word of mouth more than twenty Books to disciples.' From another passage we gather that he estimated Fuh-săng's Books, with which he was well acquainted, at 28; but he says nothing of the visit to Fuh of Ch'aou Ts'ö. Wei Hwang, of the first century of our era, says that when Ch'aou Ts'ö went to him, Fuh-săng, being over 90, was unable to speak plainly, and made use of a (? grand-) daughter to repeat what he said; and that her dialect being different from Ts'ō's, he lost 2 or 3 in every ten of her words, supplying them as he best could according to his conception of the meaning. This last account, as being more marvellous, has become the accepted history of the manner in which so many Books of the Shoo were recovered through Fuh-săng. Even Regis follows it, as if he had not been aware of the more trustworthy narrative of Sze-ma Ts'een.

3. The statement of Sze-ma Ts'een, that Fuh-sang found again the tablets containing 29 'p'een,'-Books, or parts of Books,-of the Shoo, is repeated by Lew Hin in his list of the Books in the imperial library under his charge, of which I have given some account in the proleg. to vol. I. pp. 3-5. It is there expressly said, moreover, that there were, in the classical department of the library, '29 portions of the text of the Shang Shoo." Those Books were:-The 29 Books of Fub-sang. 'The Canon of Yaou;' 'The Counsels of Kaou-yaou;' 'The Tribute of Yu;' 'The Speech at Kan;' 'The Speech of Tang; 'The Pwan-kang; 'The Day of the Supplementary Sacrifice of Kaou-tsung; 'The Conquest of Le by the Chief of the West; 'The Viscount of Wei; 'The Great Speech; 'The Speech at Muh; 'The Great Plan;' 'The Metal-bound Coffer;' 'The Great Announcement; 'The Announcement to K'ang; 'The Announcement about Drunkenness; 'The Timber of the Tsze-tree;' 'The Announcement of Shaou; 'The Announcement about Lo;' The Numerous Officers; ' Against Luxurious Ease;' ' Prince Shih;' 'The Namerous Regions; 'On the Establishment of Government;' 'The Testamentary Charge; 'Len on Punishments;' 'The Charge to Prince Wan; 'The Speech at Pe; and 'The Speech of the Duke of Tsin.

It was discovered subsequently, that 'The Canon of Shun' was incorporated by Fuh-sang with that of Yaou; the 'Yih and Tseih' with 'The Counsels of Kaou-yaou;' 'The Charge of king K'ang' mentioned. The former tells us that from his youth he had doubted 'all the talk about modern text and ancient text,' and that, afterwards, having met with some dissertations of Woo Ching, he was delighted with the agreement of their views, and tried to obtain the Work of Woo mentioned above. Disappointed in this, he published Fuh-sang's Books with his own commentary, and prefixed the dissertations of Woo.4 The latter published Discussions on and Explanations of the Shang Shoo,'5 in ten keuen. He does not appear to have seen Woo Ching's Writings; but he goes beyond him in his animosity to the ancient text and commentary. In eight of his keuen, he explains Fuh-sang's Books; the remaining two are devoted to an exposure (as he thinks) of the falsehood of the ancient text. So strongly had the views of these and other critics taken possession of the scholars of Ming, that in A.D. 1,643 a memorial was presented to the emperor Chwang-lee, praying that the Books peculiar to the ancient text might be cast out, and the subjects at the competitive examinations be taken only from Fuh-sang's. The dynasty was in its death-throes. The poor emperor had his hands and head more than full with the invading Manchoos; and while the empire passed from his sway, the ancient text was allowed to keep its place.

Under the present dynasty, the current of opinion seems to run, as in the Ming, against the Books, Commentary, and Preface ascribed to Gan-kwo. The works of Wang Ming-shing and Keang Shing, of which I have made much use in my notes, speak in almost every page, in the most unmeasured terms, of 'the false K'ung.' The ancient text, however, is not without its defenders. So far as the government is concerned, things remain as they have been since the Tang dynasty. The editors of Yung-ching's Shoo do not take up the argument. They give prominence, indeed, in their Introduction, to the opinions of Choo He and his followers, but pass no judgment of their own; and they use equal care in unfolding the meaning of the suspected portions, and of these which all acknowledge.

4. I shall conclude this chapter on the history of the Shoo with an exposition of the grounds on which I cherish for myself a confidence in the authenticity of the ancient text and Gan-kwo's commentary on it, and some discussion of the principal arguments advanced on the other side. Minor arguments, based on the language

* 莊烈愍 *尚書辨解 * The title of his Work is 尚書叙錄 皇帝, A.D. 1828-1848. T See Macu's Wrongs of the Shoo, Co. L p. L

May the Shoo complete be yet the time of the Ts'in dynasty, might possibly found in Japan? the time of the Ts'in dynasty, might possibly be found in Japan. I am pleased to discover that the same idea has been entertained at different times by Chinese scholars. Very decided expression was given to it in the 11th century by Gow-yang Sew, from whom we have a song upon a Knife of Japan, which concludes with:—

When Sen Fuh went across the sea, The books had not been burned; And there the hundred p'een remain, As in the waste inurned.

Strict laws forbid the sending them Back to our Middle Land; And thus it is that no one here The old text has in hand.'2

The critics for the most part treat the idea with contempt; and yet in the year 1697, the 36th of K'ang-he, a petition was presented, requesting the emperor to appoint a commission to search for the Shang Shoo, beyond the seas.<sup>3</sup> Japan is now partially opened. By and by, when its language is well known, and access is had to all its literary stores, this matter will be settled.

1 歐陽修。atyled 永权. He died a.p. 1078. 2 All of the song which I have seen rune: 傳聞其國居大海 土壤沃饒風俗好. 前朝貢獻 [東往來 土人往往工詞藻 徐福行時書未类 逸書百篇今尚存 令嚴不許傳中國 舉世無人識古文 See the 經義考書二. p. 8. See Wrongs of the Shoo, Ch. L, pp. 8, 4.

獨甲 塑 種 誤 未 獎 泉 黃 之 對 孙 帮*答* 偷老 母素 身 多 P 電器作用業農業開業器運用 拜养随作员 飛 產 光 光 刑 異 辯養醫事養奉和者於洗粉輔 脫奔景道藝術豪華將而襲作 獎 带 無 帮 爾 爾 獨 明 獨 物 會事 麥克賴斯 奠世 雅洲 衣本 豊 事 與 " 育 明 斯 * 职<sup>制食東</sup>門『愛<sup>典</sup>榮典 吳金蘇等 発布限內衛至 省衛標峰 面 表 元 本 高 鸟 獨為特件對作說為房具 allowing the 28 or 30 years of their associate rule to drop altogether out of his chronology. Kwang's standard tables place Yaou's first year in s.c. 2,357, (or 2,356); the Bamboo Books place it in 2,145. There is thus a difference of rather more than 200 years between them. As we found them both wrong in regard to the reign of Chung-k'ang, we must hence conclude that they are wrong also in regard to the period which we are now examining.

It has been generally supposed that Yaou's directions to the astronomers He and Ho, in the first Book of the Shoo, furnished data sufficiently certain to enable us to determine his era. The Shoo does not tell us indeed, in what year of his reign Yaou delivered those instructions, but the chronologers have all assumed that it was in his first year. The remarks of Mr. Chalmers on the point, in the appendix to this chapter, show that the value of Yaou's observations for chronological determinations has been overrated. The emperor tells his officers, that, among other indications which would enable them to fix the exact period of the cardinal points of the year, the vernal equinox might be ascertained by observing the star neaou; the summer solstice by observing the star ho; the autumnal equinox by observing the star heu; and the winter solstice by observing the star maou. It was assumed by the scholars of the Han dynasty that by neaou was to be understood the constellation or equatorial space then called sing,8 beginning at a Hydra, and including a space of 20; and that by he was to be understood fang,4 corresponding to Scorpio, and including 40. It was assumed also, that, as the result of the observation (of the manner of which the Shoo says nothing), sing would be found to pass the meridian at six o'clock in the evening, at the vernal equinox; and that the other stars mentioned would pass it at the same hour at the seasons to which they were referred.

I do not think there is any reason to call these assumptions in question. The scholars of Han, ignorant of the fact of the procession of the equinoxes, could not have arbitrarily fixed the particular stars to suit their chronological views;—their determination of them must have been in accordance with the voice of accredited tradition. Supposing that the stars were all what it is now believed they were, to what conclusions are we led by them as to the era of Yaou?

Bunsen tells us that Ideler, computing the places of the constellations backwards, fixed the accession of Yaou at B.C. 2,163,5 which is only 18 years before the date in the Bamboo Books. On the other hand, J. B. Biot finds in the statements of the Shoo a sufficient confirmation of the date in the received chronology, B.C. 2,357.6 Freret was of opinion that the observations left an uncertainty to the extent of 3 degrees, leaving a margin of 210 years.7 It seems to myself that it is better not to insist on pressing what Yaon says about the stars of the equinoxes and solstices into the service of chronology at all. Gaubil, Biot, and the other writers on the subject, all quote Yaou's observations so far as they had astronomical reference; but they take no notice of other and merely popular indications, which he delivered to his officers to help them to ascertain the seasons. They would know the spring, he tells them, by the pairing of hirds and beasts, and by the people's beginning to disperse into the country on their agricultural labours. Analogous indications are mentioned for summer and autumn; till in the winter time the people would be found in their cosy corners, and birds and beasts with their coats downy and thick. Taken as a whole, Yaou's instructions to He and Ho are those of a chief speaking popularly, and not after the manner of a philosopher or astronomer. We must not look for exactness in his remarks about the cardinal stars. The mention of them in the earliest portion of the Shoo proves that its compiler, himself, as I showed in the last chapter, of a later date, had traditions or written monuments of a high antiquity at his command; but Yaon was as likely to be speaking of what he had received from his predecessors as of what he had observed for himself; and those predecessors may not have lived in China, but in another region from which the Chinese came. If it were possible to fix the exact century, in which it was first observed that the stars of the equinotes and solstices were neaon and hen, ho and maon, that century may have been anterior to Yaou, and not the one in which he lived.

<sup>2</sup> See the 前漢書 律歷下 . P. 15. 2 星 · 另 . 5 Place of Egypt, &c., III., p. 600.

7. From the review which I have thus taken of the different periods of Chinese history, documents purporting to belong to which are preserved in the Shoo, it will be seen that the year B.C. 775 is the earliest date which can be said to be determined with certainty. The exact year in which the Chow dynasty commenced is not known; and as we ascend the stream of time, the two schemes current among the Chinese themselves diverge more widely from each other, while to neither of them can we accord our credence. The accession of Yu, the first soversign of the nation, was probably at some time in or too long; but here it was not found to deviate in either direction, and its length on midsummer-day was to the length of the gnomun as 15 to 80. The distance assigned to the sun is in fact the earth's radius, and was a natural inference from the plane figure of the earth, taken in connection with the different elevation of the sun in different latitudes. From the same premisses it was also inferred that the shadow would be all away at noon in places for east or for west of Lob; -those on the east being too near the morning sun, and those on the west too near the evening sun. The following legend I may be quoted as illustrative of the supposed nearness of the sun to the earth. "There is a country in the far west, in the place of the setting sun, where every evening the sun goes down with a noise like thunder, and the king of the country leads out a thousand men on the city wall to blow horns and best gongs and drams, as the only means of keeping little children from being frightened to death by the unearthly roaring of the monster." The writers of the early Han dynasty hesitate not to affirm that the experiment to prove the deviation of the shadow at noon was made with all the necessary apparatus,-elepsydras, gramons, &c., and found successful. But the clepsydra is not mentioned in any authentic writing of curlier date than the Han; and we may safely conclude that this, as well as some other instruments mentioned by interpreters of the classics, and in the Chow-le, was unknown to the ancient Chinese. The clapsydra is described by Aristotle (s.c. 384 -322).

Etudes sur l'Astronomie Indienne et Chinoise, pp. 381-264. T Bansen, as above ; p. 401.

The Chinese have made attempts at various times to calculate the distance of the sidereal heavens. In the History of Tain 5 the result of a calculation is given with amusing minuteness. It is said — "By the method of right-angled triangles the distance between heaven and earth was found to be 81,304 le, 30 paces, 5 feet, 3 inches, and 6 tenths!" Another calculator 6 gives 216,781 le. The diameter of the sun is given by one writer as 1000 le; 7 and he is said to be 7000 le below the heavens (the firmament).

2. "The first colendars of the Greeks were founded on rude observations of the rising and setting of certain stars, as Orion, the Pleiades, Arcturus &c."1 The same may be said of the calendars of the Chinese. Even after Meton and Callippus the Chinese calendar must have been founded on very "rude" The Scanoon. observations indeed. During the two centuries and a half embraced by Confucius' History of the later Chow dynasty, the commencement of the year fell back a whole month. This is demonstrable from the dates of the 36 eclipses, of which a list will be found subjoined, and from a variety of references to months, and days of the cycle of 60, which occur throughout the History. It is probable that an error of another month was committed before the fall of the dynasty in the 3d century n.c. The rapid derangement of the months, and consequently of the seasons during this period, however, most probably arose from the adoption of some erroneous system of interculation, invented to supersede the troublesame observations of the stars from month to month. And the consequence was, that the knowledge of the stars came to be cultivated only for purposes of astrology, -a science in which accuracy is no object. Hence even at the present day, the signs of the zodiac, or the 28 mansions of the moon, are most frequently represented not as they appear now, but as they appeared to Yaon and Shun.2 The earliest account, which has any claim to authenticity, of the stars employed to mark the cardinal signs of the zediac, is in the Canon of Yaon. According to

·異戚志. 5晉志. 6張揖. 7徐整長歷 1 See Smith's Dictionary of Antiquities, Article Calcindar. 2 Show, Pt. 1 Bk. 1

ECLIPSES RECORDED BY THE ANCIENT CRINESS. - Continued.

Intercaiary

Note. On his way to the south, when crossing the Keang, in the middle of the stream, two yellow dragons took the boat on their backs. The people were all afraid; but Yu langued and said, 'I received my appointment from Heaven, and labour with all my strength to neurish men. To be born is the course of nature; to die is by Heaven's decree. Why be troubled by the dragons?' On this the dragons went away, dragging their talls.

4 In his 8th year, he assembled the princes at Hway-k'e,2 when he put the chief of Faug-fung to death. In the summer, in the 6th month, it rained gold in the capital city of Hea. In the autumn, in the 8th month, he died at Hway-k'e.

Note. Yu reigned (as associate, or as sovereign) 45 years. He presented Yih to Heaven, and died seven years after. When the three years of courning were ended, the couple tarned to K'e (his son).

II. THE EMPEROR K'E.

In his 1st year, which was knei-hae 1 (00th of cycle, = n.c. 1,078), when he came to the throne in the capital city of Hea, he made a great feast to the princes in the tower of Kenn, after which they followed him back to the capital in K'e, when he made a second great feast to them in the tower of Senen. In his 2d year, Pihyih, the prince of Pe, left the court, and went to his State. The king led his forces to punish the prince of Hoo, when there was a great battle in Kun.* In his 6th year, Pih-yih died, and the emperor appointed a sacrifice to him 5. In his 8th year, he sent Mang T'oo to Pa, to preside over litigations. In his 10th year, he made a tour of inspection, and seleberated a complete service of Shun's music in the wilderness of Teen-muh. In his 11th year, he banished his youngest son, Woo-kwan, beyond the western Ho. In his 15th year, Woo-kwan with the people about the western Ho rebelled. The baron Show of P'ang led a force to punish them, when Woo-kwan returned to his allegiance. In his 14th year, the king died.

n, 1 From 王子, the lat year of Tu, to this 癸亥, both inclusive, are twelve years; Ya must have died in 已来, leaving 3 complete years, before Ko's accession. This is the rale in these Annats all through the Hea dyn. The years of mourning are left between the decreased superur and his successor; but this interreguent varies from 2 to 4 years.

2 This is the city in par. 4 of the last reign.

2 This is the city in par. 4 of the last reign. Yu had moved his capital, or made a second one. A dis. of Kwei-tilt dep. is still so called. Near or in this was the tower of Reun. 語 伝 作 may be construed by likelf:—'the princes agreed to follow him;' as if the feast had been a political gathering to accure the throne to Kw. 4 See 'The Speech at Kan.' 5 This account does not agree with the account of the death of Yih, which is often attributed to the Annais, and which was no doubt in some of the Bamboo Books; viz. that 'Til was aiming at the thrune, and Kw put him to death' (公子 政立 政立 及之).

His 1st year was hang-shin (17th of cycle, = n.c. 1,600), when he came to the throne. He restored the representative of the House of Ch'e-wel to his State.

Note. In the decay of the Hea, chiefs of Keun-woo and Ch'e-wei succeeded one another as Head of the princes.

In his 3d year he died.

XVI. THE EMPEROR FAH.

Nets. Also called the emperor King ; and Fa-hwuy.

In his 1st year, which was yek-yew (22d of cycle, = n.c. 1,505), when he came to the throne, various wild tribes came and made their submission at the king's gate. He again repaired the walls. There was a meeting on the upper pool, when the wild people came in, and performed their dances. In his 7th year, he died. Mount T'se shook.

XVII. THE EMPEROR KWRI.

Note. Called also Kel.

In his 1st year, which was jin-shin (20th of cycle,—B.C. 1,588), when he came to the throne, he dwelt in Chin-sin.

In his 3d year, he built the King palace, and pulled down the Yung tower. The Kienen hordes penetrated as far as Kie, with the standard of revolt. In his 6th year, the hordes of Kie-chungi came to make their submission.

In his 10th year, the five planets went out of their courses. In the night, stars fell like rain. The earth shook. The B and Loh became dry.

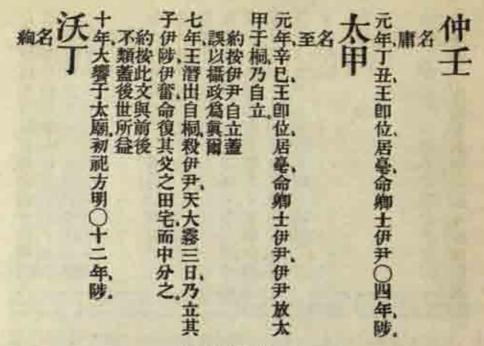

In his 11th year, he assembled the princes in Jing, when the chief of Yew-min fied home, on which the emperor extinguished Yew-min. In his 13th year, he removed to the south of the Ho. He made for the first time men-drawn carriages. In his 14th year, Peen led the imperial forces, and smote Min-san.

** 1 \(\frac{1}{4}\) should probably be \(\frac{1}{4}\). The gate of gens, —one of the gates of the palace, so called.

rez much debuted. See Hang Ch'in-fung, dep. Ho-man. 2 For conjectures on the Jing. 6. Some city is intenmeaning of the names here, see Hang, is for mentators are not agreed which.

3 Hang thinks this par belongs to the reign of king Main or king E of Chow. 4 The country of K'e-chang (ho = 22) or the people who walked on their toes, without the need touching the ground, is placed beyond the Moving sands. 5 See on the time of Shaoukang. The Min family occupied the State of Jing. 6. Some city is intended; but rommentators are not agreed which. 7 These

III. CHUNG-JIN.

Note, Named Yung.

In his 1st year, which was ting-ck'ow (14th of cycle, = n.c. 1,543), when he came 2 to the throne, he dwelt in Poh, and confirmed the appointment of E Yin. In his 4th year, he died.

IV. TAE-KEAR.

Note. Named Che.

In his 1st year, which was sin-see (18th of cycle, = n.c. 1,539), when he came to the throne, he dwelt in Poh, and confirmed the appointment of E Yin. E Yin sent T'se-kësh away, and confined him in T'ung, seizing the throne himself.<sup>1</sup>

Note by Ye. It is a mintake to say this. The truth is that he only acted as regent.

2 In his 7th year, the king privately escaped from T'ung, and put E Yin to death. The sky was overspread with mists for three days, when he raised to office Yin's sons, E Chih and E Fun, ordered their father's fields and houses to be restored, and equally divided between them.

Note by Y3. This par, does not second with the text before and after it. It is probably, the addition of an after time.

3 In his 10th year, he celebrated a great service to all his ancestors in the Grand ancestral temple. For the first time he sacrificed to the Intelligences of the four 4 quarters.<sup>2</sup> In his 12th year, he died.

v. YUH-TING.

Note. Named Reum.

rv. I This and the next notice are se difft. from the current and classical accounts of E Yin and Tes-kes, that the friends of these Annals are in great perplexity about them. Hing Chrin-fung would refer them to the 'Fragmentary Words' of the Bamboo Books. See Wan-taing contents himself with saying.

after the original commentator, that they are the additions of a later hand.

2 方明-四方之神明 This is the estiest interpretation. Some suppose the 六宗 of Can. of Shun, p. 5, to be meant

戌 ₩. 即 即 位 。位、 居置邳人

I Hoo, as his principal ministers.

In his 7th year, a mulberry tree and a stalk

2 of grain grow up together in the court.

In his 11th year, he commanded Woo

3 Heen to pray to the hills and rivers. In his 26th year, the hordes of the West came to make their submission. He sent Wang Mang, as his envoy, with presents

4 to those hordes. In his 31st year, he appointed Chung-yen, prince of Pe, to be

6 meater of his carriages. In his 35th your, he made win carriages, 2

46th year, there was a very abundant harvest. In his 58th year, he walled

In his 61st year, the nine hordes of the East came to make their 8 Pioo-koo.8

In his 75th year, he died. 9 aubmission.

Note. After Tran-mow mer with the warning mulberry tree, he inclined himself to the cultivation of his conduct; and after 3 years, there were 76 States from distant regions, which sent measurement, with interpreters, to his court, in admiration of his wise virtue. The fortunes of Shang again revived. His sacrificial title was Transfamp.

E CHUNG-TING.

Note Named Chwarg.

In his 1st year, which was sin-ch'on (38th of cycle, = a.c. 1,800), when he came 2 to the throne, he removed from Poli to Gaou I on the Ho. In his 6th year, he

3 went on an expedition against the horder of Lan.2 In his 9th year, he died.

KI. WAE-JIN.

Note Named Fall

- In his 1st year, which was kang-senh (47th of cycle, = n.c. 1,399), when he came to the throne, he dwelt in Gaou. The people of P'ei 1 and of Seen 2 revolted. In his 10th year, he died.
  - 2 Hang Chin-fung says these curringes were of roots of the mulberry tree; perhaps, referring to their colour.

5 Probably in the pres. dis. of Po-bing, day, Twing-chow, Shan-tung.

x. 1 Geor was on a mount Goon (敖山), in the press dis. of Ho-yin, dep. K-as-fung. Up to this time, the capital had been the western P6. 2 Portages in the dis. of Yang-kreub, dep. Pac-yeer, Shen-se.

XL 1 Pri-the press sub, dep. of Pri Chow, dep. of Seu-chow, Keng-seo.

2 The dis. of Ch'in-ley, dep. K'as-fang.

Ŧ Ŧ 部

Note. This king had lived, when young, away from the court, so that, when he came to the throne, he know the necessities of the inferior people, protected them with kindness, and allowed so contamely to the wifeless and widows. Towards the end of his reign, however, by multiplying punishments, he alienated the people of distant regions; and the fortunes of Yin again decayed.

xxv. Funo-six.

Note. Styled Lin-sin in the Historical Records. His name was Seen.

In his 1st year, which was kang-yin (27th of cycle,= a.c. 1,170), when he came 2 to the throne, he dwelt in Yin. In his 4th year, he died.

XXVI. KANG-TING.

Note. Named Gnon.

In his 1st year, which was keah-woo (31st of cycle, = B.c. 1,166), when he came to 2 the throne, he dwelt in Yin. In his 8th year, he died,

XXVII. WOO-YIH.

Note Named Kwu.

In his 1st year, which was jin-yis (30th of cycle, -B.c. 1,158), he dwelt in Yin. 2 The prince of Pin removed to Chow near mount K'e. In his 3d year, the king removed from Yin to the north of the Ho.3 He confirmed the dignity of Tan-foo as 3 daks of Chow, and conferred on him the city of K'e. In his 10th year, he removed from the place he then occupied on the north of the Ho to Mei.8 his 21st year, Tan-foo, duke of Chow, died. In his 24th year, the forces of Chow 6 smote Ching. A battle was fought at Peih, which was subdued. In his 30th year, the forces of Chow attacked E-k'eu, and returned with its ruler as a captive. In his 34th year, Ke-leih, duke of Chow, came and did homege at court, when the king conferred on him 30 to of ground, ten pairs of gems, and ten horses.

XIVII. 1 The prince of Pin, who made this remoral, was Tun-fox, or king Tue, celebrated in the She, and by Mencius. Ru-san is still the with any particular site. 3 See or the 'Annuams of a dis in Fung-ta' sing dep., Shen-se.

Ly this move the House of Chow brought its 1 Ch'ing and Pells were in the dis of Heenprincipal sent nearly 100 miles farther sest, aing, dep. Se-gua-

2 I agree with Ch'in-fung that it is better with any particular site. 3 See on the 'An-nouncement about Drunkenness,' par, i. 4 Ching and Palls were in the die of Heen-

5 In the pres. dep. of

西王母來朝賓于昭宮秋八月遷戎于太原 其五王以東西征于青鳥所解三 東五王以東西征于青鳥所解三 電機天下億 電機天下億 一年祭文公薨〇二十四年王命左史戎中 中年祭文公薨〇二十四年王命左史戎中 一年祭文公薨〇二十四年王命左史戎東 一年祭文公薨〇二十四年王命左史戎東 一年祭文公薨〇二十四年王命左史戎東 一年祭文公薨〇二十四年王命左史戎東 一年祭文公薨〇二十四年王命左史戎東 一年祭文公薨〇二十四年王命左史戎東 一年祭文公薨〇二十四年王命左史戎東 一年帝五月王即位〇四年王師滅密 一年中寅春正月王即位〇四年王師滅密 一年年春正月丁亥王使內史良錫毛伯遷 十八十五年王時子祇宮

of Wang-moo came to court, and was lodged in the palace of Ch'aou. In the autumn, in the 8th month, certain hordes were removed to T'ac-yuen.

Note: The king, is his expeditions to the north, travelled over the country of the Moving Sands, for 1,000 &, and that of 'Braps of Feathers,' for 1,000 &. Then he subdued the hordes of the K'enen, and returned to the east, with their five kings as captives. Westwards, he pushed his expeditions to where the green birds cast their feathers (the hill of San-wei). On these expeditions he travelled over 180,000 &.

- 12 In his 18th year, in the spring, in the 1st month, he dwelt in the pulace of Che.
  13 where the princes came and did homage. In his 21st year, duke Wan of Tse
- 14 died. In his 24th year, he ordered Jung-foo; the recorder of the Left, to make a
- 15 Record, 13 In his 35th year, the people of King entered Seu, when Ts'een, baron
- 16 of Maon, led his forces, and defeated them near the Tse.14 In his 37th year, the king mised a great force of nine hosts, and proceeded eastward to Kew-keang, where he crossed the water on a bridge of tortoises and ignanadous piled up.15 After this, he smote the people of Yue as far as Yu. The people of King came with tribute.
- 18 In his 30th year, he assembled the princes at mount Too. In his 45th year,
- 10 Pe, prince of Loo, died. In his 51st year, he made the code of Leu on Punish-
- 23 ments, and gave a Charge to the prince of Poo in Fung.16 In his 59th year, he died in the palace of Che.

VI. KING KUNG.

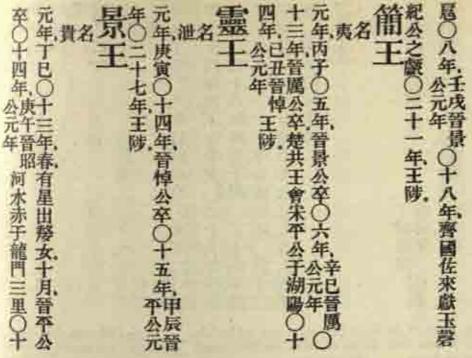

Note. Named E.

His 1st year was keak-yin (61st of cycle, = n.c. 906), when he came to the 3 throne. In his 4th year, the royal forces extinguished Meih. In his 9th year, in the spring, in the 1st menth, on the day ting-bac (24th of cycle), the king made Leang, the recorder of the Interior, convey a Charge to Ta'een, baron of Maon.
In his 12th year, the king died.

thing, dep. Ping-yang. 12 It is understood that this Hooord was a history of the rise and fall of dynasties and States, down to the commencement of the Chow dyn. King Muh had come to himself, and was mahamed of his wars, 13 It is understood wanderlogs, and extravagance. 14 11 12 15 thong to the conyor. Hing Mah had ahamed of his wars.

16. See the 27th of the Books of Chow.

of Tsin died in Hoo. 1 His 8th year was fin-send, the lat year of duke King of Tsin.
In his 18th year, the Aid of the State of Ts'e came to present some musical stones of gem, and the boiler which Ts's had taken from the duke of Ke. 2 In his 21st year, the king died.

EXII. KING KEEN.

Note. Named E.

- 2 His let year was ping-taze (13th of cycle, = B.C. 584). In his 5th year, the 3 duke King of Tein died. His 6th year was six-are, the let year of duke Le of Tein.
- In his 13th year, the duke Le of Tein died. The king Kung of Te'co had a meeting with the duke Ping of Sung in Hoo-yang. In his 14th year, teel'se, the lat year of duke Taou of Tain, the king died.

EXIII. KING LING.

Note. Named Sec.

- 2 His 1st year was kang-yin (27th of cycle, = n.c. 570). In his 14th year, the
- 3 duke Taou of Tsin died. His 15th year was kes-able, the lat year of the duke Plag of Tain. In his 27th year, he died.

XXIV. KING KING.

Note. Named Kwei.

- His 1st year was ting-sze (54th of cycle, = B.c. 543). In his 13th year, in the spring, a star issued from the constellation Woo-neu. 1 In the 10th month, duke Ping
- 3 of Tain died. In his 14th year, -targ-see, the 1st year of duke Ch'aou of Tain, -the Ta'sw and Tso Chum, under the 2d year of duke Ching.

Extr. 1 Probably in dep. of Keih-gan, Keang-so.

the present reign. Nothing is said of a far-extending, devastating deluge; nothing of Yu's operations on the mountains, or on the general face of the country, or on any river south of the Ho. Had it been in the accepted history of China, when these Annals were compiled, that Yu performed the more than Herculean tasks which the Shoo ascribes to him, it is unaccountable that they should not have mentioned them.

[ii.] The Shoo presents us with a picture of the government of Shun, which makes it appear to have been wonderfully complete. Not only has he Yu as his prime minister, and Kaou-yaou as minister of Crime; but he has his ministers of Instruction, Agriculture, Works, and Religion; his commissioner of Woods and Forests; his director of Music; his minister of Communication. According to the plan of the Annals, the appointment of all those ministers should have been mentioned; but the only names which they contain are those of Yu and Kaou-yaou. It is clear, that of the two-and-twenty great ministers by whom the Shun of the Shoo is surrounded, the greater number were the invention of speculators and dreamers of a later day, who, regardless of the laws of human progress, wished to place at the earliest period of their history a golden age and a magnificent empire, that should be the cynosure of men's eyes in all time.

If the space which I have given in these prolegomens to the Bamboo Annals appear excessive, the use to which I have turned them, to support the conclusions which I had been led on other grounds to form, must be my excuse. Even if it could be substantiated (which it cannot be), that the Annals were fabricated in the Tsin dynasty, the fact would remain, that their fabricator had taken a more reasonable view of the history of his country than any other of its writers has done, and indicated views, which, I venture to think, will be generally adopted by inquirers in the West. Those who come after me will probably assail the hitherto unchallenged accounts of ancient times with a bolder hand and on a more extensive scale than I have done in the present essay.

礼具發來	100	外面	1	田山	-	以民民		134	× 1		#		いる。	田子	#	一世	南 庚
	Krau.	2 Wassing A		1	100	1	Seaou-kell	Tung-ke.	1000		The same of	Ho-t'an-kell			A Kurking	Thoo-ting	6 Nan-king
乙巳 20,1,811 戊辰 1,1000 乙酉 1,1,888 壬辰 1,1,888	DYNASTY OF SHANG,	· 100 100 100 100 100 100 100 100 100 10	* :	2 (m1)	#1	*	m]	* 		* #	" 密	=	E E	4		*	顺
五章 	H, on Kires.	2末 a.c.1,765   3		1,758	H . 1,710	1,080	次 " 1,685	辰 1,048	原 . 1,686	来 "1001	819" " #	Bart * X	# 1,554	205,1 11205	88/1 * 半	1997 " III
Kung-kël	DYSASTY OF SHANG, WITH TITLE OF	Tang 18		Packin			S(409-k/6)	Ynnecke 12	Then-market	ne-ting	dis	Hartun-kill 9	Tene-vill. 19	Transmitted 110	63	of line	Nan-king 25
和集發來		柳		# +	- - - - - - - - - - - - - -	一一十	無	- II	] 42	≾}- <₽	+	に動田	7 11	はは	田田田田田田田田田田田田田田田田田田田田田田田田田田田田田田田田田田田田田田田	+  -	単独を upon the people. The title given in the Shoo to Shun's minister of Religion is that of 'Arranger of the Ancestral temple.' The rule of Confucius, that 'parents, when dead, should be sacrificed to according to propriety,' was, doubtless, in accordance with a practice which had come down from the earliest times of the nation.

The spirits of the departed were supposed to have a knowledge of the circumstances of their descendants, and to be able to affect them. Events of importance in a family were communicated to them before their shrines; many affairs of government were transacted in the ancestral temple. When Yaou demitted to Shun the business of the government, the ceremony took place in the temple of 'the accomplished ancestor,' b the individual to whom Yaou traced his possession of the supreme dignity; and while Yaou lived, Shun, on every return to the capital from his administrative progresses, offered a bullock before the shrine of the same personage.10 In the same way, when Shun found the toils of government too heavy for him, and called Yu to share them, the ceremony took place in the temple of 'the spiritual ancestor,' the chief in the line of Shun's progenitors. In the remarkable narrative, which we have in the 6th of the Books of Chow, of the duke of Chow's praying for the recovery of his brother, king Woo, from a dangerous illness, and offering to die in his stead, he raises three altars,-to their father, grandfather, and great-grandfather; and prays to them, as having in heaven the charge of watching over their great descendant. When he has ascertained by divination that the king would recover, he declares that he had got Woo's tenure of the throne renewed by the three kings, who had thus consulted for a long futurity of their House.

Ancestors supposed to know the affairs of their descendants, and to be able to affect them.

This case shows us that the spirits of good kings were believed to be in heaven. A more general conclusion is derived from what we read in the 7th of the Books of Shang. The emperor Pwan-kang, irritated by the opposition of the wealthy and powerful Houses to his measures, and their stirring up the people also to murmur against them, threatens them all with calamities to be sent down by his High ancestor, T'ang the Successful. He tells his ministers, that their ancestors and fathers, who had loyally served his predecessors, were now urgently entreating T'ang, in his spirit-state in heaven, to execute great punishments on their descendants. Not only, therefore, ascribed to Confucius is given and commented on at the end. This Work may serve the student in lieu of many others. It is a monument of industry and research ;-beyond all praise.

<sup>7</sup> Canon of Shun, p. 23. 8 Ana., II., v. 9 Canon of Shun, p. 4. 10 15., p. 8.

I have made frequent reference to the other imperial editions of the Classics, mentioned in proleg, to vol. L. p. 131; especially, to the 春秋傳說葉篡, which embodies the Chuen of Tso-k'ew, Kungyang, and Kuh-leang.

- 欽定周官義疏, 'Discussion of the Meaning of "The Officers of Chow." By imperial authority.' In 48 Books. This Work, with two others on the 'Rites,' was ordered in 1748, the 13th year of the reign K'een-lung, by the emperor Pure, to complete the labours of his father, the Benevolent, on the Classics. Edward Biot thus characterises it :- 'It is worthy to be compared with the best Works executed in Europe on the different parts of the Bible. I should even say that it is superior to them, if I did not fear being accused of partiality' (Introduction to the Translation of 'The Rites of Chow, p. xxxv.) The eulogy is deserved, so far as the exhaustive research is concerned. In range of thought and speculation, commentaries on the Chinese Classics and the Bible cannot be compared.
- 御製日講書經解義, 'Daily Lectures, Explaining the Meaning of the Shoo King. By imperial authority.' In 13 Books. It was ordered by the emperor Benevolent in 1,680. I have often quoted it under the name of 'The Daily Explanation.' It has all the qualities which I ascribed to the sister work on the Four Books, being full, perspicuous, and elegant,"

7 三山拙意林先生尚書全解, 'A Complete Explanation of the Shang Shoo, by Lin Chueh-chae of San-shan.' In 40 Books. The author is commonly called Lin Che-k'e; and so I have generally referred to him. His commentary is very voluminous. It is older than Ts'ae Ch'in's, and, in my opinion, superior to it 臨川吳澄今文尚書纂言. Digest of Remarks on the Modern Text of the Shang Shoo, by Woo Ching of Lin-ch'uen.' In 4 Books. See above, p. 36. This is the commentary of the Yuen dynasty :- terse and original.

陳氏師凱書蔡傳旁通. The Commentary of Ts'ae on the Shoo Illustrated by Ch'in Sze-k'ae.' Published in 6 Books, in 1,520. It is a commentary on Ta'ne Ch'in's commentary. The author draws his illustrations from 88 different Works.

王耕野先生讀書替見 'Imperfect Views (views through a tube), by Wang Kang-yay, of passages in the Shoo.' In 2 Books. This also is a Work of the Yuen dynasty. The views are sometimes very ingenious.

11 王魯彥書疑 'Wang Loo-chae's Doubts about the Shoo.' In 8 chapters. The author was of the Sung dynasty. He is also called Wang Pih (王柏).

12 The 皇清經解. (See proleg. to vol. I., p. 133) contains many Works on the Shoo, or on portions of it. Those which I have made most use of are:—

[i.] 尚書集註音疏 'Comments of himself and others on the Meaning of the Shang Shoo, and on the Pronunciation of the Characters.' The author was a Këang Shing (江 聲), of the district of Woo, dep. Soo-chow. It occupies Books 390-403 of the collection;—a Work of vast learning, but dogmatical.

[ii.] 尚書後案, 'Latest Decisions on the Shang Shoo.' By Wang Ming-shing (王鳴盛), an acquaintance of Këang Shing, and of the same district. His main object is to bring out the views of Ch'ing K'ang-shing, as the true exposition of the Classic. The Work occupies Books 404-434, and took the author 34 years to complete it. His research is vast;

but his object is one-sided.

[iii] 尚書今古文註號. 'The Shang Shoo in the Modern and Ancient Text Commented on and Discussed.' Books 735-773. The Work appeared in 1,815. The author was Sun Sing-yen (孫星符), an officer of high employments. His 'ancient text' is not that current under this designation, but the variations from Fuh-săng's text, which are found in Ch'ing K'ang-shing and other Han writers.

[iv.] 古文尚書撰異, 'The various Readings of the Ancient Text of the Shang Shoo Collected.' Compiled in the reign of K'ëen-lung, by Twan Yuh-tsae, (段玉裁). The writer uses the designation 'Ancient Text' in the same way as Sun Singyen, Këang Shing, and Wang Ming-shing. Books 567-599.

[v.] 禹黃錐指, 'The Needle-touch applied to the Tribute of Yu.' Published in the reign K'ang-he, by Hoo Wei (胡涓). The author had previously been employed, with many other officers, in preparing a statistical account of the present empire. The Work cannot be too highly spoken of. Books 27-47.

17 古文尚書疏證, 'A Discussion of the Evidence for the Ancient Text of the Shang Shoo.' By Yen Jö-keu (闊若璩); published in of the capital. Tang at first dwelt in Po, choosing the residence of the first sovereign of his House. Then were made the TE KUH, and the LE YUH.

10 When T'ang chastised the various princes, the chief of Kö was not offering the appointed sacrifices. T'ang began his work by chastising him, and then was made the T'ANG CHING.

11 E Yin went from Po to Hea. Indignant with the sovereign of Hea, he returned to Po; and as he entered by the north gate, met with Joo Kew and Joo Fang. With reference to this were made the Joo EEW, and the Joo FANG.

2 E Yin acted as minister to T'ang, and advised him to attack Këë. They went up from E, and fought with him in the wilderness of Ming-t'eaou. Then was made THE SPEECH OF T'ANG.

13 When Tang had vanquished Hea, he wished to change its sacrifices to the Spirit of the land, but concluded not to do so. With 40 Books or chapters ( ) all belonging to the dynasty of Shang, n.o. 1763—1132. More than half of them are lost,—the first live, classed by some among the Books of the Hea dyn.; the 18th, 8th, 9th, and 19th; the 18th, 15th, and 16th; the 19th to the 25th; and the 29th. Of the remaining 11 documents, there are only 5 whose genuineness is unchallenged. The order in which they stand, moreover, differs somewhat in the preface as cilied by Gen-kwd, and as approved by Chring and other Han scholars.

Not. 9. Set, from whom the sovereigns of the Shung dyn. traced their descent, was a son of the supp.

Po. Kub must therefore be the 先王, and probably the 帝 in 帝告, 'The Aumounosment to the Emperor.' 董沃 may much 'The Rule of Enrichment.'

10. Har. 'The Punitive Expedition of Tang.' See Men. III. Pt. II. v., and the Announcement of Chang Hway. Those who object to the Shoo King of Gan-kwo say that the passages of Hway's Amouncement referred to are a remnant of this Book; see the 後案 of 王鳴感, in &c II Joo bow and Joo Fang, we may suppose, were two ministers, with whom E Yin discussed that affairs of Hea. 13. 欲選其社一

THE SHOO KING.

PART I. THE BOOK OF TANG.

THE CANON OF YAOU.

I. Examining into antiquity, we find that the emperor Yaou was called Fang-houn. He was reverential, intelligent, accomplished, and thoughtful,—naturally and without effort. He was sincerely courteous, and capable of all complaisance. The display of these qualities reached to the four extremities of the empire, and extended from Trin or the Whole Work. 尚書—Acciently, the Work was simply called the Shoo-So Confacing, in the Analests, and Mencins refer to it. See Ana. II. xxi. &c.; Men. I. Pill. iii. 7, &c. The addition of 尚.—上. 'High,' is by Ch'ing K'ang-shing attributed to Conf. He says, 'Conf., honouring it, gave it the decomination of 尚書. Homouring and emphasizing it as if it were a Book of Heaven, he therefore called it. "The Highest Book," (真而重之若天書然故日尚書). (ian kwo in his preface ascribes the name to Fuh-shang, who called it, he says, the 尚書 'as being the book of the highest antiquity' (以其上古之書) The 思篇, however, shows its existence before Fuh's time. With whom and how it originated, we cannot positively say. 書 given by the 設文us being formed from 丰 and 者(一善)—what is described or related with a pencil, 'a writing.'

Title of the Part. 唐書-In so denominating this portion of the work, I follow the authority of Hea Shin (許慎, of the 2d cent.), who in his dict. (the 說文) quotes part of pur. 8 as from the 唐書 Keang Shing and Maon Ke-ling, likewise, both say that this was the arrangement of Fuh-shang himself; see the 集注音疏 of the former selection, and the 古文尚書究調卷一.

9 III. The emperor said, "Who will search out for me a man according to the times, whom I may raise and employ?" Fang-ts'e said, "There is your heir-son Choo, who is highly intelligent." The emperor said, "Alas! he is insincere and quarrelsome:—can he do."

The emperor said, "Who will search out for me a man equal to the exigency of my affairs?" Hwan-tow said, "Oh! there is the minister of Works, whose merits have just been displayed in various

It is to be observed that the above division of a day into 940 parts was different from that of the Han dynasty, and indeed only began to obtain in the time of the great Sung dyn. Practically, moreover, a month must be estimated by a whole number of days; and hence the Chinese have so many short months in the year of 29 days, while the year of 29 days, while the year of 29 days, while the year are of 30 days.

允鳌百工、庶績咸熙 b very well given by Sus-ma To'cen-信飭百官。 泉功皆典. 百工一百官, 'the hundred' (i.e. all, the various) 'officers,' each office lawing its special department of work. It is sust said that he and Ho had any further charge of the officers beyond supplying them with a correct calendar.

CH. III. THE ANXIETY OF YAOR TO PEND THE REGIT MEN FOR THE EXIGENCIES OF THE THEM, AND REPERIALLY THE REST MAN, ON WHOM TO DEVOLVE THE THROWS:—ALL ILLUSTRATING HIS PRICEDON PROMETERS WELFISH CONSIDERATION.—The events described in the proc. 6 part, are referred by the compilers of Chinese history to the 1st and 2d years of Yaou's reign; but we really cannot say when they took place. For, 12 belongs to the 70th year of his reign; par, 11 is referred with some probability to the first, the 10th must be of about the same date. P. 2. Your descriptions.

P. 2. Your inquires—prob. in open court—for an afficer school he may county to high afforz. What the affairs were we cannot know. Ma Yung thinks that by this time the four Hes and Hos were dead, and that one was wanted to enter on their duties as ministers of the four seasons. A meaning is thus found for the as-once. Gan-kwo takes III as — II., 'these,' and connects the par, with the 8th, making the hundry to be for a premier to direct all the officers, and all the works of the year, (so also Tavan); but the only connection between the parr, is of fragments brought together into the present canon. The matter must be left indefinite.

時一能, 'who.' 名 is here not a particle of exclamation, as hitherto, but a werb, 一訪問, 'to inquire for.' 岩 ss in p. 3, 'to accord with.' It is observed that in those times of wise suitiquity, forceful control was met the way of severeigns and ministers, but a continue accordance with nature and circumstances.

一用, to use, Fung-ts's (Ying-ta makes 放 in the 2d tone) only appears here. He must have been a minister. Sze-ma Ts'een for 肖子 has 嗣子, 肖二 to continue, to anaccesd; and I have translated accordingly. Gan-kwö takes 肖 for the State so called, (see Pt. III, iv.), and 子 for the title of its ruler, — 'count;' and Ying-ta says it seems to him unnatural for the amperor's son to be recommended and spoken of as here. But that only serves to exalt the character of Yaou, who was free from the partialities of common men, that 'do not have the wickerings of their own men.

know the wickestness of their own scus.' (Great Learning, Comm. viii. 2). The difficulty would disappear, if we could suppose that Yaou is here proposing to resign his throne. P.F is a particle of exclamation, intimating the speaker's decided dissent. P. 10. From spain works sugarry for a minister

Such seems to be the meaning of A, which is given by Gan-kwo se.

Ma Yong explains it by E, 'efficers,' as if it were a prime minister to be over all the other ministers, who was wanted. Hean-tow and the Kunghung appear in the next Book, p. 12, as two of the four great criminals when Shun dealt with.

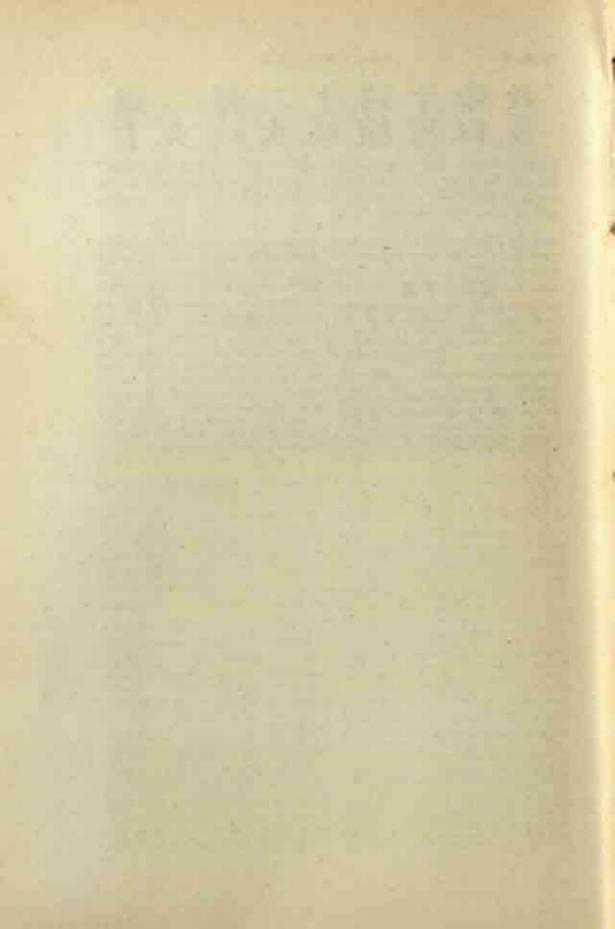

I is the name of the one's office. In the next Book, p. 31, Shun calls Ching to the same. It is about a Minister of Works. Ch'ing sup-

欽帝于汭.于二釐二刑 哉。日,虞。嬪 嬀 女降 女。于

I will wive him, and then see his behaviour with my two daughters."

On this he gave orders, and sent down his two daughters to the north of the Kwei, to be wives in the family of Yu. The emperor said to them, "Be reverent!"

From The In the end, I have translated according to Close He's view of the passage !that down to 刑于二女we have Yaon's words; from 釐降 to 于虞, what he did; and that the 欽哉 tire end were addressed to his daughters. The construction is not easy; but the interpetation of Gan-kwe, and that of Keung Shing in the pres. dyn., make confusion $ (8d tone) - to give worse confounded. 刑一法 a daughter to a man to wife." 'example,' behaviour.' The names of We wanty (娥皇) and New-ying (女英) "The former," mys Woo Ch'ing, became Shun's wife, and the other his concubine. But this is and, applying the ways of subsequent times to rit. I see how great is your virtue, how admirable your vast achievements. The determinate appointment of Heaven rests on your person; you must eventually ascend the throne of the great sovereign.

15 The mind of man is restless,—prone to err; its affinity for the right way is small. Be discriminating, be undivided, that you may sin-the ames of 'great,' 'to consider great' 天之曆 數在汝泉—see Con. Ana., XX L L, where this and other parts of the pres.

parr, are given as inving been spoken by Yaou to Slinn, though it is added that Shus used the same language in giving charge to Yu. 15.

Warning on the processes of mon to err. Medium translates the first two clauses:-'The carnal mind is treacherous, while the virtuous feeling exists only in a small degree. Gaubil says:— The heart of man is full of shouls (cesses); the heart of Taou is simple and thin (delie)'; and adds in a note:—'The heart of man is here opposed to that of Tsou. The discourse is of two hearts,—one discouraged (?) from passions, the other simple and very pure. Taou expresses the right reason. It is very natural to think that the idea of a God, pure, simple, and Lord of mon, is the source of these words. Neither translation is good, and the note is altogether functiful. The first clause does, indeed, suggest to a Christian reader of the cluseic what is said in the New Testament of the "carnal mind;" but that phrase is not the correspondency of A & fe, moreover, is not 'treacherous,' but 'insecure,' 'tottering,' 'threatening to fall.' When the statement in this clause is taken in connection with that in the next, we have the bles of 'the carnal mind.' 11 A is, indeed, a difft, expression; and we seem to want in 15 some entity or being corresponding to A. But that cannot be. The 道心 is still the 人心, the mind of man in its relation to the path of duty. The two clauses together tell us very truly that the mind of man, uncertain, unstable in what is good, is ever more likely, without a careful self-government, to fall into the way of evil.

Ying-13, in paraphrasing Gan-kw6, seems to take As — B, as if Shun were cantioning. Yo only about the proclivities of the people. But the term is of nuiversal application. Choo He and other philosophers of the Sung dynhave written much on this text. One of the scholars Ch-ing says.— The heart of man which is rettless denotes the desires of man; the reason to which is has little affinity is beavenly principle' (集設). Choo He says :- The mouth, the nose, the ears, the eyes, and four limbs all being to one's own body; they are the things which are of one's self, and are not like the conviction of right and duty (1), which belongs to one with all others. Thus we have at once the root of selfishness, and there is a proneness to is moreover; yet this is not in itself bad; it is only the root of what is bad." 'Take what is here called the A and regulate and control (收之) it, and you have the 道心; take the II A's, and leave it uncared for ( # Z), and you have the A Putting the quantion, whether it could be said of the mind of the exges, that it was also restless and prome to err, he replies that the affinity for the right in them completely predominated so as to rule the other. (See the 集 就) 惟精 these denote the exercise of mind and force of will by which the A A can be kept from disturbing the 道 心, and there will result in practice the strict adherence to the Mean, -the course which neither exceeds nor comes short of what is right.

允執厥中 is found in the Con. Ana., XX. i. l. The rest of the par., it is said, was made up in the time of the Tain dyn. by Met Taih from Seun King's 解蔽篇. We certainly fled there, and quoted as from 道經, the passages 人心之意, 道心之微. There is also much in the context about being 精於道, and 一於道. Seun King has written nothing which he was not likely to do, if he had the Shoo with this passage in his mind. And, on the other hund, it must be allowed that a forger snight have compiled the first three clauses of the par. from him. His quoting from the 道經 can hardly be said to be decisive in the question, for as we refer to the Hible often as 'The word of Truth,' The book of Truth,' the phrase in question.

indolence or dissoluteness. Let him be wary and fearful, remembering that in one day or two days there may occur ten thousand springs of things. Let him not have the various officers cumberers of their places. The work is Heaven's;—it is men's to act for it." III. "From Heaven are the social arrangements with their several duties; to us it is given to enforce those five duties, and then we have the five courses of generous conduct! From Heaven are the social distinctions with their several ceremonies; from us proceed the observances of those five ceremonies, and then do they appear in regular practice! When sovereign and ministers show a common arample of careful attention to his duties, and so get all his officers and nobles to give the same.

無教逸欲有那一do not teach idleness and desires to the holders of States. 無一冊. Gan-kwo explains: 一不為逸豫貪欲之教.是有國者之常, 'Do not practise the lessons of life pleasure and inordinate desires, which is the constant way of the holders of States. 'He does not suppose the counsel given to the emperor for his personal benefit, but to concern generally princes and officers; but his interpretation altogether is imadmissible. 'A la the teaching of example;

一非必教令調上行而下效 也 (Te'ae Ch'in). 裁, 'that which is small and minute,'--機 'the spring' or motive force, which, indeed, is Keeng Shing's text.

Gan-kwe explains to by $\frac{1}{2}\cdot\ ampty.\text{'ampty.'}

The phrase in the transl, gives its force.

大工人其代之,—Reang Shing says that 人 is the sovereign. So it is, but embracing the officers employed by him:—'the king as supreme, and governors that are sent by him.'

CH. III. ON GIVING SEPONE TO THE PROPER THE ACCOMPLIANMENT BY MEANS OF GOVERNMENT OF HEAVEN'S PURPOSES FOR THEM. 6. 天教有典,—Kenng Shing reads 五典 after Ma Yung; but as we have below—天秋有聽, &c., 有典 is here probably the correct text. And, acc. to the same malogy, 有與must—a concrete noun, under the gort, of 敘, like 有罪。有德, under the gort, of 討 and 命. We might render therefore:

—'Heaven arranges in their orders those who have the cardinal dation.' The orders are of course the consultinent relations of society,—sovereign and minister, father and son, brothers, husband and wife, and friends

The duties," charges on us the five duties," is accepted by all the communicators as the explanation of 10 here. A much better meaning comes from the ordinary signif. of the char. By is intended the sovereign and his ministers and officers,-the sovereign specially, as 五典,-so in Uk. I. the head of govt. 五字哉。-perhapa we should p. 2, et mi. give this cianse as nearly literally as our language will permit, if we said ;- and to the five there is a large obsdience!" Mer. - Heaven arranges in their ranks those who have the ceremonies.' The Ill belong to the essential constituents of society; the land have their foundation also in the mind, which steks for an outward recognition of the different ranks that actually obtain in society.

我五順。—from na'—that is, the sovernign and his ministers—are the definition and ordering of the five coremonies. But what are 'the five coremonies?' Kenng Shing supposes the not to cultivate a humble virtue? Who will dare not to respond to you with reverence? If you, O emperor, do not act thus, all your ministers together will daily proceed to a meritless character.

"Do not be like the haughty Choo of Tan, who found his pleasure only in indolence and dissipation, and pursued a proud oppression. Day and night, without ceasing, he was thus. He would make boats go where there was no water. He introduced licentious associates into his family. The consequence was that he brought the honours of his House to an end. I took warning from his course. When I

傳·二十七年一賦納以言,明武以功,車服以曆。帝不時,數尼日奏罔功一時一是不時一不若是。 not thus 數同 is taken us—普同。 'all together,' i.e. even the ministers of good character whom you at present employ, to say nothing of the calumnisting parties whom you talk about our reforming. We read in the 'Historical Records'一帝即不時,而日善惡則無功。The compiler of these would seem to have understood 數同 in the seems of—'If you employ together the good and the bad.' 8. I's proceeds to ware Skine by the scrample of himself. Skus in reply compliments both Ye and Kasa-yeou. In the 'Historical Records' this par, appears introduced by a 帝日, while after the equivaintroduced by a 帝 曰, while after the equivalent there for 子 創 若 是, we have the addition of 禹 日. Knang Shing follows Troom, and edits his text accordingly. He addition other evidences of the reading, as in the 楚 元 王 傳, in the Books of the Former Han, where we find (in the sect. of 向 子政)

一帝 舜 戒 伯 禹, 母 若 丹 朱 敖
There unust have been the readings of 帝 日 and A in some copies of the Show during the Han dyn. But, if we are to judge in the matter by the emon that the more difficult reading is to be proferred, we shall adhere to the rester receptur. It is startling to find Yu lecturing Shim, and warning him not to be like Choo of Tan.—Dured a minister to speak so to the sage emperor? This diff. is somewhat got over by introducing the characters which again necessitate the 禹日 below. 丹朱.—it is stated, in the 漢書律曆志.

that 'Yaou placed his son Choo is 丹淵,' from which it is concluded that Tan was the name of a State to which Yaou appointed his son.

和預 is defined 不休息貌 'the appearance of unccasingness.' Ching connects the phrase with the clause below, and says:—'Choos having seen people moving about in boats during the immidation, after the waters were reduced, would still lire in a boat, and made men unccasingly pash it along.' Wang Mingshing argues for a metaphorical explanation of 日本行身, making it = Mencius 從流足。反(LPLILiv.Th.—absurdly, it appears to me. 朋淫家內,—this is illustrated from the orgies of Ket, the inst empof the Hea dyn, who dug a pool, and made a night palace, where men and women lived promiscumusly together, and where he succe remained himself for a whole mouth." 田途

厥世、一珍一絶、'to extinguish.' To see Ch'in saya 世者世堯之天下也. 世 means making hereditary—handing down

T 創若時(一是)。一副(Ist tone), 'a wound inflicted by a knife;' here—as in the transl. Gaz-kwa defines it by 像 'to repress,' married in Too-shan, I remained with my wife only the days sin, jin, kwei, and keä. When my son K'e was wailing and weeping, I did not regard him, but kept planning with all my might my labour on the land. Thus I assisted in completing the five tenures, extending over 5,000 le; in appointing in the provinces twelve Tutors; and in establishing, in the regions beyond, extending to the four seas, five Presidents. These all pursue the right path and are merito-to represe and Ying-th mys: 一創 and 製 have both the meaning of seeing wickeshoes, and stopping one s self from a similar course. There gives, for this clause, 子 不能順是, which is quite mane. The clause is natural in the mouth of Yo, annatural from Shan. I do not see how with this clause we can adopt the reading 帝日 at the begin, of the par.

要于童山一童山 was the name of a principality, the daughter of the ruler of which was married by Yu. A hill called 念, gave its manne to the territory, and is identified with one in the press prov. of Gent-laway, 8 h to the south-east of the dis. city of Hwae-yuen (製造), dep. of Fung-yang (風景). Ch'ing mys that Yu was married on the day 辛, and got the emperor's recumand to undertake the remedy of the immediation on the day 中, so that he spent only three nights in his house. But I suppose he was already engaged in his great work, and could only spare four days from it for the business of his marriage.

M. - Ik was Yu's son who afterwards succeeded to the throne. The two other characters express the sound of an infant's crying.

Him. Moncius tells us him, i.e., did not regard him. Moncius tells us (HI. Pt. I. iv. 7) that Tu. when engaged upon the waters, was eight years away from his family, and though he thrice passed the door of his house, did not enter it.

雅一大. great, greatly. 土功.
'the service of the land,' i.e. all the work which he had to perform in regulating the waters.

强 战 五 服,—see on the next Book, Pars

信 成 五 服 -- see on the next Book, Pars ii, parr. 18-22. In speaks of himself here, it is said, as only 'assisting,' (元), because he would attribute the great mosts to the sup. Wes Ch'ing, however, considering 清 to mean, primarily, the effort employed in forming the figure of a bow, explains the text of the figure and formation of the difft, tenures;—a very likely explanation. 十一百二百五一 Medicars! has translated this clause:— In every district I appointed tweive officers, and then has a note to the effect that over every province there was established only as nobleman, as officer. Gambil translates the text in the same way as Medicars!—Chiaque Teheon ent donze cheft. It is a vexed question whether in each province there was only one fifth, or whether there were cloven. The old interpreters, not there were cloven. The old interpreters, per there were cloven. The old interpreters, yet sill maintain the larger number. It will be sufficient here to give an abridgment of the views of Ch'ing.—Inside the tenure of Restriction (要

by were the nine provinces (A. H), containing sitogether a space of 48,000,000 square is. Deducting from these the imperial domain, there remain 48,000,000; or 5,000,000 square is to each province. Now, when I'm assembled the princes of the empire at Hway-k'e (A. H), they amounted to 10,000. Such was the number of the States of the nine provinces. Over every province was a Pastor (A.), and the worthiest of the princes were selected to be intora or commediers (A.) to him. For every hundred

States there was one fifth, and 12 fifth would suppose 1200 States. Each province contained of States 100 & square, 200; 70 & square, 400; 50 & square, 800 — altogether 1400. Deduct 200 of these, as an allowance for waste lands, and there remain 1,200 States. Multiply these by 8; we have 9,600, and allowing 400 for States within the imperial domain, we have the 10,000 States forming the empire. The value of these transmits and figures will have to be considered in connection with the next Book. In the meantime, according to show these views there were in all and to originate things, with a careful attention to your laws. Be reverent! Oh! often examine what you have accomplished. Be reverent!" With this he continued the song, saying,

"When the head is intelligent,

The members are good;

And all business will be happily performed!"

He again continued the song, saying,

"When the head is vexatious,

The members are idle;

And all affairs will go to ruin!"

The emperor said, "Yes; go ye, and be reverently attentive to your duties!"

Heaven.' 惟時.—comp. 食哉惟時, Bk. L. p. 16. 股肱.—see p. 4.
元首,—the covereign is evidently intended by this phrase. In Ying-th's paraphrase (foll. by K'ang-he's dict., char. 元),元 is taken as —首; but it is rather an adj., with some culogistic meaning.—'the great,' the superior.'

日工院哉。—comp in Can. of Yaou, p. 8, 允釐百工 庶績成院。 题言日.念哉—Gan-kwo seffnes 题 by 大言而疾, 'with great words and repid.' 念哉 is evidently addressed to the emp. Chring says that they are a summons to all the ministers to give heed to the warning just attered by the emperor; and Ming-shing and Keang Shing, in their projudice, endorse the view. 嵩一法, 'the lawa.' A careful attention to these on the part of the empNAME OF THE BOOK.—A F. 'The Tribute of Yu.' Tribute, however, is not here to be understood in the sense of a contribution paid by one seation to sanction in acknowledgment of subjection and lestimony of fealty, but as the contribution paid by subjects to their proper rulers. The barbarous tribes round about the Middle Kingdom' bring here, indeed, their and the attempt by the rulers of the present Manchow dynasty togive the same manus to the presents cent to them from Great Britain and other countries was an assumption which needed to be repressed and reduked; but such offerings occupy a very inferior place, as compared with the Hat or contribution of revenue, levied from each province. We might rather expect that the Book should be called IL Gal. if, however, has the general signification of 'an offering made by inferiors' (下之所 供謂之貢) and may embrace the 賦 while that term is more restricted and could not be employed to comprehend the property so called. This is the account given by Ying-12 of the mane of the Book, and I think correctly. Te'ae Ch'in endorses a view somewhat different : - In the Book we have both | and | and yet it is called only by the former. Mencius observes that the sovereign of the Hea dynasty emeted the 50 now allotment, and the payment ef a proportion of the produce (夏后氏 五十而貢, Bk. III. Pt L III. 6). This proportion was determined by taking the wre-rage of several years, so that, accord to this acct., T was the general name for the revenue levied under the Hes dynasty from the land.'
CONTENTS. The name, - The Tribute of Yu,'

Corrests. The name.—The Tribute of Tu, gives a very insufficient account of the contents. The determination of the revenue, and of the various articles of tribute was, indeed, very important, but the Book describes generally the labours of Yu in remedying the disasters occasioned by the overflowing waters. Having accomplished that, he went on to define more accurately the boundaries of the different provinces, and to divide the empire into five tenurs. It may be regarded as a demesday book of China in the Edd century before Christic but when we consider that it is contained in the compass of a few pages, we rannot expect very much information from it. Choo He says in several places, that much of what is asid about the geography of the country—the mountains and rivers—cannot be understood, in consequence of the changes of names, and the actual changes in nature which have taken place. This is doubtless the case; but when we shall have an accurate and scientific survey of China, and it is known to us in the length and breadth of its provinces as any of the countries of Europe is, this socient document will be invested with a new interest, and have a light thrown upon it, for want of which we can at present in many places only grope our way. The division of the Book into two parts, which is found in Yung Ching's Shoo, and I have here followed, is convenient, but of modern device. It is still unobserved in many editions, of which I need only mention the 'Daily Explanation.' The first part is conveniently arranged in ten chapters, the first containing only one paragraph; and each of the others containing the account of one province in a good many paragraphs. On the title of 'The Counsels of the Great Yu it was observed that the Books of the Shoo have obtained a sixfold classification accordite to their subject-matter. This Book has been referred with reason to the class of the Cassons. Chang Kew-ching (Fig. 1) NX, Sung dyn.) has the following observations on the suthorship of it.—'Are we to suppose that it was composed by the historiographers' But they could not have known all the minutin which we find in it about the regulation of the waters. I venture to give my cointon in this way.—There are the first and least paragraphs, about Yu's dividing the land, &c., and returning his mace;—these are from the historiographers. But all between, from the historiographers. But all between, his marrative by Yu himself of his various labours.—his marrative as presented to the emperor, and kept in the bureau of history, whence it was edited by the proper officers with some modifications of the style.'

CR. I. A SUMMARY OF TU'S SCHEME OF organizons upon the interpolated marine. It is the general opinion that this par, lays down the plan on which Yu proceeded to his task; and though there is nothing in the language to determine absolutely in fav. of this interpret. I think it is the most likely. First, be divided the land into nine provinces, and arranged in what order they should be taken in hand. Next, he travelled along the hills, and possessed himself with a general idea of what was to be done to afford a vent for the waters, and conduct them by their natural channels, Lastly, the waters being carried off, he defined the boundaries of the provinces more accurately than had been done before, by reference to the principal mountains and streems. 禹敦士,一敦士. 数 by 布, 'to spread out,' 'to arrange,' adding 布治九州之水土, 'ho arranged and reduced to order the water and land of the nine provinces.' Ma Yung says that 澳大一分, and in Gan-kwa we find all them terms together: 一洪水汎溢、禹牙布治九州 Z +, 'amid the overflowing of the inunda-ting waters. To divided, arranged, and reduced to order the land of the nine provinces.' It may be questioned whether the division of China into nine provinces originated with Yu. The first territorial arrangement of the country is referred to Hwang-to, who, it is said, 'mapped out the country, and divided it into provinces, making in all 10,000 States of 100 % each ( 野分州·得百里之國萬區: see the 歷代疆域表, under Hwang-to).

具髓服夷木、毛革蕩、琨品、厥織厥卉島惟羽齒篠瑤

keun stones; bamboos small and large; elephants' teeth, hides, feathers, hair, and timber. The wild people of the islands brought garments of grass. The baskets were filled with woven ornamented the ancients there were three degrees of metal: -the yellow metal, the highest in value; the white metal, the next; and the red metal, the lowest.' I don't know how or where K'ang-shing got his idea that the text meant 'the three colours' (-qualities) of copper' (-(fi). Hoe Wei has collected a mass of evidence to show that gold was found in Jaon-chow day,; that silver also was found there, and in the dep. of Lin-keang (Em YI), and that there were copper mines in various parts of Keangsoe. It is to the western provinces of Yun-nan and Szo-ch'uen that we are now commonly referred for the precious metals.] 新現 are said by Gan-kwa to be beautiful genis (美士) Wang Suh, however, describes them as 'fine stones inferior to gems.' He is supported by the 說文 expressly in his account of the second, and probably also in that of the first;—see the 後案. The 篠 were used for arrowshafts. One statement says they were solid. which I do not know that any bambon can be. The I were used,—the larger of them for small packing and other cases, the smaller for flutes and similar instruments. 毛惟木一惟is here a connective particle, - St, fand. See note on par. 26, upon Lin Che-k'e says that 'by testh, hides, feathers and hair we are to understand whatever about animals was available for articles of use or for ornament.' More specially, Gan-kw6 under-stood by 'teeth' the toeth of elephants, and by 'hides' (" supposes the hair to be taken off) the hides of the rhimoceros. This view is generally acquisesed in. Are we to suppose then that the rhimoceroe and elephant were found in Yang-chow in Ya's time? They may very well have been so. Hoo Wei observes that from the mention or supposed mention of these animals some argue for the extension of the limits of the province beyond the southern mountain-range to Kwang-tung. Kwang-se, and An-nam, and replies that the princes might be required to send articles of value and use purchased from their neighbours, as well as what they could procure in their own Shing here reads , as in p. 10. The Historical Records read as in the text. The occurrence of the name again confirms the ordinary reading. One tribs of wild people, north or south, might have been called the 'Bird burbariann;' but when the name is applied equally to the two extremities of the empire along the sea-board, we must take the phrase as having nothing special in its signification. How Well would carry us chiefly to Japan for the people here intended; but that is too remote. Possibly the name may include the inhabitants of Formosa, and the Chusan archipelago, as well as of the islands generally along the east coast.

卉草之總名. 卉 is a general name for grasses. True would extend it to 'cotton,' the production of a plant, so that He. should include dresses of cotton; but the cultivation of cotton was first introduced into China during the Sung dynasty. The 井服 were garments, I apprehend, made of grass or straw, manipulated indeed, but not having andergone any operations of machinery, however ruda. 織貝, Gan-kwō takes these for two things,—fine worou fabrics,' and 'fine shells.' Those shells, it has been amprosed, were to serve as pieces of money, for purposes of exchange. But such a use of shells cannot be proved to have existed in the time of Yu. We go would rather seem to be the name of mo kind of silken manufacture. So this phrase is generally taken. Ching, on the authority of a passage in the Shu King, defines | by Sh Zi the name of variogated allks.' Woo Ch'ing says :- When the silk was dyed of various ceiours, and then woven into patterns, the fabric was called Mt E ; where the patterns were made with silk not so dyed of various colours, the fabric was called 織 文. The Kales small orange, the citrus meaderims. It grows further north than the common orange. The All or pummelo scems to grow best in Fuh-köen. 錫命,-Gan-kwo says:-錫命乃貢。 言不常也, 'when the order was given, they were sent; this was not a regular tribute." Wang Suh gives the same explanation, and adds that these fruits were only required from Yang-chow as a supplement to those of King-chow. King-shing took a difft view, but what he understood exactly by the can hardly be known. He says :- When there was it

60 Its articles of tribute were varnish, hemp, a finer hempen cloth, and coarser hempen cloth. The baskets were filled with fine silken fabrics, and fine floss-silk. Stones for polishing sounding-stones were rendered, when required.

61 They floated along the Lo, and reached the Ho.

62 IX. The south of mount Hwa and the Black-water were the boundaries of LEANG-CHOW.

64 The hills Min and Po were brought under cultivation. The To count of it The 說文 defines the char. by E 副土, 'black, hard, sarth,' I have done the best I vould with the two terms. 59. If we look only at the revenue of the province, we should expect its fields to rank much higher than they do; the reason of the disproportion, according to Foo Tung-shub (何同权), was that the black hard tracts in the lower parts of it were unfit for the cultivation of grain. The student will observe how the place of the (前 is different from what it occupies in parr, 8 and 43.

第 京 編 約一次。 we par, 19; 泉 and 編 see par. 26; 約 is a course kind of hemp,— perennial plant. ucc. to Lak Ke (陸 瑞一約 亦 順 也 宿 根 在 地 至春自生) A amil of cloth was made from it which was called by the same name. Twae says he cannot tell whether we should understand here the raw material, or the manufactured article. We must suppose, I think, that, as the character follows 新 we are to anderstand the cloth. 嚴 惟 織 據— 總 we par. 35 編—綿 紫 之 細 者。 as in the translation. 錫 貢 — par. 44.

There the pirms follows the articles so contributed, they being sufficiently marked off from the other articles by the in a which proceds. Here it process the articles, because, if it followed them, its force might be extended to the others previously mennioned. The it were stones used for polishing other stones and gens, differing from the grinding-stones and whetsteess of King-chew, the use of which was to polish articles of metal.

P. 61. Route of conveyance to the cepital. From reach the Ho. From the western, they reached it by means of the Lo.

IX. THE ACCOUNT OF LEANG-CHOW. P. 62. Boundaries. There is no dispute Cn. IX. about the former of the boundaries mentioned, Mount Hwa is 'the western mountain' (offi Hi) of the Canon of Shun, par. S, standing 8 on the south of the dia city of Hwa-yin (華隆; lat. 81°35', N., lon. 6°31 , W., Biot), in the dep. of Tung-chow ( ), acc. to the latest errangement of Shen-se province. In the small adjacent dop, of Shang ( 15) is the dep. of Shan-yaug([[]]), which is said to be identical with the Hira-yang of the text. Mount Hwa mrved as boundary mark to three of Yu's provinces - Leang. Yu. and Yung. other boundary, -the Black water, -there is not the same manimity of opinion. Gan-kwo said:
- On the east this province reached to the south of mount Hwa, and on the west to the Blackwater.' If, indeed, the blackwater was the boundary of Leang-clow on the west, we are led to identify it with the river of the same name, also the weatern boundary of Yung-chow, and described in Part II., p. 6, as *flowing into the southern sea. This view leads to great difficulties, quite as great as those attending the extension of Yang-chow round the sea-coust to Cochin-China. The first distinctly to con-trovers is appears to have been S58 Sac-lung (薛士龍 | 8mg dyn.), who took the boundarise montioned in the text as the northern and southern, and not those on the east and west: The northern boundary of Leang-cliow was the south of mount Hees, and on the south it stretoned along the Blackwater, the present Loso-water (南距黑木里木今瀘 * 11). The name of the Lee and micen the place of the Blackwater in the Han dynasty. and subsequently to the Tung, the stream has

South from the Ho, he surveyed Se-king, Choo-yu, and Nesoushoo, going on to The-hwa; then Heung-urh, Wae-fang. Tung-pih, from which he proceeded to Pei-wei.

He surveyed and described Po-chiung, going on to the other mount

King; and Nuy-fang, from which he went to Ta-pee.

He did the same with the south of mount Min, and then went on to mount Hang. From this he crossed the lake of Kew-keang, and went on to the plain of Foo-tseen.

Tung be (趙冬職), a writer of the Tang dynasty, describes the bill of Te-ch'90 as consisting of six peaks, all rising up in the midst of the stream. On the most northern of them were two pillars, over against much other, standing up somethe bank, and forming the passage of the 'Three Gates,' We comet say what of the 'Three Gates.' We cannot say what inhours Ya performed at this point, nor what was the appearance presented in his time by the fill. Notwithstanding what he did, the Ho has here occasioned incalculable will to the people, and localculable trouble to the government. How Wei has made a precis of attempts to overcome the matural difficulties of the passage, from the Han to the Sang dynasty, the result of which appears to have dynasty, the result of which appears to have been to aggrarate the ceil rather than remove it.

The hill of Seib-shing is found in the slep, of Taib-chow ( ) in the south-west of the district of Yang-shing (陽城, lat. 35 mg, N., for. 2522, W.). Wang-ub is in the dep. of Hwas king, in Ho-sun, 80 is to the west of the dis city of Tse-yuon ( ); lat. 50 7, N. ion, 349, W.). It extends to the borders of Yang slong district, just mentioned, and pre-ants an appearance as if it consisted of three storeys, like a house, 太行、饱山、

至于碣石入于海-Tachang la in the south of Fung-the dis. Taihethon (lat 55'50', N. 8'39', W.) South of it lies the district of Ho-may (阿內), dep. of Hwan-king, while, stretching along to the north-east, it touches in its range in the district of Ling-ch'men ( | | | | | ) on the districts of Hoo-kwan (南國), Loo-ahing (路城), and Loshing (黎城), dep. of Loo-agan (路 安), on the dis. of Woo-heang (武潮)) In Pe Chow ( ) on the dia of Ho-shun ( ) in Leann Chow (F ), and on that of LA-ping ($\text{$\psi}$ $\phi$) in Ping-ting dep. It is called by a hamiced different names in different parts of its range, but it is really the same mountain of Two hang. ₩ [],—300 00 Can, of Shun, par. 8. It is the northern moun-tain, the limit of Shun's excursions to the north, and according to the determination of the pre-dyn., is in about lat. 39 41' N., ion. 2 43' W. I don't know where Dr. Mediuret got the latitude which I have assigned to it from him on page 23. According to the geography of the Handyn, we should look for mount Hang in Keuh-yang dia. ( m B., lat. 25 50', N., lon. 1'40', W.). dep of Chin-time in Pili-chili-le. This appairon prevailed through many dynasties. In the Sang dynasty a more northern position began to be claimed for the anothern hill, and the Ming dyn, decreed that the proper ifting was in Shan se. It did not, however, remove the sacrifices from Keub-yang. This was done in the 17th year of Shun-che of the present dynasty. We must conclude that the decision of the Ming and the present dynasties is incurrect. The Hang hill of Shan-se would take us away from the Ha, along which this range of hills is evicionally laid down from Kwen to Kee-shift, 碣石, - see on Part i, p. 11. I must believe that Kee-shih was something like Tech'oo, only not tar from the mouth of the river.

From Po-ch'ung he surveyed the Yang, which, flowing eastwards, became the Han. Farther east, it became the water of Ts'ang-lang; and after passing the three great dykes, went on to Ta-pëe, southwards from which it entered the Keang. Eastward still, and whirling on, it formed the marsh of P'ang-le; and from that its eastern flow was the northern Këang, as which it entered the sea.

in the dis of Show-chang ( ), dep. of Yen-chow, it there divided into two hranches, one flowing north and east, and entering the sea in the dis, of Le-lain, the other going cast and south till it joined the Hwas, and went on in its channel to the sea. After this, the northern branch gradually became less and less. During the Yuen and Ming dynasties, The lio dually broke off in the district of Yung-tail ( ), dep. of Kas-fung, and proceeded east with a very gradual inclination to the south till it joined the Hwas. I have not met with an account of the changes which it has undergoes since. Until within a few years it discharged itself into the sea by the old channel of the Hwas.]

P. S. The course of the Hon. (in Sze-ma Taven and others, 2) 東流為漢一000 On Part l. p. 63. It la are stated that there were two mountains called Po-chinng, one in Kan-sub, in the small dep. of Twin (秦州), 40 & to the south-east of the dep. city, in which what is called the Western Han (西 ) takes its rise. Plowing through Ta'in Chow and Kene Chow (Fif ) into Ess-ch'men, it is lost in the Kealing, which proceeding south through the departments of Pass ning ( R ), and Shan-king () miters the Kenng, near the dep. city of Chung-king (III E; lat. 29'42', N., lon. 9'48', W.). The Geography of the Han supposed that this western Han was the Yang of the text, and that we were to look for the Po-chang mountain in the pres. Kan-enh. But there is no connection between the two Hans; -there is mine now, nor is it likely that there ever was.
The interact made in the Han dynasty has ied to much perplayity and debate on the sentence under mittee. The Po-chiung of Yu was, see doubt, the mountain the property of the was. ms doubt, the mountain in the north of Ningking Chow (享美州), dop. of Han-ching.

Here the Han rises, and for some time after issning from its springs it was called the Yang Flowing east along the south of the district of Meen (yil 186), it pusses the dep. city to the dla of Nan-ch'ing (P) (1), whereabouts the name of Yang ceased, and was supersoded by that of Han. From the dep. of Han-chung, the Han passes into that of Hing-ngan, out of which it proceeds from Shun-se into Hoo-pil in the dep. of Tun-yang ( ) Entering from this that of Senng-yang in the sub. dep. of Keun(妇州), it took the name of the Water of Twang-lang:-- 又東為滄浪之水 There was an island here according to Le Trouyuen in the middle of the stream, called Ts'auglang (漢水中有洲 日滄浪洲) which gave occasion to the name which was retained to the junction of its waters with the Keeng. It is perhaps a more likely account of the name, that it was given to the stream here from the bluish tinge of its waters. 滋至于大则南入于江,this describes the course of the stream from Kenn Chow till it mingles lie waters with the Heang. On Ta-pel, see on per. 2. The only difficulty is with _______ which Ta'ne says was the name of a stream, or streams. Such also was the view of the older commentators, -- Gan-kwo, Ching Henen, Ma Youg, and Wang Sah. The 說文, however, drdnes 證 as 'a large dyke on a river's bank where people could dwell' (坤骨木邊土人所止) This meaning is the better established of the two. Hee Wel fixes on three points, all in the pres. district of Scang-yang, where he supposes three dykes to have been raised to matain the impetus of the waters entering the Han, and couniders them to be the positions indicated in the text. 東匯澤為彭蠡東為

北江入于海—these classes present

流。百變百服里五

22 Five hundred le, the most remote, constituted THE WILD DOMAIN. Three hundred le were occupied by the tribes of the Man; two hundred, by criminals undergoing the greater banishment.

It was thus 7 times the size of the imperial domain, and contained 7,000,000 square &.

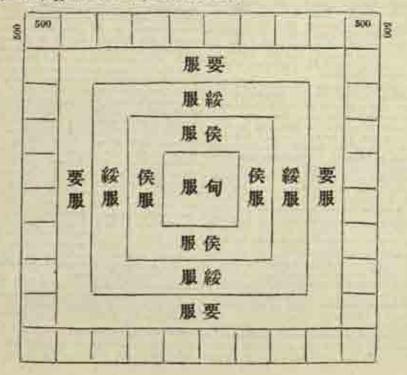

三百里夷,二里百蔡-there is nearly a consent on the meaning of 蔡 It is taken as—放, in Can, of Shun, p. 12, meaning 'to banish and confine.' In the 左傳,定四年 *** rest—王於是乎教管权而蔡蔡叔. There the opposition of 蔡 and 教 fixes the meaning of the term. A mote, however, mys that the, first 蔡 is to be read she, and we find the explanation of this in the character's being given in the 說文 as 黎 with the meaning of 'to scatter.' This must have been afterwards mistaken for 蔡 [Here perhaps we have also the explanation of how the 箴三苗, of the Can. of Shun, be, cit., appears in Mencius, Bk. V. Pt.

1. iii 2. as 殺三苗J By 蔡, then in the text we must understand bunished criminals; and in contrast with the 流 of the next par, that their bandament was of a lighter character, and not to the creater.

and not to the greatest distance.

The first three hundred a vere occupied by wild tribes which land not yet been merged in the conquering race, nor driven by it from their original scats. The attempts to explain 夷 sa an adjective—易 or—平, may be seen in 禹 垂 维格。Hoe Wei very pertinently compares with the text the language of Mencius, Bk. IV. Pt. II., L

P. 22. 五百里荒服,—we have come to the last of the domains. It was called the 荒服 with reference, we may suppose, to the raile character of the inhabitants, and the wildness of the country. It extended 500 le in every direction beyond the fourth domain—thus:—

sustained in time of peace. In the Chow dynusty, a or army consisted of 12,500 men.

Pp. 2, 3. The grounds of the expedition against Hee. The king commences his speech with a sigh, -an Ah! (PE), -because of the gravity of the matter;—so, Ts'an. 六事之 Ching observes that the change of style from 六卿 to 六事 indicates that the king inferior officers and common soldiers as well. Of course he could not be board by such a mul-titude, but his speech would be circulated throughout the host. Gan-kwo mys :- 各有 軍事故日六事 Thave translated accordingly. 2. 有屋氏—the holder ct, i.e., the prince invested with, Hoo. This Hoo was the present territory of the district of Hoo in Shen-se. The name in the text was changed in the Ts in dynasty to the present The prince of Hoo, according to Sze-ma Trees and the older interpreters, was of the surname Sze, the same as the emperor. I have read of him sumewhere as Ke's IIF H, his chief brother by a accordary wife. Ta'me does not seem willing to sdmit as much. The surname is not a point of importance. 威揮 五行。意棄三正,-these two clauses state the crime of Hoo, but in obscura and mystical terms. Ching defines To Tr by VI 113, "the four seasons," making the phrase and logous with I. Ke in the 'Yih and Tseih,' p. 4 - see the note there. He calls = 11-7 地人之正道, 'the correct way of beaven, curth, and man,' meaning probably the same with Ma Yang, that the phrase denotes the commencement of the year in -Y the 11th mouth, or midwinter, which was called the 天正, the commencement in 丑, the 抽 11-, and the communication is gif, the first month of spring, the A IL. This last was the beginning of the year with the Hea dyn.; the Shung began it with the 11 1 ; and the Chow with the 天正. The text would imply, on this view of it, that these difft, communecments had been employed before; -- see note on the Canon of Slams, p. 14. If it were so, perhaps the prince of Hoo sented to begin the year with some other mouth, as the founder of the Tein dyn, afterward adopted the month D, the 10th, the first month of winter. Mount Ke-ling's view of the subject is not unreasonable. He considers these two clames as an obscure intimation from Ky that Hoorefund to acknowledge him as the right successor of Yo. This is an old view. Take had been exceeded by Shuo, as the worthiest man in the empire, and Shun had been succeeded by Ya. Why should Yu's throne descend to his son? This affected the protext for rebellion. Maou further tries to show that by the language used K'e makes to show that by the language used K'e makes to show that by the language used K'e makes to show that by the language used K'e makes to show that the original himself. See the case of the expedition was to put down a dangerous rival. His put down a dangerous rival. His put down a dangerous rival. His and defined by A: a is not to be laken as in the case of Hoo, in being deprived of that, we may presume, he would pay the farfelt of his life as well; His on this account, as in the 'Yih and Touth,' p. 6, et al.

P. t. Raks to be observed by the troops. 左不文一左一車左, the left of the chariot; 右一車右, the right of the chariot. It appears that in the warfare of those early times, chariots were much used in Chima, as in other nations in a similar or less advanced stages of civilization, for instance. The ordinary war-chariot for the troops contained unit three new,—an archer on the left, a soldier armod with javelins and pike or spear in the rigift, and the chariotoer in the centre. This continued down to the Chow dynasty;—see the 集傳 and 後案 in ke. 攻一治治其事, to your work, i.e., observe the rules laid down for your guidance. So, also, 非且馬之正; comp. Mercins, Bk. III., Pi II., i. The pictures of those chariots are not unlike those given of similar war ambroid on Egyptian and Assyrian monuments.]

monitoners. 用命資子組.不用命資子組.不用命數子和一個一數子和一個一邊屬之間之間之。 主, 'the spirit-tablets of his ancestors which had been removed from the regular hall of succestral worship to the special abrino appointed for them;'—see on The Doctrine of the Mean, Ch xix. So 社一社主, 'the tablets of the spirits of the land.' It would appear from this, that it was the practice of the emperors, when they want on a warlike expedition, to carry with them them two classes of tablets, that they might have with the bost, hovering about them, the spirits of their amendance and the intelligence of the practice in the Chew dynasty. A variety of passages are adduced to prove the existence of the practice ince. Those tablets were to K'e and his army like the ark of God in the camp of the laraelites. Martial law also was executed before them. And atrict law it was 一一川 孥 戮 汝一學 is defined by Gankwo and others by 子, 'children.' But it may

The ruler of men— How can he be but reverent of his duty?"

6 The second said,

"It is in the lessons:—
When the palace is a wild of lust,
And the country a wild for hunting:
When wine is sweet, and music the delight;
When there are lofty roofs and carved walls,—
The existence of any one of these things,
Has never been but the prelude to ruin."

7 The third said.

"There was the prince of T'aou and T'ang, Who possessed this country of K'e. Now we have fallen from his ways, And thrown into confusion his rules and laws; The consequence is extinction and rain."

適卑日臨, when the high go to the lew, the action is called the Ming-shing quotes from Hwas-nan's 設林訓,君子居民上·若腐索御奔馬, and from Confucius in the 家語致思篇懷懷焉若持屬索之扞馬, passages very like this, but as likely to have been suggested by it as to have suggested it. He also contends that it was not till the Ta'in dynasty that the emperor used sir horses in his carriage. The point is by no means cortain. On the rhymes in this soug, see Maou K'e-ling, on 'The Wrongs of the Old Text of the Shoo,' Bk. III.

P. S. The sony of the second brethe: —On the sharperies and actronounce of The brang. Gan-kwo defines hers by R., 'led astray and disordered.' Such a meaning of the term, however, is not justified by examples. Its proper signification of 'a wild' answers sufficiently. A Ph. 'within' and 'without,'—ithe palace' and 'the country.'

includes 歌 In the 國語,越語下 we read—王其且馳騁弋獵·無 至禽荒宮中之樂·無至酒 荒·音—八音, the eight kinds of musical instruments; have—"music generally. Moncing might seem to have had this passage in view, when he spoke as in VII.

Br. II., Exriv.

P. 7. The song of the third brother.—How the imperial patrimony was lost. It is to be imperial patrimony was lost. It is to be imperial patrimony was lost. It is and Tang. No doubt it is Yacu who is here intended. He accended the throne from being prince of Tang, the name of which remains in the dist of Tang, the name of which remains in the dist of Tang, the name of which remains in the dist of Tang, the name of which remains in the dist of Tang, was in the pres district of Tang-yuen, dep. Tang, was in the pres district of Tang-yuen, dep. Tang, was in the pres district of Tang-yuen, dep. Tang, referred to the dist of Ting-tracu, dep. Tang, referred to the dist of Ting-tracu, dep. Tang, was in the first in Tang, and then in Tang.—So uncertain are such early matters.]

Ta'se says that when raised to the empire, he made Tang his capital. [In this case Tang.

謹王保、徵訓有衆、予曰、于天克先定明謨聖有嗟衆

2 II. He made an announcement to his hosts saying, "Ah! ye, all my troops, there are the well counselled instructions of the sage founder of our dynasty, clearly verified in their power to give stability and security to the State:—'The former kings were carefully for 肇位四海 we should my 始即 位.臨御四海. 命 must be taken passively, was charged, was appointed. 掌六師,一to handle the six armies." The prince of Yin was raised to the office of A 11 E, made, in our phraseology, commanderin-chief of the imperial forces, Hi, 'the six armies,' indicated in Book IL, as forming the military force of the emperor; see on Ann., VII x. 2. This was the first step of Chung k'ang on his accession to the throne, to put his armies in the charge of the prince of Yin. The editors of Yung-ching's Shoo give their opiniou that Chung-k'sing suc-ceeded his brother in Yang-hea, and that he was not in possession of Yu's capital called Gan-yih (安邑), and the name of which still remains in the dis. of Gan-yib, in the small dep, of Kiene ($\pi$), separated by the pres. dynasty from Ping-yang. They suppose that E kept him as well as Pee-kang from all the country north of the Ho. This is against the view of Gan-kwo and Ying-ta, that E called Chung-k ang to the throne in the room of his brother. brother. Looking at the text, I cannot suppose that Chung-k'ang reigned only over part of the empire. The phrases 四海 and 六師 would seem designed as a protest against such a view. Then he is represented as exercially an authority quite independent in the appointment of the prince of Yin, and sending him subsequently against He and Ho. How it was that Chung-k'ang could possess such an au-thority, attuated as he was between his brother, whom E kept from the best part of the empire, and his our whom E cast out of the whole of it, -this is a historical difficulty which we have not facts enow to enable us to solve. There is much speculation about it among the critica. The wiser course is such a case is to rest contented 羲和廢厥職:酒 in our ignorance.

The English He and Ho would be descendents—sons or grandsons—of the ministers of Yaou; and Trize may that the different offices sustained by them in Yaou's time had now been united in one. We need not think so. He and Ho here may very well be the chiefs of the two families, as they rather soon to be in the Can. of Yaou, p. 3. On Ta'an's view, 顾邑 will be singular, and Gambil has accordingly translated 'leur ville.' As they were 倒 or high nobles in the employment of the emperor, their cities would be in the territory next to the imperial domain, the first hundred is of the Hose fah, and probably not far from each other. The phrase 反顾最, in conn. with the next clause, implies that they had both neglected their duty and abandoned their posts. 四元,—comp. 鱼荒 in the last Book, p. 8. 肾后,—not 肾疾 as above. Ta'so observes that when the princes of the empire took up their residence at court as high ministers, their style was changed from 疾 to 后.

Some time may have clapsed between the prince of Yin's being appointed commander of the imperial armies and his receiving this commission to punish He and Ho; but we naturally conclude that he led all his powers against them. And was it necessary to do this? They were not living in their own fiels, surrounded by other nobles yielding a reluctant submission to their superain. This circumstance harmonises with the view that He and Ho were in league with E, and that the main object intended by such a display of force was to overswe that dangerous chief, and to weaken his power by cutting off his confederates.

Ch. H., Pp. 2—7. This spends of the present of Vis. Pp. 2, 5. Irinciples of the State for the audience of afficers and others;—preparatory to the introduction and condamnation of He and Ho.

2. 医—the speech begins like than at Kan, Bh. II., p. 2. 聖有謨訓, 明徽定保—the 聖 here must refer to Yu. The Daily Explanation paraphrases the passage thus—我夏聖祖大禹·著有謨訓,其言皆明切徵驗可以定國保邦 It is quoted in the 左傳, 賽二十一年, with 動 for 訓一聖有護動,明徵定保 A meaning in there also put upon it not so natural at that which I give to it here. What follows are the commels of Yu. The Daily Explanation goes on to paraphrase them with a—謨訓有日. Lin Che-k'e observes that in means the commels offered by a minister to his sovea boat on it, while three thousand people [ would make their appearance at best of drumand drink up the liquor like so many exan. All government was neglected. In the mean time the avenger was growing up. Tang succeeded to his father's principality, a.c. 1783, and soon drew the regards of all thoughtful men to himself. The great officers who felt anhamed of Kee's vices, and mourned the condition of the empire, betook themselves to Shang; the people who grouned beneath the oppression of their lords, too many of whom followed Kee's example, sighed for the gentle rule of Tang. The emperor was roused to fits of jealousy, and at one time got T'ang in his power, and imprisoned him. He let him go, however; and at last, n.c. 1765, after many misgivings. Tang took the field against his sovereign. There could be no doubt as to the result. Heaven and earth combined with men to show their detestation of the tyrant. Two suns fought in the sky. The earth shock. Mountains were moved from their strong foundations. Rivers were dried up. Kee was routed, and fled south to Ts'sou, which is still the name of a district in the dep. of Loo-chow (M), in Ngan-hwuy, and there he was kept a prinoner till his death three years after. His son and some of his adherents made their way to the wilds of the north, and mingled among the barbarous tribes.

Thus mismably ended the dynasty of Hea, having extended, including the usurpations of E and Tsuh, over 439 years.

THE SHOO KING.

THE BOOKS OF SHANG. PART IV.

BOOK I. THE SPEECH OF TANG.

I. The king said, "Come, ye multitudes of the people, listen all to my words. It is not I, the little child, who dare to undertake what may seem to be a rebellious enterprize; but for the many crimes of the sovereign of Hea Heaven has given the charge to destroy him.

NAMES OF THIS PART .- THE Books | correctly referred to the dis. of Shang-k'ew of Shang.' (the roader will distinguish the character from [6], which is the title given to the whole of the Shoo. A Chinese scholar can discriminate them by their different tones) is the dynastic designation by which Tang and his descendants possessed the empire, 2.c. 1785— 1122, a period of 644 years. The family traced their origin up to Hwang-te, through 888, (271). a son of the emperor Kuh, and minister of Instruction to Yaou and Shun. For his services at that time he was invested with the principality of Shang, a part or the whole of the territory now forming the small department of Shang in Shan-so, and received the surname of Ters (-F). From See to Tang were fourteen generations; and we find the latter at a considerable distance from the ancestral flaf, and having his capital in the first place, before he dribraned Kilo, at the southern Pô, which seems

(H) dep. of Ewei-tih, in Ho-nan. The title of the dynasty, however, was derived from the original Shang to which S68 was appointed. We saw, on the 9th paragraph of the Preface, that more than one half the documents originally composing this Part of the Shoo were lost, while of the 11 Books which still claim to be received in it there are only 5 whose gennineness is not contested.

NAME OF THE BOOK. - WHY The Speech of Tang.' We must regard the not as the honorary poethumous title, but as the designation of the emperor during his lifetime; —see in the note on the Canon of Yaou, par. 1. His name, as we have it from himself, was Le (25). Sze-ms Te'een says it was 天 Z, of which I have not met with a milsfactory explanation.

- see on 'The Speech at Ean.'

When a sovereign's virtue is daily being renewed, he is cherished throughout the myriad States; when he is full of his own will, he is abandoned by the nine classes of his kindred. Exert-yourself, O king, to make your great virtue illustrious, and set up the pattern of the Mean before the people. Order your affairs by righteousness; order your heart by propriety:—so shall you transmit a grand example to posterity. I have heard the saying:—'He who finds instructors for himself, comes to the supreme dominion; he who says that others are not equal to himself, comes to ruin. He who likes to ask becomes enlarged; he who uses only himself becomes small.'

This par. is partially and imperfectly quoted in the 左傳 throe times. The first is under the 12th year of duke 宣; the second, under the 12th year of duke 宣; the second, under the 12th year of $\frac{1}{2}$; and the third, mader the 20th year also of Seang. See the arguments that have been raised on the three quotation against the genuineness of this Book, in Mingshing's 後秦, and the reply of Maou K'eling, in the 'Wrongs of the old Taxt of the Shoo, Hook, V. upon the 'Announcement of Chungheuny.' The quotation certainly prove that ware not to look for verbal accuracy in passages addinged from the classics in the 左傳, and I will add other unrient Books. 8 The above paragraph contained counsels of administration, in this the minister becomes more personal, and tells Tang what he insure do in the government of himself.

— these are general propositions, the personal application of which commerces with the next clause— 王林林大極。 Ta'ac ingeniously suggests that the inscription about daily renovation on T'ang's bathing-inb, 'Great Learning,' C., it is, may have been in consequence of Chung-hway's summer here. H 新

建甲丁民,-comp 允執廠中, in the Counsels of Yu, p. 18: 以義制事以體制心一righternaces is what the judgment of the mind determines to be 'right' in reference to what is beyond ourselves; 'propriety' is the regulation of our own feelings and behaviour, in accordance with all the Heaven-established relations of society.

垂裕後見.—in the Commels of Yu. p. 18, we had 且 in the source of 'afterwards.' Einre, joined with 後, the phrase 後是—'future futurity,' future ages.' The 'Daily Explanation' puraphrases the clause:—且非特可建中于民也,即垂凿心着 書物心者 其家法自足相承而有餘 答案 于聞.云云,—all this is intended to incutents humility on Tang.

王,—iow, 3d tone, 'to exercise, or come to ex-attracting the pronoun to itself.

ha Senga-tana, 堯間篇, we find 其在仲廳 (must be for )地之言也日,諸侯自為得師者王。得友者霸,得疑者存自為謀而莫已若者亡。 And in tem Pub-wet.

5 the favour of Heaven on behalf of you, my multitudes. High Heaven truly showed its favour to the inferior people, and the criminal has been degraded and subjected. Heaven's appointment is without error;—brilliantly now like the blossoming of flowers and trees, the millions of the people show a true reviving.

III. "It is given to me, the one man, to give harmony and tranquillity to your States and Families; and now I know not whether I may not offend the powers above and below. I am fearful and trembling, as if I should fall into a deep abyss.

time of the 'Announcement' but to a time subsequent to both, lowerla the close of the seven years of drought which followed his assumption of the empire. If all the discrepancies tell against the genulusness of the 'Announcement, they tell as much against the 'Speech,' as it is found both in Fub-shang's text, and in that attributed to Gan-kwa. Keang Shing, sware of this, edits the 'Speech of Tang' with the addition of the par, from the Analests, and of the sentence Ray Tom the Analests of the sentence Ray Tom the Analests and the sentence of the sentence Ray Tom the Analests and the Analests and dern text or the ancient. P. 5. The righterwaves of Tang's dethron-ment of Ket proved by the seem, and consequent 子-信 'truly 80 允 in property. the last clause. Hwang Too (黄度) puts the first clause very plainly - 天佑下民 信矣 # A. 'the ariminal;' this of course is Kee. 大命弗曆一管一 in error.' 'The appointment of Heaven' is the withdrawn of its favour from Hes, and the conferring of it on Shang,—the calling Trang to the throne in the room of Kes. 實若草木·兆民允殖—man passage which has conductally exercised the inguinity of the interpreters. If (read pe)-Fig. 'to adorn,' 'to be ornamented.' What is it that the adorning is here predicated of? The two Kunga, Gan-kwa and Ying-ca, say—the empire. The language of the former is:—'The evil-doer being cut off from the empire, all is brilliantly adorned, and beautiful as flowers and trees, while the people truly enjoy their life. Choo He takes the chanses as speciegation of the preceding The He chanses as speciegation of the preceding The He chanses as speciegation of the preceding the He chanses as speciegation of the preceding the head of things and the world of men are made beautiful and happy by it.' The editors of Yung-ching's Shoo give a great variety of views, several preferable, they say, to that of Gan-kwe, hus none so good as that of Choo He. I prefer to aboth by the oldest view.

I profer to abide by the oldest view.

Ch. III. Pp. 6-8. Targ's Freezewa And Fuercassistics of the Throws, and west for the Co-ornation of the fuercas and reast for the control of the fuercas and the cent would seem to flow an from something preceding, and in some editions it is given as belonging to p. 5, in which case 上天 would be the nominative to 傳. Whather we do so join it, or take the 傳 at the worderstood as from Rearen 这联末知程更工工一支, 'new,' might very well be taken as beginning a new par. 東一里上下一支, 'new,' might very will be taken as beginning a new par. 東一里上下一支, 'new,' might very will be taken as beginning a new par. 東一里上下一支, 'new,' might very will be taken as beginning a new par. 東一里上下一支, 'new,' might very will be taken as beginning a new par. 東一里上下一支, 'new,' might very will be taken as beginning a new par. 東一里上下一支, 'new,' might very will be taken as beginning a new par. 東一里上下一支, 'new,' might very will be taken as beginning a new par. 東一里上下一支, 'new,' might very will be taken as beginning a new par. 東一里上下一支, 'new,' might very will be taken as beginning a new par. 東一里上下一支, 'new,' might very will be taken as beginning a new par. 東一里上下一支, 'new,' might very will be taken as beginning a new par. 東一里上下一支, 'new,' might very will be taken as beginning to par. 3. Gun-kwō makes the whole to be a humble expression of doubt in dethroning Ket.—'I do not know whather I may not have offended,' &c. But we must suppose Tang to have now done with Ket. The prec, chapter shows him sufficiently assured on the subject of his dealings with him. Mintaze, in the passage referred to on p. 4, has

IV. "Oh! do you, who now succeed to the throne, revere these instructions in your person. Think of them |- Sacred counsels of vast importance, admirable words forcibly displayed. The ways of God are not invariable; on the good-doer He sends down all blessings, and on the evil-doer He sends down all miseries. Do you be but virtuous, without consideration of the smallness of your actions, and the myriad regions will have cause for congratulation. If you be not virtuous, without consideration of the greatness of your actions, they will bring the ruin of your ancestral temple."

ED .- A SOLEMA ADMOSTRON TO TAX-KEA TO POLLOW THE EXAMPLE OF TARG, AND TAKE STAW SIR OF GREEK might translate this be reverent of his person," but the commentators generally prefer to make the lessons of the last par, the object of ALL, and expand the passage by 敬之于 事, 'respect them in his person.' 洋洋一 'rast;' comp. 'Doctrine of the Mean,' xvi., S. 孔一大. 'great,' or 'greatly.' Z. Z.-Liu Che-k'e has said on this passage: King of Han says, "Cultivate your virtue, and not on a small scale; then the whole empire will have make for congratulation. Do what is not virtuous, and that not on a great scale, and you will overthrow your amestral temple. These are the instructions of E, showing his true royalty." The meaning of K'ung was that the emperor's virtue must be extremely great, and then he would make the myriad

On IV. P. 8. The Instructions concluded regions happy, while for the overthrow of his successful temple it was not necessary that his was ahowed the true devotion of E Yin. Kung of Tang lost this meaning of Gan-kwe, and explains it thus:—

In the control of th 為惡無大. is, a little wickedness will overthrow your ancestral temple, and how much more will great wickedness do so! These two expressions—因小田大 are antithetic, but their meaning is the same. Lin then endeavours to show that Gan-kwo's interpreta-tion is the only one admissible. The antithetic phrases are certainly somewhat perplexing. I consider that the one of them supposes also the other. Z / is equivalent to-'be it small or large,'; and 图 大 to-' be it large or emall.' The sendency of virtue and eice, without reference to their amount or degree, is as severally represented.

make lord of all the spirits. Then there were I, Yin, and Tang, both possessed of pure virtue, and able to satisfy the mind of Heaven. He received in consequence the bright favour of Heaven, and became master of the multitudes of the nine provinces, and this pure and constant virtue.' The translation shows that I take a different view of the phrase here. There was no virtue at all about Kee; it seems absurd to make E speak of him as if there could have been expected from him 慢神虛民 virtue of the highest style. -comp. last Book, Pt. iii., p. 1. | here is equivalent to H him there. 有命。-Gan-kwi mys for this-有大 命者開導之, 'to guide on the possess or of the decree of Heaven.' Lin Che-k'e, more correctly and as in the translation, expands-擇其將有天命而開導之 答求一德, 一德 is not 'eme virtue,' 之德不雜不息之義 即上所謂常德也. 'virtus purs and one, unmixed, uncreasing, what is called shove "constant virtue." It is the The the singleness or eincerity, of the 'Doctrine of the Mean, by which the three virtues of knowledge, magnanimity, and energy are carried into effect.

ays:—In ±. A pin Z ±. By In ±, is meant lord of the immedred (—all the) spirits. It is a name for the emperor as chief of the religiou of the empire.—In our phrase, those of the religiou of the empire.—In our phrase, those of the chims. Cheang Kewshing observes.—The sovereign is lord of all the spirits. Thus we read in the She King (Pt. III., Bk. II., Ods viii., at. 3). "May you be the lord of all the spirits." Being lord of the spirits, it follows that he is lord of the spirits, it follows that he is lord of the spirits, it follows that he is lord of the spirits, it follows that he is lord of the spirits. This is to the effect that the 'Head of the Courch' is the 'Head of the Sans' as well, and that either of the designations must be understood as inclusive of the other. The term ±, knowever, cannot be taken with the same force exactly in both the phrases. The 'lord of the people, is high above them, their ruler; the 'lord of the spirits' is only the president and director in their worship.

[A passage in the Record of Rites, Bk. A 法, par. 3, makes this modified meaning of the term 'lord,' as applied to the emperor in his relation to 'spirits,' very plain. It is there said 一有天下者祭百神,諸侯在 其地則拜之 The poessesor of the empire sacrifices to all the spirits; the princes only sacrifice to those that are within their territories." As sacrificing to the spirits, the emperor is their host ( ). In this passage of the Laws of Secrifice, I know that the hundred ill are the sais of the hills, rivers, forests, valleys, &c., and do not embrace the spirits of heaven or those of men. It was probably this prerogative of the emperor to the designation of him as 白 翩 之主. But the phrase has now a wider application. Gan-kwo says that the mi + in the text --天地神祇之主, 'lord of the spirits of heaven and the spirits of the carth.]

克 享 天心-享 la taken bene nain, to be estimble to, to correspond to. Ying-14 says: -- When one's virtue corresponds to the mind of the spirits, then they accept his offerings (德當耐意·胂乃享 之); hence 早 is to be taken as-當! This is beating about for a memning. I an there can be no doubt an to the meaning of III all here. Compare that Book, 发革夏正一发一 Pt. L. p. 2. 於是, 'and thereupon.' 'The flict, calls the char. B in 's connective conjunction,' Pang mails the year commence in II, the last sounth of winter, instead of the beginning of spring, after the practice of the Hea dyn. Liu Che k's says that from the language hore we may infer that the alteration of the commencement of the year legan with Tung, and was unknown before the Shang dyn. Whether this practice began with Tung or not is a

王心、曰、彭

9 is conformity to the uniform decision of the mind. Such virtue will make the people with their myriad surnames all say, 'How great are the words of the king!' and also, ' How single and pure is the king's heart!" It will avail to maintain in tranquillity the great possession of the former king, and to secure for ever the happy life of the multitudes of the people.

IV. "Oh! to retain a place in the seven-shrined temple of ancestors is a sufficient witness of virtue. To be acknowledged as chief by the myriad heads of families is a sufficient witness of one's government.

of all good actions. By what model shall a man order his constant that it shall always be virtuous? No invariable model can be supplied to him. But let him have a chief regard to this point,—that his actions be good, and be will not go far wrong. ______as in Ans. I., vill., 2. But what is to be the decisive characteristic of what is good? The answer to this question is in famous mying。一吾道一以貫之 (Ann. IV., xv.) The -has reference to the 12, which is in the little of the Book. Man has a monitor in regard to what is good and what is evil in his own breast. Let him only give a sunform abediance to the voice of this monitor, and his whote conduct will be ordered virtuous-ly. 9. The happy and great results of such 伸一使. will sause." d purtages course. A nominative is to be brought on from the last paragraph. 大哉王言,—the words of the king are those published in his ordinances of State. 克綏先王之禄 -the same nominative is to be supplied to as to 俾. 藤 is the 天藤, *Heavenconferred revenues, of the 'Counsele of Yn,' par. 17.

Ch. IV. Pp. 10, 11. THE CHARACTER OF HER'S GOVERNMENT AND VIRTUE WILL COMMAND SCHNOMPEDONENA IN THE LATMENT THE THE PUTTER. THE SOVERRION SHIPLES BE PREPARED. TO ACCEPT HELFS TO HIS VIRTUE KYAN SHOW THE 七世之廟 LOWEST OF THE PROPER

- the aucestral temple of seven generations,

The emperors had in their encestral temple the abrines with the spirit-tablets of seven of their ancestors; -- see on the ' Doctrine of the Meun, air. 4. But in the case of an emperor's possessing great merit, having displayed great virtue and rendered great services to his dynasty, his shrine might remain in addition to the seven regular shrines of the temple. This seems to be the metive presented to Tise-kis,—that be the metive presented to Tise-kis,—that of the case of being greatly virtuous, he might insure to all time a nicho—a shrine—in the accessival temple, and be looked up to by his descendants to the latest period of his dynasty. 長,-Lin Che-k's observes that 舊 夫一 萬姓 or 真民, the myriad surnames, or the myriads of the people, and that the whole phrase is equivalent to 天子, or 'emperor.' No doubt this explanation is correct, and I suppose that I is to be taken in the sense of husband, or head of a family. The idea is that when all the people readily submit to the emperor, the excellence of his government may be predicated.

No little controversy has been raised on this paragraph, and especially on the clause-Z That the imperial temple of uncestors in the Chow dynnety was fitted up with seven shrines as the rule is auknowledged on all hands; and there is no intimation in the classical books, or in any writings of a high antiquity, with perhaps one exception, which will be pointed out,—that the practice was different under the dynastics of Shang and Hes. About the middle of the second century of our era, Wei Younshing (草元成), a great scholar and minister, put forth the view that under the Shing dynasty, the ahrines in the imperial temple

1 I. Yuë having received charge to take the presidency of all the 2 officers, he presented himself before the king, and said, "Oh! intelligent kings act in reverent accordance with the ways of Heaven. The founding of States, and setting up of capitals; the appointing of sovereign kings, of princes and dukes, with their great officers Contents of the smooth Part, It has already been observed that this Part should be called 'The Connects of Yut.' In answer to the charge which he had received, Yut presents his advice on various points, all connected with the duty of the soversign, and the successful conducting of government. In the two last part, the emperor and the minister give expression to their confidence and complacency in each other.

Ch. I. Pp. 1—11. The convents or Yun.

1, 2. Occasion of the connects. All government is not for the gratification and plany of the governing, but for the second of the people. I. E. E.

Che-K's understands the phrase as demoting that Yus continued to act as the representative of the superor, doing everything for him, as the prime minister did fluring the period of mourning. Parkaps is was so. Woo-ting had said that his good assistant about speak for him.

2. 進于王-進 may be taken as in the translation, or we may we undertand 論 as the object of the verb. With regard to what follows—呜呼,明王云云, there is considerable difficulty.明王 would seem to be the subject of all the verbs that follow,李若,建設, and 超。后王, 'seversign king,' is understood to be a designation of the emperor (天子), and 君公 to stand for 諸侯 all the femilal princes under him. In this way, III I must be taken as singular, and to have reference to the first sovereign, the founder of the Chinese copire. This was the view of Ganhill. He translates:

'Le roi intelligent, qui autrefois se conforme avec respect a la loi du ciel, fouda l'empire et etablit une cour. Il assigns des lieux on devoient resider le roi, les grands vasseux, et les grands officiers. Co prince intelligent ne a'occupa pas des plaistre; il n'ent que le gouvernement de peuple on voe.' Te this translation he appende the foilowing octe:—'Here Ynë speaks of the first king of China, but what followe does not give us any light on the time when he reigned. One might still translate, it appears to me, in the piural, and say—the intelligent kings, the which made him any that he would greatly advance the fortunes of their House. In conadvance the fortunes of their House. In con-太伯: see Con. Ana, VIII., i.) and Chang-rung. (中羅; alias, 虞仲) both declined the dukedom of Chow in favour of Ke-leih, the first year of whose rule, as duke of Chow, dates in n.c. 1228.

Sza-ma Tween says that Tsoo-kea was lewd and disorderly ( ) and reigned only 16

Years.

[iii,] Lin-sin (農辛) messented to his father Two-kea, s.c. 1224, and died after a short reign of air years. That is all history records of him.

[17.] Linesin was followed by his brother Kang-ting (庚丁), who occupied the throne

21 years.

[v.] Woo-yih ( Z ), the son of Kang-ting, commenced his brief reign of 4 years in a.c. 1197. On this lat year, or in the year after, he removed the capital from P6 once more to the north of the Ho, somewhere in the dep. of Wel-hwuy, Ho-nan. He may have done this to be mearer the eastern part of the supire, which was disturbed in his time by risings of the wild tribes between the Hwan and mount Tue-

Woo-yih occupies an unerviable place in the annals of Chins, many attributing to him the first making of idole in China;—see Morrison's View of China for Philological purposes, and De Mailla's History, Vol. L. p. 217. The action on which the charge is based, however, was more that of a madman than of a devotes a freak of licentious folly, and not the hirth of any religious feeling, however perverted. Surma Te'esn simply tells us:一武 乙 無 道。 爲偶人謂之天神與之博 人爲行、天神不勝、乃僇 辱之為革囊盛血 仰而射 之命日射天。Woo-yili was without any right principle. He made the image of a man, and called it "the Spirit of Heaven," Then he gamed with it' ( iii -- played dice, or at chase), exusing some one to play for the image.
"The spirit of Heaven" was unsuccessful, on which he dispraced it, and made a leather bag which he filled with blood, and then placed shoft and shot at '(the image probably was in the bag well), 'calling this "shooting at Heaven." This is all the account we have in the ' Historical Records. De Mallia, I lengthe, is seeking for himself the narrative which he gives, that the emperor 'required all the people to adore the image, and address their yows to it. In the 4th year of his reign, while hunting between the Hu and the Wei, Woo-yih suddenly

Ta'min says that he was struck dead by lightning; and people recognize in that event

the just and appropriate vengence of Heaven which he had insuited. [vi.] Woe-yih was succeeded by his son The-ting, whose brief reign of three years ended B.O. 1191

[vii.] Te-yih (帝 乙), the son of The-ting, succeeded to his father, and reigned for 37 rears, dying in a.c. 1154. During his time the House of Chow greatly increased in power and graw in favour with the people throughout the empire. In the previous reign dake Ke hal signalized himself by repelling the incursions of certain wild hordes in the north. Having performed several similar exploits in the first year of To-yill, the emperor gave him the title, first of 'Master of the Pastors' (命為牧師), and subsequently invested him with the dignity of 'Chief of all the princes' (長伯).

In n.c. 1184, duke Ke-lein died, and was encceeded by his sun Ch'ang, who themseforth appears in history under the style of the 'Chief of the West' (西伯). The benevolence which he displayed in the gove of his own principality made the people everywhere long to be under his rule, and the man of greatest virtue and ability began to collect around him. In a.c. 1168, according to the generally acknowledged chronology, his son Fa (29), afterwards King Woo, the first emperor of the Chow dynasty, was born.

Chow-sin (新辛) succeeded to the empire, n.o. 1153. He had two brothers older than himself.-Ke, known as the viscount of Wei (設子股), and Chung-yen (仲介); but when they were born, their mother had only a scenariary place in the hurem. Before the birth of Chow-sin, however, she was raised to the dignity of supress, and she and Te-yih were persuaded, against their better judgment, to name him on that account successor to the throne, in prefarence to K'e. He appears in history with all the attributes of a tyrant. His natural abilities were more than ordinary; his eight and hearing were astonishingly acute; his strength made him a match he the strongest animals; he could make the worse appear to be the better reason, make the worse appear to be the better reason, when his ministers attempted to remonstrate with him; he was intemperate, extravagant, and would sacrifice everything to the gratification of his passions. He was the first, we are told, to me ivery chopsticks, which make the viscount of Ke ( ) corrowfully remonstrate with him. Ivery chapsticks, said he, will be followed by cups of gon; and them you will be wanting to est hears' paws and leopards' wombs, and proceed to other extravagancies. Your indulgance of your desires may gancies. Your indulgence of your desires may cost you the ampire. Such admonitions were of in m.c. 1146 in an expedition against the prince of Soo (有蘇氏), he received from him a lady of extraordinary beauty, called Take (18 H), of whom he became the thrall. It is the story of Kee and Me-he over again. Tu-ke was shamelessly husful and creel. The most floentious songs were composed for her annuaments, and the vilest dances exhibited. The court was at a place in the pres. dis. of K's (11 16), dep. of Wei-hway, and there a palace was srected for her, with a famous terrace or

THE BOOKS OF SHANG.

BOOK XI. THE VISCOUNT OF WEL

I. The viscount of Wei spoke to the following effect:—"Grand Tutor and Junior Tutor, the House of Yin, we may conclude, can no longer exercise rule over the four quarters of the empire. The great deeds of our founder were displayed in former ages, but by our being lost and maddened with wine, we have destroyed the effects Hisponical Nove. The conversation recorded to this Book is referred in the chromology to ac. 1122, the year immediately following the comquest of Le, and that in which the dynasty of Shang perished. The chron. does not make montion indeed, of this document; but it places in the above year the events meetinged in the 18th Bk. of the Con. Ann., Ch. 1,—how the riscount of Wei withdrew from Chow sin's court, and the viscount of Ke became a sizve, while Pe-km was put to death; and those events are supposed to have followed almost immediately after the conference between the worther which is here related. Difficulties might be raised against this view; but it is not worth while arguing a point of little importance, and where absolute certainty cannot be attained. The conversation between the viscount of Wei and his friends must have taken place near the time assigned to it,—in one of the closing years of the Shang dynasty.

NAME OF THE BOOK— The Viscount of Wel. This name seems to have been given after the fashiou of the Books of the Confucian Analogia. The characters begin the Book and are therefore adopted as its name. The Preface speaks of the viscount of Wel making his assumement to the Tutors, and the Book is accordingly placed in the division of "Announcements." Like that of the last Book, this arrangement is convenient rather than estisfactory.

Wel ( was the name of a principality of the 4th order (Men. V., Pa., ii. 3), the holder of which had the title of \( \frac{1}{2}\), which some have translated by 'viscount,' others by 'count,' and others again by 'marquia.' It was within the limits of the imperial domain, in the pres. dis. of Loo-shing ( \( \frac{1}{2}\) \( \frac{1}{2}\), dep. of Loo-gan ( \( \frac{1}{2}\) servant of another dynasty. But I tell you, O king's son, to go away as being the course for you. Formerly I injured you by what I said, but if you do not go forth now, our sacrifices will entirely 9 perish. Let us rest quietly in our several parts, and present ourselves to the former kings. I do not think of making my escape.

日所言題以書子, 'what I formerly said served to injure you.' It has been mentioned that Te-yih and his empress wished to leave the throne to Ke, and not to Chow-sin, but were dissunded from the purpose. It is supposed that the text refers to the advocacy at that time by the Grand Tutor of K'e's chains to the throne, which had made him all along an object of jenkousy and dislike to Chow.

Gun-kwo takes 刻 no 一病。 to be distressed for ; - me the 註 疏 is loc. Keang Shing, always ready to reject the received text, adopts from Wang Ch'ung (王夫) the reading of 孩子; but the mexning which he ingeniously brings out of 養 云 孩子 comes in effect to the saum thing as that usually followed. 全 乃 顧 際一世 must be understood 我乃順層一時 must be understood that the Grand Tutor speaks here of the sucrifices offered to the founder and all the departed emperous of the House of Shang. He must himself have belonged to the imperial line. It, as it is most likely, he was the viscount of Eq. in was an uncle of the emperor;—so the relationship between them is commonly represented. Twice expands the text:—我商家宗祀始厚整而無所托矣。 6. They must, such of them, do what they felt to be right. 自属一端一安。 as in like VII., Pt. i., p. 12. Twice expands circumstances require him to do. Gan-kwo, and here for a wander Keang Shing is at one with him, takes 端 in this puss, and in the Pwan-king, as will, so that 自 im—'take counsel with yourself.' It is dimently to tay what is the precise idea in 'presenting thannelves to the former kings.' I think it is this,—that if they did what was right, they should have consciences void of offence, as now beheld by their assessmen, or as hereafter to appear before them.

the Tue-kit, Pt. L. p. l. 顧諟天之明

The viscount of Wei appears to have acted on the advice given him by the Grand Tutor, and to have withdrawn from the court of Yin. The expression is the Ana., XVIII., 一做 子去之, may be considered as proving this. When and how he withdrawn however, it is not possible to ascertain. According to a description in the 左傳。信

Te send the account given by Seems fereen, after the death of Chow, he went out to meet king Woo at the head of his army, having with him the secrificial vessel of the Honee of Shang. He presented himself in miscrable plight, almost paked, with his hands bound behind him, and moving forward on his knees, when king Woo received him honourably, that was. This legend has been called in question. In the next Part of the Shoe we shall meet with the viscount again, and see him fusily enfected with the principality of Sang, there to continue the representative of the House of Shang.

if the viscount of Ke, whose name was Scuya ( ) was indeed the Grand Tutor of the text, he did not die with the dynasty, as he seems to have expected. The passage of the Analotz referred to says 'he became a slava' According to Ts'eem, he reproved Chow in the first place, and when his friends arged him to make his escape, he refused, and feigned himself to be mad, allowed his halt to hang about uncared for. Hing Woo found him in prison, and set him free, when he fied away to Corva. We shall most with him also again in the next

Park