

International Conference:

'Vedic Wisdom and Women: Contemporary Perspective'

A three days international conference on the theme- “Vedic Wisdom and Women: Contemporary Perspective” was organized by Nari Samvaad Prakalp of the IGNCA in collaboration with Wider Association for Vedic Studies (WAVES) from 5th to 7th December, 2019 at IGNCA. The conference was fundamentally based on the prominence of ancient glory and creative abilities of Indian women, along with deliberations on the modern-day challenges. The conference thus attempted to unfold tough dilemmas of life through Vedic Wisdom using the medium of academic sessions, discussions, lectures and presentations, etc., with equal participation not only of the internationally recognized erudite speakers but also of many young scholars from all across India.

The conference had three parallel sessions organized at three different venues of IGNCA. More than 140 delegates came from different parts of the world along with several Pan-Indian universities and Institutions.

About 108 presentations and research papers in three languages, i.e., English, Hindi and Sanskrit on the above mentioned theme along with Power point presentations were made by both senior and young scholars during these three days of conference
