeing; my name is the Farthest-seeing.

13. 'My name is the Protector; my name is the Well-wisher; my name is the Creator; my name is the Keeper; my name is the Maintainer.

'My name is the Discerner; my name is the Best Discerner.

'My name is the Prosperity-producer; my name is the Word of Prosperity.

'My name is the King who rules at his will;

1 'I keep the creation' (Phl. tr.).
2 'I created the world and I maintain it' (ibid.).
3 'I can know what is useful and what is hurtful' (ibid.).
4 'The priest.'
5 'I impart increase to the righteous' (Phl. tr.).
6 Doubtful. Ἐὐσεβίς-μαθρό is used in several passages as the name of a part of the Avesta, Yasna LVIII [LVII], which appears to be called so from the presence in it of the words Ἐὐσεβίς, Ἐὐσεβίας, 'thrusting, causing to thrive,' which aptly express its contents.
my name is the King who rules most at his will.

'My name is the liberal King; my name is the most liberal King.

14. 'My name is He who does not deceive; my name is He who is not deceived.

'My name is the good Keeper; my name is He who destroys malice; my name is He who conquers at once; my name is He who conquers everything; my name is He who has shaped everything.

'My name is All weal; my name is Full weal; my name is the Master of weal.

15. 'My name is He who can benefit at his wish; my name is He who can best benefit at his wish.

'My name is the Beneficent One; my name is the Energetic One; my name is the most Beneficent.

'My name is Holiness; my name is the Great One; my name is the good Sovereign; my name is the Best of Sovereigns.

'My name is the Wise One; my name is the Wisest of the Wise; my name is He who does good for a long time.

19. 'But those names shall come in to keep him from behind and to keep him in front\(^4\), from the Drug unseen, from the female Varenya fiend\(^5\), from the evil-doer\(^6\) bent on mischief\(^7\), and from that fiend who is all death, Angra Mainyu. It will be as if there were a thousand men watching over one man\(^8\).

1 That mount is called in later literature Mount Ösdāstār (the Pahlavi translation of ušhi-darena, the keeper of understanding). According to the Bundahis (XII, 15), it stands in Seistan. High mountains, being nearer heaven, are apt to become in the spirit of mythology the seat of heavenly beings or treasures. It was on the top of a mountain that Ahura revealed the law (see Vd. XXII, 19 [53]); the first man and king, Gayomarth, ruled on a mountain and was called Gar-shâh, the king of the mountain. When the Kayanian family failed, the Iranians went to Mount Alborz and found there Kai Kobâd waiting for his fate.

2 The order of the text differs in one series of manuscripts, in which it begins with § 31; then comes § 29 with the following additional words:

'A thousand remedies, ten thousand remedies!' (three times; cf. above, § 26.)

We worship the Fravashi of the man whose name is Asmō-hvanvant; then I will worship the Fravashis of the other holy ones who were strong of faith' (Yt. XXII, 37).

Asmō-hvanvant was one of the first followers of Zarathustra, and with his name begins the enumeration of the Fravashis (Yt. XIII, 96).

Then follows § 30, and then again § 31 with the Ashem Vohû; and then the additional passage, 'We worship . . . .', is repeated twice.

II. HAPTÂN YAST.

The Yast of the seven Amshaspands is recited on the first seven days of the week, that is to say, on the days consecrated to the Amesha-Speantzas. In fact it is nothing more than an extract from the Sirōzahs, being composed of the first seven formulas in their two forms: §§ 1-5 = Sirōzah I, 1-7; §§ 6-10 = Sirōzah II, 1-7. Then come four sections which are the original part of the Yast (§§ 11-15).

III. ARDIBEHIST YAST.

This Yast is for a great part devoted to the praise of the Airyaman prayer, which is described as driving away all the diseases and plagues that have been brought upon the world by Angra Mainyus; and when the writer passes from the glorification of Airyaman to that of Asha-Vahista, which is put into the mouth of Angra Mainyu himself (§§ 13 seq.), he makes him speak of Asha-Vahista just in the same way, and ascribe him just the same powers, as he himself has done with regard to Airyaman. This is owing to the fact of Airyaman being invoked in company with Asha-Vahista in the second formula of the Sīrōzah.

The powers ascribed to Asha-Vahista have their origin in the twofold nature of that Amesha-Spenta, who being, in his abstract character, the impersonation of the highest element in Mazdeism, Divine Order and Holiness, and in his concrete character, the genius who presides over the mightiest of physical elements, Fire, is one of the most powerful and dreaded opponents of Angra Mainyu. On the other hand, Airyaman is the genius to whom Ahura Mazda applied to heal the nine, and ninety, and nine hundred and nine thousand diseases created by Angra Mainyu.

This Yast is recited every day at the Gāhs Hāvan, Rapithwin, and Aiwisrūthrem (Anquetil).

IV. KHORDĀD YAST.

Only the first two sections of this Yast refer to its nominal object, Haurvatāt, the Genius of Health and Waters (Vend. Introd. IV, 7, 33). The rest of the Yast refers to the performance of the Bareshnūm ceremony as being the test of the true Zoroastrian. As the Bareshnūm purification was performed by Airyaman to drive away the myriads of diseases created by Angra Mainyu\(^4\), its laudation is not quite unaptly inserted in a Yast devoted to the Genius of Health.

The Khordād Yast can be recited at any time. It is better to recite it during the Gāh Usahin, on the day Khordād (Anquetil).

Ahura Mazda answered: 'It is when a man pronouncing my spell, either reading or reciting it by heart, draws the furrows and hides there himself, [saying]:

6. "I will smite thee, O Drug! whomsoever thou art, whomsoever thou art amongst the Druges that come in an open way, whomsoever thou art amongst the Druges that come by hidden ways, whomsoever thou art amongst the Druges that defile by contact; whatsoever Drug thou art, I smite thee away from the Aryan countries; whatsoever Drug thou art, I bind thee; I smite thee down, O Drug! I throw thee down below, O Drug!"

V. ÂBÂN YAST.

The Âbân Yast (or Yast of the Waters) is devoted to the great goddess of the waters, the celebrated Ardvi Sûra Anâhita, the 'Avaîra of the Greeks. Ardvi Sûra Anâhita (the high, powerful, undefiled') is the heavenly spring from which all waters on the earth flow down; her fountains are on the top of the mythical mountain, the Hukairya, in the star region. Her descent from the heavens is described in §§ 85 seq.; it reminds one of the Indian legend of the celestial Gaṅgâ.

This Yast contains much valuable information about the historical legends of Iran, as it enumerates the several heroes who worshipped Ardvi Sûra and asked for her help. First of all is Ahura himself (§ 16); then came Haoshyangha (§ 21), Yima (§ 25), Asi Dahâka (§ 29), Thraêtaona (§ 33), Keresâspa (§ 37), Franghrasyan (§ 41), Kava Usa (§ 45), Husravah (§ 49), Tusa (§ 53), Vaêsaka's sons (§ 57), Vafra Navâza (§ 61), Gâmâspa (§ 68), Ashavazdah, the son of Pourudhâkhhti, and Ashavazdah and Thrita, the sons of Sâyuzdri (§ 72), Vistauru (§ 76), Yôîta (§ 81); the Hvôvas and the Naotaras (§ 98), Zarathustra (§ 103), Kava Vis-táspa (§ 107), Zairivairi (§ 112), Aregaî-aspa and Vandaremâini (§ 116).

This enumeration is interrupted by a description of the descent of Ardvi Sûra from the heavens (§§ 85–89), and of certain rules for her sacrifice given by herself to Zarathustra (§§ 90–97). This interruption may have been intentional, as it takes place just when the course of the enumeration brings us to the times of Zarathustra and of the institution of the new religion.

The Yast is opened with a laudation of the benefits bestowed by Ardvi Sûra (§§ 1–16), and it closes with a description of her garments and apparel.

The first record of the worship of Ardvi Sûra is in a cuneiform inscription by Artaxerxes Mnemon (404–361), in which her name is corrupted into Anahata. Artaxerxes Mnemon appears to have been an eager promoter of her worship, as he is said 'to have first erected the statues of Venus-Anâhita (Ἀφροδίτης, Αναήθης) in Babylon, Susa, and Ecbatana, and to have taught her worship to the Persians, the Bactrians, and the people of Damas and Sardes' (Clemens Alexandrinus, Protrept. 5, on the authority of Berosus; about 260 B.C.). My friend M. Halévy suggests to me that the detailed and circumstantial description of Anâhita’s appearance and costume (in §§ 126–131) shows that the writer must have described her from a consecrated type of statuary.

The principal data of the Greek writers on Anâhita will be found in Windischmann’s Essay (Die persische Anahita oder Anaïsis, 1856). One must be cautious in the use of the Greek sources, as the Greeks, with the eclectic turn of their mind, were inclined to confound under the name of Anâhita all the great female deities of Asia Minor, and her name became a common appellation for the Aphrodites as well as for the Artemides of the East.

1 Haoshyangha was the first king of the Paradhâta (Pêsh-dâdyan) dynasty (cf. above, p. 7, note 2, and Bundahis XXXI, 1). \(^2\) When Yima began to sin and lost the Huarenō (Glory), he was overthrown by Asī Daḥâka (Zohâk), who seized the power and reigned in his place for a thousand years (cf. Yt. XIX, 33 seq.).

Asī Daḥâka, literally 'the fiendish snake,' was first a mythical personage; he was the 'snake' of the storm-cloud, and a counterpart of the Vedic Ahi or Vrītra. He appears still in that character in Yast XIX seq., where he is described struggling for the Huarenō against Ātar (Fire), in the sea Vourukasha (Vendidâd, Introd. IV, 38; cf. this Yast, § 90). His struggle with Yima Khshaētā bore at first the same mythological character, 'the shining Yima' being originally, like the Vedic Yama, a solar hero: when Yima was turned into an earthly king, Asī underwent the same fate. In the Shâh Nâmah he is described as a man with two snakes springing from his shoulders: they grew there through a kiss of Ahriman's. For the myths referring to Asī, see Ormazd et Ahriman, §§ 91–95.

The usurper Asī, being a non-Aryan, was identified with the hereditary foe, the Chaldaans: the name of Babylon united in it, at the same time, a dim historical record of the old Assyrian oppression, then shaken off and forgotten, and an actual expression of the national antipathy of the Iranians for their Semitic neighbours in Chaldaea. After the conquest of Persia by the Musulmans, Asī was turned at last into an Arab. The original seat of the Asī myths was on the southern coast of the Caspian Sea (Études Iraniennes, II, 210).

¹ A Parsi poem, of a very late date, gives further details about Gandarewa. It was a monster who lived ‘in the sea, on the mountain, and in the valley;’ he was called Pâshnah zarâh, because the sea did not go above his heel (a misinterpretation of his Avestean epithet zairi pâshna, golden-heeled, the Zend zairi being mistaken for the Persian zarâh ջ, sea); his head would rise to the sun and rub the sky; he could swallow up twelve men at once. Keresâspa fought him for nine days and nine nights together; he drew him at last from the bottom of the sea and smashed his head with his club: when he fell on the ground, many countries were spoiled by his fall (Spiegel, Die traditionelle Literatur der Parsen, p. 339, and West, Pahlavi Texts, II, pp. 369 seq.).

In the Vedic mythology the Gandharva is the keeper of Soma, and is described now as a god, now as a fiend, according as he is a heavenly Soma-priest or a jealous possessor who grudges it to man. What was the original form of the myth in Mazdeism is not clear. In the Shâh Nâmah he appears as the minister of Asî Dahâka. Cf. Yt. XV, 27 seq., and Ormazd et Ahûman, pp. 99, note 5; 215, note 1.

\(^1\) Frangrasyan (Afrāsyâb) was king of Tûrân for two hundred years. The perpetual struggle between Irân and Tûrân, which lasts to this day, was represented in the legend by the deadly and endless wars between Afrāsyâb and the Iranian kings from Mino-kîhr down to Kai Khosrov (Kavi Husravah). The chief cause of the feud was the murder of Syâvakshsh (Syâvarshâna) by Afrāsyâb; Syâvakshsh, son of Kai Kaus (Kava Ùsa), having been exiled by his father, at the instigation of his mother-in-law, took refuge with Afrāsyâb, who received him with honour, and gave him his daughter in marriage: but the fortune of Syâvakshsh raised the jealousy of Afrāsyâb's brother, Karsîvaz (Keresavazda), who by means of calumnious accusations extorted from Afrāsyâb an order for putting him to death (see Yt. XIX, 77). Syâvakshsh was revenged by his son, Kai Khosrov, the grandson of Afrāsyâb (Yt. IX, 22).

In an older form of the legend, that cave was a palace built under-ground, with walls of iron and a hundred columns: its height was a thousand times a man's size (Aoge-maidê, § 61; cf. Bund. ⁴ Vaèsaka was the head of the Vîsah family, whose foremost member was Pirân Vîsah, the clever and upright minister of Afrâsîb, the Turanian Nestor; but his counsels were despised for the common ruin, and himself perished with all his sons in the war against Irân.
⁶ According to the Shâh Nâmâh, Kang dez was stormed by Kai Khosrov himself.

Thraētaona, on his march to Bawri, the capital of Azi (cf. § 29), arrived at the Tigris (the Rangha); an angel then came and taught him magic to enable him to baffle the sortileges of Azi (Shâh Nâmah). We have in this passage an instance of his talents as a wizard, and one which helps us to understand why Thraētaona is considered as the inventor of magic, and his name is invoked in spells and incantations (Hamzah Ispahanensis, p. 101; Anquetil, II, pp. 135 seq.). Yt. XXIII, 2). The Shâh Nâmah has an episode which recalls this one, although very different in its spirit, and more in accordance with the general character of Gâmâspa. At the moment when the two armies meet together, Gûstâsp asks Gâmâsp to reveal to him the issue of the encounter: Gâmâsp obeys reluctantly, as the issue is to be fatal to the Iranians. VI. KHÔRSHÊD YAST.

(YAST TO THE SUN.)

This Yast is recited at any time, but particularly on the days consecrated to the sun and to Khshathra-Vairya (Shahrivar), Mithra (Mihir), Asman (Âsmân), and Anaghra raoḵau (Anîrân1): the last three, Mithra, Asman (the Heaven), Anaghra (the infinite Light), have a natural connection with the sun, but its connection with Khshathra-Vairya is not so clear.

Of this Yast we have a Pahlavi (East India Office, XII), a Persian (ibid. XXIV), and a Sanskrit translation (Fonds Burnouf V; all three edited in Études Iranennes, II).

2. And when the sun rises up, then the earth, made by Ahura, becomes clean\(^2\); the running waters become clean, the waters of the wells become clean, the waters of the sea become clean, the standing waters become clean; all the holy creatures, the creatures of the Good Spirit, become clean.

3. Should not the sun rise up, then the Daêvas would destroy all the things that are in the seven Karshvares, nor would the heavenly Yazatas find any way of withstanding or repelling them in the material world.

4. He who offers up a sacrifice unto the undying, shining, swift-horsed Sun—to withstand darkness, to withstand the Daêvas born of darkness, to withstand the robbers and bandits, to withstand the Yâtus and Pairikas, to withstand death that creeps in unseen—offers it up to Ahura Mazda, offers it up to the Amesha-Spentas, offers it up to his own soul\(^3\). Unto the undying, shining, swift-horsed Sun we offer up the libations, the Haoma and meat, the baresma, the wisdom of the tongue, the holy spells, the speech, the deeds, the libations, and the rightly-spoken words.

VII. MĀH YĀST.

This Yast to the Moon is recited on the day of the Moon, and on those of Bahman, Gôs, and Râm (Anquetil, II, 185). Bahman and Gôs are so far connected with the Moon that all three are gaoāithra: "Bahman, the Moon, and Gôs, all three, are having in them the seed of the bull; Bahman can neither be seen nor seized with the hand; the Moon proceeded from Bahman and can be seen, but cannot be seized with the hand; Gôs proceeded from the Moon and can both be seen and seized with the hand." Râm is referred to here as being āvāstra, 'lord of good pastures.'

Of this Yast we have translations in Pahlavi, Persian, and Sanskrit (edited in Études Iraniennes, II).

1. Hail to Ahura Mazda! Hail to the Amesha-Spentas! Hail to the Moon that keeps in it the seed of the Bull! Hail to thee when we look at thee! Hail to thee when thou lookest at us!

2. How does the moon wax? How does the moon wane?

For fifteen days does the moon wax; for fifteen days does the moon wane. As long as her waxing, so long is the waning; as long as her waning, so long is the waxing.

'Who is there but thee who makes the moon wax and wane?'

1 Sirôzah I, r2. 2 See Vend. XXI, 1, text and note.
3 When the moon allows itself to be perceived.
4 The Pahlavi translation has the following interesting details: 'For fifteen days they take good deeds from the earthly creatures and the rewards for virtue from the heavens; for fifteen days they make the rewards pass to the earth and the good deeds pass to the heavens.' The moon is thus a sort of moral clearing-house between earth and heaven.
5 According to the Parsis this waning does not refer to the moon, but to the constellations that help it in the struggle against the planets, which are supposed to belong to the Ahrimanian world (see Ormazd et Ahriman, §§ 223–226): 'while it waxes—namely, the moon—they wane,—namely, those that are opposed to the planets, to the bad stars; for instance, Haftôiring, Vanand, Tîstar, Satvês; ... while it wanes—namely, the moon—they wax, that is to say, they are strong for doing good.' Thus the moon and the stars relieve each other in the battle against Ahriman.
6 Ahura.
7 Quoted from Yasna XLIV [XLIII], 3.
3. We sacrifice unto the Moon that keeps in it the seed of the Bull, the holy and master of holiness.

Here I look at the moon, here I perceive the moon; here I look at the light of the moon, here I perceive the light of the moon. The Amesha-Spentas stand up, holding its glory; the Amesha-Spentas stand up, pouring its glory upon the earth, made by Mazda.

4. And when the light of the moon waxes warmer, golden-hued plants grow from the earth during the spring.

We sacrifice unto the new moons, the full moons, and the Vishaptathas.

We sacrifice unto the new moon, the holy and master of holiness;

We sacrifice unto the full moon, the holy and master of holiness;

We sacrifice unto the Vishaptatha, the holy and master of holiness.

5 New moon and full moon are not used here in the English meaning: the month was divided into six parts, of five days each (the Norse fimm or five days' week; see Vigfusson, Icelandic Dictionary, s.v.): the first five days (pankaak fardum) formed the new moon or antra-maungha, literally 'the moon within;' the next five days (panaak datigar) formed the perendmaungha, literally 'the moon full,' which in fact partly answered to our first quarter; the next five days (panaak sitigar), belonging to the full moon, were called the Vishaptatha; no mention is made of the last three pankaak, forming the second half of the month. It may be they were not mentioned, as belonging to the waning period, when the powers of the moon are suffering an eclipse. Cf. Neriosengh to Yasna I, (23.)
5. I will sacrifice unto the Moon, that keeps in it the seed of the Bull, the liberal, bright, glorious, water-giving, warmth-giving, wisdom-giving, wealth-giving, riches-giving, thoughtfulness-giving, weal-giving, freshness-giving, prosperity-giving, the liberal, the healing.

6. For its brightness and glory, I will offer unto it a sacrifice worth being heard, namely, unto the Moon that keeps in it the seed of the Bull.

Unto the Moon that keeps in it the seed of the Bull, we offer up the libations, the Haoma and meat, the baresma, the wisdom of the tongue, the holy spells, the speech, the deeds, the libations, and the rightly-spoken words.

VIII. TĪR YAST.

Tistrya is the leader of the stars against the planets, as stars and planets belong, respectively, to the worlds of Ahura Mazda and Angra Mainyu (Vend. Introd. IV, 36; Bund. II, 5 seq.).

This Yast is a description of the production of the rain through the agency of the star Tistrya. It has to struggle against the Daēva of Drought, Apaoshia, is first overcome and conquers at last. This seems to be a refacimento of the old storm myths, which have been in so far renewed as the role of the hero in the original myth has been transferred to a star. It is to be noticed, however, that Apaoshia is not described as a planet.

Tistrya is Sirius. It presides over the first month of summer (21 June–21 July). This Yast appears thus to have been written in a part of Iran where the dog-days must have fallen in July, and the rainy season began in the last days of July, unless the place of Tistrya in the calendar has been changed at some later period.

This Yast is recited on the days of Tistrya, Hauvratâ (as the Genius of Waters), Farvardîn (as the Fravashis are his allies in the struggle; § 34), and Bâd (the wind; § 32).

The struggle between Tistrya and Apaoshia is described in the Bundahis (VII), but it has there a cosmological character: it has not for its object the annual and regular return of the rains after the dog-days, but the production of the seas and lakes in the first ages of the world.

When Minōkihr and Afrāsyāb determined to make peace and to fix the boundary between Irān and Tūrān, ‘it was stipulated that Aris should ascend Mount Damāvand, and from thence discharge an arrow towards the east; and that the place in which the arrow fell should form the boundary between the two kingdoms. Aris thereupon ascended the mountain, and discharged towards the east an arrow, the flight of which continued from the dawn of day until noon, when it fell on the banks of the Gihūn (the Oxus),’ (Mirkhond, History of the Early Kings of Persia, trans. by David Shea, p. 175; cf. The peculiar office of Vanani is to keep the passes and gates of Mount Albôrz, around which the sun, the moon, and the stars revolve, and to prevent the Paris and Daêvas from cutting off and breaking the road of the sun (Minokhired XLIX, 12).

IX. GÔS YAST.

Gôs, 'the cow', karrê eøyûh, is a personation of the animal kingdom which she maintains and protects. She is also called Drvâspa and Gosûrûn: Drvâspa means 'she who keeps horses in health,' and is nothing more than an epithet of Gôs: Gosûrûn (from the Zend Gēus urvan) means 'the Soul of the Bull' (the primeval Bull). Although urvan is a masculine noun in Zend, yet Gosûrûn is considered a female angel, as this name is only a substitute for Gôs.

Gôs is the angel of the 14th day (Sîrôzah I, 14), and her Yast is recited during the Gâh Usahin, on the days of Gôs, Bahman, Mâh, and Râm (the same days as those on which the Mâh Yast is recited; see above, p. 88).

Gôs is hardly described in this Yast (§§ 1–2); the greater part of it being filled with the several prayers addressed to her by the Iranian heroes, Haoshyangha (§ 3), Yima (§ 8), Thrâêtaona (§ 13), Haoma (§ 17), Husravah (§ 21), Zarathustra, and Vîstâspa. Her worshippers and their prayers to her are the same as in the case of Ashi Vanguhi (see Yt. XVII).

6 The Hvyaonas seem to have been the Chionitae, a bellicose tribe, near the land of Gilan, often at war with the first Sassanides (Amm. Marcellinus XVII, 5). The name of the Varedhakas reminds one of the Vertae who are mentioned once in company with the Chionitae (ibid. XIX, 1); but their geographical situation is not ascertained. X. MIHIR YAST.

This Yast, one of the longest of the Avesta and one of the most interesting in a literary point of view, is not very instructive for mythology. It consists of long descriptive pieces, sometimes rather spirited, and of fervent prayers and invocations for mercy or protection. Originally Mithra was the god of the heavenly light (§§ 12, 50, 67, 104, 124 seq., 136 seq., &c.); and in that character he knows the truth, as he sees everything; he is therefore taken as a witness of truth, he is the preserver of oaths and good faith (§§ 2, 44 seq., 79 seq., 81 seq., &c.); he chastises those who break their promises and lie to Mithra, destroys their houses and smites them in battle (§§ 17 seq., 28 seq., 35 seq., 47 seq., 99 seq., 105 seq., 112 seq., 128 seq., &c.).

Particularly interesting are §§ 115–118, as giving a sketch of moral hierarchy in Iran, and §§ 121–122, as being perhaps the source of the trials in the later Roman Mithriacism. Cf. Vend. Introd. IV, 8 and Ormazd et Ahriman, §§ 59–61.

o. May Ahura Mazda be rejoiced! . . .

Ashem Vohû: Holiness is the best of all good . . .

I confess myself a worshipper of Mazda, a follower of Zarathustra, one who hates the Daêvas, and obeys the laws of Ahura;

For sacrifice, prayer, propitiation, and glorification unto [Hâvani], the holy and master of holiness . . . .

Unto Mithra, the lord of wide pastures, who has a thousand ears, ten thousand eyes, a Yazata invoked by his own name, and unto Râma Ḥvâstra¹,

Be propitiation, with sacrifice, prayer, propitiation, and glorification.

Break not the contract, O Spitama! neither the one that thou hadst entered into with one of the unfaithful, nor the one that thou hadst entered into with one of the faithful who is one of thy own faith⁴. For Mithra stands for both the faithful and the unfaithful.

3. 'Mithra, the lord of wide pastures, gives swiftness to the horses of those who lie not unto Mithra.

'Fire, the son of Ahura Mazda, gives the straightest way to those who lie not unto Mithra.

XI. SRÔSH YAST HÂDHÔKHT.

There are two Yasts dedicated to Sraosha, the angel of divine worship\(^1\); one is a part of the Yasna (LVII [LVI]), and this, the other, is called the Srôsh Yast Hâdhôkht. Whether it belonged to the so-called Hâdhôkht Nosk\(^2\), one of the twenty-one Nosks of which the original Avesta was formed\(^3\), or whether it was recited in the Hadhôkht sacrifice\(^4\), a particular liturgy, is a matter on which we have no sufficient information.

The two Yasts have a few developments in common (see §§ 8-9, 10-13): the Hâdhôkht is more liturgical, the Yasna Yast is more descriptive, and has to a greater degree the poetical imagery of a Yast.

The Srôsh Yast Hâdhôkht is recited every day, during any gâh except the Rapitvân. A Pahlavi translation of this Yast is extant (East India Office, XII, 102; Paris, Supplément Persan, XXXIII, 259; edited in Études Iraniennes, II), and Anquetil mentions a Sanskrit translation.

1. We sacrifice unto the holy, tall-formed, fiend-smiting Sraosha, who makes the world increase, the holy and master of holiness. Good prayer, excellent prayer to the worlds¹, O Zarathustra!

2. This it is that takes away the friendship of the fiend and fiends, of the he-fiend and of the she-fiend; it turns away in giddiness their eyes, minds, ears², hands, feet, mouths, and tongues³; as good prayer, without deceit and without harm, is Manly Courage⁴, and turns away the Drug⁵.

3. The holy Sraosha, the best protector of the poor, is fiend-smiting; he is the best smiter of the Drug.

The faithful one who pronounces most words of blessing is the most victorious in victory; the Māthra Spenta takes best the unseen Drug away. The Ahuna Vairya⁶ is the best fiend-smiter among all spells; the word of truth is the fighter⁷ that is the best of all fiend-smitters.

The Law of the worshippers of Mazda is the truest giver of all the good things, of all those that are the offspring of the good principle; and so is the Law of Zarathustra.

6. Pronounce then that word, O Zarathustra! that word to be spoken, when thou fall upon the idolaters and thieves and Daēvas rushing together. Then the malice of the wicked worshippers of the Daēvas, of the Yātus and their followers, of the Pairikas and their followers, will be affrighted and rush away. Down are the Daēvas! Down are the Daēva-worshippers, and they take back their mouths from biting.

XII. RASHN YAST.

Rashnu Razista, 'the truest True,' is the Genius of Truth: he is one of the three judges of the departed, with Mithra and Sraosha: he holds the balance in which the deeds of men are weighed after their death: 'he makes no unjust balance . . . . , neither for the pious nor yet the wicked, neither for lords nor yet rulers; as much as a hair's breadth he will not vary, and he shows no favour.' He is an offshoot either of Mithra, the God of Truth and the avenger of lies, or of Ahura Mazda himself, the all-knowing lord (§ 2 seq.).

This Yast seems to be an appeal made to Rashnu to come and attend the performance of the var nîrang or ordeal (see p. 170, note 3), of which Rashnu, as the Genius of Truth, was the natural witness and arbiter (cf. Vend. IV, 54–55 [154–156]). As a god of Truth must know everything and be present everywhere, he is called from whatever part of the world he may actually be in. This brings about an enumeration of all the parts of the world, from this earth (§§ 9–22) to the highest heaven (§ 37), passing through the Albôtz (§§ 23–26), the star region (§§ 26–32), the moon region (§ 33), and the sun region (§ 34; cf. p. 73, note 2).

This Yast is recited on the days of Rashn, Murdâd, Âshtâd, and Zemyâd (the 18th, 7th, 26th, and 28th of the month).

XIII. FARVARDIN YAST.

The Fravashi is the inner power in every being that maintains it and makes it grow and subsist. Originally the Fravashis were the same as the Pitris of the Hindus or the Manes of the Latins, that is to say, the everlast ing and deified souls of the dead (see §§ 49–52); but in course of time they gained a wider domain, and not only men, but gods and even physical objects, like the sky and the earth, &c. (§§ 85–86), had each a Fravashi (see Ormazd et Ahriman, §§ 111–113).

This Yast is to be divided into two parts. The former part (§§ 1–84) is a glorification of the powers and attributes of the Fravashis in general; the latter part (§§ 85–158) is an enumeration of the Fravashis of the most celebrated heroes of Mazdeism, from the first man, Gaya Maretan, down to the last, Saoshyan.

This latter part is like a Homer's catalogue of Mazdeism. The greatest part of the historical legends of Iran lies here condensed into a register of proper names. This enumeration is divided into seven chapters:

The first (XXIV, §§ 85–95) contains the names of several gods, of the first man, Gaya Maretan, the first law-giver, Zarathustra, and his first disciple, Maidhyô-maungha;

The second part (XXV, §§ 96–110) contains the names of the disciples of Zarathustra, most of them belonging to the epical cycle of Vîstâspa (Gustasp);

The third part (XXVI, §§ 111–117) is of uncertain character, and no name contained in it is found in the epical legends;

The fourth part (XXVII, §§ 118–128) seems to be devoted to the heroes of the other Karshvares and to mythical beings, born or unborn (cf. §§ 121, 122, 127, 128);

The fifth part (XXVIII, § 129) is devoted to Saoshyan alone;

The sixth part (XXIX, §§ 130–138) is devoted to the heroes before the time of Zarathustra;

The seventh part (XXX, §§ 139–142) is devoted to the holy women of Mazdeism from Hvôvi, Zarathustra's wife, down to Srûtâ-fedhri, Vanghu-fedhri, and Eredâ-fedhri, the future mothers of his three unborn sons.

The second, third, and fourth enumerations all end with the name of Astvâr-ereta (that is to say, Saoshyants), which shows that they do not refer to successive generations, but to three independent branches, which are each developed apart down to the time of the Saviour.

1 The sixth and last Gâhambâr (see Âfrigân Gâhambâr), or the last ten days of the year (10th-20th March), including the last five days of the last month, Sapendârmad, and the five complementary days. These last ten days should be spent in deeds of charity, religious banquets (gazan), and ceremonies in memory of the dead. It was also at the approach of the spring that the Romans and the Athenians used to offer annual sacrifices to the dead; the Romans in February 'qui tunc extremus anni mensis erat' (Cicero, De Legibus, II, 21), the Athenians on the third day of the Anthesterion feast (in the same month). The souls of the dead were supposed to partake of the new life then beginning to circulate through nature, that had also been dead during the long months of winter.

the Fravashis of the faithful abide down here! May you be rejoiced and well received in this house! Here are the Āthravans of the countries, thinking of good holiness. Our hands are lifted up for asking help, and for offering a sacrifice unto you, O most beneficent Fravashis!

148. We worship the Fravashis of all the holy men and holy women whose souls are worthy of sacrifice, whose Fravashis are worthy of invocation.

We worship the Fravashis of all the holy men and holy women, our sacrificing to whom makes us good in the eyes of Ahura Mazda: of all of those we have heard that Zarathustra is the first and best, as a follower of Ahura and as a performer of the law.

149. We worship the spirit, conscience, perception, soul, and Fravashi of men of the primitive law, of the first who listened to the teaching (of Ahura), holy men and holy women, who struggled for holiness; we worship the spirit, conscience, perception, soul, and Fravashi of our next-of-kin, holy men and holy women, who struggled for holiness.

XIV. BAHRAHM YAST.

Regarding Bahram (Verethraghna), the Genius of Victory, see Vend. Introd. V, 8.

This Yast can be divided into four parts:—

I (§§ 1–28). An enumeration of the ten incarnations in which Verethraghna appeared to Zarathustra (as a wind, § 2; as a bull, § 7; as a horse, § 9; as a camel, § 11; as a boar, § 15; as a youth, § 17; as a raven, § 19; as a ram, § 23; as a buck, § 25; and as a man, § 27).

II (§§ 30–33). The powers given by Verethraghna to his worshipper, Zarathustra.

III (§§ 34–46). The magical powers, ascribed to the raven’s feather, of striking terror into an army and dispersing it (the raven being the seventh incarnation of Verethraghna).

IV (§§ 47–64). The glorification of Verethraghna.

o. May Ahura Mazda be rejoiced! ....

Ahura Mazda answered: 'It is Verethraghna, made by Ahura, O Spitama Zarathustra!'

2. Verethraghna, made by Ahura, came to him first, running in the shape of a strong, beautiful wind, made by Mazda; he bore the good Glory, made by Mazda, the Glory made by Mazda, that is both health and strength.

3. Then he, who is the strongest\(^2\), said unto him\(^3\): 'I am the strongest in strength; I am the most victorious in victory; I am the most glorious in Glory; I am the most favouring in favour; I am the best giver of welfare; I am the best-healing in health-giving.

4. 'And I shall destroy the malice of all the malicious, the malice of Daēvas and men, of the Yātus and Pairikas, of the oppressors, the blind, and the deaf.

5. 'For his brightness and glory, I will offer unto him a sacrifice worth being heard; namely, unto Verethraghna, made by Ahura. We worship Verethraghna, made by Ahura, with an offering of libations, according to the primitive ordinances of Ahura; with the Haoma and meat, the baresma, the wisdom of the tongue, the holy spells, the speech, the deeds, the libations, and the rightly-spoken words.

XV. RÂM YAST.

This Yast bears the name of Râma Hvâstra, the Genius who presides over the 21st day of the month (Strâzah, § 21), and is devoted to his Hamkâr, Vayu.

Regarding Râma Hvâstra, the Genius that gives good abodes and good pastures, and his connection with Vayu, see Vend. Introd. IV, and Études Iraniennes, II, 187.

This Yast can be divided into two parts. The first part (§§ 1–140) contains an enumeration of worshippers who sacrificed to Vayu: Ahura Mazda (§ 2), Haoshyangha (§ 7), Takhma Urupa (§ 11), Yima (§ 15), Azî Dahâka (§ 19), Thraêtaona (§ 23), Keresâspa (§ 27), Auruvasâra (§ 31), Hutaosa (§ 35), and Iranian maids (§ 39). The second part (§§ 42–58) contains a special enumeration and glorification of the many names of Vayu (§§ 42–50).

o. May Ahura Mazda be rejoiced!...
Ashem Vohû: Holiness is the best of all good....
I confess myself a worshipper of Mazda, a follower of Zara-thustra, one who hates the Daêvas, and obeys the laws of Ahura;
For sacrifice, prayer, propitiation, and glorification unto [Hâvani], the holy and master of holiness....

Unto Râma Hvâstra, unto Vayu who works highly and is more powerful to afflict than all other creatures 1,

Be propitiation from me, for sacrifice, prayer, propitiation, and glorification.
Yathâ ahû vairyo: The will of the Lord is the law of holiness....

XVI. DİN YAST.

Din (Daêña) presides over the 24th day of the month (Sirôzah 24) and gives it her name; she is invoked in company with Kîsta, and in fact this Yast, though it bears the name of Daêna, is consecrated to Kîsta (§§ 2, 7). These two Genii are, however, very closely connected in their nature, as Daêna is the impersonation of the Zoroastrian Law or Religion, and Kîsta is religious knowledge, the knowledge of what leads to bliss (fargânak, nirvânaagnâna; the same as Kîsti).

The description of Kîsta is rather pallid, and does not rise above abstractions (see, however, Mhir Yast, § 126). She was not worshipped by the old epic heroes as Anáhita was, but by Zarathustra and his wife, because she must have been, from her very name and nature, a goddess of Zoroastrian origin and growth.

XVII. ASHI YAST.

Ashi Vanguhi or 'the good Ashi' is a feminine impersonation of piety, and she is, at the same time, the source of all the good and riches that are connected with piety. She is described, therefore, as a goddess of Fortune and Wealth, and is invoked in company with Pârendi, the goddess of Treasures (Sirôzah 25).

She appears in the latter character in the first part of the Yast (§§ 1-14); she praises and loves Zarathustra (§§ 15-21). She is worshipped by Haosyangha (§ 26), Yima (§ 28), Thraêtaona (§ 33), Haoma (§ 37), Husravah (§ 41), Zarathustra (§ 45), and Vîstâspa (§ 49). She rejects the offerings of all sterile people (old men, courtezans, and children, §§ 53-61).

shyants with the enlivening intelligence; she also brings heavenly wisdom at her wish, and comes to help him who invokes her from near and him who invokes her from afar, and worships her with offerings of libations.

3. For her brightness and glory, I will offer her a sacrifice worth being heard; I will offer up unto Ashi Vanguhi a good sacrifice with an offering of libations. We sacrifice unto Ashi Vanguhi with the libations; with the Haoma and meat, with the baresma, with the wisdom of the tongue, with the holy spells, with the words, with the deeds, with the libations, and with the rightly-spoken words.

VIII. ÅSTÅD YAST.

Årstå is Truthfulness: she is invoked in company with the Genius of Truth, Rashnu Razista (Strôzah, § 18), on the day Rashn. On the day especially dedicated to her, the 26th day of the month, she is invoked in company with Mount Ushi-darena, which accounts for the singular fact that her Yast is wholly devoted to the Hvarenô, and thus is hardly distinguishable from the Zamyûd Yast, as Mount Ushi-darena is the actual seat of the Hvarenô (Yt. I, 31, text and note; cf. Yt. XIX, 66). Whence comes this particular connection of Årstå with Mount Ushi-darena is uncertain, unless it alludes to the fact that the possession of the Hvarenô can be secured only through truthfulness: as soon as Yima 'began to find delight in words of falsehood and untruth,' the Hvarenô flew away from him (Yt. XIX, 34).

XIX. ZAMYĀD YAST.

This Yast, inscribed to the Genius of the Earth, is devoted to a description of the mountains and the kingly Glory (kavaēm Ḥvarenō), which are invoked, together with the Earth, in the corresponding formula of the Sīrōzah (§ 28): there is no Yast devoted to the Earth itself.

The mountains are simply enumerated (§§ 1–8). The rest of the Yast is devoted to the praise of the Ḥvarenō, or, more precisely, to that of those who possessed it, whose powers or feats are described. The list begins with Ahura Mazda (§ 10), and closes with Saoshyant (§ 89); that is to say, it begins with the beginning of the world, and closes with its end. It includes the Amesha-Spēntas (§ 15), Haoshyangha (§ 26), Takhma Urupa (§ 28), Yima (§ 31), Mithra (§ 35), Thraētaona (§ 36), Keresāspa (§ 38), the kings of the Kaianyan dynasty (§§ 66–72), Kavi Husravah (§ 74), Zarathustra (§ 79), Vistāspa (§ 84). The unsuccessful efforts of Franghrasyan to take possession of it are described at length (§§ 56–64).

This Yast would serve as a short history of the Iranian monarchy, an abridged Shāh Nāmah.

I confess myself a worshipper of Mazda, a follower of Zarathustra, one who hates the Daēvas and obeys the laws of Ahura;
For sacrifice, prayer, propitiation, and glorification unto [Hāvani], the holy and master of holiness ....

Unto Mount Ushi-darena, made by Mazda, the seat of holy happiness; unto the kingly Glory, made by Mazda; unto that Glory that cannot be forcibly seized, made by Mazda ¹,

1. The first mountain that rose up out of the earth, O Spitama Zarathustra! was the Haraiti Barez\(^1\). That mountain stretches all along the shores of the land washed by waters\(^2\) towards the east.

The second mountain was Mount Zeredhô, outside\(^3\) Mount Manusha\(^4\): this mountain too stretches all along the shores of the land washed by waters towards the east.

2. From there grew up Mount Ushi-dhau Ushi-darena\(^5\), Mount Erezifya\(^6\), and Mount Fraorepa.

The sixth was Mount Erezura\(^7\).

The seventh was Mount Bumya\(^8\).

The eighth was Mount Raoidhita\(^9\).

35. The first time when the Glory departed from the bright Yima, the Glory went from Yima, the son of Vivanghaṇt, in the shape of a Vâraghna bird.

Then Mithra seized that Glory, Mithra, the lord of wide pastures, whose ear is quick to hear, who has a thousand senses. We sacrifice unto Mithra, the lord of all countries, whom Ahura Mazda has created the most glorious of all the gods in the heavens.

36. The second time when the Glory departed from the bright Yima, the Glory went from Yima, the son of Vivanghaṇt, in the shape of a Vâraghna bird.

Then Thraëtaona seized that Glory, he, the heir of the valiant Āṭhwya clan, who was the most victorious of all victorious men next to Zarathustra;

37. Who smote Azi Dahâka, the three-mouthed, the three-headed, the six-eyed, who had a thousand senses, that most powerful, fiendish Drug, that demon baleful to the world, the strongest Drug that Angra Mainyu created against the material world, to destroy the world of the good principle.

1 Azi Dahâka and his followers.
2 The Glory is described as departing three times, because it is threefold, according as it belongs to the king considered as a priest, a warrior, or a husbandman. In that threefold character it is identical with Ādar Frōbâ, Ādar Gushasp, and Ādar Bûrţín Mihr (p. 7, notes).
3 A raven, one of the incarnations of the Genius of Victory (Yt. XIV, 18–21; cf. ibid. § 35).

38. The third time when the Glory departed from the bright Yima, that Glory went from Yima, the son of Vitvanghant, in the shape of a Vâraghna bird.

Then the manly-hearted Keresâspa\(^1\) seized that Glory; he who was the sturdiest of the men of strength, next to Zarathustra, for his manly courage.

Upon him Keresâspa was cooking his food in a brass vessel: at the time of noon, the fiend felt the heat, and stood upon his feet: he rushed from under the brass vessel and upset the boiling water: the manly-hearted Keresâspa fell back affrighted\(^2\);

41. Who killed the golden-heeled Gandarewa, that was rushing with open jaws, eager to destroy the living world of the good principle\(^3\);

Who killed the brood of Pathana, all the nine\(^4\);

\(^1\) See V, 37 (pp. 62–63, and notes); XIII, 136; XV, 27.

\(^2\) Cf. Yasna IX, 11 (34–39). This tale belongs to the wide-spread cyclus of the island-whale (a whale whose back is mistaken by sailors for an island; they land upon it, cook their food there, and the monster, awakened by the heat, flies off and carries them away: see Arabian Nights, Seventy-first Night; Babâ Bathrâ, 5).

\(^3\) See Yt. V, 38.

\(^4\) Known in the Minokhired (XXVII, 50) as ‘the wolf Kâpôd’ (perhaps ‘the blue wolf,’ as Mr. West suggests), ‘which they also call Pëhan.’ Those nine sons of Pathana were nine highwaymen (the very word Pathana seems to have that meaning): their defeat is told by Keresâspa in a Pahlavi Rivâyat as follows: ‘I have slain the highwaymen who were so big in body that, when they were and the brood of Nivika, and the brood of Dâstaya;
Who killed the golden-crowned Hitâspa, and Vareshava, the son of Dâna, and Pitaona, attended by many Paîrikas;
42. Who killed Arezô-shamana, him of the manly courage, who was strong, well-beloved, hail, energetically rushing, fully awake, never falling back....
43. Who killed Snâvidhaka, him who killed with his nails, the stone-handed: thus did he exclaim to all around: 'I am an infant still, I am not yet of age: if I ever grow of age, I shall make the earth a wheel, I shall make the heavens a chariot;

And I reached up to their legs, and they were smitten on the legs by me; they fell, and the hills on the earth were shattered by them' (West, Pahlavi Texts, II, 376). Keresâspa's Fravashi, accordingly, is invoked against thieves (Yt. XIII, 136). Perhaps the assimilation of the wolf Kapôd with Pêhan is merely a guess of the author of the Minokhired.

1 The murderer of Keresâspa's brother, Urvâkhshaya (Yt. XV, 28).
2 Doubtful: dânayana. Vâresha is the Pahlavi name of a bird of prey (Bund. XIV, 30), which might induce us to identify Vareshava with the gigantic bird Kamak, 'which overshadowed the earth and kept off the rain till the rivers dried up' (West, l.l. 378), and whose destruction was one of the feats of Keresâspa.
3 Like the Pairika Knûthaiti, who clave to Keresâspa (Vend. I, 10 [36]).

The manly-hearted Keresâspa killed him, his life went away, his spirit vanished.

For its brightness and glory, I will offer it a sacrifice . . . .

45. We sacrifice unto the awful Glory, that cannot be forcibly seized, made by Mazda . . . .

46. For which the Good Spirit and the Evil One did struggle with one another: for that Glory that cannot be forcibly seized they flung each of them their darts most swift.

The Good Spirit flung a dart, and so did Vohu-Manô, and Asha-Vahista and âtar, the son of Ahura Mazda.

The Evil Spirit flung a dart, and so did Akem-Manô, and Aêshma of the wounding spear, and Asi Dahâka and Spityura, he who sawed Yima in twain.

1 Snâvidhaka reminds one vividly of the Titanic Otus and Ephialtes (Odyssea XI, 308):

Nothing more is known of him, though he appears to have played a great part in the original Yima legend, and to have stood to his brother in the same relation as Barmâyûn and Katâyûn to Fêridûn, or
47. Then forward came Åtar⁴, the son of Ahura Mazda, thinking thus in his heart: 'I want to seize that Glory that cannot be forcibly seized.'

But Azi Dahâka, the three-mouthed, he of the evil law, rushed on his back, thinking of extinguishing it:

48. 'Here give it up to me², O Åtar, son of Ahura Mazda: if thou seizest that Glory that cannot be forcibly seized, I shall rush upon thee, so that thou mayest never more blaze on the earth made by Ahura and protect the world of the good principle.'

And Åtar took back his hands, as the instinct of life prevailed, so much had Azi affrighted him.

49. Then Azi, the three-mouthed, he of the evil law, rushed forward, thinking thus in his heart: 'I want to seize that Glory that cannot be forcibly seized.'

But Åtar, the son of Ahura Mazda, advanced behind him, speaking in these words:

50. 'There give it up to me², thou three-mouthed Azi Dahâka. If thou seizest that Glory that cannot be forcibly seized, then I will enter thy hinder part, I will blaze up in thy jaws, so that thou mayest never more rush upon the earth made by Mazda and destroy the world of the good principle.'

Then Azi took back his hands, as the instinct of life prevailed, so much had Åtar affrighted him.

52. We sacrifice unto the Son of the Waters, the swift-horsed, the tall and shining lord, the lord of females; the male god, who helps one at his appeal; who made man, who shaped man\(^2\), a god who lives beneath waters, and whose ear is the quickest to hear when he is worshipped.

XXI AND XXII. YAST FRAGMENTS.

These two Yasts or Yast fragments are known among the Parsis as the Hâdhôkht Nask, though their context does not correspond to any part of the description of that Nask as given in the Din-kart (West, Pahlavi Texts, I, 224, note 8). A Pahlavi translation of these Yasts has been edited by Haug and West (The Book of Ardâ Virâf, p. 269 seq.).

XXI. YAST FRAGMENT.

Yast XXI is a eulogy of the Ashem Vohû prayer, the value of which rises higher and higher, according as the circumstances under which it is being recited are of greater importance.

1. Zarathustra asked Ahura Mazda: ‘O Ahura Mazda, most beneficent Spirit, Maker of the material world, thou Holy One!

‘What is the only word in which is contained the glorification of all good things, of all the things that are the offspring of the good principle?'

2. Ahura Mazda answered: ‘It is the praise of Holiness¹, O Spitama Zarathustra!

3. ‘He who recites the praise of Holiness¹, in the fulness of faith and with a devoted heart, praises me, Ahura Mazda; he praises the waters, he praises the earth, he praises the cattle, he praises the plants, he praises all good things made by Mazda, all the things that are the offspring of the good principle.

4. ‘For the reciting of that word of truth, O Zarathustra! the pronouncing of that formula, the Ahuna Vairya, increases strength and victory in one’s soul and piety.

5. 'For that only recital of the praise of Holiness is worth a hundred kh$h$n$aothras of the beings of Holiness\(^1\), when delivered while going to sleep, a thousand when delivered after eating, ten thousand when delivered during cohabitation, or any number when delivered in departing this life.'

6. 'What is the one recital of the praise of Holiness that is worth ten others in greatness, goodness, and fairness?'

7. Ahura Mazda answered: 'It is that one, O holy Zarathustra! that a man delivers when eating the gifts of Haurvatât and Ameretât\(^2\), at the same time professing good thoughts, good words, and good deeds, and rejecting evil thoughts, evil words, and evil deeds.'

8. 'What is the one recital of the praise of Holiness that is worth a hundred others in greatness, goodness, and fairness?'

9. Ahura Mazda answered: 'It is that one, O holy Zarathustra! that a man delivers while drinking of the Haoma strained for the sacrifice, at the same time professing good thoughts, good words, and good deeds, and rejecting evil thoughts, evil words, and evil deeds.'

10. 'What is the one recital of the praise of Holiness that is worth a thousand others in greatness, goodness, and fairness?'

11. Ahura Mazda answered: 'It is that one, O holy Zarathustra! that a man delivers when starting up from his bed or going to sleep again, at the same time professing good thoughts, good words, and good deeds, and rejecting evil thoughts, evil words, and evil deeds.'

12. 'What is the one recital of the praise of Holiness that is worth ten thousand others in greatness, goodness, and fairness?'

13. Ahura Mazda answered: 'It is that one, O holy Zarathustra! that a man delivers when waking up and rising from sleep, at the same time professing good thoughts, good words, and good deeds, and rejecting evil thoughts, evil words, and evil deeds.'

14. 'What is the one recital of the praise of Holiness that is worth this Karshvare of ours, Hvaniratha ¹, with its cattle and its chariots, without its men, in greatness, goodness, and fairness?'

15. Ahura Mazda answered: 'It is that one, O holy Zarathustra! that a man delivers in the last moments of his life, at the same time professing good thoughts, good words, and good deeds, and rejecting evil thoughts, evil words, and evil deeds.'

16. 'What is the one recital of the praise of Holiness that is worth all that is between the earth and the heavens, and this earth, and that luminous space, and all the good things made by Mazda, that are the offspring of the good principle in greatness, goodness, and fairness?'

17. Ahura Mazda answered: 'It is that one, O holy Zarathustra! that a man delivers to renounce evil thoughts, evil words, and evil deeds ².'

YAST XXII.

This Yast is a description of the fate that attends the soul of the righteous (§§ 1–18) and the soul of the wicked (§§ 19–37) after death. They spend the first three nights (the sadis or sidôs; cf. Commentaire du Vendôdâd, XIII, 55) amongst the highest enjoyments or pains; they are then met by their own conscience in the shape of a beautiful heavenly maiden (or a fiendish old woman), and are brought in four steps up to heaven or down to hell, through the three paradises of Good-Thought, Good-Word, and Good-Deed, or the three hells of Evil-Thought, Evil-Word, and Evil-Deed: there they are praised and glorified by Ahura, or rebuked and insulted by Angra Mainyu, and fed with ambrosia or poison.

Similar developments are to be found in Yast XXIV, 53–65; Ardâ Virâf XVII; Minokhired II, 123–194.

I.

1. Zarathustra asked Ahura Mazda: ‘O Ahura Mazda, most beneficent Spirit, Maker of the material world, thou Holy One!

‘When one of the faithful departs this life, where does his soul abide on that night?’

Ahura Mazda answered:

2. ‘It takes its seat near the head, singing the Ustavaiti Gâtha and proclaiming happiness: “Happy is he, happy the man, whoever he be, to whom Ahura Mazda gives the full accomplishment of his wishes!” On that night his soul tastes as much of pleasure as the whole of the living world can taste.’

1 See p. 319, note 1.
2 The name of the second Gâtha, which begins with the word uṣṭa: the words in the text, ‘Happy the man . . . .’, are its opening line (Yasna XLII, 1).
3 Literally, sees, perceives.
3. —‘On the second night where does his soul abide?’

4. Ahura Mazda answered: ‘It takes its seat near the head, singing the Ustavaiti Gātha and proclaiming happiness: “Happy is he, happy the man, whoever he be, to whom Ahura Mazda gives the full accomplishment of his wishes!” On that night his soul tastes as much of pleasure as the whole of the living world can taste.’

5. —‘On the third night where does his soul abide?’

6. Ahura Mazda answered: ‘It takes its seat near the head, singing the Ustavaiti Gātha and proclaiming happiness: “Happy is he, happy the man, whoever he be, to whom Ahura Mazda gives the full accomplishment of his wishes!” On that night his soul tastes as much of pleasure as the whole of the living world can taste.’

7. At the end of the third night, when the dawn appears, it seems to the soul of the faithful one as if it were brought amidst plants and scents: it seems as if a wind were blowing from the region of the south, from the regions of the south, a sweet-scented wind, sweeter-scented than any other wind in the world.

8. And it seems to the soul of the faithful one as if he were inhaling that wind with the nostrils, and he thinks: ‘Whence does that wind blow, the sweetest-scented wind I ever inhaled with my nostrils?’

9. And it seems to him as if his own conscience were advancing to him in that wind, in the shape of a maiden fair, bright, white-armed, strong, tall-

formed, high-standing, thick-breasted, beautiful of body, noble, of a glorious seed, of the size of a maid in her fifteenth year, as fair as the fairest things in the world.

10. And the soul of the faithful one addressed her, asking: ‘What maid art thou, who art the fairest maid I have ever seen?’

11. And she, being his own conscience, answers him: ‘O thou youth of good thoughts, good words, and good deeds, of good religion, I am thy own conscience!

‘Everybody did love thee for that greatness, goodness, fairness, sweet-scentedness, victorious strength and freedom from sorrow, in which thou dost appear to me;

12. ‘And so thou, O youth of good thoughts, good words, and good deeds, of good religion! didst love me for that greatness, goodness, fairness, sweet-scentedness, victorious strength, and freedom from sorrow, in which I appear to thee.

13. ‘When thou wouldst see a man making derision and deeds of idolatry, or rejecting (the poor) and shutting his door, then thou wouldst sit singing the Gâthas and worshipping the good waters and Âtar, the son of Ahura Mazda, and rejoicing the faithful that would come from near or from afar.

1 ‘That is to say, from the gods’ (Pahl. Comm.).

2 Of holy things.

3 Doubtful. The Pahlavi commentary has the following gloss: ‘He would not give his friends what they begged for.’

5 With alms to the poor Mazdayasnians (ashô-dâd).
14. ‘I was lovely and thou madest me still lovelier; I was fair and thou madest me still fairer; I was desirable and thou madest me still more desirable; I was sitting in a forward place and thou madest me sit in the foremost place, through this good thought, through this good speech, through this good deed of thine; and so henceforth men worship me for my having long sacrificed unto and conversed with Ahura Mazda.

15. ‘The first step that the soul of the faithful man made, placed him in the Good-Thought \(^1\) Paradise;

‘The second step that the soul of the faithful man made, placed him in the Good-Word \(^2\) Paradise;

‘The third step that the soul of the faithful man made, placed him in the Good-Deed \(^3\) Paradise;

‘The fourth step that the soul of the faithful man made, placed him in the Endless Lights \(^4\).’

16. Then one of the faithful, who had departed before him, asked him, saying: ‘How didst thou depart this life, thou holy man? How didst thou come, thou holy man! from the abodes full of cattle and full of the wishes and enjoyments of love? From the material world into the world of the spirit? From the decaying world into the undecaying one? How long did thy felicity last?’

25. At the end of the third night, O holy Zarathustra! when the dawn appears, it seems to the soul of the faithful one as if it were brought amidst snow and stench, and as if a wind were blowing from the region of the north, from the regions of the north, a foul-scented wind, the foulest-scented of all the winds in the world.

26–32. And it seems to the soul of the wicked man as if he were inhaling that wind with the nostrils, and he thinks: 'Whence does that wind blow, the foulest-scented wind that I ever inhaled with my nostrils?'

1 A development similar to that in §§ 9–14 is to be supplied here: in the Ardâ Virâf and the Minokhired the soul of the wicked is met by a horrid old woman, who is his own conscience: 'And in that wind he saw his own religion and deeds, as a profligate woman, naked, decayed, gaping, bandy-legged, lean-hipped, and unlimitedly spotted, so that spot was joined to spot, like the most hideous noxious creatures (khrañestar), most filthy and most stinking' (cf. § 9).

Then that wicked soul spoke thus: 'Who art thou? than whom I never saw any one of the creatures of Ahuramazd and Akharman uglier, or filthier or more stinking' (cf. § 10).

To him she spoke thus: 'I am thy bad actions, O youth of evil thoughts, of evil words, of evil deeds, of evil religion! It

34. Then one of the wicked who departed before him addressed him, saying: 'How didst thou perish, O wicked man? How didst thou come, O fiend! from the abodes full of cattle and full of the wishes and enjoyments of love? From the material world into the world of the Spirit? From the decaying is on account of thy will and actions that I am hideous and vile, iniquitous and diseased, rotten and foul-smelling, unfortunate and distressed, as appears to thee (cf. §§ 11–12).

'When thou sawest any one who performed the Yazishn and Drôn ceremonies, and praise and prayer and the service of God, and preserved and protected water and fire, cattle and trees, and other good creations, thou practisedst the will of Akharman and the demons, and improper actions. And when thou sawest one who provided hospitable reception, and gave something deservedly in gifts and charity, for the advantage of the good and worthy who came from far, and who were from near, thou wast avaricious, and shuttest up thy door (cf. § 13).'

'And though I have been unholy (that is, I have been considered bad), I am made more unholy through thee; and though I have been frightful, I am made more frightful through thee; though I have been tremulous, I am made more tremulous through thee; though I am settled in the northern region of the demons, I am settled further north through thee; through these evil thoughts, through these evil words, and through these evil deeds, which thou practisedst. supplied from the Pahlavi translation; the words in brackets refer to Zend texts lost to us:

'Then he flaps his wings and lifts up his voice, saying: "Arise, O men! [and also women, grown-up people, and children, &c. . . . . . . Put on well your girdle and shirt, wash your hands, put your girdle around your body, go and give food to the cattle and recite aloud the five holy Gāthas of Spitama Zarathustra."]

'Here the fiendish Bûshyāsta . . . ' (see the text). Then the Pahlavi translation has: 'Never care for the three excellent things, good thoughts, good words, good deeds' (cf. Vend. XVIII, 25).
XXIII-XXIV. ÂFRÎN PAÏGHAMBAR ZAR-TŬST AND VĪSTÂSP YAST.

‘God taught the Zendávasta to Zartusht—a sublime work . . . . God said to Zartusht, “Go and before Sháh Gushtásp read this book, that he may come into the faith . . . . keep all my counsel and repeat it word by word to Sháh Gushtásp 1.’

Zartusht, in obedience to God, went to the court of Gushtásp: ‘He came forward and called down a blessing on the Sháh 2.’ Then he read to him the Zandávasta and said: ‘Learn its statutes and walk therein. If your desire is towards its laws, your abode shall be in the paradise of heaven. But if you turn away from its commandments, you shall bring down your crowned head to the dust. Your God will be displeased with you, and will overthrow your prosperous condition. At the last you shall descend into hell, if you hear not the counsel of the Almighty 3.’

These lines of the Zartusht-Namah are a summary of the following two Yasts. The first, entitled ‘The blessing of the prophet Zartûst,’ contains the words of blessing addressed by Zarathustra when appearing before the king. These words seem to have followed a similar blessing pronounced by Gâmâspa 4, the prime minister of Vîstâspa 5.

Yast XXIV contains the exhortations of the prophet to the king to follow and closely adhere to the Law of Mazda. It is a counterpart to the XIXth Fargard of the Vendîdâd, as Zarathustra plays here the same part to Vîstâspa as Ahura does there to Zarathustra. It is, therefore, a summary of the Law, of the duties it enforces and of the rewards it promises. This accounts for the strange disconnection apparent in it, which makes it a crux interpretum, as, besides the very corrupt state of the text, the chief difficulty of this Yast arises from the fact that many passages in it are incomplete quotations from the Vendidad, or allusions to statements therein\(^1\), which, when supplied, help a good deal to relieve this Yast from its apparent state of utter incoherence.

For this translation I was able to avail myself of a Pahlavi translation, of which a copy was kindly lent to me by Mr. West. That translation is apparently of late date and often manifestly wrong; yet it was very useful to me in several passages, besides its giving a Zend text generally more correct and more correctly divided than the text in Westergaard’s edition\(^2\).

Yast XXIII was originally no independent Yast, being nothing more than the beginning of Yast XXIV, detached from it, with some slight alterations and inversions.

XXIII. AFRÎN PAIGHAMBAR ZARTÛST.

1. 'I am a pious man, who speaks words of blessing.'
   —'Thou appearest unto me full of Glory.'

   And Zarathustra spake unto king Vistâspa, saying: 'I bless thee, O man! O lord of the country! with the living of a good life, of an exalted life, of a long life. May thy men live long! May thy women live long! May sons be born unto thee of thy own body!

2. 'Mayest thou have a son like Gâmâspa, and may he bless thee as (Gâmâspa blessed) Vistâspa (the lord) of the country\(^3\)!'

‘Mayest thou be most beneficent, like Mazda!
‘Mayest thou be fiend-smiting, like Thraêtaona\(^1\)!
‘Mayest thou be strong, like Gâmåspa\(^2\)!
‘Mayest thou be well-armed, like Takhma-Urupa\(^3\)!

3. ‘Mayest thou be glorious, like Yima Khshaêta, the good shepherd!
‘Mayest thou be instructed with a thousand senses, like Azi Dahâka, of the evil law\(^4\)!
‘Mayest thou be awful and most strong, like Keresåspa\(^5\)!
‘Mayest thou be a wise chief of assemblies, like Urvâkhshaya\(^6\)!
‘Mayest thou be beautiful of body and without fault, like Syâvarshâna\(^7\)!

4. ‘Mayest thou be rich in cattle, like an Æthwyanide\(^8\)!
‘Mayest thou be rich in horses, like Pourus-aspa\(^9\)!
‘Mayest thou be holy, like Zarathustra Spitama!
‘Mayest thou be able to reach the Rangha, whose shores lie afar, as Vafra Navâza was\(^10\)!

48. 'He will receive bad treatment in the next world, though he has been the sovereign of a country, with good horses to ride and good chariots to drive. Give royalty to that man, O Zarathustra! who gives royalty unto thee with good will.

49. 'Thou shalt keep away the evil by this holy spell: “Of thee [O child!] I will cleanse the birth and growth; of thee [O woman!] I will make the body and the strength pure; I make thee a woman rich in children and rich in milk; a woman rich in seed, in milk, and in offspring. For thee I shall make springs run and flow towards the pastures that will give food to the child.”

50. 'Do not deliver me into the hands of the fiend; if the fiend take hold of me, then fever with loss of all joy will dry up the milk of the good Spanta-Ârmaiti. The fiend is powerful to distress, and to dry up the milk of the woman who indulges in lust and of all females.

54. Ahura Mazda answered: 'O my son, Frashostra! It takes its seat near the head, singing the Ustavaiti Gâtha and proclaiming happiness: “Happy is he, happy the man whoever he be!”

'On the first night, his soul sits in Good Words; on the second night, it sits in Good Deeds; on the third night, it goes along the ways (to Garô-nmâna).

55. 'At the end of the third night, O my son, Frashastra! when the dawn appears, it seems to the soul of the faithful one as if it were brought amidst plants [and scents: it seems as if a wind were blowing from the region of the south, from the regions of the south], a sweet-scented wind, sweeter-scented than any other wind in the world, and it seems to his soul as if he were inhaling that wind with the nose, and it asks, saying: "Whence does that wind blow, the sweetest-scented wind I ever inhaled with my nose?"

56. 'And it seems to him as if his own conscience were advancing to him in that wind, in the shape of a maiden fair, bright, white-armed, strong, tall-formed, high-standing, thick-breasted, beautiful of body, noble, of a glorious seed, of the size of a maid in her fifteenth year, as fair as the fairest things in the world.

57. 'And the soul of the faithful one addressed her, asking: "What maid art thou, who art the fairest maid I have ever seen?"

58. 'And she, being his own conscience, answers him: "O thou youth, of good thoughts, good words, and good deeds, of good religion! I am thy own conscience.

61. "The first step that the soul of the faithful man made, placed him in the Good-Thought Paradise; the second step that the soul of the faithful man made, placed him in the Good-Word Paradise; the third step that the soul of the faithful man made, placed him in the Good-Deed Paradise; the fourth step that the soul of the faithful man made, placed him in the Endless Light.

thou holy man! from the abodes full of cattle and full of the wishes and enjoyments of love? from the material world into the world of the spirit? from the decaying world into the undecaying one? How long did thy felicity last?"

63. And Ahura Mazda answered: 'Ask him not what thou askest him, who has just gone the dreary way, full of fear and distress, when the body and the soul part from one another.

64. '[Let him eat] of the food brought to him, of the oil of Zaremaya: this is the food for the youth of good thoughts, of good words, of good deeds, of good religion, after he has departed this life; this is the food for the holy woman, rich in good thoughts, good words, and good deeds, well-principled, and obedient to her husband, after she has departed this life.'

1 This clause, taken from Yt. XXII, 20, shows that the second part of Yt. XXII (§§ 19–36), describing the fate of the wicked, should be inserted here.
NYÂYI S.
NYÂYIS.

A Nyâyis is properly a begging prayer, as opposed to Sitâyis, a prayer of praise. It is a term particularly applied to five prayers addressed to the Sun, to Mithra, to the Moon, to Waters, and to Fire. Every layman over eight years old is bound to recite the Nyâyis: he recites it standing and girded with his Kôsitê.

The Sun Nyâyis is recited three times a day, at the rising of the sun (Gâh Hâvan), at noon (Gâh Rapitvin), and at three o'clock in the afternoon (Gâh Uziren). The Mithra Nyâyis is recited with the Sun Nyâyis, as Mithra follows the sun in its course (see Yt. X, 13).

The Moon Nyâyis is recited three times a month: first, at the time when it begins to be seen; second, when it is at the full; third, when it is on the wane.

The Waters Nyâyis and the Fire Nyâyis are recited every day, when one finds oneself in the proximity of those elements. The Fire Nyâyis is recited with the Penom on (see Vend. p. 168, 7).

The first four Nyâyis must be recited especially on the days over which the Izads invoked preside; that is to say, on the Khôrshêd, Mihir, Mâh, and Âbân days (the eleventh, sixteenth, twelfth, and tenth days of the month).

I. KHÔRSHÊD NYÂYIS.

1. [Hail unto the Sun, the swift-horsed! May Ahura Mazda be rejoiced!]

Hail unto thee, O Ahura Mazda, in the threefold way ¹! [Hail unto thee] before all other creatures!

Hail unto you, O Amesha-Spêzxtas, who are all of you of one accord with the Sun!

May this prayer come unto Ahura Mazda! May it come unto the Amesha-Spêzxtas! May it come unto the Fravashis of the holy Ones! May it come unto the Sovereign Vayu of the long Period²!

2. [Hail unto the Sun, the swift-horsed!]

May Ahura Mazda be rejoiced! May Angra Mainyu be destroyed! by those who do truly what is the foremost wish (of God).

I recite the ‘Praise of Holiness³.’

3. I praise well-thought, well-spoken, and well-done thoughts, words, and deeds. I embrace all good thoughts, good words, and good deeds; I reject all evil thoughts, evil words, and evil deeds ⁴.

4. I give sacrifice and prayer unto you, O Amesha-Spêzxtas! even with the fulness of my thoughts, of my words, of my deeds, and of my heart: I give unto you even my own life.

I recite the ‘Praise of Holiness ³:’
