I am very glad to know that the Sacred Books of the East, published years ago by the Clarendon Press, Oxford, which have been out-of-print for a number of years, will now be available to all students of religion and philosophy. The enterprise of the publishers is commendable and I hope the books will be widely read.

S. Radhakrishnan
PREFATORY NOTE TO THE NEW EDITION

Since 1948 the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO), upon the recommendation of the General Assembly of the United Nations, has been concerned with facilitating the translation of the works most representative of the culture of certain of its Member States, and, in particular, those of Asia.

One of the major difficulties confronting this programme is the lack of translators having both the qualifications and the time to undertake translations of the many outstanding books meriting publication. To help overcome this difficulty in part, UNESCO's advisers in this field (a panel of experts convened every other year by the International Council for Philosophy and Humanistic Studies), have recommended that many worthwhile translations published during the 19th century, and now impossible to find except in a limited number of libraries, should be brought back into print in low-priced editions, for the use of students and of the general public. The experts also pointed out that in certain cases, even though there might be in existence more recent and more accurate translations endowed with a more modern apparatus of scholarship, a number of pioneer works of the greatest value and interest to students of Eastern religions also merited republication.

This point of view was warmly endorsed by the Indian National Academy of Letters (Sahitya Akademi), and the Indian National Commission for Unesco.

It is in the spirit of these recommendations that this work from the famous series "Sacred Books of the East" is now once again being made available to the general public as part of the UNESCO Collection of Representative Works.
PUBLISHER'S NOTE

First, the man distinguished between eternal and perishable. Later he discovered within himself the germ of the Eternal. This discovery was an epoch in the history of the human mind and the East was the first to discover it.

To watch in the Sacred Books of the East the dawn of this religious consciousness of man, must always remain one of the most inspiring and hallowing sights in the whole history of the world. In order to have a solid foundation for a comparative study of the Religions of the East, we must have before all things, complete and thoroughly faithful translation of their Sacred Books in which some of the ancient sayings were preserved because they were so true and so striking that they could not be forgotten. They contained eternal truths, expressed for the first time in human language.

With profoundest reverence for Dr. S. Radhakrishnan, President of India, who inspired us for the task; our deep sense of gratitude for Dr. G. D. Deshmukh & Dr. D. S. Kothari, for encouraging assistance; esteemed appreciation of UNESCO for the warm endorsement of the cause; and finally with indebtedness to Dr. H. Rau, Director, Max Müller Bhawan, New Delhi, in procuring us the texts of the Series for reprint, we humbly conclude.

FIFTH KHANDHAKA.

(RULES FOR FOOT-CLOTHING, SEATS, VEHICLES, ETC.)

1. At that time the blessed Buddha dwelt at Râgagâhâ at the Vulture’s Peak.

Now at that time Seniya Bimbisâra, the king of Magadha, held rule and sovranity over eighty thousand townships\(^1\). And at that time there was at Kampâ a Setthi’s son named Sona Koâivisa\(^2\), delicately nurtured, on the soles of whose feet hair had grown.

Now when Seniya Bimbisâra, the king of Magadha, was holding an assembly of the eighty thousand overseers over those townships, he sent a message to Sona Koâivisa on some matter of business, saying, ‘Let Sona come hither. I desire Sona’s presence!’

2. Then spake the parents of Sona Koâivisa to him thus: ‘The king, dear Sona, wishes to see thy feet. But stretch not out thy feet, dear Sona, towards the

\(^1\) Gâma, which should be understood in the sense of parishes, not of villages.

\(^2\) This Sona is the reputed author of one of the Theragâthâs. It is interesting to notice that Kampâ, the capital of Aṅga, is here included under Magadha. Compare Aṅgâ-magadhesu in Mahâvagga I, 19, and the beginning sentences of the Sonadanda Sutta (Digha Nikâya), in which it is said that the revenues of the town of Kampâ had been bestowed by king Bimbisâra on the Brâhmaṇa Sonadanda.

king. Take thy seat cross-legged before the king, that the king may see thy feet as thou sittest there.' And they carried Sona Kolivisa in a palankee (to Râgagaha).

And Sona Kolivisa went to the place where Seniya Bimbisâra, the king of Magadha, was. And when he had come there, and had bowed down before Seniya Bimbisâra, the king of Magadha, he took his seat cross-legged before the king. And Seniya Bimbisâra, the king of Magadha, saw that hair had grown on the soles of the feet of Sona Kolivisa.

3. Now after Seniya Bimbisâra, the king of Magadha, had instructed the eighty thousand overseers over those townships in the things of this world he exhorted them, saying, 'Ye have now received from me instruction in the things of this world. Go now, and wait upon the Blessed One. The Blessed One himself shall instruct you in the things of eternity.'

Then the eighty thousand overseers over those townships went on to the Vulture's Peak.

4. Now at that time the venerable Sâgata was the attendant on the Blessed One. And the eighty thousand overseers over those townships went to the place where the venerable Sâgata was. And when they were come there they spake thus to the venerable Sâgata:

'The eighty thousand overseers over the townships are come here, Sir, to visit the Blessed One. It were well, Sir, that we should be granted an audience of the Blessed One.'

'Then do you, Sirs, stay here yet a moment, while I let the Blessed One know.'
5. Then the venerable Sâgata disappeared down the steps ¹ from before the very eyes of the eighty thousand overseers over those townships, and appeared before the Blessed One, and spake to the Blessed One, and said:

'Lord, the eighty thousand overseers over the townships are come here to visit the Blessed One. Let the Blessed One do as seemeth to him fit.'

'Do thou then, Sâgata, make a seat ready in the shade of the house.'²

6. 'Even so, Lord!' said the venerable Sâgata, in assent, to the Blessed One. And taking a chair, he disappeared from before the Blessed One, and reappeared up the steps before the very eyes of those eighty thousand overseers over those townships, and made ready a seat in the shade of the house.

And the Blessed One came out of the house and sat down on the seat made ready in the shade thereof.

7. Then those eighty thousand overseers over the townships went up to the place where the Blessed One was. And when they had come there they bowed down before the Blessed One and took their seats on one side. But those eighty thousand overseers over the townships paid more respect in their hearts to the venerable Sâgata than to the Blessed One.³

And the Blessed One perceived by his mind the thoughts of the minds of those eighty thousand overseers over the townships; and he addressed the venerable Sāgata, and said: 'Show them now, Sāgata, a still greater wonder, beyond the power of men.'

'Even so, Lord!' said the venerable Sāgata, in assent, to the Blessed One. And rising up into the air he walked, and stood, and sat, and lay down, and gave forth smoke and fire, and disappeared in the sky.

8. Then the venerable Sāgata, when he had shown in the open sky wonders of various kinds beyond the power of men, fell down with his head at the feet of the Blessed One, and said to the Blessed One:

'My teacher, Lord, is the Blessed One; and I am the disciple. My teacher, Lord, is the Blessed One; and I am the disciple.'

Then those eighty thousand overseers over the townships thinking, 'Wonderful is it, most marvellous! If even the pupil be so mighty and so powerful, how much more then the master!' paid more respect in their hearts to the Blessed One than to the venerable Sāgata.

9. Then the Blessed One perceived by his mind the thoughts of the minds of those eighty thousand overseers over the townships, and held to them a discourse in due order; that is to say, he spake to them of giving, of righteousness, of heaven, of the danger, the worthlessness, the depravity of lusts, and of the advantages of renunciation. And when the Blessed One perceived that they had become pliant, softened, unprejudiced, upraised and believing in heart, then he proclaimed that which is the special doctrine of the Buddhas; (that is to say), Suffering, its Origin, its Cessation, and the Path.
Just as a clean cloth, from which all stain has been washed away, would readily take the dye, just even so did those eighty thousand overseers over the townships obtain, even while sitting there, the pure and spotless Eye of the Truth; (that is to say, the knowledge that) whatsoever has a beginning, in that is inherent also the necessity of dissolution.

10. And having seen the Truth, having mastered the Truth, having understood the Truth, having penetrated the Truth, having overcome uncertainty, having dispelled all doubts, having gained full knowledge, dependent on nobody else for the knowledge of the doctrine of the Teacher, they said to the Blessed One: 'Glorious, Lord! glorious, Lord! Just as if one should set up, Lord, what had been overturned, or should reveal what had been hidden, or should point out the way to one who had lost his way, or should bring a lamp into the darkness, in order that those who had eyes might see visible things, thus has the Blessed One preached the doctrine in many ways. We take our refuge, Lord, in the Blessed One, and in the Dhamma, and in the fraternity of Bhikkhus; may the Blessed One receive us from this day forth while our life lasts as his disciples who have taken their refuge in Him.'

11. And Sona Koliṣṭha thought: 'As I understand the Dhamma proclaimed by the Blessed One, it is not easy to a person living as a layman to lead a wholly perfect and pure and altogether consummate 1 life of holiness. What if I were to cut off my hair and beard, and to put on yellow robes, and give up the world, and go forth into the houseless state.'

1 Sāṅkhaliṣṭha. See Boehtlingk-Łoth s.v. Likhiṣṭha.
And those eighty thousand overseers over the townships, having expressed their joy and delight at the words of the Blessed One, rose from their seats, respectfully saluted the Blessed One, and passing round him with their right sides towards him, went away.

12. And Sona Kolivisa, soon after those eighty thousand overseers over the townships had departed, went to the place where the Blessed One was. And when he had come there he bowed down before the Blessed One and took his seat on one side. Sitting on one side Sona Kolivisa said to the Blessed One: 'As I understand the Dhamma proclaimed by the Blessed One (&c., as in § 11, down to :) and go forth into the houseless state. I desire, Lord, to cut off my hair and beard, and to put on yellow robes, and to give up the world, and to go forth into the houseless state. May the Blessed One, Lord, ordain me.'

Thus Sona Kolivisa received from the Blessed One the pabbaggâ and upasampadâ ordinations. And the venerable Sona, soon after his upasampadâ, dwelt in the Stavana grove.

13. As he, with eager determination, was walking up and down there, his feet were injured, and the place in which he walked became covered with blood, like a slaughter-house for oxen. Then in the mind of the venerable Sona, who had gone apart and was plunged in meditation, there sprung up this thought:

'Though I have become one of those disciples of the Blessed One who live in the exercise of strenuous determination, yet my heart has not been set free from the Āsavas through absence of craving. And there is much wealth laid up, for me at home. It is possible both to enjoy that wealth, and to do good deeds. Let me now, then, returning to the lower state\(^1\), enjoy my wealth and do good deeds.'

14. Now the Blessed One perceived in his mind the thought of the heart of the venerable Sona; and as quickly as a strong man can stretch forth his arm, or can draw it back again when it has been stretched forth, he disappeared from the hill of the Vulture's Peak, and appeared in the Sitavana grove. And the Blessed One, as he was passing through the sleeping-places (of the Bhikkhus), came up, with a multitude of Bhikkhus, to the place where the venerable Sona had walked up and down.

When the Blessed One saw that the place where the venerable Sona had walked up and down was covered with blood, he addressed the Bhikkhus, and said: 'Whose walking-place\(^2\) is this, O Bhikkhus, which is covered with blood, like a slaughter-house for oxen?'

'As the venerable Sona, Lord, was walking up and down here with eager determination, his feet were injured; and so this place has become covered with blood, like a slaughter-house for oxen.'

15. Then the Blessed One went on to the house in which the venerable Sona was living, and sat down there on a seat made ready for him. And the venerable Sona bowed down before the Blessed

\(^2\) Kāṅkama, for which there is no real equivalent in English. In speaking of later periods the word 'cloister' is sometimes a correct rendering, for the places in which the recluses walked up and down, thinking, were then in some cases paved and even roofed. The Chinese pilgrim I-tsing has a description of such a stone kāṅkama, which he saw at the great monastery at Nālandā (Indian Antiquary, X, 192). In this passage it only means a narrow, open, space of ground, levelled and cleared for the purpose.

And when he was thus seated, the Blessed One addressed the venerable Sona, and said: 'Is it not true, Sona, that in your mind, when you had gone apart and were plunged in meditation, there sprung up this thought: “Though I have become (¢c., as in § 13, down to the end)”

'Even so, Lord!'

'Now what think you, Sona,—you were skilled, were you not, when you formerly lived in the world, in the music of the lute?'

'That was so, Lord!'

'Now what think you, Sona,—when the strings of your lute\(^1\) were too much stretched, had your lute then any sound, was it in a fit state to be played upon?'

'Not so, Lord!'

16. 'Now what think you, Sona,—when the strings of your lute were too loose, had your lute then any sound\(^2\), was it in a fit state to be played upon?'

'Not so, Lord!'

'Now what think you, Sona,—when the strings of your lute were neither too much stretched nor too loose, but fixed in even proportion, had your lute sound then, was it then in a fit state to be played upon?'

'Yes, Lord!'

'And just so, Sona, does too eager a determination conduce to self-righteousness, and too weak a determination to sloth. [17.] Do thou, therefore, O Sona, be steadfast in evenness of determination, press through to harmony of your mental powers. Let that be the object of your thought!'

'Even so, Lord!' said the venerable Sona, and hearkened to the word of the Blessed One.

And when the Blessed One had exhorted the venerable Sona with this exhortation, then, as quickly as a strong man can stretch forth his arm, or can draw it back again when it has been stretched forth, he vanished from the presence of the venerable Sona in the Sitavana grove, and reappeared on the hill of the Vulture's Peak.

18. Thenceforward the venerable Sona was steadfast in evenness of determination, he pressed through to harmony of his mental powers, that did he take as the object of his thought. And the venerable Sona remaining alone and separate, earnest, zealous, and resolved, attained ere long to that supreme goal of the higher life for the sake of which noble youths go out from all and every household gain and comfort to become houseless wanderers—yea, that supreme goal did he, by himself, and while yet in this visible world, bring himself to the knowledge of, and continue to realise, and to see face to face! And he became conscious that rebirth was at an end, that the higher life had been fulfilled, that all that should be done had been accomplished, and that after this present life there would be no beyond!

1 Buddhaghosa says: Tattha āvānimittam gan̄hātti: tasmām samathe sati yena ādāse mukhabimben' eva nimittena uppagi-tabbam, tam samatha-nimittam vipassanā-nimittam magga-nimittam phala-nimittān āvā hi nipattettti (i nipphādehi, nibbattehi) attho.
So the venerable Sona became yet another among the Arahats.

19. Now when the venerable Sona had attained to Arahatship there occurred to him the thought: 'Let me now make known my Insight in the presence of the Blessed One.'

Then the venerable Sona went to the place where the Blessed One was, and bowed down before the Blessed One, and took his seat on one side. And when he was thus seated, the venerable Sona said to the Blessed One:

20. ‘Whatsoever Bhikkhu, Lord, is an Arahat whose Åsavas are rooted out, who has lived the life, who has accomplished the task, who has laid aside every burden, who has gained the end he had in view, who has quite broken the fetter of a craving for (future) existence, who is completely set free by insight, six things doth he reach up unto—unto renunciation, unto the love of solitude, unto kindness of heart, unto the destruction of craving, unto the destruction of thirst, unto the getting free from delusions.

21. ‘Now it may be, Lord, that it might occur, regarding this matter, to some brother, thus: “For the sake of faith merely hath this brother attained

1 It is often represented in the Pâli Piṭakas to have been a customary thing for any one who thought he had attained to Arahatship to deliver a discourse in the presence of Gotama, as a kind of proof, or test, of his emancipation; and to receive the decision of Gotama thereupon. Buddhaghosa says: Aññam vyākareyyan ti: arahā ahan ti gânāpeyyam. Compare Gâtaka I, 140; II, 333.

unto renunciation." But not thus, Lord, should this matter be regarded. For the Bhikkhu in whom the Āsavas are rooted out, who has lived the life, who has accomplished the task, he looks not upon himself as one who has anything yet to do, or to gather up, of (the fruit of his past) labour; but he attaineth to renunciation by the destruction of lust, by the very condition of the absence of lust; he attaineth to renunciation by the destruction of ill-will, by the very condition of the absence of ill-will; he attaineth to renunciation by the destruction of delusions, by the very condition of the absence of delusions.

22. 'Now it may be, Lord, that it might occur, regarding this matter, to some brother, thus: "Seeking after gain, hospitality, and fame hath this brother attained to the love of solitude." But not thus (&c., as in § 21, down to the end, substituting "love of solitude" for "renunciation").

23. 'Now it may be, Lord, that it might occur, regarding this matter, to some brother, thus: "Returning, verily, to the dependence upon works, as if that were the true essence (of spiritual welfare), hath this brother attained to kindness of heart." But not thus (&c., as in § 21, down to the end, substituting "kindness of heart" for "renunciation").

24. 'He attaineth to the destruction of craving by the destruction of lust (&c., as in § 21, down to the end, substituting "absence of craving" for "renunciation"). He attaineth to the absence of thirst (&c.; as in § 21). He attaineth to the absence of delusions (&c., as in § 21, down to the end).

25. 'When a Bhikkhu, Lord, has thus become fully emancipated in heart, even though many objects visible to the sight should enter the path of his eye \(^1\), yet they take not possession of his mind: undefiled is his mind, firm, immovable; and he sees into the (manner which that impression) passes away\(^2\)—even though many objects audible to the ear, smellable to the nostrils, tastable to the tongue, feelable by the body, sensible to the intellect should enter the path of the ear, the nose, the tongue, the skin, the intellect, yet they take not possession of his mind: undefiled is his mind, firm, immovable, and he sees into the (manner in which that impression) passes away.

26. 'Just, Lord, as if there be a mountain of rock, undivided, solid, one mass, and much wind and rain should fall upon it from the direction of the East, or of the West, or of the North, or of the South, yet they would not make it shake, or tremble, or quake; just so, Lord, when a Bhikkhu has thus become fully emancipated in heart (&c., as in § 25, down to the end).

27. 'He who has attained to renunciation, to solitude of heart, who has attained to kindness, and to the rooting out of craving,—

'He who has attained to the rooting out of thirst, to the absence of delusions from the mind, he sees the source of sensations, his mind is quite set free.

'To such a Bhikkhu, so emancipated, and with calmness in his heart, there is no gathering up of what is done, nothing to be done still remains.

'As a rock, all of one mass, is not shaken by ‘Things wished for, things unwished—make tremble such a one. Firm is his mind, set free. He sees into the end thereof.’

28. And the Blessed One addressed the Bhikkhus, and said: ‘Thus, brethren, do young men of worth make their insight known. The truth is spoken, and the self is not obtruded. But herein some foolish ones, methinks, make known their insight to be a thing ridiculous, and they, thereafter, fall into defeat!’

29. Then the Blessed One said to the venerable Sonā, ‘You, Sonā, have been delicately nurtured. I enjoin upon you, Sonā, the use of shoes with one lining\textsuperscript{2}.’

‘I have gone out from the world, Lord, into the houseless state, abandoning eighty cart-loads of gold\textsuperscript{3}, and a retinue of seven elephants\textsuperscript{4}. It will be said against me for this matter: “Sonā Kolivisa went out from the world into the houseless state, abandoning eighty cart-loads of gold, and a retinue of seven elephants; but the very same man now accustoms himself to the use of shoes with a lining

Then the Blessed One, on that occasion, having delivered a religious discourse, thus addressed the Bhikkhus:

'I enjoin upon you, O Bhikkhus, the use of shoes with one lining to them. Doubly lined shoes, Bhikkhus, are not to be worn, nor trebly lined ones, nor shoes with many linings. Whosoever shall wear such, is guilty of a dukkata offence.'

People were annoyed (&c., as in § 3, down to the end, substituting 'shoes adorned with lion-skins, &c.,' for 'shoes with heel-coverings, &c.',)

1. Now the Blessed One, having dressed early in the morning, went into Rāgagaha, duly bowled and robed, for alms, with a certain Bhikkhu as his companion. And that Bhikkhu followed limping step by step behind the Blessed One.

Now a certain lay-disciple who had put on a pair of shoes with many linings, saw the Blessed One approaching from afar. And when he saw him, he took off that pair of shoes and went up to the Blessed One, and saluted him; and went on to that Bhikkhu, and saluted him, and said:

2. 'Why does your reverence limp?'
'My feet, friend, are blistered.'
'But here, Sir, are shoes.'
'Enough, good friend! shoes with linings have been forbidden by the Blessed One.'
'Take the shoes, O Bhikkhu!'

Then the Blessed One, on that occasion, having delivered a religious discourse, addressed the Bhikkhus, and said:

'I allow you, O Bhikkhus, the use of shoes with linings, when they have been cast off by others. But new shoes with linings are not to be worn. Whosoever does so, is guilty of a dukkata offence.'

1. Now at that time the Blessed One walked up and down in the open air unshod. Noticing that, 'The Master walks unshod,' the Elders (the Thera Bhikkhus) also went unshod when they were walking up and down. But though the Master and the Thera Bhikkhus went unshod, the Kātabaggiya Bhikkhus walked up and down with coverings on their feet.

1 This must be understood as spoken by the Buddha.
2 Omukkan ti paśavālitvā apāntam (B.).
3 This walking up and down thinking is represented as a constant habit of the early Buddhist Samavas.
The temperate Bhikkhus were annoyed, murmured, and became angry, saying, 'How can these Khabbaggiya Bhikkhus walk shod, when the Master and the Thera Bhikkhus walk unshod?'

2. Then those Bhikkhus told this thing to the Blessed One.

'Is it true, what they say, O Bhikkhus, that the Khabbaggiya Bhikkhus walk shod, though the Master and the Elders walk unshod?'

'It is true, Lord.'

The Blessed Buddha rebuked them, saying,

'How, O Bhikkhus, can these foolish persons walk shod, though (&c., as in §§ 1, 2). For even the laymen, O Bhikkhus, who are clad in white, for the sake of some handicraft that may procure them a living, will be respectful, affectionate, hospitable to their teachers. [3.] Do you, therefore, O Bhikkhus, so let (your light) shine forth, that you having left the world (to enter into) so well taught a doctrine and discipline may be respectful, affectionate, hospitable to your teachers (âkariyas), or those who rank as teachers, and to your superiors (upaggâyas), or those who rank as superiors. 'Think of you, O Bhikkhus, is to walk shod, when your teachers or those who rank as teachers, or your superiors, or those who rank as superiors, are walking unshod. Whosoever does so, is guilty of a dukkata offence.

'And no one of you, O Bhikkhus, is to wear shoes in the open Arâma. Whosoever does so, is guilty of a dukkata offence.'

1. Now at that time a certain Bhikkhu had an eruption¹ on his feet. They used to carry that Bhikkhu out when he wanted to ease himself. The Blessed One as he was passing through the sleeping places (of the Bhikkhus) saw them (doing so), and going up to them, he said:

2. 'What is the disease, O Bhikkhus, from which this Bhikkhu suffers?'

'This venerable brother has an eruption on his feet, Lord, and we are carrying him out to ease himself.'

Then, on that occasion, the Blessed One, having delivered a religious discourse, addressed the Bhikkhus, and said:

'I enjoin, O Bhikkhus, the use of foot coverings by one whose feet hurt him, or are blistered, or who has an eruption on his feet.'

6.

1. Now at that time the Bhikkhus used to get up on to couches or chairs with unwashed feet; and the robes and seats became soiled.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I enjoin, O Bhikkhus, the use of foot coverings when one of you wishes to get up on to couches or chairs.'

2. Now at that time when the Bhikkhus were going to the Upasatha Hall or to the assembly in the dark, they trod upon stakes or thorns, and their feet were hurt.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I enjoin, O Bhikkhus, the use of foot coverings in the open Árâma, and of a torch, or lamp, and a walking stick.'

3. Now at that time the Khabbaggīya Bhikkhus used to rise up in the night towards dawn; and, putting on wooden shoes, walked up and down in the open air talking, in tones high, loud, and harsh, of all kinds of worldly things—such as tales of kings, of robbers, of ministers of state; tales of armies, of terror, of war; conversation respecting meats, drinks, clothes, couches, garlands, perfumes, relationships, equipages, villages, towns, cities, provinces, women, warriors, and streets; tales about buried treasures, ghost stories; various tales; discussions on the world; disasters by sea; things which are, and things which are not. And so doing they both trod upon and slew all kinds of insects, and disturbed the Bhikkhus in their meditations.

4. The moderate Bhikkhus were annoyed, murmured, and became angry, saying, ‘How can the Khaṇḍagiriya Bhikkhu [do so]?’

And those Bhikkhus told this thing to the Blessed One.

‘Is it true’ (&c., comp. chap. 4. 2)?

‘It is true, Lord.’

He rebuked them, and having delivered a religious discourse, he addressed the Bhikkhus, and said: ‘Wooden shoes, O Bhikkhus, are not to be worn. Whosoever wears them, is guilty of a dukkata offence.’

7.

1. Now when the Blessed One had remained at Rāgagaha as long as he thought fit, he set out on his journey towards Benares. And wandering from place to place, he came to Benares, and there at Benares the Blessed One stayed in the deer-park Isipatana.

Now at that time the Khaṇḍagiriya Bhikkhu, since the Blessed One had forbidden wooden shoes, used to break off young palmyra palms, and wear shoes made of the talipat leaves. The young palmyra plants withered. People were annoyed, murmured, and became angry, saying, ‘How can

'It is true, Lord.'

The Blessed Buddha rebuked them, saying, 'How can those foolish persons, O Bhikkhus, [act thus]? For people believe, O Bhikkhus, that life dwells in a tree. Such conduct will not conduce (&c., as in chap. 4. 2, down to :) becoming estranged

1. Now when the Blessed One had remained at Benares as long as he thought fit, he set out on his journey towards Bhaddiya. And wandering from place to place he came to Bhaddiya: and there, at Bhaddiya, he stayed in the Gatiyâ Grove.

Now at that time the Bhikkhus at Bhaddiya were accustomed to the use of various kinds of foot coverings for the sake of ornament. They made, or had made for themselves foot coverings of tīna-grass, of muṅga-grass, of babbaga-grass, of the leaves of the date-palm, of kamala-grass, and of wool. And they neglected instruction, enquiry, morality, self-concentration, and wisdom.

2. The moderate Bhikkhus were annoyed, murmured, and became angry, thinking, 'How can they [do so]?' And those Bhikkhus told this thing to the Blessed One.

'Is it true' (&c., as in chap. 4. 2)?

'It is true, Lord.'

The Blessed Buddha rebuked them, saying, 'How can they [do so]?' This will not conduce (&c., as in chap. 4. 2, down to :) becoming estranged.

3. Having thus rebuked them, and having delivered a religious discourse, he thus addressed the Bhikkhus: 'Shoes, O Bhikkhus, made of tīna-grass are not to be worn, or made of muṅga-grass, or of babbaga-grass, or of leaves of the date-palm, or of kamala-grass, or of wool, nor [ornamented with] gold, or silver, or pearls, or beryls, or crystal, or copper, or glass, or tin, or lead, or bronze. 1. Now when the Blessed One had remained at Bhaddiya as long as he thought fit, he set out on a journey towards Sāvatthi. And walking from place to place he arrived at Sāvatthi. There the Blessed One dwelt at Sāvatthi at the Getavana, Anātha-piṇḍika's Grove.

A very ancient pair of stone vaṭṭa-pâdukâ, forming part of a slab of stone, was discovered at Anurâdhapura by Rhys Davids, and is now in the Colombo Museum. As they were dug up in one of the palaces there, they were probably for the use of the king, or some high official. 'It is true, Lord.'

He rebuked them, and having delivered a religious discourse, he addressed the Bhikkhus, and said:

10. Now at that time a certain Bhikkhu, as he was passing through the Kosala country to Sâvatthi, to visit the Blessed One, was taken ill on the way. And that Bhikkhu went aside out of the road, and sat down at the foot of a certain tree.

When people saw him sitting there, they said: 'Whither is your reverence going?'

'I am going, friends, to Sâvatthi to visit the Blessed One.'

2. 'Come along, Sir; let us go together.'

'I cannot, friends. I am sick.'

'Well then, Sir, get up into the cart.'

'Enough, friends! The Blessed One has forbidden the use of vehicles.' And fearing to offend, he refused to get up into the cart.

And when that Bhikkhu had come to Sâvatthi, he told this thing to the Bhikkhus, and they told it to the Blessed One.

Now at that time a certain Bhikkhu was exceedingly distressed by the jolting of a cart.

3. Now at that time the K\(\ddot{h}\)abbaggiya Bhikkhus were in the habit of using lofty and large things to recline upon, that is to say: large cushions\(^2\); divans; coverlets with long fleece; counterpanes of many colours, woollen coverlets\(^3\), white or marked with thick flowers; mattresses; cotton coverlets, dyed with figures of animals; rugs with long hair on one or both sides; carpets inwrought with gold, or with silk; large woollen carpets such as the nautch girls dance upon\(^4\); rich elephant housings, horse-rugs, or carriage-rugs; panther or antelope skins; couches covered with canopies, or with crimson cushions at both ends\(^5\).

Several of the items are also mentioned among the possessions of the Great King of Glory (Rh. D., loc. cit., p. 274, &c.). In several cases the exact meaning is at present quite uncertain. The comment on the last two words runs as follows: Sauttaraṇkhadān ti saha uttara-
When people, who went to visit the Vihāras, saw these things, they were annoyed, murmured, and became angry, thinking, 'This is as if they were still enjoying the pleasures of the world.'

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

4. 'Lofty and large things to recline upon, such as large cushions (&c., as in § 3, down to:) cushions crimson at both ends, are not, O Bhikkhus, to be used. Whosoever uses them, is guilty of a dukkata offence.'

5. Now at that time the Khabbaggiya Bhikkhus, since the use of lofty and large things to recline upon had been forbidden by the Blessed One, used to use fine skins, such as lion, tiger, and panther skins. These skins were cut to fit the couches, and to fit the chairs; and were spread inside or outside the couches or the chairs.

When people, who went to visit the Vihāras, saw these things, they were annoyed, murmured, and became angry, thinking, 'This is as if they were still enjoying the pleasures of the world.'

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

6. 'Fine skins, such as lion, tiger, and panther skins, are not, O Bhikkhus, to be used. Whosoever does so, is guilty of a dukkata offence.'

7. Now at that time the Khabbaggiya Bhikkhus, since fine skins had been forbidden by the Blessed
One, began to use the skins of oxen. These skins were cut to fit the couches, or the chairs; and were spread inside or outside the couches, or the chairs.

Now a certain Bhikkhu of bad character was a friend of the family of a certain lay-disciple of a bad character. And that bad Bhikkhu, early one morning, dressed himself, and with his robe on and his bowl in his hand, went to the dwelling-place of that bad disciple, and sat down on a seat made ready for him. And the bad disciple went up to the place where the bad Bhikkhu was, and saluted him, and took his seat beside him.

8. Now at that time that bad disciple had a young bull beautiful to behold, quiet, and varied in colour like a panther's cub. And the bad Bhikkhu gazed with longing at the bull. And that bad disciple said to that bad Bhikkhu: 'Why does your reverence gaze so with longing at that bull?'

'My friend,' said he, 'I want that bull's skin.'

Then that bad disciple slew that bull, and skinned it, and gave it to that bad Bhikkhu. And that bad Bhikkhu, hiding that skin under his robe, went away.

9. Now the cow, greedy for her calf, followed that bad Bhikkhu, keeping behind him. The Bhikkhus said:

'How is it, friend, that this cow keeps following so behind you?'

'I don't know, friends, why it should keep following me.'

But that bad Bhikkhu's robe was soiled with blood; and the Bhikkhus asked him,

'How has this robe of yours got marked with blood?'

Then he told them the whole matter.
‘How is that, Sir? You have been causing another to deprive a living thing of life!’
‘That is so, friends.’

The modest among the Bhikkhus were annoyed, murmured, and became angry, saying, ‘How can this Bhikkhu induce a man to deprive a living thing of life? Has not the taking of life been censured, and the abstinence therefrom been praised in many a discourse by the Blessed One?’

And the Bhikkhus told this thing to the Blessed One.

Then the Blessed One held because of this, and on that occasion, an assembly of the community of Bhikkhus, and asked that wicked Bhikkhu,

‘Is it true, as they say, that you, O Bhikkhu, have been inducing another to deprive a living thing of life?’
‘It is true, Lord.’
‘But how can you be so foolish as to do so? Have I not censured in many a discourse the taking of life, O foolish one, and praised the abstinence therefrom? Such conduct, thou foolish one, will not conduce to the conversion of the unconverted!’

And having thus rebuked him, and delivered a religious discourse, he addressed the Bhikkhus, and said:

‘Bhikkhus! No one shall cause a living thing to be deprived of life. Whosoever does so shall be dealt with according to the Laws. Ox-skins are not to be worn, O Bhikkhus. Whosoever does so, is guilty of a dukkata offence. And neither, O Bhikkhus, is any skin to be made use of at all. Whosoever does so, is guilty of a dukkata offence.’

Now at that time men had couches and chairs covered or bound with skins. The Bhikkhus, fearing to offend, would not sit down upon them. They told this thing to the Blessed One.

‘I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to sit down on seats arranged by laymen, but not to lie down upon them.’

Now at that time the Vihâras were bound together by thongs made of skin \(^1\). The Bhikkhus fearing to offend, would not sit down upon them.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

‘I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to sit down upon (skins when they are) only used for binding things together.’

12.

Now at that time the Ḳhabbaggiya Bhikkhus used to go into the villages with their shoes on. The people were annoyed, murmured, and became angry, saying, ‘That is how those behave who are still enjoying the pleasures of the world!’

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

‘You are not to go into the villages, O Bhikkhus, with your shoes on. Whosoever does so, is guilty of a dukkāṣa offence.’

Now at that time a certain Bhikkhu was sick, and unable to go into the village without shoes on.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

‘I allow a sick Bhikkhu, O Bhikkhus, to go into the village with his shoes on.’

13. Now at that time the venerable Mahā Kakāyana was staying in Avanti on the hill called the Precipice, near Kuraraghara. And at that time the lay-disciple named Sona Kuṭikanṇa was the personal attendant upon the venerable Mahā Kakāyana.

And the disciple Sona Kuṭikanṇa went to the place where the venerable Mahā Kakāyana was, and saluted him, and took his seat beside him. And when he was thus seated, he said to the venerable Mahā Kakāyana:

‘As I understand the doctrine laid down by the venerable Mahā Kakāyana, it is difficult for the man who dwells at home to live the higher life in all its fulness, in all its purity, in all its bright perfection. I wish therefore to cut off my hair and beard, to clothe myself in the orange-coloured robes, and to go forth from the household life into the houseless state. May the venerable Mahā Kakāyana receive me into the Order of those who have renounced the world!’

2. ‘Hard is it, Sona, your life long to live the higher life using only one bed, and with but one meal a day. Do you, therefore, Sona, remain in the state of a householder, and practise only for a time the higher life, the precepts of the Buddhas, using only one bed, and with but one meal a day.'

Then the desire for renunciation\(^1\) which had arisen in the disciple Sona Kutikanna abated in him.

A second time the disciple Sona Kutikanna [made the same request, and received the same reply with the same result].

And a third time Sona Kutikanna made the same request. Then the venerable Mahâ Kakkâyana conferred the pabboppagga (ordination) on the disciple Sona Kutikanna.

Now at that time in the Southern country and in Avanti there were but few Bhikkhus. And it was only after the lapse of three years that the venerable Mahâ Kakkâyana was able, with difficulty, and with trouble, to get together a meeting of the Order in which ten Bhikkhus were present\(^2\). And then he admitted the venerable Sona into the higher rank of the Order.

3. Now when the venerable Sona had passed the rainy season there sprang up in his mind, when he was meditating alone, this thought:

‘I have heard indeed that the Blessed One is such and such a one. But I have not as yet seen him face to face. I should like to go and visit the Blessed One, the Arahat Buddha, if my superior would allow me.’

And in the evening the venerable Sona, leaving his solitude, went to the place where the venerable

Mahā Kakkāyana was, and saluted him, and took his seat beside him. And when he was thus seated, he said to the venerable Mahā Kakkāyana:

4. ‘When I was meditating alone, venerable Sir, the following thought occurred to my mind, “I have heard (&c., as above).” Now I would go and visit the Blessed One, the Arahant Buddha, if you, as my superior, allow it.

‘That is good, that is good, Sona! Go then,
Sona, to visit the Blessed One, the Arahant Buddha.
[5.] You shall see, Sona, how the Blessed One arouses faith, is worthy of faith, calm in his senses, calm in his mind, gifted with the highest self-control and quietude, an elephant among men, subdued, guarded, with his senses in subjection to himself. Do you therefore, Sona, bow down in my name at the feet of the Blessed One, and say, “Lord! my superior, the venerable Mahā Kakkāyana, bows down in salutation at the feet of the Blessed One!” and add, “In the Southern country and in Avanti there are, Lord, but few Bhikkhus. And it was only after the lapse of three years that with difficulty and with trouble

One be pleased, therefore, to allow the higher ordina-

May the Blessed One be pleased, therefore, to allow the use, in the Southern country and in Avanti, of shoes with thick linings. In the Southern country and in Avanti, Lord, men attach great importance to bathing, and are pure by use of water. May the Blessed One be pleased to allow, in the Southern country and in Avanti, the constant use of the bath. Just as in the Middle country the eragu, moragu, magghāru, and gantu grasses are used for coverlets, so are sheep-skins, goat-skins, and deer-skins in the Southern country and in Avanti. May the Blessed One be pleased to allow the use of such coverlets there. 'Even so, Lord,' said the venerable Sōṇa in assent to the venerable Mahā Kaccāyana, and, rising from his seat, he departed thence, keeping his right side towards him. And taking up his bed, he went on with his robe on, and his bowl in his hand to Sāvatthi.

8. And wandering from place to place he arrived at the place where the Blessed One was, at Sāvatthi in the Getavana, Anātha-pindika's park. And when he had come there he saluted the Blessed One, and took his seat beside him.

Then the Blessed One said to the venerable Ānanda: 'Make ready a sleeping-place, Ānanda, for this Bhikkhu who has just arrived.' And the venerable Ānanda thought:

'Inasmuch as the Blessed One commands me to make ready a sleeping-place for the Bhikkhu who has just arrived, the Blessed One evidently desires to dwell in the same Vihāra with that Bhikkhu, he desires to dwell in the same Vihāra with the venerable Sōṇa.' And he made ready a sleeping-place for the venerable Sōṇa at the place where the Blessed One was staying.

9. Then the Blessed One, after spending the greater part of the night in the open air, entered the Vihāra. And also the venerable Sōṇa, having spent the greater part of the night in the open air, entered the Vihāra. And the Blessed One rose up, early in the morning, towards dawn, and requested the venerable Sōṇa, saying,

'May the Dhamma so become clear to you that you may speak.'

‘Even so, Lord!’ said the venerable Sōna in assent to the Blessed One; and he intoned all the verses in the Book of the Eights (Aṭṭhaka-vaggikāni).

And the Blessed One, at the conclusion of the venerable Sōna’s recitation, expressed his pleasure, saying, ‘Excellent, most excellent, O Bhikkhu! Well have the Eights been grasped by thee, well thought over, well learnt by heart: and with a fine voice art thou gifted, distinct, pleasant, able to make things understood. How many years is it since thou hast been ordained?

‘One year, my Lord!’

10. ‘But why have you postponed it so long?’

‘Tis long, Lord, since I saw into the danger of the passions, but life in a household is crowded with business and with cares.’

And the Blessed One, when he heard that matter, gave utterance at that time to the expression of emotion:

‘When he has seen the danger of the world, when he has understood the Truth, when he has become free from Upadhi, parinibbāna Sutta II, 31 as given by Rh. D. (‘Buddhist Suttas from the Pāli,’ p. 36).

SIXTH KHAN DHAKA

(ON MEDICAMENTS.)

1. At that time the Blessed One dwelt at Sâvatthi, in the Getavana, the park of Anâtha-pîndîka. And at that time Bhikkhus, attacked by the sickness of the hot season, threw up the rice-milk they had drunk, and the food they had eaten. And thereby they became lean, rough, ill-favoured, yellow and ever yellower, and the veins stood out on their limbs.

And the Blessed One saw those Bhikkhus thus lean, rough, ill-favoured, yellow and ever yellower, and with the veins standing out on their limbs. And on seeing it, he asked the venerable Ânanda: 'How is it, Ânanda, that the Bhikkhus are become now so lean, rough, &c.?'

'At this time, Lord, the Bhikkhus are attacked with the disease of the hot season; and they throw up the rice-milk they have drunk, and the food they have eaten. Thence is it that they are become lean, rough, ill-favoured, yellow and ever yellower, and that the veins stand out on their limbs.'

2. Then there occurred to the mind of the Blessed One, when meditating alone, this consideration: 'At this time the Bhikkhus (&c., down to :) on their limbs. What medicaments shall I now prescribe for the Bhikkhus, as may be authorised as common medicine, and may be diffused through the body, though it be not regarded as ordinary (material) food?' And the Blessed One thought: 'These five medicaments—that is to say, ghee, butter, oil, honey, molasses—are such medicaments. Let me then prescribe them as medicines which the Bhikkhus may accept at the right time, and use at the right time.'

3. And in the evening, when the Blessed One had arisen from his meditation, having delivered a religious discourse, he addressed the Bhikkhus in that connection, saying,

'When I was meditating alone, O Bhikkhus, then occurred to my mind this consideration: "At this time (&c., as in § 2, down to :) material food." Then I thought: "These five (&c., as in § 2, down to :) at the right time." I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, these five things as medicine to be accepted at the right time, and to be used at the right time.'

4. Now at that time the Bhikkhus accepted those five things at the right time, and used them at the right time. And foods which though rough, were ordinary foods, they could not digest, much less greasy foods. Then they—attacked both by the hot-season disease, and by this want of appetite—became by both at once still more lean, rough,

1. Now at that time the Bhikkhus who were sick had need of roots for medicine.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I allow you, O Bhikkhus, the use of roots as medicine—turmeric, ginger, orris root, white orris root, ativisa, black hellebore, uslra root, bhaddamuttaka, and whatsoever other roots are used for medicine, and impart an appetising flavour to foods, either hard or soft, which the sick Bhikkhus could not otherwise eat. They may be received, and stored up your life long; and, if there be necessity, they may be eaten. If eaten without necessity, (the Bhikkhu who uses them) is guilty of a dukkata offence.'

The Blessed One as he was wandering in search of a lodging-place for the night saw them [doing so], and going up to the place where they were, he asked them:

'What is the matter, O Bhikkhus, with this Bhikkhu?'

'The venerable one has the disease of thick scabs; and by reason of the discharge thereof his robes stick to his body. So we moisten those robes with water, and loosen them (from his body).'

‘What is the disease, O Bhikkhus, from which this Bhikkhu suffers?’

2. ‘This venerable one, Lord, has disease of the eyes. Therefore do we carry him out to ease himself.’

Then the Blessed One, on that account, having delivered a religious discourse, addressed the Bhikkhus, and said:

Now at that time the Khābbaggiya Bhikkhus used to carry about various kinds of boxes for ointments—gold ones, and silver ones. People were annoyed, murmured, and became angry, saying, 'Like those who still live in the world.'

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'Various kinds of boxes for ointments, gold ones, and silver ones, are not, O Bhikkhus, to be used. Whosoever does so, is guilty of a dukkata offence. They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I allow, O Bhikkhus, the use of a stick or holder to put the ointment on with.'

Now at that time the Khabbaggiya Bhikkhus used to keep various kinds of ointment-sticks—gold ones, and silver ones. People were annoyed, murmured, and became angry, saying, 'Like those who still live in the world.'

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

They used to spread the drugs on a wick before they sniffed up the aroma: and their throats got burnt.

'I allow, O Bhikkhus, the use of a pipe to conduct the aroma.'

Now at that time the Khābbaggiya Bhikkhus had various kinds of pipes (&c., as in the last clauses of § 1, down to the end).

1 Natthu-karaṇī, that is, an instrument to hold up the nose, so that the medicinal oil does not run out.
2 Yamaka-natthu-karaṇī, that is, one that would go up both nostrils. The last sentence of § 1 would come in better after this clause.

They used to burn the drugs by smearing them on wicks, and then inhale the smoke through their nostrils.
Now at that time the aroma-pipes came open: and worms got in:
'I allow, O Bhikkhus, the use of a lid to the pipes.'
Now at that time the Bhikkhus carried the pipes about in their hands.
'I allow, O Bhikkhus, the use of a bag to carry the aroma-pipes in.'
The aroma-pipes rubbed against one another.
'I allow, O Bhikkhus, the use of a double bag.'
They had no shoulder strap.
'I allow, O Bhikkhus, the use of a shoulder strap (by which to carry the double bag), or of a thread (by which to sew it on).

1. Now at that time the venerable Pilindavakkha was troubled with wind in the stomach. The physicians said he must drink oil.
'I allow you, O Bhikkhus, a decoction of oil.'
It was necessary to put strong drink into the decoction.
'I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to put strong drink in decoctions of oil.'
Now at that time the Khabbaggiya Bhikkhus used to put too much strong drink into their decoctions of medicinal oils: and they got drunk.
'Oil should not be drunk, O Bhikkhus, when too much strong drink has been put into it. Whosoever does so, shall be dealt with according to law.'
'I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to drink such decoctions

2. Now at that time the Bhikkhus had a quantity of decoction in which too much strong drink had been put. Then those Bhikkhus thought: ‘What shall we do with this oil, which has too much strong drink in it?’

‘I allow, O Bhikkhus, to use it as an ointment.’

Now at that time the venerable Pilindavakkha had a quantity of oil-decoction; but he had no vessel for it.

‘I allow you, O Bhikkhus, the use of three kinds of pots, bronze pots, wooden pots, pots made of the shells of fruits 1.’

3. Now at that time the venerable Pilindavakkha had rheumatism.

‘I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to bring on sweating 2.’
(The disease) became no better.

‘I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to bring on sweating by the use of herbs which have that effect 3.’
(The disease) became no better.

‘I allow you, O Bhikkhus, the use of a great steam bath 4.’
(The disease) became no better.

The sore became moist.

'I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to fumigate (the sore).'

Proud flesh formed on the wound.

'I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to cut off (proud flesh) with a lancet.'

1 This would seem to be a preventive remedy. Water may be kept ready, so that the incoming Bhikkhus may use it, and their feet therefore may not become blistered. They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I allow these things, O Bhikkhus, to be accepted if any one be there to offer them\(^2\), and if not, then that you may take them yourselves and use them.'

Now at that time a certain Bhikkhu had drunk poison.

1. Now at that time the venerable Pilindavakkha had a mountain cave at Rågagaha cleared out, with the object of making it into a cave dwelling-place. And the Mågadha king Seniya Bimbisåra went to the place where the venerable Pilindavakkha was; and when he had come there, he saluted the venerable Pilindavakkha, and took his seat on one side.

And when he was so seated the Mågadha king Seniya Bimbisåra said to the venerable Pilindavakkha, 'What is it that my Lord, the Thera, is having done?'

'I am having a cave cleared out, with the object of making it into a cave dwelling-place.'

'Do you then, Sir, require an ârâmika (a park-keeper) ?'

'Not so, great king! A park-keeper has not been prescribed by the Blessed One.'

'Then, Sir, enquire of the Blessed One (concerning this matter), and let me then know.'

3 Compare chap. 23. 1–8.
‘Very well, O King!’ said the venerable Pilindavakkha in assent to the Māgadha king Seniya Bimbisāra.

2. Then the venerable Pilindavakkha taught and incited and roused and gladdened the Māgadha king Seniya Bimbisāra with religious discourse. And the Māgadha king Seniya Bimbisāra, when he had been taught &c. by the religious discourse, rose from his seat, and bowed down before the venerable Pilindavakkha, and passing round him with his right side towards him, departed thence.

Then the venerable Pilindavakkha sent a message to the Blessed One, saying, ‘Lord! the Māgadha king Seniya Bimbisāra desires to present me with a park-keeper. What am I, therefore, Lord, to do?’

Then the Blessed One, in that connection, after delivering a religious discourse, said to the Bhikkhus:

‘I allow you, O Bhikkhus, the accepting of a park-keeper.’

3. And a second time the Māgadha king Seniya Bimbisāra went to the place where the venerable Pilindavakkha was; and when he had come there he saluted the venerable Pilindavakkha, and took his seat on one side.

And when he was so seated the Māgadha king Seniya Bimbisāra said to the venerable Pilindavakkha, ‘Has the Blessed One allowed a park-keeper?’

‘Yes, O King!’

‘Then, Sir, I will present a park-keeper to you.’

Now the Māgadha king Seniya Bimbisāra, after he had (thus) promised a park-keeper to the venerable Pilindavakkha, forgot it. And after a time he recovered recollection of it, and addressed a certain minister who had charge of general affairs, and said: 'The park-keeper whom I promised to the venerable one, has he been given to him?'

'No, your Majesty!'

'How long is it then, good Sir, since that was determined?'

4. Then that minister, counting up the nights, said to the Māgadha king Seniya Bimbisāra, 'Five hundred nights, your Majesty.'

'Give then, my good Sir, five hundred park-keepers to the venerable one!'

'As your Majesty commands,' said that minister in assent to the Māgadha king Seniya Bimbisāra; and he gave over to the venerable Pilindavakkha five hundred park-keepers, and (for their use) a distinct village grew up. And they called it Ārāmika-gāma, and they called it also Pilinda-gāma. Thenceforward the venerable Pilindavakkha depended upon the families living in that village (for alms, &c.). And the venerable Pilindavakkha robed himself early in the morning, and entered into Pilinda-gāma, duly bowled and robed for alms.

5. Now at that time there was a feast in that village, and the children were celebrating it, with their ornaments on, and decked with garlands. And the venerable Pilindavakkha, when he was going his rounds for alms, straight on from house to house, came to the dwelling-place of a certain park-keeper; and when he had come there he sat down on a seat prepared for him.

And at that time the daughter of that park-keeper's wife, seeing the other children with their ornaments on, and decked with garlands, began to cry (saying), 'Give me too a garland, give me an ornament!'

And the venerable Pilindavakkha said to that park-keeper's wife: 'Why does that girl cry?'

'This girl, venerable Sir, seeing the other children with their ornaments on, and decked with garlands, is crying (and saying), "Give me too a garland, give me too an ornament!" But whence should we, who have become so poor, get garlands or ornaments?'

6. Then the venerable Pilindavakkha took a grass chumbat¹, and said to the park-keeper's wife: 'Bind, I pray you, this grass chumbat round the child's head.'

And the park-keeper's wife took the grass chumbat, and bound it round the girl's head. And that became a chaplet of gold, beautiful, lovely, and pleasing, such that there was no chaplet of gold in the king's seraglio like it.

And people told the Māgadha king Seniya Bimbisāra, 'There is a chaplet of gold, your Majesty, in the house of such and such a park-keeper, such that there is no chaplet of gold in the king's seraglio like it. How could he, poor as he is, have got (such a thing)? For a certainty he must have procured it by theft.'

Then the Māgadha king Seniya Bimbisāra had (the whole of) that park-keeper's family thrown into bonds.

7. Now the venerable Pilindavakkha robed himself again early in the morning, and went, duly bowled and robed, into Pilinda-gāma for alms. And going his round for alms straight on from house to house he came to the dwelling-place of that park-keeper; and when he had come there he asked the neighbours, 'Where is the family of this park-keeper gone to?'

'The king, Sir, has had them thrown into bonds on account of that chaplet of gold.'

Then the venerable Pilindavakkha went on to the residence of the Māgadha king Seniya Bimbisāra: and when he had come there he sat down on the seat prepared for him. And the Māgadha king Seniya Bimbisāra went to the place where the venerable Pilindavakkha was; and when he had come there, he bowed down before the venerable Pilindavakkha, and took his seat on one side. And when he was so seated the venerable Pilindavakkha said to the Māgadha king Seniya Bimbisāra:

8. 'Why, O King, has the park-keeper's family been thrown into bonds?'

'That park-keeper, Sir, has in his house a chaplet of gold, such that there is no chaplet of gold in the king's seraglio like it. Whence should he, poor as he is, have got (such a thing)? For a certainty he has procured it by theft.'

Then the venerable Pilindavakkha determined that the palace of the Māgadha king Seniya Bimbisāra should be gold. And it became all of gold.

'Now, your Majesty, whence have you this so great quantity of gold?'

'I understand, Lord. This is your miraculous power' (said the king. And so saying) he set that park-keeper's family free.

9. When the people, glad at heart and full of satisfaction, saw that so great a miracle had been shown by the venerable Pilindavakkha to the king and his royal retinue, they brought to the venerable Pilindavakkha the five kinds of medicine,—that is to say, ghee, butter, oil, honey, and molasses. Now (besides this) the venerable Pilindavakkha was accustomed to receive the five kinds of medicine; and whatever he received he distributed among his attendant (Bhikkhus). So the retinue became abounding therein, and as they received it they laid it aside, filling vessels and pots; and filling water-strainers and bags with it they laid them in the windows, and they remained there clinging and adhering together, and the Vihāras became sprinkled and scattered all over with them through the (gnawing of) rats. People who saw this, when they went round the Vihāras, were annoyed, murmured, and became indignant (saying), ‘These Sakyaputtiya Samanas are becoming storers up of goods like the Māgadha king Seniya Bimbisāra.’

10. The Bhikkhus heard the people thus murmuring, &c. And those Bhikkhus who were moderate were indignant, &c., saying,

‘How can Bhikkhus think (of possessing) such abundance?’

And those Bhikkhus told the matter to the Blessed One.

‘Is it true, Bhikkhus, as they say, that Bhikkhus think (of possessing) such abundance?’

‘It is true, Lord.’

The Blessed One rebuked them, and after delivering a religious discourse, he addressed the Bhikkhus:

‘Whosoever kinds of medicine are meet for the use of sick Bhikkhus,—that is to say, ghee, butter, oil, honey, and molasses,—when such are received they must be used within a period of seven days during which they may be stored up. Whosoever gives beyond that limit shall be dealt with according to law."

End of the first Bhāvanāvāra on the law of medicines.

1. Now after the Blessed One had remained at Sāvatthi as long as he thought fit, he went forth on his journey towards Rāgagaha. And on the way the venerable Kaṅkhā-revata saw a sugar factory, and on stepping aside to it (he saw the men) putting flour and cane-dust into the molasses. When he saw that he thought: ‘Molasses mixed with food is not permitted: it is not permitted to take such molasses (at a time) beyond the time (for the daily meal).’ And fearing to offend he ate not of it, and his attendant Bhikkhus ate not, and such as held him worthy to be heard, they ate not.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

‘Why, O Bhikkhus, do they put flour and cane-dust into molasses?’

‘In order, Lord, to make it firm.’

‘If, O Bhikkhus, they put flour and cane-dust into molasses to make it firm, but it is still (nevertheless) considered to be molasses, I allow you, O Bhikkhus, such molasses as much as you like.’

2. Now the venerable Kaṅkhā-revata saw on the way a kidney bean growing out of a dung heap. And when he had seen it, he thought: ‘Beans are not permitted (to us, for) beans grow ready ripe.’ And he did not eat, fearing to offend, and his attendant Bhikkhus did not eat, and such as held him worthy to be heard, they also did not eat the beans.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'Though, Bhikkhus, beans grow ready ripe, yet I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to eat beans as much as you like.'

3. Now at that time a certain Bhikkhu suffered from wind in the stomach. He drank salt sour gruel; and thereby his sickness abated.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I allow, O Bhikkhus, to one who is sick the use of salt sour gruel, to one who is not sick the use thereof mixed with water\(^1\) as a beverage.'

1. Now the Blessed One journeying on in due course came to Rāgagaha. And there at Rāgagaha the Blessed One stayed at the Veluvana in the Kalandaka-nivāpa.

Now at that time the Blessed One was troubled with wind in his stomach. And the venerable Ānanda thinking, ‘Now formerly the Blessed One when suffering from wind in the stomach had ease from Tekatula\(^2\) gruel,’ made ready of his own accord tila seeds, and rice, and beans; and kept them indoors; and cooked them indoors of his own accord, and offered them to the Blessed One, saying, ‘Let the Blessed One drink this Tekatula gruel.’

2. Now the Tathāgatas sometimes ask about what they know (&c., as usual, as, for instance, in I, 31, 5, down to the end).

And the Blessed One said to the venerable Ānanda, ‘Whence, Ānanda, is this gruel?’

Then the venerable Ānanda told this thing to the Blessed One.

3. The Blessed Buddha rebuked him, saying, ‘This is improper, Ānanda, unbecoming, unsuitable, unworthy of Samanas, not allowable, and ought to be avoided. How can you, Ānanda, think (of permitting yourself) such abundance? Whatever, Ānanda, is kept indoors, is not allowed; whatever is cooked indoors, is not allowed; and whatever is cooked of your own accord, is not allowed. This will not redound, Ānanda, to the conversion of the unconverted.’

And when he had rebuked him, and delivered a religious discourse, he said to the Bhikkhus: ‘Whatsoever is kept indoors, O Bhikkhus, or cooked indoors, or cooked of your own accord, is not to be eaten. Whosoever shall eat thereof, is guilty of a dukkata offence.

4. ‘And if, O Bhikkhus, there be food kept indoors, or cooked indoors, or cooked of your own accord, and one shall eat thereof, he is guilty of three dukkata offences. If, O Bhikkhus, food kept indoors, and cooked indoors, shall have been so cooked by others, and one eat thereof, he is guilty of two dukkata offences. If, O Bhikkhus, food kept indoors, shall have been cooked out of doors, and so cooked of your own accord, and one eat thereof, he is guilty of two dukkata offences.

5. ‘If, O Bhikkhus, food kept out of doors shall have been cooked indoors, and of your own accord, and one eat thereof, he is guilty of two dukkata offences. If, O Bhikkhus, food kept indoors, shall have been cooked out of doors, and by others, and one eat thereof, he is guilty of a dukkata offence. If, O Bhikkhus, food kept out of doors shall have been cooked indoors, and by others, and one eat thereof, he is guilty of a dukkata offence. If, O Bhikkhus, food kept out of doors, shall have been cooked out of doors, and of your own accord, and one shall eat thereof, he is guilty of a dukkata offence. If, O Bhikkhus, food kept out of doors, shall have been cooked out of doors, and by others, and one shall eat thereof, he is not guilty.’

6. Now at that time, the Bhikkhus, thinking, ‘Food cooked of one’s own accord has been disallowed by the Blessed One,’ feared to offend by cooking a second time food (already cooked once)

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

‘I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to cook food a second time.’

7. Now at that time there was a scarcity of food in Rāgagaha. People brought salt, and oil, and rice, and hard food to the Ârâma. These the Bhikkhus kept out of doors; and vermin\(^1\) ate them, and thieves carried them off.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

\(^1\) Buddhaghosa says, ukkapindakā pi khādantītī bilāla-mūsika-godha-muṅgusā khādantī. The expression recurs in VI, 33, 5.
'I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to keep food indoors.'
When they kept it indoors, and cooked it out of doors, those men who practised self-mortification by living on the remains of offered food 1 crowded round them; and the Bhikkhus ate in fear.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to cook indoors.'

In the time of scarcity, those who (by offering food, inviting Bhikkhus to their houses, &c.) made (the accepting or eating of food) allowable (to the Bhikkhus), used to take more (for themselves), and give less to the Bhikkhus.

'I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to cook of your own accord. I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to cook indoors, and of your own accord, food kept indoors.'

8. Now at that time a number of Bhikkhus who had spent the rainy season in the land of Kāsi, and were journeying to Rāgagaha to visit the Blessed One, did not receive on the way as full a supply as they required of food, either bitter or sweet. And there was plenty of eatable fruit, but there was no one to make it allowable for them 2.
And those Bhikkhus went on in weariness to Rāgagaha, to the Veluvana, in the Kalandaka-nivāpa, where the Blessed One was. And when they had come there, they bowed down before the Blessed
One, and took their seats on one side.

Now it is the custom of the Blessed Buddhas to exchange courteous greetings with Bhikkhus who arrive. And the Blessed One said to those Bhikkhus:

‘Do things go well with you, O Bhikkhus? Do you get enough to support yourselves with? Have you accomplished your journey without too much fatigue? And whence, O Bhikkhus, have you come?’

9. ‘Things go well with us, Lord. We have spent the rainy season in the land of Kāsi; and as we were journeying to Rāgagaha to visit the Blessed One, we did not receive on the way as full a supply as we required of food, either bitter or sweet. And there was plenty of eatable fruit, but there was no one to make it allowable for us. And we came on our way in weariness.’

Then the Blessed One, in that connection, after having delivered a religious discourse, said to the Bhikkhus: ‘I allow you, O Bhikkhus, wherever edible fruit is seen and there is no one to make it allowable, to pick it of your own accord, and take it away. And when you see one who can make it allowable, you are to place it on the ground, and (only) eat it after you have received it again. I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to take whatever (fruit) you have picked up.’

1. Now at that time a certain Brāhman had received some fresh tila seeds, and some fresh honey. Now it occurred to that Brāhman: ‘What if I were to give these fresh tila seeds, and this fresh honey to the Bhikkhu-samgha with the Buddha at their head.' And that Brāhmaṇa went to the place where the Blessed One was, and when he had come there, he exchanged courteous greetings with the Blessed One. And after he had exchanged with the Blessed One the greetings and compliments of friendship and civility, he stood on one side. And, so standing, that Brāhmaṇa said to the Blessed One:

'May the venerable Gotama grant me that the venerable Gotama shall take his morrow's meal at my home to-morrow with the Bhikkhu-samgha.'

The Blessed One consented by remaining silent. And when that Brāhmaṇa perceived that the Blessed One had consented he went away.

2. And that Brāhmaṇa, at the end of that night, when he had made ready sweet food, both hard and soft, had the time announced to the Blessed One (in the words), 'It is time, O Gotama, and the meal is prepared.

And the Blessed One, early in the morning, having put on his under robe, went duly bowled and robed to that Brāhmaṇa's residence. And when he had come there, he sat down on a seat prepared for him, and with him the Bhikkhu-samgha.

And that Brāhmaṇa satisfied with the sweet food, hard and soft, the Bhikkhu-samgha with the Buddha at their head, and waited on them with his own hand. And when the Blessed One had finished his meal, and had washed his hands and his bowl, the Brāhmaṇa took his seat on one side. And as he so sat the Blessed One instructed, and roused, and incited, and gladdened that Brāhmaṇa with religious discourse, and rose from his seat, and went away.

3. Now not long after the Blessed One had gone it occurred to that Brāhmaṇa: 'The things for the sake of which I invited the Bhikkhu-saṅgha with the Buddha at their head, thinking, "I will give them the fresh tila seeds and the fresh honey,"—those I have neglected to give. What if I were now to have the fresh tila seeds and the fresh honey taken, in pots and vessels, to the Ārāma!'

And that Brāhmaṇa had the fresh tila seeds and the fresh honey taken in pots and vessels, and went to the place where the Blessed One was. 'And when he had come there, he stood on one side; and so standing that Brāhmaṇa said to the Blessed One:

4. 'The things for the sake of which I invited the Bhikkhu-saṅgha with the Buddha at their head, thinking, "I will give them the fresh tila seeds and the fresh honey,"—those I have neglected to give. May the venerable Gotama receive of me the fresh tila seeds and the fresh honey.'

Very well then, Brāhmaṇa; give them to the Bhikkhus.'

Now at that time, during the scarcity, people invited Bhikkhus to a slender meal, and they, counting the number (of those invited), refused (the invitation). And the whole Saṅgha was (once) invited; but the Bhikkhus, fearing to offend, did not accept the invitation.¹

'Accept it, O Bhikkhus, and eat. I allow, O Bhikkhus, that a Bhikkhu who has eaten and who has refused food still offered may nevertheless eat food, if it be brought from within, even if it has not been left over.²

1. Now at that time a family who were devoted to the venerable Upananda, of the Sakya clan, sent hard food for the Samgha, saying, 'This is to be given to the Samgha with especial reference to the venerable Upananda.'

Now at that time the venerable Upananda of the Sakya clan had gone forth to the village for alms. And those men went to the Ârama, and asked the Bhikkhus:

'Where, Sirs, is the venerable Upananda?'

'The venerable Upananda of the Sakya clan has gone forth to the village for alms.'

'This hard food, Sirs, is to be given to the Samgha, with especial reference to the venerable Upananda.'

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'In that case, O Bhikkhus, receive it, and put it aside till Upananda returns.'

2. And the venerable Upananda, after having attended on the families in the forenoon, returned during the (after-part of the) day.

Now at that time, during the scarcity, people invited the Bhikkhus to a slender meal; and they, finished, and has declared himself to have done so by declining further food, can still take 'leavings' without offending. By this rule he is also allowed to take food tato n'hatam, literally, 'brought out thence,' which seems to mean 'out of the store of the giver.' The expression recurs in VI, 32, 1, and again in VI, 32, 2 (at the end), where the exceptions to Paññattiya 35 laid down in this and the following rules are again, the scarcity having passed away, put aside by 'the Blessed One.'

counting the numbers (of those invited, refused) the invitation. And the whole Saṅgha was (once) invited; but the Bhikkhus, fearing to offend, did not accept the invitation.

‘Accept it, O Bhikkhus, that a Bhikkhu who has eaten, and who has refused food still offered, may nevertheless eat food, if it have been received before meal-time (in the forenoon), even if it has not been left over 1.’

1. Now the Blessed One having remained at Rāgagaha as long as he thought fit, proceeded on his way to Sāvatthi. And wandering straight on from place to place he arrived at Sāvatthi. And there, at Sāvatthi, the Blessed One stayed at the Getavana, Anātha-pindika’s Grove.

Now at that time the venerable Sāriputta suffered from fever. And the venerable Mahā Moggallāna went to the place where the venerable Sāriputta was; and when he had come there he said to the venerable Sāriputta:

‘You have lately had fever, friend Sāriputta. By what means has it got well?’

‘By lotus stalks, my friend, of various kinds.’

Then the venerable Mahā Moggallāna, as quickly as a strong man would stretch forth his arm, or draw it in again when it had been stretched forth, vanished from the Getavana and appeared on the bank of the Mandākini lake.

2. And a certain Nāga saw the venerable Mahā Moggallâna coming from afar: and on seeing him he said to the venerable Mahâ Moggallâna:

'\textit{May my lord, the venerable Mahâ Moggallâna, approach. Welcome to my lord, the venerable Mahâ Moggallâna. What may my lord have need of? What shall I give to him?}''

'I want the edible stalks of the various lotuses.'

Then that Nâga gave command to another Nâga, saying, 'Very well then, good friend, give the venerable one edible stalks of the lotuses.'

And that Nâga plunged into the Mandâkinî lake, and plucked with his trunk edible stalks of the lotuses, and washed them thoroughly, and bound them in a bundle, and went to the place where the venerable Mahâ Moggallâna was.

3. Then the venerable Mahâ Moggallâna as quickly (&c., as in § 1) vanished from the bank of the Mandâkinî lake, and appeared in Getavana. Then that Nâga also vanished from the bank of the Mandâkinî lake, and appeared in the Getavana. And when that Nâga had caused the venerable Mahâ Moggallâna to receive those edible stalks of the lotuses he vanished from the Getavana, and appeared on the shore of the Mandâkinî lake.

Then the venerable Mahâ Moggallâna presented those edible stalks of the lotuses to the venerable Sâriputta. And the fever abated on the venerable Sâriputta when he had eaten the edible stalks of the lotuses. And many of them remained over.

4. Now at that time, during the scarcity (&c., as above, in chap. 18. 4, down to :) did not accept the invitation.

'Accept it, O Bhikkhus, and eat. I allow a Bhikkhu who has eaten, and has refused food still offered, to eat things growing in woods and ponds, even if they are not the leavings of the meal of one who has eaten."

1. Now at that time edible fruit was very plentiful in Sāvatthi, but there was no one to make it allowable. And the Bhikkhus, fearing to offend, would not eat of it.

They told that thing to the Blessed One.

'I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to eat fruit which has not yet had any seed in it, or which has no more seed in it, even without any one being there to make it allowable.'

1. Now when the Blessed One had remained at Sāvatthi as long as he thought fit, he went forth on his journey to Rāgagaha. And wandering straight on he arrived at Rāgagaha: and there at Rāgagaha he stayed at the Veluvana in the Kalandaka-nivāpa.

Now at that time a certain Bhikkhu was suffering from fistula. And the physician (named) Ākāsagotta lanced it. And the Blessed One when he was going round through the sleeping-places came to the place where that Bhikkhu dwelt.

2. Ākāsa-gotta, the physician, saw the Blessed One coming from afar; and when he saw him he said to the Blessed One: 'Let the venerable Gotama come and look at this Bhikkhu's orifice; it is like the mouth of an iguana.' And the Blessed One thinking, 'This foolish fellow is making fun of me,' kept silence and turned away. And in that connection, and on account of that, he called a meeting of the Bhikkhu-samgha, and asked the Bhikkhus: 'Is there, O Bhikkhus, in that Vihāra a Bhikkhu who is sick?'

'There is, Lord.'

'What is the matter, O Bhikkhus, with that Bhikkhu?'

'That venerable one, Lord, has a fistula, and Ākāsa-gotta, the physician, has been lancing it.'

3. The Blessed Buddha rebuked (that Bhikkhu), saying, 'This is improper, O Bhikkhus, for that foolish one, unbecoming, indecent, unworthy of Samayas, not allowable, and ought not to be done. How can this foolish fellow, O Bhikkhus, allow a surgical operation to be performed in that part of his body? The skin there, O Bhikkhus, is tender, the wound is difficult to treat, the knife is difficult to guide. This will not redound, O Bhikkhus, to the conversion of the unconverted.'

And having rebuked him, the Blessed One, after delivering a religious discourse, said to the Bhikkhus: 'You are not, O Bhikkhus, to allow a surgical operation to be performed upon you in that part of your bodies. Whosoever allows that, is guilty of a thullākkāya offence.

4. Now at that time the Khābbaggiyā Bhikkhus, since a surgical operation had been forbidden by the Blessed One, used a clyster.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

‘Is it true, as they say, O Bhikkhus, that the Khābbaggiya Bhikkhus use a clyster?’

‘It is true, Lord.’

He rebuked them, and having delivered a religious discourse, said to the Bhikkhus: ‘No surgical operation is to be performed within a distance of two inches round the anus, and a clyster is not to be used. Whosoever does so, is guilty of a thullākkāya offence.

1. And the Blessed One, after having dwelt at Rāgagaha as long as he thought fit, went forth to Benares. Wandering from place to place he came to Benares. There the Blessed One dwelt near Benares, in the deer-park Isipatana.

At that time there were at Benares a devout layman Suppiya and a devout laywoman Suppiyā who showed their faith in both ways: they were givers and doers, and devoted themselves to the service of the fraternity. And Suppiyā, the lay-devotee, went to the Ārama, and going around from Vihāra to Vihāra, and from cell to cell, she asked the Bhikkhus: 'Who is sick, venerable Sirs? For whom, and what shall I procure?'

2. At that time a certain Bhikkhu had taken a purgative. And that Bhikkhu said to Suppiyā, the lay-devotee: 'I have taken a purgative, sister, and I want some broth.'

(She replied): 'Well, reverend Sir, it shall be procured for you,'—and went to her house and gave order to a pupil: 'Go, my good Sir, and see if there is any meat to be had.'

That man accepted this order of Suppiyā, the lay-devotee (by saying), 'Yes, Madam,' and searched through the whole of Benares, but did not find any meat on hand. Then that man went to Suppiyā, the lay-devotee; having approached her he said to Suppiyā, the lay-devotee: 'There is no meat to be had, Madam; the killing of cattle is interdicted to-day.'

3. Then Suppiyā, the lay-devotee, thought: 'If that sick Bhikkhu does not get the broth his sickness will increase, or he will die. It would be unbecoming indeed for me to promise something, and not to procure it;'—(thinking thus) she took a knife, cut a piece of flesh from her thigh, and gave it to her maid-servant (saying), 'Go, my girl,

3 Pavattamamsa, which Buddhaghosa explains, 'matassa mamsa.' Pavatta means 'already existing,' opposed to what is brought into existence for a special purpose, and pavattamamsa is said here, therefore, in order to exclude uddissa-kata-mamsa (meat of animals killed especially for them), which Bhikkhus were not allowed to partake of (see chap. 31. 14). and get the strength out of this meat. In such and such a Vihāra is a sick Bhikkhu; give it to that (Bhikkhu). And should anybody call for me, tell him that I am sick;'—(speaking thus), she veiled her thigh with her upper garment, went into her inner room, and lay down on her bed.

4. And Suppiya, the lay-devotee, came to his house and asked the maid-servant: ‘Where is Suppiyā?’

‘She lies in the inner room, Sir.’ Then Suppiya, the lay-devotee, went to the place where Suppiyā, the lay-devotee, was; having approached her he said to Suppiyā, the lay-devotee: ‘Why are you lying down?’

‘I am sick.’

‘What is the matter with you?’

Then Suppiyā, the lay-devotee, told the whole matter to Suppiya, the lay-devotee. And Suppiya, the lay-devotee, said: ‘Oh wonderful! oh astonishing! How believing and how pious is this Suppiyā who gives even her own flesh (to the indigent). What else can there be which she would not give?’ (Speaking thus), joyful and elated he went to the place where the Blessed One was; having approached him, and respectfully saluted the Blessed One, he sat down near him.

5 Sitting near him, Suppiya, the lay-devotee, said to the Blessed One: ‘Might the Blessed One, Lord, consent to take his meal with me to-morrow, together with the fraternity of Bhikkhus.’

The Blessed One expressed his consent by remaining silent. Then Suppiya, the lay-devotee, when he understood that the Blessed One had accepted his invitation, rose from his seat, respectfully saluted the Blessed One, and passing round him with his right side towards him, went away.

And when the night had elapsed, Suppiya, the lay-devotee, ordered excellent food, both hard and soft, to be prepared, and had the meal-time announced to the Blessed One in the words: ‘It is time, Lord, the meal is ready.’ And in the forenoon the Blessed One, having put on his under-robies, took his alms-bowl, and, with his āvāra on, went to the house of Suppiya, the lay-devotee. When he had arrived there, he sat down with the Bhikkhus who followed him, on seats laid out for them.

6. And Suppiya, the lay-devotee, went to the place where the Blessed One was; having approached him and respectfully saluted the Blessed One, he stationed himself near him. When he was standing near him, the Blessed One said to Suppiya, the lay-devotee: ‘Where is Suppiyā?’

‘She is sick, Lord.’

‘Well, let her come here.’

‘She is not able to do so, Lord.’

‘Well then you must take her and carry her (to me).’

Then Suppiya, the lay-devotee, took Suppiyā, the lay-devotee, and carried her (to the Buddha). And in the moment the Blessed One saw her, that great wound was healed; and there was good skin there, with the tiny hairs thereon.

7. And Suppiya, the lay-devotee, and Suppiyā, the lay-devotee (thought): ‘Oh wonderful! oh astonishing! What high power and great faculties the Tathāgata possesses, in that in the moment the Blessed One has seen (Suppiyā), that great wound has been healed; and there is good skin there, with the tiny hairs thereon;'—(thinking thus), joyful and elated they served and offered with their own hands excellent food, both hard and soft, to the fraternity of Bhikkhus with the Buddha at its head. And when the Blessed One had finished his meal, and cleansed his bowl and his hands, they sat down near him. And the Blessed One, after having taught, incited, animated, and gladdened Suppiya, the lay-devotee, and Suppiyā, the lay-devotee, by religious discourse, rose from his seat and went away.

8. In consequence of that, and on this occasion, the Blessed One, having ordered the fraternity of Bhikkhus to assemble, questioned the Bhikkhus: 'Who was it, O Bhikkhus, who asked Suppiyā, the lay-devotee, for meat?'

When he had spoken thus, that Bhikkhu said to the Blessed One: 'It is I, Lord, who asked Suppiyā, the lay-devotee, for meat.'

'Has it been brought to you, O Bhikkhu?'

'It has been brought, Lord.'

'Have you eaten it, O Bhikkhu?'

'I have eaten it, Lord.'

'And did you enquire, O Bhikkhus, (what) meat it was?'

'Lord! I did not enquire about that.'

9. Then the blessed Buddha rebuked him: 'How can you, O foolish one, eat meat without having enquired (what it is)? It is man's flesh, O foolish one, which you have eaten. This will not do, O foolish one, for converting the unconverted,' (&c.)

Having rebuked him and delivered a religious discourse, he thus addressed the Bhikkhus: 'There are, O Bhikkhus, believing, pious people who give up even their own flesh. Let no one, O Bhikkhus, eat man's flesh. He who does, commits a thullaka-ka\(\grave{\text{y}}\)a (or, grave) offence. And let no one, O Bhikkhus, eat meat without having enquired (what it is). He who does, commits a dukkata offence.'

10. At that time the king's elephants died. During a famine the people ate that elephants' flesh, and when the Bhikkhus came and asked for alms, they gave them elephants' flesh. The Bhikkhus ate that elephants' flesh. People were annoyed, murmured, and became angry: 'How can the Sakyaputtiya Samanas eat elephants' flesh? Elephants are an attribute of royalty. If the king knew that, they would not be in his favour.'

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'Let no one, O Bhikkhus, eat elephants' flesh. He who does, commits a dukkata offence.'

11. At that time the king's horses died. During a famine (&c., as in § 10, down to:)

'Let no one, O Bhikkhus, eat horse-flesh. He who does, commits a dukkata offence.'

12. At that time the people, during a famine, ate dogs' flesh, and when the Bhikkhus came and asked for alms, they gave them dogs' flesh. The Bhikkhus ate that dogs' flesh. People were annoyed, murmured, and became angry: 'How can the Sakyaputtiya Samanas eat dogs' flesh? Dogs are disgusting and loathsome animals.'

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'Let no one, O Bhikkhus, eat dogs' flesh. He who does, commits a dukkata offence.'

13. At that time the people, during a famine, ate serpents' flesh (&c., as in § 12, down to:)' How can the Sakyaputtiya Samanas eat serpents' flesh? Serpents are disgusting and loathsome animals.'

And the serpent king Supassa went to the place where the Blessed One was; having approached him and respectfully saluted the Blessed One, he stationed himself near him. Standing near him the serpent king Supassa said to the Blessed One: 'There are, Lord, unbelieving serpents who are disinclined (to the faith); these might do harm to the Bhikkhus even on trifling occasions. Pray, Lord, let their reverences not eat serpents' flesh. Then the Blessed One taught, incited, animated, and gladdened the serpent king Supassa by religious discourse (&c., down to:), and passing round him with his right side towards him, went away.'

In consequence of that the Blessed One, after having delivered a religious discourse, thus addressed the Bhikkhus: 'Let no one, O Bhikkhus, eat serpents' flesh. He who does, commits a dukkata offence.'

14. At that time hunters had killed a lion and eaten his flesh, and when the Bhikkhus came and asked for alms, they gave them lions' flesh. The Bhikkhus, having eaten that lions' flesh, sojourned in the forest. Then the lions, (attracted) by the smell of lions' flesh, fell upon the Bhikkhus.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'Let no one, O Bhikkhus, eat lions' flesh. He who does, commits a dukkata offence.'

15. At that time hunters had killed a tiger, &c., a panther, &c., a bear, &c., a hyena (&c., as in § 14, down to:)

'Let no one, O Bhikkhus, eat a hyena's flesh. He who does, commits a dukkata offence.'

1. And the Blessed One, after having dwelt at Benares as long as he thought fit, went forth to Andhakavinda, accompanied by a great number of Bhikkhus, by twelve hundred and fifty Bhikkhus. At that time the people in the country, after having loaded their carts with much salt and oil and rice and hard food, followed from behind the fraternity of Bhikkhus with the Buddha at its head (thinking), 'When our turn comes, we will make a meal for them;' and five hundred people who ate the remains of (the Bhikkhus') food (followed on their way). And the Blessed One, wandering from place to place, came to Andhakavinda.

2. Now a certain Brāhmaṇa, whose turn did not come, thought: 'Two months have elapsed while I have been following the fraternity of Bhikkhus with the Buddha at its head, in order to make a meal for them when my turn comes, but my turn does not come. I am alone here, and many household affairs of mine are going to ruin. What if I were to look into the provision-room, and what I should not see in the provision-room, to prepare that (for the Bhikkhus)?' Then that Brāhmaṇa looked into the provision-room and did not see there two (sorts of food), rice-milk and honey-lumps.

3. And that Brāhmaṇa went to the place where the venerable Ānanda was; having approached him, he said to the venerable Ānanda: 'As my turn did not come, my dear Ānanda, I thought: "Two months have elapsed (&c., down to :). What if I were to look into the provision-room, and what I should not see in the provision-room, to prepare that!" Thus, my dear Ānanda, I looked into the provision-room and did not see there two (sorts of food), rice-milk and honey-lumps. If I were to prepare, my dear Ānanda, rice-milk and honey-lumps (for the Bhikkhus), would the reverend Gotama accept it from me?'

'Well, my good Brāhmaṇa, I will ask the Blessed One.'

4. And the venerable Ānanda told this thing to the Blessed One.

'Well, Ānanda, let him prepare (those dishes).'

'Well, my good Brāhmaṇa, you may prepare (those dishes).'

And when the night had elapsed, that Brāhmaṇa had abundant rice-milk and honey-lumps prepared, and offered them to the Blessed One (in the words): 'May the reverend Gotama accept from me this rice-milk and honey-lumps.'

'Well, my good Brāhmaṇa, give it to the Bhikkhus.'

The Bhikkhus, fearing to offend, did not accept it.

'Accept it, O Bhikkhus, and eat it.'

Then that Brāhmaṇa with his own hands served and offered abundant rice-milk and honey-lumps to the fraternity of Bhikkhus with the Buddha at its head; and when the Blessed One had washed his hands, when he had cleansed his bowl and his hands, he sat down near him.

5. When he was seated near him, the Blessed One said to that Brāhmaṇa: 'Tenfold, O Brāhmaṇa, is the merit attached to rice-milk. In what way is it tenfold? He who gives rice-milk, gives life; he gives colour; he gives joy; he gives strength; he gives readiness of mind; rice-milk when it is drunk removes hunger; dispels thirst; sets right the humors of the body; purifies the bladder; and promotes the digestion. This ten-fold merit, O Brâhmaṇa, is attached to rice-milk.

6. 'He who attentively at the right time gives rice-milk to the self-possessed, who live on what others give to them, will benefit them in ten ways: life and colour, joy and strength (he gives to them);—

'Readiness of mind arises from it; it dispels hunger and thirst, and sets the humors right; it purifies the bladder, and brings the food to digestion. As medicine the Perfect One has praised it.

'Therefore should rice-milk be continually given by a man who is longing for joy, who is desirous of heavenly joy, or who aspires to human prosperity.'

7. And the Blessed One, having gladdened that Brâhmaṇa by these stanzas, rose from his seat and went away.

And in consequence of this event the Blessed One, after having delivered a religious discourse, thus addressed the Bhikkhus: 'I allow you, O Bhikkhus, (to partake of) rice-milk and honey-lumps.'

1. Now the people heard: 'The Blessed One has allowed (to the Bhikkhus to partake of) rice-milk and honey-lumps.' They prepared early in the morning solid rice-milk\(^1\) and honey-lumps. The Bhikkhus, having satiated themselves in the

---

\(^1\) Bhogga-yaṅgu, literally, eatable rice-milk, which seems opposed to the ordinary rice-milk which was drunk. Yaṅgu is the Pāli word or what is called in Anglo-Indian terminology 'congey.' Bhogga-yaṅgu is 'rice pudding made with milk.'
morning with solid rice-milk and with honey-lumps, (afterwards) did not dine in the dining-hall with good appetite. At that time a certain minister, who was but newly converted, had invited the fraternity of Bhikkhus with the Buddha at its head for the next day. Now this newly converted minister thought: ‘What if I were to prepare for these twelve hundred and fifty Bhikkhus twelve hundred and fifty dishes of meat, and offer to each Bhikkhu one dish of meat!’

2. And when that night had elapsed, that newly converted minister ordered excellent food, both hard and soft, and twelve hundred and fifty dishes of meat to be prepared, and had meal-time announced to the Blessed One in the words: ‘It is time, Lord, the meal is ready.’ And in the forenoon the Blessed One, having put on his under-robes, took his alms-bowl, and, with his kīvara on, went to the house of that newly converted minister. When he had arrived there, he sat down with the Bhikkhus who followed him, on seats laid out for them.

3. Then that newly converted minister in his dining-hall waited on the Bhikkhus. The Bhikkhus said to him: ‘Give us little, friend; give us little, friend.’

‘Do not take little, reverend Sirs, because you think: “This minister is but newly converted.” Much food, both hard and soft, has been prepared by me, and twelve hundred and fifty dishes of meat;
I will offer to each Bhikkhu one dish of meat. Take, reverend Sirs, as much as you want.’

‘This is not the reason, friend, for which we take little. But we have satiated ourselves in the morning with solid rice-milk and with honey-lumps;
therefore we take little.’
4. And that newly converted minister was annoyed, murmured, and became angry: 'How can their reverences, when I have invited them, partake of solid rice-milk with other people, as if I were unable to give them as much as they want.' (Thinking thus), he went around angry, displeased, and in an offensive temper, filling the bowls of the Bhikkhus (and saying), 'Eat or take it away!' And that newly converted minister served and offered with his own hands excellent food, both hard and soft, to the fraternity of Bhikkhus with the Buddha at its head; and when the Blessed One had finished his meal and cleansed his bowl and his hands, he sat down near him. And the Blessed One, after having taught, incited, animated, and gladdened that newly converted minister, who was sitting near him, by religious discourse, rose from his seat and went away.

5. And soon after the Blessed One was gone, scruples and remorse befell that newly converted minister: 'Alas, it is evil to me, it is not good to me! Alas, it is loss to me, it is not gain to me that I went around (among the Bhikkhus) angry, displeased, and in an offensive temper, filling their bowls (and saying), "Eat or take it away!" What have I produced thereby, more merit or more demerit?'

And that newly converted minister went to the place where the Blessed One was; having approached him and respectfully saluted the Blessed One, he sat down near him. Sitting near him, that newly converted minister said to the Blessed One: 'Lord, soon after the Blessed One was gone, scruples and remorse have befallen me: "Alas, it is evil to me
(&c., down to:) more merit or more demerit?' Lord, what have I produced thereby, more merit or more demerit?'

6. 'The moment, friend, in which you invited the fraternity of Bhikkhus with the Buddha at its head for the next day, that moment you acquired much merit. And the moment in which each Bhikkhu received one lump of rice from you, that moment you acquired much merit. You gained the inheritance of heaven.'

Then that newly converted minister thought: 'Oh, it is good to me! Oh, it is gain to me! I have acquired much merit! I have gained the inheritance of heaven!'—and glad and joyful he rose from his seat, respectfully saluted the Blessed One, and passing round him with his right side towards him, went away.

7. In consequence of that, and on this occasion, the Blessed One, having ordered the fraternity of Bhikkhus to assemble, questioned the Bhikkhus: 'Is it true, O Bhikkhus, that the Bhikkhus, having been invited to one place, partake of solid rice-milk with other persons?'

'It is true, Lord.'

Then the blessed Buddha rebuked those Bhikkhus: 'How can these foolish persons, O Bhikkhus, having been invited to one place, partake of solid rice-milk with other persons? This will not do, O Bhikkhus, for converting the unconverted,' &c. Having rebuked them and delivered a religious discourse, he thus addressed the Bhikkhus: 'Let no one, O Bhikkhus, when he is invited to one place, partake of solid rice-milk with other persons. He who does, is to be treated according to the law.'

1. And the Blessed One, after having dwelt at Andhakavinda as long as he thought fit, went forth to Rāgagaha, accompanied by a great number of Bhikkhus, by twelve hundred and fifty Bhikkhus. At that time Belatthā Kakkāna was travelling on the road from Rāgagaha to Andhakavinda with five hundred carts all full of pots of sugar. And the Blessed One saw Belatthā Kakkāna coming from afar; when he saw him, he left the road, and sat down at the foot of a tree.

2. And Belatthā Kakkāna went to the place where the Blessed One was; having approached him and respectfully saluted the Blessed One, he stationed himself near him. Standing near him, Belatthā Kakkāna said to the Blessed One: 'I wish, Lord, to give to each Bhikkhu one pot of sugar.'

Well, Kakkāna, bring here one pot of sugar.'

Belatthā Kakkāna accepted this order of the Blessed One (by saying), 'Yes, Lord,' took one pot of sugar and went to the place where the Blessed One was; having approached him, he said to the Blessed One: 'I have brought here, Lord, the pot of sugar; what shall I do with it, Lord?'

'Well, Kakkāna, give the sugar to the Bhikkhus.'

3. Belatthā Kakkāna accepted this order of the Blessed One (by saying), 'Yes, Lord,' gave the sugar to the Bhikkhus, and said to the Blessed One: 'I have given the sugar to the Bhikkhus, Lord, but there is much sugar left over; what shall I do with it, Lord?'

'Well, Kakkâna, give the Bhikkhus as much sugar as they want.'

Belatthâ Kakkâna accepted this order of the Blessed One (by saying), 'Yes, Lord,' gave the Bhikkhus as much sugar as they wanted, and said to the Blessed One: 'I have given, Lord, the Bhikkhus as much sugar as they want, but there is much sugar left over; what shall I do with it, Lord?'

'Well, Kakkâna, let the Bhikkhus eat their fill with sugar.'

Belatthâ Kakkâna accepted this order of the Blessed One (by saying), 'Yes, Lord,' and let the Bhikkhus eat their fill with sugar; some Bhikkhus filled their bowls and filled their water strainers and bags with it.

4. And Belatthâ Kakkâna, having let the Bhikkhus eat their fill with sugar, said to the Blessed One: 'The Bhikkhus, Lord, have eaten their fill with sugar, but there is much sugar left over; what shall I do with it, Lord?'

'Well, Kakkâna, give the sugar to the people who eat the remains of (the Bhikkhus') food,' &c.

'Well, Kakkâna, give the people who eat the remains of (the Bhikkhus') food as much sugar as they want,' &c.

5. 'Well, Kakkâna, let the people who eat the remains of (the Bhikkhus') food, eat their fill with sugar' (&c., down to:); some of the people who ate the remains of (the Bhikkhus') food, filled their pots and jars, and filled their baskets and the folds of their dress with it.

6. And Belattha Kakkâna, having let the people who ate the remains of (the Bhikkhus') food, eat their fill with sugar, said to the Blessed One: 'The people, Lord, who eat the remains of (the Bhikkhus') food, have eaten their fill with sugar, but there is much sugar left over; what shall I do with it, Lord?'

'I see no one, Kakkâna, in the world of men and gods, in Mâra's and Brahma's world, among all beings, Samanâs and Brâhmaânas, gods and men, by whom that sugar, when he has eaten it, can be fully assimilated, save by the Tathâgata or by a disciple of the Tathâgata. Therefore, Kakkâna, throw that sugar away at a place free from grass, or sink it into water in which there are no living things.'

Belattha Kakkâna accepted this order of the Blessed One (by saying), 'Yes, Lord,' and sunk that sugar into water in which there were no living things.

7. And that sugar, when thrown into the water, hissed and bubbled, and steamed, and sent forth smoke. As a ploughshare, which has been heated through the whole day and is thrown into water, hisses and bubbles, and steams, and sends forth smoke, so that sugar, when thrown into the water, hissed and bubbled, steamed, and sent forth smoke. And Belattha Kakkâna, terrified and having his hair erect with fear, went to the place where the Blessed One was; having approached him and respectfully saluted the Blessed One, he sat down near him.

8. When Belattha Kakkâna was sitting near him, the Blessed One preached to him in due course, that is to say, he talked about the merits obtained by alms-giving, about the duties of morality, about heaven, about the evils, the vanity, and the defilement of lusts, and about the blessings of the abandonment of lusts. When the Blessed One saw that the mind of Belattha Kakkâna was prepared, impressible, free from obstacles (to understanding the Truth), elated, and believing, then he preached what is the principal doctrine of the Buddhas, namely, Suffering, the Cause of suffering, the Cessation of suffering, the Path. Just as a clean cloth free from black specks properly takes the dye, thus Belattha Kakkâna, even while sitting there, obtained the pure and spotless Eye of the Truth (that is, the knowledge): ‘Whatsoever is subject to the condition of origination is subject also to the condition of cessation.’

9. And Belattha Kakkâna, having seen the Truth, having mastered the Truth, having understood the Truth, having penetrated the Truth, having overcome uncertainty, having dispelled all doubts, having gained full knowledge, dependent on nobody else for the knowledge of the doctrine of the Teacher, said to the Blessed One: ‘Glorious, Lord! glorious, Lord! Just as if one should set up, Lord, what had been overturned, or should reveal what had been hidden, or should point out the way to one who had lost his way, or should bring a lamp into the darkness, in order that those who had eyes might see visible things, thus has the Blessed One preached the doctrine in many ways. I take my refuge, Lord, in the Blessed One, and in the Dhamma, and in the fraternity of Bhikkhus; may the Blessed One receive me from this day forth while my life lasts as a disciple who has taken his refuge in him.'

And the Blessed One, wandering from place to place, came to Rāgagaha. There the Blessed One dwelt near Rāgagaha, in the Veūvana, at Kalandakanivāpa. At that time the Bhikkhus at Rāgagaha had plenty of sugar. The Bhikkhus feared to offend (and thought): 'The Blessed One has allowed the eating of sugar only to the sick and not to the healthy,' and therefore they did not eat sugar.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I allow, O Bhikkhus, to the sick the eating of sugar, and to the healthy the drinking of sugar-water.'

28.

1. And the Blessed One, after having dwelt at Rāgagaha as long as he thought fit, went forth to Pātaligāma, accompanied by a great number of Bhikkhus, by twelve hundred and fifty Bhikkhus. Wandering from place to place the Blessed One came to Pātaligāma.

1 Chaps. 28–30 are, with a few unimportant variations, word for word the same as Mahâparinibbâna Sutta I, 19–II, 3; II, 16–24. See Rh. D.'s Introduction to his translation of the Mahâparinibbâna Sutta, pp. xxxiv seq., and his note there at II, 16.
Now the lay-devotees at Pātaligāma heard: ‘The Blessed One has arrived at Pātaligāma.’ And the Pātaligāma lay-devotees went to the place where the Blessed One was; having approached him and respectfully saluted the Blessed One, they sat down near him. When they were seated near him, the Blessed One taught, incited, animated, and gladdened the Pātaligāma lay-devotees by religious discourse.

2. And the Pātaligāma lay-devotees, having been taught, incited, animated, and gladdened by the Blessed One by religious discourse, said to the Blessed One: ‘Might the Blessed One, Lord, consent to come to our rest house together with the fraternity of Bhikkhus.’ The Blessed One expressed his consent by remaining silent. Then the Pātaligāma lay-devotees, when they understood that the Blessed One had accepted their invitation, rose from their seats, respectfully saluted the Blessed One, and passing round him with their right side towards him, went away to the rest house. When they had arrived there, they strewed the whole floor of the rest house\(^1\), placed seats in it, set up a water-pot, and fixed an oil lamp. Then they went to the place where the Blessed One was; having approached him and respectfully saluted the Blessed One, they stationed themselves near him.

3. Standing near him the Pātaliputta lay-devotees said to the Blessed One: ‘We have strewn the whole floor of the rest house, Lord, (with sand), we have placed seats in it, set up a water-pot, and

\(^1\) Perhaps we are to supply ‘with sand.’ Comp. Dipavamsa VI, 64; XII, 71, &c.
fixed an oil lamp. May the Blessed One. Lord, do now what he thinks fit.'

And in the forenoon the Blessed One, having put on his under-robes, took his alms-bowl, and, with his āṭvara on, went to the rest house together with the Bhikkhus who followed him. When he had arrived there, he washed his feet, entered the rest house, and took his seat against the centre pillar, with his face towards the east. And the Bhikkhus also washed their feet, entered the rest house, and took their seats against the western wall, with their faces towards the east, having the Blessed One before their eyes. And the Pātaligāma lay-devotees also washed their feet, entered the rest house, and took their seats against the eastern wall, with their faces towards the west, having the Blessed One before their eyes.

4. Then the Blessed One thus addressed the Pātaligāma lay-devotees: 'Fivefold, O householders, is the loss of the wrong-doer through his want of rectitude. And which is this fivefold loss? In the first place, O householders, the wrong-doer, devoid of rectitude, falls into great poverty through sloth; this is the first loss of the wrong-doer through his want of rectitude. And again, O householders, of the wrong-doer, devoid of rectitude, evil repute gets noised abroad; this is the second &c. And again, O householders, whatever society the wrong-doer, devoid of rectitude, enters—whether of noblemen, Brāhmaṇas, heads of houses, or Samanās—he enters shyly and confused; this is the third &c. And again, O householders, the wrong-doer, devoid of rectitude, is full of anxiety when he dies; this is the fourth &c. And again, O householders, the wrong-doer, devoid of rectitude, on the dissolution of his body, after death, is reborn into some state of distress and punishment, a state of woe, and hell; this is the fifth &c. 'This is the fivefold loss, O householders, of the wrong-doer through his want of rectitude.

5. 'Fivefold, O householders, is the gain of the well-doer through his practice of rectitude. And which is this fivefold gain? In the first place, O householders, the well-doer, strong in rectitude, acquires great wealth through his industry; this is the first gain of the well-doer through his practice of rectitude. And again, O householders, of the well-doer, strong in rectitude, good reports are spread abroad; this is the second &c. And again, O householders, whatever society the well-doer strong in rectitude, enters—whether of noblemen, Brāhmaṇas, heads of houses, or Samanas—he enters confident and self-possessed; this is the third &c. And again, O householders, the well-doer, strong in rectitude, dies without anxiety; this is the fourth &c. And again, O householders, the well-doer, strong in rectitude, on the dissolution of his body, after death, is reborn into some happy state in heaven; this is the fifth &c. This is the fivefold gain, O householders, of the well-doer through his practice of rectitude.'

6. When the Blessed One had thus taught, incited, animated, and gladdened the Pāṭaligāma lay-devotees far into the night with religious discourse, he dismissed them, saying, 'The night is far spent, O householders. May you do now what you think fit.' The Pāṭaligāma lay-devotees accepted the Blessed One's word by saying, 'Yes, Lord,' rose from their seats, respectfully saluted the Blessed One, and passing round him with their right side towards him, went away.

7. And the Blessed One, not long after the Pátaligâma lay-devotees had departed thence, went to an empty place¹ (in order to give himself to meditation).

At that time Sunidha and Vassakâra, two ministers of Magadha, were building a (fortified) town at Pátaligâma in order to repel the Vaggis. And the Blessed One, rising up early in the morning, at dawn’s time, saw with his divine and clear vision, surpassing that of ordinary men, great numbers of fairies who haunted the ground there at Pátaligâma. Now, wherever ground is occupied by powerful fairies, they bend the hearts of powerful kings and ministers to build dwelling-places there. Wherever ground is occupied by fairies of middling power, &c.; of inferior power, they bend the hearts of middling kings and ministers, &c., of inferior kings and ministers to build dwelling-places there.

8. And the Blessed One said to the venera Ānanda: ‘Who are they, Ānanda, who are building a town at Pátaligâma?’

‘Sunidha and Vassakâra, Lord, the two ministers of Magadha, are building a town at Pátaligâma in order to repel the Vaggis.’

‘As if they had consulted, Ānanda, with the Tâvatimsa gods, so (at the right place), Ānanda, the Magadha ministers Sunidha and Vassakâra build this town at Pátaligâma in order to repel the Vaggis. When I had risen up early in the morning, Ānanda, at dawn’s time, I saw with my divine and clear vision (&c., as in § 7, down to :) they bend the hearts of inferior kings and ministers to build dwelling-places there. As far, Ānanda, as Aryan people dwell, as far as merchants travel, this will become the chief town, the city of Pātaliputta. But danger of destruction, Ānanda, will hang over Pātaliputta in three ways, by fire, or by water, or by internal discord.

9. And the Magadha ministers Sunītha and Vassakāra went to the place where the Blessed One was; having approached him, they exchanged greeting with the Blessed One; having exchanged with him greeting and complaisant words, they stationed themselves near him; then standing near him the Magadha ministers Sunītha and Vassakāra said to the Blessed One: ‘Might the reverend Gotama consent to take his meal with us to-day together with the fraternity of Bhikkhus.’

The Blessed One expressed his consent by remaining silent. Then the Magadha ministers Sunītha and Vassakāra, when they understood that the Blessed One had accepted their invitation, went away.

1 The event prophesied here, Pātaliputta’s becoming the capital of the Magadha empire, is placed by the various authorities under different kings. Hwen Thsang and the Burmese writer quoted by Bishop Bigandet (‘Legend of the Burmese Buddha,’ third edition, vol. ii, p. 183) say that it was Kālāsoka who removed the seat of the empire to Pātaliputta. The Gains, on the other hand, state that it was Udāyi, the son of Agātasattu. Most probably the latter tradition is the correct one, as, even king Māṇḍa is mentioned in the Aṅguttara Nikāya as having resided at Pātaliputta. Comp. Rh. D.’s ‘Buddhist Suttas,’ Introd. pp. xv seq.; H. O.’s Introduction to the Mahāvagga, p. xxxvii; and the remarks of Professor Jacobi and of H O. in Zeitschrift der Deutschen Morg. Gesellschaft, vol. xxxiv, pp. 185, 751, 752, note 2.
10. And the Magadha ministers Sunīḍha and Vassakâra ordered excellent food, both hard and soft, to be prepared, and had meal-time announced (&c.¹, down to :) on seats laid out for them. And the Magadha ministers Sunīḍha and Vassakâra with their own hands served and offered excellent food, both hard and soft, to the fraternity of Bhikkhus with the Buddha at its head; and when the Blessed One had finished his meal and cleansed his bowl and his hands, they sat down near him. When they were sitting near him, the Blessed One gladdened the Magadha ministers Sunīḍha and Vassakâra by these stanzas:

11. 'Wheresoe’er the prudent man shall take up his abode, let him support there good and upright men of self-control.

'Let him make offerings to all such deities as may be there. Revered, they will revere him; honoured, they honour him again;

'Are gracious to him as a mother to the son of her womb. And a man who has the grace of the gods, good fortune he beholds.'

And the Blessed One, having gladdened the Magadha ministers Sunīḍha and Vassakâra by these stanzas, rose from his seat and went away.

12. And the Magadha ministers Sunīḍha and Vassakâra followed the Blessed One from behind, saying, 'The gate the Samana Gotama goes out by to-day shall be called Gotama’s gate, and the ferry at which he crosses the river Ganges shall be called Gotama’s ferry.' And the gate the Blessed One went out by was called Gotama’s gate. And the Blessed One went on to the river. At that time the river Ganges was brimful and overflowing; and wishing to cross to the opposite bank, some began to seek for boats, some for rafts of wood, while some made rafts of basket-work.

13. And the Blessed One saw those people who wished to cross to the opposite bank, some seeking for boats, some for rafts of wood, and some making rafts of basket-work. When he saw them, he vanished as quickly as a strong man might stretch his bent arm out, or draw back his outstretched arm, from this side of the river Ganges, and stood on the further bank with the company of the Bhikkhus.

And the Blessed One, perceiving all this, on this occasion, pronounced this solemn utterance:

‘They who cross the ocean’s floods making a solid path across the pools—

‘Whilst the vain world ties its basket rafts: these are the wise, these are the saved indeed.’

29.

1. And the Blessed One went to Koṭigāma. There at Koṭigāma the Blessed One resided. And the Blessed One thus addressed the Bhikkhus:

‘It is through not understanding and grasping four Noble Truths, O Bhikkhus, that we have had to run so long, to wander so long in this weary path of transmigration, both you and I. And what are these four? By not understanding and grasping the Noble Truth of Suffering, O Bhikkhus; by not understanding and grasping the Noble Truth of the Cause of suffering, by not understanding and grasping the Noble Truth of the Cessation of suffering; by not understanding and grasping the Noble Truth of the Path which leads to the cessation of suffering: thereby we have had to run so long, to wander so long in this weary path of transmigration, both you and I.

2. 'But now, O Bhikkhus, the Noble Truth of Suffering is understood and grasped; the Noble Truth of the Cause of suffering, &c., of the Cessation of suffering, &c., of the Path which leads to the cessation of suffering is understood and grasped. The craving for existence is rooted out; that which leads to renewed existence is destroyed; and there is no more birth!

'By not seeing the four Noble Truths as they really are, long is the path that is traversed through many a birth.

'Now these are grasped; the cause of birth is removed, the root of sorrow rooted out, and there is no more birth.'

1. Now the courtezan Ambapâlī heard that the Blessed One had arrived at Kośigâma. And the courtezan Ambapâlī ordered a number of magnificent vehicles to be made ready, mounted one of these vehicles, and left Vesâli with her magnificent vehicles in order to visit the Blessed One. She went in the carriage as far as the ground was passable for carriages; there she alighted; and she proceeded on foot to the place where the Blessed One was. Having approached him and respectfully saluted the Blessed One, she sat down near him.

2. When she was sitting near him, the Blessed One taught, incited, animated, and gladdened the courtezan Ambapâlī by religious discourse. And the courtezan Ambapâlī, having been taught, &c., by the Blessed One by religious discourse, said to the Blessed One: 'Might the Blessed One, Lord, consent to take his meal with me to-morrow together with the fraternity of Bhikkhus.'

The Blessed One expressed his consent by remaining silent.

Then the courtezan Ambapâlī, when she understood that the Blessed One had accepted her invitation, rose from her seat, respectfully saluted the Blessed One, and, passing round him with her right side towards him, went away.

3. Now the Likkhavis of Vesāli heard that the Blessed One had arrived at Kotigâma. And the Likkhavis of Vesāli ordered a number of magnificent vehicles to be made ready, mounted these vehicles, and left Vesāli with their magnificent vehicles in order to visit the Blessed One. Some of the Likkhavis were dark, dark in colour, and wearing dark clothes and ornaments; some of them were fair, fair in colour, and wearing light clothes and ornaments; some of them were red, ruddy in colour, and wearing red clothes and ornaments; some of them were white, pale in colour, and wearing white colours and ornaments. And the courtezan Ambapâlī drove up against the young Likkhavis, pole to pole, yoke to yoke, wheel to wheel, axle to axle. [4.] And those Likkhavis said to the courtezan Ambapālī: 'How is it, Ambapālī, that you drive up against the young Likkhavis, pole to pole, &c.?'

'My Lords, I have just invited the Blessed One with the fraternity of Bhikkhus for their morrow's meal.'

'Ambapālī! give up this meal to us for a hundred thousand.'

'My Lords, were you to offer all Vesāli with its subject territory, I would not give up this meal.'

Then the Likkhavis snapped their fingers (exclaiming), 'We are outdone by this woman! we are out-reached by this woman!'

4. Then the Likkhavis went to the place where the Blessed One was. And the Blessed One saw the Likkhavis coming from afar; when he saw them, he addressed the Bhikkhus and said: 'O Bhikkhus, let those of the Bhikkhus who have never seen the Tāvatimsa gods, gaze upon this company of the Likkhavis, behold this company of the Likkhavis, compare this company of the Likkhavis, even as a company of Tāvatimsa gods!'

And the Likkhavis went in the carriages as far as the ground was passable for carriages (&c., as in §§ 1, 2, down to:) 'Might the Blessed One, Lord, consent to take his meal with us to-morrow together with the fraternity of Bhikkhus.'

1 Ambakāya, which Buddhaghosa explains by itthikāya, comp. the well-known Mantra, Vāgasaneyi Samhitā 23.18: Amba ambike 'mba likhe, &c. Probably the word ambakā is a contemptuous form intended here at the same time to convey an allusion to the mango-(amba-) gardens which Ambapālī possessed, and from which she was named. Comp. Rh. D.'s note at Mahāparinibbāna Sutta II, 10.
'I have promised, O Likkhavis, to dine to-morrow with Ambapâlī the courtezan.'

5. And the Blessed One, after having dwelt at Kośīgâma as long as he thought fit, went to ātikâ. There the Blessed One dwelt at Ātikâ, in the Brick Hall (Gīṅgakâvasatha). And when the night had elapsed, the courtezan Ambapâlī ordered in her park excellent food (&c., as in chap. 28. 10, down to:) she sat down near him. Sitting near him the courtezan Ambapâlī said to the Blessed One: 'I give up this Ambapâlī grove, Lord, to the fraternity of Bhikkhus with the Buddha at its head.' The Blessed One accepted the Árâma. Then the Blessed One, after having taught, incited, animated, and gladdened the courtezan Ambapâlī by religious discourse, rose from his seat and went to the Mahâvana. There the Blessed One dwelt at Vesâli, in the Mahâvana, in the Kûṭâgâra-sâlā.

1. At that time many distinguished Likkhavis were sitting together assembled in the town-hall and spoke in many ways in praise of the Buddha, of the Dhamma, and of the Samgha. At that time Sîha, the general-in-chief (of the Likkhavis), a disciple of the Nigantha sect, was sitting in that assembly. And Sîha, the general, thought: 'Truly he, the Blessed One, must be the Arahant Buddha, since these many distinguished Likkhavis, who are sitting here together assembled in the town-hall, speak in so many ways in praise of the Buddha, of the Dhamma, and of the Samgha. What if I were to go and visit him, the Arahant Buddha.'

2. And Sīha, the general, went to the place where the Nigantha Nātaputta¹ was; having approached him, he said to the Nigantha Nātaputta: 'I wish, Lord, to go and visit the Samana Gotama.'

'Why should you, Sīha, who believe in the result of actions² (according to their moral merit), go to visit the Samana Gotama, who denies the result of actions? For the Samana Gotama, Sīha, denies the result of actions; he teaches the doctrine of non-action: and in this doctrine he trains his disciples.'

Then the desire to go and to visit the Blessed One, which had arisen in Sīha, the general, abated in him.

3. And a second time many distinguished Likkhavis were sitting together (&c., as in §§ 1, 2, down to the end).

And a third time many distinguished Likkhavis were sitting together, &c. And a third time Sīha, the general, thought: 'Truly he, the Blessed One, must be the Arahant Buddha, since these many distinguished Likkhavis, who are sitting here together assembled in the town-hall, speak in so many ways in praise of the Buddha, of the Dhamma, and of the Sangha. What are the Niganthas to me, whether they give their consent or not? What if I were to go without asking the Niganthas for their consent, to visit him, the Blessed One, the Arahant Buddha.'

4. And Sīha, the general, went out of Vesāli with five hundred vehicles at broad daylight in order to visit the Blessed One. He went in the carriage as far as the ground was passable for carriages; there he alighted; and he proceeded on foot to the place where the Blessed One was. Having approached him, and respectfully saluted the Blessed One, he sat down near him. When he was sitting near him, Sīha, the general, said to the Blessed One: 'I have heard, Lord, that the Samana Gotama denies the result of actions; he teaches the doctrine of non-action, and in this doctrine he trains his disciples. Now, Lord, those who speak thus: "The Samana Gotama denies the result of actions," &c.—do they say the truth of the Blessed One, and do they not bear false witness against the Blessed One and pass off a spurious Dhamma as your Dhamma? And there is nothing blameworthy in a discourse and dispute like this regarding matters of the Dhamma; for it is our intention, Lord, to avoid bringing false accusations against the Blessed One.'

5. 'There is a way, Sīha, in which one speaking truly could say of me: "The Samana Gotama denies action; he teaches the doctrine of non-action; and in this doctrine he trains his disciples."

‘And in which way is it, Sīha, that one speaking truly could say of me: “The Samana Gotama maintains action; he teaches the doctrine of action; and in this doctrine he trains his disciples?” I teach, Sīha, the doing of such actions as are righteous, by deed, by word, and by thought; I teach the bringing about of the manifold conditions (of heart) which are good and not evil. In this way, &c.”

7. ‘And in which way is it, Sīha, that one speaking truly could say of me: “The Samana Gotama maintains annihilation; he teaches the doctrine of annihilation; and in this doctrine he trains his disciples?” I proclaim, Sīha, the annihilation of lust, of ill-will, of delusion; I proclaim the annihilation of the manifold conditions (of heart) which are evil and not good. In this way, &c.”

‘And in which way is it, Sīha, that one speaking truly could say of me: “The Samana Gotama proclaims contemptibleness, &c.?" I deem, Sīha, unrighteous actions contemptible, whether they be performed by deed, or by word, or by thought; I proclaim the doctrine of the contemptibleness of falling into the manifold conditions (of heart) which are evil and not good. In this way, &c.

8. 'And in which way is it, Sīha, that one speaking truly could say of me: "The Samana Gotama proclaims Vinaya, &c.?" I teach, Sīha, the doing away\(^1\) with lust, with ill-will, with delusion; I teach the doing away with the manifold conditions (of heart) which are evil and not good. In this way, &c.

'And in which way is it, Sīha, that one speaking truly could say of me: "The Samana Gotama proclaims Tapas, &c.?" I teach, Sīha, that all the conditions (of heart) which are evil and not good, unrighteous actions by deed, by word, and by thought must be burnt away\(^2\). He who has freed himself, Sīha, from all conditions (of heart) which are evil and not good, which ought to be burnt away, who has rooted them out, and has done away with them as a palm tree is rooted out\(^3\), so that they are destroyed\(^4\) and cannot grow up again—such a

9. 'And in which way is it, Śīha, that one speaking truly could say of me: "The Samaṇa Gotama is apagabbha (irresolute)\(^1\), &c.?" He who has freed himself, Śīha, from the necessity of returning in future into a mother's womb\(^2\), and of being reborn into new existences, who has rooted out (his being subject to) rebirth, and has done away with it as a palm tree is rooted out, so that it is destroyed and cannot grow up again—such a person do I call apagabbha. 10. When he had spoken thus, Śīha, the general, said to the Blessed One: 'Glorious, Lord! glorious, Lord! (&c., as in chap. 26. 9, down to:) may the Blessed One receive me from this day forth while my life lasts as a disciple who has taken his refuge in him.'

'Consider first, Śīha, what you are doing. It is becoming that well-known persons like you should do nothing without due consideration.'

2 Into a 'gabbha.' 'Apagabbha' is taken here as 'not subject to returning to a gabbha.'
'By this, Lord, my joy and my faith in the Blessed One has still increased, in that the Blessed One says to me: "Consider first, &c." Had the other Titthiya teachers, Lord, got me as their disciple, they would carry around their banners through the whole of Vesālī (and cry): "Sīha, the general, has become our disciple!" But the Blessed One says to me: "Consider first, &c." For the second time, Lord, I take my refuge in the Blessed One, and in the Dhamma, and in the Bhikkhu-sāṅgha: may the Blessed One receive me from this day forth while my life lasts as a disciple who has taken his refuge in him.'

11. 'For a long time, Sīha, drink has been offered to the Niganthas in your house\(^1\). You should therefore deem it right (also in the future) to give them food when they come (to you on their alms-pilgrimage).'

'By this, Lord, my joy and my faith in the Blessed One has still increased, in that the Blessed One says to me: "For a long time, &c." I have been told, Lord: "The Samava Gotama says: 'To me alone gifts should be given; to nobody else gifts should be given. To my pupils alone gifts should be given; to no one else's pupils gifts should be given. Only what is given to me has great reward; what is given to others has not great reward. Only what is given to my pupils has great reward; what is given to the pupils of others has not great reward.'" But the Blessed One exhorts me to give also to the Niganthas. Well, Lord, we will see what will be seasonable. For the third time, Lord, I take my refuge in the Blessed One, &c.'

12. And the Blessed One preached to Sīha, the general, in due course; that is to say, he talked about the merits obtained by almsgiving, about the duties of morality (&c., in the usual way; see, for instance, I, 8, 2, 3, down to :) dependent on nobody else for knowledge of the doctrine of the Teacher, he said to the Blessed One: 'Lord, may the Blessed One consent to take his meal with me to-morrow, together with the fraternity of Bhikkhus.'

The Blessed One expressed his consent by remaining silent. Then Sīha, the general, when he understood that the Blessed One had accepted his invitation, rose from his seat, respectfully saluted the Blessed One, and, passing round him with his right side towards him, went away.

And Sīha, the general, gave order to a certain man (among his subalterns, saying), 'Go, my friend, and see if there is any meat to be had.' And when that night had elapsed, Sīha, the general, ordered excellent food (&c., as in chap. 23. 5, down to the end).

13. At that time a great number of Niganthas (running) through Vesāli, from road to road and from cross-way to cross-way², with outstretched arms, cried: 'To-day Sīha, the general, has killed a great ox and has made a meal for the Samana Gotama; the Samana Gotama knowingly eats this meat of an animal killed for this very purpose, and has thus become virtually the author of that deed (of killing the animal)!'

Then a certain man went to the place where Sīha,

the general, was. Having approached him he said to Siha, the general, into his ear: 'Please, Lord, have you noticed that a great number of Niganthas (running) through Vesâli, &c.?'

'Do not mind it, my good Sir. Long since those venerable brethren are trying to discredit the Buddha, the Dhamma, and the Sangha; and those venerable brethren do not become tired of telling false, idle, vain lies of the Blessed One. Not for our life would we ever intentionally kill a living being.'

14. And Siha, the general, served and offered with his own hands excellent food, both hard and soft, to the fraternity of Bhikkhus with the Buddha at its head; and when the Blessed One (&c., as in chap. 23. 7, down to the end).

In consequence of that the Blessed One, having delivered a religious discourse, addressed the Bhikkhus and said:

'Let no one, O Bhikkhus, knowingly eat meat (of an animal) killed for that purpose. Whosoever does so, is guilty of a dukkata offence.

'I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that fish is pure to you in three cases: if you do not see, if you have not heard, if you do not suspect (that it has been caught specially to be given to you).'

1. Now at that time Vesâli was well provided with food, the harvest was good, alms were easy to obtain, one could very well get a living¹ by gleaning, or through favour.

¹ Literally, 'keep oneself going.' Compare the use of yâpetum at Mahâ-parinibbâna Sutta II, 32.
And when the Blessed One had retired into solitude this consideration presented itself to his mind: 'The things which I have prescribed for the Bhikkhus in a time of scarcity, when the harvest is bad, and alms are difficult to obtain—keeping food indoors, cooking it indoors, cooking it of one's own accord, taking what they can pick up, eating food brought from within, or received before meal-time, eating things found in woods or in pools\(^1\), those things the Bhikkhus enjoy also now.'

And the Blessed One, in the evening, when he had left his solitude, said to the venerable Ānanda: 'The things which (&c., as above, down to :) or in pools—do the Bhikkhus enjoy those things now also?'

'They enjoy them, Lord.'

2. Then the Blessed One, in that connection, and on that account, after having delivered a religious discourse, said to the Bhikkhus:

'The things which I have prescribed (&c., as in § 1, down to :) or in pools—those I do not allow from this day forth. You are not, O Bhikkhus, to eat food kept indoors, or cooked indoors, or cooked of your own accord; nor to take things (to eat) which you have picked up. Whosoever shall so do, is guilty of a dukkata offence. And you are not, O Bhikkhus—after you have once finished eating, and have refused food still offered—to eat food brought from within, or received before meal-time, or found in the woods or pools, even if it be food which is not the leavings of the meal of one who has eaten on invitation. Whosoever shall so eat, shall be dealt with according to law\(^2\).'

\(^1\) For these rules, see above, VI, 17–19.

\(^2\) See the 35th Pādīṭṭīya Rule, and our note upon it.
33.

1. Now at that time the country people loaded much salt, and oil, and rice, and hard food on their carts, and making a laager in the outer enclosure of the Ārâma, they waited there, saying, 'When it comes to our turn, we will provide a meal.' And a great storm-cloud arose.

Then those people went to the place where the venerable Ānanda was; and when they had come there they said to the venerable Ānanda: 'We loaded a quantity of salt, and oil, and rice, and hard food on to our carts; and they stand there. Now a great storm-cloud has arisen. What are we now, Ānanda, Sir, to do with them?'

Then the venerable Ānanda told this thing to the Blessed One.

2. 'In that case, Ānanda, let the Samgha decide upon some outside building as a kappiya-bhûmi (that is to say, a site, outside the actual dwelling, in which provisions can be kept or cooked without breaking the rule laid down in the last chapter) and keep the stores there (in a building) of any shape the Samgha chooses, such as vihâra, addhayoga, pāsāda, hammiyâ, guhâ.¹

'And thus, O Bhikkhus, should it be resolved upon. A discreet and able Bhikkhu should proclaim the following ūatti before the Samgha: "Let the Samgha, reverend Sirs, hear me. If the Samgha is ready, let the Samgha appoint the Vihâra called N. N. to be our kappiya-bhûmi. This is the ūatti. Let the Samgha, reverend Sirs, hear me.

The Samgha appoints the Vihāra called N. N. to be our kappiya-bhūmi. Let any one of the venerable brethren who is in favour of appointing the Vihāra (&c., down to :) thus I understand."

3. Now at that time men in that place—the kappiya-bhūmi duly chosen by resolution (of the Samgha)—boiled congey, and boiled rice, and mixed curries, and cut up meat, and split fire-wood. And when the Blessed One, as the night was passing away, rose up, he heard a great and loud noise, as of the cawing of crows. On hearing this he asked the venerable Ānanda: ‘What now, Ānanda, may be this great and loud noise, as of the cawing of crows?’

4. ‘In that place, Lord,—the kappiya-bhūmi duly chosen by resolution (of the Samgha),—men are now boiling congey, and boiling rice, and mixing curries, and cutting up meat, and splitting fire-wood. Thence, Lord, comes that great and loud noise, as of the cawing of crows.’

Then the Blessed One, in that connection, and on that account, after he had delivered a religious discourse, said to the Bhikkhus:

‘A kappiya-bhūmi, O Bhikkhus, duly chosen, is not to be made use of. Whosoever shall so use it, is guilty of a dukkha/a offence. I allow you, O Bhikkhus, a kappiya-bhūmi of three kinds, one that has become so by means of a proclamation."

1 Buddhaghosa says on this word: ‘When a Vihāra is to be erected on piles, or the foundations of its walls are to be dug out, and the stones on which it is to rest are already laid, then when the first pile or the first stone of the walls is put upon them, the men standing round in a body proclaim, “Let us make a kappiya-kusī.”’ The proclamation cannot be made after the building has got further than the actual stage here described. Ussavāna is an ox-stall, and a building belonging to laymen.

5. Now at that time the venerable Yasogha was sick, and drugs were brought for his use, and these the Bhikkhus put out of doors. Vermin ate them, and thieves carried them away.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to use a duly chosen kappiya-bhūmi (to keep drugs in). I allow you, O Bhikkhus, a kappiya-bhūmi of four kinds, one that has become so by means of a proclamation, an ox-stall, a building belonging to laymen, and a duly chosen one.'

End of the twenty-fourth Bhānavāra.

1. Now at that time in Bhaddiya-nagara there dwelt a householder named Mendaka (the Goat), who was possessed of this miraculous power: When he had bathed his head, and had had his granary swept out, he could sit outside and fill the granary from uṣṇa-vīti, 'to proclaim;' and antika is used here, as below in VII, 1, 7.

1 Goniśādika. Compare Buddhaghosa’s explanation of goniśādi-nivittó gāmo at Sutta-vibhaṅga, Pār. II, 3, as given by Minayeff, ‘Pratimoksha,’ p. 66, lines 7, 8. Here Buddhaghosa says simply, ‘There are two kinds of ox-stalls; ārāma ox-stalls and vihāra ox-stalls. Of these, when neither the ārāma nor the dwellings are fenced in (parikkhitthi honti), that is an ārāma ox-stall; when all or some of the dwellings are fenced in, and not the ārāma, that is a vihāra ox-stall. So both kinds depend upon the fencing in of the ārāma.’

2 This seems to mean that stores could be kept for the Samgha on laymen's premises.

3 Compare above, VI, 17, 7.
by making showers of grain fall down from the sky. His wife was possessed of this miraculous power: When she sat down beside a pint\(^1\) pot and vessel for curry and sauce she could serve the serving men with food; and so long as she did not get up, it was not exhausted. Their son was possessed of this miraculous power: He could take a bag containing a thousand\(^2\), and give to each serving man six months' wages; and so long as he held it in his hand, it was not exhausted.

2. Their daughter-in-law was possessed of this miraculous power: When she sat down beside a four-bushel\(^3\) basket she could give six months' rice to the serving men; and so long as she did not get up, it was not exhausted. Their slave was possessed of this miraculous power: When he ploughed with one plough-share seven furrows were formed.

3, 4. Now the Māgadha king Seniya Bimbisāra heard: ‘In Bhaddiya-nagara in our kingdom there dwells, they say, a householder named Menaḍaka, who is possessed (&c., as in \(\S\) 1, 2, down to the end).’

5. Then the Māgadha king Seniya Bimbisāra said to a certain minister who had charge of general affairs: ‘They say, good Sir, that in Bhaddiya-nagara (&c., as above). Go, good Sir, and find out about this. When you have seen it, it shall be the same as if I myself had seen it.’

‘Even so, Lord,’ said that minister, in assent, to the Māgadha king Seniya Bimbisāra, and he set out for Bhaddiya-nagara with his fourfold host.

6. And proceeding straight on he came to Bhaddiya-nagara, and to the place where the householder

Mendaka was; and when he had come there, he said to the householder Mendaka: 'I have received command from the king, "They say, good Sir (&c., as above, § 5)." Let us behold, O householder, your miraculous power.'

Then Mendaka the householder bathed his head, and had his granary swept out, and sat down outside it. And showers of grain fell down from the sky and filled the granary.

'I have seen, O householder, your miraculous power. Let us see that of your wife.'

7. Then Mendaka the householder gave command to his wife, 'Serve then the fourfold host with food.'

And the wife of Mendaka the householder took her seat beside a pint pot and a vessel of sauces and curry, and served the fourfold host with food; and until she rose up it was not exhausted.

'I have seen, O householder, the miraculous power of your wife. Let us see that of your son.'

8. Then Mendaka the householder gave command to his son, 'Pay then, my dear boy, six months' wages to the fourfold host.'

And the son of Mendaka the householder took one bag containing a thousand, and paid the fourfold army six months' wages. And so long as he held it in his hand, it was not exhausted.

'I have seen, O householder, the miraculous power of your son. Let us see that of your daughter-in-law.'

9. Then Mendaka the householder gave command to his daughter-in-law, 'Give, then, six months' rice to the fourfold host.'

And the daughter-in-law of Mendaka the householder sat down beside one four-bushel basket, and provided the fourfold host with six months' rice. And so long as she did not get up, it was not exhausted.

'I have seen, O householder, the miraculous power of your daughter-in-law. Let us see that of your slave.'

'The miraculous power of my slave, Sir, must be seen in the field.'

'It is enough, O householder. I have seen the miraculous power of your slave.'

Then that minister returned again to Rāgagaha with his fourfold host, and went to the place where the Māgadha king Seniya Bimbisāra was, and when he had come there he told the matter to the Māgadha king Seniya Bimbisāra.

10. Now the Blessed One, when he had remained at Vesāli as long as he thought fit, went on his way to Bhaddiya with a great company of Bhikkhus, with one thousand two hundred and fifty Bhikkhus. And the Blessed One wandering straight on arrived at Bhaddiya. And there the Blessed One stayed in the Gātiyāvana.

11. And Mendaka the householder heard: 'Behold, that Samana Gotama, of the Sakya clan, who left the Sakya tribe to adopt the religious life, is now arrived at Bhaddiya and is staying in the Gātiyāvana. Now regarding that venerable Gotama, such is the high reputation that has been noised abroad that he is said to be a fully-enlightened one, blessed, and worthy, abounding in wisdom and goodness, happy, with knowledge of the worlds, unsurpassed, who guides men as a driver curbs a bullock, a teacher of gods and men, a blessed Buddha. He by himself thoroughly understands, and sees, as it were face to face, this universe, the world with its Devas, and with its Brahmans, and with its Māras, and all creatures, Samanās and Brāhmaṇas, gods and men: and he then makes that knowledge known to others. The truth doth he make known, both in the spirit and in the letter: lovely in its origin, lovely in its progress, lovely in its consummation. The higher life doth he proclaim, in all its purity and all its perfectness. Blessed is the sight of Arahats like that.'

12. Then Mendaka the householder had a number of splendid carriages made ready, and mounting one of them he set out from Bhaddiya with the train of splendid carriages to visit the Blessed One.

And many Titthiyas saw Mendaka the householder as he was coming from afar; and when they had seen him, they said to Mendaka the householder:

'Whither, O householder, are you going?'

'I am going, Sirs, to visit the Blessed One, the Samana Gotama.'

'But why, O householder, do you, being a Kiriya-vāda, go out to visit the Blessed One who is an Akiriya-vāda? For, O householder, the Samana Gotama, who is an Akiriya-vāda, teaches Dhamma without the doctrine of action\(^1\), and in this Dhamma he instructs his hearers.'

13. Then thought Mendaka the householder: 'For a certainty that Blessed One must be an Arahat Buddha: since these Titthiyas are so jealous of him.' And he went on to the place where the Blessed One was, proceeding in the carriage as far as the ground was passable for carriages, and then dismounting from the carriage, and going on foot.

And when he had come there, he bowed down before the Blessed One, and took his seat on one side.
And when he was so seated the Blessed One preached (&c., as usual, for instance, I, 8, 2, 3, down to:) 'taken his refuge in him.'
'May the Blessed One consent to take his meal, together with the Bhikkhu-samgha, at my house to-morrow.'
The Blessed One consented by remaining silent.

14. Then Mendaka the householder when he saw that the Blessed One had consented (&c., as usual, see VI, 18, 1, 2, down to:) sat down on the seat prepared for him.

15. Then the wife, and the son, and the daughter-in-law, and the slave of Mendaka the householder went to the place where the Blessed One was: and when they had come there they bowed down before the Blessed One and took their seats on one side.
And the Blessed One preached to them (&c., as in § 13, down to:) 'taken their refuge in him.'

16. Then Mendaka the householder served the Bhikkhu-samgha with the Buddha at their head
(&c., as usual, down to:) sat down on one side.
And when he was so seated Mendaka the householder said to the Blessed One: 'So long as the Blessed One shall stay at Bhaddiya, so long will I provide the Bhikkhu-samgha with the Buddha at their head with food every day.'
Then the Blessed One gladdened (&c., as usual, down to:) the Blessed One rose from his seat, and went away.

17. Now when the Blessed One had remained at Bhaddiya as long as he thought fit, he went on, without informing Mendaka the householder, to Aṅguttarāpa with a great company of Bhikkhus, with one thousand two hundred and fifty Bhikkhus.

And Mendaka the householder heard: 'The Blessed One, they say, has gone on to Aṅguttarāpa with (&c., down to:) Bhikkhus.' And Mendaka the householder gave command to his slaves and servants: 'Load then, my men, a quantity of salt and oil, and rice, and hard food, and come: and let one thousand two hundred and fifty cow-keepers come with one thousand two hundred and fifty cows. Wherever we find the Blessed One there will we supply him with fresh milk.'

18. And Mendaka the householder came up with the Blessed One in a desert place on the way. And Mendaka the householder went up to the place where the Blessed One was: and when he had come he stood on one side. And so standing, Mendaka the householder said to the Blessed One: 'May the Blessed One consent to take his meal (&c., as usual, down to:) 'The time has come, and the meal is ready.'

19. And the Blessed One early in the morning (&c., down to:) sat down on the seat prepared for him.

Then Mendaka the householder gave command to those thousand two hundred and fifty cow-keepers: 'Take then, my men, each of you a cow, and wait each of you upon a Bhikkhu, and provide him with fresh milk.'

And Mendaka the householder waited upon the Bhikkhu-saṅgha with the Buddha at their head with his own hand, and satisfied them with sweet food, hard and soft, and with fresh milk.
The Bhikkhus, fearing to offend, would not take the milk:
‘Take it, Bhikkhus, and drink it.’
20. And Mendaka the householder, when he had waited with his own hand upon the Bhikkhu-sangha with the Buddha at their head, and had satisfied them with sweet food, hard and soft, and with fresh milk; and when the Blessed One had finished his meal, and had washed his hands and his bowl, took his seat on one side.

And, so sitting, Mendaka the householder said to the Blessed One: ‘There are desert ways, Lord, waterless and foodless, where it is not easy to travel without supplies for the journey. It would be well if the Blessed One were to allow the Bhikkhus to take supplies with them.’

Then the Blessed One gladdened (&c., as usual, down to :) rose from his seat, and went away.

21. And the Blessed One, in that connection, and on that account, after having delivered a religious discourse, said to the Bhikkhus:

‘I allow you, O Bhikkhus, the five products of the cow;—milk, curds, ghee, buttermilk, and butter. There are, O Bhikkhus, desert ways, waterless and foodless, where it is not easy to travel without supplies for the journey. I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to provide yourselves with supplies for a journey;—rice for him who wants rice, beans for him who wants beans¹, salt for him who wants salt, molasses for him who wants molasses, oil for him who wants oil, ghee for him who wants ghee. There are, O Bhikkhus, faithful and converted men who deposit gold with a kappiya-kāraka\(^1\), saying, "Provide whatever is allowable for this Bhikkhu." I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to accept whatever is allowable. But I do not say by that, O Bhikkhus, that you may, on any pretext whatsoever, accept or seek for gold.\(^2\)

1. Now the Blessed One proceeded straight on, on his alms-pilgrimage, to Āpana. And Keniya the ascetic\(^2\) heard the saying, 'Behold! the Samava Gotama, who was born in the Sākya clan, and who went forth from the Sākya clan (to adopt the religious life), has arrived at Āpana, and is staying at Āpana. Now regarding that venerable Gotama, such is the high reputation that has been noised abroad that he is said to be a fully-enlightened one, blessed and worthy, abounding in wisdom and goodness, happy, with knowledge of the worlds, unsurpassed, who guides men as a driver curbs a bullock, a teacher of gods and men, a blessed Buddha. 2. And Keniya the ascetic thought: 'They who are the ancient Rishis of the Brâhmans, the authors of the sacred verses, the utterers of the sacred verses, whose ancient form of words, so uttered chaunted or composed, the Brâhmans of to-day chaunt over again and repeat, intoning or reciting exactly as had been intoned or recited—to wit, Athhaka, Vâmaka, Vâmadeva, Vessâmitta, Yama-taggi, Angirasa, Bhâradvâga, Vâsettha, and Bhagu³—they were abstainers from food at night, and abstainers from food at the wrong time, yet they used to receive such things as drinks. ³ The names of these Rishis, and the above phrases from 'They who' &c. downwards, recur several times in the Teviglia Sutta. See Rh. D., 'Buddhist Suttas,' p. 172, &c. Most of these names are easily to be identified, being in Sanskrit Vâmadeva, Visvâmitra, Gâmadagni (who is only mentioned in this list in reference to Rig-veda III, 62, quoted from below. See also Oldenberg's note to Sânhkâyana's Grihya-sûtra IV, 10 in Indische Studien XV, 153), Ângirasa, Bhâradvâga, Vasishtha, Kasyapa, and Bhrigu. The only doubtful names are Vâmaka and Athhaka. The latter must be Ashhâka, mentioned as the author of Rig-veda X, 104, unless it be supposed to be a corrupt reading under which some representation of Atri may lurk. Vâmaka is the only unintelligible form, for it would be difficult to see how that word could come to stand for the Vamra to whom Rig-veda X, 99 is ascribed.
at night, an abstainer from food at the wrong time\(^1\). It will be worthy of him too to receive such things as drinks. And when he had had a quantity of drinkables made ready he had them carried on pin-goes and went up to the place where the Blessed One was. And when he had come there, he greeted him; and after exchanging with him the greetings of friendship and civility, he stood by on one side. And so standing Keniya the ascetic spake thus to the Blessed One:

‘May the Blessed One accept at my hands these drinkables.’

‘Very good then, Keniya; give them to the Bhikkhus.’

The Bhikkhus, fearing to offend, would not receive them.

‘Receive them, O Bhikkhus, and make use of them.’

4. Then Keniya the ascetic having, with his own hand, satisfied the Bhikkhu-samgha with the Buddha at their head with many drinkables until they refused any more, took his seat, when the Blessed One had washed his hands, and had laid aside the bowl, on one side. And when he was so seated the Blessed One taught and incited and aroused and gladdened Keniya the ascetic with religious discourse: and Keniya the ascetic, when he had been taught and incited and aroused and gladdened by the Blessed One with religious discourse, spake thus to the Blessed One:

‘May the venerable Gotama grant to me the privilege of providing the to-morrow’s meal for him, together with the company of the Bhikkhus.’

5. 'Great, O Keniya, is the company of the Bhikkhus. Two hundred and fifty are the Bhikkhus in number. And thou art greatly devoted to the Brâhmans.'

Yet a second time spake Keniya the ascetic to the Blessed One thus:

'What though the company of the Bhikkhus, O Gotama, be great; and though two hundred and fifty be the number of the Bhikkhus. May the venerable Gotama grant to me the privilege of providing the to-morrow's meal for him, together with the company of the Bhikkhus.'

'Great, O Keniya (&c., as before).'</n
Yet a third time spake Keniya the ascetic to the venerable Gotama thus:

'What though the company of the Bhikkhus (&c., as before).'</n
Then the Blessed One granted, by remaining silent, his consent. And when Keniya the ascetic perceived that the Blessed One had granted his consent, he arose from his seat, and departed thence.

6. Then the Blessed One on that occasion, and in that connection, after he had delivered a religious discourse, addressed the Bhikkhus, and said:

'I allow you, O Bhikkhus, eight kinds of drinkable things: mango-syrup, and jambu-syrup, and plantain-syrup\(^1\), and moka-syrup, and honey, and

As kadali is the ordinary plantain or banana, which has no seeds, the meaning of the difference he makes between the two kinds is not clear. The expression ekatt̄hālapakka, at Gātaka I, 70, evidently rests on the same meaning of the word aṭṭhi, which there also

7. And Keniya the ascetic, at the end of the night, had sweet food, both hard and soft, made ready at his hermitage: and he had the time announced to the Blessed One, saying, ‘It is time, O Gotama, and the meal is ready.’

And the Blessed One, having put on his under robes early in the morning, went, duly bowled and robed, to the place where the hermitage of Keniya the ascetic was. And when he had arrived there, he sat down on the seat spread out for him, and with him the company of the Bhikkhus. Then Keniya the ascetic, with his own hand, offered to the company of the Bhikkhus with the Buddha at their head, and satisfied them with the sweet food, both hard and soft. And when the Blessed One had finished his meal and had washed his hands and his bowl, he (Keniya) took his seat on one side.

8. And when he was so seated the Blessed One pronounced the benediction on Keniya the ascetic in these verses:

'Of the offerings the fire sacrifice is the chief, of sacred verses the chief is the Sāvitthī;

'Among men the king is chief, and of waters the ocean,

'Of constellations the moon is chief, and of heat-givers the sun,

'But of them, the conquering ones, who long after good, the Samgha, verily, is chief.'

And when the Blessed One had, in these verses, pronounced the benediction on Keniya the ascetic, he rose from his seat, and departed thence.

1. Now when the Blessed One had stayed at Āpana as long as he thought fit, he went on, on his pilgrimage, to Kusinārā, with a great company

1 Yaśñā. Compare above, I, 22, 4, and our note there (p. 138).

2 This is of course the well-known verse Rig-veda III, 62, 10. The argumentum ad hominem here is a fresh confirmation of the view already expressed above in our note on I, 15, 1, that by the Gatlīlas are to be understood the orthodox Brāhmaṇ ascetics.

4 §§ 7, 8 recur in the Sela Sutta (Sutta Nipāta, III, 7, 21, 22), where they stand in a much more appropriate context. of Bhikkhus, with two hundred and fifty Bhikkhus. And the Mallas of Kusinârâ heard, saying, 'The Blessed One, they say, is coming to Kusinârâ with a great company of Bhikkhus, with two hundred and fifty Bhikkhus.' And they established a compact to the effect that whosoever went not forth to welcome the Blessed One, should pay a fine of five hundred (pieces). ¹

Now at that time there was a certain Malla, by name Roga, who was a friend of the venerable Ânanda's. And the Blessed One, continuing in due course his pilgrimage, arrived at Kusinârâ.

2. Then the Mallas of Kusinârâ went forth to welcome the Blessed One. And Roga the Malla, having gone forth to welcome the Blessed One, went on to the place where the venerable Ânanda was: and when he had come there, he saluted the venerable Ânanda, and stood by on one side. And to him, so standing, the venerable Ânanda spake thus:

'This is most excellent of thee, friend Roga, that thou hast come forth to welcome the Blessed One!'

'It is not I, O Ânanda, who am much moved ² by the Buddha, or the Dhamma, or the Samgha. But by the clansmen a compact was made to the effect that whosoever went not forth to welcome the Blessed One should pay a fine of five hundred (pieces). So that it was through fear of being fined by my clansmen that even I went forth to welcome the Blessed One.’

Then the venerable Ânanda was filled with sorrow, thinking, ‘How can Roga the Malla speak thus?’

3. And the venerable Ânanda went up to the place where the Blessed One was: and when he had come there, he saluted the Blessed One, and took his seat on one side, and so sitting the venerable Ânanda spake to the Blessed One thus:

‘This Roga the Malla, Lord, is a very distinguished and well-known person. Great would be the efficacy\(^1\) of the adherence given by well-known persons like him to this doctrine and discipline. May the Blessed One be pleased so to act, that Roga the Malla shall become devoted to this doctrine and discipline.’

‘Now that, Ânanda, is not a hard thing for the Tathâgata—so to act that Roga the Malla should become devoted to this doctrine and discipline.’

4. Then the Blessed One suffused Roga the Malla with the feeling of his love\(^2\), and rising from his seat he entered into his dwelling-place. And Roga the Malla, overcome by the Blessed One by the sense of his love, just as a young calf follows the kine, so did he go on from dwelling-place to dwelling-place, and from apartment to apartment, asking the Bhikkhus:

‘Where then, Sirs, is that Blessed One dwelling now, the Arahat Buddha? For we desire to visit that Blessed One, the Arahat Buddha.’

This, friend, is his dwelling-place, the door of which is shut. Go up therefore quietly, and without crossing the threshold, enter into the verandah, and knock at the cross-bar. The Blessed One will open the door to thee.

5. So Rōga the Malla did so, and the Blessed One opened the door. And Rōga the Malla entered into the dwelling-place, and saluted the Blessed One and took his seat on one side. And to Rōga the Malla sitting there the Blessed One preached in due course: that is to say, he talked to him of giving; of moral conduct; of heaven; of the danger of vanity, of the corruption of lusts; and of the advantages of renunciation. When the Blessed One saw that the mind of Rōga the Malla was prepared, impresensible, free from obstacles to understanding the truth, elated, and believing, then he preached that which is the principal doctrine of the Buddhas, namely, Suffering, the Cause of suffering, the Cessation of suffering, and the Path. And just as a clean cloth, free from black specks, properly takes the dye, thus did Rōga the Malla, even while sitting there, obtain the pure and spotless eye of the truth (that is, the knowledge that), 'Whatever is subject to the condition of beginning, that is subject also to the condition of cessation.' And Rōga the Malla, having seen the truth, having mastered the truth, having understood the truth, having penetrated the truth, having overcome uncertainty, having dispelled all doubts, having gained full knowledge, dependent on no one else for knowledge of the doctrine of the Teacher, thus spake to the Blessed One:

'May the venerable one be pleased, Lord, to receive from me alone, and not from others, the requisites of the Order: that is to say, robes, and food, and dwelling-places, and medicine for the use of the sick.

'Whosoever, Roga, with the knowledge of a disciple, and with the insight of a disciple\(^1\), has perceived the Truth, even as thou hast, they also will think, "Oh! that the venerable ones would be pleased to receive from me alone, and not from others, the requisites of the order." Therefore, Roga, they shall receive them from you, indeed, but also from others.'

6. Now at that time a certain succession had been fixed, in which the inhabitants of Kusinārā should each in succession provide food for the Samgha. And it occurred to Roga the Malla, who had not received a place in the succession, thus: 'What if I were to inspect the Samgha's storehouse, and provide whatever I found wanting in the storehouse?' And on inspecting the storehouse, he found there no potherbs, and no meal\(^2\).

Then Roga the Malla went up to the place where the venerable Ānanda was, and when he had come there, he spake to the venerable Ānanda thus:

'It occurred to me (＆c., as before, down to :) and no meal. If, Ānanda, I were to provide potherbs and meal, would the Blessed One accept them at my hands?'

7. The venerable Ānanda told this thing to the Blessed One.

Then Roja the Malla at the end of the night, after he had had a quantity of potherbs and meal made ready, offered them to the Blessed One, saying, ‘May the Blessed One accept at my hands the potherbs and the meal.’

‘Very good, then, Roja. Present them to the Bhikkhus.’

The Bhikkhus, fearing to offend, did not accept them.

‘Accept them, O Bhikkhus, and make use of them.’

8. Then Roja the Malla, with his own hand, offered to the company of the Bhikkhus with the Buddha at their head, and satisfied them with the potherbs and the meal. And when the Blessed One had finished his meal, and had cleansed his hands and the bowl, he (Roja) took his seat on one side. And when he was so seated the Blessed One taught, and incited, and conversed, and gladdened Roja the Malla with religious discourse. And Roja the Malla, when he had been taught, &c., rose from his seat and departed thence.

And the Blessed One, on that occasion, and in that connection, when he had delivered a religious discourse, addressed the Bhikkhus, and said:

‘I allow you, O Bhikkhus, all kinds of potherbs¹, and all kinds of meal².’

1. Now the Blessed One, when he had stayed at Kusinārā as long as he thought fit, went on, on his pilgrimage to Ātumā, with a great company of the Bhikkhus, with two hundred and fifty Bhikkhus. And at that time there was dwelling at Ātumā a certain man, who had entered the Order in his old age, and who had previously been a barber ¹. He had two sons, handsome ², skilled in discourse ³, able, fully educated in all the arts which belonged to the barbers’ craft handed down to them by their teachers ⁴.

2. Now this dotard ⁵ heard the news: ‘The Blessed One, they say, is coming to Ātumā with

² Buddhaghosa understands this word, which he reads differently, as meaning ‘sweet-voiced.’ Maññukā (sic) ti madhura-vākanā. We follow the ordinary meaning of mañgu.

a great company of the Bhikkhus, with two hundred and fifty Bhikkhus.' Then that dotard spake thus to his sons: 'They say the Blessed One is coming, my children, to Åtumâ with a great company of Bhikkhus, with two hundred and fifty Bhikkhus. Go, therefore, my children, and taking your barbers' lad with you, collect in quart pots from house to house, salt, and oil, and rice, and meal. And we will prepare congey for the Blessed One when he has arrived.'

3. Very good, Father, said they, and (did so). And when people saw those young men, of pleasing appearance, and skilful in discourse, so acting, then even those who were not willing to be led into joining in the act were led to join in it; and being so led, they gave abundantly. So the young men collected a great quantity of salt, and oil, and rice, and meal.

4. And the Blessed One in due course arrived in his journey at Åtumâ; and there at Åtumâ the Blessed One stayed at the Threshing-floor. And that dotard, when the night was far spent, had much congey made ready, and offered it to the Blessed One, saying, 'May the Blessed One accept the congey at my hands.'

Now the Tathâgatas sometimes ask about what they know; sometimes they do not ask about what they know. They understand the right time when to ask, and they understand the right time when not to ask. The Tathâgatas put questions full of sense, not void of sense: to what is void of sense, the bridge is pulled down for the Tathāgatas. For two purposes the blessed Buddhas put questions to the Bhikkhus—when they intend to preach the Truth, and when they intend to institute a rule of conduct to their disciples. And the Blessed One spake thus to that dotard, 'Whence, O Bhikkhu, is this congey?'

Then that dotard informed the Blessed One of the whole matter.

5. The Blessed Buddha rebuked him, saying, 'This is improper, O foolish one, not according to rule, unsuitable, unworthy of a Samana, unbecoming, and ought not to be done. How can you, O foolish one, having gone forth (from the world into the Order), instigate others to do what is unlawful. This will not conduce, O foolish one, to the conversion of the unconverted.

And when he had rebuked him, and had delivered a religious discourse, he addressed the Bhikkhus, and said: 'One who has gone forth ought not, O Bhikkhus, to instigate others to an unlawful act. Whosoever does so, is guilty of a dukkata. And one, O Bhikkhus, who has formerly been a barber is not to keep a barber's boy. Whosoever does so, is guilty of a dukkata.'

journey towards Sâvatthi. And in due course, journeying straight on, he arrived at Sâvatthi, and there, at Sâvatthi, the Blessed One stayed in the Árama of Anâtha-pindika.

Now at that time there was in Sâvatthi great abundance of solid food in the shape of fruits. And the question arose among the Bhikkhus, ‘Has, now, the Blessed One permitted the use of fruits as solid food, or has he not?’

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

‘I allow you, O Bhikkhus, all solid food in the shape of fruits.’

1. Now at that time, seedlings belonging to the Samgha grew upon private ground, and seedlings belonging to private persons grew upon ground which was the property of the Samgha.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

‘Of seedlings belonging to the Samgha, grown upon private ground, half the produce, O Bhikkhus, you may have, when you have given a part to the private owner. Of seedlings belonging to a private person, grown upon ground the property of the Samgha, you may have the use, when you have given a part to the private owner.’

some particular or other, they thinking, 'Has this been permitted by the Blessed One, or has it not?'

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'Whatsoever, O Bhikkhus, has not been disallowed by me in the words, "This beseems you not," then, if that thing is in accord with what is unlawful, and is contrary to what is lawful, that is not lawful. Whattover has not been disallowed by me with the words, "This beseems you not," then, if that thing is in accord with what is lawful, and is contrary to what is unlawful, that is lawful.

Food that may be eaten at any time within seven days, or food that may be eaten at any time during life, is lawful, O Bhikkhus,—when it has been mixed with food that may be eaten up to the first watch of the night,—up till the first watch of the night, and is not lawful after the first watch of the night. Food that may be eaten at any time during life, is lawful, O Bhikkhus,—when it has been mixed with food that may be eaten at any time within seven days,—at any time within seven days, and is not lawful beyond seven days.'

(THE KATHINA CEREMONIES.)

1. Now at that time the Blessed One was staying at Sāvatthi, in the Getavana, Anāthapindika's Grove. And at that time about thirty Pâtheyyaka Bhikkhus¹,

¹ Buddhaghosa says, 'Pâtheyya (the Berlin MS. reads Pâveyya) is the name of a kingdom situated to the west of the Kosala country. This passage refers to Bhikkhus who dwelt there. The Bhattavaggiya Theras (so the Berlin MS.; query Satta-vaggiya), who were brothers of the Kosala king, sons of the same father, are here alluded to.'

But with which of the many kingdoms 'to the west of the Kosala country' are we to identify Pâtheyya? The word does not occur in the stock list, found in different parts of the Pāli Pânakas, of the sixteen Mahā-ganapadā; that is to say, Aṅga, Magadha, Kāsi, Kosala, Vaggi, Malla, Ketiya, Vamsa, Kuru, Pañāla, Makkha, Sūrasena, Assaka, Avanti, Gandhāra, Kamboga. The account of the Council at Vesāli gives us a hint as to the right answer to the above question; for the Thera Sambhûta, who took part in that Council, is called a Pâtheyyaka in Kullavagga XII, 2, 7, and is also said at Kullavagga XII, 1, 8 to have lived Ahogaṅge Pabbate. The position of this hill is further described in the Māhāvamsa as being on the upper Ganges—uddhagaṅgāya ... Ahogaṅgamhi pabbate (p. 39, ed. Turnour). Then again in Kulla-vagga XII, 1, 7 the Thera Yasa, when wishing to put himself in communication with the Bhikkhus in Pâtheyya and in other places, goes to Kosambī as the most convenient meeting-place for Bhikkhus coming from the East. The other places mentioned in that passage in juxta-position with Pâtheyya would seem to show that Pâtheyya, with Pāṭīna, Avanti, and Dakhināpatha, is one of the principal divisions into which India, as then known, was divided; and that it includes most, if not all, of the great westerly kingdoms of who were all dwellers in the forest, all living on alms, all dressed in rags from the dust heap, all having only three robes each, when they were on the way to Sāvatthi to visit the Blessed One, at the time when the period for entering upon Vassa was at hand, were unable to reach Sāvatthi in time to spend the Vassa there, and stayed at Sāketa on the way for the Vassa. And they spent the period of Vassa in discomfort, thinking, 'Our Blessed One is staying near us, six leagues from here, and we are not able to visit the Blessed One.'

And when, after three months, those Bhikkhus had completed their Vassa residence, and had held their Pāvāranā, they went on to the place where the Blessed One was, at Sāvatthi, in the Getavana, Anāthapindika's Grove, while the rain was falling, and the waters were gathering, and the swamps were forming, and their robes were all drenched, and they were weary. And when they had arrived, they saluted the Blessed One, and took their seats on one side.

2. Now it is the custom of the blessed Buddhas to greet kindly Bhikkhus who have just arrived. And the Blessed One said to those Bhikkhus:

‘Do things go well with you, O Bhikkhus? Do

Kuru, Pañkāla, &c., which are the last eight of the sixteen kingdoms in the stock list above referred to. Probably the literal meaning of Pālheyya is 'western' (Sansk. pratyaṅk). In the Sutta-vibhaṅga (Pāli tiya 34) merchants are mentioned who are travelling from Rāgagaha to the Pañiyāloka, which must mean 'the western country,' just as Pañiyārāma (Dīpav. 17, 11) means 'the western Arāma.'

When we were on our way, Lord, about thirty Pâtheyyaka Bhikkhus, to Sâvatthi to visit the Blessed One, we were unable to reach Sâvatthi in time (&c., as in § 1, down to :). And when, after three months, Lord, we had completed our Vassa residence, and had held our Pâvâranâ, we have made our way, while the rain was falling, and the waters were gathering, and the swamps were forming; and our robes were all drenched; and we have become weary.'

3. Then the Blessed One in that connection, having delivered a religious discourse, addressed the Bhikkhus, and said ¹:

'I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that the Kathina ceremony shall be performed by Bhikkhus when

The Kathina, literally 'hard,' is the stock of cotton cloth provided by the faithful to be made up into robes for the use of the Samgha during the ensuing year. The whole of this cotton cloth must be dyed, sewn together, and made into robes, and then formally declared to be (not only common property, Samghika, but) available for immediate distribution—all on one and the same day. The object of this was that the Samgha, or at least a quorum of the Samgha, being able to be present throughout, there would be less chance of any mistake by which what was intended equally for all might come to be unequally divided among a few. All the Brethren who have kept their Vassa within the limits of the district within which the particular Samgha lives (and therefore technically called an āvāsa, 'residence'), and who have taken part in the Pavāranā, are entitled to share in the distribution.

(Buddhaghosa says, 'Ettha kathinatthārama ke labhanti ke na labhanti. Gānasena tāva pakkhima-kohyā pañka ganā (for at least five must be present to make a Pavāranā legal, Mahāvagga IX, 4, 1) . . . vutthavassavasena purimikāya vassam upagantvā pañhama-pavāranāya pavārita labhanti.')

There can of course be no kathin-atthāra if there is no kathina; and, under certain restrictions laid down in the Nissaggiya Pātitiya Rules, laymen were allowed to give robes for the special use of a particular Bhikkhu. If, however, a layman was desirous of giving the much more meritorious gift of a Kathina to the whole community, then he is to present the cloth in the early morning to a properly constituted meeting of the Samgha, and the Kathina ceremony has to be gone through. All the Brethren living within the boundary have to be present, and to take part in the work of making the cotton cloth up into robes; and if there is any danger of the work not being concluded before the day is over, even the most senior Bhikkhus, or the most revered for their learning or insight, must lend a hand. Then follows the distribution so far only as is set forth in the next section (§ 4) and in the note to it.

Now it would often happen that, at the end of the rainy season of Vassa, the last year's robes of some of the Bhikkhus would be worn out. And yet no laymen would come forward to give a Kathina until some time after the Vassa residence had closed. But they have completed their Vassa. And five things are allowable to you, O Bhikkhus, after the Kathina ceremony has been held—going for alms to the houses of people who have not invited you, going if any one did offer a Kathina, and the ceremony was duly performed, then each Bhikkhu had a right to supply his actual needs from the robes made out of the Kathina. He need not do so at once. His want might not be pressing, or might not even arise till afterwards. During such an interval the five privileges (Añissamsà) mentioned in this section (§ 3) are accorded to the Bhikkhus, though they would be against the rules in force during the rest of the year.

But if the Bhikkhu kept on postponing his choice would the privileges accorded by this section hold good even during the whole year? Could the Bhikkhu, by his mere abstention, thus bring about a practical abrogation of the general rules? Not so, for the five privileges are in their turn suspended by any one of the eight things mentioned below in § 7.

We may add that at the present time in Burma and Ceylon, the robes for the Bhikkhus are usually provided in accordance with the rules regulating gifts to particular Bhikkhus. But the gift of a Kathina is still by no means uncommon. See Spence Hardy's 'Eastern Monachism,' pp. 121 and foll. There is probably, however, very seldom any necessity for the Bhikkhus to avail themselves of any of the five privileges, except the last.

1 This privilege is one of the exceptions allowed, in the Pàtimokkha, to the 46th Pàsittiya. Bhikkhus were allowed, as a general rule, to pass through a village, with their alms-bowls in their hands, in order to give any disciple who wished to do so the opportunity of giving them food. (To describe this procedure by our word 'begging,' as is so often done, is, to say the least, misleading.) The 46th Pàsittiya lays down, in certain circumstances, a restriction on this general rule. The present section removes that restriction during the period of Kathin-atthàra; in order, according to Buddhaghosa (see the note on Pàk. 46), to prevent the stock of robes falling short. That is, apparently, with the hope that a freer intercourse than usual between Bhikkhus and laity might lead to a gift of a Kathina when it was urgently required.

Here Buddhaghosa says simply, 'Anàmanta-kàro 'ti yàva kàthi-nam na uddhariyati tàva anàmantetvà.' Àmanteti must be equal to ãpukkhati. Compare Böhtlingk-Roth under àmantrana.
for alms without wearing the usual set of three robes, going for alms in a body of four or more, possessing as many robes as are wanted, and whatever number of robes shall have come to hand, that shall belong to them (that is, to the Bhikkhus entitled, by residence and otherwise, to share in the distribution).

'And thus, O Bhikkhus, is the Kathina to be dedicated.

4. 'Let a learned, competent Bhikkhu proclaim

1 This privilege is granted as a relaxation of the 2nd Nissaggiya. Buddaghosa says, 'Asamādāna-kāro 'ti kīvaram asamādāya kara-nam kīvara-vippavāso kappissatīti attho.' Compare Mahāvagga VIII, 23, 3. It will be seen that the wording of the Pātimokkha Rule is not inconsistent with the rule laid down here.

2 This is a relaxation of the 32nd Pāṭītiya, and is mentioned in that rule.

3 This would seem to be a relaxation of the 1st Pāṭītiya. Though it is not referred to there in terms, it is implied in the clause by which the operation of the rule is postponed till after the Kathina has been 'taken up,' i.e. till each Bhikkhu has actually received his share, or otherwise lost his claim to it. Till that has taken place, a Bhikkhu may use (temporarily, and without actually appropriating them) as many robes as he likes. B. says, 'Yāvadattha-kīvaran ti yāvata varena attho tāvatakam anadhūḥhitatvi avikappitam (compare Šutta-vibhāṅga Niss. I, 3, 1) kappissatto attho.'

4 That is, according to Buddaghosa, either those belonging to a Bhikkhu who has died, or those belonging to the Samgha in any way. This shows that at the division not only the robes made out of the gift of a Kathina were to be included, but whatever robes had not been given as intended specially for some one Bhikkhu. As to the actual practice now in Ceylon, compare Spence Hardy, loc. cit. Buddaghosa says here: 'Yo ka tattha kīvar-uppādo tattha kaśinathatha-simāya mataka-kīvarām vā hotu samgham uddissa dinnam vā samghikena tatr' uppādena ābhataṃ vā yena kenaśi ākāreṇa yam samghikam kīvaram uppaggati tam tesam bhavissattī attho.' The use of the pronoun nesaṃ at the end of the rule is awkward, following after vo; but the meaning as translated is not open to doubt.
the following āatti before the Sāmaṇḍa: “This Kathīna-cloth has become the property of the Sāmaṇḍa. If the Sāmaṇḍa is ready, let the Sāmaṇḍa hand over the Kathīna-cloth to such and such a Bhikkhu to spread out the Kathīna. This is the āatti. Let the Sāmaṇḍa, reverend Sirs, hear me. This Kathīna-cloth has become the property of the Sāmaṇḍa. The Sāmaṇḍa hands it over to such and such a Bhikkhu to spread out the Kathīna. If the Sāmaṇḍa approves of the handing over of the Kathīna to such and such a Bhikkhu for spreading it out, let it remain silent. The Sāmaṇḍa approves thereof. Therefore does it remain silent. Thus I understand.”

5. ‘Now thus, O Bhikkhus, has the Kathīna ceremony been duly held; and thus has it not been duly held.’

1 This formula is one of those included in the collection entitled Kammavākaṁ. It appears from Mināyeff (Prātimoksha, pp. 75, 76) that the Bhikkhu so appointed superintends the processes of dyeing, sewing, &c. When the new robes are ready for wear, he lays aside one of his old robes which has been worn out (pakkuddhāritvā), and chooses for himself one of the new ones (navam adhitthahitvā), saying as he does so, ‘imāya sāmghāṣyā (or, as the case may be, uttarāṣahgena, antaravāsakena) kathīnaṁ attharāmi.’ This speech shows the technical application of the verb attharati in this connection. He then points out the remaining robes to the Bhikkhus there present, specifying which he thinks fit for the elder, and which for the younger members of the Order (Theras and Navakas); but not assigning any particular robes to particular Bhikkhus. Finally he calls upon the Sāmaṇḍa for their formal approval of his procedure (compare the closing words of §§ 5, 6). But when they have given it, the distribution is not at an end. The time has only come when each of the Bhikkhus can transmute his claim to an undivided share into the actual possession of a divided share. Until he does so, the Kathīna privileges set out in § 3 are allowed to him.

2 The formal permission to each Bhikkhu to take his share is ‘When, O Bhikkhus, has it not been duly held?’

‘The Kathina ceremony has not been duly held when the stuff has only been marked (for the purposes of measurement): when it has only been washed: when it has only been calculated (to see how many robes it will make): when it has only been cut out: when it has only been pieced together: when it has only been sewn in lengths: when it has only been marked: when it has only been made strong (in the seams): not completed by any one of the following acts having been performed. The technical terms of the tailor’s craft are, as will be seen, by no means easy to follow.

2 Bandhana-mattenā 'ti mogha-suttak-āropana-mattenā (B.). Mogha-suttakāni, 'false threads,' are threads put in the cloth to show where it is to be cut or sewn. See Buddhaghosa on Kūlavagga V, 11, 3 (p. 317 of H. O.’s edition). Our clause therefore means temporarily pieced together as the commencement of the tailoring work.

3 Ovaṭṭiya (sic) -karana-mattenā 'ti mogha-suttakānusārena digha-sibbita-mattenā (B.). Sewn in lengths along the lines of the false threads mentioned in the last note. The word occurs also in Mahāvagga VIII, 14, 2; and in Kullavagga V, 1, 2 we are told that the Khabbaggiya Bhikkhus ovaṭṭikam dhārenti. Buddhaghosa says there viggāṭa-karananī ovaṭṭikā.

\(^5\) Or perhaps, according to some commentators, when it has been decided to accept the gift as a Kalihina, that is, when it has been decided that the cloth is of a suitable kind to make robes out of. Buddhaghosa says: Nimitta-katenā 'ti iminā dussena kalihinam atharissantīti evam nimittakatena. Ettaṃ eva Parivāre vuttam. Athkathāsu pana ayam sāfako sundaro, sakkā iminā kalihinam atharitun ti evam nimittakatam katva laddhenā 'ti atho. Compare below, § 6, for this and the two following words, the meaning of which is very doubtful.
\(^7\) Buddhaghosa simply says: kukku-katenā 'ti tāvakālikena. The last word means 'only for a time, temporary, on loan;' see Gātaka I, 121, 393, and Kullavagga X, 16, 1; but the explanation is not clear. According to the Abhidhāna-ppadīpikā kukku is a measure of length.

\(^4\) The new chapter should have begun here, and not with the next section as printed in the text.
There are, O Bhikkhus, these eight grounds 1 for the suspension of the Kathina (privileges) 2—the ground depending on (the Bhikkhus) having gone away, on (his robe being ready) finished, on his resolve (not to have it finished), on (his robe) having been destroyed, on his having heard (of the general suspension of the privileges of the whole Samgha), on the lapse of expectation (that a special gift of a robe would be made to him), on his having gone beyond the boundary (of the Samgha to whom the Kathina was given), on the common suspension (of the Kathina privileges of the whole Samgha).

1 Mātikā 'ti mātaro ganettiyo 'ti attho (B). So also in VIII, 14.
2 The discussion of these eight grounds of the suspension of the five Kathina privileges is closely connected with the description in the 13th chapter of the two so-called Palibodhas. Palibodha seems to mean the continued existence of a claim on the Bhikkhu’s side to a share in the distribution of the Kathina. Two conditions are necessary to the validity of this claim; the first touching the Bhikkhu’s domicile (āvāsa), the second the state of his wardrobe (kīvara). He must remain within the boundary (sīmā) of the Samgha to whom the Kathina has been given; or if he has left it, then he must have the intention of returning, the animus revertendi. And secondly, he must be in actual want of robes. If either of these conditions fail, then the Bhikkhu is apalibodha in respect of the āvāsa or the kīvara respectively. If he is apalibodha in both respects, then there follows the suspension of the Kathina privileges, the kathin-uddhāra, or kathin-ubbhāra, so far as he is concerned.

So the eight grounds of the suspension of the privileges referred to in our present section (chap. 1, 7) either refer to the Bhikkhu’s domicile or to the state of his robes, or to ways in which his case falls within the general suspension of privileges of the whole Samgha. Each of the eight cases is explained in detail in the following sections, except the sixth ground, which is specially treated of afterwards in chapters 8 and 9. See the note on the title at the end of this chapter, and compare further our note on the first Nissaggiya Pākittiya.

a robe (presented), thinking, "I will come back." And when he has got beyond the boundary, he devotes himself to the realisation of his expectation, and he obtains a robe where he had expected it, and does not obtain one where he had not expected it. 2. 'A Bhikkhu, after the Kathina ceremony has been held, goes away with the expectation of getting a robe (presented), thinking, "I will come back." And when he has got beyond the boundary, he hears the news: "The Kathina, they say, has been suspended in that district." And he thinks, "Since the Kathina has been suspended in that district, I will devote myself here to obtaining the gift I am expecting." THE DRESS OF THE BHIKKHUŚ.

1. At that time the blessed Buddha dwelt at Rāgagaha, in the Veśuvaṇa, in the Kalandaka-nivāpa. At that time Vesālīt was an opulent, prosperous town, populous, crowded with people, abundant with food; there were seven thousand seven hundred and seven storeyed buildings, and seven thousand seven hundred and seven pinnacled buildings, and seven thousand seven hundred and seven pleasure grounds (Ārāmas), and seven thousand seven hundred and seven lotus-ponds. There was also the courtezan Ambapālikā, who was beautiful, graceful, pleasant, gifted with the highest beauty of complexion, well versed in dancing, singing, and lute-playing, much visited by desirous people. She asked fifty (kāhā-pañca) for one night. Through that person Vesālīt became more and more flourishing.

2. Now a merchant from Rāgagaha went to Vesālīt on a certain business. That Rāgagaha merchant saw what an opulent, prosperous town Vesālīt was, how populous, crowded with people, and abundant with food, and the seven thousand seven hundred and seven storeyed buildings . . . . and the courtezan Ambapâlā, who was beautiful . . . . and through whom Vesâtī became more and more flourishing. And the Râgagaha merchant, after having done his business in Vesâtī, returned to Râgagaha and went to the place where the Mâgadha king Seniya Bimbisâra was. Having approached him, he said to the Mâgadha king Seniya Bimbisâra: 'Vesâtī, Your Majesty, is an opulent, prosperous town (&c., as in § 1, down to :) Through that person Vesâtī becomes more and more flourishing. May it please Your Majesty, let us also install a courtezan.'

(The king replied), 'Well, my good Sir, look for such a girl whom you can install as courtezan.'

3. Now at that time there was at Râgagaha a girl Sâlavatī by name, who was beautiful, graceful, pleasant, and gifted with the highest beauty of complexion. That girl Sâlavatī the Râgagaha merchant installed as courtezan. And before long the courtezan Sâlavatī was well versed in dancing, singing, and lute-playing, and much visited by desirous people, and she asked one hundred (kahâpanas) for one night. And before long the courtezan Sâlavatī became pregnant. Now the courtezan Sâlavatī thought: 'Men do not like a pregnant woman. If anybody should find out regarding me that "The courtezan Sâlavatī is pregnant," my whole position will be lost. What if I were to have the people told that I am sick.'

And the courtezan Sâlavatī gave orders to the door-keeper (saying), 'Let no man enter here, my good door-keeper, and if a man calls for me, tell him that I am sick.' The door-keeper accepted this order of the courtesan Sālavatī (by saying), 'Yes, Madam.'

4. And the courtesan Sālavatī, when the child in her womb had reached maturity, gave birth to a boy. And the courtesan Sālavatī gave orders to her maid-servant (saying), 'Go, my girl, put this boy into an old winnowing basket, take him away, and throw him away on a dust-heap.' The servant accepted this order of the courtesan Sālavatī (by saying), 'Yes, Madam,' put that boy into an old winnowing basket, took him away, and threw him away on a dust-heap.

At that time a royal prince, Abhaya by name, went betimes to attend upon the king, and saw that boy, around whom crows were gathering. When he saw that, he asked the people: 'What is that, my good Sirs, around which the crows are gathering?'

'It is a boy, Your Highness."

'Is he alive, Sirs?'

'He is alive, Your Highness.'

'Well, my good Sirs, bring that boy to our palace and give him to the nurses to nourish him.'

And those people accepted that order of the royal prince Abhaya (by saying), 'Yes, Your Highness,' brought that boy to the palace of the royal prince Abhaya, and gave him to the nurses (saying), 'Nourish (this boy).'

1 This 'royal prince Abhaya' (Abhaya kumāra) is mentioned by the Gainas under the name of Abhayakumāra as the son of Seniya, i.e. Bimbisāra. See Jacobi, Zeitschrift der Deutschen Morgenländischen Gesellschaft, vol. XXXIV, p. 187.

2 The word which we have translated 'Your Highness' (deva, lit. 'God') is the same which is used by all persons except by Sāmanas in addressing a king.
Because (the people had said about this boy to Abhaya), ‘He is alive’ (gīvatī), they gave him the name of Gīvaka; because he had been caused to be nourished by the royal prince (kumārena posāpito), they gave him the name of Komārabhaṅka.¹

5. And ere long Gīvaka Komārabhaṅka came to the years of discretion. And Gīvaka Komārabhaṅka went to the place where the royal prince Abhaya was; having approached him he said to the royal prince Abhaya: ‘Who is my mother, Your Highness, and who is my father?’

‘I do not know your mother, my good Gīvaka, but I am your father, for I have had you nourished.’

Now Gīvaka Komārabhaṅka thought: ‘In these royal families it is not easy to find one’s livelihood without knowing an art. What if I were to learn an art.’

6. At that time there lived at Takkasilā (Tāksiṇa) a world-renowned physician. And Gīvaka Komārabhaṅka without asking leave of the royal prince Abhaya set out for Takkasilā. Wandering from place to place he came to Takkasilā and to the place where that physician was. Having approached him he said to that physician, 'I wish to learn your art, doctor.'

'Well, friend Gīvaka, learn it.'

And Gīvaka Komārabhakkha learnt much, and learnt easily, and understood well, and did not forget what he had learnt. And when seven years had elapsed, Gīvaka Komārabhakkha thought: 'I learn much, and learn easily, and I understand well, and I do not forget what I have learnt. I have studied now seven years, and I do not see the end of this art. When shall I see the end of this art?'

7. And Gīvaka Komārabhakkha went to the place where that physician was; having approached him he said to that physician: 'I learn much, doctor, and I learn easily; I understand well, and do not forget what I have learnt. I have studied now seven years, and I do not see the end of this art. When shall I see the end of this art?'

'Very well, my dear Gīvaka, take this spade, and seek round about Takkasilā a yogana on every side, and whatever (plant) you see which is not medicinal, bring it to me.'

Gīvaka Komārabhakkha accepted this order of that physician (saying), 'Yes, doctor,' took a spade, and went around about Takkasilā a yogana on every side, but he did not see anything that was not medicinal. Then Gīvaka Komārabhakkha went to the place where that physician was; having approached him he said to that physician: 'I have been seeking, doctor, all around Takkasilā a yogana on every side, but I have not seen anything that is not medicinal.'

(The physician replied), 'You have done your learning, my good Gīvaka; this will do for acquiring your livelihood.' Speaking thus he gave to Gīvaka Komārabhaṭṭa a little (money) for his journey (home).

8. And Gīvaka Komārabhaṭṭa took that little money, given to him for his journey, and set out for Rāgagaha. And on the way at Sāketa that little money of Gīvaka Komārabhaṭṭa was spent. Now Gīvaka Komārabhaṭṭa thought: 'These ways are wild, and there is but little water and little food; it is difficult to travel here without money for the journey. What if I were to try to get some money for my journey.'

At that time the setthī’s¹ wife at Sāketa had been suffering for seven years from disease in the head; many very great and world-renowned physicians came, but they could not restore her to health; they received much gold, and went away.

And Gīvaka Komārabhaṭṭa, when he had entered Sāketa, asked the people: 'Who is sick here, my good Sirs? Whom shall I cure?'

'That setthī's wife, doctor, has been suffering for seven years from a disease in the head; go, doctor, and cure that setthī's wife.'

9. Then Gīvaka Komārabhaṭṭa went to the house of that householder, the setthī; and when he had reached it, he gave orders to the door-keeper (saying),

Go, my good door-keeper, and tell the setthī's wife: "A physician has come in, Madam, who wants to see you."

That door-keeper accepted this order of Gīvaka Komārabhaṭṭa (saying), 'Yes, doctor,' went to the place where the setthī's wife was, and having approached her, he said to the setthī's wife: 'A physician has come in, Madam, who wants to see you.'

'What sort of man is that physician, my good door-keeper?'

'He is a young man, Madam.'

'Nay, my good door-keeper, what can a young physician help me? Many very great and world-renowned physicians have come and have not been able to restore me to health; they have received much gold, and have gone away.'

10. Thus that door-keeper went to Gîvaka Komârabhakkha; having approached him he said to Gîvaka Komârabhakkha: 'The setthi's wife has said, doctor: "Nay, my good door-keeper (&c., as in § 9)."'

(Gîvaka replied), 'Go, my good door-keeper, and tell the setthi's wife: "The physician, Madam, says: 'Do not give me anything beforehand, Madam; when you shall have been restored to health, then you may give me what you like.'"

The door-keeper accepted this order of Gîvaka Komârabhakkha (saying), 'Yes, doctor,' went to the place where the setthi's wife was, and having approached her he said to the setthi's wife: 'The physician, Madam, says (&c., as above).'

'Well, my good door-keeper, let the physician enter.'

The door-keeper accepted this order of the setthi's wife (saying), 'Yes, Madam,' went to the place where Gîvaka Komârabhakkha was, and having approached him he said to Gîvaka Komârabhakkha: 'The setthi's wife calls you, doctor.'

11. Then Gîvaka Komârabhakkha went to the place where the setthi's wife was; having approached her, and having carefully observed the change in the appearance of the setthi's wife, he said to the Setthi's wife: 'We want one pasata of ghee, Madam.' Then the Setthi's wife ordered one pasata of ghee to be given to Ġīvaka Komārabhaṅka. And Ġīvaka Komārabhaṅka boiled up that pasata of ghee with various drugs, ordered the Setthi's wife to lie down on her back in the bed, and gave it her through her nose. And the butter given through the nose came out through the mouth. And the Setthi's wife spat it out into the spittoon, and told the maid-servant: 'Come, my girl, take this ghee up with a piece of cotton.'

12. Then Ġīvaka Komārabhaṅka thought: 'It is astonishing how niggardly this house-wife is, in that she has this ghee, which ought to be thrown away, taken up with a piece of cotton. I have given her many highly precious drugs. What sort of fee will she give me?'

And the Setthi's wife, when she observed the change of demeanour in Ġīvaka Komārabhaṅka, said to Ġīvaka Komārabhaṅka: 'Why are you perplexed, doctor?'

'I thought: 'It is astonishing, &c.'"

'Householders like us, doctor, know why to economize thus; this ghee will do for the servants or workmen to anoint their feet with, or it can be poured into the lamp. Be not perplexed, doctor, you will not lose your fee.'

1 One prasrita or prasriti ('handful') is said by the Sanskrit lexicographers to be equal to two palas. About the pala, which according to the ghee measure (ghrita pramāna) of Magadha was the thirty-second part of a prastha, see the Atharva-parishṭa 35, 3, ap. Weber, Ueber den Vedakalender namens Jyotisham, p. 82. Compare also Rh. D., 'Ancient Coins and Measures of Ceylon,' pp. 18, 19.
13. And Givaka Komârabhakkâ drove away the disease in the head which the setthi’s wife had had for seven years, by once giving her medicine through the nose. Then the setthi’s wife, who had been restored to health, gave four thousand (kâhâpanas) to Givaka Komârabhakkâ; her son (thinking), ‘My mother stands there restored,’ gave him four thousand; her daughter-in-law (thinking), ‘My mother-in-law stands there restored,’ gave him four thousand; the setthi, the householder, (thinking), ‘My wife stands there restored,’ gave him four thousand and a man-servant and a maid-servant and a coach with horses.

Then Givaka Komârabhakkâ took those sixteen thousand (kâhâpanas) and the man-servant, the maid-servant, and the coach with the horses, and set out for Râgagaha. In due course he came to Râgagaha, and to the place where the royal prince Abhaya was; having approached him he said to the royal prince Abhaya: ‘This, Your Highness, (have I received for) the first work I have done, sixteen thousand and a man-servant and a maid-servant and a coach with horses; may Your Highness accept this as payment for my bringing up.’

‘Nay, my dear Givaka, keep it, but do not get a dwelling for yourself elsewhere than in our residence.’

Givaka Komârabhakkâ accepted this order of the royal prince Abhaya (saying), ‘Yes, Your Highness,’ and got himself a dwelling in the residence of the royal prince Abhaya.

14. At that time the Magadha king Seniya Bimbisâra suffered from a fistula; his garments were, stained with blood. When the queens saw that, they ridiculed (the king, and said): 'His Majesty is having his courses. His Majesty will bring forth!' The king was annoyed at that. And the Magadha king Seniya Bimbisāra said to the royal prince Abhaya: 'I am suffering, my dear Abhaya, from such a disease that my garments are stained with blood; and the queens, when they see it, ridicule (me by saying), "His Majesty is, &c." Pray, my dear Abhaya, find a physician for me, able to cure me.'

'This excellent young physician of ours, Sire, Gīvaka, he will cure Your Majesty.'

'Then pray, my dear Abhaya, give orders to the physician Gīvaka, and he shall cure me.'

15. Then the royal prince Abhaya gave orders to Gīvaka Komārabhakkā (saying), 'Go, my dear Gīvaka, and cure the king.'

Gīvaka Komārabhakkā accepted this order of the royal prince Abhaya (by saying), 'Yes, Your Highness,' took some medicament in his nail, and went to the place where the Magadha king Seniya Bimbisāra was. Having approached him, he said to the Magadha king Seniya Bimbisāra: 'Let us see your disease, Your Majesty.' And Gīvaka Komārabhakkā healed the fistula of the Magadha king Seniya Bimbisāra by one anointing.

Then the Magadha king Seniya Bimbisāra, having been restored to health, ordered his five hundred wives to put on all their ornaments; then he ordered them to take their ornaments off and to make a heap of them, and he said to Gīvaka Komārabhakkā: 'All these ornaments, my dear Gīvaka, of my five hundred wives shall be thine.'

'Nay, Sire, may Your Majesty remember my office.'
Very well, my dear Givaka, you can wait upon me and my seraglio and the fraternity of Bhikkhus with the Buddha at its head.'

Givaka Komârabhâkka accepted this order of the Magadha king Seniya Bimbisâra (by saying), 'Yes, Your Majesty.'

16. At that time the settthi at Râgagaha had been suffering for seven years from a disease in the head. Many very great and world-renowned physicians came, and were not able to restore him to health; they received much gold and went away. And a prognostication had been made by the physicians to him, to wit: Some of the physicians said: 'The settthi, the householder, will die on the fifth day;' other physicians said: 'The settthi, the householder, will die on the seventh day.'

Now (a certain) Râgagaha merchant thought: 'This settthi, this householder, does good service both to the king and to the merchants' guild. Now the physicians have made prognostication to him (&c., as above). There is Givaka, the royal physician, an excellent young doctor. What if we were to ask the king for his physician Givaka to cure the settthi, the householder?'

17. And the Râgagaha merchant went to the place where the Magadha king Seniya Bimbisâra was; having approached him, he said to the Magadha king Seniya Bimbisâra: 'That settthi, Sire, that householder, does good service both to Your Majesty and to the merchants' guild. Now the physicians have made prognostication to him, &c. May it please Your Majesty to order the physician Givaka to cure the settthi, the householder.'

Then the Magadha king Seniya Bimbisâra gave orders to Ġīvaka Komaṭrabhaṅka (saying), 'Go, my dear Ġīvaka, and cure the setṭhi, the householder.'

Ġīvaka Komaṭrabhaṅka accepted this order of the Magadha king Seniya Bimbisāra (by saying), 'Yes, Your Majesty,' went to the place where the setṭhi, the householder, was, and having approached him, and having carefully observed the change in his appearance, he said to the setṭhi, the householder: 'If I restore you to health, my good householder, what fee will you give me?'

'All that I possess shall be yours, doctor, and I will be your slave.'

18. 'Well, my good householder, will you be able to lie down on one side for seven months?'

'I shall be able, doctor, to lie down on one side for seven months.'

'And will you be able, my good householder, to lie down on the other side for seven months?'

'I shall be able, doctor, to lie down on the other side for seven months.'

'And will you be able, my good householder, to lie down on your back for seven months?'

'I shall be able, doctor, to lie down on my back for seven months.'

Then Ġīvaka Komaṭrabhaṅka ordered the setṭhi, the householder, to lie down on his bed, tied him fast to his bed, cut through the skin of the head, drew apart the flesh on each side of the incision, pulled two worms out (of the wound), and showed them to the people (saying), 'See, Sirs, these two worms, a small one and a big one. The doctors who said, "On the fifth day the setṭhi, the householder, will die," have seen this big worm, and how it would penetrate on the fifth day to the brain of the setthi, the householder, and that when it had penetrated to the brain, the setthi, the householder, would die. Those doctors have seen it quite rightly. And the doctors who said, "On the seventh day the setthi, the householder, will die," have seen this small worm, and how it would penetrate on the seventh day to the brain of the setthi, the householder, and that when it had penetrated to the brain, the setthi, the householder, would die. Those doctors have seen it quite rightly." (Speaking thus) he closed up the sides of the wound, stitched up the skin on the head, and anointed it with salve.

19. And when seven days had elapsed, the setthi, the householder, said to Gīvaka Komārabhakka: 'I am not able, doctor, to lie down on one side for seven months.'

'Did you not tell me, my good householder: "I shall be able, doctor, to lie down on one side for seven months?"

'It is true, doctor, I told you so indeed, but I shall die (if I do); I cannot lie down on one side for seven months.'

'Well, my good householder, then you must lie down on the other side for seven months.'

And when seven days had elapsed, the setthi, the householder, said to Gīvaka Komārabhakka: 'I am not able, doctor, to lie down on the other side for seven months.'

'Did you not tell me, &c.'

'It is true, doctor, I told you so indeed, &c.'

'Well, my good householder, then you must lie down on your back for seven months.'

And when seven days had elapsed, the setthi, the householder, said to Gīvaka Komārabhakka: 'I am not able, doctor, to lie down on my back for seven months."

'Did you not tell me, &c.?'

'It is true, doctor, I told you so indeed, &c.'

20. 'If I had not spoken thus to you, my good householder, you would not have lain down even so long a time. But I knew beforehand, "After three times seven days the setthi, the householder, will be restored to health." Arise, my good householder, you are restored; look to it what fee you give me.'

'All that I possess shall be yours, doctor, and I will be your slave.'

'Nay, my good householder, do not give me all that you possess, and do not be my slave; give one hundred thousand (kâhâpanas) to the king, and one hundred thousand to Gîvaka Komârabhâkka.'

Then the setthi, the householder, having regained his health, gave a hundred thousand (kâhâpanas) to the king, and a hundred thousand to Gîvaka Komârabhâkka.

21. At that time the son of the setthi at Benares, who used to amuse himself by tumbling (mokkhaśikâ), brought upon himself an entanglement of his

1 Mokkhaśikâ is explained in a passage quoted by Childers sub voce and taken from the Sumaṅgala Vilâsinî on the 4th Magghima Sila. (Compare Rh. D., 'Buddhist Suttas from the Pāli,' p. 193.) The passage from Buddhaghosa is however not devoid of ambiguity. He says: 'Mokkhaśikâ is the feat of turning over and over. One gets hold of a staff in the air, and places his head on the ground; turning himself upside down. This is what is meant (by the word mokkhaśikâ). It is not clear whether the performer suspends himself by his feet from a horizontal bar fixed at a height above the ground; or whether he turns a sommersault, holding at the same time a stick in his hands. intestines, in consequence of which he could digest neither the rice-milk which he drank, nor the food of which he partook, nor was he able to ease himself in the regular way. In consequence of that he grew lean, he looked disfigured and discoloured, (his complexion became) more and more yellow, and the veins stood out upon his skin.

Now the setthi of Benares thought: 'My son is suffering from such and such a disease: he neither can digest the rice-milk which he drinks (&c., as above, down to:) and the veins stand out upon his skin. What if I were to go to Rāgagaha and to ask the king for his physician Gīvaka to cure my son.'

And the setthi of Benares went to Rāgagaha and repaired to the place where the Magadha king Seniya Bimbisāra was; having approached him he said to the Magadha king Seniya Bimbisāra: 'My son, Your Majesty, is suffering from such and such a disease: he neither can digest the rice-milk which he drinks (&c., as above, down to:) and the veins stand out upon his skin. May it please Your Majesty to order the physician Gīvaka to cure my son.'

22. Then the Magadha king Seniya Bimbisāra gave orders to Gīvaka Komārabhakkha (saying), 'Go, my dear Gīvaka; go to Benares, and cure the setthi's son at Benares.'

Gīvaka Komārabhakkha accepted this order of the Magadha king Seniya Bimbisāra (by saying), 'Yes, Your Majesty,' went to Benares, and repaired to the place where the son of the Benares setthi was; having approached him, and having carefully observed the change in his appearance, he ordered the people to leave the room, drew the curtain, tied him fast to a pillar, placed his wife in front of him, cut through the skin of the belly, drew the twisted intestines out, and showed them to his wife (saying), 'Look here what the disease was, from which your husband was suffering. This is the reason why he neither can digest the rice-milk which he drinks, nor can digest the food of which he partakes, nor is able to ease himself in the regular way, and why he has grown lean, and looks disfigured and discoloured, and (why his complexion has become) more and more yellow, and the veins have stood out upon his skin.' (Speaking thus), he disentangled the twisted intestines, put the intestines back (into their right position), stitched the skin together, and anointed it with salve. And before long the Benares setthi's son regained his health.

Then the setthi of Benares (saying to himself), 'My son stands here restored to health,' gave sixteen thousand (kâhâpanas) to Gîvaka Komârabhakka. And Gîvaka Komârabhakka took those sixteen thousand (kâhâpanas), and went back again to Râgagaha.

23. At that time king Paggota (of Uggent) was suffering from jaundice. Many very great and world-renowned physicians came and were not able to restore him to health; they received much gold and went away. Then king Paggota sent a messenger to the Magadha king Seniya Bimbisâra (with the following message): 'I am suffering from such and such a disease; pray, Your Majesty', give orders to the physician Ġlavaka; he will cure me.' Then the Magadha king Seniya Bimbisāra gave orders to Ġlavaka Komārabhākka (saying), 'Go, my dear Ġlavaka; go to Uggent, and cure king Paggota.'

Ğlavaka Komārabhākka accepted this order of the Magadha king Seniya Bimbisāra (by saying), 'Yes, Your Majesty,' went to Uggent and to the place where king Paggota was, and having approached him, and having carefully observed the change in his appearance, he said to king Paggota:

24. 'I will boil up some ghee, Sire, which Your Majesty must drink.'

'Nay, my good Ġlavaka; do what you can for restoring me without giving me ghee; I have an aversion and a distaste for ghee.'

Then Ġlavaka Komārabhākka thought: 'The disease of this king is such a one that it cannot be cured without ghee. What if I were to boil up ghee so that it takes the colour, the smell, and the taste of an astringent decoction.'

Then Ġlavaka Komārabhākka boiled some ghee with various drugs so as to give it the colour, the smell, and the taste of an astringent decoction. And Ġlavaka Komārabhākka thought: 'When this king shall have taken the butter and digested it, it will make him vomit. This king is cruel; he might have me killed. opinion be brought forward against Professor Jacobi's conjecture (Zeitschrift der Deutschen Morg. Gesellschaft, vol. xxxiv, p. 188) that Bimbisāra was merely a feudal chief under the supreme rule of king Paggota. The Piśaka texts are always very exact in the selection of the terms of respect in which the different persons address each other.

hand.’ And Gīvaka Komārabhakkā went to the place where king Paggota was; having approached him he said to king Paggota:

25. ‘We physicians, Sire, draw out roots and gather medical drugs at such an hour as this. May it please Your Majesty to send the following order to the (royal) stables, and to the gates (of the town):

“Let Gīvaka ride out on what animal he likes; let him leave (the town) by what gate he likes; let him leave at what hour he likes; let him enter again at what hour he likes.”’

And king Paggota sent the following order to the (royal) stables and to the gates (of the town): ‘Let Gīvaka ride out on what animal he likes, &c.’

At that time king Paggota had a she-elephant, called Bhaddavatikā, which could travel fifty yoganas (in one day). And Gīvaka Komārabhakkā gave the ghee to king Paggota (saying), ‘May Your Majesty drink this decoction.’ Then, having made king Paggota drink the ghee, Gīvaka Komārabhakkā went to the elephant stable, and hasted away from the town on the she-elephant Bhaddavatikā.

26. And when king Paggota had drunk that ghee and was digesting it, it made him vomit. Then king Paggota said to his attendants: ‘That wicked Gīvaka, my good Sirs, has given me ghee to drink. Go, my good Sirs, and seek the physician Gīvaka.’

(The attendants answered), ‘He has run away from the town on the she-elephant Bhaddavatikā.’

At that time king Paggota had a slave, Kāka by name, who could travel sixty yoganas (in one day), who had been begotten by a non-human being. To this slave Kāka, king Paggota gave the order: ‘Go, my good Kāka, and call the physician Gīvaka back (saying), "The king orders you to return, doctor." But those physicians, my good Kåka, are cunning people; do not accept anything from him.'

27. And the slave Kåka overtook Givaka Komârabhaṅkka on his way, at Kosambi, when he was taking his breakfast. And the slave Kåka said to Givaka Komârabhaṅkka: 'The king orders you to return, doctor.'

(Givaka replied), 'Wait, my good Kåka, until we have taken our meal; here, my good Kåka, eat.'

(Kåka said), 'Nay, doctor, the king has told me, "Those physicians, my good Kåka, are cunning people; do not accept anything from him."'

At that time Givaka Komârabhaṅkka, who had cut off some drug with his nail, was eating an emblic myrobalan fruit and drinking water. And Givaka Komârabhaṅkka said to the slave Kåka: 'Here, my good Kåka, eat of this myrobalan fruit and take some water.'

28. Then the slave Kåka thought: 'This physician eats the myrobalan and drinks the water; there cannot be any harm in it;' so he ate half of the myrobalan and drank some water. And that half myrobalan which (Givaka) had given him to eat, opened his bowels on the spot.

Then the slave Kåka said to Givaka Komârabhaṅkka: 'Can my life be saved, doctor?'

(Givaka replied), 'Be not afraid, my good Kåka, you will be quite well. But the king is cruel; that king might have me killed; therefore do I not return.'

Speaking thus he handed over to Kåka the she-elephant Bhaddavatikå and set out for Rågagaha. Having reached Rågagaha in due course, he went to the place where the Magadha king Seniya Bimbisāra was; having approached him he told the whole thing to the Magadha king Bimbisāra.

(Bimbisāra said), ‘You have done right, my good Glvaka, that you have not returned; that king is cruel; he might have had you killed.’

29. And king Paggota, being restored to health, sent a messenger to Glvaka Komārabhaṅka (with this message), ‘May Glvaka come to me; I will grant him a boon.’

(Glvaka replied), ‘Nay, Sir, may His Majesty remember my office.’

At that time king Paggota had a suit of Siveyyaka cloth ¹, which was the best, and the most excellent, and the first, and the most precious, and the noblest of many cloths, and of many suits of cloth, and of many hundred suits of cloth, and of many thousand suits of cloth, and of many hundred thousand suits of cloth. And king Paggota sent this suit of Siveyyaka cloth to Glvaka Komārabhaṅka. Then Glvaka Komārabhaṅka thought: ‘This suit of Siveyyaka cloth which king Paggota has sent me, is the best and the most excellent (&c., down to :) and of many hundred thousand suits of cloth. Nobody else is worthy to receive it but He the blessed, perfect ¹ Buddhaghosa gives two explanations of Siveyyakaṃ dussa-yugam. ‘Either Siveyyaka cloth means the cloth used in the Uttarakuru country for veiling the dead bodies when they are brought to the burying-ground (sivathīka). (A certain kind of birds take the bodies to the Himavat mountains in order to eat them, and throw the cloths away. When eremites find them there, they bring them to the king.) Or Siveyyaka cloth means a cloth woven from yarn which skilful women in the Sivi country spin.’ No doubt the latter explication is the right one.

Arahát-Buddha, or the Magadha king Seniya Bimbisāra.

30. At that time a disturbance had befallen the humors of the Blessed One's body. And the Blessed One said to the venerable Ananda: 'A disturbance, Ananda, has befallen the humors of the Tathāgata's body; the Tathāgata wishes to take a purgative.' Then the venerable Ananda went to the place where Givaka Komárabhakka was; having approached him he said to Givaka Komárabhakka:

'My good Givaka, a disturbance has befallen the humors of the Tathāgata's body; the Tathāgata wishes to take a purgative.'

(Givaka replied), 'Well, venerable Ananda, you ought to rub the Blessed One's body with fat for a few days.'

And the venerable Ananda, having rubbed the Blessed One's body with fat for some days, went to the place where Givaka Komárabhakka was; having approached him he said to Givaka Komárabhakka: 'I have rubbed, my good Givaka, the Tathāgata's body with fat; do you now what you think fit.'

31. Then Givaka Komárabhakka thought: 'It is not becoming that I should give a strong purgative to the Blessed One.' (Thinking thus), he imbued three handfuls of blue lotuses with various drugs and went therewith to the place where the Blessed One was; having approached him he offered one handful of lotuses to the Blessed One (saying), 'Lord, may the Blessed One smell this first handful of lotuses; that will purge the Blessed One ten times.' Thus he offered also the second handful of lotuses to the Blessed One (saying), 'Lord, may the Blessed One smell this second handful of lotuses; that will purge the Blessed One ten times.' Thus he offered also the third handful of lotuses to the Blessed One (saying), 'Lord, may the Blessed One smell this third handful of lotuses; that will purge the Blessed One ten times. Thus the Blessed One will have purged full thirty times.' And Gilvaka Komārabhakka, having given to the Blessed One a purgative for full thirty times, bowed down before the Blessed One, and passed round him with his right side towards him, and went away.

32. And Gilvaka Komārabhakka, when he was out of doors, thought: 'I have given indeed to the Blessed One a purgative for full thirty times, but as the humors of the Tathāgatha's body are disturbed, it will not purge the Blessed One full thirty times; it will purge the Blessed One only twenty-nine times. But the Blessed One, having purged, will take a bath; the bath will purge the Blessed One once; thus the Blessed One will be purged full thirty times.'

And the Blessed One, who understood by the power of his mind this reflection of Gilvaka Komārabhakka, said to the venerable Ānanda: 'Gilvaka Komārabhakka, Ānanda, when he was out of doors, has thought: "I have given indeed (§c., as above, down to :) thus the Blessed One will be purged full thirty times." Well, Ānanda, get warm water ready.'

The venerable Ānanda accepted this order of the Blessed One (saying), 'Yes, Lord,' and got warm water ready.

33. And Gilvaka Komārabhakka went to the place where the Blessed One was; having approached him and respectfully saluted the Blessed One, he sat down near him; sitting near him Gilvaka Komārabhakka said to the Blessed One: 'Lord, has the Blessed One purged? ’ (Buddha replied), ‘I have purged, Ġīvaka.’ (Ġīvaka said), ‘When I was out of doors, Lord, I thought: “I have given indeed, &c.” Lord, may the Blessed One take a bath, may the Happy One take a bath.’ Then the Blessed One bathed in that warm water; the bath purged the Blessed One once; thus the Blessed One was purged full thirty times.

And Ġīvaka Komārabhakkha said to the Blessed One: ‘Lord, until the Blessed One’s body is completely restored, you had better abstain from liquid food.’ And ere long the Blessed One’s body was completely restored.

34. Then Ġīvaka Komārabhakkha took that suit of Siveyyaka cloth and went to the place where the Blessed One was; having approached him, and having respectfully saluted the Blessed One, he sat down near him. Sitting near him, Ġīvaka Komārabhakkha said to the Blessed One: ‘Lord, I ask one boon of the Blessed One.’ (Buddha replied), ‘The Tathāgatas, Ġīvaka, are above granting boons (before they know what they are).’ (Ġīvaka said), ‘Lord, it is a proper and unobjectionable demand.’—‘Speak, Ġīvaka.’

‘Lord, the Blessed One wears only pamsukulā robes (robes made of rags taken from a dust heap or a cemetery1), and so does the fraternity of Bhikkhus. Now, Lord, this suit of Siveyyaka cloth has been sent to me by king Paggota, which is the best, and the most excellent, and the first, and the most precious, and the noblest of many cloths and of many suits of cloth, and of many hundred suits of cloth, and of many thousand suits of cloth, and of many hundred thousand suits of cloth. Lord, may the Blessed One accept from me this suit of Siveyyaka cloth, and may he allow to the fraternity of Bhikkhus to wear lay robes.'

The Blessed One accepted the suit of Siveyyaka cloth. And the Blessed One taught, incited, animated, and gladdened Gīvaka Komārabhakkha by religious discourse. And Gīvaka Komārabhakkha, having been taught, incited, animated, and gladdened by the Blessed One by religious discourse, rose from his seat, respectfully saluted the Blessed One, passed round him with his right side towards him, and went away.

35. And the Blessed One, after having delivered a religious discourse in consequence of that, thus addressed the Bhikkhus:

'I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to wear lay robes. He who likes may wear pamsukūla robes; he who likes may accept lay robes. Whether you are pleased with the one or with the other sort of robes, I approve it.'

Now the people at Rāgagaha heard, 'The Blessed One has allowed the Bhikkhus to wear lay robes.' Then those people became glad and delighted (because they thought), 'Now we will bestow gifts (on the Bhikkhus) and acquire merit by good works,

1 Gahapatiśivarā may be translated also, as Buddhaghosa explains it, 'a robe presented by lay people.'

since the Blessed One has allowed the Bhikkhus to wear lay robes.' And in one day many thousands of robes were presented at Râgagaha (to the Bhikkhus).

And the people in the country heard, 'The Blessed One has allowed the Bhikkhus to wear lay robes.' Then those people became glad (&c., as above, down to:) And in one day many thousands of robes were presented through the country also (to the Bhikkhus).

36. At that time the Samgha had received a mantle. They told this thing to the Blessed One.
'I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to wear a mantle.'
They had got a silk mantle.
'I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to wear a silk mantle.'
They had got a fleecy counterpane.
'I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to use a fleecy counterpane.'

End of the first Bhânavâra.

At that time the king of Kåsi sent to Glvaka Komârabhakka a woollen garment made half of Benares cloth... Then Glvaka Komârabhakka

1 See Abhidhânapp. v. 312.
2 Buddhaghosa: 'This king was Pasenadi's brother, the same father's son.' He appears to have been a sub-king of Pasenadi, for in the Lohiâka-sutta it is stated that Pasenadi's rule extended both over Kåsi and Kosala ('Râgrâ Pasenadi Kosalo Kâskosalam agghâvasati').
3 Our translation of addhakâsikam kambalam is merely took that woollen garment made half of Benares cloth and went to the place where the Blessed One was; having approached him, and respectfully saluted the Blessed One, he sat down near him. Sitting near him, Ġivaka Komārabhaṭṭa said to the Blessed One: ‘Lord, this woollen garment made half of Benares cloth. . . .’ has been sent to me by the king of Kāsi. May the Blessed One, Lord, accept this woollen garment, which may be to me a long time for a good and a blessing.’ The Blessed One accepted that woollen garment.

And the Blessed One taught (&c., as in chap. i, § 34, down to :) and went away.

And the Blessed One, after having delivered a religious discourse in consequence of that, thus addressed the Bhikkhus:

‘I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to use woollen garments.’

1. At that time the fraternity got robes of different kinds. Now the Bhikkhus thought: ‘What robes are allowed to us by the Blessed One, and what robes are not allowed?’

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

‘I allow you, O Bhikkhus, six kinds of robes, viz.

Conjectural. Buddhaghosa has the following note: ‘Addhakāsiyam, here kāsi means one thousand; a thing that is worth one thousand, is called kāsiya. This garment was worth five hundred; therefore it is called addhakāsiya. And for the same reason it is said, upaddhakāsinam khamamānam.’ Perhaps vikāsikam at VI, 15, 5 may have some connection with the word used here.

those made of linen, of cotton, of silk, of wool, of coarse cloth, and of hempen cloth.'

2. At that time the Bhikkhus accepted lay robes, but did not get pamsukûla robes, because they had scruples (and thought): 'The Blessed One has allowed us either kind of robes only, not both kinds.'

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I allow, O Bhikkhus, that he who accepts lay robes, may get also pamsukûla robes. If you are pleased with those both sorts of robes, I approve that also.'

1. At that time a number of Bhikkhus were travelling on the road in the Kosala country. Some of these Bhikkhus went off (the road) to a cemetery in order to get themselves pamsukûla robes; some (other) Bhikkhus did not wait. Those Bhikkhus who had gone to the cemetery for pamsukûla robes, got themselves pamsukûlas; those Bhikkhus who had not waited, said to them: 'Friends, give us also a part (of your pamsukûlas).' They replied, 'We will not give you a part, friends; why have you not waited?'

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that you are not obliged to give a part against your will to Bhikkhus who have not waited.'

2. At that time a number of Bhikkhus were travelling on the road in the Kosala country. Some of these Bhikkhus went off (the road) to a cemetery in order to get themselves pamsukūla robes; some (other) Bhikkhus waited for them. Those Bhikkhus who had gone to the cemetery for pamsukūla robes, got themselves pamsukūlas; those Bhikkhus who had waited, said to them: 'Friends, give us also a part (of your pamsukūlas).' They replied, 'We will not give you a part, friends; why did you not also go off (to the cemetery) ?'

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that you give a part (even) against your will to Bhikkhus who have waited.'

3. At that time a number of Bhikkhus were travelling on the road in the Kosala country. Some of these Bhikkhus went aside first from (the road) to a cemetery in order to get themselves pamsukūla robes; some (other) Bhikkhus went aside later. Those Bhikkhus who had gone first to the cemetery for pamsukūla robes, got themselves pamsukūlas; those Bhikkhus who had got off later, did not get any, and said (to the other ones): 'Friends, give us also a part.' They replied, 'We will not give you a part, friends; why did you get off (to the cemetery) after us ?'

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that you are not obliged to give a part against your will to Bhikkhus who have gone (to the cemetery) later (than yourselves).'

4. At that time a number of Bhikkhus were travelling on the road in the Kosala country. They went altogether off (the road) to a cemetery in order to get themselves pamsukūla robes; some of the Bhikkhus got pamsukūlas, other Bhikkhus did not get any. The Bhikkhus who had got nothing, said: 'Friends, give us also a part (of your pamsukulās).’ They replied, 'We will not give you a part, friends; why did you not get (them yourselves)?'

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that you give a part (even) against your will to Bhikkhus who have gone (to the cemetery) together with yourselves.'

5. At that time a number of Bhikkhus were travelling on the road in the Kosala country. They went off (the road) to a cemetery in order to get themselves pamsukulā robes, after having made an agreement (about the distribution of what they were to find). Some of the Bhikkhus got themselves pamsukulās, other Bhikkhus did not get any. The Bhikkhus who had got nothing, said: 'Friends, give us also a part (of the pamsukulās).’ They replied, 'We will not give you a part, friends; why did you not get (them yourselves)?'

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that you give a part, (even) against your will, to Bhikkhus who have gone (with you to the cemetery) after having made with you an agreement (about the distribution of the pamsukulās).'

1. At that time people went to the Arama with robes¹ (which they intended to present to the Bhikkhus). They found there no Bhikkhu who was to receive the robes; so they took them back again. (In consequence of that) few robes were given (to the Bhikkhus).

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that you appoint a Bhikkhu possessed of the following five qualities, to receive the robes (presented to the Bhikkhus): (a person) who does not go in the evil course of lust, in the evil course of hatred, in the evil course of delusion, in the evil course of fear, and who knows what has been received and what has not.

2. 'And you ought, O Bhikkhus, to appoint (such a Bhikkhu) in this way: First, that Bhikkhu must be asked (to accept that commission). When he has been asked, let a learned, competent Bhikkhu proclaim the following ṇatti before the Samgha: “Let the Samgha, reverend Sirs, hear me. If the Samgha is ready, let the Samgha appoint the Bhikkhu N. N. to receive the robes (presented to the Bhikkhus). This is the ṇatti. Let the Samgha, reverend Sirs, hear me. The Samgha appoints the Bhikkhu N. N. to receive the robes (presented). Let any one of the venerable brethren who is in favour of our appointing the Bhikkhu N. N. to receive the robes (presented), be silent, and any one who is not in favour of it, speak. The Bhikkhu N. N. has been appointed by the Samgha to receive the robes (presented). The Samgha is in favour of it, therefore are you silent; thus I understand.”'

1. At that time the Bhikkhus who had to receive the robes (presented), after having received them, left them there (in the Vihāras) and went away; the robes were spoilt.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that you appoint a Bhikkhu possessed of the following five qualities, to lay by the robes (received): (a person) who does not go in the evil course of lust, in the evil course of hatred, in the evil course of delusion, in the evil course of fear, and who knows what is laid by and what is not.

2. 'And you ought, O Bhikkhus, to appoint (&c., see chap. 5, § 2).'

At that time the Bhikkhus appointed to lay the robes by, laid the robes by in an open hall, or at the foot of a tree, or in the hollow of a Nimba tree\(^1\); thus they were eaten by rats and white ants.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that you appoint what the Samgha chooses, a Vihāra, or an Addhayoga\(^2\), or a storied building, or an attic, or a cave, to be the store-room\(^3\) (of the Samgha).

\(^1\) Compare III, \(12, 5\).

\(^2\) Compare I, \(30, 4\).

\(^3\) The word bhandāgāra does not imply any special reference to robes more than to any other articles belonging to the Samgha. A good many things which were usually kept in the bhandāgāra are mentioned at Kullav.VI, \(21, 3\).
'And you ought, O Bhikkhus, to appoint it in this way: Let a learned, competent Bhikkhu proclaim the following lässig before the Samgha: "Let the Samgha, reverend Sirs, hear me. If the Samgha is ready, let the Samgha appoint the Vihāra called N. N. to be the store-room (of the Samgha), (&c., the usual formula of a 笈attidutiya kamma)."

1. At that time the cloth in the Samgha's store-room was not protected (from rain, mice, &c.)

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that you appoint a Bhikkhu possessed of the following five qualities, to take charge of the store-room: (a person) who does not go in the evil course of lust (&c., as in chap. 5, § 1), and who knows what is protected and what is not.

'And you ought, O Bhikkhus, to appoint (&c., see chap. 5, § 2).'

2. At that time the Kāḷabbaggiya Bhikkhus expelled a Bhikkhu, who had charge of a store-room, from his place.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'Let no one, O Bhikkhus, expel a Bhikkhu, who has charge of a store-room, from his place. He who does so, commits a dukkata offence.'

1. At that time the Samgha's store-room was over-full of clothes.
They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that they should be distributed by the assembled Samgha.'

At that time the whole Samgha, when distributing the clothes, made a bustle.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that you appoint a Bhikkhu possessed of the following five qualities, to distribute the clothes: (a person) who does not go in the evil course of lust . . . . and who knows what is distributed and what is not.

'And you ought, O Bhikkhus, to appoint (&c., see chap. 5, § 2).'

2. Now the Bhikkhus appointed to distribute the clothes thought: 'In what way are we to distribute the clothes?'

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that you first assort the clothes, estimate them, share them according to their higher or lower value¹, then count the Bhikkhus, divide them into troops², and divide the portions of cloth (accordingly).

Now the Bhikkhus, who were to distribute the clothes, thought: 'What portion of cloth shall be given to the Sāmaneras?'

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that you give to the Sāmaneras half a portion.'

¹ Buddhaghosa: 'If there are robes of the same quality, for instance, each worth ten (kāhāpas), for all Bhikkhus, it is all right; if they are not, they must take together the robes which are worth nine or eight, with those which are worth one or two, and thus they must make equal portions.'

² 'In case the day should not suffice for distributing the robes to the Bhikkhus one by one' (Buddhaghosa).
3. At that time a certain Bhikkhu wished to go across (a river or a desert) with the portion that should come to him.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that you give to a Bhikkhu who is going across (a river or a desert), the portion that should come to him.'

At that time a certain Bhikkhu wished to go across (a river or a desert) with a greater portion (of cloth than fell to his share).

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that you give more than the due portion (to a Bhikkhu who desires it), if he gives a compensation.'

4. Now the Bhikkhus, who were to distribute the clothes, thought: 'How are we to assign the portions of cloth (to the single Bhikkhus), by turns as they arrive (and ask for cloth), or according to their age (i.e. the time elapsed since their ordination) ?'

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that you cast lots, made of grass-blades, after having made every defective portion even.'

10.

1. At that time the Bhikkhus dyed cloth with (cow-)dung or with yellow clay. The robes were badly coloured.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that you use the following six kinds of dye, viz. dye made of roots, dye made of trunks of trees, dye made of bark, dye made of leaves, dye made of flowers, dye made of fruits.'
2. At that time the Bhikkhus dyed cloth with unboiled dye; the cloth became ill-smelling. They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that you boil the dye (and use) little dye-pots.'

They spilt the dye.

'I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that you put basins (under the dye-pots) to catch the spilt (dye).'</n
At that time the Bhikkhus did not know whether the dye was boiled or not.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that you let a drop of dye fall into water, or on to your nail (in order to try if the dye is duly boiled).'</n
3. At that time the Bhikkhus, when pouring the dye out (of the pot), upset the pot; the pot was broken.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that you use a dye-ladle or a scoop with a long handle.'

At that time the Bhikkhus did not possess vessels for keeping dye.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that you get jars and bowls for keeping the dye.'

At that time the Bhikkhus rubbed the cloth against the vessels and the bowls (in which they dyed it); the cloth was rent.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that you use a (large) trough for dying (cloth) in.' 11.

1. At that time the Bhikkhus spread the cloth on the floor (when they had dyed it); the cloth became dusty.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

' I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that you spread grass (and put the cloth on it).'

The grass they had spread was eaten by white ants.
They told this thing to the Blessed One.

' I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that you get a bambû peg or rope to hang the cloth on.'

They hung it up in the middle; the dye dropped down on both sides.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

' I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that you tie it fast at the corner.'

The corner wore out.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

' I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, the use of a clothes-line.'

The dye dropped down on one side.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

' I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that you turn the cloth, when dying it, whenever required, and that you do not go away before the dye has ceased to drop.'

2. At that time the cloth had become stiff.\(^1\)

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that you dip (the cloth) into water (in order to remove the excessive dye).'
At that time the cloth became rough.
They told this thing to the Blessed One.
'I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, (that you smooth it by) beating it with your hands.'
At that time the Bhikkhus possessed akkhinnaka\(^1\) robes of yellowish colour like ivory. The people were annoyed, murmured, and became angry: '(The Bhikkhus dress) like those who still live in the pleasures of the world.'
They told this thing to the Blessed One.
'You ought not, O Bhikkhus, to possess akkhinnaka robes. He who does, commits a dukkata offence.'

1. Now when the Blessed One had remained at Rāgagaha as long as he thought fit, he set forth on his journey towards Dakkhibhāgiri (the Southern Hills\(^2\)). And the Blessed One beheld how the Magadha rice fields were divided into short pieces\(^3\), and in rows\(^1\), and by outside boundaries\(^2\) (or ridges), and by cross boundaries\(^3\).

On seeing this the Blessed One spake thus to the venerable Ânanda: ‘Dost thou perceive, Ânanda, how the Magadha rice fields are divided into short pieces, and in rows, and by outside boundaries, and by cross boundaries?’

‘Even so, Lord.’

‘Could you, Ânanda, provide\(^4\) robes of a like kind for the Bhikkhus?’

‘I could, Lord.’

Now when the Blessed One had remained in the Southern Hills as long as he thought fit, he returned again to Râgagaha.

Then Ânanda provided robes of a like kind for many Bhikkhus; and going up to the place where the Blessed One was, he spake thus to the Blessed One: ‘May the Blessed One be pleased to look at the robes which I have provided.’

2. Then the Blessed One on that occasion addressed the Bhikkhus and said: ‘An able man, O Bhikkhus, is Ânanda; of great understanding, O Bhikkhus, is Ânanda, inasmuch as what has been spoken by me in short that can he understand in full, and can make the cross seams\(^5\), and the

We have accordingly adopted that reading here.

1. Now when the Blessed One had remained at Rāgagaha as long as he thought fit, he went forth on his journey towards Vesāli. And the Blessed One, when on the high road between Rāgagaha and Vesāli, saw a number of Bhikkhus smothered up in robes\(^1\). They went along with robes made up into a roll\(^2\) on their heads, or on their backs, or on their waist. And when the Blessed One saw them, he thought: 'With too great celerity have these foolish persons given themselves up to superfluity\(^3\) in the matter of dress. It would be well were I to confine the dress of the Bhikkhus within limits, and were to fix a bound thereto.'

2. And the Blessed One, proceeding in due course on his journey toward Vesāli, arrived at that place. And there, at Vesāli, the Blessed One stayed at the Gotamaka shrine\(^4\). And at that time in the cold winter nights, in the period between the Ashtakā festivals when the snow falls\(^1\), the Blessed One sat at night in the open air with but one robe on, and the Blessed One felt not cold. As the first watch of the night was coming to its end, the Blessed One felt cold; and he put on a second robe, and felt not cold. As the middle watch of the night was coming to its end, the Blessed One felt cold; and he put on a third robe, and felt not cold. As the last watch of the night was coming to an end, when the dawn was breaking and the night was far spent\(^2\), the Blessed One felt cold; and he put on a fourth robe, and felt not cold.

3. Then this thought sprang up in the Blessed One's mind: 'Those men of good birth\(^3\) in this doctrine and discipline who are affected by cold, and are afraid of cold, they are able to make use of three robes\(^4\). It were well if in confining within limits the dress of the Bhikkhus, and in fixing a bound thereto, I were to allow the use of three robes.' And on that occasion the Blessed One, when he had

\(^2\) Nandimukhiyā rattiyā. The derivation of this phrase is uncertain, though the general meaning is not subject to doubt. The Sanskrit form of the whole phrase will be found in the Lalita Vistara at p. 447. Comp. Sāṅkhāyana-grhyā, ed. Oldenberg, IV, 4, where the word nāndimukho occurs in a different connection.

\(^3\) In the text read Ye pi kho kulaputtā. The idea is that men of lower grade, being accustomed to cold, would not want so many robes. But there must be one rule for all; and the rule is accordingly made to suit the comfort of the weaker brethren—early Buddhism, contrary to an erroneous opinion still frequently expressed, being opposed to asceticism.

\(^4\) Or, 'to get on with the three robes.' Compare the use of yāpetum in the 'Book of the Great Decease,' II, 32.
delivered a religious discourse, addressed the Bhikkhus, and said:

4, 5. 'When on the high road, &c. . . . I saw, &c. . . . and I thought, &c. . . . (all the chapter is repeated down to " . . . I were to allow the use of three robes"). I allow you, O Bhikkhus, the use of three robes, (to wit), a double waist cloth, and a single³ upper robe, and a single under garment².'

¹ Ekākāiyam. Compare Gātaka I, 326. Buddhaghosa says dvīgūnam dupatā-samghātām ekākāiyam ekapatātam. Though 'single,' the lengths of cotton cloth, pieced together, of which the robes were made, were allowed to be doubled at the seams, the collar, the elbows, and the knees. See above, VII, 1, 5.

² The waist cloth (samghātā) was wrapped round the waist and back, and secured with a girdle. The under garment (antaravāsaka; see also the end of this note) was wrapped round the loins and reached below the knee, being fastened round the loins by an end of the cloth being tucked in there; and sometimes also by a girdle. The upper robe (uttarāsāṃga) was wrapped round the legs from the loins to the ankles, and the end was then drawn, at the back, from the right hip, over the left shoulder, and either (as is still the custom in Siam, and in the Siamese sect in Ceylon) allowed to fall down in front, or (as is still the custom in Burma, and in the Burmese sect in Ceylon) drawn back again over the right shoulder, and allowed to fall down on the back. From the constant reference to the practice of adjusting the robe over one shoulder as a special mark of respect (for instance, Mahāvagga I, 29, 2; IV, 3, 3), the Burmese custom would seem to be in accordance with the most ancient way of usually wearing the robe. The oldest statues of the Buddha, which represent the robe as falling over only one shoulder, are probably later than the passages just referred to.

The ordinary dress of laymen, even of good family, in Gotama's time was much more scanty than the decent dress thus prescribed for the Bhikkhus. See Rh. D.'s note on the 'Book of the Great Decease,' VI, 26. But it consisted also, like that of the Bhikkhus, not in garments made with sleeves or trousers, to fit the limbs, but in simple lengths of cloth.

The antara-vāsaka corresponds, in the dress of the monks, to
6. Now at that time the Kabbaggīya Bhikkhus, on the ground that three robes had been allowed by the Blessed One, used to frequent the village in one suit of three robes, and in another suit to rest in the Ārāma, and in another to go to the bath. Then those Bhikkhus who were modest were annoyed, murmured, and became indignant, saying, 'How can the Kabbaggīya Bhikkhus wear extra suits of robes.'

And those Bhikkhus told the matter to the Blessed One. Then the Blessed One on that occasion, when he had delivered a religious discourse, addressed the Bhikkhus, and said:

'You are not, O Bhikkhus, to wear an extra suit of robes. Whosoever does so, shall be dealt with according to law.'

7. Now at that time the venerable Ānanda had acquired an extra suit of robes, and the venerable Ānanda was desirous of giving the extra suit to the venerable Sāriputta, but the venerable Sāriputta was staying at Sāketa. Then the venerable Ānanda thought: 'It hath been laid down by the Blessed One that we are not to keep an extra suit of robes. Now I have received one, and I want to give it to the venerable Sāriputta; but he is staying at Sāketa. What now shall I do?'

the sāṭika in the dress of ordinary women, and was of the same shape as the udāka-sāṭika, or bathing dress, prescribed for the use both of monks (below, chapter 15) and of nuns (Bhikkhunī-vibhaṅga, Pāṭitīya XXII). The latter was, however, somewhat shorter.

The ordinary dress of the Bhikkhunīs or Sisters consisted of the same three garments as that of the Bhikkhus.

1 That is, according to the first Nissaggiya. The first section of the Sutta-vibhaṅga on that rule is identical with this section.
And the venerable Ānanda told this thing to the Blessed One.

'How long will it be, Ānanda, before the venerable Sāriputta returns?'

'He will come back, Lord, on the ninth or the tenth day from now.'

Then the Blessed One on that occasion, when he had delivered a religious discourse, addressed the Bhikkhus, and said:

'I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to keep an extra suit of robes up to the tenth day.'

8. Now at that time the Bhikkhus used to get extra suits of robes given to them. And these Bhikkhus thought: 'What now should we do with extra suits of robes?'

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I enjoin upon you, O Bhikkhus, to make over an extra suit of robes (to other Bhikkhus who have no robes').

1. Now when the Blessed One had remained at Vesāli as long as he thought fit, he went onwards on his journey towards Benares. And in due course he arrived at Benares, and there, at Benares, he stayed in the hermitage in the Migadāya.

Now at that time a certain Bhikkhu's under robe was torn. And that Bhikkhu thought: 'The Blessed

2. So that Bhikkhu inserted a slip of cloth. And the Blessed One on his way round the sleeping apartments saw him doing so, went up to the place where he was, and said to him:

'What are you doing, O Bhikkhu?'
'I am inserting a slip of cloth, Lord.'
'That is very good, O Bhikkhu. It is quite right of you, O Bhikkhu, to insert a slip of cloth.'

And the Blessed One on that occasion, when he had delivered a religious discourse, addressed the Bhikkhus, and said:
'I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to use a double waist cloth, and a single upper robe, and a single under-garment, of cloths which are new, or as good as new; and the use of a fourfold waist cloth, and of a double upper robe, and of a double under robe of cloth which has been worn for a long time. You are to make endeavour to get sufficient material from rags taken from the dust-heap, or from bits picked up in the bazaar. 1. Now when the Blessed One had remained at Benares as long as he thought fit, he went onwards on his journey toward Sāvatthi. And in due course journeying straight on he arrived at Sāvatthi; and there, at Sāvatthi, he stayed at the Getavana, Anātha-pindāka's Ārāma. And Visākhā the mother of Migāra went up to the place where the Blessed One was; and when she had come there, she saluted the Blessed One, and took her seat on one side. And the Blessed One taught Visākhā the mother of Migāra seated thus: and incited, and aroused, and gladdened her with religious discourse. And Visākhā the mother of Migāra when she had been thus taught, &c., spake thus to the Blessed One: 'Will my Lord the Blessed One consent to accept his morrow's meal at my hands, together with the company of the Bhikkhus?' The Blessed One, by remaining silent, granted his consent; and Visākhā the mother of Migāra, perceiving that the Blessed One had consented, rose from her seat, and saluted the Blessed One, and keeping him on her right side as she passed him, she departed thence.

\(^1\) This liability to have to be patched is given, in connection with the previous phrase, as one of the nine disadvantages of robes at Gātaka I, 8; and tunnavāya occurs as the expression for a mender of old clothes at Kullavagga VI, 5, 1.

\(^2\) See our notes on these expressions above, VII, 1, 5.
2. Now at that time, when the night was far spent, there was a great storm of rain over the whole world. And the Blessed One said to the Bhikkhus:

‘Just as it is raining in the Getavana, O Bhikkhus, so is it raining over the whole world. Let yourselves, O Bhikkhus, be rained down upon, for this is the last time there will be a mighty storm of rain over the whole world.’

‘Even so, Lord,’ said those Bhikkhus in assent to the Blessed One; and throwing off their robes they let themselves be rained down upon.

3. And Visākhā the mother of Migāra having provided sweet food, both hard and soft, gave command to a slave girl, saying,

‘Go thou to the Ārāma; and when you are there, announce the time, saying, “The time, Sirs, has arrived, and the meal is ready.”’

‘Even so, my Lady,’ said the slave girl in assent to Visākhā, the mother of Migāra; and going to the Ārāma she beheld there the Bhikkhus, with their robes thrown off, letting themselves be rained down upon. Then thinking, ‘These are not Bhikkhus in the Ārāma, they are naked ascetics letting the rain fall on them,’ she returned to the place where Visākhā the mother of Migāra was, and said to her:

‘There are no Bhikkhus in the Ārāma; there are

1 Kātuddāpiko, literally, ‘over the four continents,’ into which the world was supposed to be divided. Compare Genesis vii. 44.

2 Gakkha ge; where ge is the appropriate form of address invariably used to a female slave or maid-servant. Compare Childers, in the ‘Dictionary,’ p. 617.
naked ascetics there, letting the rain fall on themselves.'

Then it occurred to Visākhā the mother of Migāra—she being learned, expert, and wise—'For a certainty the venerable ones must have thrown off their robes in order to let themselves be rained down upon, and this foolish girl thinks therefore that there are no Bhikkhus in the Ārāma, but only naked ascetics letting the rain fall on them.' And she again gave command to the slave girl, saying,

'Go thou to the Ārāma; and when you are there, announce the time, saying, "The time, Sirs, has arrived, and the meal is ready."'

4. Now the Bhikkhus when they had cooled their limbs, and were refreshed in body, took their robes, and entered each one into his chamber. When the slave girl came to the Ārāma, not seeing any Bhikkhus, she thought: 'There are no Bhikkhus in the Ārāma. The Ārāma is empty.' And returning to Visākhā the mother of Migāra she said so.

Then it occurred to Visākhā the mother of Migāra—she being learned, expert, and wise—'For a certainty the venerable ones, when they had cooled their limbs and were refreshed in body, must have taken their robes, and entered each one into his chamber.' And she again gave command to the slave girl, saying,

'Go thou to Ārāma; and when you are there announce the time, saying, "The time, Sirs, has arrived, and the meal is ready."'

5. And the Blessed One said to the Bhikkhus: 'Make yourselves ready, O Bhikkhus, with bowl and robe; the hour for the meal has come.'

'Even so, Lord,' said the Bhikkhus in assent to the Blessed One. And in the morning the Blessed One, having put on his under-garment, and being duly bowled and robed, vanished from the Gotavana as quickly as a strong man would stretch forth his arm when it was drawn in, or draw it in again when it was stretched forth, and appeared in the mansion of Visâkhâ the mother of Migâra. And the Blessed One took his seat on the seat spread out for him, and with him the company of the Bhikkhus.

6. Then said Visâkhâ the mother of Migâra: 'Most wonderful, most marvellous is the might and the power of the Tathâgata, in that though the floods are rolling on knee-deep, and though the floods are rolling on waist-deep, yet is not a single Bhikkhu wet, as to his feet, or as to his robes.' And glad and exalted in heart she served and offered with her own hand to the company of the Bhikkhus, with the Buddha at their head, sweet food, both hard and soft. And when the Blessed One had finished his meal, and had cleansed his hands and the bowl, she took her seat on one side. And, so sitting, she spake thus to the Blessed One:

'Eight are the boons, Lord, which I beg of the Blessed One.'

'The Tathâgatas, O Visâkhâ, are above granting boons (before they know what they are).'

'Proper, Lord, and unobjectionable are the boons I ask.'

'Speak then, O Visâkhâ.'

7. 'I desire, Lord, my life long to bestow robes for the rainy season on the Samgha, and food for in-coming Bhikkhus, and food for out-going Bhikkhus, and food for the sick, and food for those who wait upon the sick, and medicine for the sick, and a constant supply of congey, and bathing robes for the nuns.'

'But what circumstance is it, O Visâkhâ, that you have in view in asking these eight boons of the Tathâgata?'

'I gave command, Lord, to my slave girl, saying, "Go thou to the Ârâma; and when you are there, announce the time, saying, 'The time, Sirs, has arrived, and the meal is ready.'" And the slave girl went, Lord, to the Ârâma; but when she beheld there the Bhikkhus with their robes thrown off, letting themselves be rained down upon, she thought: "These are not Bhikkhus in the Ârâma, they are naked ascetics letting the rain fall on them," and she returned to me and reported accordingly. Impure, Lord, is nakedness, and revolting. It was this circumstance, Lord, that I had in view in desiring to provide the Samgha my life long with special garments for use in the rainy season.\(^1\)

8. 'Moreover, Lord, an in-coming Bhikkhu, not being able to take the direct roads, and not knowing the places where food can be procured, comes on his way wearied out by seeking for alms. But when he has partaken of the food I shall have provided for in-coming Bhikkhus, he will come on his way without being wearied out by seeking for alms, taking the direct road, and knowing the place where food can be procured. It was this circumstance that I had in view in desiring to provide the Samgha my life long with food for in-coming Bhikkhus.

'Moreover, Lord, an out-going Bhikkhu, while seeking about for an alms for himself, may be left behind by the caravan, or may arrive too late at the place whither he desires to go, and will set out on the road in weariness. But when he has partaken of the food I shall have provided for out-going Bhikkhus, he will not be left behind by the caravan; he will arrive in due time at the place whither he desires to go, and he will set out on the road when he is not weary. It was this circumstance, Lord, that I had in view in desiring to provide the Samgha my life long with food for out-going Bhikkhus.

9. 'Moreover, Lord, if a sick Bhikkhu does not obtain suitable foods his sickness may increase upon him, or he may die. But if a Bhikkhu have taken the diet that I shall have provided for the sick, neither will his sickness increase upon him, nor will he die. It was this circumstance, Lord, that I had in view in desiring to provide the Samgha my life long with diet for the sick.

'Moreover, Lord, a Bhikkhu who is waiting upon the sick, if he has to seek out food for himself, may bring in the food (to the invalid) when the sun is already far on his course, and he will lose his

But when he has partaken of the food I shall have provided for those who wait upon the sick, he will bring in food to the invalid in due time, and he will not lose his opportunity of taking his food. It was this circumstance, Lord, that I had in view in desiring to provide the Samgha my life long with food for those who wait upon the sick.

10. 'Moreover, Lord, if a sick Bhikkhu does not obtain suitable medicines his sickness may increase upon him, or he may die. But if a Bhikkhu have taken the medicines which I shall have provided for the sick, neither will his sickness increase upon him, nor will he die. It was this circumstance, Lord, that I had in view in desiring to provide the Samgha my life long with medicines for the sick.

'Moreover, Lord, the Blessed One when at Andhakavinda, having in view the ten advantages thereof, allowed the use of congey. It was those advantages I had in view, Lord, in desiring to provide the Samgha my life long with a constant supply of congey.

11. 'Now, Lord, the Bhikkhunis are in the habit of bathing in the river Aśiravat with the courtesans, at the same landing-place, and naked. And the courtesans, Lord, ridiculed the Bhikkhunis, saying, "What is the good, ladies, of your maintaining chastity when you are young? are not the Impure, Lord, is nakedness for a woman, disgusting, and revolting. It was this circumstance, Lord, that I had in view in desiring to provide the Bhikkhuṁ-saṅgha my life long with dresses to bathe in.'

12. 'But what was the advantage you had in view for yourself, O Visākhā, in asking these eight boons of the Tathāgata?'

'Bhikkhus who have spent the rainy seasons in various places will come, Lord, to Sāvatthī, to visit the Blessed One. And on coming to the Blessed One they will ask, saying, 'Such and such a Bhikkhu, Lord, has died: Where has he been re-born, and what is his destiny?' Then will the Blessed One explain that he had attained to the fruits of conversion, or of the state of the Sakadāgāmins, or of the state of the Anāgāmins, or of Arahantship. And I, going up to them, shall ask, 'Was that brother, Sirs, one of those who had formerly been at Sāvatthī?'

13. 'If they should reply to me, 'He had formerly been at Sāvatthī,' then shall I arrive at the conclusion, 'For a certainty did that brother enjoy either the robes for the rainy season, or the food for the in-coming Bhikkhus, or the food for the out-going Bhikkhus, or the food for the sick, or the food for those that wait upon the sick, or the medicine for the sick, or the constant supply of congey." Then will gladness spring up within me on my calling that to mind; and joy will arise to me thus gladdened; and so rejoicing all my frame will be at peace; and being thus at peace I shall experience a blissful feeling of content; and in that bliss my heart will be at rest; and that will be to me an exercise of my moral sense, an exercise of my moral powers, an exercise of the seven kinds of wisdom! This, Lord, was the advantage I had in view for myself in asking those eight boons of the Blessed One.'

14. 'It is well, it is well, Visâkhâ. Thou hast

1 The succession of ideas in this paragraph is very suggestive, and throws much light both upon the psychological views and upon the religious feelings of the early Buddhists. The exact rendering of course of the abstract terms employed in the Pâli text is no doubt, as yet, beset with difficulty, for the reasons pointed out in Rh. D.'s 'Buddhist Suttas from the Pâli,' pp. xxv, xxvi; but the general sense of the passage is already sufficiently clear. For one or two words we have no real and adequate equivalent.

Kâya is neither 'body' nor 'faculties;' it is the whole frame, the whole individuality, looked at rather objectively than subjectively, and rather from the outward and visible than from the inner, metaphysical, stand-point. Compare the use of Sakkâya-dîthi and of Kâyena passati.

Sukha is not so much 'happiness,' simply and vaguely, as the serenity of the bliss which follows on happiness. It is contrasted with, and follows after, pâmogga and piti, in the same way as in this passage, in the standing description of the Gâñnas (translated by Rh. D. in the Mahâ-sudassana Sutta II, 5-8, in the 'Buddhist Suttas,' p. 272). Its opposite, Dukkha, is a positive state of pain, and in comparison with this, sukha is negative, the absence of pain.

K'itta is always more emotional than intellectual. It has the connotation, not of 'mind,' as is usually and erroneously supposed, but of 'heart.'
done well in asking eight boons of the Tathāgata with such advantages in view.’

And the Blessed One gave thanks to Visākhā the mother of Migāra in these verses;

‘Whatsoever woman, upright in life, a disciple of the Happy One, gives, glad at heart and overcoming avarice, both food and drink—a gift, heavenly, destructive of sorrow, productive of bliss,—

‘A heavenly life does she attain, entering upon the Path that is free from corruption and impurity;

‘Aiming at good, happy does she become, and free from sickness, and long does she rejoice in a heavenly body.’

And when the Blessed One had given thanks to Visākhā the mother of Migāra in these verses, he arose from his seat, and departed thence.

15. Then the Blessed One on that occasion, after he had delivered a religious discourse, addressed the Bhikkhus, and said:

‘I allow you, O Bhikkhus, garments for the rainy season ¹, and food for in-coming Bhikkhus, and food for out-going Bhikkhus, and diet for the sick, and food for those that wait upon the sick, and medicine for the sick, and a constant supply of congey, and bathing robes for the sisterhood.’

Here ends the chapter called the Visākhā-bhānavāra.

¹ The size of such a garment is limited by the 91st Pāṭittiya to six spans by two-and-a-half—that is just enough to go round the loins from the waist half down to the knee. It would be decent, and yet avoid the disadvantage of wearing the robes in the rain, where they would become wet and heavy in the manner described, for instance, at Mahávagga VII, I, 1.

1, 2. Now at that time Bhikkhus who had eaten sweet foods went to sleep unmindful and unthoughtful. And they who had thus gone to sleep, dreamed.

3. ‘I allow, O Bhikkhus, for the protection of the body, and of the robe, and of the sleeping-place, the use of a mat.’

4. Now at that time the mat, being too short, did not protect the whole of the sleeping-place.

‘I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to have a covering made as large as you like.’

1. Now at that time the venerable Belatthasisa, the superior of the venerable Ánanda, had a disease of thick scabs; and by reason of the discharge thereof his robes stuck to his body. The Bhikkhus moistened those robes with water, and loosened them (from his body).

The Blessed One, as he was going on his rounds through the sleeping-places, saw them [doing so], and going up to the place where they were, he asked them:

1 The remainder of this introductory story scarcely bears translation. The first sentences recur in the Sutta-vibhaṅga, Samghādīsesa I, 2, 1, and Pāṭḍatiya V, 1, 1.

2 The length of a mat (nīṣidham) was limited by the 89th Pāṭḍatiya to two spans by one.

3 This introductory story is also given as the introduction to Mahāvagga VI, 9.
'What is the matter, O Bhikkhus, with this Bhikkhu?'

'The venerable one has the disease of thick scabs; and by reason of the discharge thereof his robes stick to his body. So we are moistening those robes thoroughly with water, to loosen them (from his body).'

2. Then the Blessed One on that occasion, after having delivered a religious discourse, addressed the Bhikkhus, and said:

'I allow, O Bhikkhus, to whomsoever has the itch, or boils, or a discharge, or scabs, the use of an itch-cloth.'

1. Now Visâkhâ the mother of Migâra took a cloth for wiping the face, and went up to the place where the Blessed One was. And on arriving there, she saluted the Blessed One, and took her seat on one side, and, so sitting, Visâkhâ the mother of Migâra spake thus to the Blessed One:

'May the Blessed One be pleased to accept of me this cloth for wiping the face, that that may be to me for a long time for a blessing and for good.'

And the Blessed One accepted the cloth for wiping the face. And he taught, and incited, and aroused, and gladdened Visâkhâ the mother of Migâra with religious discourse. And she, so taught &c., rose from her seat, and saluted the Blessed One, and passing him on her right side, she departed thence.

Then the Blessed One on that occasion, after having delivered a religious discourse, addressed the Bhikkhus, and said:

'I allow you, O Bhikkhus, a cloth to wipe your faces with.'

19.

1. Now at that time Roga the Malla was a friend of the venerable Ānanda's. And a linen cloth belonging to Roga the Malla had been deposited in the keeping of the venerable Ānanda; and the venerable Ānanda had need of a linen cloth.

They told this matter to the Blessed One.

'I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to take a thing on trust (that it would be given to you) when it belongs to a person possessed of these five qualifications—he must be an intimate and familiar friend who has been spoken to (about it) and is alive, (and the Bhikkhu taking the thing) must know "He will remain pleased with me after I have taken it."

I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to take a thing on trust (that it would be given to you) when it belongs to a person possessed of these five qualifications.'

1. Now at that time the Bhikkhus were fully provided with the three robes, but they had need of water-strainers and of bags (to carry their bowls and other things in).

They told this matter to the Blessed One.

'I allow you, O Bhikkhus, pieces of cloth requisite (for those purposes).'

2. Then it occurred to the Bhikkhus: 'The things allowed by the Blessed One—the three robes, and the robes for the rainy season, and the mat, and the bed-covering, and the cloth to cover boils &c. with, and to wipe the face with, and required (for water-strainers and bags)—are all these things things which ought to be kept to ourselves, or things which ought to be handed over (from time to time by one Bhikkhu to another)?'

They told this matter to the Blessed One.

'I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to keep in hand the three robes, and not to assign them—to keep to yourselves the robes for the rainy season during the four months of the rains, but beyond that time to hand them over—to keep to yourselves the mats and the bed coverings, and not to hand them over—to keep to yourselves the coverings for the itch &c. while the disease lasts, but beyond that time to hand them over—to keep to yourselves the cloths to wipe the face with, and those required for water-strainers and bags, and not to hand them over.'

1. Now the Bhikkhus thought: 'What is the limit for the size of a rope up to which it ought to be handed over to another Bhikkhu?'

They told this matter to the Blessed One.

'I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, to hand over any robe which is in length eight inches according to the accepted inch.'

Now at that time a robe belonging to the venerable Mahā Kassapa, which had been made of cast-off pieces of cloth became heavy (by reason of the weight of the new pieces tacked on to it).

They told this matter to the Blessed One.

'I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to darn it roughly together with thread.'

It was uneven at the end.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to remove the unevenness.'

'I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to have two of the robes made of torn pieces of cloth, and one of cloth not torn.'

It was impossible to make two of the robes of torn pieces of cloth, and one of cloth not torn.

³ We probably ought to read patṭā, not pattā; but what is meant by the ribbons of the sāmghāṭi is very doubtful. Buddhaghosa says nothing.

Even this was impossible.

1. Now at that time a quantity of robes had come into the possession of a certain Bhikkhu, and he was desirous of giving those robes to his father and mother.

They told this matter to the Blessed One.

'Since they are his father and mother, what can we say, O Bhikkhus, though he give them to them. I allow you, O Bhikkhus, to give (robes, in such a case,) to your parents. And a gift of faith is not to be made of no avail. Whosoever shall make it of no avail, he is guilty of a dukkata².'

The Bhikkhus spake thus: 'How is it, friend, that you have become ragged and ill-clad?'

'I had deposited my robe in Andhavana, and entered the village in my waist cloth and nether garment. Thieves carried off that robe. Thence am I become ragged and ill-clad.'

They told this matter to the Blessed One.

'You are not, O Bhikkhus, to enter the village (clad only) in your waist cloth and nether garment. Whosoever shall do so is guilty of a dukkata\(^2\).'

2. Now at that time the venerable Ānanda through thoughtlessness went into the village for alms in his waist cloth and nether garment.

The Bhikkhus spake to him thus: 'Hath it not been laid down by the Blessed One that we are not to enter the village in our waist cloth and nether garment. Why have you, O friend, gone so into the village?'

'It is true, my friends, that it has been laid down by the Blessed One that we are not to enter the village so, but I did it out of thoughtlessness.'

They told this matter to the Blessed One.

3. 'There are five reasons, O Bhikkhus, for laying

These, O Bhikkhus, are the five reasons for laying aside the robe (Samghâti).

There are five reasons, O Bhikkhus, for laying aside the waist cloth and the nether garment. [The reasons are the same as in the last paragraph.] These, O Bhikkhus, are the five reasons, &c.

There are five reasons for laying aside the garment for use in the rainy season—when he is sick, when it is necessary to go beyond the boundary (?), when it is necessary to go to the other side of a river, when the vihâra has been securely fastened with a bolt, when the garment for use in the rainy

1 Here the word used is Samghâti.
2 On samketa, compare II, 8, r. Buddhaghosa merely says here, Vassika-samketan ti kattâro mâse. As samketa implies a mutual agreement, the ‘appointed time’ here probably means, not the time fixed by the Buddha, but the time agreed upon by the Samgha as that to which the rule laid down by the Buddha should apply. There may easily have arisen questions as to the exact day on which the four months should properly begin; and there were even differences of opinion as to the exact length of the period itself, some making it three, and some four months. See on these points Childers, under Vassa and Vassûpanâyikâ.

5 Buddhaghosa has nothing on this reason. It would seem that the garment in question might be left behind when the Bhikkhu had to go on a journey, if that journey would take him beyond the boundary of the technical ‘residence.’ On the use of the word, see the passages collected by H.Ó. in the Index to the Pâli Text (vol. ii. p. 349, s. v. sâma).

1. Now at that time a certain Bhikkhu kept Vassa\(^2\) alone. The people then gave him robes, saying, ‘We give them to the Samgha.’

Then that Bhikkhu thought: ‘It has been laid down by the Blessed One that the lowest number which can constitute a Samgha is four\(^3\). Now I am by myself, and these people have given the robes, saying, “We give them to the Samgha.” I had better take these robes, which are the property of a Samgha, to Sāvatthi.’

So that Bhikkhu did so, and told the matter to the Blessed One.

‘These robes are your own, O Bhikkhu, until the Kathina ceremony shall have been performed\(^4\).’

2. ‘Now in case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu keep Vassa alone, and the people of the place give should arrive, an equal share need not, if they do not wish it, be given to him.'

5. Now at that time two Theras, who were brothers, the venerable Isidâsa and the venerable Isibhatta, having spent the rainy season in Sâvatthi, went to take up their abode in a certain village. The people there, thinking, 'It is long since these Theras have arrived here,' made gifts of both food and robes.

The Bhikkhus who resided there asked the Theras, saying, 'These robes, Sirs, which are the property of the Samgha, have come to us through the Theras' arrival. Will the Theras accept a share?'

The Theras answered: 'As we understand the rule laid down by the Blessed One, these robes belong to you alone until the Kathina ceremony shall have been performed.'

6. Now at that time three Bhikkhus spent the rainy season at Râgagaha. The people there made gifts of robes, saying, 'We give them to the Samgha.' Then those Bhikkhus thought thus: 'It has been laid down by the Blessed One that the smallest Samgha shall consist of four persons, and we are only three, and these people have made gifts of robes, intending to give them to the Samgha. What now ought we to do with them?'

Now at that time there were staying in Pâtali-putta, at the kukkuṭārāma, a number of Therās—the venerable Nilavāsi, and the venerable Sānavaśi, and the venerable Gopaka, and the venerable Bhagu, and the venerable Phalika-sandāna. And those Bhikkhus went to Pātaliputta, and asked the Theras what they should do.

1. Now at that time the venerable Upananda of the Sakya race, having spent the rainy season at Sāvatthi, went to take up his abode in a certain village. The Bhikkhus in that place assembled together with the object of dividing the robes. They said to him:

'These robes, friend, which are the property of the Samgha, are about to be divided. Will you accept a share of them?'

'Yes, friends, I will,' said he; and taking his share, departed thence and took up his abode elsewhere.

[The same thing happened there, and] he departed thence and took up his abode elsewhere.

[The same thing happened there, and so] he returned to Sāvatthi with a great bundle of robes.

2. The Bhikkhus said to him: 'What a merito-

‘Where is my merit, friends?’ said he, and [told them all that had happened].

3. ‘How then, friend Upananda, have you spent the rainy season in one place, and accepted a share of robes in another place?’

‘Yes, friends, that is so.’

Those Bhikkhus who were moderate were indignant, murmured, and became annoyed, saying, ‘How can the venerable Upananda spend the rainy season in one place, and accept a share of robes in another place?’

They told the matter to the Blessed One.

‘Is it true, Upananda, as they say, that you have spent the rainy season in one place, and have accepted a share of robes in another place?’

‘It is true, Lord.’

The Blessed Buddha rebuked him, saying, ‘How can you, O foolish one, act so? This will not redound to the conversion of the unconverted, or to the increase of the converted!’

And after having rebuked him, and delivered a religious discourse, he addressed the Bhikkhus, saying, ‘Whosoever, O Bhikkhus, has spent the rainy season in one place, is not to accept a share of the robes in another place. Whosoever does so shall be guilty of a dukkata.’

4. Now at that time the venerable Upananda of the Sakya race spent the rainy season alone in two residences, thinking thus to obtain many robes. And the Bhikkhus thought: ‘How should his portion of the robes be assigned to Upananda of the Sakya race?'

They told the matter to the Blessed One.

'Give, O Bhikkhus, to that foolish one but one portion. In case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu spend the rainy season alone in two residences, thinking thus to obtain many robes, then, if he have spent exactly half the season in one place and half in another, a half portion of the robes due to him shall be given to him in one place, and a half in the other; but in whichever place of the two he have spent a greater part of the rainy season, thence shall the portions of robes due to him be given.'

26.

1. Now at that time a certain Bhikkhu had a disturbance in his bowels, and he lay fallen in his own evacuations. And the Blessed One on going round the sleeping-places accompanied by the venerable Ānanda came to that Bhikkhu's abode, and saw him so. And he went up to him, and asked him, 'What is the matter with you, O Bhikkhu?'

'I have a disturbance, Lord, in my bowels.'

'Then have you, O Bhikkhu, any one to wait upon you?'

'No, Lord.'

'Why do not the Bhikkhus wait upon you?'

'Because I am of no service, Lord, to the Bhikkhus.'

2. Then the Blessed One said to the venerable

Ânanda: 'Go, Ânanda, and fetch some water. Let us bathe this Bhikkhu.'

'Even so, Lord,' said the venerable Ânanda, in assent to the Blessed One, and fetched the water. And the Blessed One poured the water over that Bhikkhu; and the venerable Ânanda wiped him down. And the Blessed One taking hold of him at the head, and the venerable Ânanda at the feet, they lifted him up, and laid him down upon his bed.

3. Then the Blessed One, on that occasion and in that connection, convened a meeting of the Bhikkhu-samgha, and asked the Bhikkhus, 'Is there, O Bhikkhus, in such and such an apartment, a Bhikkhu who is sick?'

'There is, Lord.'

'Then what, O Bhikkhus, is the matter with that Bhikkhu?'

'He has a disturbance, Lord, in his bowels.'

'And is there any one, O Bhikkhus, to wait upon him?'

'No, Lord.'

'Why, then, do not the Bhikkhus wait upon him?'

'That Bhikkhu, Lord, is of no service to the Bhikkhus; therefore do they not wait upon him.'

'Ye, O Bhikkhus, have no mothers and no fathers who might wait upon you! If ye, O Bhikkhus, wait not one upon the other, who is there indeed who will wait upon you? Whosoever, O Bhikkhus, would wait upon me, he should wait upon the sick.

4. 'If he have an upagghâya, his upagghâya should wait upon him as long as his life lasts, and wait until he has recovered; and so if he have an âka-riya, a saddhi-vihârika, an antevâsika, a fellow saddhi-vihārika, or a fellow antevasika. And if he have neither of all these, then should the Samgha wait upon him; and whosoever does not do so, shall be guilty of a dukkata.

5. 'There are five qualities, O Bhikkhus, which, when a sick man has, he is difficult to wait upon—when he does not do what is good for him; when he does not know the limit (of the quantity of food) that is good for him; when he does not take his medicine; when he does not let a nurse who desires his good know what manner of disease he has, or when it is getting worse that that is so, or when it is getting better that that is so, or when it is stationary that that is so; and when he has become unable to bear bodily pains that are severe, sharp, grievous, disagreeable, unpleasant, and destructive to life. These are the five qualities, O Bhikkhus, which, when a sick man has, he is difficult to wait upon.

6. 'There are five qualities, O Bhikkhus, which, when a sick man has, he is easy to wait upon—when he does' (&c., the contrary of the last section).

7. 'There are five qualities, O Bhikkhus, which, when one who waits upon the sick has, he is incompetent to the task—when he is not capable of prescribing medicines; when he does not know what (diet) is good and what is not good for the patient, serving what is not good, and not serving what is good for him; when he waits upon the sick out of These are the five qualities, O Bhikkhus, which, when one who waits upon the sick has, he is incompetent to the task.

8. 'There are five qualities, O Bhikkhus, which, when one who waits upon the sick has, he is competent to the task—when he is capable' (&c., the contrary of the last section).

1. Now at that time two Bhikkhus were journeying along a high road in the country of Kosala. And they came to a certain residence, and there one of the two fell ill. Then the Bhikkhus there thought: 'Waiting upon the sick has been highly spoken of by the Blessed One. Let us then, friends, now wait upon this Bhikkhu.' And they waited upon him, and while he was being nursed by them, he completed his time. Then those Bhikkhus took that Bhikkhu's bowl and his robes, and went to Sāvatthi, and told the matter to the Blessed One.

2. 'On the death of a Bhikkhu, O Bhikkhus, the Sanga becomes the owner of his bowl and of his robes. But, now, those who wait upon the sick are of much service. I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that the bowl and the set of robes are to be assigned by the Samgha to them who have waited upon the sick. And thus, O Bhikkhus, are they to be assigned. The Bhikkhu who has waited upon the sick ought to go before the Samgha, and to say thus: "Such and such a Bhikkhu, Sirs, has completed his time. These are his set of robes and his bowl." Then a discreet and able Bhikkhu ought to lay the proposition before the Samgha, saying, "Let the Samgha hear me. Such and such a Bhikkhu has completed his time. These are his set of robes and his bowl. If it is convenient to the Samgha, let the Samgha assign this set of robes and this bowl to those who have waited upon the sick." This is the ratti.

[Here follow the usual formal words of a kamma-vākā.]

3. Now at that time a certain Sāmanera had completed his time.

They told this matter to the Blessed One.

[The decision and the kamma-vākā are the same as in § 2.]

4. Now at that time a certain Bhikkhu and a Sāmanera waited upon a sick Bhikkhu; and while he was being waited upon by them he completed his time. And the Bhikkhu who had waited upon the sick thought: 'How now ought the due portion of robes be given to the Sāmanera who waited upon the sick?'

They told this matter to the Blessed One.

'I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that you are to give an equal portion to a Sāmanera who waits upon the sick.'

5. Now at that time a certain Bhikkhu who was possessed of much property, and of a plentiful supply of a Bhikkhu's requisites, completed his time.

They told this matter to the Blessed One.

'On the death of a Bhikkhu, O Bhikkhus, the Samgha becomes the owner of his bowl and of his robes. But, now, those who wait upon the sick are of much service. I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, that the set of robes and the bowl are to be assigned by the Samgha to them who have waited upon the sick. And whatever little property and small supply of a Bhikkhu's requisites there may be, that is to be divided by the Samgha that are present there; but whatever large quantity of property and large supply of a Bhikkhu's requisites there may be, that is not to be given away¹ and not to be apportioned², but to belong to the Samgha of the four directions³, those who have come in, and those who have not⁴.'

1. Now at that time a certain Bhikkhu came naked up to the place where the Blessed One was, and said:

nakedness, Lord, is in many ways effectual to moderation and content, to the eradication of evil, to the suppressions of the passions, to graciousness, reverence, and zeal. It were well, Lord, if the Blessed One would enjoin nakedness upon the Bhikkhus.'

The Blessed Buddha rebuked him, saying, 'This would be improper, O foolish one, crooked, unsuitable, unworthy of a Samana, unbecoming, and it ought not to be done. How can you, O foolish one, adopt nakedness as the Titthiyas do? This will not conduce, O foolish one, to the conversion of the unconverted.'

And when he had rebuked him, and had delivered a religious discourse, he addressed the Bhikkhus, and said:

'You are not, O Bhikkhus, to adopt nakedness, as the Titthiyas do. Whosoever does so, shall be guilty of a grave offence (Thulaka-kaya).

And when he had rebuked him, and had delivered a religious discourse, he addressed the Bhikkhus, and said:

They told the matter to the Blessed One.

eunuchs; or that they had furtively attached themselves (to the Samgha); or that they had gone over to the Titthiyas; or that they were an animal; or that they had been guilty of matricide, or of parricide; or that they had murdered an Arahant; or that they had violated a Bhikkhunī; or that they had caused a schism in the Samgha; or that they had shed (a Buddha's) blood; or that they were hermaphrodites.¹

They told this matter to the Blessed One.

spent the rainy season, goes away before a gift of robes has fallen to the Samgha—then they are nevertheless to be allotted to him if there be any person present proper to receive them on his behaving spent the rainy season, and before a gift of robes has fallen to the Samgha, leaves the Order; or dies, or acknowledges that he has become a Sāmanera, or that he has abandoned the precepts, or lastly that he has become guilty of an extreme offence,—then the Samgha becomes the owner (of the portion of robes that would have fallen to him).

II, 36; IV, 14.
Moreover in case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu, after having spent the rainy season, and before a gift of robes has fallen to the Samgha, acknowledges that he has become mad, or unhinged in his mind, or in bodily pain, or that he has been suspended for refusal to acknowledge an offence he had committed, or to atone for such an offence, or to renounce a false doctrine—then (his portion of robes is nevertheless) to be allotted to him if there be any person present proper to receive them on his behalf.

Moreover in case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu, after having spent the rainy season, and before a gift of robes has fallen to the Samgha, acknowledges that he is a eunuch, or that he had furtively attached himself to the Samgha, or that he had gone over to the Titthiyas, or that he is an animal, or that he had been guilty of matricide, or of parricide, or that he had murdered an Arahant, or that he had violated a Bhikkhuni, or that he had raised a schism in the Samgha, or that he had shed a Buddha’s blood, or that he is a hermaphrodite—then the Samgha becomes the owner (of the portion of robes that would have fallen to him).

3. ‘[The same rules as in § 2, if he had gone away, &c., after the gift of robes had been made to the Samgha, but before the robes had been divided among the individual members of the Samgha belonging to the place where he had spent the rainy season.]

4. ‘Moreover in case, O Bhikkhus, after the Bhikkhus have spent the rainy season, divisions arise among the Samgha before any robes have fallen to them, and the people there give the water (of

'I know nothing, friend, about that robe.'

Then the venerable Revata said to that Bhikkhu: 'I sent a robe, my friend, in your charge to the Thera. Where is that robe?'

'I took the robe myself, Lord, in trust upon you.'

They told the matter to the Blessed One.

'In case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu send a robe in charge of a Bhikkhu, saying, "Give this robe to such and such a Bhikkhu;" and he, whilst on the way, takes it himself in trust on the one who sends it—then it is rightly taken. 32.

1. There are, O Bhikkhus, these eight grounds for the getting of a gift of robes—when he gives it to the boundary, when he gives it to (a Samgha which is) under agreement (with other Samghas), when he gives it on a declaration of alms, when he gives it to the Samgha, when he gives it to both the Samghas, when he gives it to the Samgha which has spent the rainy season (at the place), when he gives it to a specified number, when he gives it to a single Bhikkhu.

1 The reason of all this is, that if the sender (A) says to the messenger (B), 'Give this robe to the sendee (C),' the property in the robe does not pass; if A says to B, 'I give this robe to C,' it does pass.

2 Mâtikâ; used in the same sense here as at VII, 1, 7.

3 That is, of monks and nuns—the Bhikkhu-samgha and the Bhikkhunî-samgha.
When he gives it to the boundary, it is to be divided among all those Bhikkhus who have come within the boundary.¹

When he gives it to a Samgha which is under agreement, there are a number of residences which hold in common whatever they get, and what is given in one residence is given in all.

When he gives it on a declaration of alms (means when the givers say), "We give it at the place where constant supply of alms is kept up for the Samgha."²

When he gives it to the Samgha, it is to be divided among the Samgha there present.

When he gives it to both the Samghas, though there be many Bhikkhus and only one Bhikkhun, an equal half is to be given (to each of the two Samghas), and though there be many Bhikkhunts and only one Bhikkhu, an equal half is to be given (to each of the two Samghas).

When he gives it to the Samgha which has spent the rainy season, it is to be divided among as many Bhikkhus as have spent the rainy season at that particular residence.

When he gives it to a specified number, it is the number present at the giving of congey, or rice, or hard food, or robes, or bedding, or medicine\(^1\).

Here ends the eighth Khandhaka, the Kīvara-khandhaka.

\(^1\) That is, he invites a number of Bhikkhus to partake of yāgu, and when the yāgu is served he says, 'I give robes to those who have partaken of the yāgu,' and so on in all the other cases except that of robes. NINTH KHANDHAKA.

(VA\LIDITY AND INVALIDITY OF FORMAL ACTS OF THE SAMGHA.)

1. At that time the blessed Buddha dwelt at Kampâ, on the brink of the lotus-pond Gaggarâ. At that time there was in the country of Kâsi (a village) called Vâsabha-gâma. There a Bhikkhu called Kassapa-gotta had his residence, who was bound (to that place) by the string (of the religious duties which he had to perform there)\(^1\), and who exerted himself to the end that clever Bhikkhus from a distance might come to that place, and the clever Bhikkhus therein might live at ease, and that (religious life at) that residence might progress, advance, and reach a high state.

Now at that time a number of Bhikkhus, making their pilgrimage in the country of Kâsi, came to Vâsabha-gâma. And the Bhikkhu Kassapa-gotta saw those Bhikkhus coming from afar; when he saw them, he prepared seats for them, brought water for the washing of their feet, a foot-stool, and a towel\(^2\). Then he went forth to meet them, took their bowls and their robes, offered them (water) to drink, and provided a bath for them, and provided also rice-milk and food hard and soft.

\(^1\) Tanti-baddha. Buddhaghosa says, Tanti-baddho 'ti tasmam âvâse kâtabbatâ-tanti-pasîbaddho.

\(^2\) See our note at I, 6, \(\text{fr}\).
Now those stranger Bhikkhus thought: 'The resident Bhikkhu here, O friends, is indeed good-natured; he provides a bath for us and provides also rice-milk, and food, hard and soft. What if we were to stay here, friends, at Vâsabha-gâma.' Thus those stranger Bhikkhus stayed there at Vâsabha-gâma.

2. Now the Bhikkhu Kassapa-gotta thought: 'These stranger Bhikkhus are rested now from their travel-weariness; they did not know their way here before, but now they know their way. It is troublesome indeed to be busy all one's life for people not related to one's self, and being asked is disagreeable to men. What if I were to provide no longer rice-milk, and food, hard and soft (for those Bhikkhus).' Thus he did not provide any more (for them) rice-milk, and food, hard and soft.

Then those stranger Bhikkhus thought: 'Formerly, friends, this resident Bhikkhu used to provide baths for us, and to provide also rice-milk, and food, hard and soft. But now he does not provide any more rice-milk, and food, hard and soft. This resident Bhikkhu, friends, is in anger with us now. Well, friends, let us pronounce expulsion against this resident Bhikkhu.'

3. Then those stranger Bhikkhus assembled and said to the Bhikkhu Kassapa-gotta: 'Formerly, friend, you used to provide baths for us and to provide also rice-milk, and food, hard and soft. But now you do not provide any more rice-milk, and food, hard and soft. You have committed an offence, friend; do you see that offence

1 As he was obliged to ask the people of Vâsabha-gâma for what the stranger Bhikkhus wanted.
'There is no offence, friends, for me to see.'

Then those stranger Bhikkhus pronounced expulsion against the Bhikkhu Kassapa-gotta for his refusal to see that (pretended) offence. Then the Bhikkhu Kassapa-gotta thought: 'I do not know indeed whether this is an offence or not, and whether I have made myself guilty of an offence or not, and whether I have been expelled or not, and whether that sentence is lawful or unlawful, objectionable or unobjectionable, valid or invalid. What if I were to go to Kampâ and to ask the Blessed One about this matter?'

4. And the Bhikkhu Kassapa-gotta put his resting-place in order, took up his alms-bowl and his robe, and went forth to Kampâ; and in due course he came to Kampâ and to the place where the Blessed One was. Having approached him and respectfully saluted the Blessed One, he sat down near him.

Now it is the custom of the blessed Buddhas to exchange greeting with incoming Bhikkhus. And the Blessed One said to the Bhikkhu Kassapa-gotta: 'Is it all well with you, O Bhikkhu? Do you find your living? Have you made your journey without too much fatigue? And from what place do you come, O Bhikkhu?'

"It is all well, Lord; I find my living, Lord; I have made the journey, Lord, without too much fatigue.

5 'There is in the country of Kâsi, Lord, (a village) called Vâsabha-gâma. There I had my residence, Lord, (&c.¹, down to:) Then those stranger Bhikkhus, Lord, pronounced against me expulsion for my refusal to see that offence. Then I thought, Lord: "I do not know indeed whether this is an offence or not, and whether I have made myself guilty of an offence or not, and whether I have been expelled or not, and whether that sentence is lawful or unlawful, objectionable or unobjectionable, valid or invalid. What if I were to go to Kampâ and to ask the Blessed One about this matter." Thus I have come here, Lord.'

6. (Buddha replied): 'This is no offence, O Bhikkhu; it is not an offence. You are innocent; you are not guilty of an offence. You are not expelled, and have not been expelled; the sentence by which you have been expelled is unlawful, objectionable, and invalid. Go, O Bhikkhu, and settle yourself again at Vâsabha-gâma.'

The Bhikkhu Kassapa-gotta expressed his assent to the Blessed One (by saying), 'Yes, Lord,' rose from his seat, and having respectfully saluted the Blessed One and walked round him with his right side towards him, he went on his way to Vâsabha-gâma.

7. Now those stranger Bhikkhuâs (at Vâsabha-gâma) were overcome by scruples and remorse: 'It is all loss to us indeed, it is no gain to us; we will fare ill indeed, we will not fare well, in this that we have expelled that pure, guiltless Bhikkhu without any cause and reason. Well, friends, let us go to Kampâ and let us confess there in the Blessed One's presence our sin in its sinfulness.'
And those stranger Bhikkhus put their resting-places in order, took up their alms-bowls and their robes, and went forth to Kampâ, and in due course they came to Kampâ and to the place where the Blessed One was. Having approached him and respectfully saluted the Blessed One, they sat down near him. Now it is the custom of the blessed Buddhas (§c.†, down to:) 'It is all well, Lord; we find our living, Lord; we have made the journey, Lord, without too much fatigue. There is in the country of Kâsi, Lord, (a village) called Vâsabhagâma; from that place we come, Lord.'

8. 'So are you, O Bhikkhus, those who have expelled the resident Bhikkhu there?'

'Ve are, Lord.'

'For what cause, O Bhikkhus, and for what reason?'

'Without any cause and reason, Lord.'

Then the Blessed One rebuked those Bhikkhus: 'That is improper, O Bhikkhus, it is unbecoming, indecent, unworthy of Samanâs, unallowable, and to be avoided. How can you, O fools, expel a pure and guiltless Bhikkhu, without any cause and reason? This will not do, O Bhikkhus, for converting the unconverted.' Having thus rebuked them and delivered a religious discourse, he thus addressed the Bhikkhus: 'Let no one, O Bhikkhus, expel a pure and guiltless Bhikkhu without cause and reason. He who does, commits a dukkata offence.'

shoulder, prostrated themselves, inclining their heads to the feet of the Blessed One, and said to the Blessed One: 'Transgression, O Lord, has overcome us like the foolish, like the erring, like the unhappy, in this that we have expelled a pure, guiltless Bhikkhu without any cause and reason. May, O Lord, the Blessed One accept (the confession of) our sin in its sinfulness, and we will refrain from it in future.'

'Truly, O Bhikkhus, transgression has overcome you like the foolish, like the erring, like the unhappy, in that you have expelled a pure, guiltless Bhikkhu without any cause and reason. But as you see, O Bhikkhus, your sin in its sinfulness, and duly make amends for it, we accept it from you. For this, O Bhikkhus, is called progress in the discipline of the noble one, if one sees his sin in its sinfulness, and duly makes amends for it, and refrains from it in future.'

1. At that time the Bhikkhus of Kampâ performed official acts in the following ways: they performed unlawful acts before an incomplete congregation; they performed unlawful acts before a complete congregation; they performed lawful acts before an incomplete congregation; they performed seemingly lawful acts before an incomplete congregation; they performed seemingly lawful acts before a complete congregation; a single Bhikkhu pronounced expulsion against a single one; a single Bhikkhu pronounced expulsion against two; a single Bhikkhu pronounced expulsion against a number of Bhikkhus; a single Bhikkhu pronounced expulsion against a Samgha; two Bhikkhus pronounced expulsion against a single one .... against two .... against a number of Bhikkhus .... against a Samgha; a number of Bhikkhus pronounced expulsion against a single one .... against two .... against another number .... against a Samgha; a Samgha pronounced expulsion against another Samgha.

2. Those Bhikkhus who were moderate, were annoyed, murmured, and became angry: 'How can the Bhikkhus of Kampâ perform official acts in the following ways: perform unlawful acts before an incomplete congregation (&c., down to :) how can a Samgha pronounce expulsion against another Samgha?'

These Bhikkhus told this thing to the Blessed One. 'Is it true, as they say, O Bhikkhus, that the Bhikkhus of Kampâ perform official acts in the following ways, &c.?'

'It is true, Lord.'

Then the blessed Buddha rebuked those Bhikkhus: 'It is improper, O Bhikkhus, what these foolish persons are doing; it is unbecoming, indecent, unworthy of Samanas, unallowable, and to be avoided. How can these foolish persons, O Bhikkhus, perform official acts in the following ways, &c. This will not do, O Bhikkhus, for converting the unconverted.' Having thus rebuked them and delivered a religious discourse, he thus addressed the Bhikkhus:

"Therefore, O Bhikkhus, you ought to train yourselves thus: "Lawful acts which are performed by complete congregations—such acts will we perform."

1. At that time the Khabbaggiya Bhikkhus performed official acts in the following ways: they performed unlawful acts before an incomplete congregation. (&c., as in chap. 2, § 1, down to:) they performed seemingly lawful acts before a complete congregation; they performed acts without a natti and with the proclamation (of the kammavākā); they performed acts without a proclamation (of the kammavākā) and with the natti; they performed acts without a natti and without a proclamation (of the kammavākā); they performed acts contrary to the Dhamma; they performed acts contrary to the Vinaya; they performed acts contrary to the doctrine of the Teacher; and they performed acts against which (the Bhikkhus present) protested, which were unlawful, objectionable, and invalid.

Those Bhikkhus who were moderate, were annoyed,

'Is it true, as they say, O Bhikkhus, that the Khabbaggiya Bhikkhus, &c.?'

'It is true, Lord, &c.'

Having thus rebuked them and delivered a religious discourse, he thus addressed the Bhikkhus:

2. 'If an official act, O Bhikkhus, is performed unlawfully by an incomplete congregation, it is no real act and ought not to be performed (&c.¹, down to:). If an official act, O Bhikkhus, is performed against which (the Bhikkhus present) protest, which is unlawful, objectionable, and invalid, this is no real act and ought not to be performed.

'There are, O Bhikkhus, six kinds of official acts (which a Samgha can perform): an unlawful act, an act performed by an incomplete congregation, an act performed by a complete congregation, a seemingly lawful act performed by an incomplete congregation, a seemingly lawful act performed by a complete congregation, a lawful act performed by a complete congregation.

'And which, O Bhikkhus, is an unlawful act? If one performs, O Bhikkhus, a ūhattidutiya act² with one ūatti, and does not proclaim a kammavākā, such an act is unlawful. If one performs, O Bhikkhus, a ūhattidutiya act with two ūattis and does not proclaim a kammavākā ... with one kammakammavākās and does not propose a āatti, such an act is unlawful.

4. ‘If one performs, O Bhikkhus, a āatti/katuttha act with one āatti and does not proclaim a kammavākā, such an act is unlawful. If one performs, O Bhikkhus, a āatti/katuttha act with two (. . . three, . . . four) āattis and does not proclaim a kammavākā, such an act is unlawful. If one performs, O Bhikkhus, a āatti/katuttha act with one kammavākā (. . . with two, . . . three, . . . four kammavākās) and does not propose a āatti, such an act is unlawful. Such acts, O Bhikkhus, are called unlawful acts.

5. ‘And which, O Bhikkhus, is an act of an incomplete congregation?

‘If, O Bhikkhus, at a āattidutiya act not all Bhikkhus, as many as are entitled to vote, are present, if the khanda of those who have to declare their khanda has not been conveyed (to the assembly), and if the Bhikkhus present protest, such an act is performed by an incomplete congregation.

‘If, O Bhikkhus, at a āattidutiya act as many Bhikkhus as are entitled to vote, are present, but if the khanda of those who have to declare their khanda has not been conveyed (to the assembly), and if the Bhikkhus present protest, such an act is performed by an incomplete congregation.

‘If, O Bhikkhus, at a āattidutiya act as many Bhikkhus as are entitled to vote, are present, if the khanda of those who have to declare their khanda has been conveyed, but if the Bhikkhus present protest, such an act is performed by an incomplete congregation.

If, O Bhikkhus, at a ṣattikātutthta act, &c.¹

Such acts, O Bhikkhus, are called acts performed by incomplete congregations.

6. 'And which, O Bhikkhus, is an act of a complete congregation?

'If, O Bhikkhus, at a ṣattidutiya act as many Bhikkhus as are entitled to vote, are present, if the khanda of those who have to declare their khanda has been conveyed (to the assembly), and if the Bhikkhus present do not protest, such an act is performed by a complete congregation.

'If, O Bhikkhus, at a ṣattikātutthta act (&c., as in last section).

'Such acts, O Bhikkhus, are called acts performed by complete congregations.

7. 'And which, O Bhikkhus, is a seemingly lawful act performed by an incomplete congregation?

'If, O Bhikkhus, at a ṣattidutiya act the kammavākā is proclaimed first and the ṣatti is proposed afterwards, if not all Bhikkhus, as many as are entitled to vote, are present, &c.²

8. 'And which, O Bhikkhus, is a seemingly lawful act performed by a complete congregation?

³ This paragraph stands precisely in the same relation to § 6 in which the preceding one stands to § 5.
9. 'And which, O Bhikkhus, is a lawful act performed by a complete congregation?

'If, O Bhikkhus, at a ñattidutiya act the ñatti is proposed first and afterwards the act is performed with one kammavākā, if as many Bhikkhus as are entitled to vote, are present, if the khanda of those who have to declare their khanda has been conveyed (to the assembly), and if the Bhikkhus present do not protest, such an act is lawful and performed by a complete congregation.

'If, O Bhikkhus, at a ñatti katuttha act the ñatti is proposed first and afterwards the act is performed with three kammavākās, if as many Bhikkhus as are entitled to vote, &c., such an act is lawful and performed by a complete congregation.'

7. 'Of some persons, O Bhikkhus, the protest raised in the assembly is effectual, of some persons it is ineffectual.

'And which are the persons, O Bhikkhus, whose protest raised in the assembly is ineffectual?

'The protest, O Bhikkhus, raised in the assembly by a Bhikkhunî is ineffectual. The protest, O Bhikkhus, raised in the assembly by a sikkhamânâ (and, down to:) by a person against whom the Samgha institutes a proceeding, is ineffectual. These are the persons, O Bhikkhus, whose protest raised in the assembly is ineffectual.

These categories are the following: 'a madman,' 'a person whose mind is unhinged,' 'a person who suffers (bodily) pain.' See II, 22, 3, &c.

If expulsion, O Bhikkhus, had not been pronounced (before) against a person, and the Sāmaṇgha pronounces expulsion against him, there are some against whom such expulsion has been pronounced duly, and others against whom it has been pronounced unduly.

'And which is a person, O Bhikkhus, against whom, if expulsion had not been pronounced before, and the Sāmaṇgha pronounces expulsion against him, expulsion has been pronounced unduly? In case, O Bhikkhus, there be a pure, guiltless Bhikkhu,—if the Sāmaṇgha pronounces expulsion against him, expulsion has been pronounced unduly. This, O Bhikkhus, is called a person against whom, if expulsion had not been pronounced before, and the Sāmaṇgha pronounces expulsion against him, expulsion has been pronounced unduly.

'And which is a person, O Bhikkhus, against whom, &c., expulsion has been pronounced duly? In case, O Bhikkhus, there be an ignorant, unlearned Bhikkhu, a constant offender, who is unable to discern what is an offence ², who lives in lay society, unduly

If restoration, O Bhikkhus, had not been granted before to a person, and the Samgha grants restoration to him, there are some to whom such restoration will have been granted duly, and others to whom it will have been unduly granted.

'And which is a person, O Bhikkhus, to whom, &c., restoration has been granted unduly? A eunuch, O Bhikkhus, to whom restoration had not been granted before, and whom the Samgha restores, has been restored unduly. A person who has furtively attached himself (to the Samgha), &c., to whom restoration had not been granted before, and whom the Samgha restores, has been restored unduly.

¹ The ukkhepaniyakamma Ṙattiya Ṙappanissagge (expulsion for a Bhikkhu's refusal to atone for an offence) is spoken of here exactly in the same terms as those in which the ukkhepaniyakamma Ṙattiya adassane (expulsion for a Bhikkhu's refusal to see an offence) is spoken of in the preceding clause. The brethren say to the pretended offender, 'You have committed an offence, friend; atone for that offence'—which he refuses to do.

As in § 2, the first and second of the three cases given in § 1 are combined, so follow now combinations of the first and third, the second and third, and of the first, second, and third cases respectively.

* Here follow again the cases of the ukkhepaniyakamma āpattiyā appaṭinissagge and pāpiyā diṭṭiyā appaṭinissagge, and the combinations of the three cases as above.

TENTH KhANDHAKA.

(SCHISMS AMONG THE SAMGHA.)

1.

1. At that time the blessed Buddha dwelt at Kosambī in the Ghositârâma.

At that time a certain Bhikkhu had committed an offence which he considered as an offence, while the other Bhikkhus considered that offence as no offence. Afterwards he began to consider that offence as no offence, and the other Bhikkhus began to consider that offence as an offence.

Now those Bhikkhus said to that Bhikkhu: 'You have committed an offence, friend; do you see that offence?'

(He replied): 'There is no offence, friends, which I should see.'

Then those Bhikkhus, bringing about unanimity (of the fraternity for their sentence) pronounced expulsion against that Bhikkhu for his refusal to see that offence.

2. Now that Bhikkhu was erudite; he had studied the Âgamas; he knew the Dhamma, the Vinaya, the Mâtikâ\(^1\); he was wise, learned, intelligent, modest, conscientious, anxious for training.

And that Bhikkhu went to his companions and friends among the Bhikkhus, and said to them: 'This is no offence, friends; this is not an offence.

\(^1\) See Kullavagga I, i1, i, with our note.
I am offenceless; I am not guilty of an offence; I am unexpelled and have not been expelled; the sentence by which I have been expelled is unlawful, objectionable, and invalid. May the venerable ones be my partisans according to Dhamma and Vinaya.'

Thus that Bhikkhu got his companions and friends among the Bhikkhus on his side.

And he sent also a messenger to his companions and friends among the Bhikkhus of the whole country (with the following message): 'This is no offence, friends; this is not an offence (&c., down to:). May the venerable ones be my partisans according to Dhamma and Vinaya.'

Thus that Bhikkhu got also his companions and friends among the Bhikkhus of the whole country on his side.

3. Now those Bhikkhus who were partisans of the expelled Bhikkhu, went to the place where those who had expelled him, were. Having approached them, they said to the Bhikkhus who had expelled him: 'This is no offence, friends; this is not an offence. This Bhikkhu is offenceless; this Bhikkhu is not guilty of an offence. This Bhikkhu is unexpelled; this Bhikkhu has not been expelled. The sentence by which he has been expelled is unlawful, objectionable, and invalid.'

When they had spoken thus, the Bhikkhus who had expelled that Bhikkhu, said to the partisans of the expelled one: 'This is an offence, friends; this is not no offence. This Bhikkhu is an offender; this Bhikkhu is not offenceless. This Bhikkhu is expelled; this Bhikkhu is not unexpelled. The sentence by which he has been expelled is lawful, unobjectionable, and valid. Do not stand, O venerable ones, on the side of this expelled Bhikkhu; do not follow him.'

But the partisans of the expelled Bhikkhu, though they were spoken to thus by the Bhikkhus who had expelled him, persevered nevertheless on the side of that expelled Bhikkhu and followed him.

4. And a certain Bhikkhu went to the place where the Blessed One was. Having approached him and respectfully saluted the Blessed One, he sat down near him. Sitting near him that Bhikkhu said to the Blessed One: 'A certain Bhikkhu, Lord, had committed an offence which he considered as an offence (&c., as in §§ 1–3, down to :). But the partisans, Lord, of the expelled Bhikkhu, though they were spoken to thus by the Bhikkhus who had expelled him, persevered nevertheless on the side of that expelled Bhikkhu and followed him.'

5. Then the Blessed One (exclaimed): 'The Bhikkhu Samgha is divided! The Bhikkhu Samgha is divided!'—and he rose from his seat and went to the place where the Bhikkhus were who had pronounced that sentence of expulsion. Having approached them, he sat down on the seat they had prepared. Sitting there the Blessed One said to the Bhikkhus who had pronounced expulsion against that Bhikkhu: 'Do not think, O Bhikkhus, that you are to pronounce expulsion against a Bhikkhu whatever be the facts of the case, saying, "It occurs to us to do so; it occurs to us to do so."

6. 'In case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu has committed an offence which he considers as no offence, while the other Bhikkhus consider it as an offence—if, O Bhikkhus, those Bhikkhus know with regard to that Bhikkhu: "This venerable brother is erudite; he has studied the Āgamas; he knows the Dhamma, the Vinaya, the Mātikā; he is wise, learned, intelligent, modest, conscientious, anxious for training. Should we pronounce expulsion against this Bhikkhu for his refusal to see that offence, and should we not hold Uposatha with that Bhikkhu, but hold Uposatha without that Bhikkhu, this matter will cause among the Saṅgha altercations, contentions, discord, quarrels, divisions among the Saṅgha, disunion among the Saṅgha, separations among the Saṅgha, schisms among the Saṅgha,"—in that case, O Bhikkhus, let those Bhikkhus, standing in awe of causing divisions, not pronounce expulsion against that Bhikkhu for his refusal to see his offence.

7. 'In case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu has committed (&c., as above; down to:). "Should we pronounce expulsion against this Bhikkhu for his refusal to see that offence, and should we not hold Pavâranâ with that Bhikkhu, but hold Pavâranâ without that Bhikkhu, and not perform official acts with that Bhikkhu, but perform official acts without that Bhikkhu, and not sit down on our seats with that Bhikkhu, but sit down on our seats without that Bhikkhu, and not sit down to drink rice-milk with that Bhikkhu, but sit down to drink rice-milk without that Bhikkhu, and not sit down in the dining-hall with that Bhikkhu, but sit down in the dining-hall without that Bhikkhu, and not dwell under one roof with that Bhikkhu, but dwell under one roof without that Bhikkhu, and not perform with that Bhikkhu, according to seniority, the duties of respectfully saluting each other, rising from our seats, raising the joined hands before each other, and all proper duties, but perform without that Bhikkhu, according to seniority, the duties, &c.,—this matter will cause among the Samgha (&c., as in § 6, down to the end).

8. And the Blessed One, having spoken thus to the Bhikkhus who had pronounced that sentence of expulsion, rose from his seat, and went to the place where the partisans of the expelled Bhikkhu were. Having approached them, he sat down on the seat they had prepared. Sitting there the Blessed One said to the partisans of the expelled Bhikkhu: 'Do not think, O Bhikkhus, if you have committed an offence, that you need not atone for that offence, (saying to yourselves): "We are without offence." In case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu has committed an offence which he considers as no offence, while the other Bhikkhus consider it as an offence—if, O Bhikkhus, that Bhikkhu knows with regard to those Bhikkhus: "These venerable brethren are erudite (&c., down to : ) anxious for training. It is impossible that they should, on my account, or on account of anybody else, abandon themselves to walking in longing, in malice, in delusion, in fear. Should these Bhikkhus pronounce expulsion against me for my refusal to see that offence, and should they not hold Uposatha with me, but hold Uposatha without me, and should they not hold Pavâranã with me, but hold Pavâranã without me (&c., as in § 7), this matter will cause, &c., schisms among the Samgha,"—in that case, O Bhikkhus, let that Bhikkhu, standing in awe of causing divisions, acknowledge that offence on the authority of his brethren.' And the Blessed One, having spoken thus to the partisans of the expelled Bhikkhu, rose from his seat and went away.

9. At that time the Bhikkhus who were partisans of that expelled Bhikkhu, held Upasatha and performed official acts at that same place, within the boundary. On the other hand the Bhikkhus who had pronounced expulsion against him, went outside the boundary and there held Upasatha, and performed official acts.

Now a certain Bhikkhu of those who had expelled that Bhikkhu, went to the place where the Blessed One was; having approached him and having respectfully saluted the Blessed One, he sat down near him. Sitting near him that Bhikkhu said to the Blessed One: 'Lord, those Bhikkhus who are partisans of that expelled Bhikkhu, hold Upasatha, and perform official acts, at that same place, within the boundary. On the other hand, we who have pronounced expulsion against him, have gone outside the boundary and there hold Upasatha and perform official acts.'

(Buddha replied): 'If those Bhikkhus, O Bhikkhu, who are partisans of that expelled Bhikkhu, will hold Upasatha, and perform official acts, at that same place, within the boundary, according to the rules laid down by me about ṇatti and anusāvanā, these official acts which they perform will be lawful, unobjectionable, and valid. And if you, O Bhikkhus, who have expelled that Bhikkhu, will hold Upasatha, and perform official acts, at that same place, within the boundary (&c., down to:) and valid.

10. 'And why is this so? These Bhikkhus belong to another communion than that to which you belong, and you belong to another communion than that to which they belong.

'There are two cases, O Bhikkhu, in which a Bhikkhu (though he dwell within the same boundary) is considered as belonging to another communion:—either he himself makes himself belong to another communion¹, or the Samgha in a complete congregation pronounces expulsion against him for his refusal to see (an offence committed by himself), or to atone (for such an offence), or to renounce (a false doctrine). These, O Bhikkhu, are the two cases in which a Bhikkhu is considered as belonging to another communion.

'There are two cases, O Bhikkhu, in which a Bhikkhu (belonging to either of the categories mentioned) reacquires the belonging to the same communion (with his brethren within the same boundary): either he himself makes himself belong (again) to that same communion², or the Samgha, having expelled him for his refusal to see (an offence), or to atone (for an offence), or to renounce (a false doctrine), restores him in a complete congregation. These, O Bhikkhu, are the two cases in which a Bhikkhu reacquires the belonging to the same communion.

improperly towards each other in gesture and word, and came to blows.

The people were annoyed, murmured, and became angry (saying), 'How can these Sakyaputtiya Samanas, when altercations, contentions, and quarrels have arisen among them, &c., and come to blows?' Some Bhikkhus heard those people that were annoyed, murmured, and had become angry. The moderate Bhikkhus were annoyed, murmured, and became angry (saying), 'How can the Bhikkhus, when altercations, &c.?'

These Bhikkhus told the thing to the Blessed One.

'Is it true, O Bhikkhus, &c.?'

'It is true, Lord.'

Having rebuked them, and delivered a religious discourse, he thus addressed the Bhikkhus: 'When divisions have arisen among the Samgha, O Bhikkhus, and when unlawful conduct and unfriendliness prevail among the Bhikkhus, then you ought to sit down on your seats (separately, saying to yourselves): “At least we will not behave improperly towards each other in gesture or word, and will not come to blows.” When divisions have arisen among the Samgha, O Bhikkhus, and when lawful conduct and friendliness prevail among the Bhikkhus, then you may sit down (together), one by one from each side.'

2. At that time the Bhikkhus, among whom altercations, contentions, and quarrels had arisen, wounded each other with sharp words in the assemblies, and were unable to settle that question.

1 Åsanantarikāya. Buddhaghosa: 'Ekekam āsanam antaram katvā nisditabbam.'
Then a certain Bhikkhu went to the place where the Blessed One was; having approached him and respectfully saluted him, he stationed himself near him. Standing near him, that Bhikkhu said to the Blessed One: 'Lord, the Bhikkhus among whom altercations, contentions, and quarrels have arisen, wound each other with sharp words in the assemblies, and are unable to settle that question. Pray, Lord, may the Blessed One go to those Bhikkhus out of compassion towards them.'

And the Blessed One expressed his consent by remaining silent.

Then the Blessed One went to the place where those Bhikkhus were; having approached them, he sat down on the seat they had prepared. Sitting there the Blessed One thus addressed those Bhikkhus: 'Enough, O Bhikkhus, no altercations, no contentions, no disunion, no quarrel!'

When he had spoken thus, a certain Bhikkhu, an adherer of the party who were wrong, said to the Blessed One: 'Lord, may the Blessed One, the king of Truth, be patient! Lord, may the Blessed One quietly enjoy the bliss he has obtained already in this life! The responsibility for these altercations and contentions, for this disunion and quarrel will rest with us alone.'

And for the second time the Blessed One thus addressed those Bhikkhus: 'Enough, O Bhikkhus, &c.' And for the second time that Bhikkhu who adhered to the party who were wrong, said to the Blessed One: 'Lord, may the Blessed One, &c.' Then the Blessed One spoke thus to those Bhikkhus:

3. 'In former times, O Bhikkhus, there lived at Benares a king of Kāsi, Brahmadatta by name, wealthy, rich in treasures, rich in revenues, rich in troops and vehicles, the lord over a great realm, with full treasuries and storehouses. And there was also a king of Kosala, Dīghiti by name, not wealthy, poor in treasures, poor in revenues, poor in troops and vehicles, the lord over a small realm, with empty treasuries and storehouses.

'And king Brahmadatta, O Bhikkhus, of Kāsi, having set the four hosts of his army in array, went out to war with king Dīghiti of Kosala.

'And king Dīghiti of Kosala heard, O Bhikkhus: “King Brahmadatta of Kāsi, having set the four hosts of his army in array, has gone out to war with me.” Then king Dīghiti of Kosala thought, O Bhikkhus: “King Brahmadatta of Kāsi is wealthy, rich in treasures, &c.; and I am not wealthy, poor in treasures, &c. I am not able to stand against even one attack of king Brahmadatta of Kāsi. What if I were to flee from the town beforehand.”

'And king Dīghiti of Kosala, O Bhikkhus, took his queen-consort with him and fled from the town beforehand.

'Then king Brahmadatta of Kāsi, O Bhikkhus, conquered the troops and vehicles, the realm, the treasuries and storehouses of king Dīghiti of Kosala, and took possession of them.

'And king Dīghiti of Kosala, O Bhikkhus, together with his consort, went forth to Benares. Wandering from place to place he came to Benares, and there at Benares, O Bhikkhus, king Dīghiti of Kosala dwelt, together with his consort, at a certain place near the town, in a potter's dwelling, in disguise, in the guise of a wandering ascetic.
4. 'And ere long, O Bhikkhus, the queen-consort of king Dīghiti of Kosala became pregnant. And there came upon her the longing of pregnant women; and she desired, at sunrise, to see an army, with its four hosts set in array, clad in armour, standing on auspicious ground, and to drink the water in which the swords were washed.

'And the queen-consort, O Bhikkhus, of king Dīghiti of Kosala said to king Dīghiti of Kosala: "I am pregnant, Lord, and the longing of pregnancy has come upon me; and I desire, at sunrise, &c."'

'(The king replied): "Whence shall come, O queen, to people in distress like us, an army with four hosts set in array, clad in armour, standing on auspicious ground, and the water in which the swords are washed?"

'(The queen said): "If I do not obtain it, Lord, I shall die."

5. 'Now at that time, O Bhikkhus, the Brāhmaṇa who was domestic chaplain to king Brahmadatta of Kāsi, was a friend of king Dīghiti of Kosala. And king Dīghiti of Kosala, O Bhikkhus, went to the place where that Brāhmaṇa, the domestic chaplain to king Brahmadatta of Kāsi, was; having approached him he said to that Brāhmaṇa, the domestic chaplain to king Brahmadatta of Kāsi: "Your lady-friend, my beloved, is pregnant, and the longing of pregnant women has come upon her; and she desires (&c., as above)."

'(The Brāhmaṇa replied): "Well, O king, let us see the queen also."

'Then, O Bhikkhus, the queen-consort of king Dīghiti of Kosala went to the place where that Brāhmaṇa, the domestic chaplain to king Brahmadatta of Kāsi, was. And, O Bhikkhus, that Brāhmaṇa, the domestic chaplain to king Brahmadatta of Kāsi, saw the queen-consort of king Dīghiti of Kosala coming from afar. On seeing her he rose from his seat, adjusted his upper robe so as to cover one shoulder, raised his joined hands to the queen-consort of king Dīghiti of Kosala, and three times uttered this exclamation: “Verily a Kosala king dwells in thy womb! Verily a Kosala king dwells in thy womb!” (And further he said): “Do not despond, O queen, you will obtain the sight at sunrise of an army with its four hosts set in array, clad in armour, standing on auspicious ground, and you will obtain the drinking of the water in which the swords are washed.”

6. ‘And, O Bhikkhus, that Brāhmaṇa, the domestic chaplain to king Brahmadatta of Kāsi, went to the place where king Brahmadatta of Kāsi was. Having approached him, he said to king Brahmadatta of Kāsi: “Lord, the signs that appear are such, that to-morrow at sunrise an army with four hosts, set in array, clad in armour, must station itself on auspicious ground, and the swords must be washed.”

‘Then, O Bhikkhus, king Brahmadatta of Kāsi gave order to his attendants: “Do, my friends, what the Brāhmaṇa, my domestic chaplain, tells you.”

‘Thus, O Bhikkhus, the queen-consort of king Dīghiti of Kosala obtained the sight at sunrise, &c., and the drinking of the water in which the swords were washed.

‘And, O Bhikkhus, the queen-consort of king Dīghiti of Kosala, when the child in her womb had reached maturity, gave birth to a boy. They called him Dīghāvu ("Longeval"). And ere long, O Bhikkhus, young Dīghāvu came to the years of discretion.

7. 'And king Dīghīti of Kosala, O Bhikkhus, thought: "This king Brahmadatta of Kāsi has done much harm to us. By him we have been robbed of our troops and vehicles, our realm, our treasuries and storehouses. Should he find us out here, he will have us all three killed. What if I were to cause young Dīghāvu to dwell outside the town."

'Then king Dīghīti of Kosala, O Bhikkhus, caused young Dīghāvu to dwell outside the town. And young Dīghāvu, O Bhikkhus, dwelling outside the town, ere long learnt all arts.

8. 'At that time, O Bhikkhus, the barber of king Dīghīti of Kosala dwelt at the court of king Brahmadatta of Kāsi. Now, O Bhikkhus, this barber of king Dīghīti of Kosala saw king Dīghīti of Kosala dwelling, together with his consort, at Benares, at a certain place near the town, in a potter's dwelling, in disguise, in the guise of a wandering ascetic. When he had seen him, he went to the place where king Brahmadatta of Kāsi was, and having approached him, he said to king Brahmadatta of Kāsi: "King Dīghīti of Kosala, Your Majesty, dwells, together with his consort, at Benares, at a certain place near the town, in a potter's dwelling, in disguise, in the guise of a wandering ascetic."

9. 'Then, O Bhikkhus, king Brahmadatta of Kāsi gave order to his attendants: "Well, my friends, bring king Dīghīti of Kosala and his consort before me."

'And those people, O Bhikkhus, accepted this order of king Brahmadatta of Kāsi (by saying),
"Yes, Your Majesty," and brought king Dīghiti of Kosala and his consort before him.

Then, O Bhikkhus, king Brahmadatta of Kāsi gave order to his attendants: "Well, my friends, bind king Dīghiti of Kosala and his consort firmly with strong ropes, tie their arms to their backs, have them close shaven, lead them around with loud beatings of drums from road to road and from cross-way to cross-way, then lead them out of the town by the southern gate, hew them in four pieces to the south of the town, and throw the pieces away to the four quarters."

And those people, O Bhikkhus, accepted this order of king Brahmadatta of Kāsi (by saying), "Yes, Your Majesty," bound king Dīghiti of Kosala and his consort firmly with strong ropes, tied their arms to their backs, had them close shaven, and led them around with loud beatings of drums from road to road and from cross-way to cross-way.

10. 'Now, O Bhikkhus, young Dīghāvu thought: "For a long time I have not seen my father and mother. What if I were to go and see my father and mother." And young Dīghāvu, O Bhikkhus, entered Benares, and saw his father and mother, bound firmly with strong ropes, their arms tied to their backs, close shaven, and being led around with loud beating of drums from road to road and from cross-way to cross-way. When he saw that, he went up to his father and mother.

'And king Dīghiti of Kosala, O Bhikkhus, saw young Dīghāvu coming from afar; seeing young Dīghāvu he said to him: "Do not look long, my dear Dīghāvu, and do not look short."

hatred, my dear Dīghāvu, is hatred appeased; by not-hatred, my dear Dīghāvu, hatred is appeased."

11. "When he had spoken thus, O Bhikkhus, the people said to king Dīghīti of Kosala: "This king Dīghāvu to do with him? Who is he to whom he says: 'Do not look long, &c.?" (Dīghīti replied): "I am not mad, my friends, nor do I rave. He who is clever will understand it."

'And for the second time, &c. And for the third time, O Bhikkhus, king Dīghīti of Kosala said to young Dīghāvu, &c. And for the third time said the people (&c., down to:) "He who is clever will understand it."

'Then those people, O Bhikkhus, having led king Dīghīti of Kosala and his consort around from road to road and from cross-way to cross-way, led them out of the town by the southern gate, hewed them in four pieces to the south of the town, threw the pieces away to the four quarters, stationed there a troop of soldiers, and went away.

12. "Then young Dīghāvu, O Bhikkhus, went to Benares, got strong drink there, and made those soldiers drink it. When they were drunk and had fallen down, he gathered the pieces (of the two bodies), made a funeral pile, put his father's and his mother's bodies on that pile, set it on fire, and raising his clasped hands he three times circumambulated the funeral pile.

'Now at that time, O Bhikkhus, king Brahmadatta of Kāsi had gone up on to the terrace of his splendid palace. And king Brahmadatta of Kāsi, O Bhikkhus, saw young Dīghāvu, who, raising his clasped hands, three times circumambulated the funeral pile. When he saw that, he thought: "Doubtless this man is a relation or kinsman of king Dīghiti of Kosala. Alas for my misfortune, that nobody will tell me (what this means)!

13. 'And young Dīghāvu, O Bhikkhus, went to the forest. There he cried and wept to his heart's content. Then he wiped his tears, entered the town of Benares, went to the elephant stables near the royal palace, and said to the elephant trainer: "I wish to learn your art, master."

"Well, my good young man, learn it."

'And young Dīghāvu, O Bhikkhus, arose in the night, at dawn's time, and sung in the elephant stables in a beautiful voice, and played upon the lute. And king Brahmadatta of Kāsi, O Bhikkhus, having risen in the night, at dawn, heard that singing in a beautiful voice and that playing upon the lute in the elephant stables. On hearing that he asked his attendants: "Who is it, my friends, who has risen in the night, at dawn's time, and has sung in the elephant stables in so beautiful a voice, and has played upon the lute?"

14. '(The attendants replied): "A young pupil, Your Majesty, of such and such an elephant trainer, has risen in the night, at dawn, and has sung in the elephant stables in so beautiful a voice, and has played upon the lute."

'(The king said): "Well, my friends, bring that young man to me."

'Those people accepted, O Bhikkhus, that order of king Brahmadatta of Kāsi (by saying), "Yes. Your Majesty," and brought young Dīghāvu to him.

"Is it you, my good young man, who has risen in the night, &c.?"
"Yes, Your Majesty."

"Well, my good young man, sing and play upon the lute (also before me)."

'Young Dīghāvu, O Bhikkhus, accepted this order of king Brahmadatta of Kāsi (by saying), "Yes, Your Majesty," and in order to win (the king's) favour he sung in a beautiful voice and played upon the lute.

'And king Brahmadatta of Kāsi, O Bhikkhus, said to young Dīghāvu: "Be my attendant, my good young man."

'Young Dīghāvu, O Bhikkhus, accepted this order of king Brahmadatta of Kāsi (by saying), "Yes, Your Majesty." And young Dīghāvu, O Bhikkhus, became (a servant) of king Brahmadatta of Kāsi, rising before him, lying down after him, willingly obeying all his commands, agreeable in his conduct, pleasing in his words. And ere long, O Bhikkhus, king Brahmadatta of Kāsi gave to young Dīghāvu an intimate position of trust.

15. 'And king Brahmadatta of Kāsi, O Bhikkhus, said to young Dīghāvu: "Well, my young friend, put the horses to the chariot; we will go a-hunting." And young Dīghāvu, O Bhikkhus, accepted this order of king Brahmadatta of Kāsi (by saying), "Yes, Your Majesty," put the horses to the chariot, and said to king Brahmadatta of Kāsi: "The horses have been put to your chariot, Your Majesty; you may do now as you think fit."

'And king Brahmadatta of Kāsi, O Bhikkhus, ascended the chariot, and young Dīghāvu drove the chariot: and he drove the chariot in such a way that the hosts (of the royal retinue) went one way, and the chariot went another way.
'And after a long drive, O Bhikkhus, king Brahmadatta of Kâsi said to young Dîghâvu: "Well, my young friend, stop now the chariot. I am tired; I would lie down."

'Young Dîghâvu, O Bhikkhus, accepted this order of king Brahmadatta of Kâsi (by saying), "Yes, Your Majesty," stopped the chariot, and sat down on the ground cross-legged. And king Brahmadatta of Kâsi, O Bhikkhus, lay down, laying his head in the lap of young Dîghâvu; and as he was tired, he fell asleep in a moment.

16. 'And young Dîghâvu thought, O Bhikkhus: "This king Brahmadatta of Kâsi has done much harm to us. By him we have been robbed of our troops and vehicles, our realm, our treasuries and storehouses. And he has killed my father and mother. Now the time has come to me to satisfy my hatred,"—(thinking thus) he unsheathed his sword. Then, O Bhikkhus, young Dîghâvu thought: "My father said to me in the hour of his death: 'Do not look long, my dear Dîghâvu, and do not look short. For not by hatred, my dear Dîghâvu, is hatred appeased; by not-hatred, my dear Dîghâvu, hatred is appeased.' It would not become me to transgress my father's word,"—(thinking thus) he put up his sword.

'And for the second time . . . . and for the third time young Dîghâvu thought, O Bhikkhus: "This king Brahmadatta of Kâsi has done much harm to us" (&c., down to :)—(thinking thus) he put up his sword.

'At that moment, O Bhikkhus, king Brahmadatta of Kâsi, frightened, terrified, full of anguish, and alarmed, suddenly arose.

'And young Dîghâvu, O Bhikkhus, said to king Brahmadatta of Kāsi: "Why do you arise so suddenly, O king, frightened, terrified, full of anguish, and alarmed?"

'(The king replied): "I dreamt, my young friend, that young Dīghāvu, the son of king Dīghīti of Kosala, came upon me with his sword; therefore have I arisen so suddenly, frightened, terrified, full of anguish, and alarmed."

17. 'Then, O Bhikkhus, young Dīghāvu, stroking with his left hand the head of king Brahmadatta of Kāsi, and with his right hand unsheathing his sword, said to king Brahmadatta of Kāsi: "I am that young Dīghāvu, O king, the son of king Dīghīti of Kosala. You have done much harm to us. By you we have been robbed of our troops and vehicles, our realm, our treasuries and storehouses. And you have killed my father and mother. Now the time has come to me to satisfy my hatred."

'Then, O Bhikkhus, king Brahmadatta of Kāsi fell down before young Dīghāvu, inclining his head to his feet, and said to young Dīghāvu: "Grant me my life, my dear Dīghāvu! Grant me my life, my dear Dīghāvu!"

"How can I grant you your life, O king? It is you, O king, who should grant me my life!"

"Well, my dear Dīghāvu, then grant me my life, and I will grant you your life."

'Thus, O Bhikkhus, king Brahmadatta of Kāsi and young Dīghāvu granted each other their lives and took each other's hands and swore an oath not to do any harm to each other.

'And king Brahmadatta of Kāsi, O Bhikkhus, said to young Dīghāvu: "Well, my dear Dīghāvu, put now the horses to the chariot; we will go."
'And young Dighâvu, O Bhikkhus, accepted this order of king Brahmadatta of Kâsi (by saying), "Yes, Your Majesty," put the horses to the chariot, and said to king Brahmadatta of Kâsi: "The horses have been put to your chariot, Your Majesty; you may do now as you think fit."

'And king Brahmadatta of Kâsi, O Bhikkhus, ascended the chariot, and young Dighâvu drove the chariot; and he drove the chariot in such a way that they soon reached again the hosts (of the royal retinue).

18. 'And king Brahmadatta of Kâsi, O Bhikkhus, having entered Benares, convoked his ministers and counsellors and said to them: "If you should see, my good Sirs, young Dighâvu, the son of king Dighiti of Kosala, what would you do to him?"

'Some (of the ministers) replied: "We would cut off his hands, Your Majesty;" (others said): "We would cut off his feet"—"We would cut off his hands and feet"—"We would cut off his ears"—"We would cut off his nose"—"We would cut off his ears and his nose"—"We would cut off his head."

"This is young Dighâvu, Sirs, the son of king Dighiti of Kosala. It is not permitted to do anything to him; he has granted me my life, and I have granted him his life."

19. 'And king Brahmadatta of Kâsi, O Bhikkhus, said to young Dighâvu: "Why did your father say to you in the hour of his death: 'Do not look long, &c.'—what did your father mean by that?"

"What my father said, O king, in the hour of his death: 'Not long'—(means): 'Let not your hatred last long;' this did my father mean when he said in the hour of his death: 'Not long.' And what my father said, O king, in the hour of his death: 'Not short'—(means): 'Do not be hasty to fall out with your friends;' this did my father mean when he said in the hour of his death: 'Not short.' And what my father said, O king, in the hour of his death: 'For not by hatred, my dear Dīghāvu, is hatred appeased; by not-hatred, my dear Dīghāvu, is hatred appeased'—(means this): 'You have killed my father and mother, O king. If I should deprive you therefore of life, O king, then your partisans, O king, would deprive me of life; my partisans again would deprive those of life. Thus by hatred that hatred would not be appeased. But now, O king, you have granted me my life, and I, O king, have granted you your life; thus by not-hatred hatred has been appeased.' This did my father mean when he said in the hour of his death: 'For not by hatred, &c.'"

20. 'Then king Brahmadatta of Kāsi, O Bhikkhus, thought: "O wonderful! O marvellous! How clever is this young Dīghāvu, that he understands in its full extent the meaning of what his father spoke so concisely,"—and he gave him back his father's troops and vehicles, his realm, his treasuries and storehouses, and he gave him his daughter.

'Now, O Bhikkhus, if such is the forbearance and mildness of kings who wield the sceptre and bear the sword, so much more, O Bhikkhus, must you so let your light shine before the world that you, having embraced the religious life according to so well-taught a doctrine and a discipline, are seen to be forbearing and mild.'

And for the third time the Blessed One thus

addressed those Bhikkhus: 'Enough, O Bhikkhus, no altercations, no contentions, no disunion, no quarrels!'

And for the third time that Bhikkhu who adhered to the party who were wrong, said to the Blessed One: 'Lord, may the Blessed One, the king of Truth, be patient! Lord, may the Blessed One quietly enjoy the bliss he has obtained already in this life! The responsibility for these altercations and contentions, for this disunion and quarrel will rest with us alone.' And the Blessed One thought: 'Truly these fools are infatuate; it is no easy task to administer instruction to them,'—and he rose from his seat and went away.

End of the first Bhānavāra, which contains the story of Dīghāvu.

And in the forenoon the Blessed One, having put on his under-robes, took up his alms-bowl and his āṭṭāra, and entered the town of Kosambī for alms. Having collected alms in Kosambī, after his meal, when he had returned from his alms-pilgrimage, he put his resting-place in order, took up his alms-bowl and his āṭṭāra, and standing in the midst of the assembly he pronounced the following stanzas:

' Loud is the noise that ordinary men make. Nobody thinks himself a fool, when divisions arise in the Samgha, nor do they ever value another person higher (than themselves).
Bewildered are (even) the clever words of him who is versed in the resources of eloquence. As wide as they like they open their mouth. By whom they are lead they do not see.

"He has reviled me, he has beaten me, he has oppressed me, he has robbed me,"—in those who nurse such thoughts, hatred will never be appeased.

"He has reviled me, he has beaten me, he has oppressed me, he has robbed me,"—in those who do not nurse such thoughts, hatred is appeased.

For not by hatred is hatred ever appeased; by not-hatred it is appeased; this is an eternal law.

The others do not know that we must keep ourselves under restraint here; but those who know it, their quarrels are appeased.

They whose bones are broken (by their foes), who destroy lives, who rob cows, horses, and treasures, who plunder realms,—even these may find conciliation. How should you not find it?

If a man find a wise friend, a companion who

2 These verses are inserted in the Dhammapada, vv. 3–6.

3 That is to say, those who do not follow the Buddha’s teaching. On this meaning of pare compare parappavâdâ at Mahâ-parinibbâna Sutta V, 62. Professor Max Müller, who in the first edition of his translation of the Dhammapada (Buddhaghosa’s Parables, p. lv) has ‘Some do not know that we must all come to an end here,’ in the revised edition (Sacred Books of the East, vol. x) renders the phrase, ‘The world does not know that we must all come to an end here.’

4 The following three verses have also been inserted in the Dhammapada, vv. 328–330. The two first recur in the Khaggavisâna-sutta of the Sutta Nipâta, vv. II, 12.

him, overcoming all dangers, happy and mindful 1.

'If he find no wise friend, no companion who lives righteously, no constant one, let him walk alone, like a king who leaves his conquered realm behind 2, like an elephant in the elephant forest 3.

'It is better to walk alone; with a fool there is no companionship. Let a man walk alone; let him do no evil, free from cares, like an elephant in the elephant forest 3.'

4.

1. And the Blessed One, having pronounced these stanzas standing in the midst of the assembly, went forth to Bālakalovaṅkāra-gāma (or, to Bālaka, the salt-maker's village).

At that time the venerable Bhagu dwelt at Bāla-kalovaṅkāra-gāma. And the venerable Bhagu saw the Blessed One coming from afar; seeing him he prepared a seat, brought water for the washing of his feet, a foot-stool, and a towel, went forth to meet him, and took his bowl and his robe. The Blessed One sat down on the seat he had prepared; and

1 On the juxtaposition of happiness with mindfulness, see the constantly repeated phrase occurring, for instance, in the Tevigga Sutta I, 49 (at the end). It would perhaps be better to read satītmā in the text, as Fausbøll has done, metri causā.

2 That is, who abdicates, and devotes himself in the forest to a hermit's life. This is given as the crucial instance of a happy life in the Gātaka Story, No. 10.

when he was seated, the Blessed One washed his feet. And also the venerable Bhagu, having respectfully saluted the Blessed One, sat down near him. When he was sitting near him, the Blessed One said to the venerable Bhagu: 'Is it all well with you, O Bhikkhu? Do you find your living? Do you get food without too much trouble?'

'It is all well with me, Lord; I find my living, Lord; I get food, Lord, without too much trouble.'

And the Blessed One, having taught, incited, animated, and gladdened the venerable Bhagû by religious discourse, rose from his seat and went forth to the Eastern Bambû Park (Pâkîna-vamsa-dâya).

2. At that time the venerable Anuruddha and the venerable Nandiya and the venerable Kimbila dwelt at Pâkîna-vamsa-dâya. And the park-keeper saw the Blessed One coming from afar; seeing him he said to the Blessed One: 'Do not enter this park, O Samana; here dwell three noble youths accustomed to comfort and ease; you must not annoy them.' And the venerable Anuruddha heard what the park-keeper was saying to the Blessed One; hearing that he said to the park-keeper: 'Do not keep off the Blessed One, my good park-keeper; our teacher, the Blessed One, has arrived.' And the venerable Anuruddha went to the place where the venerable Nandiya and the venerable Kimbila were; having approached them, he said to the venerable Nandiya and to the venerable Kimbila: 'Come here, my venerable friends! Come here, my venerable friends! Our teacher, the Blessed One, has arrived.'

3. And the venerable Anuruddha, the venerable Nandiya, and the venerable Kimbila went forth to meet the Blessed One; one took the bowl and the robe of the Blessed One, the other one prepared a seat, the third one brought water for the washing of his feet, a foot-stool, and a towel. Then the Blessed One sat down on the seat they had prepared; and when he was seated, the Blessed One washed his feet. And also those venerable persons, having respectfully saluted the Blessed One; sat down near him. When the venerable Anuruddha was sitting near him, the Blessed One said to him: 'Is it all well with you, O Anuruddhas? Do you find your living? Do you get food without too much trouble?'

'It is all well with us, Lord; we find our living, Lord; we get food, Lord, without too much trouble.'

'And do you live, O Anuruddhas, in unity and concord, without quarrels, like milk and water (mixed together)\(^2\), and looking at each other with friendly eyes?'

'Certainly, Lord, do we live in unity and concord (&c., down to :) and looking at each other with friendly eyes.'

'And in what way, O Anuruddhas, do you live in unity and concord, &c.?'

4. 'I think, Lord: "It is all gain to me indeed, it is high bliss for me indeed, that I live in the companionship of brethren like these." Thus, Lord, do I exercise towards these venerable brethren friendliness in my actions, both openly and in secret; I

\(^1\) We have here the plural Anuruddhā, meaning Anuruddha and his friends. So in Kullavāgga I, 13, 6 Sāriputtā means Sāriputta and Moggallāna.

\(^2\) Khīrodakibhūṭā can scarcely contain an allusion to the Milk Ocean (see Childers, s.v. khīrodaka). Milk and water is frequently chosen by the Indian poets as a type of the most perfect union.
exercise (towards them) friendliness in my words, and friendliness in my thoughts, both openly and in secret. And I think thus, Lord: "What if I were to give up my own will and to live only according to the will of these venerable brethren." Thus, Lord, I give up my own will and live only according to the will of these venerable brethren. Our bodies, Lord, are different, but our minds, I think, have become one."

And also the venerable Nandiya . . . . and also the venerable Kimbila . . . . said to the Blessed One: 'I think also, Lord: "It is all gain to me" (&c., down to :) have become one.

In this way, Lord, do we live in unity and concord, without quarrels, like milk and water (mixed together), and looking at each other with friendly eyes.'

5. 'And do you live, O Anuruddhas, in earnestness, zeal, and resolvedness?'

'Certainly, Lord, do we live in earnestness, zeal, and resolvedness.'

'And in what way, O Anuruddhas, do you live in earnestness, zeal, and resolvedness?'

'He who first of us comes back, Lord, from the village, from his alms-pilgrimage, prepares seats, gets water for washing feet, a foot-stool, and a towel, cleans the slop-basin, and gets it ready, and puts there (water to) drink and food. He who comes back last from the village, from his alms-pilgrimage, eats, if there is any food left (from the dinner of the others) and if he desires to do so; and if he does not desire (to eat), he throws it away at a place free from grass, or pours it away into water in which no living things are; takes away the seat, puts away the water for washing the feet, the foot-stool, and the towel, cleans the slop-basin and puts it away, puts the water and the food away, and sweeps the dining-room. He who sees a water-pot, or a bowl for food, or an easing-chair, empty and void, puts it (into its proper place), and if he is not able to do so single-handed, he calls some one else, and thus we put it (into its place) with our united effort, but we do not utter a word, Lord, on that account. And every five days, Lord, we spend a whole night, sitting together, in religious discourse. In this way, Lord, do we live in earnestness, zeal, and resolvedness.'

6. And the Blessed One, having taught, incited, animated, and gladdened the venerable Anuruddha and the venerable Nandiya and the venerable Kimbila by religious discourse, rose from his seat, and went forth to Pārileyyaka. Wandering from place to place he came to Pārileyyaka. There the Blessed One dwelt at Pārileyyaka, in the Rakkhita grove, at the foot of the Bhaddasāla tree. Then in the mind of the Blessed One, who was alone, and had retired into solitude, the following thought arose: 'Formerly I did not live at ease, being troubled by those litigious, contentious, quarrelsome, disputatious Bhikkhus of Kosambi, the constant raisers of questions before the Samgha. But now, being alone and without a companion, I live pleasantly and at ease, remote from those litigious, contentious, quarrelsome, disputatious Bhikkhus of Kosambi, the constant raisers of questions before the Samgha.' And there dwellt also a noble elephant, who was surrounded by a crowd of elephants, she-elephants, elephant-calves, and young elephants; the grass blades he ate had their tips broken; the branches he broke down (the other elephants) ate; the water he drank was turbid; and when he waded into the river and plunged down, the she-elephants came and rubbed up their bodies against him. Now that noble elephant thought: 'I am surrounded by a crowd of elephants (&c., down to:) and rub up their bodies against me. What if I were to live alone, far away from those crowds.'

7. And that noble elephant left the herd behind, and went to Pārileyyaka, to the Rakkhita grove, to the foot of the Bhaddasāla tree, to the place where the Blessed One was. Having approached him, he administered with his trunk to the Blessed One (water to) drink and food, and removed the grass from that place. And that noble elephant thought: 'Formerly I did not live at ease, surrounded by that crowd of elephants (&c., down to:) and rubbed up their bodies against me. But now, being alone and without a companion, I live pleasantly and at ease, remote from those elephants, she-elephants, elephant-calves, and young elephants.'

Then the Blessed One, both regarding his own retirement, and understanding by the power of his mind the thoughts which had arisen in the mind of that noble elephant, on this occasion pronounced this solemn utterance:

'Thus the noble one and the noble, the elephant tusked with tusks like cart poles¹ (and the noble

One among men)—the mind of the one and the mind of the other harmonise in this, that they take delight in dwelling alone in the forest.

1. And the Blessed One, having dwelt at Pārileyyaka as long as he thought fit, went forth to Sāvatthi. Wandering from place to place he came to Sāvatthi. There the Blessed One dwelt at Sāvatthi, in the Getavana, the garden of Anātha-pindika. And the lay-devotees of Kosambī thought: 'These venerable Bhikkhus of Kosambī have brought much misfortune to us; worried\(^1\) by them the Blessed One is gone. Well, let us neither salute the venerable Bhikkhus of Kosambī, nor rise from our seats before them, nor raise our hands before them, nor perform the proper duties towards them, nor honour and esteem and revere and support them, nor give them food when they come on their walks for alms; thus, when they are not honoured, esteemed, revered, supported, and hospitably received by us, they will go away, or return to the world, or propitiate the Blessed One.'

2. Thus the lay-devotees of Kosambī did not salute any more the Bhikkhus of Kosambī, nor did they rise from their seats before them (&c., down to :) nor gave them food when they came on their walks for alms.

Then the Bhikkhus of Kosambī, when they were no more honoured (&c., down to :) and hospitably received by the lay-devotees of Kosambī, said to each other: 'Well, friends, let us go to Sāvatthi and let us settle there that question before the Blessed One.' And the Bhikkhus of Kosambī put their resting-places in order, took up their alms-bowls and their robes, and went forth to Sāvatthi.

3. And the venerable Sāriputta heard: 'Those litigious, contentious, quarrelsome, disputatious Bhikkhus of Kosambī, the constant raisers of questions before the Saṃgha, are coming to Sāvatthi.' And the venerable Sāriputta went to the place where the Blessed One was; having approached him and respectfully saluted the Blessed One, he sat down near him. Sitting near him the venerable Sāriputta said to the Blessed One: 'Lord, those litigious, contentious (&c., down to :) are coming to Sāvatthi. How am I to behave, Lord, towards those Bhikkhus?'

'Well, Sāriputta, you must side with those who are right according to the Dhamma.'

'But how shall I discern, Lord, what is right and what is wrong?'

4. 'There are eighteen things, Sāriputta, by which you may conclude that a Bhikkhu is wrong according to the Dhamma. In case, Sāriputta, a Bhikkhu declares what is not Dhamma to be Dhamma, or declares what is Dhamma not to be Dhamma, or declares what is not Vinaya to be Vinaya, or declares what is Vinaya not to be Vinaya, or declares what has not been taught and spoken by the Tathāgata to have been taught and spoken by the Tathāgata, or declares something taught and spoken by the Tathāgata, or declares something not to have been taught and spoken by the Tathāgata, or declares what has not been practised by the Tathāgata to have been practised by the Tathāgata, or declares something practised by the Tathāgata not to have been practised by the Tathāgata, or declares what has not been ordained by the Tathāgata to have been ordained by the Tathāgata, or declares something ordained by the Tathāgata not to have been ordained by the Tathāgata, or declares what is no offence to be an offence, or declares an offence to be no offence, or declares a slight offence to be a grievous offence, or declares a grievous offence to be a slight offence, or declares (a rule regarding) an offence to which there is an exception to be without an exception, or declares (a rule regarding) an offence to which there is no exception to admit of exceptions\(^1\), or declares a grave offence\(^2\) to be a not grave offence, or declares an offence that is not grave to be a grave offence, —these are the eighteen things, Sāriputta, by which you may conclude that a Bhikkhu is wrong according to the Dhamma.

5. 'And there are eighteen things, Sāriputta, by which you may conclude that a Bhikkhu is right according to the Dhamma. In case, Sāriputta, a Bhikkhu declares what is not Dhamma to be not

\(^1\) Our translation of sāvasesa and anavasesa is entirely conjectural. By the exceptions alluded to here we believe that such clauses must be understood as, for instance, in the sixth Nissaggiya Rule the words: 'Except at the right season;—here the right season means when the Bhikkhu has been robbed of his robe, or when his robe has been destroyed. This is the right season in this connection.'

\(^2\) The term 'Duṭṭhullā ṭapatti' is used also in the ninth Pālittiya Rule, and the Old Commentary there states that by 'grave offences' those belonging to the Pārāgika and Samghāḍīsesa classes are understood.

6. And the venerable Mahâmoggallâna heard (&c., as in §§ 3–5)—and the venerable Mahâkas-sapa heard, &c.—and the venerable Mahâkakêkâna heard, &c.—and the venerable Mahâkottithita¹ heard, &c.—and the venerable Mahâkappina heard, &c.—and the venerable Mahâkunda heard, &c.—and the venerable Anuruddha heard, &c.—and the venerable Revata heard, &c.—and the venerable Upáli heard, &c.—and the venerable Ánanda heard, &c.—and the venerable Râhula heard (&c., as above).

7. And Mahâpagâpati Gotâmī heard: 'Those litigious, contentious, quarrelsome, disputatious Bhikkhus of Kosambî, the constant raisers of questions before the Samgha, are coming to Sâvatthi.' And Mahâpagâpati Gotâmī went to the place where the Blessed One was; having approached him and respectfully saluted the Blessed One, she stationed herself near him. Standing near him Mahâpagâpati Gotâmī said to the Blessed One: 'Lord, those litigious, contentious (&c., down to :) are coming to Sâvatthi. How am I to behave, Lord, towards those Bhikkhus?'

'Well, Gotâmî, hear the Dhamma on both sides. When you have heard the Dhamma on both sides, then accept the opinion and the belief and the doctrine and the cause of those Bhikkhus who are right according to the Dhamma; and whatever the Bhikkhunisaṁgha has to apply for to the Bhikkhusaṁgha, for all that you must apply to the party of those who are right.'

8. And Anātha-piṇḍika the householder heard (&c., as in § 3, down to ): 'How am I to behave, Lord, towards those Bhikkhus?'

'Well, householder, bestow gifts on both sides; having bestowed gifts on both sides, hear the Dhamma on both sides. When you have heard the Dhamma on both sides, then accept the opinion and the belief and the doctrine and the cause of those Bhikkhus who are right according to the Dhamma.'

9. And Visākhā Migāramatā heard, &c.²

10. And the Bhikkhu of Kosambi in due course came to Sāvatthi. And the venerable Sāriputta went to the place where the Blessed One was; having approached him and respectfully saluted the Blessed One, he sat down near him. Sitting near him the venerable Sāriputta said to the Blessed One: 'Lord, those litigious, contentious, quarrelsome, disputatious Bhikkhu of Kosambi, the constant raisers of questions before the Saṁgha, have arrived at Sāvatthi. How are we, Lord, to arrange the dwelling-places of those Bhikkhus?'

'Well, Sāriputta, assign separate dwelling-places to them.'

¹ See Kullavagga X, 1, 4, and the 59th Pāṭimokkha Rule in the Bhikkhuni-pāṭimokkha.
² As in § 8. Instead of 'Well, householder,' read 'Well, Visākhā.'
'And if there be no separate dwelling-places, what are we to do then, Lord?'

'Then, Sāriputta, you must separate (some dwelling-places from the rest) and then assign them (to those Bhikkhus). But in no wise, Sāriputta, do I say that the dwelling-place of a senior Bhikkhu must be taken from him. He who does that, commits a dukkāta offence.'

'And how are we to act, Lord, regarding (the distribution of) material gifts¹?'

'Material gifts, Sāriputta, must be distributed among all in equal parts.'

11. And that Bhikkhu against whom expulsion had been pronounced, pondering over both Dhamma and Vinaya, came to the following conclusion: 'This is an offence; this is not no offence. I am an offender; I am not offenceless. I am expelled; I am not unexpelled. The sentence by which I have been expelled is lawful, unobjectionable, and valid.' Then that expelled Bhikkhu went to the expelled Bhikkhu's partisans; having approached them, he said to the partisans of the expelled Bhikkhu: 'This is an offence, friends; this is not no offence, &c. Come now, my venerable brethren, and restore me.'

12. Then the partisans of that expelled Bhikkhu took with them the expelled Bhikkhu, and went to the place where the Blessed One was; having approached him and respectfully saluted the Blessed One, they sat down near him. Sitting near him those Bhikkhus said to the Blessed One: 'Lord, this Bhikkhu, against whom expulsion has been pronounced, says, "This is an offence, friends (&c., down to:) and restore me." What are we to do here, Lord?'

'This is an offence, O Bhikkhus; this is not no offence. This Bhikkhu is an offender; this Bhikkhu is not offenceless. This Bhikkhu is expelled; he is not unexpelled; the sentence by which he has been expelled is lawful, unobjectionable, and valid. But since this Bhikkhu, O Bhikkhus, having committed an offence, and having been sentenced to expulsion, sees (his offence), restore now that Bhikkhu, O Bhikkhus.'

13. And the partisans of that expelled Bhikkhu, having restored that expelled Bhikkhu, went to the Bhikkhus who had sentenced him to expulsion; having approached them, they said to the Bhikkhus who had pronounced that sentence: 'As regards that matter, friends, which gave origin to altercations among the Samgha, to contentions, discord, quarrels, divisions among the Samgha, to disunion among the Samgha, to separations among the Samgha, to schisms among the Samgha,—that Bhikkhu (who was concerned in that matter), having committed an offence, and having been sentenced to expulsion, has seen (his offence) and has been restored. Come, friends, let us declare now the re-establishment of concord among the Samgha in order to bring that matter to an end.'

Then the Bhikkhus who had pronounced that sentence of expulsion, went to the place where the Blessed One was; having approached him and respectfully saluted the Blessed One, they sat down near him; sitting near him those Bhikkhus said to the Blessed One: 'Lord, those partisans of the expelled Bhikkhu have said to us: "As regards that matter (&c., down to :) in order to bring that matter to an end." What are we to do here, Lord?'

14. 'Since this Bhikkhu, O Bhikkhus, having committed an offence, and having been sentenced to expulsion, has seen (his offence) and has been restored, let the Samgha, O Bhikkhus, declare the re-establishment of concord in order to bring that matter to an end. And this declaration is to be performed in this way: Let all brethren assemble together, both the sick and the healthy; no one is allowed to send his declaration of khandā (and to stay away). When you have assembled, let a learned, competent Bhikkhu proclaim the following ściatti before the Samgha: "Let the Samgha, reverend Sirs, hear me. As regards that matter which gave origin to altercations among the Samgha, to contentions, discord, quarrels, divisions among the Samgha, to disunion among the Samgha, to separations among the Samgha, to schisms among the Samgha,—that Bhikkhu (concerned in that matter), having committed an offence, and having been sentenced to expulsion, has seen (his offence) and has been restored. If the Samgha is ready, let the Samgha declare the re-establishment of concord in order to bring that matter to an end. This is the ściatti. Let the Samgha, reverend Sirs, hear me (&c., down to :) the re-establishment of concord, in order to bring that matter to an end, has been declared by the Samgha; the division that existed among the Samgha has been settled; the disunion that existed hold Uposatha and proclaim the Pâtimokkha.'

1. And the venerable Upâli\(^1\) went to the place where the Blessed One was. Having approached him and respectfully saluted the Blessed One, he sat down near him. Sitting near him the venerable Upâli said to the Blessed One: 'Lord, if the Samgha, regarding a matter which has given origin to alter-cations (&c., down to :) to schisms among the Samgha, declares the re-establishment of concord, without having inquired into that matter and without having got to the bottom of it, is this declaration, Lord, lawful?'

'If the Samgha, Upâli, regarding a matter (&c., down to :) declares the re-establishment of concord, without having inquired into that matter and without having got to the bottom of it,—this declaration, Upâli, is unlawful.'

'But if the Samgha, Lord, regarding a matter (&c., after having inquired into that matter and after having got to the bottom of it,—is this declaration, Lord, lawful?'

'If the Samgha, Upâli, (&c., down to :) declares unto that matter and after having got to the bottom of it,—this declaration, Upáli, is lawful.'

2. 'How many kinds are there, Lord, of the re-establishment of concord among a Sâmgha?'

'There are the following two kinds, Upáli, of re-establishment of concord among a Sâmgha: Concord may be re-established, Upáli, in the letter, but not in the spirit, and concord may be re-established both in the spirit and in the letter.

'And in what case, Upáli, is concord re-established in the letter, but not in the spirit? If the Sâmgha, Upáli, (&c., as above) declares the re-establishment of concord, without having inquired into that matter and without having got to the bottom of it,—in this case, Upáli, concord is said to have been re-established in the letter, but not in the spirit.

'And in what case, Upáli, is concord re-established both in the spirit and in the letter? If the Sâmgha, Upáli, (&c., as above) declares the re-establishment of concord, after having inquired into that matter and after having got to the bottom of it,—in this case, Upáli, concord is said to have been re-established both in the spirit and in the letter. These, Upáli, are the two kinds of re-establishment of concord among a Sâmgha.'

3. And the venerable Upáli rose from his seat, adjusted his upper robe so as to cover one shoulder, bent his clasped hands towards the Blessed One, and addressed the Blessed One in the following stanzas:

In the affairs of the Sâmgha and in its consultations, in the business that arises and in trials, what sort of man is then most wanted? what Bhikkhu is then most worthy of the leadership?'
Above all he who is blameless in his moral conduct, who watches over his behaviour, whose senses are well controlled, whom his rivals do not reprove according to the law,—for there is nothing for which they could censure him,—

Such a man, who abides in blameless conduct, is well versed (in the doctrine), and mighty are his words. He is not perplexed, nor does he tremble, when he enters an assembly. He does not disparage his cause by vain talk.

So also when he is asked questions in the assemblies, he does not hesitate, and is not troubled. By his timely words, that solve the questions, the clever man gladdens the assembly of the wise.

Full of reverence for elder Bhikkhus, well versed in what his teacher has taught him, able to find out (the right), a master of speech, and skilled in making his rivals fail,—

By whom his rivals are annihilated, by whom many people receive instruction,—he does not forsake the cause he has taken up, (nor does he become tired) of answering questions and putting questions without hurting others;—

If he is charged with a mission, he takes it upon himself properly, and in the business of the Samgha (he does) what they tell him;—when a number of Bhikkhus despatches him (somewhere), he obeys their command, but he does not think therefrom, "It is I who do this;"—

'In what cases a Bhikkhu commits an offence, what an offence is, and how it is atoned for, both these expositions are well known to him¹; he is versed in the rules about offence and atonement;—

'By what deeds a Bhikkhu brings expulsion upon himself, in what cases one has been expelled, and the rehabilitation of a person who has undergone that penance,—all this he also knows, well versed in the Vibhaṅgas;—

'Full of reverence for elder Bhikkhus, for the young, for the Theras, for the middle-aged, bringing welfare to many people, a clever one:—such a Bhikkhu is the one who is then worthy of the leadership.'

THE MINOR DISCIPLINARY PROCEEDINGS.

I. THE TAGGANIYA KAMMA (ACT OF REBUKE).

1. At that time the Blessed One was staying at Getavana, in the grove of Anâtha-piṇḍika.

Now at that time the Bhikkhus who were followers of Parâdaka and of Lohitaka, who themselves were makers of strife, quarrelsome, makers of disputes, given to idle talk, and raisers of legal questions in the Samgha,—used to go up to such other Bhikkhus as were the same, and say, ‘Do not allow such a one, venerable Sirs, to turn you back. Discuss loud and long. You are indeed cleverer, more wise, more well informed, more able at that (than your adversaries are) and do not you be afraid of them. We too will be on your side.’ Thereby both disputes arose which had not arisen before; and disputes which had arisen grew hotter.

3 Such persons were formerly dealt with according to the 10th, 11th, and 12th Samghâdisesas.

2. Those Bhikkhus who were modest were annoyed, murmured, and became indignant, saying, ‘How can the Bhikkhus who are followers of Panduka and of Lohitaka act thus.’ And those Bhikkhus told the matter to the Blessed One.

Then the Blessed One on that occasion, and in that connection, convened an assembly of the Order of Bhikkhus, and inquired of the Bhikkhus: ‘Is it true, as they say, Bhikkhus, that those Bhikkhus who are followers of Panduka and Lohitaka,—who themselves (&c., as in § 1, down to the end)?’

It is true, Lord!’

The Blessed Buddha rebuked them, saying, ‘This is improper, O Bhikkhus, for those foolish persons, not according to rule, unsuitable, unworthy of a Samana, unbecoming, and ought not to be done. How can these foolish persons, O Bhikkhus, who themselves (&c., as in § 1, down to the end). This will not conduce, O Bhikkhus, either to the conversion of the unconverted, or to the increase of the converted; but rather to those who have not been converted being not converted, and to the turning back of those who have been converted.’

3. And when the Blessed One had rebuked those Bhikkhus in various ways,—speaking of the evils of being hard to satisfy in the matter of support or nourishment, of wishing for much, of discontent, of love of society, and of sloth; and speaking in praise of being easy to satisfy in the matter of support and nourishment, of wishing for little, of the contented man who has eradicated (evils from his mind), has quelled his passions, and is full of faith, of reverence, and of the exercise of zeal,—when he had thus held a religious discourse to the Bhikkhus as to what was fit and suitable in that respect, he addressed the Bhikkhus, and said: ‘Let the Samgha, therefore, O Bhikkhus, carry out the Tagganiya-kamma (Act of Rebuff) against those Bhikkhus.

4. ‘Now thus, O Bhikkhus, should it be carried out. In the first place the Bhikkhus who are followers of Pauduka and Lohitaka ought to be warned; when they have been warned, they ought to be reminded (of the Rule in the Pâtimokkha against which they have offended); when they have been reminded, they ought to be charged with the (particular) offence; when they have been charged with the offence, some discreet and able Bhikkhu ought to lay the matter before the Samgha, saying,

“Let the venerable Samgha hear me. These Bhikkhus who are followers of Pauduka and Lohitaka, who themselves (&c., as in § 1, down to the end). If the time is fit for the Samgha (to do so) let the Samgha carry out the Tagganiya-kamma against the Bhikkhus who are followers of Pauduka and Lohitaka.

“Such is the motion (iṭṭiti).

“Let the venerable Samgha hear me. The Bhikkhus who are followers of Pauduka and Lohitaka,

1 We have here the substance of that ‘religious discourse’ (dhammim katham) which the Buddha is so frequently stated to have held before he laid down the rule for the guidance of the Bhikkhus in the particular matter which had been brought before him. It recurs in the Mahâvagga (I, 25, 6), and is constantly to be supplied both there and below.
who themselves (&c., as in § 1, down to the end). The Samgha hereby carries out the Taggāniya-kamma against them. Whosoever of the venerable ones approves of the carrying out of the Taggāniya-kamma against the Bhikkhus who are followers of Panduka and Lohitaka, let him remain silent. Whosoever approves not thereof, let him speak.

"A second time I say the same thing. Let the venerable Samgha (&c., as before 1). A third time I say the same thing. Let the venerable Samgha (&c., as before 1).

"The Taggāniya-kamma against the Bhikkhus who are followers of Panduka and Lohitaka has been carried by the Samgha. The Samgha approves (the motion). Therefore is it silent. Thus do I understand."

1. 'There are three things, O Bhikkhus, by which, when a Taggāniya-kamma is characterised, it is against the Dhamma, and against the Vinaya, and difficult to be settled; (that is to say), when it has not been carried out in a full assembly of properly qualified persons, according to law and justice, and in the presence of the litigant parties—when it has been carried out without the accused person having been heard—when it has been carried out without the accused person having confessed himself guilty. ‘There are other three things, O Bhikkhus, by which, when a Tagganiya-kamma has been characterised, it is against the Dhamma, and against the Vinaya, and difficult to be settled; (that is to say), when it has been carried out though no fault has been committed—when it has been carried out for a Pārāgika or a Samghadisesa offence1—when it has been carried out though the fault has been confessed. [And in a similar way each of the three things in paragraphs 2 and 3 of this section are united with the two things just repeated in each of paragraphs 4, 5, and 6, to make six further cases in which a Taggāniya-kamma is declared to be against the Dhamma, and against the Vinaya, and difficult to be revoked.]

1 This chapter is repeated below for the Nissaya-, Pabbāgainiya-, and Pasīraniya-kammass (chapters 10, 15, and 21). The corresponding rule for the first two Ukkhepiya-kammass is different, and much more stringent (chapter 27, repeated in chapter 31); but that for the third (chapter 33) is again the same as the rule laid down in this chapter. In the second Khandhaka (1, 2) the list of restrictions is again longer.

Buddhaghosa says, āgantukānaṃ nissayo na dātabbo. The relation of a junior Bhikkhu either to his upaghāya or to his ākariya is alike called nissaya (Mahāvagga I, 36, 1); but the term is more especially applied to the latter (Mahāvagga I, 32, 2, whereas in the corresponding formula for the upaghāya, Mahā-not to call upon another Bhikkhu to remember (whether he has or has not committed an offence)—and he ought not to associate with the Bhikkhus.'

Here end the eighteen duties which follow on a Tagganiya-kamma.

1. So the Samgha carried out the Tagganiya-kamma against the Bhikkhus who were followers of Panduka and Lohitaka. And when they had been subjected by the Samgha to the Tagganiya-kamma and were conducting themselves aright in accordance thereto, they became subdued, and they sought for release; and going up to the Bhikkhus they spake as follows: 'We, Sirs, have been subjected by the Samgha to the Tagganiya-kamma (&c., down to) release. What now should we do?'

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'Then, O Bhikkhus, let the Samgha revoke the Tagganiya-kamma carried out against the followers of Panduka and Lohitaka.

2. 'There are five things, O Bhikkhus, by which, when a Bhikkhu is characterised, a Taggāniya-kamma ought not to be revoked for him; (that is to say), when he confers the upasampadā—when he gives a nissayā—when he provides himself with a sāmanera—when he accepts the office of giving exhortation to the nuns—and when, having accepted that office, he exhorts the nuns. These are the five things, O Bhikkhus (&c., as before, down to) revoked for him.

′There are other five things, O Bhikkhus, by which, when a Bhikkhu is characterised, a Taggāniya-kamma ought not to be revoked for him; (that is to say), when he commits the offence for which the Taggāniya-kamma has been carried out by the Samgha against him—or any other offence of a similar kind—or any worse offence—when he finds fault with the proceeding that has been carried out against him—or with the Bhikkhus who have carried it out. These are five things, O Bhikkhus (&c., as before, down to) revoked for him.

[This chapter is exactly the converse of the last.]

Here end the eighteen cases in which there ought to be a revocation (of the Tagganiya-kamma).

1. 'Now, thus, O Bhikkhus, should the revocation be carried out. Those Bhikkhus who are followers of Panduka and Lohitaka should go before the Samgha, with their upper robe arranged over one shoulder, and should bow down at the feet of the elder Bhikkhus, and squatting down, and raising their hands with the palms joined together, should speak as follows: "We, Sirs, have been subjected by the Samgha to the Tagganiya-kamma, and are conducting ourselves aright in accordance thereto; and we have become subdued, and we seek for release, and beg for a revocation of the Tagganiya-kamma.” And a second time they should beg [in the same words]. And a third time they should beg [in the same words]. Then a discreet and able Bhikkhu should lay the matter before the Samgha:

2. “Let the venerable Samgha hear me. These Bhikkhus who are followers of Panduka and Lohitaka have been subjected (&c., as before), and they are conducting themselves (&c., as before), and they beg (&c., as before).

“This is the motion (natti).

“Let the venerable Samgha hear me. These Bhikkhus (&c., as before, down to) and they beg for a revocation of the Tagganiya-kamma. The Samgha revokes the Tagganiya-kamma for the Bhikkhus who are followers of Panduka and Lohitaka. Whosoever of the venerable ones approves of the revocation of the Tagganiya-kamma for the Bhikkhus who are followers of Panduka and Lohitaka, let him hold his peace. Whosoever approves not thereof, let him speak.

“And a second time I say the same thing. Let the venerable Samgha (&c., as before, down to) let him speak.

“And a third time I say the same thing. Let the venerable Samgha (&c., as before, down to) let him speak.

“The revocation of the Tagganiya-kamma for the Bhikkhus who are followers of Panduka and Lohitaka has been carried by the Samgha. The Samgha approves; therefore is it silent. Thus do I understand.”

Here ends the first (Kamma), the Tagganiya-kamma.
II. The Nissaya-kamma (Act of Subordination).

9.

1. Now at that time the venerable Seyyasaka was stupid, and indiscreet, and full of faults, and devoid of merit, and was living in lay society in unlawful association with the world\(^1\). So much so that the Bhikkhus were worn out\(^2\) with placing him on probation\(^3\), and with throwing him back to the beginning (of his probationary term)\(^4\), and with subjecting him to the mānatta discipline\(^5\), and with rehabilitating him\(^6\). The moderate Bhikkhus were annoyed, and murmured, and became indignant

---

\(^1\) There is no rule in the Pātimokkhā in which any of these things are declared to be an offence. The 31st and 85th Pāṭītiyas only refer to a Bhikkhu’s staying an unreasonable time in a public rest-house, and to his frequenting a village beyond the ordinary occasions. Stupidity, and keeping low company, are not mentioned. Why then should Seyyasaka have been placed upon probation? We think the answer will appear from our note \(1\) on II, i, 1.

\(^2\) Pa-katā, ‘done up,’ explained by vāvari. See Oldenberg’s quotation from Buddhaghosa at \(p. 310\) of his edition of the text.

\(^4\) See below, II, 2, 1. Compare also Subhūti’s explanation in Childers, and the passages quoted in the index to Oldenberg’s edition of the text, \(p. 348\), sub voce, especially Kullavagga III, 7.

(saying), 'How can the venerable Seyyasaka be so stupid (&c., as before), that the Bhikkhus are worn out (&c., as before) ?'

Then those Bhikkhus told that matter to the Blessed One.

And the Blessed One on that occasion, and in that connection, convened a meeting of the Bhikkhu-samgha, and asked the Bhikkhus, 'Is it true, O Bhikkhus, as they say, that the venerable Seyyasaka is stupid (&c., as before, down to) with rehabilitating him?'

'It is true, Lord!'

The Blessed Buddha rebuked him (saying), 'This is improper' (&c., as usual, compare I, 2, 3, down to), and addressed the Bhikkhus, and said, 'Let the Samgha therefore, O Bhikkhus, carry out the Nissaya-kamma (Act of Subordination) against the venerable Seyyasaka: "Thou must remain under the superintendence of others.'

2. 'Now thus, O Bhikkhus, should it be carried out. In the first place the Bhikkhu Seyyasaka ought to be warned; when he has been warned, he ought to be reminded; when he has been reminded, he ought to be charged with the offence; when he has been charged with the offence, some discreet and able Bhikkhu ought to lay the matter before the Samgha (saying),

"Let the venerable Samgha hear me (&c., as usual; see above, chapters 1. 4 and 8. 2)."

1 These are the distinctive and technical words of the Nissaya-kamma, just as the corresponding clause in chap. 13, § 7 contains the technical words of the Pabbāganiya-kamma.

2 As explained above, chap. 1. 4.
10.

[Chapters 2–5 are here repeated at length, Nissaya-kamma being substituted throughout for Tagganiya-kamma.]

11.

1. So the Samgha carried out the Nissaya-kamma against the Bhikkhu Seyyasaka (saying), 'Thou must remain under the superintendence of others.'

And he, when subjected by the Samgha to the Nissaya-kamma, by resorting to and cultivating the acquaintance of good companions, associating with them, getting them to declare to him (the Dhamma), and asking them questions, became wise in the traditions; a man to whom the Nikâyas had been handed down; a reciter of the Dhamma, of the Vinaya, and of the Mâtikas; clever, discreet, wise, modest, full of remorse, and docile; he conducted himself aright; he became subdued, he sought for release, and going up to the Bhikkhus, he spake as follows:

'I, Sirs, after having been subjected by the Samgha to the Nissaya-kamma, am conducting myself aright, and have become subdued, and I seek for release. What now should I do?'

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'Then, O Bhikkhus, let the Samgha revoke the Nissaya-kamma for the Bhikkhu Seyyasaka.'

Here ends the second (Kamma), the Nissaya-kamma.
III. The Pabbāganiya-kamma (Act of Banishment).

131.

1. Now at that time the Bhikkhus who were followers of Assagi and Punabbasu were dwelling on the Kitā Hill, wicked Bhikkhus, and shameless. Such as these were the evil practices they followed: they used to plant cuttings of flowers, and have them planted; they used to water flowers, and have them watered; they used to gather them, and have them gathered; they used to make them up into nosegays, and have them so made up; they used to make them up, and to have them made up, into wreaths, of the kind with the stalks together, and of the kind with the stalks separate², of the kind called maṅgarikā³, of the kind called vidhūtikā⁴, of the kind called vaṭamsaka⁵, of the kind and all these together in every combination.

2. And they used to amuse themselves at games³ with eight pieces and ten pieces, and with tossing and removing substances from a heap without shaking the remainder; and with games at dice, and trap-ball; and with sketching rude figures, they practised.

spent the rainy season in the country of Kāsi, and was on his way to visit the Blessed One, arrived at the Kītā Hill. And that Bhikkhu in the early morning put on his under garment, and went, duly in coming out, in looking or in watching, in bending in his arm or in stretching it forth.

Then the people on beholding that Bhikkhu, said, „Who is this fellow like a fool of fools, or like an idiot of idiots, or like a simpleton of simpletons? Who would give an alms when this fellow comes near! Now our own masters, the followers of Assagi and Punabbasu, are gentle, friendly, pleasant in speech, radiant with smiles, by no means fools, but open in countenance, and the first to speak. To such now it is fit to give an alms!“

And a certain lay-disciple saw that Bhikkhu as he was going along the Kitā Hill for alms. And on seeing him, he went up to the place where he was; and on coming there he said to that Bhikkhu:

„Has your reverence received an alms?“

„No, my friend, I have received no alms!“

„Come, your reverence! Let us go to my house!“

4. So the lay-disciple took the Bhikkhu to his house, and gave him to eat, and asked him:

„Whither then is your reverence going?“

„I am on my way to Sāvatthi, my friend, to visit the Blessed One.“

„Then let your reverence bow down at the feet of the Blessed One in my name, and say, „The residence on the Kitā Hill, Lord, has been spoiled. The Bhikkhus who are followers of Assagi and Punabbasu are dwelling on the Kitā Hill, wicked Bhikkhus, and shameless. Such as these are the evil practices they follow (&c., as in §§ 1, 2, down to the end). And people, Lord, who were formerly believers and full of faith, are now become non-believers and void of faith; the opportunities of alms that were formerly open to the Samgha are now destroyed; worthy Bhikkhus forsake, and wicked Bhikkhus dwell in the place. Let, Lord, the Blessed One be pleased to send (other) Bhikkhus to the Kitā Hill in order that the residence there may be re-established.”

5. 'Very well, my friend,' said the Bhikkhu, in assent, to that lay-disciple. And rising from his seat, he set out for Sāvatthi, and went straight on to Anātha-piṇḍika's grove, to the Getavana in Sāvatthi, to the place where the Blessed One was staying. And on arriving there he saluted the Blessed One, and took his seat on one side.

Now it is the custom for the Blessed Buddhas to exchange words of greeting with in-coming Bhikkhus. And the Blessed One said to that Bhikkhu, 'Do things go well with you, O Bhikkhu? Have you enough for your support? Have you accomplished your journey without too much fatigue? And whence, O Bhikkhu, have you come?'

'Things go well with me, Lord. I have enough for my support. And I have accomplished my journey without too much fatigue. I have spent the rainy season, Lord, in the land of Kāsi; and on my way to Sāvatthi to visit the Blessed One I arrived at the Kitā Hill. And after having dressed early in the morning, I went, Lord, duly bowled and robed, on to the Kitā Hill for alms. And a certain lay-disciple saw me (&c., as above, down to the end of § 4, with the alterations necessary to the narrative form of speech). Thence, Lord, am I come.'

6. Then the Blessed One on that occasion, and in that connection, convened a meeting of the Bhikkhu-Samgha, and asked the Bhikkhus:

'Is it true, O Bhikkhus, as they say, that those Bhikkhus who are followers of Assagī and Punabbasu, and are dwelling on the Kiṭā Hill, are wicked Bhikkhus, and shameless; and that such are the evil practices they follow (&c., as in § 4, down to the end)?'

'Is it true, Lord.'

The Blessed Buddha rebuked them, saying, 'How can they, O Bhikkhus, foolish persons that they are, follow such practices as these (&c., as in §§ 1, 2, down to the end)? This will not conduce, O Bhikkhus, to the conversion of the unconverted (&c., as usual. Compare chap. 1, § 2, down to the end).'

And when the Blessed Buddha had rebuked them, and had delivered a religious discourse, he addressed the venerable Sāriputta and Moggallāna, and said, 'Go now, Sāriputta and Moggallāna, to the Kiṭā Hill. And on arriving there carry out the Pabbāganiya-kamma (Act of Banishment) against those Bhikkhus who are followers of Assagī and Punabbasu, to the effect that they may become your Saddhi-vihārikas.'

'So be it, Lord!' said Sâriputta and Moggallâna, in assent, to the Blessed One.

7. 'Now thus, O Bhikkhus, should it be carried out. In the first place the Bhikkhus who are followers of Assagi and Punabbasu ought to be warned: when they have been warned, they ought to be reminded (of the Rule in the Pâtîmokkha against which they have offended); when they have been reminded they ought to be charged with the offence; when they have been charged some discreet and able Bhikkhu ought to lay the matter before the Samgha, saying, of Assagi and Punabbasu, to the intent that those Bhikkhus should no longer dwell on the Kītā Hill. And they, when subjected by the Samgha to the Pabbāganiya-kamma, did not conduct themselves aright, they did not become subdued, they did not seek for release, they did not ask the Bhikkhus for forgiveness, they reviled them, they found fault with them, saying that they were offending by acting in partiality, in ill-feeling, in folly, and in fear; and they not only departed from the place, but also left the Order.

Those Bhikkhus who were moderate were offended, murmured, and became indignant, saying, ‘How can those Bhikkhus who are followers of Assagi and Punabbasu, after having been subjected by the Samgha to the Pabbāganiya-kamma, refuse to conduct themselves aright (&c., as before, down to) leave the Order?’ And those Bhikkhus told the matter to the Blessed One.

Then the Blessed One on that occasion, and in that connection, convened a meeting of the Bhikkhus, and asked the Bhikkhus:

‘Is it true, O Bhikkhus, as they say, that those Bhikkhus who are followers of Assagi and Punabbasu, after having been subjected by the Samgha to the Pabbāganiya-kamma, refuse (&c., as before, down to) leave the Order?’

And when the Blessed One had rebuked those Bhikkhus in various ways, and had delivered a religious discourse, he addressed the Bhikkhus, and said:

'Then, O Bhikkhus, let not the Samgha revoke the Pabbâganiya-kamma. There are five things, O Bhikkhus (&c., as before, from chapter 6, § 2, down to the end of chapter 7, reading Pabbâganiya for Tagganiya).'

1. Now at that time the venerable Sudhamma was residing at Makkhikâsanda in dependence upon Kitta the householder, superintending the new buildings he erected, and being constantly supplied by him with food. And whenever Kitta the householder wished to give an invitation to the Samgha, or to four or five Bhikkhus, or to a single one, he used not to invite them without making special mention of the venerable Sudhamma.

Now at that time a number of the Thera Bhikkhus, including the venerable Sâriputta, and the venerable Mahâ Moggallâna, and the venerable Mahâ Kakkâna, and the venerable Mahâ Kotthita, and the venerable Mahâ Kappina, and the venerable Mahâ Kunda, and the venerable Anuruddha, and the venerable Revata, and the venerable Upâli, and the venerable Ânanda, and the venerable Râhula, as they were journeying through the country of Kâsi, arrived at Makkhikâsanda. And Kitta the householder heard the news that the Thera Bhikkhus had arrived at Makkhi-

Then Kitta the householder went up to the place where the Thera Bhikkhus were, and on arriving there, he saluted the Thera Bhikkhus, and took his seat on one side. And when he was so seated the venerable Sâriputta taught Kitta the householder, and incited him, and roused him, and gladdened him with religious discourse. And Kitta the householder, having been thus taught, and incited, and roused, and gladdened with religious discourse, said to the Thera Bhikkhus, 'May the venerable Theras consent to take their to-morrow's meal, as incoming Bhikkhus, at my house.' And the Thera Bhikkhus signified, by silence, their consent.

2. Then perceiving that the Thera Bhikkhus had given their consent, Kitta the householder rose from his seat, and bowed down before the Thera Bhikkhus, and keeping them on his right hand as he passed them, went on to the place where the venerable Sudhamma was. And on arriving there, he saluted the venerable Sudhamma, and stood by on one side. And so standing, Kitta the householder said to the venerable Sudhamma: 'May the venerable Sudhamma consent to take his to-morrow's meal at my house with the Theras.'

But the venerable Sudhamma, thinking, 'Formerly indeed this Kitta the householder, whenever he wished to give an invitation to the Samgha, or to four or five Bhikkhus, or to a single one, used not to invite them without making special mention of me; but now he has invited the Thera Bhikkhus without regarding me. This Kittā the householder is now incensed against me, unfavourable to me, takes pleasure in me no longer.’ And so thinking he refused, saying, ‘It is enough, O householder.’

And a second time Kittā the householder said to the venerable Sudhamma (&c., as before, with the same result). And a third time (&c., as before, with the same result).

Then Kittā the householder, thinking, ‘What can the venerable Sudhamma do against me, whether he consents, or whether he does not consent,’ saluted the venerable Sudhamma, and keeping him on his right hand as he passed him, departed thence.

3. And at the end of the night Kittā the householder made ready sweet food, both hard and soft, for the Thera Bhikkhus. And the venerable Su-dhamma, thinking, ‘I may as well go and see what Kittā the householder has made ready for the Thera Bhikkhus,’ robed himself early in the morning, and went, duly bowled and robed, to the place where Kittā the householder dwelt; and, on arriving there, he took his seat on a mat spread out for him.

Then Kittā the householder went up to the place where the venerable Sudhamma was; and after he had come there, he saluted the venerable Sudhamma, and took his seat on one side. And when he was so seated the venerable Sudhamma addressed Kittā the householder, and said: ‘Though this great store of sweet food, both hard and soft, has been made ready by you, O householder, there is one thing yet wanting, that is to say, tila seed cake.’
‘Though then, Sir, there is so much treasure in the ward of the Buddhas, yet there is but one thing of which the venerable Sudhamma makes mention, and that is tila seed cake. Long ago, Sir, certain merchants of Dakkhināpatha went, for the sake of their traffic, to the country of the East, and thence they brought back a hen. Now, Sir, that hen made acquaintance with a crow, and gave birth to a chicken. And, Sir, whenever that chicken tried to utter the cry of a cock it gave vent to a “caw,” and whenever it tried to utter the cry of a crow, it gave vent to a “cock-a-doodle-do.” Just even so, Sir, though there is much treasure in the ward of the Buddhas, whenever the venerable Sudhamma speaks, the sound is “tila seed cake.”’

4. ‘You are abusing me, householder. You are finding fault with me, householder. This place, householder, is yours. I must go away from it,’ said the venerable Sudhamma.

‘I do not intend, Sir, to abuse the venerable Sudhamma, nor to find fault with him. Let, Sir, the venerable Sudhamma still dwell at Makkhikāsanda. Pleasant is this grove of plum trees, and I shall take good care to provide the venerable Sudhamma with those things a recluse requires—to wit, with robes and food and lodging and medicine when he is sick.’

And a second time the venerable Sudhamma said: ‘You are abusing me (&c., as before, with the same reply). And a third time the venerable Sudhamma said: ‘You are abusing me (&c., as before, down to) I must go away from it.’

'Whither then, Sir, will the venerable Sudhamma go?'
'I shall go to Sâvatthi, O householder, to visit the Blessed One.'
'Then, Sir, let the Blessed One know all, both what you yourself have said, and what I have said. And I should not, Sir, be surprised if the venerable Sudhamma were to return again even to Makkhikâsanda.'

5. So the venerable Sudhamma gathered together his sleeping mat, and set out, with his bowl and his robe, for Sâvatthi. And he journeyed straight on to Sâvatthi, to the Getavana, Anâthapindâka's Grove, to the place where the Blessed One was; and on arriving there he bowed down before the Blessed One, and took his seat on one side. And when he was thus seated the venerable Sudhamma informed the Blessed One of all, both that he himself had said, and that Kîta the householder had said.

The Blessed Buddha rebuked him, saying, 'This was improper, O foolish one, not according to rule, unsuitable, unworthy of a Samana, and ought not to have been done. How is it that you, O foolish one, could put down\(^1\) and could lower by your censure\(^2\) Kîta the householder, he being a man of faith, a believing disciple, and a donor, a provider, and a supporter of the Samgha?' This will not conduce, O foolish one, either to the conversion of the unconverted, or to the increase of the converted; but rather to the unconverted not being converted, and to the turning back of those who have been converted.' And after he had rebuked him, and had delivered a religious discourse, he addressed the Bhikkhus, and said: 'Let therefore the Samgha, O Bhikkhus, carry out the Patisâraniya-kamma (Act of Reconciliation)¹ against the Bhikkhu Sudhamma, saying, "You are to ask and obtain pardon of Kittā the householder."

6. 'Now thus, O Bhikkhus, should it be carried out. In the first place the Bhikkhu Sudhamma ought to be warned: when he has been warned, he ought to be reminded (of the Rule in the Pâtimokkha against which he has offended); when he has been reminded, he ought to be charged with the offence; when he has been charged with the offence, some discreet and able Bhikkhu ought to lay the matter before the Samgha, saying,

"Let the venerable Samgha hear me. This Bhikkhu Sudhamma has put down, and has lowered by censure Kittā the householder, a man of faith, a believing disciple, a donor, provider and supporter of the Samgha. If the time is fit for the Samgha to do so, let the Samgha carry out the Patisâraniya-kamma against the Bhikkhu Sudhamma.

"Let the venerable Samgha hear me. This Bhikkhu (&c., as before, down to) supporter of the Samgha. The Samgha hereby carries out the Patisârâniya-kamma against the Bhikkhu Sudhamma with the words, 'You are to ask and obtain pardon of Kitta the householder.' Whosoever of the venerable ones approves of the carrying out of the Patisârâniya-kamma against Sudhamma the Bhikkhu, let him remain silent. Whosoever approves not thereof, let him speak.

"A second time I say the same thing. Let the venerable Samgha (&c., as before). A third time I say the same thing.' Let the venerable Samgha (&c., as before).

"The Patisârâniya-kamma has been carried out against the Bhikkhu Sudhamma with the words, 'You are to ask and obtain pardon of Kitta the householder.' The Samgha approves the motion. Therefore is it silent. Thus do I understand."

[Here the twelve cases of a proceeding against, and the twelve cases of a proceeding according to law are repeated of the Patisârâniya-kamma in the words of chapters 2 and 3 of the Taggâniya-kamma.]

20.

1. 'There are five things, O Bhikkhus, which when they characterise a Bhikkhu, the Samgha, if it likes, should carry out the Patisârâniya-kamma against him; (that is to say), when he goes about to bring

loss on the laity—when he goes about to do harm to the laity—when he goes about to deprive the laity of their dwellings—when he reviles and finds fault with the laity—when he brings about division between the laity. These are the five things, O Bhikkhus, which (&c., as above, down to) against him.

‘There are other five things, O Bhikkhus, which when they characterise a Bhikkhu, the Samgha, if it likes, should carry out the Patisāraniya-kamma against him; (that is to say), when he speaks to the laity in dispraise of the Buddha—when he speaks to the laity in dispraise of the Dhamma—when he speaks to the laity in dispraise of the Samgha—when he puts laymen down, and lowers them by censure—when he does not fulfil a promise made in accordance with the Rules to the laity. These are the other five things, O Bhikkhus, which (&c., as before, down to) against him.

‘There are five kinds of Bhikkhus, O Bhikkhus, against whom the Samgha, if it likes, should carry out the Patisāraniya-kamma; (that is to say), one who goes about to bring loss on the laity (&c., as in the last paragraph, down to the end).’

Here end the four times five cases of suspicion.

1. So the Samgha carried out the Patisāraniyakamma against Sudhamma the Bhikkhu, saying, 'You are to ask and obtain pardon of Kittta the householder. And after he had been subjected by the Samgha to the Patisāraniya-kamma, though he went to Makkkhikāsanda, he was unable, being greatly troubled in his mind, to ask and obtain pardon of Kittta the householder, but returned again even to Sāvatthi.

Then the Bhikkhus asked him, 'Has Kittta the householder been induced by you to give you his pardon?'

'Indeed, though I went to Makkkhikāsanda, I was unable, being greatly troubled in my mind, to ask and obtain pardon of Kittta the householder.' They told this thing to the Blessed One.

2. 'Let, then, the Samgha, O Bhikkhus, appoint a companion messenger to Sudhamma the Bhikkhu, to ask and obtain pardon of Kittta the householder.

'Now thus, O Bhikkhu, should the companion-messenger be appointed. In the first place the Bhikkhu (who is to be sent) is to be asked (whether he is willing to go). After he has been asked, let some discreet and able Bhikkhu lay the matter before the Samgha, as follows:

'“Let the venerable Samgha hear me. If the time seems meet to the venerable Samgha, let the Samgha appoint such and such a Bhikkhu as a companion messenger to Sudhamma the Bhikkhu, to ask and obtain pardon of Kittta the householder.

'“This is the motion (ñatti).
"Let the venerable Samgha hear me. The Samgha hereby appoints such and such a Bhikkhu as a companion messenger to Sudhamma the Bhikkhu, to ask and obtain pardon of Kitta the householder. Whosoever of the venerable ones approves of such and such a Bhikkhu being appointed as a companion messenger to Sudhamma the Bhikkhu, let him remain silent. Whosoever approves not thereof, let him speak.

"Such and such a Bhikkhu has been appointed by the Samgha (&c., as before). The Samgha approves thereof. Therefore is it silent. Thus do I understand."

3. 'Then, O Bhikkhus, let Sudhamma the Bhikkhu go, together with the Bhikkhu who is the companion messenger, to Makkhikasanda, and ask pardon of Kitta the householder, saying, "Pardon me, O householder; I desire to gain once more thy good pleasure." If, when he thus speaks, he pardons him, it is well. If he pardon him not, the Bhikkhu who is the companion messenger should say, "Pardon him, O householder; he desires to gain once more thy good pleasure." If, when he thus speaks, he pardon him, it is well. If he pardon him not, the Bhikkhu who is the companion messenger should say, "Pardon him, O householder; I desire to gain thy good pleasure." If, when he thus speaks, he pardon him, it is well. If he pardon him not, the Bhikkhu who is the companion messenger should say, "Grant pardon, O householder, to this Bhikkhu, in the name of the Samgha (I ask it)." If (&c., as before, down to). If he pardon him not, the Bhikkhu who is the companion messenger—without going out of sight, and without going out of hearing, of Kitta the householder—should make Sudhamma the Bhikkhu arrange his robe on one shoulder, and squat down on his heels, and stretch forth his two hands with the palms together, and so confess his fault.'

1. So the venerable Sudhamma went, with another Bhikkhu as companion messenger, to Makkhikāsanda, and obtained pardon of Kitta the householder. And he conducted himself aright, and he became subdued, and he sought for release (&c., as above, in chapters 6, 7, down to the end).

Here end the eighteen cases in which there ought to be a revocation of the Patisāraniya-kamma.

[In this chapter the Kammavākā of the revocation of the Patisāraniya-kamma is given in words precisely similar to those of chapters 8 and 12.]

Here ends the fourth (Kamma), the Patisāraniya-kamma.
V. The Ukkhepaniya-kammās (Acts of Suspension) for not acknowledging, and for not atoning for, an offence.

25.

1. Now at that time the Blessed Buddha was dwelling at Kosambī, in the Ghosita Arama. And at that time the venerable Khānna, when he had committed a fault, was not willing to acknowledge the fault. Those Bhikkhus who were moderate were annoyed, murmured, and became indignant, saying, 'How can the venerable Khānna act so?' And those Bhikkhus told the matter to the Blessed One.

Then the Blessed One on that occasion, and in that connection, after he had convened a meeting of the Bhikkhu-samgha, asked the Bhikkhus:

'Is it true, O Bhikkhus, as they say, that Khānna

1 There is no mention in the Pātimokkha of any such proceeding. At the close of each of the four Pādesaniya Rules there is a form of confession to be observed. It would seem from the following chapters, which are nowhere expressly confined to these four cases, that a similar confession was expected after the commission of an offence against any of the Pātimokkha Rules. In the closing words of the Samghādisesa Rules, an older proceeding is mentioned, under which an offending Bhikkhu who has not confessed any breach of either of those thirteen Rules is to remain on probation for as many days as he has allowed to go by without confessing.

2 On Khānna's character, see also below, IV, 14, 1, XI, 1, 12-14, and Mahā-parinibbāna Sutta VI, 4.
when he has committed a fault, is not willing to acknowledge the fault?'

'It is true, Lord!'
The Blessed Buddha rebuked him, saying, 'How, O Bhikkhus, can that foolish one act so? This will not conduce either to the conversion of the unconverted, or to the increase of the converted; but rather to those who have not been converted being not converted, and to the turning back of those who have been converted.'

And when the Blessed One had so rebuked him, and had delivered a religious discourse, he addressed the Bhikkhus and said: 'Let therefore the Samgha, O Bhikkhus, carry out against Khanna the Bhikkhu the âpattiya adassane Ukkhepaniya-kamma (the Act of Suspension which follows on not acknowledging a fault) to the intent that he shall not eat or dwell together with the Samgha.¹

'Now thus, O Bhikkhus, should it be carried out.' [Here follow the formal words of the Kamma-vâkâ as in chapter 1. 4, with the necessary alterations owing to the difference of the fault and of the Kamma following on it. And at the end of the Kamma-vâkâ (after the words 'Thus I understand') the following sentence is added.]

'And send a proclamation, O Bhikkhus, from residence to residence²; saying, 'Khanna the Bhikkhu has been subjected by the Samgha to the Ukkhepaniya-kamma for not acknowledging a fault.'”

² On this phrase the Samanta Pâsâdikâ says, Âvâsa-paramparañ ka bhikkhave samsathâ ti sabbâvâsesu āroketha.
26.

[Here follow the twelve cases in which a Kamma is against the law, and the twelve in which it is according to law; and also the six permissive cases in which it may be carried out, if the Sāṅgha likes, precisely as in chapters 2, 3, and 4.]

27.

1. ‘A Bhikkhu against whom the Ukkhepaninya-kamma that follows on not acknowledging a fault has been carried out ought to conduct himself aright. And herein this is the right conduct: he ought not to confer the upasampadā—he ought not to give a nissaya—he ought not to provide himself with a sāmanera—he ought not to accept the office of giving exhortation to the nuns—if he have accepted that office, he ought not to exhort the nuns—he ought not to commit the offence for which the Ukkhepaniya-kamma that follows on not acknowledging a fault has been carried out against him—nor any offence of a similar kind—nor any worse offence—he ought not to find fault with the proceeding (that has been carried out against him)—nor with (the Bhikkhus) who have carried it out—he ought not to accept from a regular Bhikkhu reverence, or he ought not to harass a regular Bhikkhu with a complaint that he has failed in morality, or in conduct, or in doctrine, or in the mode of obtaining a livelihood—he ought not to cause division between a Bhikkhu and the Bhikkhus—he ought not to wear the outward signs of being a layman, or of being a follower of some other doctrine⁶—he ought not to follow the professors of other doctrines—he ought to follow the Bhikkhus—he ought to train himself in the training of the Bhikkhus— he ought not to dwell under one and the same roof with a regular Bhikkhu, whether in a place formally declared to be a residence, or to be not a residence, or in a place which is neither the one nor the other,—on seeing a regular Bhikkhu he ought to rise from his seat—he ought not to touch⁷ a regular Bhikkhu, either inside or outside (of the residence)—he ought not to raise objections against a regular Bhikkhu’s taking part in the Uposatha ceremony⁸—or in the Pavâranâ

1. So the Samgha carried out against Khanna the Bhikkhu the Ukkhepaniya-kamma for not acknowledging a fault to the effect that he should not eat or dwell together with the Samgha. And after he had been subjected by the Samgha to the Ukkhepaniya-kamma for not acknowledging his fault he went from that residence to another residence. And the Bhikkhus there did no reverence to him, rose not from their seats to welcome him, rendered him not service, offered him not salutation, paid not respect to him, offered him not hospitality, nor esteemed him, nor honoured him, nor supported him. And when he received from the Bhikkhus neither hospitality, nor welcome, nor esteem, nor honour, nor support, he went from that residence to another residence. And the Bhikkhus there did no reverence to him, rose not from their seats to welcome him, rendered him not service (&c., as before, down to :) he went from that residence to another residence. And when he received no hospitality he returned back again even to Kosambī. Then he conducted himself aright, and he became subdued, and he sought for release, and going up to the Bhikkhus he spake as follows: 'I, Sirs, having been subjected by the Samgha to the Ukkhepaniya-kamma am conducting myself aright in accordance thereto, and I am become subdued, and I seek for release. What now should I do?'

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'Then, O Bhikkhus, let the Samgha revoke the Ukkhepaniya-kamma for not acknowledging his fault carried out against Khanna the Bhikkhu.

2. 'There are five things, O Bhikkhus, [&c., the rest of this section bearing the same relation to the last, which chapter 6, § 2, does to chapter 5.]

Here end the forty-three cases [in which an Ukkhepaniya-kamma for not acknowledging a fault is not to be revoked].

'There are five things, O Bhikkhus, [&c., as in chapter 7. This chapter being the exact opposite of chapter 28.]

Here end the forty-three cases [in which an Ukkhepaniya-kamma for not acknowledging a fault ought to be revoked].
30.

Here ends the fifth Kamma, namely, the Ukkhepaniya-kamma for not acknowledging a fault.

Now at that time the Blessed Buddha was dwelling at Kosambî, in the Ghosita Ârama. And at that time the venerable Khanna, when he had committed a fault, was not willing to atone for that fault [&c., the proceeding in this case being the same, and laid down in the same words as the proceeding in the last case, chapters 25–30].

Here ends the sixth Kamma; namely, the Ukkhepaniya-kamma on not atoning for a fault.¹

VI. The Ukkhepaniya-Kamma for not renouncing a sinful doctrine.

1. Now at that time the Blessed Buddha was staying at Sāvatthi, in the Gātavana, the grove of Anāthapindika. And at that time a certain Bhikkhu by name Arītha, who had formerly been a vulture tormentor\(^1\), had fallen into a sinful belief of this kind; (that is to say), 'In this wise do I understand the Dhamma preached by the Blessed One, that to him who practises those things which have been declared by the Blessed One to be impediments\(^2\).

\(^1\) In his commentary on the Pāṭhāsāha, quoted by Oldenberg in his note on this passage, Buddhaghosa explains this expression to mean 'born in a family of vulture slayers.' This does not help us much, vulture slaying as a regular occupation being somewhat incomprehensible, and not referred to elsewhere. Whatever its meaning, the occupation referred to is perhaps the origin of, or should at least be compared with, the statement of Ktesias (circa B.C. 400) in his 'Indika' (ed. C. Müller, Fragment xiii), that the Indians used not dogs but vultures, which they trained for that purpose, in hunting hares and foxes. Lassen in his 'Indische Alterthumskunde,' II, 638, 639, thinks this statement not incredible, very fairly comparing the use of falcons in Europe in the Middle Ages. It is not impossible that the correct rendering here should be 'vulture-catcher,' or 'vulture-trainer,' but we prefer to be literal.

\(^2\) The only one of such things (Dhammā) known to us elsewhere in the Vinaya Piṭaka itself is deliberate falsehood. This is stated in Mahāvagga II, 3, 3 to be an impediment, which is explained by the Old Commentator, at Mahāvagga II, 3, 7, to mean an impediment to the attainment of the Gāhānas, and other things of similar nature.
there will arise no impediment sufficient (to prevent his acquiring spiritual gifts)\(^1\).

Now many Bhikkhus heard that Arittha, who had formerly (&c., as before, down to:) to be impediments. And those Bhikkhus went up to the place where Arittha the Bhikkhu, who had formerly been a vulture tormentor, was; and on arriving there they asked Arittha the Bhikkhu, who had formerly been a vulture tormentor, 'Is it true, friend Arittha, as they say, that you have fallen into a sinful belief (&c., as above, down to) spiritual gifts?'

'Certainly\(^2\)! I do so understand the Dhamma preached by the Blessed One (&c., as before).

2. 'Say, not so, friend Arittha. Bear not false-witness against the Blessed One. For neither is it seemly to bring a false accusation against the Blessed One, nor could the Blessed One have spoken so. By many a figure, friend Arittha, have the things which are impediments been declared to be impediments by the Blessed One, and also to be sufficient to prevent him who cultivates them (from attaining to spiritual gifts)\(^3\). Lusts have been declared by the Blessed One to be of short taste\(^4\), full of pain, and full of despair, things wherein the danger is great. Lusts have been declared by the Blessed One to be like the bones of a skeleton, full of pain, and full of despair, things wherein the danger is

\(^1\) This is word for word the same speech as that which is condemned in the 68th and 70th Pâkîtiyas.

\(^2\) Byâ is only known to us as an intensive particle occurring in passages like the present one.

\(^3\) So far this section is word for word the same as the 68th and the 70th Pâkîtiyas.

\(^4\) Quoted at Dhammapada, ver. 186.
great. Lusts have been declared by the Blessed One to be like lumps of raw meat, full (&c., as before, down to:) is great. Lusts have been declared by the Blessed One to be like torches made of a wisp of hay..., like a pit full of live coals¹..., like the visions of a dream..., like a beggar’s portion..., like the fruits of trees..., like the sword and the slaughter-house..., like darts and clubs..., like snakes and creeping things, full of pain, and full of despair, things wherein the danger is great.'

Yet notwithstanding that Bhikkhu Arittha, who had formerly been a vulture tormentor, when thus being addressed by the Bhikkhus, remained steadfastly adhering, in the very same way, and with violence, to that sinful doctrine, declaring, 'Verily I do so understand the Dhamma preached by the Blessed One (&c., as before, in § 1).

3. Then since those Bhikkhus were unable to move Arittha the Bhikkhu, who had formerly been a vulture tormentor, from that sinful doctrine, they went up to the place where the Blessed One was; and when they had come there, they told this thing to the Blessed One.

And the Blessed One on that occasion, and in that connection, convened a meeting of the Bhikkhu-samgha, and asked Arittha the Bhikkhu, who had formerly been a vulture tormentor, 'Is it true, as they say, Arittha, that you have fallen into a sinful doctrine of such a kind (&c., as before, in § 1)?'

‘How can you, O foolish one, so understand the Dhamma preached by me? Have I not, by many a figure, O foolish one, declared the things which are impediments to be impediments, and sufficient to prevent him who cultivates them (from attaining to spiritual gifts)? Have not lusts been by me declared to be of short taste (&c., as above, down to :) like snakes and creeping things, full of danger, full of despair, things wherein the danger is great? Yet now you, O foolish one, by your having grasped that doctrine wrongly, are not only bearing false-witness against us, but you are also rooting yourself up, and are giving rise to much demerit, the which will be to you for a long time for an evil and a woe. This will not conduce, O foolish one, either to the conversion of the unconverted, or to the increase of the converted; but rather to those who are unconverted not being converted, and to the turning back of those who have been converted.

When he had thus rebuked him, and had delivered a religious discourse, he addressed the Bhikkhus, and said: ‘Let therefore the Samgha, O Bhikkhus, carry out against Arittha the Bhikkhu, who was formerly a vulture tormentor, the Ukkhepaniya-kamma for not renouncing a sinful doctrine, to the intent that he shall not eat or dwell together with the Samgha.’

4. ‘Now thus, O Bhikkhus, should it be carried out. In the first place the Bhikkhu Arittha ought

[Here follow the twelve cases in which the Kamma is against the law, the twelve cases in which it is according to law, the six permissive cases in which it can be carried out if the Samgha likes, and the eighteen divisions of the right conduct for the convicted Bhikkhu to pursue, precisely as in chapters 2, 3, 4, and 5, reading 'Ukkhepaniya-kamma for not renouncing a sinful doctrine,' instead of 'Tagganiya-kamma.']->

1. So the Samgha carried out against Arittha the Bhikkhu, who had formerly been a vulture tormentor, the Ukkhepaniya-kamma for not renouncing a sinful doctrine, to the intent that he should not eat nor dwell with the Samgha. And when he had been thus subjected by the Samgha to the Ukkhepaniya-kamma for not renouncing a sinful doctrine, he left the Order.

Those Bhikkhus who were moderate were annoyed, murmured, and became indignant, saying, 'How can Arittha the Bhikkhu, having been subjected by the Samgha to the Ukkhepaniya-kamma for not renouncing a sinful doctrine, leave the Order?' And those Bhikkhus told the matter to the Blessed One.

Then the Blessed One on that occasion, and in that connection, convened a meeting of the Bhikkhu-samgha, and asked the Bhikkhus, 'Is it true, O Bhikkhus, as they say, that Arittha the Bhikkhu, having been subjected (&c., as before, down to) left the Order?'

'It is true, Lord.'

The Blessed Buddha rebuked him, saying, 'How can Arittha the Bhikkhu (&c., as before, down to) leave the Order? This will not conduce either to the conversion of the unconverted, nor to the increase of the converted; but rather to those who have not been converted not being converted, and to the turning back of those who have been converted.'

And when he had rebuked him, and delivered a religious discourse, the Blessed One addressed the Bhikkhus, and said: 'Let then the Samgha, O Bhikkhus, revoke the Ukkhepaniya-kamma for not renouncing a sinful doctrine, which has been carried out against Arittha the Bhikkhu.

'There are five things, O Bhikkhus, [&c., as before, in chapters 6 and 7, down to the end.]

Here end the eighteen cases in which a revocation of the Ukkhepaniya-kamma on not renouncing a sinful doctrine should be carried out.
'Now thus, O Bhikkhus, should it be carried out,' &c. [Here follows the Kammavâkâ for the revocation of a Kamma precisely as in chapter 8, with the necessary alterations.]

Here ends the seventh (Kamma), the Ukkhepaniya-kamma on not renouncing a sinful doctrine.

Here ends the First Khandhaka, the Khandhaka on the Kammass.

PROBATION AND Penance.

1. Now at that time the Blessed Buddha was staying at Sâvatthi, in the Getavana, Anâthapindika's Grove. And at that time Bhikkhus who had been placed on probation used to accept reverence and service and salutation and respect from regular Bhikkhus; and to allow them to provide a seat, or a sleeping-place, or water for the feet, or a foot-stool, or a foot-towel for them; and to carry their bowl or their robe, and to shampoo them.

1 There are four principal kinds of probation; the first of which was required when the follower of another of the reforming sects was received into the Buddhist Order, and is described in Mahâvagga I, 38. The other three, which follow on the commission of a Samghâdisesa offence, are more particularly described below in the third Khandhaka. The Pâli names of these four are respectively apaṅkhaṇṇa-parivāsa, paṅkhaṇṇa-parivāsa, suddhanta-parivāsa, and samodhâna-parivāsa.

No conclusion should be drawn against this statement from the passage above at I, 9, 1; though Seyyasaka's conduct, as there described, would not have rendered him liable to any one of these four principal probationary proceedings. For he is said to have been guilty of many offences (āpatti-bahulo). The accompanying enumeration must be taken, not as a description of those offences, but as additional to them. And the probation imposed upon him must have been for concealing one or more of the many offences not particularly specified.

2 All these expressions recur above, I, 27, 1.
Those Bhikkhus who were moderate were annoyed, murmured, and became indignant, saying, ‘How can Bhikkhus who have been placed on probation accept reverence (&c., as above, down to) shampoo them?’

And those Bhikkhus told this thing to the Blessed One.

Then the Blessed One on that occasion, and in that connection, convened a meeting of the Bhikkhu-sangha, and asked the Bhikkhus: ‘Is it true, O Bhikkhus, as they say, that Bhikkhus who have been placed on probation accept reverence (&c., as before, down to) shampoo them?’

‘It is true, Lord.’

The Blessed Buddha rebuked them, saying, ‘How can those Bhikkhus (&c., as before, down to) shampoo them? This will not conduce, O Bhikkhus (&c., as usual, down to) turning back of those who have been converted.’

And when he had rebuked them, and had delivered a religious discourse, he addressed the Bhikkhus, saying, ‘A Bhikkhu who has been placed on probation ought not to accept reverence (&c., as before, down to) shampoo them. Whosoever does so, shall be guilty of a dukkata offence. I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, to those Bhikkhus who have been placed on probation to do [all the courtesies, duties, and services mentioned above] for one another, according to their seniority. I prescribe, O Bhikkhus, five things (as permissible) to Bhikkhus who have been placed on probation, according to their seniority; (that is to say), the Upasātha ceremony, the Pavāranā ceremony, the share in robes for the rainy season, in things dedicated to the Sāmgha, and in food.

2. 'Therefore, O Bhikkhus, do I make known to you a rule of conduct for Bhikkhus who have been placed on probation, according to which they ought to conduct themselves aright. And herein this is the right conduct. He ought not to confer the Upasampadā (&c., as above, in I, 1, 5, down to the end)

'A Bhikkhu who has been placed on probation ought not, O Bhikkhus, to walk in front of, or to sit down in front of, a regular Bhikkhu. Whichever belonging to that company of Bhikkhus shall be the worst seat, or the worst sleeping-place, or the worst room, that shall be given to that Bhikkhu, and there-

1. Now the venerable Upāli went up to the place where the Blessed One was; and on arriving there, he saluted the Blessed One, and took his seat on one side. And when he was so seated the venerable Upāli said to the Blessed One: 'Now in what case, Lord, can there be an interruption of the probationary period of a Bhikkhu who has been placed on probation?'

1. Now at that time, since there was a great company of the Bhikkhus gathered together at Sâvatthi, those Bhikkhus who had been placed on probation did not know how to carry out their probation correctly.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'I prescribe to you, O Bhikkhus, to carry out your probation correctly. Now thus, O Bhikkhus, ought you to postpone\(^4\) the probation. The Bhikkhu who has been placed on probation is to go up to a single Bhikkhu, and arranging his robe on one shoulder, and squatting down on his heels, and stretching forth his hands with the palms together, he is to say: "I postpone my probation." Then the probation is postponed. Or he is to say: "I postpone the duties (i.e. of a probationer).” Then also the probation is postponed.’

2. Now at that time the Bhikkhus who were at Sāvatthi went away hither and thither, and the Bhikkhus who had been placed on probation were not able to carry out their probation correctly¹.

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

‘I prescribe to you, O Bhikkhus, to take upon yourselves again the probation (which had been postponed). Now thus, O Bhikkhus, ought you to take it upon yourselves again. The Bhikkhu who has been placed under probation is to go up to a single Bhikkhu, and arranging his robe on one shoulder, and squatting down on his heels, and stretching forth his hands with the palms together, he is to say: “I take my probation again upon myself.” Then the probation is resumed. Or he is to say: “I take the duties (i.e. of a probationer) upon myself again.” Then also is the probation resumed.’

Here end the duties encumbent on a probationer.

[In this chapter the same rules for the Mânatta, or Penance, are laid down word for word as those in chapter 1, §§ 1, 2, 3, and 4, for the probation, reading throughout ‘Bhikkhus who are going through the Mânatta discipline’ for ‘Bhikkhus who have been placed under probation.’ There are, however, one or two minor points of difference, which are as follows:

1. At the end of the announcements (chapter 1,

1. Now the venerable Upāli went up to the place where the Blessed One was; and on arriving there, he saluted the Blessed One, and took his seat on one side. And when he was so seated the venerable Upāli said to the Blessed One: 'Now in what case, Lord, can there be an interruption of the Mānatta discipline of a Bhikkhu who is undergoing that discipline?'

'There are four ways of interruption of the Mānatta discipline, O Upāli, of a Bhikkhu who is undergoing that discipline; (that is to say), by dwelling together, by dwelling alone, by not announcing, and by living with less than four other Bhikkhus. These are the four ways (&c., as before, down to) undergoing that discipline.'

1 It will be seen, therefore, that there is very little, one might almost say no practical, difference between the Parivāsa, which we have rendered 'probation,' and the Mānatta, which we have usually left untranslated, and sometimes rendered 'penance.' Neither the one nor the other are at present enforced anywhere among the Buddhists.

THIRD KHANDHAKA.

1. Now at that time the Blessed Buddha was staying at Sâvatthi, in the Getavana, Anâthapiṇḍika’s Grove. And at that time the venerable Udâyi committed an offence, to wit, the first Samghâdisesa offence, and did not conceal it. He told the Bhikkhus, saying, ‘I have committed an offence—the first Samghâdisesa offence—and do not conceal it. What now shall I do?’

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

‘Then, O Bhikkhus, let the Samgha lay the Mânatta penalty on Udâyi the Bhikkhu for the space of six days on account of that offence—the first Samghâdisesa—which he has not concealed.

2. ‘Now thus, O Bhikkhus, ought it to be laid upon him. Udâyi the Bhikkhu ought to go up, O Bhikkhus, before the Samgha; and, arranging his robe on one shoulder, he ought to bow down at the feet of the elder Bhikkhus, and squatting down on his heels, and stretching forth his hands with the palms together, he ought to say as follows:

‘“I, venerable Sirs, have committed an offence—the first Samghâdisesa—which I have not concealed. I ask the Samgha (to impose upon me) the Mânatta penalty for six days on account of this offence—the first Samghâdisesa offence—which I have not concealed."

[This speech is repeated three times.]

3. 'Some discreet and able Bhikkhu should then lay the matter before the Samgha, as follows:

"Let the venerable Samgha hear me. Udâyi the Bhikkhu has committed an offence—the first Samghâdisesa offence—which he has not concealed. And he asks the Samgha for the Mânatta penalty for six days on account of that offence—the first Samghâdisesa offence—which he has not concealed.

"If the time seem meet to the Samgha, let the Samgha impose a Mânatta of six days' duration on Udâyi the Bhikkhu for that one offence—the first Samghâdisesa offence—which he has not concealed.

"This is the motion (ñatti).

"The Samgha hereby imposes a Mânatta of six days on Udâyi the Bhikkhu for that one offence—the first Samghâdisesa offence—which he has not concealed.

"Whosoever of the venerable ones approves of the imposition of a Mânatta (&c., as in the last paragraph, down to) not concealed, let him remain silent. Whosoever approves not, let him speak.

"A second time I say the same thing (&c., as before in the last two paragraphs). A third time I say the same thing (&c., as before).

"The Samgha has imposed a Mânatta of six days' duration (&c., as before, in the words of the motion, down to) not concealed. The Samgha approves thereof. Therefore is it silent. Thus do I understand."

1. When he had done the Mānatta he told the Bhikkhus, saying, 'Friends, I committed an offence—the first Samghâdisesa offence—which I had not concealed. And I asked the Samgha for a Mānatta of six days' duration for that offence—the first Samghâdisesa offence—which I had not concealed. The Samgha imposed upon me a Mānatta (&c., as before, down to) not concealed. Now I have accomplished that Mānatta. What now shall I do?'

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'Then, O Bhikkhus, let the Samgha rehabilitate Udāyi the Bhikkhu.

2. 'Now thus, O Bhikkhus, ought he to be rehabilitated.

'Udāyi the Bhikkhu ought to go up (&c., as in chapter 1, § 2, down to) he ought to say as follows:

"I committed, venerable Sirs, an offence—the first Samghâdisesa offence—which I did not conceal. I asked the Samgha (to impose upon me) a Mānatta of six days' duration for that offence—the first Samghâdisesa offence—which I had not concealed. The Samgha imposed upon me a Mānatta of .... for .... not concealed. I, having accomplished that Mānatta, ask the Samgha for rehabilitation."

[This speech is repeated three times.]

3. 'Then some discreet and able Bhikkhu [&c., as before in chapter 1, § 2, the rest of the kamma-vâkâ bearing the same relation to the petition as it does there].'
3.

1. Now at that time the venerable Udâyi had committed an offence—the first Samghâdisesa—which he had for one day concealed.

He told the Bhikkhus (&c., as before).

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'Then, O Bhikkhus, let the Samgha impose a probation of one day on Udâyi the Bhikkhu for an offence (&c., as in the first paragraph of this section down to) concealed.

2. 'Now thus, O Bhikkhus, ought it to be imposed—'

1. When he had passed through the probation he told the Bhikkhus, saying, 'I committed, friends, an offence—the first Samghâdisesa—which for one day I concealed. I asked the Samgha to impose upon me a probation of one day for the offence.... concealed. The Samgha imposed.... concealed. I have passed through that probation. What now should I do?'

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

'Let then the Samgha impose upon Udâyi the Bhikkhu a Mânatta of six days' duration.'

2, 3. [Here follows the kammavâkâ as in chapter 1, §§ 2, 3, to the end.]
5.

1. When he had accomplished the Mānatta he told the Bhikkhus, saying, 'I committed (&c., as 4. 1, down to) for one day concealed. I asked, &c. . . . The Saṁgha imposed a probation, &c. . . . When I passed through that probation the Saṁgha imposed a Mānatta of &c. . . . for &c. . . . I have accomplished that Mānatta. What now shall I do?'

They told that matter to the Blessed One.

'Let then the Saṁgha, O Bhikkhus, rehabilitate Udāyi the Bhikkhu.'

2, 3. [Here follows the kammavākā as in chapter 2, §§ 2, 3, to the end.]

[This chapter is the same as chapter 3, reading 'for two—three—four—five days concealed,' and 'probation of two—three—four—five days.']

7.

1. Whilst he was undergoing that probation, he committed an offence—the first, &c.—which he did not conceal.

He told the Bhikkhus, saying, 'I committed, &c. . . . I asked the Saṁgha, &c. . . . The Saṁgha imposed upon me a probation of two—three—four—five days. Whilst I was undergoing that probation, I committed, &c. . . .'

1. When he had undergone that probation, and was liable to the Mânatta, he committed an offence—the first Samghâdisesa—which he did not conceal.

He told the Bhikkhus, saying, &c. . . .

They told this matter to the Blessed One.

‘Let then the Samgha, O Bhikkhus, throw back Udâyi the Bhikkhu to the commencement (of his probationary course).’

‘Let then the Samgha, O Bhikkhus, impose upon Udâyi the Bhikkhu a Mânatta of six days' probation for these offences.’

2, 3. [The kammavâkâ as before.]

1. While he was undergoing that Mânatta he committed an offence—the first Samghâdisesa—which he did not conceal.

He told the Bhikkhus, saying, ‘I committed, &c. ... I asked the Samgha.... The Samgha imposed [&c., going through all that had happened, down to the end of the first paragraph in this chapter].

They told, &c.

‘Let then the Samgha, O Bhikkhus, impose upon Udâyi the Bhikkhu a Mânatta of six days’ duration, throwing him back to the commencement (of his Mânatta).

[The kammavâkâ as before.]

1. When he had accomplished that Mânatta, and while he was worthy to be rehabilitated, he committed an offence—the first Samghâdisesa offence—which he did not conceal.

He told the Bhikkhus [all that had happened from chapter 6 onwards down to this last offence].

They told, &c.

‘Let then the Samgha, O Bhikkhus, impose upon Udâyi the Bhikkhu a Mânatta of six days’ duration, for that he when he had (&c., as in first paragraph down to) not conceal, throwing him back to the commencement (of his Mânatta).

‘Now thus, O Bhikkhus, [here follows the kammavâkâ as before.]

1. When he had accomplished that Mânatta he told the Bhikkhus [all that had happened].
They told, &c.

'Let then the Samgha, O Bhikkhus, rehabilitate Udâyi the Bhikkhu.
'Now thus [here follows the kammavâlâkâ as before].

1. Now at that time the venerable Udâyi committed an offence—the first Samghâdisesa—and for half a month he concealed it.

[The rest of this chapter is precisely the same as chapter 3, reading 'for half a month' instead of 'for one day.']

14.

1. Whilst he was undergoing that probation he committed an offence—the first Samghâdisesa—which for five days he concealed.
He told, &c. . . . 'I committed, &c. . . . I asked, &c. . . . The Samgha imposed a probation of half a month, &c. . . . Whilst I was undergoing, &c. . . . What now shall I do?'
They told, &c.

'Let then the Samgha, O Bhikkhus, for that whilst (&c., as in the first paragraph) throw Udâyi the Bhikkhu back to the beginning of his probationary term, and impose upon him an inclusive probation (to include his new offence together) with the former offence.

'Now thus, O Bhikkhus, [here follow two kammaññakās, one for the throwing back, and one for the additional probation, each of them as in chapter 1.]

15.

1. When he had undergone that probation, and while he was liable to the Māṇatta, he committed an offence—the first Samghâdisesa—which for five days he concealed.

He told, &c. ... [all that happened, from chapter 13 downwards].

They told, &c.

'Let then the Samgha, O Bhikkhus, for that he when he had (&c., as in the first paragraph) throw Udāyi the Bhikkhu back to the commencement of 1 Samodhāna-parivāsa. It is clear from the next chapter that this probation did not affect the Māṇatta to which he was liable for that first offence. The Māṇatta always lasted six days, and was preceded by a probation equal in length to the time during which the offence had been concealed. If now, during that probation, another offence was committed and concealed, the penalties for this new offence and for the old one were not accumulative but concurrent. The offender lost the advantage of the probation he had already undergone, he was thrown back to the commencement of his term of probation, and had to begin again. But the new term of probation—equal in length to whichever was the longest of the two periods during which he had concealed the two offences—satisfied both the concealments, and the Māṇatta which still, as it would have done before, followed at the end of the probation, satisfied both the offences. See our note below on chapter 20.

his probationary term, and impose upon him an inclusive probation (for this and) for the former offence.

'Now thus, O Bhikkhus, [here follow two kammavākās, as in the last chapter.]

16.

1. When he had undergone that probation he told the Bhikkhus, &c. [all that had happened since chapter 13].

They told, &c.

'Let then the Samgha, O Bhikkhus, impose upon Udāyi the Bhikkhu a Mānatta of six days' duration for these offences.¹

'Now thus, O Bhikkhus, [here follows one kammavākā in the form given in chapter 1.]

17.

1. While he was undergoing that Mānatta he committed an offence—the first Samghādisesa—which he for four days concealed.

He told, &c. . . . [all that had happened, from chapter 13 downwards].

They told this matter to the Blessed One.

'Let then the Samgha, O Bhikkhus, for that while (&c., as in the first paragraph) throw Udāyi the Bhikkhu back to the commencement (of the probationary term he had already undergone), and impose upon him an inclusive probation (for this and) for the first offence, and also a Mânatta of six days' duration.

'Now thus, O Bhikkhus, [here follow three kammavâkâs, one for the throwing back, one for the inclusive probation, and one for the new Mânatta, each of them on the same form as that given in chapter 1.]'

1. When he had accomplished that Mânatta, and while he was worthy to be rehabilitated, he committed an offence—the first Samghâdisesa—which for five days he concealed.

He told, &c. [all that happened, from chapter 13 downwards].

They told this matter to the Blessed One.

'Let then the Samgha, O Bhikkhus, for that when he had (&c., as in the first paragraph) throw Udâyi the Bhikkhu back to the commencement (of the probationary term he had already undergone) and impose upon him an inclusive probation for this and for the first offence, and a Mânatta of six days' duration.

'Now thus, &c. . . . [Here follow three kammavâkâs as in chapter 17.]'

1. When he had accomplished the Mânatta he told the Bhikkhus [all that happened, from chapter 13 downwards].
They told this matter to the Blessed One.
‘Let then the Samgha rehabilitate Udâyi the Bhikkhu.
‘Now thus, O Bhikkhus, [here follows the kammavākā as in chapter 5.]’

20.

1. Now at that time a certain Bhikkhu had committed numerous Samghâdîsesa offences, one of which he had concealed for one day, one for two days, one for three days, [and so on down to] and one for ten days.

He told the Bhikkhus, saying, ‘I have committed, (&c., as before, down to) and one for ten days. What now shall I do?’

They told this thing to the Blessed One.

‘Let then the Samgha, O Bhikkhus, impose upon that Bhikkhu an inclusive probation according to one of those offences which has been concealed for ten days.’

‘Now thus, O Bhikkhus, ought it to be imposed.’

1 From this and what follows it is clear that however many are the offences, and however various the periods of concealment, the probation is only to last for the same period as the longest of the concealments has lasted. Thus the Samanta Pâsâdikâ says here: agghasamodhâno nãma sambahulåsu âpattisu yâ ekâ vâ dve vâ tissu vâ sambahulâ vâ âpattiyo sabbahirapiikkhâhanna yo tâsam agghena samodhâya tâsam rattipariikkhedavasena avasesânãm ânatarapatiikkhanna nam âpattinam parivåso diyyati. 1. Now at that time a certain Bhikkhu had committed numerous Samghâdisesa offences, one of which he had concealed for one day, two for two days, three for three days, [and so on down to] and ten for ten days.

He told, &c.

They told, &c.

'Let then the Samgha, O Bhikkhus, impose upon that Bhikkhu an inclusive probation equal in duration to the longest time during which he has concealed any one or more of those offences.'

1. Now at that time a certain Bhikkhu had committed two Samghâdisesa offences which he had concealed for two months. And it occurred to him, 'Lo! I have committed two Samghâdisesa offences which I have concealed for two months. Let me now ask the Samgha for a probation of two months for one offence concealed for two months.' And he asked the Samgha for a probation of two months for one offence concealed for two months. And the Samgha imposed upon him a probation (&c., as before, down to) for two months. Whilst he was undergoing that probation, shame overcame him in that he thought, 'I have committed, &c. ... And it occurred to me, &c. ... And I asked, &c. ... And the Samgha imposed ... And whilst I was undergoing ... (&c., as before, down to) for two months.'

'Let me now ask the Samgha for a probation of two months for the other offence concealed for two months.'

2. He told the Bhikkhus [all that had happened]. They told this thing to the Blessed One.

3. 'Let then the Samgha, O Bhikkhus, impose upon that Bhikkhu a probation of two months for that other offence concealed for two months.'

[Here follows the kammavākā as before.]

23.

1. 'Now in case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu have committed two Samghādisesa offences [&c., as before, in the first paragraph of the last chapter down to the end]. And he asks the Samgha for a probation of two months for that other offence concealed for two months. And the Samgha imposes upon him a probation of two months for that other offence concealed for two months\(^1\). That Bhikkhu, O Bhikkhus, ought to continue on probation for two months from that date.

2. ‘Now in case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu have committed two Samghâdisesa offences, which he has concealed for two months. And he is aware of one offence, but of the other offence he is not aware. And he asks the Samgha for a two months’ probation for that offence of which he is aware, concealed for two months. And the Samgha gives him a probation of two months for an offence concealed for two months. And whilst he is undergoing that probation he becomes aware of the other offence. Then it occurs to him, ‘“Lo! I have committed two Samghâdisesa offences (&c., as in the last paragraph, down to) I became aware of the other offence. Let me now ask the Samgha for a probation of two months for that other offence concealed for two months.”’

‘And he asks the Samgha for a probation of two months for that other offence concealed for two months. And the Samgha imposes upon him a probation of &c. . . . for &c. . . . That Bhikkhu, O Bhikkhus, ought to continue on probation for two months from that date.

3. ‘Now in case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu commit two Samghâdisesa offences, which he conceals for two months; and one offence he recollects, but the other offence he does not recollect. And he asks the Samgha (&c., as in the last section, down to the end, reading “recollect” for “be aware of”).

\(^1\) This is merely repeated to lay a basis for the following variations. See below, chapter 25.
4. 'Now in case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu commit two Samghâdisesa offences, which he conceals for two months; and of one offence he is not doubtful, but of the other offence he is doubtful. And he asks the Samghâ (&c., as in the last section, reading "is doubtful" for "does not recollect").

5. 'Now in case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu commit two Samghâdisesa offences, which he conceals for two months; and one offence he conceals wittingly, but the other offence he conceals unwittingly. And he asks the Samghâ for a probation of two months for those two offences concealed for two months. And the Samghâ imposes upon him a probation of two months for those two offences concealed for two months. And whilst he is undergoing that probation there arrives a Bhikkhu who is versed in the traditions, acquainted with the tradition, a custodian of the Dhamma, of the Vinaya, and of the Mâtikâs, clever, discreet, wise, modest, sensitive, willing to learn. And he speaks thus:

"What has this Bhikkhu, O friends, been guilty of, and why is he on probation?"

'And they reply: "This Bhikkhu, O friend, has committed two Samghâdisesa offences, which he concealed for two months; and one offence he concealed wittingly, and one offence he concealed unwittingly. He asked the Samghâ for a probation of two months for those two offences concealed for two months. And the Samghâ imposed upon him a probation of two months for those two offences con-

‘And he rejoins: “The offence which he wittingly concealed, O friends, for that the imposition of a probation is valid, and by reason of its validity it takes effect\(^1\). But the offence which he unwittingly concealed, O friends, for that the imposition of a probation is invalid, and by reason of its invalidity it does not take effect. For this offence, O friends, the Bhikkhu is liable to a Mânatta.”

6. ‘In case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu commit two Samghâdisesesa offences, which he conceals for two months. And one offence he conceals recollecting it, but the other offence he conceals without recollecting it.’

He told the Bhikkhus, saying, ‘I have committed, &c. . . . but I am not aware, &c. . . . I do not recollect, &c. . . . I am uncertain, &c. . . . What now shall I do?’

In case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu throws off the robes whilst he is under probation, there can follow no probation to him, O Bhikkhus, so long as he is out of the Order. If he afterwards receive the upasampadā, the original probation (previously imposed upon him, still remains obligatory) upon him. A probation once imposed, is imposed for good; a probation once undergone, is undergone for good; if any (portion of the time) remain over, the probation must be again undergone (from the beginning).

All these four cases are required to make up the one hundred mitted numerous Samghâdisesa offences, and some of his offences have been concealed, and some not concealed; and he, having thrown off the robes, and again received the upasampadâ, does not afterwards conceal those offences which he had previously concealed, and does not afterwards conceal those offences which previously he had not concealed,—on that Bhikkhu [the penalty is to be the same as in section 1, paragraph 4].

‘In case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu (&c., as in last paragraph, down to) does afterwards conceal those offences which he had previously concealed, and does not afterwards conceal those offences which previously he had not concealed,—on that Bhikkhu [the penalty is to be the same as in section 1, para-

‘In case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu (&c., as in last paragraph, down to) does afterwards conceal those offences which he had previously concealed, and does afterwards conceal those offences which previously he had not concealed,—on that Bhikkhu [the penalty is to be the same as in section 1, paragraph 4].

3. ‘In case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu have committed numerous Samghâdisesa offences, and of some cases mentioned in the title at the close of chap. 30; but the first is altogether omitted in the text, and the others are not properly discriminated. We have supplied the first in brackets, and corrected the others accordingly.

of them he is aware, but of some of them he is not aware; and he conceals those offences of which he is aware, but does not conceal those offences of which he is not aware; after having thrown off the robes, and again received the upasampadā, those offences of which he had previously been aware, and which he did then conceal, of them, afterwards, he is still aware, and he does not conceal them; and those offences of which previously he had not been aware and did not then conceal, of them, afterwards, he becomes aware, and does not conceal them,—on that Bhikkhu [the penalty is the same as in section 1, paragraph 3].

‘In case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu (&c., as in the last paragraph, down to) and again received the upasampadā, those offences of which he had previously been aware, and which he did then conceal, of them, afterwards, he is still aware, and he does not conceal them; and those offences of which previously he had not been aware, and did not then conceal, of them, afterwards, he becomes aware, and does conceal them,—on that Bhikkhu [the penalty is the same as in section 1, paragraph 4].

‘In case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu (&c., as in the last paragraph, down to) which he did then conceal, of them, afterwards, he is still aware, and does conceal them; and of those offences of which previously he had not been aware, and did not then conceal, of them, afterwards, he becomes aware, and does not conceal them,—on that Bhikkhu [the penalty is the same as in section 1, paragraph 4].

‘In case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu (&c., as in the last paragraph, down to) which he did then conceal, of them, afterwards, he is still aware, and does conceal them; and of those offences of which previously he had not been aware, and did not then conceal, of them, afterwards, he becomes aware, and does conceal them,—on that Bhikkhu [the penalty is the same as in section 1, paragraph 4].

4. [This section is the same as the last, reading 'he recollects' for 'he is aware,' and 'he does not recollect' for 'he is not aware.]

5. [This section is again the same as section 3, reading 'he is certain' for 'he is aware,' and 'he is not certain' for 'he is not aware.]

30.

1. [The whole of the last chapter is repeated in the case of a Bhikkhu who, having committed offences, becomes a Sâmanera, goes out of his mind, or becomes weak in his mind, and the text then goes on] 'He becomes diseased in his sensations. His offences are some of them concealed, some not concealed. Of some offences he is aware, of some he is not aware. Some offences he recollects, some he does not recollect. Of some offences he is certain, of some he is not certain. Those offences of which he was not certain, those he conceals; those offences of which he was certain, those he does not conceal. Then he becomes diseased in his sensations. When he has recovered power over his sensations, those offences of which he previously had been certain and had concealed, of those he is afterwards still certain, but does not conceal them; and those offences of which he previously had been uncertain and had not concealed, of those he became certain but did not conceal them. Those offences of which he previously had been certain and had concealed, of those he was afterwards still certain and did not conceal; while those offences of which he previously had been uncertain, and had not concealed, of those offences he afterwards became certain and did conceal them. Those offences of which previously he had been certain, and had concealed, of those offences he was afterwards still certain and did conceal them; while those offences of which he previously had been uncertain and had not concealed, of those offences he afterwards became certain, and did not conceal them. Those offences of which he previously had been certain, and had concealed them, of those offences he was afterwards still certain and did conceal them; whilst those offences of which he previously had been uncertain and did not conceal them, of those offences he Afterwards became certain and did conceal them,—on that Bhikkhu, O Bhikkhus, [the same penalty is to be imposed as in chapter 29, section 1, paragraph 4.]

\(^1\) The hundred cases are made up thus: Chap. 29, §§ 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 contain each of them four cases (after our correction of 29. 2); so that chap. 29 gives altogether twenty cases. Then in chap. 30, each of these twenty cases is repeated in the four other cases there given; so that chap. 30 gives altogether eighty cases. Of these eighty cases, as usual, at the end of a repetition, the last (four cases) are set out in full.
31.

1. In case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu who is undergoing probation is guilty meanwhile of a number of Samghâdisesa offences, and without concealing them then throws off the robes, and he, when he has again received the upasampadâ, does not conceal those offences—that Bhikkhu ought to be thrown back to the commencement (of his term of probation).

'And in case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu (&c., as before, down to) and he, when he has again received the upasampadâ, does conceal those offences—that Bhikkhu ought to be thrown back to the commencement (of his term of probation), and an inclusive probation ought to be imposed upon him (corresponding to the time which has elapsed since) the first offence among those offences which he has concealed.

'And in case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu who is undergoing probation is guilty meanwhile of a number of Samghâdisesa offences, and, concealing them, throws off the robes; and he, when he has again received the upasampadâ, does not conceal those offences—that Bhikkhu ought to be thrown back to the commencement of his term of probation, and an inclusive probation ought to be imposed upon him (corresponding to the period which has elapsed since) the first offence among those offences which he has concealed.'

[The same judgment if he has concealed the offences before he throws off the robes, and also after he has again received the upasampadâ.]¹

2. 'And in case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu who is undergoing probation is guilty meanwhile of a number of Samghâdisesa offences, and some of them he has concealed and some of them he has not concealed; and after he has thrown off the robes and again received the upasampadâ, he does not afterwards conceal those offences which previously he had concealed, and he does not afterwards conceal those offences which previously he had not concealed—[the judgment is the same as in the last paragraph of § 1].'

[In the same case down to] he does not afterwards conceal those offences which previously he had concealed, and he does afterwards conceal those offences which previously he had not concealed [the judgment is the same].

[In the same case, down to] he does afterwards conceal those offences which previously he had concealed, and he does not afterwards conceal those offences which previously he had not concealed [the judgment is the same].

[In the same case, down to] he does afterwards conceal those offences which previously he had concealed, and he does afterwards conceal those offences which previously he had not concealed [the judgment is the same].

3. 'And in case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu who is undergoing probation is guilty meanwhile of a number of Samghâdisesa offences, and he is aware of some of those offences, and not aware of others; and he conceals those offences of which he is aware, but does not conceal those offences of which he is aware.

not aware. After having thrown off the robes and again received the upasampadā, those offences of which he had previously [&c., as in chapter 29, section 3, down to] on that Bhikkhu [the penalty is the same as in the last section, chapter 31, § 2].'

[The rest of this chapter corresponds exactly to chapter 29, §§ 4, 5, and chapter 30; the penalty being always the same.]

32.

1. 'And in case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu who has rendered himself liable to the Mānatta discipline, or is undergoing the Mānatta discipline, or is fit to be rehabilitated, is guilty meanwhile of a number of Samghādisesa offences which he does not conceal; and he then throws off the robes, and again receives the upasampadā,—then with regard to the Bhikkhu so liable to the Mānatta discipline, or undergoing the Mānatta discipline, or fit to be rehabilitated, the same rules are to apply as in the case of a Bhikkhu so acting while undergoing probation.¹

'And in case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu who is fit to be rehabilitated² is guilty meanwhile of a number of Samghādisesa offences which he does not conceal; and he then becomes a Sāmanera, goes out of his mind, becomes weak in his mind, or becomes diseased in his sensations; his offences are some of them concealed, some of them not concealed . . . [and so on, as in chapter 30, down to the end, excepting that the penalty is here the same as it is in the previous chapters 31 and 32].'

1. 'And in case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu is guilty of a number of Samghâdisesa offences, definite, and not concealed—not definite, and not concealed—of one designation, and not concealed—of various designations, and not concealed—similar, and not concealed—dissimilar, and not concealed—connected¹, and not concealed—disconnected, and not concealed—and then throws off the robes².' . . .

¹ On the opposition of vavatthita and sambhînna, compare Mivayeff Pâtimokkha, p. 29, where these two expressions are used of language.

² The chapter is translated as it stands. To supply the implications involved, the words 'a Bhikkhu' at the beginning should be understood as 'a Bhikkhu undergoing probation, or liable to the Mânatta discipline, or undergoing the Mânatta discipline, or fit to be rehabilitated.' And the conclusion should be supplied as in chap. 28, except that the penalty in each case is not an additional probation, but a probation corresponding in length to the period which has elapsed since the first of those offences, which the re-ordained Bhikkhu has concealed (either before or after the second ordination). The details are only worked out, in chap. 28, of the first of the several pairs here enumerated, and are intended to be supplied here for each of the other pairs in a similar way. All the pairs recur in chaps. 35, 36.

He who has concealed it should be compelled to confess himself guilty of a dukkata offence, and a probation corresponding to the period during which he has concealed it having been imposed upon him, a Mânatta should be imposed upon them both.

"Two Bhikkhus have been guilty of a Samghādisesa offence, and as touching that Samghādisesa offence they are in doubt. One of them conceals, the other does not conceal it. [The penalty is the same.]"

² In accordance with the rule laid down in chap. 28, which shows that by 'a Bhikkhu' must be understood 'a Bhikkhu who is under probation;' and the offences he has committed must have been concealed by him.
³ Akuppá. The technical term kammaṁ kopeti is not to revoke the valid decision of a kamma regularly held, but to show that the kamma by reason of some irregularity was no real kamma, and its whole proceedings therefore void. One may compare akuppâ me kato-vimutti spoken by the Buddha immediately after he had attained Nirvâna under the Bo Tree (Ariyapariyosâna Sutta in H. O.'s 'Buddha,' p. 429) and the opposite idea in Sutta Nipâta IV, 3, 5.
for the occasion; and it also imposes a Mānatta upon him, but by an unlawful proceeding, and then by an unlawful proceeding rehabilitates him. That Bhikkhu, O Bhikkhus, is not purified from those offences.

'And in case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu is guilty of a number of Samghādisesa offences—definite, and not definite—of one designation, and of various designations—similar to each other, and dissimilar—connected with each other, and disconnected. And he asks the Samgha for an inclusive probation on account of those offences. The Samgha imposes upon him an inclusive probation on account of those offences. He undergoing that probation is guilty meanwhile of a number of Samghādisesa offences, definite ones, which he does conceal. He asks the Samgha to throw him back on account of those intervening offences to the commencement (of his term of probation). The Samgha [does so] by a lawful proceeding that cannot be quashed, and fit for the occasion; and it also imposes upon him an inclusive probation by a lawful proceeding, and imposes upon him a Mānatta, but by an unlawful proceeding, and by an unlawful proceeding it rehabilitates him. That Bhikkhu, O Bhikkhus, is not purified from those offences.'

[The same decision is given if, of the intervening offences, all of which are definite, some have been concealed, and some not concealed.]

2. [The same if the intervening offences have been not definite and not concealed, or not definite and concealed, or all not definite but some concealed and some not concealed, or all not concealed but some definite and some not definite, or all concealed but some definite and some not definite, or some definite and some not definite and some concealed and some not concealed.]

Here end the nine principal cases (which serve as a basis for the variations in the following chapter) in which a Bhikkhu is not purified (by undergoing a term of probation).

1. [The same nine cases of the throwing back is carried by unlawful proceeding, though the Mânatta and the rehabilitation are by a lawful proceeding.]

2. 'And in case, O Bhikkhus, a Bhikkhu is guilty of a number of Samghâdisesa offences—definite, and not definite—of one designation, and of various designations—similar to each other, and dissimilar—connected with each other, and disconnected¹. He asks the Samgha for an inclusive probation on account of those offences. The Samgha imposes upon him an additional probation on account of those offences. He undergoing that probation is guilty meanwhile of a number of Samghâdisesa offences, definite ones, which he does conceal. He asks the Samgha to throw him back on account of those intervening offences to the commencement of his term of probation. The Samgha [does so] by an unlawful proceeding that is liable to be quashed, and unfit for the occasion; and it also imposes an inclusive probation upon him, but by an unlawful proceeding. He thinking, "I am undergoing that probation," is guilty meanwhile of a number of Samghâdisesa offences, definite ones, which he does conceal. When he has arrived at this condition he calls to mind the other offences committed while the first offences were being committed, and he calls to mind also the other offences committed while the latter offences were being committed.

"Then it occurs to him, "I have been guilty of a number of Samghâdisesa offences (&c., as in the whole of the section from the beginning to the end of the last paragraph, down to) and I called to mind also the other offences committed while the latter offences were being committed. Let me now ask the Samgha to throw me back on account of those offences committed while the former offences, and while the latter offences, were being committed, to the commencement of my term of probation, by a lawful proceeding that cannot be quashed, and is fit for the occasion; and let me ask for an inclusive probation to be imposed by a lawful proceeding, and for a Mânatta to be imposed by a lawful proceeding, and then for rehabilitation by a lawful proceeding."

"And he asks the Samgha [accordingly], and the Samgha [does so]. That Bhikkhu, O Bhikkhus, is purified from those offences."

[The same if some of the offences in each case have been concealed and some not concealed.]
3, 4. [The Bhikkhu is not purified from such intervening and remembered offences as are specified in the last section, if the Samgha has proceeded, as in the first section of this chapter, by an unlawful proceeding.]

Here ends the Third Khandhaka, on the Accumulation of Offences.
NOTE ON ABHIHATTHUM.

In the 7th Nissaggiya, in the 34th Pāṭimiya, and in the 36th Pāṭimiya there occurs the phrase abhihaññhum pavāreyya, regarding the correct translation of which, as will be seen from the note on the first passage, we were in doubt. The connection is always 'if A should offer B,' &c.; and the only difficulty is the force of the word abhihaññhum which precedes the 'should offer,' and in some way qualifies it. In all three passages the Old Commentary preserved in the Sutta-Vibhaṅga explains the two words abhihaññhum pavāreyya by 'Take just as much as you want' (yāvatākam iññhīsi tāvatākam gahāhi), which does not solve the difficulty. On the following words of the third passage, however, the Old Commentary (see H. O., 'Vinaya Pitakam,' vol. iv, p. 84) uses the word abhiharati in its usual sense of 'he brings up to, offers to, hands over to,' as practically equivalent to abhihaññhum pavāreti; and Buddhaghosa, in the Samanta Pāsādikā on the 7th Nissaggiya, uses abhiharitvā as directly equivalent to abhihaññhum.

Now in a passage quoted from the Thera-gāthā in H. O.'s 'Buddha, sein Leben, seine Lehre, und seine Gemeinde' (p. 425, note 1), nikkhamitumna occurs as the gerund of nikkhamati instead of nikkhamativāna. The existence in Prākrit of corresponding gerunds in -tu, -tum for -tvā, and in -tāna, -tuāna for -tvāna, is laid down in Hemaśandra II, 146 (Pischel, vol. i, p. 62). And Professor Weber has given corresponding forms (āhaññu, kaññu, &c.) from the Gain dialect in his Bhagavatī, I, p. 433.

What we have in the phrase in question is therefore simply a gerund in -tum, and the two words taken together mean, 'if A should lay before and offer to B,' &c. The thing offered in one case is robes, in the other two cases food; and abhiharati is the usual word in Pāli for serving food, laying it before another person. Compare thāli-pāka-satāni abhihari at Gātaka I, 186; and the phrase bhattābhihihārō abhihihiyitha constantly repeated in the Mahā-sudassana Sutta (Rh. D., 'Buddhist Suttas,' in the last paragraph of chap. II, §§ 12, 29, 31, 33, 37).
