About the book- It is a unique volume on an inimitably fascinating landscape-The Sunderbans. The largest mangrove ecosystem in the world with highest species diversity that includes the iconic Royal Bengal Tiger.

This sprawling marvel of nature is a UNESCO biodiversity heritage site. A living theatre of human civilisation, the region has witnessed human desperation, existential struggles, revolutions and bloodshed since time immemorial. To do justice to the intellectual breadth that the region invokes, a diverse range of expositions- academic research, personal encounters, field notebooks, films & photographs make it a unique collection.
