Four ornamental charts showing different types of girdles, coiffures and head dresses worn by men and women in Kushana age were prepared and displayed in the galleries to illustrate the then existing social life of the people as known from Mathura sculptures.

7. Cleaning and preservation—A large number of sculptures and terracottas, in addition to all the new arrivals, were chemically cleaned and treated in the local Laboratory. Besides, six sculptures and four terracottas were subjected to paper pulp treatment for freeing them from salts.

8. Photographic work—As usual the rich and varied collection of Mathura antiquities attracted the attention of various scholars to whom their photographs were supplied.

A set of 15 photos of Mathura antiquities photographed by the Archaeological Survey of India, during the year, was presented to the Museum for which the Director General of Archaeology in India deserves best thanks of the Committee.

9. Interpretation, Research and educational activities.—During the year the Curator remained busy in properly studying the newly acquired antiquities. He also took up in hand the writing of Hindi Guide Book to the Museum and made substantial progress with the work.

Besides this, the Curator contributed five articles to the leading journals and periodicals dealing with art and archaeology. He also delivered a talk on the "History of Mathura as written on the sculptures" from the All-India Radio, Lucknow Station.

The students of the local schools and colleges visited the Museum as usual in large numbers and were taken round by the Curator and the Museum Clerk.

During the Exhibition Week when a regular stream of visitors were pouring forth to see the Museum, several parties were also successfully conducted by Pandit J. P. Chaturvedi, the Museum Clerk.

10. Library—Twenty-four new books dealing with History and Archaeology were added to the Museum Library for reference.

11. Museum Building—The Museum and its surroundings were kept neat and tidy throughout the year.

During the period Government were pleased to sanction the appointment of a whole-time Mali, as a result of which much improvement was effected in the garden and lawns. To keep the lawns green the water-pipe line was extended 100 feet in length towards the south of the building.

12. Visitors—During the year the Museum was visited by many distinguished persons.

13. General—During the year the Curator was deputed to the Laboratory of the Archaeological Chemist in India, Dehra Dun, to receive practical training in modern methods of scientifically preserving Museum antiquities.

Mr. Nagar has to his credit another year of devoted work for the improvement and development of the Museum; the Committee desire to place on record their appreciation of the work done by him as also their thanks for the draft of this report.

(ii) Sale of Grass

The grass in the Museum compound was sold by auction for Rs.35. This amount was credited into the local Government Treasury under the head "Miscellaneous Department, U. P.—XXXVI—Museum Receipts."

4. Acquisitions—(A) Archaeology—During the year under report 42 antiquities (Museum Register no. 3219 to 3260) were added to the Museum Collection, which consisted of some valuable sculptures and inscriptions.

(B) Numismatics—Fifteen coins were added to the cabinet. All of them were purchased for a total of Rs.297.5 including a sum of Rs.152.5 the balance from Professor Dubrieul's donation. The coins include one (gold) of Chandra Gupta II, Archer Tupe; one (gold) Kacha type; one (gold) coin of Huvishka with MAO on the reverse (P. M. C. XVII, no. 123); five (silver) punch-marked coins and seven copper coins.

5. Arrangement—During the year 45 antiquities were mounted on artistic wooden pedestals and provided with suitable labels. Fifty-four new labels were written and 38 old ones were renewed.

Gandhara and Nalanda sculptures were re-arranged in a wall show case. The selected pieces of inscribed bricks from Mora and Ganesra sites and pottery from different localities were exhibited in a separate table case for the first time.

6. Cleaning and Preservation—All the new antiquities were cleaned in the Laboratory. Four sculptures were subjected to paper-pulp treatment.

7. Research and Educational Activities—Being his first year the Curator, Mr. Bajpai remained busy in studying and making himself well acquainted with the vast collection of antiquities in the Museum. He contributed about 10 articles in the leading journals and periodicals, and delivered a talk on Mathura Art under the auspices of the Braj Sahitya Mandals, Mathura. During the year photos of famous Mathura antiquities were supplied to the scholars and institutions as usual. In the last week of January an exhibition of historical objects was organised by the local Champa Agarwala College. The Museum took leading part in the Exhibition and in a corner some important museum articles were exhibited, which were highly appreciated by the teachers, students, and the outside visitors.

8. Library—Besides the scientific Bulletins, Journals and Periodicals, 29 new books dealing with Indian Art, History and Archaeology were added to the Library.

9. Museum Building and Gardens—The building, gardens and lawns were maintained in a neat and tidy condition. As specially suggested by Mr. M. S. Randhawa, I.C.S. some Kadamba (Anthocephalus Indicus) plants were planted in the Museum compound and three red Asoka (Saraca Indica) plants were ordered from the Empress Botanical Gardens, Poona.

10. Visitors—During the year Museum was visited by a large number of visitors from India and abroad, as usual.

This year British Delegation consisting of Sir Richard Winstead, Vice-Chairman, Royal Asiatic Society, Dr. K. de. B. Codrington, London University, and Mr. Basil Gray of British Museum, came on behalf of the Royal Academy, London, to make the final selection of antiquities from this Museum for the proposed Exhibition of Indian Art to be organised by the Royal Academy in the winter of 1947-48. They selected 15 sculptures and 4 terracottas for the Exhibition.

11. General—During the year the Curator was on tour for 10 days. He visited the several sites in the district and acquired 24 pieces in all for the Museum. In the course of his deputation to Nagpur and Patna he visited the famous Museum at Sanchi, Nagpur, Patna and Nalanda and the historical sites of Besnagar, Udaigiri, Sanchi, Gaya, Bodh-Gaya and Rajgir.

The curator prepared a comprehensive scheme for reorganisation of the Curzon Museum of Archaeology, Mathura, and submitted the same for consideration of the Museum Re-organisation Committee recently appointed by the U. P. Government. It is gratifying to note that the Sub-Committee constituted by the above Committee has been kind enough to accept this scheme with slight modifications.
